Information bureau on Market Hill opposed – 64 12 10d

1964 12 11
Rapid growth of 'necklace villages' puts pressure on parish councils – Sawston example – 64 12 11

There were originally three windmills owned by the Nunn family but as they were superseded the buildings fell into disuse. Two were pulled down and the other, at Kneesworth, was converted into living quarters for the servants who worked for Dr Edmond Nunn. After removing the top portion, which carried the huge sails, he had it rebuilt in the style of the ancient John o' Gaunt's tower which stood down the Old Fen. Unfortunately vandals have completely ransacked it of its fittings. But Mrs George Oliver can clearly remember it and the small railway which ran down the Drift on which little trucks full of the milled flower were manhandled as far as the main road - 64 12 11a

Chimneys – feature with pictures – 64 12 11b

Stretham photo feature – 64 12 11c

1964 12 12
Stretham – Pearce postman picture – 64 12 12

Jimmy Savile at Huntingdon – profile – 64 12 12a, 12b

1964 12 14
Gamlingay church fabric worse than thought – 64 12 14

Swaffham Prior villagers are up in arms over the selection by the stonemason of 'models' for gargoyles on the church. But they are caricatures, not memorials and choice is entirely that of the architect and carver. They feature John Shuffleton the mason, Cecil Bourne the architect, John Norris the restoration fund treasurer, former vicar Red Tom Fisher, works foreman Mr Ward and James Sheldrick, an 82-year-old gardener. 64 12 14a

Arthur Chapman celebrates 90th birthday at Red Lion pub, Toft, where he has been a regular for 75 years 64 12 14b

King & Harper showrooms in Bridge Street to be sold to Trinity College with a new sales centre built at Milton Road says Oliver Rix who acquired company in November 64 12 14c # c.26.48

1964 12 15
New farm reservoir completed at Herringswell for land irrigation – 64 12 15

Gt Abington headmaster J.C. Faulkner retires after 25 years – 64 12 15a

1964 12 16
A bomb disposal team exploded five pounds of gelignite and a quantity of industrial detonators found in a wood on the Gog Magog Hill. The gelignite was of the type used in safe-breaking and it was found by police after they received information from a man serving a prison sentence. The explosion blew a two feet deep hole and was heard more than a mile away in Stapleford. People rushed into the street to see what had happened. 64 12 16

When Artic Prince won the Derby in 1951 Royston streets were decorated with flags as it was welcomed back to Willie Stephenson's training stables. He established the thoroughly modern 'Tudor Stud' at Aspenden with 100 beautifully-equipped boxes after the Newmarket area became terribly 'horse sick'. Royston has been a racing town for well over 300 years with annual races dating back to the time of James I whose stables known as 'The Jockey House' were just beyond the end of the present heath. 64 12 16a

1964 12 17
Daleks in Cambridge – 64 12 17 & a

1964 12 18
Freight train derailed at Sandy – all main railway trains diverted – 64 12 18 & a

Cyril Eastwood, Cambridge Medical Officer of Health, profile – 64 12 18b

Cambridge Institute of Education in Shaftsbury Road runs courses for teachers and undertakes research in education – 64 12 18e

Beck Row photo feature – 64 12 18f

1964 12 21
Henry Andrews moved to Royston in 1766 and compiled Old Moore's Almanac; his portrait hangs in the reference section of Cambridge public library – feature – 64 12 21

Terracotta crib scene in Central Library junior department – 64 12 21a

Graffham Water being filled – feature on history of Diddington reservoir – 64 12 21b

1964 12 22
Cyril Fletcher brings magic to 'Aladdin' – 64 12 22

Jack Branch, haulage contractor, missing – 64 12 23

1964 12 23
Harston speed limit to be raised to 40 mph – 64 12 23

1964 12 28
Sir – Magdalene College's plan to pull down a row of cottages, nos.8-18, in Northampton Street and replace them with a garden would alter its character and leave a gap in this distinctive part of old Cambridge. The row at present makes a beautiful curve, a fitting foil to the more splendid Cory House and no.13 Magdalene Street. In view of the college's highly successful treatment of Magdalene Street where the aspect has been retained, I hope they will be find some other solution short of complete demolition – Elizabeth Harland 64 12 28

The second phase of new Church of England school being built in Flower Street will be finished in September. The first involved the building of two classrooms and a hall, the second another two classes, kitchen and staff accommodation. Another hall and more classrooms will follow. The school was formerly St George's Secondary School for 150 pupils aged 11-15. In July it adapted to a new age range and became St Matthew's Primary School. A two-storey building of the old school has been demolished and the school is being adapted to suit the needs of primary education. 64 12 28a

1964 21 31
Saffron Walden Literary and Scientific Institute library was established in 1832 and in 1889 the building in King Street was given to the trustees. But increasing costs and decreasing membership mean the priceless collection of ancient books dating back to the 15th century are deteriorating. They will be given to Essex County Council for preservation. One of the conditions is that the building in King Street would be retained as a library and reading room. It is expected that the existing county library in Church Street would be moved there 64 12 31

1965 Cambridge News & Ely Standard

I have copies of these articles
The full typed up articles as published have been lost for the moment – are in Segate LB 1965

January 1965 CN, ES

1965 01 01
A shortage of bricks and labour problems, caused by the high wastage of recruits who complete their training before deciding that building is not for them, has forced Cambridge Council to experiment with a timber-based system for 32 houses on the Arbury Estate. Each costs nearly £800 more than conventional houses but traditional methods mean they would not be able to provide the 500 houses needed. The situation was exacerbated by the 200-odd eroding prefabs that have to be completely replaced almost immediately. But the Ministry of Housing rejected their plans saying it was too expensive– 65 01 01

Life in a village – Willingham – photos – 65 01 01a

Following the theft of a ton and a half of lead from the roof of the isolated parish church of Wood Walton, the priest is to launch an appeal to raise £1,500 to replace it. The lead was stolen between the close of Sunday afternoon services and Wednesday when a visitor to the churchyard discovered the damage. The church, which stands three-quarters of a mile from the village, is already appealing for restoration work on the vestry – 65 01 01b

1965 01 04

The statue of Jonas Webb, an internationally-famous 19th-century sheep farmer may be moved from the Corn Exchange to Parker's Piece overlooking the National Farmers' Union headquarters, Owen Jebb House. The statue was erected over 100 years ago and originally stood in the Market Place. But the constant attention of students and pigeons necessitated its removal to the Corn Exchange. – 65 01 04

Heyworth's sale – advertisement – 65 01 04a

1965 01 05
Dorman Sprayer of Cambridge begin production at new works – St Martin's Jam factory Ely – 65 01 05

Gamlingay church bells ring again after two years of silence – 65 01 05a

Cambridgeshire's planning officer had resigned through ill health. It means the new combined Cambridgeshire and Isle of Ely County Council is without a senior planner. The present Isle of Ely planner joined a Midland authority some months ago. The position in an area like Cambridgeshire is regarded as a 'plum' job. The council also needs a new County Architect to succeed one killed in a road accident. – 65 01 05b

Lion Yard plan may include large hotel – 65 01 05c

1965 01 07
Work on the extensions to the University Arms Hotel is proceeding on schedule. It will include a conference room that can be divided into four separate rooms together with an extra 58 bedrooms. There will be a new entrance hall and an ultra-modern bar opening directly on to the street. It should be finished by April. – 65 01 07

Stuntney horses in snowy landscape photo – 65 01 07a

The new hospital at USAF Lakenheath contains the latest and best in medical equipment and patient comfort. It has air conditioning, seven channel radio – including Radio Caroline – television and electrically adjustable beds. With 27 doctors, 48 nurses, 250 airmen and 50 civilians attached to the hospital there are nearly three staff to each patient. They have the most modern X-ray and dental equipment with 'push-button' control, surgical and obstetric suites and an intensive treatment ward. A 'flying doctor' service with a specially-converted Convair aircraft means it will serve Americans from all over the country – 65 01 07b

Mp Francis Pym may lose most of his 1,400 acres of land, and two farms, if proposals for a 3,000 acre reservoir in the Abbotsley area materialise – 65 01 07c

Hawes farm, Padney near Wicken has starling results with new variety of potato, Desire – 65 01 07d

1965 01 08
The Vicar of Waterbeach says that some RAF buildings in the 'boom-town' area should not have been demolished but used as living quarters. It was wrong for surplus living accommodation to be destroyed in the present desperate housing shortage. The RAF say the site was used as a mess by the W.R.A.F. during the war. Later it had been converted to living accommodation though no-one had lived there. It was uninhabitable and children were climbing into it. No other properties would be destroyed.– 65 01 08

Plans for 32 industrialised 'factory-built' houses on Arbury Estate rejected by Government – 65 01 08a # c.23

Mildenhall picture feature – 65 01 08b

1965 01 11
Education budget may have to be cut – 65 01 11

Major Dermot Freyer, first socialist member of City Council joined in 1919 and represented Petersfield until 1937; elected an hour before Clara Rackham – 65 01 11a # c.35.7 # c.33

1965 01 12
Labour MPs refuse to debate immigration at Cambridge Union with Peter Griffiths MP for Smethwick – 65 01 12

Lorry-load of cases, King's Parade as students return – 65 01 12

Longstanton prehistoric monster bones given to Museum Archaeology – 65 01 12

Chesterton Hospital staff shortages are nothing new. Since the invention of antibiotics people do not die of disease at early ages, but live on. Geriatric nursing is not something you would be glad to see your daughter doing. Particularly when there is such a wide choice of less demanding and better-paid jobs. It is hard work: patients have to be fed, washed and helped to a degree unimaginable in other forms of illness. Sometimes their very helplessness makes the patients feel resentful at their dependence on the goodwill of others, so that they are critical rather than grateful for the help that is offered. If Chesterton is one of the most up to date in the country, one shudders to think what the rest must be like.– 65 01 12

A new German machine at Milton owned by Cambridge Precast Stone can produce enough bricks to build a house in less than two hours, thus helping to beat the national brick shortage. It is the biggest installation in the country and will enable the firm to supply orders from builders' merchants. It comprises a dragline feeding aggregate to a mixer where cement and colouring are added. The moisture content is measured by an automatic 'Hydrobot' device. The mix is fed to the moulds for vibrating and tamping before the completed bricks are delivered on pallets to an off-loading conveyor 65 01 12a

1965 01 13
Huntingdon expansion plan have been going smoothly for three years. More than 700 new houses have been built and 3,000 have moved in – mostly under the London overspill scheme. But now rising building costs mean the LLC needs to raise their contribution to prevent a gap which might lead to big rent increases. Huntingdon is not the only 'overspill' town to have found the financial burden heavy. But the second phase of the development scheme will still go ahead. – 65 01 13 & b

Village College for Gt Shelford plans inquiry – 65 01 13a

Buckden church remove pews - 65 01 13c

1965 01 14
Smart & Son, the outfitters in Market Street, has been run by the same family for more than 150 years. But now they are to move to Mill Road and the shop sold – 65 01 14

Rag Day proceeds may be used to fund a youth centre for young people who live and work here. The bankside opposite Magdalene College would be an ideal site. There are good reasons: the college buildings are now awkwardly sited in relation to town development and will always be an encumbrance in terms of planning. Townspeople have to pay higher rates because of the specially low rating allowed the colleges and industrial development has been restricted which would have provided new industries. As it is many children have to go to other towns to earn their livings. And when they reach marriageable age they have difficulty finding housing since so much land is taken up by the university.– 65 01 14a

1965 01 15
Aldermen should be abolished, council say – 65 01 15, 15c

Royal Hotel modernisation progress – 65 01 15a # c.27.45

Edarn builders of Haslingfield built first house at Abington in 1960 – history – 65 01 15b

City's parking policy aimed to 'break even'; photo Corn Exchange Street parking – 65 01 15d # B.Cor

Saffron Walden is expanding as a commuter district. Each morning commuters gather at Audley End station in preparation for their daily pilgrimage south. Some bury themselves and their feelings in a morning newspaper, others gaze rather sleepy-eyed into the distance while the remainder mutter to themselves about the closure of a centre Saffron Walden branch line. The migratory habits of their species are catching on and the number who daily jostle and barge their way to the capital is increasing – 65 01 15e

Wicken village photo feature – 65 01 15f

1965 01 16
Peter Coe of Cambridge blows the tenor sax for Georgie Fame on 'Yeh Yeh' which has pushed The Beatles from the top spot in the hit parade. He is an ex Cambridge High School boy and began his playing career at Coleridge Youth Club. The jazz group he helped to found came third in a national competition organised by 'Melody Maker'. He is now a full professional with the Blue Flames who pick up £200 a performance. His parents in Catherine Street are devoted to the Blue Flames new wave Rhythm and Blues – 65 01 16

Residents of Catherine Street believe they are the only thoroughfare in Cambridge to keep up the tradition of street parties which celebrated the end of the war. Around 130 members of the Social Club attended a ball in Romsey Labour Club. The Secretary said "This is a really sociable street. Irrespective of who lives here, they are entitled to belong to the club which costs sixpence a year.". They have a New Year party which has been celebrated since the Coronation in 1953 and a summer outing. Other streets get jealous but they cannot extend the size of the club because it would be too unwieldy 65 01 16a

1965 01 18
Welcome to foreign students – about 1,000 full-time students – feature – 65 01 18 # c.36.52

1965 01 19
Floating restaurant planned for Cam – 65 01 19

1965 01 20
Royston expansion problems – feature – 65 01 20

A plan to build a shopping centre with parking for 1,000 cars at Duce's Tip would reduce the pressure on the central area of Cambridge. It would also include five one-acre sites for business and commercial use. But it may be blocked if the city council are allowed to acquire an adjoining site by compulsory purchase for the re-location of two displaced businesses 65 01 20a, photo 65 01 22a

1965 01 21
Cambridge Cage Birds Association was formed from the Cambridge Ornithological Society. Its 200 members range from specialists who breed different strains to those content with one bird. W.A. Knights of Argyle Street specialises in speciality border canaries and has 60 birds. Others collect budgerigars, Zebra Finches or waxwings. The cage bird hobby is more expensive than it was but good birds can be bought from two pounds ten shillings. 65 01 21

Victoria Road Congregational Youth Club attracts 50 15-21 year-olds each week. There is a large hall and they can dance or play games, talk and drink coffee. The highlights include punt parties, sausage sizzles and barbecues. In spite of the austerity of the hall there is a genuine air of friendliness. Organisers have tried to introduce more serious activities but they have not proved too popular. The evenings end with a short epilogue, though the influence of religion is not particularly stressed. 65 01 21a

Common Land feature – Snailwell Poor's Fen is an example of a common in neglect. Having been set aside for the poor to obtain sedge it is now used only for shooting – feature – 65 01 21b

1965 01 22
The greenhouses of Cherry Hinton Hall are coming apart with walls bulging, rooms leaking and draughts. Dampness and poor heating make the task of producing sturdy plants soul destroying for the staff of the propagating centre. The boilers are old, obsolete and temperamental. Stoking goes on day and night in boiler rooms which have no proper ventilation. The dust is choking and at times the fumes are so powerful the stoker is in danger of being overcome. But if the temperature drops plants and seedlings will die by the score – 65 01 22

Offord D'Arcy & Offord Cluny photo feature – 65 01 22b

Melbourn village green, once the scene of fierce riots, is today no more than a tiny area of tree-shaded grass by the busy central crossroads – belonging, apparently to no one. The green was not allocated at the time of enclosure. The parish council thought it was parish property but the County disagrees. This is one of the reasons when the idea of erecting a bus shelter has been shelved after years of debate 65 01 22c

1965 01 25
Winston Churchill appeal – part of proceeds will go to Churchill College – 65 01 25

The new Mormon Church in Queen Edith's Way – the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints – is an imposing structure with a simple interior. The neat and modern design incorporates a sports room marked out with a basketball court. It was constructed using many hours of voluntary labour, many not members of that faith, and will be open to all. 65 01 25a (dedicated in 1967 when completely paid for) [11.8]

Cheveley memories of Winston Churchill – spent holidays there – 65 01 25b

1965 01 27
At Mildenhall local trade has boomed because of the air base but, with speculation on its future, councillors say they cannot live forever on the economy of the American bases. If they have nothing to replace them with when they are abandoned it will be a very poor out-look. Now plans for a third airport for London have led to suggestions that Lakenheath might be a suitable site, linked to the capital by monorail. An US company, Superior Oil are searching for oil or natural gas at Wangford, an off-the-beaten-track hamlet. If successful Mildenhall could become a 'boom' town 65 01 27 & b grant approved despite colour bar issue – 65 03 03d

Northampton Street cottages being reroofed – photo – 65 01 27a

1965 01 28
Cambridge Librarian, Eric Cave, is anxious to provide a permanent home in the central library for odd items of Cambridge interest like old books, scrapbooks, prints and photographs. He had recently received a scrapbook of the public activities of the late Ald W.L. Raynes when he was Mayor from 1931 to 1932. His executors sent them having seen a report about a similar gift from another former Mayor 65 01 28

Clark and Butchers millers of Soham were the first in Britain to have a chilled grain store, probably the largest in the country. Normally grain is kept in condition by putting heat into it to dry it – if grain is moist it will deteriorate. The new idea is to take heat out of it and store it moist. Jack Clark says the 1963 wheat kept in this way was in very good condition. It is important to maintain careful control of temperature because if a hot spot develops it is difficult to stop the heat rising. 65 01 28a

1965 01 29
Fenstanton bypass open for first time – photos – 65 01 29

Girton photo feature – 65 01 29a

1965 01 10
Most shops closed, traffic slowed down and parts of Cambridge stood still. People doing weekend shopping were caught up in the 'quiet hour' as the town showed its mark of respect on the funeral day of Sir Winston Churchill. Even the market lacked its usual chivvying of customers. Some stalls were covered and closed for business. The coffee bars and television shops remained open. People crowded into Radio Rentals in Regent Street to watch the funeral on television. A few stood outside to hear the service relayed on a loudspeaker 65 01 30

Llewellyn-Davies invited to prepare plan for new shopping Centre, Fitzroy Street – 65 01 30a # c.49.4 # c.49.66

February 1965 CN, ES

1965 02 01
Addenbrooke's Hospital 2nd phase to start in a year – 65 02 01

When the gears did not have synchromesh – Bertie Baker drives a 31-year-old Austin Seven – 65 02 01a

1965 02 02
The death of Mr J.D. Livingstone brought a feeling of personal loss to hundreds of old pupils of the Central School. He joined the staff in 1921 and in 1933 succeeded G.W. Martin as headmaster. He entered fully into the social life of the school, attending every school camp and developing a strong boxing club. He formed an old boy's association in 1924. A memorial service will be held.65 02 02a

Old West River near Stretham – photo – 65 02 02b

1965 02 03
County Council staff demand for pay rise rejected – 65 02 03

Since 1961, when the overspill expansion scheme started, St Neots has grown steadily and the wisdom of controlled growth has injected a new vitality into a town regarded as charming but archaic. The new bridge over the Ouse will remove a hazardous bottleneck which has throttled the town and frustrated motorists. Sandfields, the new housing estate on the Cambridge Road has a great deal more character than most of its kind. Residents are generally pleased with their houses though they hope for increased amenities, better public transport and medical facilities. Young couples are pleased they are to receive a special encouragement to settle there 65 02 03a

Inquiry into development of Downing St – St Andrew's Street block – should fit into Lion Yard scheme – 65 02 03b

1964 02 04
Chesterton Tower – modern flats being built alongside – photo – 65 02 04

Coton Linden Brooke tea rooms known throughout the country. For sale – photo – 65 02 04a

Sturton Street Methodist Church youth club has a membership of 50. Meeting on Friday evenings their activities are a little restricted but they offer a fairly varied programme. Most activities take place in the church hall and the adjoining kitchen is used for light refreshments. But in addition to the social and recreational aims, they also have an educational and spiritual element with talks, film shows and a discussion on topics of interest. A short lesson, hymn and prayer is given at the end. A youth fellowship meets on Sunday afternoons for bible study 65 02 04b

Arbury Court branch library foundations – photo – 65 02 04c

1965 02 05
Elderly people living alone in St George's parish are invited to place a fish-shaped card in the windows of their homes to attract the attention of passers-by if they need sudden emergency aid. 65 02 05a

Papworth St Agnes church closed for services because of cold – photo – 65 02 05a

The temporary closure of the church at Papworth St Agnes because of the cold weather does not mean the village is dying. J.H. Sperling, whose family have owned the village for generations says the church is not simply for the village. He has a large estate of fine farms and cottages and has been given planning permission to build twelve more houses in the village. The church, together with Graveley and Yelling, did not have a vica last year. Apart from money collected in the normal free-will offerings there was no appeal being launched for a new central heating system for the church 65 02 05d

Plans for five-storey block of flats at Roseford Road – Carlton Way junction in Arbury approved – 65 02 05b

Fulbourn Hospital sports pavilion & social club opened – 65 02 05c

Barley photo feature – 65 02 05e

1965 02 08
Burwell Secondary Modern School was the first to introduce adult evening classes in 1923 but it was not felt right to turn it into a village college until other areas of Cambridgeshire had secondary education. Now it will be the last to enter village college ranks and money has been allocated for new buildings and soon the old buildings will be empty for the first time since its foundation in 1846. The principle has mixed views believing the present school has hall necessary educational accoutrements and provides children will a good education 65 02 08a

A great deal of money is spent on training scientists at the university and village colleges. If light industrial firms were encouraged to come to Cambridge and set up small factories employing 50 people, there would be a ready supply of skilled technicians, creating better employment prospects, says Coun. Ron Thulborn of Fulbourn. He is against heavy industry. The city council has been pressing county planners to lift their ban on industrial development. But they say it would alter the whole concept of Cambridge as a university town and allow it to grow in size out of hand 65 02 08b

The world's largest and most advanced amateur television station is based in Jeremy Royle's home at Duddenhoe End and he puts out a regular transmission each evening. Another station is owned by Douglas Wiles of Mill Road whose equipment and home-made camera is fitted into his living room. Both are members of the Cambridge Amateur Radio Club and the audience consists of about half-a-dozen people who can switch on their transmitter and chat to the figure on the screen. The availability of cheap war surplus material gave amateur radio and television a boost in the post-war years but today the supplies have died away 65 02 08c

1965 02 09
Gypsy couple with caravan by roadside at Lt Shelford – Loveridge family – photo – 65 02 09

1965 02 10
Wooden footbridge at Burnside to be removed and replaced with steel structure to allow cement manufacturing company to move heavy digging equipment on land at the rear. It will later be replaced – 65 02 10a

Cambridge undergraduates may soon be able to go out at night without their gowns. A Council of Senate report supports proposals for the abolition of compulsory wearing of gowns after dark by the Proctorial Syndicate. In June 1961 rules governing academic dress and discipline were amended to allow graduates to go out at night without gowns. But the practice of 'walking' would be continued for other disciplinary reasons including visiting licensed premises and places of entertainment – 65 02 10b

Haverhill looks forward to the year 1981 when it expects to have about 18,500 people. It was in 1952 with the Town Development Act that Haverhill earned the right to call itself a pioneer. Its agreement with the London County Council for the transfer of industries and some 5,000 people from London preceded similar agreements with Thetford. Now land has been set apart for a further 5,000. Older residents have watched the appearance of multiple stores such as Fine Fare and Woolworth's mark the transition from parochial obscurity to twentieth-century affluence. But a certain amount of hooliganism has caused the police a few headaches 65 02 10c

Paint flakes from the ornate wooden eaves of Newmarket station and the long and desolate platforms seem to stretch on interminably. In the waiting room a coal fire smoulders. There are long seats, the leather upholstery cracking, and the walls hung with faded water colours of children on the sand at Southend. Further along the south platform the cream-painted arcade changes into charred wreckage, the aftermath of a fire three years ago which demolished the book stall. In its heyday several race-day specials would pull up at the station. But today racegoers travel by car. Next month the north side will be modernised 65 02 10d

1965 02 11
St Ives Dolphin Hotel and Bridge House may be demolished – photo – 65 02 11a

Conditions to be imposed on City council tenants who want to park their cars in front gardens were criticised. They insist that areas must be paved with concrete slabs laid on sand so as to spread the load of parked vehicles and not damage water pipes or electricity cables. Councillors are concerned that as tenancies changed frequently subsequent owners not possessing cars might want to cultivate the gardens. But such restrictions do not apply to private owners. In one road there is an ice cream vehicle parked in a front garden and many people put caravans there 65 02 11b

1965 02 12
A new German machine at Milton owned by Cambridge Precast Stone can produce enough bricks to build a house in less than two hours, thus helping to beat the national brick shortage. It is the biggest installation in the country and will enable the firm to supply orders from builders' merchants. It comprises a dragline feeding aggregate to a mixer where cement and colouring are added. The moisture content is measured by an automatic 'Hydrobot' device. The mix is fed to the moulds for vibrating and tamping before the completed bricks are delivered on pallets to an off-loading conveyor 65 01 12a

Cheveley photo feature – 65 02 12b

Cars threaten to swamp the Trumpington council house estate but a piece of land in Foster Road lies derelict and unused, except as a rubbish dump. Some families have two or three vehicles and more than 300 cars can line the roads or block the grass verges and greens. 65 02 12c

1965 02 15
West Wratting wheelwright Bertie Taylor was last in a family; he followed his father and grandfather, dating back 100 years 65 02 15a

1965 02 16
Most Cambridge doctors are in favour of withdrawing from the National Health Service if the dispute between the Government and the medical profession is not resolved. They are not protesting about the salary they are getting but arguing about the way in which they are paid. There is a tremendous amount of wastage and so little money is being put into general practice, they claim. 65 02 16a

Magdalene College scaffolding causes problems for seven months – photo – 65 02 16b

1965 02 17
St Ives has not grown all that much in recent years and it remains an intimate little town with a cosy atmosphere. But whether it can continue to resist the pressures of the outside world is another matter. The narrow, ancient bridge proved a big bottleneck to modern traffic coming from Cambridge though things have been considerably improved by the present traffic lights. But a proposed by-pass will help prevent it becoming over-congested with traffic and relieve motorists of having to drive through the middle of the town on a busy market day 65 02 17a

1965 02 18
Tread-wheel in well house at Priory Farm, Berden, near Saffron Walden ne of only two – photo – 65 02 18

The streamlined new offices of the East Anglian Regional Hospital Board stand next door to Chesterton Hospital, a bleak monument to Victorian philanthropy which remains basically unchanged in appearance. 65 02 18a # c.21.4

Bassingbourn Youth Club has a comfortable club room known as 'the dugout' situated under the stage of the Village College hall. Previously used as a furniture store it has been cleaned and decorated with colourful murals drawn and painted by some of the girls. The boys have built a coffee bar and adapted some of the old school furniture into coffee tables. Chairs and cupboards have been bought and dart boards and a variety of games imported. The hall is used for more energetic pastimes such as table tennis and badminton and the centre has acquired a full-sized billiards table which Rudyard Kipling originally bequeathed to Orwell village 65 02 18b

A new Roman Catholic Church has arisen from a derelict shed at R.A.F. Waterbeach which will serve local villagers as well as the camp. Previously Catholics worshipped in a nondescript, black hut, now condemned. Just before Christmas servicemen adapted an old dingy servicing shed as a new church, demolishing concrete tables and replacing them with seats, introducing religious paintings instead of cobwebs and adding a porch and sacrarium. 65 02 18f

It has not happened in Cambridge yet but if motorists leave their cars at bus stops or in no-waiting areas the offending vehicles will soon be unlocked by a set of master keys and taken to the police pound. It will cost a minimum of £2 to recover them. If a car cannot be unlocked it will be hooked on to a break-down lorry and towed away 65 02 18g

Lion Yard car park and Park Street car park are not adequate; the only way to improve the situation was by an extension of the multi-deck park, Chamber of Commerce told – 65 02 18h

The parking meter scheme in Cambridge is a complete and utter wash-out, a newsagent claimed. If the present system continued the city was almost bound to die as a regional centre unless it could handle the motor-car efficiently. 65 02 18i # c.49.62

1965 02 19
Croxton parish church is now some distance from the village, across parkland and close to the Manor House, Croxton Hall. But it still attracts villagers to regular services – 65 02 19a

Robert John Wadsworth, one of the most popular men in Cambridge, spent his working life with the family firm of mineral water manufacturers, Wadsworth and Sons. This became Barker and Wadsworth Ltd of which he was managing director before his retirement in 1960. He was, perhaps, best known for his many and varied sporting activities. He was much in demand as a chairman for he was known for fair-mindedness and humour in the way he conducted meetings 65 02 19b

Buckden photo feature – 65 02 19c

1965 02 20
Shepreth housewife, Mrs Greta White, has turned bricklayer, carpenter, painter and plumber in helping to create her own home. She and her husband Ted, who is manager at CIBA, have rebuilt the 200-year-old broken-down water mill at Shepreth which they bought six years ago. Now it combines the ancient and modern, with the original main shaft in the tastefully furnished lounge contrasting with the modern bedroom and kitchen furnishings – 65 02 20a

1965 02 22
Complaints over noise of weekend flying over Cambridge – 65 02 22a

Pye's Achoic Box is a high-fi stereophonic record projection system winning orders from all over the world – 65 02 22b # c.27.1 : Pye

1965 02 23
Labour row over Coun Richard Reilly becoming Mayor – 65 02 23

Contraceptive machines installed in public houses but breweries do not approve – 65 02 23a

Women take over post office, Radwinter – 65 02 23b

Standens produce combine for sugar-beet – 65 02 23c

1965 02 24
No coloured workmen or their families will be accepted in Mildenhall under the first stage of the town's development scheme. It was said that people in the town 'would not be happy' to see them. The council approved a resolution not to take coloured families from London as the effect of the integration of these families upon the local population was not known. "We do not want another Smethwick here", one councillor said 65 02 24a

There has been difficulty in encouraging industrial growth in Ely. What industry there is is agriculturally based and exceptions like boat-building are few. But the reliance on agriculture could prove unfortunate: there is no certainty yet that the Arthur Rickwood Experimental Husbandry Farm at Mepal will be successful in solving the problem of the shrinkage of the fen soil, which is a very real menace. But one forecast says that in 50 years time the Ely area might be nothing more than a paradise for speculative builders. By then communications will doubtlessly have improved beyond all recognition. Already nearly 1,000 people travel to work in Cambridge every day 65 02 24b

1965 02 25
A plan for a merger between Cambridge City and Cambridge United Football Clubs has been put forward by City chairman, Harold Ridgeon. It would see the amalgamation of the clubs and the disposal of both their grounds with the creation of a new football stadium to the south of the city. It would include the facilities such as car parks and recreational amenities that future spectators would demand. 65 02 25a # c.38 : football

1965 02 26
Wulfstan Way bollards protest – 65 02 26a

Nora David, a Cambridge housewife will soon be completing her first year as a Labour member of the City Council. She is anxious to see the Lion Yard and new shopping centre development go ahead as soon as possible and thinks there are other parts of Cambridge which also need attention. Many streets look rather dull and need a face-lift. She is in favour of Cambridge having a concert hall and art gallery, has a interest in the welfare of elderly people and has been involved in the new clinic for the early diagnosis of cancer at Addenbrooke's Hospital 65 02 26b # c.33

Jack Baldry, the Cambridge mineral water firm, has installed a new soft drink production plant which has doubled their bottle output and cut factory staff by a third. Two production lines now complete the cycle of washing, filling, capping and labelling the drinks, a job preciously done by three bottle lines and about 35 employees working on equipment which was up to 18 years old. Now 10,000 bottles an hour can be made up at the Gold Street factory 65 02 26c

Haddenham photo feature – 65 02 26d

1965 02 27
Gt St Mary's – view framed through King's arch – 65 02 27a

Print of Ely Martyrs engraved wrong way round – 65 02 27b

Mothers in Lawrence Way, Cambridge are arguing over whether their children should be allowed to play on a large green in front of their homes. Tempers have flared as youngsters between the ages of nine & 12 have been playing football and kicking the ball into gardens, trampling things down. One resident says he has told them to be quiet but they don't take any notice and are abusive. 65 02 27c

March 1965 CN, ES

1965 03 01
Husband and wife team on County Council – Michael Pease – 65 03 01b

Pinehurst building site sale – 65 03 01c

1965 03 03
United directors snub city merger – 65 03 03

Waterbeach RAF airfield sign warns of low-flying aircraft – 65 03 03a

Soham development issues – 65 03 03b, c

The LCC was urged to delay payment for the construction of six unit factories at Mildenhall because of the town council's refusal to accept coloured workers. But it was a small community which intended to expand and suddenly faced an influx well beyond what they think they can integrate easily. This 'progressive brave little town' had appealed to the LCC to allow the factory grant to go forward. The grant was approved 65 03 03d

1965 03 04
A northern by-pass for Cambridge which could cope with the increasing flow of Midlands traffic on its way to East Anglia is proposed in the latest review of the County Development Plan. It would leave the A45 St Neots Road in the vicinity of Hardwick and swing north to meet the Cambridge-Huntingdon Road. From there it would run by Girton, cross the Histon Road near the sewage farm and on to Quy. Then the road would continue to Bury, Stowmarket, Ipswich and Felixstowe. – 65 03 04a # c.49.62

Emmanuel College needs extra accommodation for Fellows & undergraduates. The new building would occupy the site of the former New Theatre with two three-storey wings designed to give a good relationship with Old Court. There would be a single-storey block containing a small assembly area. It would enable every undergraduate to spend at least two of his three years living within the college and be ready for occupation in 1966. – 65 03 04b # c.44.5

The need for youth clubs in a rural area is perhaps even more acute that that in larger towns where there are at least coffee bars, cinemas and dance halls. The Village College has helped provide organised activities but something else is needed to prevent the breakdown of village life and individual youth clubs should be established, Jim Reed, adult tutor of Linton VC says. Clubs attract a high proportion of the youthful population who participate in many activities for which the village hall or school is suitable - billiards, table tennis, darts or dancing. One evening a week club members throughout the area get together at Linton for organised activities such as five-a-side football, badminton or table-tennis coaching. Special dressmaking and shorthand and typing classes are arranged. Until recently young people shied away from anything that was the least bit formal or organised. Now they are beginning to want something outside their clubs and enjoy coming to the VC and meeting members from other clubs. Increased mobility has encouraged young people to go onto the towns at weekends, particularly if Friday is pay day. During the week they stay in home area. Some clubs have done a lot of work for elderly people and this may increase. Village clubs have become an integral part of village life and when youngsters see they are well established they settle down to do something. If more people help rather than criticising a lot more could be done. Young are maturing earlier and marrying earlier; need senior clubs catering for those of courting age and up to

25. Brinkley is one of best examples, formed six years ago; the only other venture is a boys club which concentrates on physical training. The club meets Tuesdays and Thursdays in the village hall and is run by a committee of youngsters. Is a friendly active organisation with more than 50 members from the tiny village and area. Activities include table tennis, darts, board games and racing small electric cars around a track. In the kitchen the girls make coffee and eggs on toast for their friends. Whole atmosphere of friendship and enjoyment. We don't want anything more, just the opportunity to get together, talk and play games, they say. Cricket and football teams have been formed. More than £50 given to charity, elderly people given food parcels and entertained to day outings and other tasks involving practical help have been undertaken. At Horseheath a derelict hall was acquired by youngsters and now serves as home of a very cheerful little club. Membership only 20-30, but this is 90% of the eligible population. It is an isolated village where the club gives something never before had. When members tire of playing table tennis or darts they gather round and chat informally about current affairs or listen to instruction on first aid. When first opened many villagers contributed 2s 6d towards cost of redecorating the hall and more spent on laying a proper concrete path outside. With freedom of it own hall they will redecorate by new members who take pride and interest. Atmosphere at both is friendly– 65 03 04c, d

1965 03 05
Searle cartoon on different types of library borrowers – 65 03 05a # c.77.4

Hempstead photo feature – 65 03 05b

1965 03 06
David Lane, a graduate of Trinity College, was chosen as Conservative candidate for Cambridge. He first came to Trinity in 1941 but joined the R.N.V.R. and was gunnery control officer on a destroyer. He returned to gain a first class degree then studied at Yale before being called to the bar. He has opposed nationalisation of the steel industry and is an executive at the International Petroleum Company. "Clearly traffic is a problem in Cambridge and I am sorry for the people who have to organise it", he said. The long-term solution would be by-pass schemes. – 65 03 06, a

1965 03 08
Regulars at the 'Queen's Head' at Newton were surprised to see the Shah of Persia and Queen Farah playing darts and sipping halves of bitter. They had been staying at Newton Hall as the guests of Lord Walston, Under-Secretary of State at the Foreign Office, on an unofficial visit and walked in unannounced just after opening time. The Shah signed the visitors' book and left £30 for a fund to improve the Village Rooms. Later they toured King's College Chapel 65 03 08 # c.02

Newmarket Road work on dual carriageway – 65 03 10b, 65 03 25b

Soham cemetery chapel meeting – 65 03 10b

1965 03 10
Some planners feel that the population of March should expand to around 25,000. Others believe the attraction of industry would spoil the town's intimate character and mean a vast expenditure on public services that it could ill afford. The industries that have already come, such as concrete block and cotton bag making firms, find it is not as remote as they thought. One London firm found the move was expensive but they have cut their overheads by half. At one time March relied on agricultural subsidiary industries to provide the bulk of jobs outside the railway and the busy market centre. The motor car age has not caused undue concern and you can pull up at a shop, get what you want and drive off again. 65 03 10c

1965 03 11
Ward's move to new premises in Burleigh Street marks another stage in the long history of a firm which started when Jonas Ward made a living mending bicycles in East Road. For some time they made the famous Crown cycles, one of which was ridden from Cambridge to Monte Carlo in 1930.

They also supplied carrier cycles and box tricycles. Later they diversified into wireless, gramophones, washing machines and baby carriages and became one of the first to stock televisions in 1938. – 65 03 11a, b # c.27.2 # c.26.45

1965 03 11ES
Haddenham Church Hall dance – photo. 65 03 11ES

1965 03 12
Warboys has the appearance of a small town with an impressive clock tower which belies its village status. Only the pond is left of an area which was once the village green and was used to baptise members of the Baptist Church. The church has the largest regular congregation in the country and the school choir has made three broadcasts. Albert Harvey carries on the family tradition of sub-postmaster begun by his father 46 years ago. It no longer has a railway passenger service. The station, more than a mile outside the village, was closed many years ago leaving only rusty lines and overgrown platforms – 65 03 12a

1965 03 13
Melbourn old water pump discovered – 65 03 13a

Mill Road bowling alley work progresses – photo – 65 03 13b

1965 03 15
St Edward's Church restoration completed with rededication of Trinity Hall chapel – 65 03 15a # c.83

1965 03 16
Tourists will be able to enjoy an even wider panoramic view of Cambridge from the top of Great St Mary's church after the tower refitted to give a better view – 65 03 16a

Chesterton Road house, Mitchams, being demolished for extension Barclays Bank – photo- 65 03 16b

Madingley Cricket Club pitch one of the finest in Cambridgeshire. The pavilion, a substantial wooden structure was bought from the Queens' College Sports Ground in Barton Road 65 03 15c

1965 03 17
Chatteris has a Dickensian air about it for the town seems to have remained untouched by the surging tide of development. The weather-worn appearance of much of the housing seems to suggest it is a depressed and none-too-pleasant spot. It needs shaking up with a sharp injection of new blood. The council realise it has got to keep abreast of the times yet want to avoid many of the pitfalls. Their efforts to attract light industry have not been completely successful and agriculture is still the bulwark of the town's prosperity. Men travel to Peterborough to work in the brick works while many women go to Pye and Chivers. But a corset firm helps provide diversity of employment 65 03 17a, b, c

Saffron Walden railway station has a forlorn air about it these days. It sulks for the present and fears for the future. Once 30 trains would stop at the station each days and the goods depot was constantly bursting, handling coal and agricultural goods. Several thousand passengers would use the station every week and once there was a staff of more than 50. Then in September last year it closed, a victim of Dr Beeching's cuts. The bus timetables on the station wall mock the boarded ticket office and dead leaves and dust litter the waiting room floor. The tracks are becoming rusty and the signals stay down 65 03 17d

1965 03 18
Priory Farm at Swavesey is reputed to be haunted. Footsteps, tapping and shuffling noises and an unexplained incident when a wireless went dead have sent shivers down the spines of some of the men working on the house. The farm house was built in 1875 and a story tells of the witches' well deep in the foundations. But the new owner puts it all down to imagination. 65 03 18a

1965 03 18ES
Great Ouse River Board last meeting – review. 65 03 18(3)ES
Ely Broad Street car park opens. 65 03 18ES

1965 03 19
A more suave, more affable Billy Fury sang briefly at the Regal Cinema but he left out the storming and the wriggling which he pioneered a few years ago. The show was a little frayed. He sang flanked by his own group, the Gamblers and 11 John Barry men. As there were quite a few saxophones, his voice was sometimes drowned. "Lost Without You", his recent flunk was moaned and demonstrated how Fury has lost his fangs 65 03 19a

400 new lamp standards to be erected in Cambridge – 65 03 19b

Wendens Ambo photo feature – 65 03 19c

Cambridge public libraries seriously under staffed; only nine of the 40 are fully qualified and at least a further nine are needed to bring it up to efficient operating strength - 65 03 19d # c.77.4

1965 03 22
Huntingdon & St Neots will not close doors to coloured workers- 65 03 22a

1965 03 23
Samuel Jones & co, the St Neots gummed paper manufacturers, are building a £250,000 factory on an island in the River Ouse – 65 03 23a

1965 03 24
The judicious introduction of light industry has ensured that Saffron Walden remains one of the least spoilt market towns in England. But now the proposed new town and airfield at Stansted may shatter the existing pattern of life. It is renowned for its religious tolerance which has seen many sects developing side by side without rancour. Congestion and narrow streets have forced the council to think of roads to avoid the over-crowded centre and a system of pedestrian ways 65 03 24a

Cambridge Sea Cadet unit was formed in 1941 to provide healthy recreation for young citizens. They used school premises until 1950 when Nissen huts were made available on the riverside at Halingway. But these are now altogether untenable and a new headquarters, "T.S. Ganges" built complete with quarter deck, lecture rooms, canteen and a wireless office. 65 03 24b

1965 03 25
Many people moved to the Arbury North council house estate were being put "into the deserts and snow fields of West Chesterton", a councillor claimed. They need a community centre where parents could meet socially and children be left while their mothers went into town. Social clubs and whist drives could be held during the day and at evening. But Trumpington had no social facilities and should be give priority, a report says 65 03 25a

Road dualling at junction of Coldham's Lane and Newmarket Road – photo – 65 03 25b

1965 03 26
The Wash can be reclaimed by dumping 10,000,000 tons of ash from the Electricity Generating Board's coal-fired generating station into it each year, W.E. Doran claims. It would greatly increase the rate of land reclamation but care would have to be taken to ensure shipping channels were not impeded and that silt came in over the layers of ash to make the land agriculturally fertile. However this may be so expensive that it is not practical and water storage would be more worth while 65 03 26a

New Cambridge Automatic Trunk Switching centre in Long Road opened. Subscriber trunk dialling provides a better trunk service 65 03 26b # c.27.75

Caxton Gibbet effigy of Agriculture Minister placed by farmers - 65 03 26c

Hilton photo feature – 65 03 26d

1965 03 27
The new corn market building on the Cattle Market site will replace the old Saturday corn market held in the Corn Exchange. Merchants have been advocating a move for 10 years and now it is hoped the market will revive. An encouraging number of people want to take stalls. The cost of desk or box in the new building is £10 a year. People who attend to buy or sell are charged £3 for an annual ticket. Visitors are admitted free. It will also provide a small new hall for the Cherryhinton Road – Hills Road district 65 03 27a

Two and three-quarter acres of freehold building land at Grange Road with planning permission for 60 flats and 67 garages sold for £26,000 an acre at auction. Building of high-class flats will start 'almost immediately'. This was probably the best piece of land ever made available for this type of development in Cambridge, said Douglas January & Partners 65 03 27b

1965 03 30
Cruse Club planned for widows and children – 65 03 30a

The University has asked the City Council to urge the Ministry of Transport to build the new Cambridge Western Bypass in the next seven years. It will start at the main London to Cambridge road near Brooklands Avenue, run across Coe Fen, over a new river bridge to Barton Road, then proceed to the rear of Grange Road to join the Bedford Road opposite the University Observatory. They also want all to ban the day-time parking of all vehicles along the Backs as large numbers of students cross Queen's Road to study on the Sidgwick Avenue site. This would be better than underground car park as had been suggested 65 03 30b # c.49.62

1965 03 31
Speaking at the final meeting of Cambridgeshire County Council before its amalgamation with the Isle of Ely Ald P.J. Watts said there had never been and would never be a more effective unit of local government. They had been a progressive authority with a world-wide reputation in the field of education which was efficient and served by a hard-working staff of great loyalty. Now they were being abolished by people who know a great deal about local government but do not understand it, in the interests of effective convenient local government 65 03 31, a # c.35.1

April 1965 CN, ES

1965 04 01
Scholars and others who wish to do research in the evenings will now be able to make use of the Cambridge Reference Library until nine o'clock. But there will only be one librarian on duty so it will not be possible to make use of the other facilities. Extending the hours of the lending library service could not be justified as people already had reasonable opportunity to change books, City Librarian Eric Cave said 65 04 01a

Fisher House not to be demolished as part of Lion Yard redevelopment – 65 04 01 # c.83 # c.49.67

An Army officer and a firemen were taken to hospital when a bomb disposal unit tackled 22 Molotov cocktails in a deserted rubbish dump at Villa Road, Histon. The bombs were unearthed in the back garden of a council house and were part of a load of 24 dumped by the Home Guard during the war. One exploded causing burns to the men's arms and legs. Later they were blown up with an explosive charge on a six-foot length of fuse 65 04 01c

1965 04 02
Trevor Westley of Westley & Huff estate agents leaves; in partnership since 1951 – 65 04 02a # c.06

A new folk group, the Blue River Boys, specialise in American Bluegrass Music. They comprise two guitarists, Andrew Kendon and Mike Scott, mandolin player Joe Watson, banjo picker Erik Grainger and bassist Adrian Kendon. Meetings at the Horse and Groom have become so packed that the Cambridge Folk Club is moving to the large hall of the YMCA in Alexandra Street where 200 can sit in comfort. Later a concert will be held featuring Mike Seegar, brother of America's leading folk singer, Pete Seegar 65 04 02b

Inner Relief Road protests over Minister's decision not to modify line of road – 65 04 02c

Radwinter photo feature – 65 04 02d

1965 04 03
Regent Terrace to lose the gate on this most public private road – 65 04 03a

Five 'fen tigers' of Lode who were all friends at school 90 years ago recalled the days when the lads of Lode battled with those from Bottisham. "I think the oldest people in Cambridgeshire live in Lode. It is a quiet cul-de-sac with very little development, just right for a peaceful life" said Mrs Hephzibah Watts who at 97 is the oldest. Billy Harvey, 96, still enjoys a pint at the 'Cow and Hare' while Elizabeth Pettit is 95, Maud Flack 93 and Phippin Cornwell the youngest aged just 90. 65 04 03b note: C.I.P. Looking Back column stops, fewer items now typed fully

1965 04 07
Linden-Brooke world famous tea rooms at Coton for sale – 65 04 07a

Cambridgeshire Mental Welfare Association formed 1908 – history – 65 04 07b # c.21.5

1965 04 08
Heath Lodge Hostel protest at Royston councils view on homelessness – 65 04 08a

Castle Street double yellow lines – photo – 65 04 08b

Mill Road bowling alley to open – feature – 65 04 08c # c.38 : bowls

Railway crash Gt Chesterford – 65 04 08d

Reuters news agency monitors Russia from Green End House, Royston – feature – 65 04 08e # c.04 # c.27.8

1965 04 08 ES
Isle of Ely County Council final meeting. 65 04 08(2)ES
Ely Market Place redevelopment plans. 65 04 08ES

1965 04 12
Caxton's Elizabethan Manor House turret clock is up for sale. Its Victorian weight, assisted by the rumble of heavy traffic are shaking open cracks in the house's Georgian front. Clock was given to the village by Major Gape's great-grandfather to commemorate Victoria's Golden Jubilee – 65 04 12a

Yardbirds cancel Corn Exchange concert due to flu – 65 04 12b # c.69

1965 04 13

TR-2 men at Marshall's sacked following Government cancellation project – 65 04 13a # c.27.1 : Marshals

Library committee to pay more for qualified staff; understaffed by 12 qualified librarians; no shortage of junior library posts & admin but they leave for other jobs with less hours – 65 04 13b, 65 04 23b # c.77.4

1965 04 14
Mildenhall London overspill – first 24 houses completed in June – photo – 65 04 14a

1965 04 15
Barnwell railway station children of children of D.B. Thornhill – photo – 65 04 15a

Fen Ditton photo feature – 65 04 15b, c

1965 04 19
Yasume Club formed 1949 for Japanese pows – feature – 65 04 19a # c.45.7

Ramsey Angel pub lintel may be by Robert Adam – 65 04 19b

1965 04 20
Colleges may ban big tourist parties – 65 04 20

1965 04 21
Beauty treatment for businessmen – feature – 65 04 21a

1965 04 22
Wallis Autogyros set up in Chesterton Road with support from people at Coton – 65 04 22a # c.26.1

King & Harper to relinquish radio & television interests; went into television from its outset and were original Pye agents in Cambridge – 65 04 22b

Newmarket Wellington Street a stinking back alley - 65 04 22c

RAF Upwood demonstrate sonic booms – 65 04 22d

Charlie is last railway horse at Newmarket – 65 04 22e

1965 04 22 ES
Ely Railway Station facelift. 64 04 22(2)ES

1965 04 23
Shelford fight closure of Shelford-Marks Tey railway line – 65 04 23a

Peter Wright on shortage of library staff – 65 04 23b

Alconbury & Alconbury Weston photo feature – 65 04 23c, d

Cambridge Water Company cautions over drought prospects – 65 04 23e

1965 04 26
Guides opening of new HQ in Perne Road by Lady Baden-Powell – 65 04 26a # c.37.9

1965 04 29

University Local Examination Syndicate building, Hills Road, opened; 370 candidates took first examinations set in 1858; now 252.000 – 65 04 20a, b # c.36.9 # c.36.9

Mitcham's Corner new traffic island improvement to start – 65 04 29c; opposition – 65 04 30d

RAF Wyton Bomber Command new visual display system – 65 04 29d

Boots Booklovers Library to close; during war were 450 branches – 65 04 29e # c.77.4

1964 04 29 ES
Littleport Boat Haven plans – photo. 65 04 29ES

1965 04 30
A 500-lb practice bomb capable of destruction of radius of 1,000 yards was safely defused by an R.A.F. bomb disposal team. The bomb was pulled out of the Old West River near Aldreth by a dredger. It was left in the middle of swampy fenland three miles from the village.After it had been inspected by a team of Army bomb disposal men, the R.A.F. were called in. With the aid of torches the experts picked their way among the marshes to examine the giant bomb. They returned next morning and made it safe. It will now be taken to the R.A.F. range in Yorkshire where it will be exploded. Kenneth Day of Flat Bridge Farm – the building nearest to where the bomb was found – claimed it was one of half-a-dozen jettisoned by a bomber returning to Waterbeach - 65 04 30a

Orchard Street terrace built 1826-1830 wins grant for repair – 65 04 30b

Bassingbourn firm Headly & Gresham built first taxis – feature – 65 04 30c

Mitcham's corner island plan criticism – 65 04 30d

Jim Wooders looks after parcels Drummer Street bus station for 40 years; started 1922 – 65 04 30e

Dullingham picture feature – 65 04 30f

Knight of St John 600-year-old cells under Chippenham school – photo- 65 04 30g

May 1965 CN, ES

1965 05 01
County Development Plan rejected by Minister with plans to limit Cambridge population to 100,000 and place virtual bans on all industry – 65 05 01 # c.49.4 # c.49.1

Proctorial powers and prospects – feature – 65 05 01a # c.36.9

1965 05 03
Fire when transparent polythene on newly-completed dome at New Hall caught fire – 65 05 03

1965 05 05
New county to fight proposals to transfer parts of rural area into West Suffolk – 65 05 05

Axminster carpets – double-page colour advertisement in CEN – 65 05 05a # c.04

1965 05 06
Oban Court flatlets for elderly people in Union Lane; have kitchenettes, bed-sitting room and dressing room with washbasin and lavatory. The double ones have bathroom. To be officially opened – 65 05 06

1965 05 06 ES
Bomb found at Aldreth. 65 05 06ES

1965 07 07
Inner Relief Road – 2,000 petition Minister – 65 05 07

Upherds Lane, Ely, an unadopted, bumpy, earthsurfaced thoroughfare is subject controversy – 65 05 07a

Cambridge police dog handler invents new tracking harness – 65 05 07b

Kedington photo feature – 65 05 07c

1965 05 10
Cigarettes stolen in raid on S.A. Rolfe warehouse – one of most highly organised ever known – 65 05 10 # c.34.6

1965 05 11
Possible link-up between Chesterton & S. Cambs RDCs with Cambridge acquiring necklace villages – 65 05 11

Fison's train to spray weeds; Broncho Bill circus arrives – 65 05 11

Cherryhinton Road new pedestrian crossing near Rock Road – 65 05 11a

Reach history – Len Warren seeks archives – 65 05 11b

Alexandra Garden trees removed as rotten – photo – 65 05 11c # B.Alex

Rethatching cottage Binfield Cottage, Girton by Joe Kursij – 65 05 11d

1965 05 13
J.C. Fison of Station Farm, Lode, uses fiddle sower as land so wet – 65 05 13

Leslie A. Dyer, Brook Lane, Stretham rears rabbits – feature – 65 05 13a # Stretham

1965 05 13 ES
Coveney Carnival and Hall opening. 65 05 13ES

1965 05 14
Lt Paxton photo feature – 65 05 14

1965 05 15
Hashish drug bought in Cambridge public house to be examined by forensic sciences – 65 05 15

1965 05 17
Minister of Transport to authorise the building Elizabeth Bridge following public inquiry – 65 05 17 # c.49.4 # c.44.7

Tolliday open new buildings in King's Road for horticultural business; was originally blacksmith – 65 05 17a

1965 05 18
Grantchester Baptist church which closed two years ago to be sold – 65 05 18

Cam Road empty house became vacant several months ago but stands in the middle of the Elizabeth Bridge scheme – 65 05 18a

1965 05 19
City Librarian, Mr Eric Cave, must be one of the few local government officials in Cambridge who welcomes the fact that his work has doubled during the past 10 years and shows every sign of increasing even more doing the next ten. Mr Cave lives for his work, and his work his books and more books. The success of his work can be judged from the ever increasing number of books issued from Cambridge public libraries. When he came to the city in 1954, about 570,000 books were issued. Last year the demands made on the library services reached a record level and more than 1,203,000 books were issued. Cambridge, he contends, is an ideal city for a librarian. With its university element and its population of around 100,000 it offer opportunities and a challenge to librarians not found elsewhere. "Places like Cambridge and Oxford present the happiest of all library jobs", he says. "In large places like Manchester, the librarians become administrators. I like to maintain personal contact with the public because I consider public relations are an important job." To achieve this end, Mr Cave never misses an opportunity to talk to social clubs, women's organisations and schools about his work. He started his local government career 34 years ago in the Town Clerk's office in the Yorkshire town of Rotherham. A few months later a vacancy arose in the library there for a junior assistant, so he applied for the job and was selected. Subsequent years saw many changes as library assistants with local authorities in many parts of the country until his appointment as Cambridge City Librarian
He set to work with a will, introducing new systems and methods and soon the reading figures were shooting up. Despite the influence of television and the demands made on readers' time by other outside interests, libraries began to assume increasing importance in the lives of thousands of Cambridge residents. His own reading is confined its newspaper and periodical with reviews of new books. As soon as these are published he can expect a rush of requests for them. Mr Cave always does his best to dispel the popular belief that librarians are elderly intellectuals completely wrapped up in their own little musty and dusty worlds. He believes that to know what people want to read one must get to know them. He makes constant efforts to give Cambridge readers a better service. Book stocks in the central library have increased enormously and doing recent years the number of branch libraries in the city has increased to six. His policy of taking the books to the reader is one of the main features contributing towards the rise in the number of books issued. Mr Cave's forward-looking ideas and attitude are not matched by the surroundings of his office. His private room, like the building in which she works is outdated and inadequate. Surprisingly enough, it is not stacked with books. A modest bookcase in one corner of the room contains a few recent issues and some reference books. The possibility of a new library going up in a few years delights him. "We should be able to give a much better service", he says. "On Saturdays it gets a bit like Petticoat Lane in the main library, with so many people coming and going. 65 05 19

Eric Cave, City Librarian came in 1954; issues have doubled, gives talks organisations; anticipates new library – profile – 65 05 19

1965 05 20
Abbeyfield Society open 5th house or old folk in Lyndewode Road – 65 02 20, a, b # c.32.9

1965 05 20 ES
Wilburton planning appeal over houses on School Lane. 65 05 20(3)ES
Adelaide church to close, two-nine attend, dying village. 65 05 20(3)ES

1965 05 21
Minister prevents trees being removed at Church Lane, Whittlesford for new houses as it would spoil a picturesque corner – 65 05 21a

New youth club on St Matthew's Piece will cater for various activities – 65 05 21b

1965 05 24

Minister rejects plan for redeveloping Downing Street, Downing Place & St Andrew's Street triangle – 65 05 24, 24b # c.49.4

Co-op shoe repair premises, Fitzroy St damaged by fire – 65 05 24a # c.34.75

British Legionnaires flock to Ely rally - 65 05 24c

1965 05 25
Don Moore, engine tuning specialist wins prize fir MG – 65 05 25

1965 05 27
Metals Research Ltd to close sites at King Street and Milton and open at Melbourn. The firm, which has a world lead in the production of metal single crystals was formed in 1957 and now employs 120 workers – 65 05 27

1965 05 27
Cathedral to lose Graham Sutherland cross. 65 05 27ES
British Legion massive rally Cathedral. 65 05 27ES

1965 05 28
University Arms Hotel extensions opened – 65 05 28 # c.27.45

Littleport photo feature – 65 05 28a

1965 05 29
United fail in bid for Football League status – 65 05 29

P.J. Warren returns to wok in Dept of Geology afer period as mayor – 65 05 29a

June 1965 CN, ES

1965 06 01
Lucy Farren retires from Cherry's Sweetshop, Arbury Road corner after 40 years – 65 06 01

1965 06 02
Clavering School overcrowded – 65 06 02

Decline of community life in small villages says Croydon vicar John Hornby – 65 06 02a

Abbot's Ripton level crossing to close – 65 06 02a

1965 06 03
Coun Reilly expelled by city Socialists for disloyalty – 65 06 03

1965 06 04
Inner Relief Road recommendation by single vote – 65 06 04

Maypole dancing official opening Maypole pubic house, Portugal Place – photo – 65 06 04a # c.27.4 # W.69

First motor buses article by Robin Cox – 65 06 04 # c.26.46

Harlton photo feature – 65 06 04d

1965 06 05
Major welcomes Heidelberg athletes Guildhall- photo – 65 06 05

1965 06 07
'Peace in Vietnam' banner strung between pinnacles of King's Chapel by night climbers - 65 06 07 # c.36.93 # c.38 : climb

William Everit, Warren House, Wilburton celebrates 106th birthday – 65 06 07a

1965 06 08
Isle Prison stone discovered during demolition ay Quay Brewery site, Ely – 65 06 08
New Hall supplement at new building opening by Queen Mother – 65 06 08a, 65 06 09a, b # c.44.5 # c.02

1965 06 09
Anti-tank bombs discovered in house – 65 06 09, 65 06 10

1965 06 10 ES
'Isle Prison' slab found on site of Ely Trading Estate. 65 06 10ES

1965 06 11
Abbotsley photo feature – 65 06 11

1965 06 15
Eversdens village festival – 65 06 15

1965 06 17
Boat trip along fen rivers by Rodney Tibbs & Michael Manni – 65 06 17, 65 07 08c, 65 08 02a

1965 06 21
C & A. Gould, corn merchants of Newmarket may demolish 100-year-old, five-storey mill – 65 06 21

1965 06 22
Cambridge concert hall needed' in 1903 3.000 people heard Melba sing in Corn Exchange, up to 1920s were Saturday Night Penny Pops at Guildhall but plans for expansion shelved; Corn Exchange and Regal Cinema also used and were afternoon concerts – feature by Millers Music Centre – 65 06 22

1965 06 23
Marshall's design men strike over wages – 65 06 23

1965 06 24
Gordon Logie plans civic hall with seating for 1,800 as main feature Lion Yard – 65 06 24, 65 06 25b # c.49.67

Bottisham Sluice new hydraulic lock being constructed – photo 65 06 24a

At the point where the Old West River runs into the River Cam stands the Fish and Duck public house. It is the domain of Sidney Wicks, the landlord and his Yorkshire-born wife. They came there four years ago when the pub was uncared-for and empty and the Wicks, whose love of water, fishing and boats had bought them there as a customer some years ago, decided to take it over. Now it is a going concern and has become the focal point for a variety of interests. It is one of the few places where one can find sailing men and motorboat men knocking back a drink incomplete rapport. This has been achieved under the auspices of the Fish and Duck Boating Club which is thriving with over 40 members and has its own clubroom at the rear of the pub. Next door is a large workshop; canoes hang in the roof, outboard motors are conveniently clamped onto disused tubular-chair frames and on the floor an old sunken fen boat bought for £2 is being converted into a two-berth cabin cruiser. The Wick's most vivid memory of life at the Fish and Duck was in the winter of 1962 when the water froze to 21 inches deep and the tortuous road route to the pub was cut off by heavy drifts. Skaters however found it an ideal rendezvous and business remain brisk. The only way extra supplies of beer could be bought in was by sledge down the river. With its attendant motor launches and boats moored to its grassy banks, the Fish and Duck stands with lopsided charm at the junction. The site seems to have been set aside for it by history – 65 06 24b, c.

1965 06 25
Enid Porter, Folk Museum, holds Honours degrees in Modern Languages, did post-graduate teacher training and has edited volumes of folk tales; but has to help with cleaning – 65 06 25, a # c.03; pay a real scandal– 65 07 14 # c.03

Lion Yard plans unveiled by Gordon Logie – 65 06 25b # c.49.67 # c.49.4

Kennett & Kentford photo feature – 65 06 25c

Ely Catherdral altar cross by Graham Sutherland was rejected by Dean, now goes to France – 65 06 28

Tillotson's modern styled pavilion Burwell opened – 65 06 28a

Jesus College announce send major redevelopment scheme within week of Lion Yard plans, this one for King Street – 65 06 29, 29a # c.49.5

Wicken Fen museum treasures saved from fire – 65 06 29

BBC producing film showing residents in Cambridge to be broadcast on Channel Five transmitters not visible in Cambridge – 65 06 30 # c.27.82 # c.65.6

July 1965 CN, ES

1965 07 01
Littleport moorings being developed – photo – 65 07 01a

1965 07 01 ES
Wicken Fem Museum fire, W. Barnes, Keeper, saves exhibits. 65 07 01(3)ES
Ely Football Supports beauty competition – photo. 65 07 01ES

1965 07 02
Waste paper warehouse, Norwich St deliberately set on fire – 65 07 02a

Cambridge at night – photo feature – 65 07 02b

1965 07 03
King's Parade rebuilding scheme by King's and St Catharine's – Keynes Hall – to start – 65 07 03a # c.44.5 # c.44.6

Table Tennis personalities – sketches – 65 07 03b

1965 07 07
University Arms Hotel will have first indoor parking meter system to deter shoppers – 65 07 07a, b # c.27.45

1965 07 08
Francis Bacon developed fuel cell – profile – 65 07 08a

Shudy Camps church vandalised, windows smashed – 65 07 08b

1965 07 09
Clavering photo feature – 65 07 09a

1965 07 12
Traffic wardens on point duty for first time – 65 07 12a, b # c.34.7

1965 07 13
St Luke's church organ built 1726 needs repair – 65 07 13a # c.69.6

Howlett & Bryant had first car to come to Cambridge, 1910, adapted as van & used to deliver bread – photo – 65 07 13c

1965 07 15
Photo of first motor car ever to come to Cambridge with chassis added by Bryant & Howlett, Abbey Walk; also horse-drawn cart – 65 07 15 # Q.A

Jack Green who set up brick-making machine at Milton has gone into liquidation because teething troubles – 65 07 15a # c.23

1965 07 15 ES
Walsoken new Turnpike Inn. 65 07 15ES

1965 07 16
Jesus College new residential North Court to open – 65 07 16a

Cock-up bridge, Burwell – photo – 65 07 16b

1965 07 22
Pye strike threat increases in dispute – 65 07 22

Willingham smallholders claim level of water in wells affected by water pumping, some wells have dried up – 65 07 22a

1965 07 22 ES
Newmarket railway line axed. 65 07 22ES

1965 07 23
Stewart and Patterson brewery dray with Percheron horses visit Ely – 65 07 23a

Bottisham Locks showing new lock – photo – 65 07 23b

1965 07 26
Newmarket jammed by cars taking two hours to get from Stetchworth Toll – feature – 65 07 26a, b

Demolition of 24 old cottages at Sawston – quotes – 65 07 26c

1965 07 27
King & Harper new Milton Road garages revealed by demolition – photos – 65 07 27a

1965 07 30

Laurie & McConnal modernising the whole of their shop frontage in Fitzroy Street; new display windows will replace the arcade-type ones there since 19th century; "faith in City Road as new shopping centre – 65 07 30a [13.8]

1965 07 31
Ely new Post Office site – shows work – 65 07 31a

T.S. Moyes of Peterborough experiment with 75-foot barge – first seen since war – from Cambridge towards Lynn; may revive canal trade – 65 07 31b # c.26.3

August 1965 CN, ES

1965 08 02
River Ouse & Cam locks & lock-keepers, Bottisham & Brownshill – 65 08 02a # c.46.5

1965 08 05 ES
Amazons pop group. 65 08 05(3)ES

1965 08 06
Sturmer photo feature – 65 08 06a

1965 08 07
Drugs found in raid on house Clarendon St – 65 08 07; three guilty – 65 09 03

1965 08 12 ES
Changing face of Ely: Chief Street & new Red, White & Blue pub, Kum-in-Café replacement, Library, Standen Factory: photo. 65 08 12(2)&(3)ES

1965 08 14
Ely pathway along river beside Cutter to connect with path at Waterside – 65 08 14a

Rhodes Moorhouse airman won VC – commemoration – 65 08 14b

Two students buy doomed 64-year-old houseboat at Jesus Lock home to generations of veterinary students since 1958 – 65 08 14c # c.26.3– 65 08 14c

1965 08 17
Keynes Hall demolition – photo – 65 08 17a

Adam & Eve car park showing wrecked cars – photo – 65 08 17a # B.Ada # Q.Ar.

1965 08 18
Milton Road railway gates hit by lorry – 65 08 18a # c.26.2

1965 08 19
Scudamore's introduce fibreglass punt – 65 08 19a # c.26.3 # c.46.5

1965 08 19 ES
Littleport girls collect Museum. 65 08 19(3)ES
Tractor crash A142. 65 08 19ES

1965 08 20
Graveley photo feature – 65 08 20a

1965 08 23

O.G. Lywood caravan factory closing – 65 08 23

1965 08 25
Demolition at Zoological site, Downing Street – photo – 65 08 25a, b

1965 08 26
Dean W.R. Inge, Prof of Divinity 1907-11 – profile – 65 08 26a

1965 08 26 ES
Changing Ely: proposed shop, Minster Place, & construction. 65 08 26(2)ES
Changing Ely: Witchford Road houses, Downham Road, New Barns Road. 65 08 26(4)
Edward Duncan painting 1847. 65 08 26ES

1965 08 28
Sea Cadets HQ opening delayed as not met target – 65 08 28a

1965 08 30
Tickell Arms, Whittlesford – pub run by squire – 65 08 30a

September 1965 CN, ES

1965 09 01
Caxton bypass could become a lifeline to 'dead' village – 65 09 01a

1965 09 02
Reach history as separate kingdom – 65 09 02a

First Folk Festival – 65 09 02aa # c.69

1965 09 02 ES
Desmond Hawkins, magician of Haddenham on road to stardom. 65 09 02(2)ES

1965 09 03
Arrington photo feature – 65 09 03a

Drugs find – hemp found in Clarendon Street – 65 09 03

1965 09 04
Milton Arms pub may be replaced by block of flats – 65 09 04a

1965 09 09 ES
Ely Holy Trinity vicar and Reg Holmes inspect chalice. 65 09 09ES

1965 09 10
Sawston almshouses Dickensian conditions featured in letter – 65 09 10a

Cambridge railway station– photo feature – 65 09 10b, 10c # Q.C

1965 09 13
Last passenger train from Ely to Newmarket – feature & photo – 65 09 13a, b # c.26.2

1965 09 14
Railway signalman Cambridge South Box H. Andrews reflects on 45 years service – 65 09 14a

1965 09 15
Minister rejects protest over closure Cambridge to Oxford railway line – 65 09 15a # c.26.2

1965 09 16
Marketing of farm produce problems – photo Pordage collecting produce at Gwydir Street for delivery Bishop's Stortford – 65 09 16a

Traffic congestion Gonville Place – photo – 65 09 16b

1965 09 17
Hobson's Conduit damaged by midnight climber – 65 09 17a # c.61

Charles Kingsley and connections Cambridge – 65 09 17b

Bus jam Market Hill – photo – 65 09 17c # Q.Af

1965 09 18
Fenstanton fire destroys three shops & cottage – 65 09 18a

1965 09 21
Churchill College library block to open – 65 09 21a

1965 09 23
Enid Porter gets pay rise on £8 a week salary – 65 09 23a # c.03 #

Ortona double deck bus, driver Bert Clasby, conductor Alex January – old photo – 65 09 23b

Bus services in county poor, includes Elsworth – 65 09 23c

1965 09 23 ES
Ely Red White & Blue pub opens. 65 09 23&(2)ES

1965 09 24
Jesus College proposals for King Street development – model – 65 09 24

Cambridge University may become one of work's leading centres in use of computers to index texts – Linguistic Computing Service produces word indexes – 65 09 24a # c.27.5

1965 09 28
Bottisham Lock construction progress – photo – 65 09 28a

Keynes Hall progress – 65 09 28b

1965 09 30 ES
Stretham Helping Hand Club at Sun Inn closes as pub shuts

Stretham Meeting for women: are well catered for: W.I. and British Legion meet monthly and now start of evening class in dressmaking. The churches each have a women's meeting: the Mothers' Union in connection with the church meets monthly, the Baptist Women's' Fellowship meets fortnightly and the Methodist Women's Bright Hour has first meeting next Wednesday. 65 09 30ES

October 1965 CN. ES

1965 10 01

Rolling Stones visit to Regal means will not see Everley Brothers – 65 10 01b

Knapwell photo feature – 65 10 01c

1965 10 02
Bassingbourn Hoops pub features RAF memorabilia – 65 10 02a

Stokes wall blocks access Trinity Hall Farm industrial estate from Milton Road – 65 10 02b

1965 10 05
Houseboat at Jesus Lock in danger of sinking – 65 10 05a

1965 10 06
New Hall dome polythene shroud being removed – 65 10 06a

Locks and safe construction – article by D.A. Dale – 65 10 06b

1965 10 07
Jonathan King undergraduate turned pop star returns to study at Trinity – 65 10 07b

1965 10 08
Lord Butler installed as Master Trinity – 65 10 08a

Car breakers yard – photo feature charts break-up of vehicle – 65 10 08b # Q.Ar

Frederick Morleys working mans stores Hobson St, Bridge St, Fitzroy St – photos – 65 10 08c

1965 10 11
Derelict houses Bradmore St, South St area inspected – are 80 empty houses vacant for years – 65 10 11a # c.23

Northampton St at beginning century; houses being modernised and corner house to be demolished – photo – 65 10 11b # B.Mag.K0

1965 10 12
Newmarket Road Gas site cottages being bull-dozed – photo – 65 10 12a

Fulbourn Ida Darwin Hospital – first 32-bedroomed villae on schedule – 65 10 12b

Haslingfield & Harlton vicar's wife returns from USA – comments on difference – 65 10 12c

Minister Transport does not consider improvement Victoria Avenue as alternative Inner Relief Road – 65 10 12d,f

Mildenhall railway station derelict – photo – 65 10 12g

Wallis Autogyro win first export order to Ceylon – 65 12 12e, 65 10 13a

1965 10 13
Suez Road residents want name change – 65 10 13b

1965 10 14
Pye not to spend large sums on colour television until Government reach decision on future – 65 10 14a # c.27.1 : Pye

Lily F. Waring, novelist – profile – 65 10 14b

Star Brewery manager H. Kempton retires – 65 10 14c

1965 10 15
Peter Warren sees no harm in creation of industrial estate on outskirts of Cambridge – 65 10 15a

City Architect plans for future – preservation and enhancement as a university city – 65 10 15a

Shire Hall not to open car park to public at weekend – 65 10 15b

Arthur Skeel, ex cycling champion profile – won races at every distance up to 200 miles – profile – 65 10 15c # c.26.485 # c.38 : cycling

School meals – feature – 65 10 15d, e

Blue Cross Garlic Row Cats' Home – feature – 65 10 15f

Oakington grave of Francis Holcroft – feature – 65 10 15g

1965 10 16
Lucy Cavendish College now have a home; two offices in Silver Street – 65 10 16a # c.44.5 # c.36.98

Riverside pumping station construction – photo – 65 10 16b

Rolling Stones escorted to Regal in Black Maria – 65 10 16c; interview on why pop is dying – 65 10 22e # c.69

1965 10 19
City centre shops to be allowed to open six days a week - end of compulsory half-day closing for central shops with two or more principal trades – 65 10 19a [5.1]

Romsey Town becoming a slum – warning – 65 10 19b

1965 10 20
George Lawrence of Bridge House Farm Adelaide chops sugar beet for amusement aged 85 – photo – 65 10 20a

Ely Tesco supermarket tones in – 65 10 20b

1965 10 21
Vinpac of Meldreth packages wine in plastic bags – 65 10 21a

Bradmore Street 14 derelict houses to be demolished – 65 10 21b

1965 10 22
County Hall, Hobson Street to be vacated by Chesterton RDC, companies express interest – 65 10 22a

Eric Milner wants to start special records library of everything broadcast on televion or radio about Cambridge – 65 10 22b # c.27.8

Cottenham link with US President Calvin Coolidge – 65 10 22c

Quy photo feature – 65 10 22d

1965 10 25
Railway not hopeful about bridge from Davy Road to link large housing estates at Cherry Hinton – 65 10 25a

1965 10 25
Magpie service station, London Rd, Stapleford opens – 65 10 25a

1965 10 27
Balloon drifts over Cambridge, Magdalene College students evacuated – 65 10 27, 27a, b, c # c.26.1

1965 10 29
Cambridge Film Society organise Animation Festival – 65 10 29a # c.65.6

1965 10 30
Inner Relief Road lobby charges denied – 65 10 30

November 1965 CN, ES

1965 11 05
Cattle Market photo feature – 65 11 05 # I.R.

1965 11 12
Kirtling may combine with Ashley – 65 11 12

Exhibition paperback at Union – photo Eric Cave – 65 11 12a

Fenstanton photo feature – 65 11 12b

Old Contemptibles march Hills Road – photo – 65 11 12c # T.G.

1965 11 13
Rag Day quietest for years – 65 11 13, 65 11 15

1965 11 16
Exning cemetery cottage to be demolished – 65 11 16

1965 11 19
Councillors back Inner Relief Road – 65 11 19a

Shop compulsory half-day closing ends – 65 11 19b # c.27.2

Modern architecture house Barton – 65 11 19c

1965 11 24
Council to re-examine Rag Day future – 65 11 24a

1965 11 26
Rag Day slumps – raised only half usual sum – 65 11 26 # c.36.95

Lt St Mary's Lane cottages derelict for 30 years – 65 11 26a

Pub & advertising signs – photo feature – 65 11 26

The legend that is Will Carter, stone engraver – 65 11 26c

1965 11 29
Ely Christmas lights – 65 11 29a

1965 11 30
Prof Roy Calne to pioneer the setting up of a kidney graft unit at Douglas House, Addenbrooke's Hospital – 65 11 30 # c.21.4

Arthur Rickwood, farmer, dies at conference; in 1963 gave Experimental Husbandry Farm at Mepal – 65 11 30a

December 1965 CN, ES

1965 12 02
Longstanton station may become loading point for farm produce – 65 12 02a

Clara Rackham, suffragist, socialist – profile – 65 12 02b # c.33

W.I. Market stall celebrates 2nd anniversary – 65 12 02c

1965 12 02 ES
Stretham church restoration needed; photo with Rev Foulds who to become Vicar of Littleport. 65 12 02ES

1965 12 03
Percy North, Red Cross stalwart, chiropodist, photographer – profile – 65 12 03a # c.65.5

Pidley photo feature – 65 12 03c

1965 12 04
Malls Stores, derelict shop Chesterton High Street to be rebuilt – 65 12 04a

1965 12 07
Colleges rate fight – city wants increase rating of four university buildings and four colleges – 65 12 07

Histon Road building land surprises agents – 65 12 07a

Civil Defence Corps reduced numbers, college porters to be trained – 65 12 07b # c.45.8

1965 12 09
City library services viewed as Cinderella, Librarian should be provided with telephone at home for use in emergencies – 65 12 09a # c.77.4

Sidney Street Christmas lights photo – 65 12 09b

Littleport youth centre opening – 65 12 09c

1965 12 10
Record library to open next month – 65 12 10a# c.77.4

1965 12 14
Wash barrage plan and creation reservoir near Cambridge considered – 65 12 14, 14a, b

Conservative Club, Market Passage may close due finance; there 80 years; some of rooms were vacated for Arts Cinema – 65 12 14c

1965 12 16 ES
Wilburton cottage almost 100 years old in Station Road destroyed by fire. 65 12 16(3)ES

1965 12 23
Children's' library nativity scenes – photo – 65 12 23a

1965 12 28
Road-roller used to smooth out potholes City Football pitch – 65 12 28a

1966 Cambridge News

I have copies of these articles

January 1966 CN

1966 01 01
Automatic ticket barriers come into action at Queen Anne Terrace and Saxton Street car parks, smashed – 66 01 01

1966 01 03
Army taking over R.A.F. Waterbeach in July – pic of Spitfire gate guard – 66 01 03

1966 01 07
Mitcham's corner traffic at night photo – 66 01 07a

1966 01 12
By year 2000 the population of Cambridge and area within six miles may have doubled from present size of 300,000 and light industrial development may be firmly established. High-speed roads will by-pass a star-shaped city with network of cycle tracks, says City architect, Gordon Logie – 66 01 12 # c.49.4

1966 01 14
Major fire at Blue Boar hotel averted; started in basement used as furniture store; spotted by guests – 66 01 14b

1966 01 18
Upper freight yard depot of British Railways to close on January 31st and part of the land may be used in a new road scheme connecting Brooklands Avenue and Newmarket Road. The public depot on the other side of the main line to remain open 66 01 18c

1966 01 21
Cambridge sewage farm manufactures 6-7 tons of sludge a day and dumps it on land corporation owns. A soil conditioner it will be given to anyone who wants it – 66 01 21b

1966 01 21
New Square Residents Association issue 'The Second Centre' report opposing Inner Relief Road; seeks bus station Gold Street, one-way streets, commercial development – 66 01 21c # c.49.66

1966 01 21
Ecumenical service of Holy Communion held at Gt St Mary's for first time during Christian Unity Week – 66 01 21d

1966 01 27
Arbury Road Baptist church opened; small chapel built on site 125 years ago – 66 01 27 # c.83

1966 01 28
Cost to ratepayers of running city library expected to be £86,200 with income of 10,000. Gramophone library may be postponed as music librarian resigned – 66 01 28 # c.77.4

1966 01 30
Arbury Court branch library opened – 66 01 30; Reg Tarrant stocks shelves – 66 01 12 # c.77.4

1966 February – CN

1966 02 05
Hobson Street scaffolding for extension Marks & Spencer – photo – 66 02 05

1966 02 09
Dick Durnford rides horse in Cambridge – 66 02 09a

1966 02 12
Anti-hunt protestors with Cambridgeshire foxhounds – 66 02 12

1966 02 14
Early morning workers – photos of delivery men etc – 66 02 14a

1966 02 15
The Ely Diocesan Home is a haven to unmarried mothers who go six weeks before and leave six weeks after the birth of their baby. It is a daunting experience: The house is much bigger than anywhere they have ever lived before and they have to face 20 strangers; but it is a comfort to the unmarried and pregnant girl who has thought herself unhappily unique to meet about 17 others in the same predicament. It is also a relief to her parents to meet others parents facing the same problems Pastel paintwork, flowers and plants, comfortably battered easy chairs, the kitchen stocked with bottled fruit and homemade jam, knitting left lying about - even a dog and cat snoozing in the sun - all combine to make the Home a real home. “The girls come thinking they are going to have a miserable time – the old image of scrubbing floors, a kind of punishment, dies hard but we try to make them as happy as possible”, said the Superintendent. “But of course it isn't all jam and honey; we cannot take the sadness out of it”. Allocated in fair rotation, the domestic chores of the house are done by the girls and finished by lunchtime; in the afternoon they go out, rest or read depending on choice and in the evening while watching television most of them do some kind of handiwork such as knitting or embroidery. The girls do all the cooking and some learn the skill here for the first time. Apart from big items such as sheets they wash and iron their own and their babies clothes. A Church of England foundation – there is a chapel where the girls pray voluntarily morning and evening - the Home gets payments from the local authority but no grant; girls, their parents and sometimes the father of the child pay what they can. A chaplain doctor and health visitor call regularly. Equipment such as cots and prams are provided at the home but the girls bring the basic layette for their baby. Those who keep the baby are given quite a lot to take away with them as the Home is fortunate in its friends who generously donate clothes and equipment. Baby and mother stay in the home for six weeks which gives both the mother and grandmother a chance to decide his future. Last year about two-thirds of the girls gave their babies to be adopted. The majority of the girls say they would not have missed this experience for the world. 646 02 15a # c.32.9

1966 02 18
The high bridge over Burwell Lode is to be rebuilt. Steps are going to be constructed in place of the steeply ramped approaches. Centuries ago, the bridge was built for a definite purpose - to allow horses towing barges to cross from one bank of the river to the other. But this was before automation. Now the Great Ouse River Authority believes the bridge stands in the way of a public footpath and would be more convenient to users if steps were constructed. The height of the bridge will remain the same so river traffic will not be affected. There may, however, be complaints from farmers who have previously used the bridge for vehicles, and from people who like to see the countryside on horseback. Once the reconstruction has taken place the County Council will pay for the maintenance of the bridge – 66 02 18a # c.44.75

1966 02 21
Dales brewery has just closed – photo – 66 02 21a # c.27.41
Radio &Telephone Service Ltd employs 50 girls sending invoices – 66 02 21b

1966 02 22
Masters and Presidents of every Cambridge College were warned of the fearful risk they were running in connection with drug taken by students in college hospitals and lodgings. It came after a member of staff was fined for being concerned in the management of a house used by people for Indian hemp smoking or dealing in drugs. The house was being visited by long-haired people and filthy beatnik parasites. Hoards of people would arrive at midnight and break open empty rooms to sleep on the floor. One girl was thrown out after it was discovered eight people climbed through her bedroom window. It would appear but if any student or person is found taking drugs at any time of the day behind locked doors of private rooms in student hostels the management shall be held guilty even if they had taken active steps to ensure the property is managed in an orderly and satisfactory manner, the court was told.– 66 02 22a, b, 66 02 23b # c.34.6

1966 02 23
'Crumbling Cambridge' feature – derelict houses, vermin; pictures Nelson St, Coronation St, Leeke St – 66 02 23a # c.49.4 # B.

1966 02 24
Cambridge development plan unveiled – 66 02 24a, d-g # c.49.4
John Elven appointed Town Clerk – 66 02 24b # c.35.7
Kinema closing denied by George Webb, proprietor – 66 02 24c

1966 02 25
Mill Road becoming a coloured area – organisation to give practical help to immigrants – 66 02 25, a # c.31
Kendal Way residents fight verge parking – 66 02 25b # B.Ken

1966 02 28
Longstanton postmistress Miss Rignal retires – 66 02 28a

March 1966 CN
1966 03 01
Civic Restaurant is one of most efficient catering establishments but atmosphere like gloomy relic of Victorian railway building – photo – 66 03 01a # P.Civ
A Playle opens abattoir extension at Litlington – 66 01 01bnnn
Cambridge bookshops are exceptional – notes on Bowes & Bowes, Heffers – 66 03 01c

1966 03 02
Crumbling Cambridge: delays in council processes and elderly councillors – 66 03 02a # c.35.7

1966 03 04
Cambridge Gas Appliances garage, Burleigh Street, collapses – 66 03 04a
Colour tv services put back at year – 66 03 04a

1966 03 05
Petition calls for re-siting of Cambridge airport – 66 03 05

1966 03 07
Drugs, including purple hearts stolen in raid on chemists – 66 03 07
Old car abandoned, Arbury – 66 03 07a

1966 03 08
Plane crashes on A11 near Six Mile Bottom, two killed – 66 03 08
Excavation work on new reservoir at Lime Kiln Hill – photo – 66 03 08a

1966 03 09
Stearns photographers in merger between Hunting Surveys and A.H. Leach of Brighouse. The new company will be based at Boreham Wood. Stearns university group photographers and specialists in art and industrial photography are expected to benefit by the merger – 68 03 09 # c.65.5

1966 03 11
City library gramophone record library to open, 10 years after first considered. The first librarian will be Judith Preece. Initially only classical music will be stocked but later jazz will be added together with music from stage shows – 66 03 11a; opens – 66 03 17a # c.77.4

1966 03 12
Kinema cinema, Mill Road closing; has 400 seats and staff of seven. Owner is George Webb. It may continue as cinema under new ownership – 66 03 12a
Shelford Rugby Union Football Club given six acres of land for new HQ by Percy Davey – 66 03 12b

1966 03 14
Ely Market Square demolition – photo – 66 03 14a
Cambridge International Centre to close at end of summer; was formed seven years ago by Frank Bell and intended for promotion of international friendship and understanding – 66 03 14b # c.36.52

1966 03 15
Viola Pemberton of Trumpington Hall, president of Women's Institutes for 20 years – profile – 66 03 15a
Addenbrooke's Hospital: first glimpse of new proposals – profile – 66 03 15b # c.21.4

1966 03 16
Crumbling Cambridge: depression lurks over centre re transport policies – feature – 66 03 16a # c.49.4 # c.49.62

1966 03 18
University Library – feature – 66 03 18a
Lt Wilbraham church, Norman window discovered – 66 03 18b

1966 03 21
Addenbrooke's Hospital first kidney graft – 66 03 21 # c.21.4

1966 03 22
Waterbeach airfield Spitfire gate guard moved to Kemble – 66 03 22a

1966 03 25
Pigeon breeding is fascinating hobby – feature – 66 03 25a

1966 03 26
Council gets Government permission to buy site of George Lister at Abbey Road as possible annexe to Technical College engineering department; firm to move to Coldham's Lane – 66 03 26

1966 03 28
Hurricane winds ruin fen crops – fen blow; damage to houses – 66 03 28a; farmers count cost – 66 03 31a

Please make what use of this you may. Kindly remember where it came from – www.mikepetty.org.uk

1966 03 29
Cherry Trees club for elderly in St Matthew's Street – feature – 66 03 29a
Mill Lane sluice tunnel old brickwork being replaced – photo – 66 03 29b

1966 03 30
Crumbling Cambridge – lack of vitality in development such as new library and Lion Yard – 66 03 30a # c.49.4 [pic Guildhall organ]

April 1966 CN

1966 04 01
Electricity power station Quayside wreathed in scaffolding prior demolition – photo – 66 04 01 # c.24.6
Top Tories fall as Labour near 100; Davies for Labour Pym and Legge-Bourke returned – 64 04 01b
Edward Bowles makes saddles and leather goods at his Glisson Road shop for 70 years – profile – 66 04 01a # c.27
Rail services between Cambridge and Oxford to continue as no adequate alternative bus service – 66 04 01c # c.26.2
CCAT offer courses in computers and mathematics for school-leavers – 66 04 01d

1966 04 04
Pye incur large losses in radio and television side of group – 66 04 04 # c.27.1 : Pye
Wicken Fen reeds in demand for thatching – 66 04 04a
Arbury estate play equipment, Hawkins Road – photo – 66 04 04b
Army lorry petrol tank catches fire on A10 near Ely – 66 04 04c

1966 05 05
CND demonstrate over Vietnam war – photo – 66 04 05 # c.45.8

1966 04 06
New City Library may contain special room for homework - 66 04 06a # c.77.4

1966 04 07
Impey new housing developments at Bartlow Road Linton, Lt Eversden & Balsham – colour advert – 66 04 07a

1966 04 09
Ely-Haddenham-Sutton railway – history – 66 04 09a

1966 04 11
University authorities ban King Street run; started 40 years ago – 66 04 11a; does not take place 66 04 21c; (takes place in defiance of proctors – 66 04 28c) # c.27.4 # c.39

1966 04 13
City gramophone library fails to attract expected users – 66 04 13a # c.77.4
Midsummer Fair to last 4½ days under new decision by Minister – 66 04 13b # c.27.3
J. Lyons café redecorated in grey, used to be an airy place of white and gold – letter – 66 04 13c # c.27.47

1966 04 14
Snow threat in Cambridge – 66 04 14
Clark & Butcher open new automated provender mill at Soham – 66 04 14a

1966 04 15

Prime Minister rejects plea to save Oxford railway line – 66 04 15a

1966 04 16
Pye still silent as rumours mount – 66 04 16
Police sergeant Chater of Linton – memories - 66 04 16a

1966 04 18
J.S. Wilson bookbinders since 1830, now to be run by employees – 66 04 18a # c.25
Barclays Bank, Gt Shelford, modernised – 66 04 18b
Milton Arms cannot be demolished and replaced with petrol station and 30 flats – 66 04 18c # c.27.4
Bishop's House at Ely modernised – feature – 66 04 18d
King Len Warren of Reach threatens to advertise village for sale to Russians or Americans – 66 04 18e
Guildhall needs more space, either extension or rent space in Barrett Building, Rose Crescent – 66 04 18f # c.35.7

1966 04 19
Pye respond to report of resignations following large losses – 66 04 19, 19b # c.27.1 : Pye
King's students distracted by tourists – 66 04 19a
Corn Exchange demolition for New Museums site – photo – 66 04 19a # B.Cor.

1966 04 21
Reach will be handed to crown if proved to be a Kingdom in its own right – 66 04 21a
Pye Telecommunications and Unicam Instruments granted Queen's Award for Industry – 66 04 21b # c.27.1 : Pye # c.27.1 : Unicam

1966 04 22
500 Cambridge youths, including undergraduates, smoke Indian hemp; police raid lodgings – 66 04 22; police doing all they can to cut out drugs – 66 04 23# c.34.6
Cherry Hinton parish room is rat-infested – 66 04 22a
Cambridge Conservative Club admit women members – 66 04 22b
Electricity generating works – scaffolding erected to demolish chimney – photo – 66 04 23a

1966 04 25
New nursery school opened in Station Road by Cambridge Association for Advancement of State Education – 66 04 25 # c.36.5

1966 04 26
Police may set up drugs squad – 66 04 26
Longstanton churches in need of repair – 66 04 26a
Plans for indoor sports stadium next to Parkside pool discussed – 66 04 26b

1966 04 27
Adventure playgrounds needed; survey of existing facilities at Coleridge, Lammas Land – 66 04 27a # c.37.9

1966 04 28
Grove Primary School, Campkin Road opened; Lady Bragg reminisces – 66 04 28a # c.36.5
Morley's Wine Bar in Petty Cury to close; will be off-sales in Wellington St; established since turn of the century, need to expand – 66 04 28b
Could be western by-pass and motorway to north, City Architect Logie predicts – 66 04 28d # c.49.62

Cambridge undergraduates' King Street Run, the eight-pint beer drinking marathon, took place last night in defiance of the wishes of the Proctors. Nine runners started the course at the Duke of Cambridge in Short Street. Although all remained at the finishing line, the Royal Arms in King Street, until closing time, there was no sign of the Proctors and their Bulldogs. Last night's winner is today in Gibraltar. Pilot Officer Nark Wellington of Royal Air Force, Oakington, negotiated the seven public house pint-to-pint in 1 hour 12 minutes. He ended the run without penalty and celebrated with a ninth pint in the Royal Arms. All the other runners were undergraduates of who about half had penalties awarded against them. The Downing College president of the King Street Run Club, who preferred to remain anonymous, said at the start of the run that the Senior Proctor's ruling against it came as a complete surprise to him. "The Senior Proctor said he made his decision because the undergraduates of today, he thought, could not hold their beer. This is not true, if anyone is ill in a public house or public place he will be disqualified from taking part in the Run. The club is a social group and I don't think there is anything in it to complain about. As far as I know no member of the public has ever objected and I, for one, certainly do not think drunkenness is a good thing", he said 66 04 28c # c.36.9 # c.39

1966 04 29
Railway stations to be sold at Six Mile Bottom, Sutton (pic), Bluntisham, Haddenham, Harston, Wilburton, Stretham, Dullingham, Isleham, Longstanton – 66 04 29a # c.26.2

1966 04 30
Colin Jordan, self-styled Nazi, visit called off as Liberal Club can find no room – 66 04 30a # c.33

1966 May CN

1966 05 04
Charles Orr Stanley replaced as chairman of Pye by Francis Duncan – 66 05 04

1966 05 05
Ida Darwin Hospital to admit first patients – 66 05 05 # c.21.5
John Hornby, rector of Croydon gets petition from residents over plans to demolish public meeting room – 66 05 05a

1966 05 06
University Audio adds Record Shop to its high-fidelity audio. Peas Hill – 66 05 06

1966 05 07
Government offices, Brooklands Avenue – photo – 66 05 07 # B.Bro

1966 05 09
Women workers at gas works – memories & photo – 66 05 09 # P.Gas

1966 05 10
Duxford Flower Pot pub to be sold – 66 05 10

1966 05 12
Shrinking fen may mark end of a golden age – 66 05 12

1966 05 16
Ely choristers photo in new cassocks – 66 05 16 # Y.Ely

1966 05 20
Stanley Thurston fairground memories – 66 05 20a #c.27.31

1966 05 24
Corn Exchange may be adapted for council offices or used as library – plans – 66 05 24, 66 06 20 # c.77.4

1966 June CN

1966 06 02
Soham ammunition drama recalled – 66 06 02

1966 06 08
Madrigals on river – photo – 66 06 08 # W.69

1966 06 10
Pirate radio station may go on air as May-Week stunt – 66 06 10 # c.27.8

1966 06 14
Darwin College Hermitage extension demolished as double intake and launches expansion scheme– photo – 66 06 14a # c.44.5

1966 06 15
Simon Community a year old, but still no hostel – 66 06 15 # c.32.9
Parcel people – couple tramping England carrying bundles of ragged packages – reach Hardwick – 66 06 15a
Bredon House, Selwyn Gardens converted from private house to University College = 66 06 15b

1966 06 16
Derelict scout hut on corner Ainsworth Street and Sleaford Street is used by tramps and rat-infected – 66 06 16a; demolished – 66 07 14a
Mustill, Wallis & Co, largest glazing contractors and glass merchants move to new warehouse in Cromwell Road – 66 06 16c
Seaman-Turner exhibition of rare books at Linton – 66 06 16b

1966 06 28
Roseford Road panoramic view – photo – 66 06 28

1966 July CN

1966 07 01
The other day I went along to the Record Office in the Shire Hall, Cambridge. These officers aren't just rather dull places where even duller council notices are kept. Of course you'll find council papers here but Parliamentary records and statutes as well - there are shelves full with them. But there are other things like copies of Domesday Book and old assessment for window tax as well as maps of the Enclosure Award in 1809 on which are marked turnpike roads. Few of us can fail to be interested in the old contours and land owners of our village. A fascinating side-light is thrown on our local history by household account books like those of Sarah Woodham at Shepreth. In in 1783 she records the expenses bill for beer for plumbers and carpenters. But it's not only books, papers and maps that are kept at the Record Office. There are also exhibits like Mr Mann's pocket book which he was carrying in 1809 when he set his horse to jump the tollgate. Rather than pay the charge, Joshua was thrown from his horse and died shortly after. In trying to save a penny he lost his life. – 66 07 01 # c.43

1966 07 02
Chesterton RDC new offices at Gt Eastern House, Station Road, to open – 66 07 02 # c.35.1

1966 07 06
Royal Oak picture of youngsters – 66 07 06

1966 07 08
Bingo at the Kinema – feature – 66 07 08 & a # c.76.9
Plesiosaur bones found at Stretham – 66 07 08b, 11

1966 07 09
Folk Festival – photo of Notts group turning up – 66 07 09

1966 07 14
Queen Mother opens extensions Fitzwilliam Museum – 66 07 14 # c.02 # c.03

1966 07 15
Old Post Office, Petty Cury, Ministry of Pensions manned by a single clerk in room that precious housed counter activities; small corner occupied by National Savings Movement. Wide corridors lead to Overseas Students Club used by 10-12 students. Petty Cury shops well-maintained but accommodation above ground floor level has been condemned for years. Must all be demolished – letter – 66 07 15 # c.49.67 # c.44.6 # c.27.7

1966 07 16
Elmhurst, Brooklands Avenue, GORA headquarters for 30 years sold to Lloyd's Bank in one of city's largest property auctions for £74,000 – 66 07 16

1966 07 28
Chishill windmill renovation – 66 07 28a

1966 07 29
City planner Gordon Logie revels six possible scheme for a new Cambridge shopping centre; one would build on part of Christ's Pieces and extend grass over the King St area – 66 07 29, a, b # c.49.4 # c.49.65 # c.32.3

Councillors painted a Dickensian picture of Cambridge - houses without baths, children open to infection from rubbish dumps, homes swarming with giant blowflies and rats roaming at large. It was scandalous that in 1966 people were still living in houses, which had not been modernized. Some people were living in houses with no hot water some in houses without baths. But they are paying modern rents. And this is where we put mothers with little children to bring up. It is a scandal in the University City of Cambridge. One was worried about proposals for refuse collection which involved some people in Ramsey who might have to carry their dustbins more than 50 yards unless they took them through their front doors. Because the dustman call at 6:30 a.m. bins had to be put out overnight, causing a hazard on the pavements. Anyway, it was morally wrong that men should have to lug dustbins about. They should have paper sack system. There were plans to extend the Coldham's Lane rubbish tip, but it was a nuisance to health that smells in warm weather. There were rats and flies. The area was utterly unpleasant and unhygienic and mothers were afraid to let their children play in the gardens. The only reason the council use the site was that it was cheap. 66 07 29c # c.21.1

Geoffrey Cresswell to succeed Burrows as City Surveyor – 66 07 29d

1966 07 30
Former clerk to Cambs & Isle of Ely County Council, Charles Phythian, allowed to retain double salary payments when activing as clerk to County Council and chief officer of new combined authority – 66 07 30, 30a # c.35.1

1966 August CN

1966 08 02
Cambridge city centre deserted – Sidney Street – on date world cup final – 66 08 02

1966 08 05
Marks & Spencer sales girl on bra counter – photo – 66 08 05 # P

'Before the sacrifice of our heritage' – article by Dr D.R. Taunt, Bursar of Jesus College following 'Shopping growth in Cambridge' report dealing with Christ's Pieces – 66 08 05a, b # c.32.3

1966 08 09
Island site on River Lark near Isleham locks chosen for development as holiday centre – 66 08 09
Cambridge airport main runway may be extended across main Teversham Road but must not be used more than eight days a year, will enable larger and heavier aircraft to use it – 66 08 09a # c.26.1

1966 08 12
Littleport has two museums – E.V. Kerridge's garage in Ely Road has collection of antiques, Francis Hatch, 11, has museum in her bedroom – 66 08 12

1966 08 19
Jack Pointer ice-cream factory – feature – 66 08 19 # c.27

1966 08 20
Wallis Autogyro Ltd machine provides background noise for 'Those magnificent men' film- 66 08 20

1966 08 21
Lord Fairhaven of Anglesey abbey dies after fall – 66 08 21

1966 08 22
Sinclair Radionics mini-tv shown at Television and Radio Show at Earl's Court – 66 08 22 # c.27.1 : Sinclair # c.27.8
Jack Overhill profile – 66 08 22a # Cowley

1966 08 23
Cambridge Maltings on Ditton Walk to be sold; was in use until recently when bought by Associated British Malsters; work stopped month ago – 66 08 23 advertisement – 66 10 21 # c.27.41
Fitzroy Street sub-post office moved to Co-op in Burleigh Street, petition in protest – 66 08 23a # c.27.7
Ely Market Place redevelopment work – photo – 66 08 23b

1966 08 29
Dant's Ferry taken over by David Dant more than 80 years ago – photo details – 66 08 29

1966 08 30
St Barnabas church arson – bibles and hymn books set alight – 66 08 30, 30a # c.83 # c.34.75

1966 September CN

1966 09 01
House of Dolamore bought wine and spirit business of George Morley in Petty Cury and Guildhall Street some 80 years ago; now has new address in Wellington Street – 66 09 01 & 1a # c.27.4
Les Hutt, street sweeper subject to time and motion survey – photo – 66 09 01b # B

1966 09 03
Rev John Hornby inducted as Rector of Stretham – 66 09 03
George Lister engineering moves from Abbey Road to Coldham's Lane, been there since 1890 – feature – 66 09 03a # c.27.1

1966 09 05
Jim Reynolds 'Rock King' profile; firm trading 120 years – 66 09 05 # c.27

1966 09 06

Harry Day played penny whistle; at Stourbridge Fair joined 'Herb' Reynolds and Charlie Hunter with their concertinas and harp on the upper floor of the Oyster House playing reels, waltzes etc – 66 09 06 # c.69 # c.39
Ronald Searle first cartoon in CDN published 26 Oct 1935 – 66 09 06a

1966 09 07
Pye pocket radio-telephone exhibited – 66 09 07 # c.27.1 : Pye # c.27.8 # c.27.75

1966 09 10
Eaden Lilley men and boys clothing shop in Market Street is for sale; will more to main department store; have owned since 1907; have recently bought Smart's outfitters' shop – 66 09 10 # c.27.2

1966 09 13
Cambridge Drill Hall may replace indoor sports facilities in Corn Exchange when rebuilding work starts – 66 09 13

1966 09 16
Cambridge Daily News War Bulletin of 13 Sept 1914 gave impression war almost over – 66 09 16 # c.45.5

A new plan shows how the "Kite Area" might look in 20 years' time. It shows a new shopping area built between the Parker Street, Emmanuel Road and Earl Street triangle, facing an enlarged Christ's pieces, and a New Square put back to grass or paved. Emmanuel Road and Short Street would be closed, and a new road along a widened Fair Street and part of Clarendon Street would take traffic around an extensive housing redevelopment area to East Road. The Fitzroy Street, Burleigh Street district would be redeveloped and extended and three large carparks provided. The Drummer Street bus station would be resited to the Clarendon Street area which would become an access to the service areas and parking facilities. The area previously occupied by Emmanuel Road and Short Street and a small area along the houses fronting King Street would be added to Christ's aces. The new scheme would be commercially viable and provide enough area for shopping expansion for the next 20 years by which time all of the area between Clarendon Street, East Road, Burleigh Street and Prospect Road could be redeveloped with modern houses. The tentative at layout shows a series of green courts grouped around a central pedestrian area. It would be possible to re house all the people presently living in the area together with those to be displaced by the new shopping centre. The Fitzroy Street, Burleigh Street area would be partially rebuilt around a central pedestrian area. There could be car parks behind its three main frontages with the goods delivered to the rear of the shops, enabling the whole of the Fitzroy Street, Burleigh Street area to become a pedestrian only shopping centre. 66 09 19a # c.49.66 # c.49.4

1966 09 19
Circus elephant parade – photo – 66 09 19 # c.76.2

1966 09 23
Boy in boat glides through mist at Stretham – photo – 66 09 23
Great Ouse River Authority open new HQ at Gt Ouse House, Clarendon Road; will be shortage of water; formed in 1920 to take over work Bedford Level Corporation – 66 09 23a # c.29 # c.46.5

1966 October CN

1966 10 01
Ted Salisbury rented small garage in Cam Road in 1919, moved other side of road, kept Pye lorries on road during war, now retires – 66 10 01 # c.26.48

1966 10 03
Hubert David inherited business from his grandfather, Gustave, in 1936 – profile – 66 10 03 # c.25

1966 10 07
Burleigh/Fitzroy Street favoured for shopping redevelopment in preference to Lion Yard – 66 10 07 # c.49.64 # c.49.66 # c.49.4

1966 10 11
Cheshunt College staff and students to join with Westminster College, premises in Bateman Street for sale; was founded in Wales in 1768, moved to Cambridge in 1905, new buildings 1913 – 66 10 11; premises for sale – 66 10 21b # c.44.5 # c.36.9
Bluntisham station closed two years ago, is home t former porter-in-charge – 66 10 11a

1966 10 13
Cambridge's Deputy Librarian, Wilfred James, said he would not have resigned his £1,900-a-year job if the City Council had treated him differently and a council member accused the council of giving the library staff a raw deal. The resignation is the latest move in a long-standing argument between the Library Committee, the Establishment Committee and the Council over the salary and status of the Cambridge Librarian, Mr Eric Cave, and Mr James who has been in Cambridge nearly 12 years. He claimed that the deputies to the council's chief officers had received two shabby salary increases since he was last regraded. When his resignation was reported to the Library Committee, the chairman, Coun. Peter Wright, said "We are all very sorry to lose him, but as things stand I cannot blame him. I feel our library staff have had a very raw deal and they have been shabbily treated compared with other chief officers of the council". The dispute stems from the council's decision to raise the salary and status of the Town Clerk. After that post was re-graded five other chief officers asked for salary increases – with appropriate rises for their deputies – and these were granted. But the authority stood firm against requests from Mr Cave and Mr James for salary increases. Mr James leaves to become Lowestoft Borough Librarian. 66 10 13 # c.77.4

1966 10 21
Hershel House, Herschel Road demolition – photo – 66 10 21a # B.Her

1966 10 25
£1m dive in Pye share value; dissatisfaction with new management – 66 10 25 # c.27.1 : Pye

1966 10 28
Cambridge United manager, Roy Kirk, resigns; also dismiss trainer-coach Brian Doyle – 66 10 28 # c.38 : football

1966 10 31
Louis Sylvester of East Road has been making ice cream for more than 60 years. His ices taste very nearly as they did when his father first taught him to make them when he was a boy. It was hard work then, he said. "In the days when ice cream started we were one of the first ones about here it was all done by salt and ice - there was no modern refrigeration then". Making ice cream is still hard work. All the machines have to be washed and sterilized when you start and when you finish. "We used to have to get up at 4.30 in the morning to send the sellers out with pony barrows. Modern refrigeration did not come in until about 1920 and there were no cones or biscuits in existence at first - we used to call it hokey". Nine or 10 years ago he gave up a round he had made for 50 years, his vehicles the last of a fleet that the business sent out in and around the town. "We used to have barrows out in Fitzroy Street every other night - if one of the barrows came back it would sell out on the street. Someone else had hot chestnuts there as well. "Years ago my father used to push a barrow to Histon and sell it at the factory. We had a barrow on the market every day opposite Boots, near where the Victoria is now, and the fair - we used to have five or six barrows there". Things have changed a lot. On East Road people used to sit out the front on chairs until 12 at night in summer. Today it is a different mode of living. After the war the big boys opened every Sunday and competition became intense, but the smaller man hopes to keep his customers by the good quality of the product he supplied. "We have all had our rough times. We have all started at the bottom and we are getting a rough time again now" - considerable housing development in the East Road area has been demolished. The business has been in the family for more than 120 years. Mr Sylvester is one of the oldest established traders in Cambridge and it is no wonder he retains is loyal customers. He still makes all his own ice cream with pure dairy products and will not keep it long.

It is delicious - the sort of ice cream one relished having when rationing ended after the war – 66 10 31 # c.27

1966 November CN

1966 11 04
Bene't Hostel, Cambridge's only hostel for girls closes; has been on verge of bankruptcy for much of its 23 year history; gave shelter to women stranded in city; was used by women teachers and social workers as well as girls sent by welfare organisations; now accommodation easier to rent – 66 11 04 # c.32.9 # c.27.45

1966 11 07
Police new HQ at Parkside, plans unveiled – 66 11 07 # c.34.7

1966 11 08
Motor show exhibition, Corn Exchange – 66 11 08 # c.26.48

1966 11 09
University 'science city' plans for west-Cambridge site unveiled, follows Deer report – 66 11 09, 09a# c.49.4 # c.36.9

1966 11 11
Pye urged to appoint Receiver following losses if to remain independent – 66 11 11; J.O. Stanley voted off Pye's Board – 66 11 17, 61 11 18 # c.27.1 : Pye

1966 11 21
King's Hedges estate 10 acre site for recreation ground agreed near proposed housing development off Campkin Rd – 66 11 21

1966 11 22
First new 'blended' petrol pumps installed at BP garage, King and Harper's, Milton Rd – 66 11 22 # c.26.48

1966 11 23
If Fitzroy St area developed as shopping centre CCAT students will have nowhere to park their cars – 66 11 23

1966 11 24
Pye shares rise as big international take-over battle develops; bid from Philips – 66 11 24a, c # c.27.1 : Pye
Whirlaclean brand new automatic dry-cleaning centre opens in All Saint's Passage – 66 11 24b # c.27

1966 11 30
New GPO mast towers over windmill at Over – 66 11 30

1966 December CN

1966 12 02
Bypasses essential to solve traffic problems – letter – 66 12 02
Rival relief road plan to be discussed by city council – 66 12 02a
Vietnam protest march – 200 people – 66 12 02b # c.33

1966 12 03
Cambridge School of Flying operated from field at Hardwick, had French Caudron biplanes – memories of visit in 1917 – 66 12 03 # c.26.1

1966 112 09
Kent House hospital for psychiatric patients – feature – 66 12 09 # c.21.5
Plan to create regional shopping centre in Fitzroy Street and develop Lion Yard primarily as civic centre approved by City Council – 66 12 09a

1966 12 14
How much more traffic can Cambridge take – article – 66 12 14, 14a # c.49.62 # c.26.48
Senate plans to redevelop Old Addenbrooke's Hospital and west Cambridge – 66 12 14b
Wash barrage plans not to go ahead say Government, farmers annoyed – 66 12 14c # c.29

1966 12 20
Cambridge could be chosen as one of nine sites for experimental local radio service by BBC – 66 12 20 # c.27.8
Joan Copp compiling city guide for the disabled – 66 12 20a

1966 12 28
Experimental one-way traffic system for Romsey roads to start – 66 12 28 # c.49.62

1966 12 31
Coldham's Common dark and dingy hut is changing room for footballers – 66 12 31 # c.38 : football

Please make what use of this you may. Kindly remember where it came from – www.mikepetty.org.uk

1967 Cambridge News

I have copies of these articles

January 1967 CN

1967 01 05
Memories of barge photo - 67 01 05, a

1967 01 10
Jock Langley has sold newspapers from pitch in Regent Street for 40 years, now has to move – 67 01 10a

1967 01 14
Sinclair Radionics HQ in Cambridge established year ago, make miniature TVs - 67 01 14 # c.27.1 : Sinclair

1967 01 17
Trustee Savings Bank new premises Jesus Lane opened by Lord Butler - 67 01 17 # c.32.8

1967 01 25
Co-op Sociey dance Dorothy Café – photo - 67 01 25

February 1967 CN

1967 02 01
Pye speculation over resignation of one of the manaing directors – 67 02 01, 67 02 02

1967 02 03
Cattle Market is dying on its feet, plan move to sewage farm - 67 02 13
King's Hedges housing estate master plan approved, will have central pedestrian core and open space - 67 02 03a # c.49.4

1967 02 09
Undergraduates and dons called upon to strike over Government proposal to increase fees of foreign students – 67 02 09

1967 02 10
New flat developments announced: Croft Lodge on Barton Road and Pinehurst, Grange Road – 67 02 10

1967 02 15
Green street traffic shakes shop, Gray's shop front repaired after struck by vehicle – 67 02 15
Councillors urge full check on Magdalene Bridge safety, oppose plans to widen Magdalene Street – 67 02 15a

1967 02 20
Concern about works of art missing from Guildhall and library – 67 02 20

1967 02 21
Ely sugar beet factory feature – 67 02 21

1967 02 22
University plan new Cavendish Laboratory as part of 'science city' in west Cambridge - 67 02 22 # c.49.4 # c.36.9

1967 02 24
Market Hill no.5 was originally a private house for Watson family of grocers; has a rich shell hood with painted ceilings; building sold to mystery buyer – 67 02 24

Drugs problem – how to combat – 67 02 24a, b,c 67 02 25

1967 02 28
A 16ft clock tower crashed through roof of King & Harper's tyre store, killing one man and injuring two others. The three were buried by four tons of rubble. The store and the roof looked as if it has been hit by a bomb. Two demolition contractors were clearing loose mortar from the walls and roofinf when there was a strong gust of wind and it blew the clock tower though the roof. While ambulance men were at the scene of the tragedy a gust of wind ripped off half the roof of the garage at Cambridge Ambulance Station in Ditton Walk blew off and crashed through the roof of an adjoining garage - 67 02 28 # c.26.48, a
Edward Storey almshouses originally built in 1729 for clergymen's widows; houses built in 1844 converted to flats – feature - 67 02 28b # c.32.9

March 1967 CN

1967 03 01
Concern that city archives are kept under proper control. Some are University Library, some in University Registry and some in the City Library. Appointment of city archivist to be considered. Would like someone lent by Fitzwilliam Museum or University Library to put matters in order. – 67 03 01a # c.43
King and Harper tower was to have been replaced – 63 03 01b

1967 03 03
'Heart of Cambridge' planning report envisages shopping centre surrounded by traffic-free area – 67 03 03a # c.49.4
Mitcham's Corner, second huge island created between Chesterton Rd & Victoria Rd – 67 03 03b # c.49.62

1967 03 04
Dutch façade revealed on building during demolition work for Eaden Lilley; believed to be the only remaining trace of an old alleyway which ran parallel with Market Street – 67 03 04 # c.61

1967 03 06
Express train derailment at Conington – 67 03 06

1967 03 09
Dustbin collections being reorganised – photo of men with bins – 67 03 09a

1967 03 10
Cambridge does not want to be considered for local radio station yet – 67 03 10a # c.27.8

1967 03 14
Bar Hill exhibition of plans – 67 03 14a

1967 03 15
Cheshunt College sale may be concluded to private buyer – 67 03 15

1967 03 17
Cavendish Laboratory new electron telescope is largest in country – 67 03 17

1967 03 20
Cambridgeshire Regiment changes with reorganisation Territorial Army, to be a military force to assist police in law and order and act in support in event of nuclear attach ; history – 67 03 20, 20a # c.45 # c.45.8

1967 03 29
Chesterton Study published – could become one of most pleasant suburbs – 67 03 29 # c.49.4

1967 03 30
Lloyds Bank moving district office from Hobson Street to Brooklands Avenue building that housed Gt Ouse River Authority – 67 03 30 # c.32.8

1967 03 31
International Bilderberg Conference attended by 90 leading politicians, businessmen, bankers and publishers at St John's College – 67 03 31, 67 04 01, 67 04 03# c.27.9 # c.02

April 1967 CN

1967 04 11
Quaker Meeting House, Jesus Lane to be replaced; dates from 1894 – 67 04 11 # c.83

1967 04 13
Alfred Barrett, tailor to take Rose pub; Percy Cornwell retires from grocery shop, Hills Road – 67 04 13

1967 04 17
Queen opens National Stud, Newmarket – 67 04 17

1967 04 18
Canberra bomber crashes into empty house, Steeple Morden – 67 04 18 # c.26.1

1967 04 19
Greene King to transfer Cambridge depot from Panton Street to new premises Newmarket Road; stopped brewing in Cambridge in 1957 – 67 04 19 # c.27.41

1967 04 24
Joshua Taylor make coronation robes for Queen of Tonga – 67 04 24, 67 05 04

1967 04 25
Folk Museum exhibition of customs; photo Enid Porter with dulcimer – 67 04 25

1967 04 27
National Folk Week, Morris Men & Russell Wortley, customs recalled – 67 04 27b # c.39
Cambridge City and Cambridge United directors consider merger of clubs; one condition the selling of the Milton Road ground- 67 04 27, 67 04 28 # c.38 : football
Lloyds Bank alterations to Mill Road branch; now light & airy – 67 04 27c # c.32.8

May 1967 CN

1967 05 06
Shire Hall redevelopment envisages 15-storey block of offices and law court, car parking under pedestrian precinct – 67 05 06 # c.35.1
Central Library new plans unveiled include information bureau, meeting room, music library, newsroom and reference library – 67 05 06a # c.77.4

1967 05 11
Midsummer Common cows – photo – 67 05 11

1967 05 15
St Ives sand and gravel firm, Greenwoods in take-over battle, 67 05 15

1967 05 16
Prefabricated houses in Teversham Drift awaiting demolition – 67 05 16

1967 05 18
'The Cam' magazine edited in 1937 by Reginald Spalding after coming down from Clare; have appreciation of town but closed after six issues due financial difficulties – 67 05 18 # c.04
Plans for relief road from New Square to East Road – 67 05 18a

1967 05 19
Histon Road new Esso petrol station has showroom and servicing facilities – 67 05 19 # c.26.48

1967 05 22
Ely Cathedral attempt to blow up safe failed – 67 05 22

1967 05 24
Fossey brothers museum at Gt Eversden feature – 67 05 24 # c.03

1967 05 25
Bar Hill first families arrive – feature – 67 05 25
King Street demolition for Jesus College redevelopment – photo – 67 05 25a
Grant Instruments started in Grantchester, then moved Bulbeck Mill at Barrington in 1957; new works at Shepreth opened – 67 05 25

1967 05 31
Fitzroy Street 'Corner Shop' demolition – photo – 67 05 31 # B.Fit

June 1967 CN

1967 06 21?
Dry Drayton new village hall opened – 67 06 21a

1967 06 02
Traffic wardens start issuing on-the-spot tickets; if pay £2 fine motorists avoid a conviction – 67 06 02 # c.26.48

1967 06 03
University Chancellor, Lord Tedder, dies – 67 06 03

1967 06 05
Railway carriage home at Barnwell station retains many Pullman features – 67 06 05 # c.26.2

1967 06 07
University Engineering Department new modern sculpture unveiled – 67 06 07

1967 06 13
City council sub standard houses to be updated with prefabricated bathrooms and lavatories attached to back of homes – 67 06 13, 67 06 28 # c.23

1967 06 15ES
Fish & Duck official reopening, Lt Thetford: photo. 67 06 15ES

1967 06 16
Ald Robert Davis, former MP, appreciation – 67 06 16 # c.33

1967 06 19
Leys School extensions opened – 67 06 19 # c.36.5

1967 06 21
Cambridge police station now a listed building; built 1901 to design of John Morley – feature – 67 06 21 # c.34.7 # c.61

1967 06 27
Bene't Hostel for Girls closed last November; girls remanded now have nowhere to go but police cell, Holloway or Borstal – 67 06 27a # c.34.9

1967 06 28
Magdalene Bridge closed to buses and heavy lorries for at least a year while repairs carried out – 67 06 28a # c.44.47 # B.Mag

July 1967 CN

1967 07 05
St James' church, Wulfstan Way expansion programme needed; fist phase will be sanctuary nave and extra rooms – 67 07 05b # c.83
Fitzroy Street neglected area – photo – 67 07 05c # B.Fit

1967 07 06
Lloyds Bank move district office to Brooklands Ave – 67 07 06 & a # c.32.8

1967 07 13
Bartlow station now disused, stands deserted – feature – 67 07 13 & b

1967 07 27
Cheshunt College bought by Freemasons – 67 07 27 # c.44.5 # c.37.1?

1967 07 05?
Lion Yard redevelopment plans approved by Minister – 67 07 05a # c.49.4 # c.49.67

1967 07 12
King's Hedges Infants' school delay increases costs; dispute over blame – 67 07 12 # c.36.5

1967 07 20
Cambridge Advisory Centre for Young People offers advice on birth control and relationships; most of clients from university – 67 07 20 # c.21.1

1967 07 26
County Council buy Howes Close mansion and 23 acres as extension Shire Hall site, to move Country Centre students – 67 07 26 # c.35.1 # c.61 # c.36.7d

August 1967 CN

1967 08 04

Addenbrooke's Hospital site excavates vast crater 25ft deep during construction – 67 08 04, 04a # c.21.4

1967 08 07
Vintner & co formed 100 years ago, Geoffrey Vinter chairman of group 23 companies – 67 08 07
Trinity College annual Caucus run around Gt Court – 67 08 07a # c.39

1968 08 11
Colour prejudice in Cambridge – difficulty of accommodation, feature – 67 08 11 # c.31

1967 08 16
Eastern Electricity remove unsightly power lines from some villages – 67 08 16

1967 08 31
Trumpington church Black Magic celebration & desecration – 67 08 31 & a # c.83 # c.39
New Central Library 'by end of 1971', probably on three floors with lending, information bureau, schools library, music, newspaper room, reference; a further 10,000 sq feet proposed tentatively for a central archives area – 67 08 31b # c.43 # c.77.4

September 1967 CN

1967 09 07
Hovertrain development approved by Government – 67 09 07

1967 09 13
Cheshunt College moving out of Bateman Street buildings which to become Freemason HQ – 67 09 13

Prince Charles arrives at Trinity College – 67 10 09, 09a # c.02?

October 1967 CN

1967 10 02
Pye chairman F.R. Duncan who took over from C.O. Stanley in May last year now hands over to Peter Thoneycroft, chairman of Pye Holdings, the Company set up by Philips to control Pye following their take-over – 67 10 02 # c.27.1: Pye University cash crisis, new teaching and research projects could stop as Government financial restructuring – 67 10 02a # c.36.9

1967 10 06
Churchill College chapel to open – 67 10 06
Victoria Cinema reopens with giant 70 mm screen, luxury lounge area replacing seats on ground floor; restaurant and ballroom refurbished – 67 10 06 # c.76.9

1967 10 13
Concert Hall plan at Queen Anne Terrace rejected, multi-terrace car park and sports hall instead – 67 10 13 # c.69
Greyhound racing track approved at City Football Club twice a week – 67 10 13a # c.38 : greyhound

1967 10 28
Prime Minister Harold Wilson greeted by one of biggest demonstrations, 1,000 protestors encircle Guildhall – 67 10 28 # c.33

November 1967 CN

1967 11 02
Trading at Cambridge Corn Market on the Cattle Market site has sunk almost to zero and the specially designed £8,000 hall launched two years ago is tottering towards its doom. Council was under legal obligation to provide a new corn market once they decided the old one was not viable. 47 merchants said they wanted a stand, it opened with 32 but this has dwindled to 22; on Mondays it is often empty – 68 11 02 # c.27.3

1967 11 03
Cambridge University Rag Queen judging – girls on tables – Avril Groom, Mayana Lucas, Pat Hartein, Paula Perkins, Irene Rutter, Christed Forsell, Lena Alexanderson & Barbara Gonwald – 68 11 03
Snowy Farr, Oakington village roadman going about his duties on a colourful tricycle dustcart he built for himself – photo – 67 11 03a

1967 11 07
Arbury Estate rainfall has created pond dangerous to children – photo – 67 11 07
Chesterton Bowls Club was founded in 1931 with HQ in Milton Road. The lease expires next year; now found new site on St Andrew's Road – 67 11 07a; 67 12 30 # c.38 : bowls

1967 11 08
Abbott's Cambridge Tourist Centre started when American tour party let down; grew until 50 university students handling tours to Cambridge; then diversified into foreign travel by local residents; moved Guildhall St by Dec 1959 – 67 11 08a # c.46.45

1967 11 09
University Centre decided in 1962 as no single focus for life of university as distinct from collages – 67 11 09, 09a # c.36.9

1967 11 14
Prince Charles walks down Senate House Passage, narrowly missed by cyclist- photo – 67 11 14

1967 11 15
Police shield UA Ambassador from hundreds of students demonstrating against Vietnam war at Churchill College – 67 11 15 # c.33

1967 11 17
Drayman makes delivery in Alexandra Street – photo – 67 11 17 # B.Ale.K67
Bassingbourn RAF bomber base to close in mid 1969, 140 civilians will lose jobs – 67 11 17a

1967 11 20
Station clock becomes parking meter for bicycle – photo – 67 11 20
Rag Day disrupted by hooliganism and groups of teenagers; collecting boxes stolen – 67 11 20

1967 11 21
Railway bridge on Cambridge to Bedford Line between Toft and Bassingbourn in poor condition – 67 11 21
St Raphael Club opened in Hawthorn Way in 1963, have 150 handicapped people – feature – 67 11 21 # c.21.1

1967 11 24
Arts facilities have been neglected, is no good concert hall, might be centre of a new Lion Yard development - 67 11 24, a Prince Richard of Gloucester transformed house in Victoria Street with five friends – 67 11 24b

1967 11 29

Kenny Hill resident defiant as ejected from house – 67 11 29

1967 11 30
Cambridge Building Society formed as Cambridge Benefit Building Society in 1847open new offices in St Andrew's Street – 67 11 30, a # c.32.4

December 1967 CN

1967 12 01
City council budget changes threaten libraries' books – 67 12 01

1967 12 06
Hovertrains will flash by at 125 mph; work to start on concrete track in March; Professor is consultant to Tracked Hovercraft Ltd - 67 12 06, 06a # c.26.2
Reach loses last pub as White Horse closes – 67 12 06b

1967 12 07
Research on mole drains to improve land drainage - 67 12 07
St Andrew's Church Chesterton spire needs repair – 67 12 07a
George Dean resigns as Secretary Cambs Football Association; played for Cambridge City – profile – 67 12 07b # c.38 : football

1967 12 08
Howard Mallet Youth Club to meet needs of new generation of young folk - 67 12 08, 08a # c.37.9

1967 12 11
Granta swimming club may join with Cambridge Amateur Swimming Club - 67 12 11

1967 12 18
Turks Head restaurant damaged in fire, another Berni in St Albans also alight – 67 12 18 # c.27.47 # c.34.75

1967 12 30
Chesterton Bowls Club new home – 67 12 30 # c.38 : bowls

1968 Cambridge News

I have copies of these articles

January 1968 CN

1968 01 01
Market Hill fountain from CIP 1858 - 68 01 01
Cambridge manufacturing operations of the Cambridge Instrument Company Ltd groups under a new subsidiary called Cambridge Scientific Instruments Ltd – 68 01 01a # c.27.1 : Cambridge Instrument Co

1968 01 04
J. Ward & sons cycle shop in Castle Street closes after 22 years, staff transfer to Chesterton Road branch – 68 01 04a

Victoria cinema projection equipment with projectionist Albert Waldock- feature – 69 01 04b # c.76.9
Trinity Hall Farm industrial estate entrance on Milton Road to be blocked, Stokes protests – 68 01 06a

1968 01 08
Ken Quick, Sergeant-at-mace, Guildhall – profile – 68 01 08a # c.35.7
Tracked Hovercraft Ltd want workshops in Cambridge to develop 300 mph hovertrain at Earith – 68 1 08b, 68 01 24 # c.26.2

1968 01 10
Staff of L. Eyres Knitwear of Searle Street work extra time on export bid – 68 01 10a

1968 01 11
Cambridge Cattle Market flourishing but farmers find Bury more convenient – 68 01 11a # c.27.3
Stretham wintry sun over river photo – 69 01 11b

1968 01 17
Book Bros garage in Newmarket Road up for sale following death Laurence Cook – 68 01 17a
Hardwick villagers complain of muddy path leading to school – 68 01 17b

1968 01 18
Oakington White Horse pub closed since Christmas, to reopen – 68 01 18a

1968 01 19
B & C Cartons blocked from using site in St Philip's Road for storage and industrial purposes – 68 01 19a

1968 01 20
E.M. Barraud of Lt Eversden publishes story of family – 68 01 20a
Victoria Road roadworks block traffic – photo – 68 01 20b

1968 01 25
Hovertrain delay deplorable – county council delay decision on whether to permit development laboratories in Cambridge – 68 01 25a

1968 01 26
Stretham Old Engine – feature – 68 01 26a

1968 01 28

Silver Street traffic – photo – 68 01 28

1968 01 30
Cavendish Road house demolition – photo – 68 01 30; removal men – 68 02 02a

1968 01 31
Chatteris in bid to attract Hovertrain work – 68 01 31

1968 February CN

1968 02 02
Hover project could offset city road bill – part of money paid by City Council for land in Wadloes Road could be recovered if they take up short lease – 68 02 02

1968 02 06
King's College chapel restoration work under way – photo – 68 02 06

1968 02 08
Cambridge Rag for 1968 is axed due to rowdyism and failing enthusiasm of undergraduates – 68 02 08 # c.39.95
Guy Shropshire of Barway a major grower of fen celery, devises new pack – 68 02 08a

1968 02 09
Leslie Dyer of Stretham breeds ferrets – feature – 68 02 09

1968 02 16
Mill Road Broadway shops with flats over sold for double price of seven years ago – 68 02 16

1968 02 17
City architect Gordon Logie retires due to ill-health – 68 02 17; profile of career and controversial planning issues # c.35.7 # c.49.4
Fenners groundsman Cyril Coote recollections – 68 02 17b

1968 02 19
Undergraduates invade US air base at Lakenheath in protest Vietnam war – 68 02 19 # c.33

1968 02 23
Mullard Radio Astronomy observatory discover unknown object in universe which sends out radio messages – 68 02 23 # c.36.9

1968 02 27
Cambridgeshire planners bid to block Hovertrain development in Cambridge – 68 02 27, 68 02 28a # c.49.64

1968 March CN

1968 03 04
Rupert Matthews, gyp and kitchen porter at Trinity Hall- memories – 68 03 04 c.28

1968 03 08
Hovertrain project to be housed at Ditton Walk – 68 03 08 08a # c.26.2 # c.49.64
McManus, London-based building firm terminating Cambridge interests because of attitude of local planners; selling 6-acre building site off Histon Road – 68 03 08b # c.23

1968 03 09

Defence Secretary, Denis Healey, hissed by undergraduates after meeting at University Labour Club – 68 03 09 # c.33

1968 03 26
Fitzroy Street – Burleigh St residents fear city council intend to demolish good houses under slum-clearance scheme – 68 03 26 # c.23
Churchill College porter with child picking daffodils – photo – 68 03 26a
Criterion pub, Market Passage to close – brewery cannot afford new rent asked by owners, the Edward Storey Trust – 68 03 26b # c.27.4

1968 03 29
Plough and Harrow, Barton Road, being replaced by new pub – photo – 68 03 29

April 1968 CN

1968 04 04
Walker and Walker, Market Hill tailors, to close; been there since 1849 and departure will leave only Bacons as original member of Colonnade group of shops; have served Edward VII when Prince of Wales; blame expiration of lease, rising rates and fewer old-style customers – 68 04 04 # c.27.2

1968 04 11
Fen Ditton favourite for development as new suburb – 68 04 11 # c.49.4

1968 04 22
Gabor Cossa profile – 68 04 22

1968 04 29
Marshall's garage move into new extension at Cambridge Airfield – 68 04 29 # c.26.48

May 1968 CN

1968 05 01
E.J. How, Mill Road, baker for 100 years – 68 05 01

1968 05 02
City council buys block property in St Andrew's Street to make shopping arcade through to Lion Yard – 68 05 02

1968 05 03
Addenbrooke's Hospital make liver grafting history – first operation in country by Prof Roy Calne – 68 05 03 # c.21.4
Magnet Joinery open depot Abbey Road – 68 05 03a

1968 05 06
Cambridge Consultants almost double staff since move into new HQ at Bar Hill – 68 05 06 # c.27.1 : Cambridge Consultants

1968 05 11
Clearance of houses opposite St Mathew's Church for 100 new houses and flats, Staffordshire Street area – photo – 68 05 11 # c.23

1968 05 20
George Love removals firm – memories – 68 05 20

1968 05 22

Pete Sayers entertainer, musician – profile – 68 05 22

1968 05 24
Evelyn Nursing Home founded in 1920, 46 beds, tries to keep prices down – feature - 68 05 24 # c.21.4

1968 05 27
Bert Finbow, removal business, - profile as becomes Mayor – 68 05 27

June 1968 CN

1968 06 03
Deryck Mumford, principal of CCAT for 30 years – profile – 68 06 03 # c.36.7
Hovercraft booked for Earith fair break down – 68 06 03a

1968 06 05
Rise and fall of Cambridge rag – feature – 68 06 05
City council may need private Parliamentary Act to abolish eight university and college seats – 68 06 05b # c.35.7

1968 06 06
Lord Adrian installed as chancellor – 68 06 06 # c.36.96

1968 06 10
Don Maltby, Cambridge entertainments manager – profile – 68 06 10

1968 06 14
Government's Industrial Reorganisation Corporation buys shares in Cambridge Instrument Company following bid by George Kent firm of instrument makers – 68 06 14, 68 07 09 # c.27.1 : Cambridge Instrument Co

1968 06 19
Cambridge Midsummer Fair in the past 45 years has gone a long way from the days when horse-drawn caravans were strewn across the grass and drinking booths by the river thumped to the sound of heavy dancing. The history of the fair since then up to the present roar of amplified beat groups is lodged firmly in the brain of an 84 year old chiropodist. Mr Percy North has completed 50 years' service with the Red Cross & been in charge of their fairground first aid station for 30. He has clear memories of early days of the fair: "Down the path leading to the river when I was a boy there used to be drinking booths. Some of them had a part boarded floor and they would have dancing. But there was a lot of drunkenness and they were closed. On the other side of the path were the cockle and whelk stalls and I remember Mrs Hames had a great boiler of hot peas. In those days the horse fair was still being held and all the caravans were horse drawn too." Not content with having a living memory of the fair Mr North enjoyed examining the history of the event and has written a short tract to explain how it began.– 68 06 19 # c.65.5

July 1968 CN

1968 07 01
Pye Unicam formed through merger W.G. Pye & Co. Ltd and Unicam Instruments – 68 07 01 # c.27.1 : Pye # c.27.1: Unicam

1968 07 04
Acting City Architect, William Cartmell resigns – 68 07 04

1968 07 11

Overnight storm causes damage – 68 07 11, 11a

1968 07 19
Trumpington cottages to be demolished – 68 07 19

1968 07 24
Miller's Restaurant and Wine Parlour bought by Gough Bros – 68 07 24

1968 07 27
Traffic jams blamed for 'lost' buses; photo bus Victoria Avenue – 68 07 27 # Q.Af

1968 07 29
Scott Polar Research Centre opening hit by fire – 68 07 29

1968 07 31
Arbury Court shopping arcade –advertisement – 68 07 31

August 1968 CN

1968 08 01
John Edis, Cambridge gaol keeper's journal – 68 08 01
Kite area planning report from London consultants- 68 08 01a # c.49.66

1968 08 20
David book stall on Market increases prices – feature – 68 08 20 # c.25

1968 08 22
Eaden Lilley move out of Sidney Street store for new student hostel – 68 08 22

1968 08 26
Enid Porter, Folk Museum – profile – 68 08 26 # c.03 # c.39

1968 08 29
Electric Wiring and Repair Co close retail side business; established 1919 in Corn Exchange St – 68 08 29

1968 09 30
Mill Road library issues drop due parking restrictions – 68 08 30

September 1968 CN

1968 09 02
Tony Cornell – a ghost-hunter's casebook: profile – 68 09 02

1968 09 07
Sidgwick Museum of Zoology skeleton moves to Corn Exchange Street – photo – 68 09 07

1968 09 10
G.N. Welch of Welche's Transport Ltd – profile – 68 09 10

1968 09 11
Aim Associates Cambridge Ltd, formerly Cambridge Consultants, form new company, AIM Physical Sciences – 68 09 11

1968 09 13

Local authority homes for old or handicapped people – feature – 68 09 13 # c.32.9

1968 09 20
How floods hit region: picture parade – 68 09 20 CIP

1968 09 25
B.E. Cocks, motor engineers, buy four acres land Coldham's Lane for new garage; few areas allocated for industrial use – 68 09 25; plans rejected – 68 11 26

October 1968 CN

1968 10 04
Cheddars Lane sewage pumping station – fight to prevent demolition; may become museum – 69 10 04 council reprieve from demolition – 68 10 11 # c.03 # c.29.8
John Slater photographer started Newmarket after WWII, moved to maltings in Fordham Rd 1968 producing good-quality colour prints – 68 10 04a # c.65.5

1968 10 05
Harvest with horses, Stuntney – photo – 68 10 05 # W.22

1968 10 09
St Laurence's Roman Catholic School opening – 68 10 09 # c.36.5

1968 10 10
Panorama from Castle Hill – photo – 68 10 10
Arbury – green bounded by Crowland Way and Cadwin Fields fills with water – photo – 68 10 10a # B.Arb

1968 10 11
Civic Restaurant closure would be a calamity but site needed for Lion Yard – 68 10 11 # c.27.47

1968 10 12
History Faculty building opens a year late – with leaks – 68 10 12 # c.36.9 # c.61

1968 10 14
Prosser Scientific Instruments may move because of veto on industrial development – 68 10 14 # c.27.1 # c.49.64

1968 10 18
It's not just books. A printed guide to Cambridge in German or French, a list of inexpensive boarding houses, sets of plastic armour, telephone book from Chicago … all can be found at the City Library. But the majority of users at the Cambridge Central library and its six branches think only in terms of books and exhibit a curious inhibition when a simple verbal enquiry would produce a wealth of further information. The sheer weight of Information Services and material, which the City Library service handles make any reticence on the part of the public that much more regrettable and the moral must surely be to ask if material is available, however, obscure the subject. At the moment valuable collections of local history, of maps, directories, playbills and a thousand other items are hidden from the public gaze by the cramped, nature of the premises. This will be remedied when the Library eventually moves to its proposed new home in Lion Yard. The staff at the library battle with cramped conditions both of themselves the books and other material. But in spite of the difficulties the reader at any one of the branches or the central library has a worldwide service open to him. In the Lending Department in addition to fiction and nonfiction volumes the libraries also handle Ordnance Survey maps, books in many languages and a selection of special large print books for those who sight is not so good. A readers' inquiry service will trace particular titles, compile reading lists on request, provide assistance with catalogues and trace particular volumes. The search begins in the City's own libraries and if unsuccessful extends to libraries in other regions. If necessary books can be obtained from libraries abroad and some valuable works at been obtained for readers in this way. The topic of a Record Library was argued for some years before it was finally established. But its success has never been in doubt. Accommodation difficulties weigh as heavily on the music section as it does on other parts of the building. Even so, books on music, sheet music, records and miniature scores are housed together. A most useful feature is a music diary in which concert organizers can check they do not clash with other activities. Record borrowers pay an annual subscription of 25 shillings, plus sixpence, a week hire charge and for this he has more than ,2500 records in both mono and stereo to choose from. The Children's Library maintains an excellent blend of all the traditional and classical favourites, plus plenty of modern material. In addition, the children's librarian also administers a books service for schools. Considerable expertise is used in maintaining a pool of volumes paid for by the Education Committee and available to all City Schools. With it goes a wide range of general educational material, wall charts, posters, film strips and slides records as well as various models, including suits of armour. Another service for children is the holiday club for youngsters beyond the ages of five to 10. The Administration Department deals with the expert selection, receipt and accessioning procedures and catalogues about 20,000 books each year. But basically the library service is concerned with the public and with public relations. In addition to the quantity of material available under variety of subject, which is regularly given away, library staff provide a number of illustrated talks to local societies and organisations. The Information Bureau located in the large Reference Library forms the focal point of relations with a very large public. For once, figures do not give a true indication of the volume of work this particular department undertakes. And they also make it clear that the tallest use this information centre to a much greater extent that is commonly supposed. For the year ended March 1968, the number of readers in the Reference Library was recorded at 85,801 while the information desk had dealt with 27,651 personal inquiries of which 4,326 were tourists. The desk is well equipped to answer queries from the visitor and has to hand a number of pamphlets and lists of extraordinary variety including language schools, hotels boarding houses, cafes and restaurants. Even the one-day visitor who doesn't speak a word of English has not been neglected. Well-illustrated brochures in French and German are available and provide a summary of the background to Cambridge and the location of colleges and major features. Written in English is a brochure which includes specimen walks around the city. Street maps in various forms are also available to the tourist and visitor. Thus the library service has aims to provide as comprehensive a service as possible, and to tell as many people as they can about it. And the present level of public interest suggests that service is thoroughly appreciated. 68 10 18&a c.77.4 # F.D.K68

1968 10 22
Eaden Lilley alterations, bedding department entered from Green Street – 68 10 22
Hovertrain's 'tremendous' export potential – 68 10 22a

1968 10 28
King's Hedges School, built two years ago, needs major structural alterations – 68 10 28; two schools to be re-roofed – 68 11 27 # c.36.5
Enoch Powell speaks secretly at Union as police thwart city demonstrations – 68 10 28a # c.33

1968 10 29
Orchard Street cottages photo – 68 10 29 # B.Orc

1968 10 31
Enid Porter awarded Folk-Lore Society medal for fen studies – 68 10 31 # c.03 # c.39

November 1968 CN

1968 11 01
Pye Group – 400 jobs at Pye Telecommunications and Combined Electronic Services – 68 11 01
Bird's eye of New Square car park from Lauries – photo – 68 11 01a # B.New Problems of multi-deck car park – photo Park Street and Lion Yard – 68 11 01b # c.49.62 # B.Par # B.Lio

1968 11 05
Parking at Rex, Magrath Ave – photo – 68 11 05 # B.Mag

1968 11 06
Clare Hall topping out – Brian Pippard photo – 68 11 06 # c.44.5

Dolphin Lane, Ely – photo – 68 11 06a

1968 11 12
Lion Yard plans – outline planning agreed, details – 68 11 12, 12a

1968 11 14
Sea-gas arrives, preparation for mass change-over of meters and appliances – feature – 68 11 14, 14a

1968 11 15
Shorter track planned for Tracked Hovertrain tests – 7½ miles between Earith and Welches Dam – 68 11 15

1968 11 19
Marks & Spencer extension opens; came in 1934, extended 1937, 1938 and 1966. Present expansion on site former Millers Music shop – 68 11 19 # c.27.2
Cambridge Society of Industrial Archaeology set up to save Cheddars Lane and develop as museum of technology – 68 11 19a # c.29.8 # c.03

1968 11 21
Stewart and Patterson says closure of Ely brewery due need for economies of scale from brewing at Norwich and Northampton – 69 11 21

1968 11 25
Trinity College start new accommodation block on site of Matthews in Sidney Street releasing land in Petty Cury for Lion Yard – 68 11 25
Three-wheel car hung under Bridge of Sighs – details – 68 11 25a # c.36.93 # c.44.7

1968 11 27
Richard Ramsey Fielder of Upware and Broad Arrow sign – 68 11 27a

1968 11 28
Cambridge Civic Restaurant deals with more than 1000 customers each day. It is a direct descendant of the British Restaurants of wartime years of which they were a number in Cambridge and was established shortly after the war years in the former Post Office building at the entrance to Petty Cury. Catering begins at 10 with coffee, continuing to lunch and through to the afternoon high teas. It operates on strictly commercial lines and would go out of existence if it made a loss for three years in succession. Whatever the restaurant may lack in gloss and sophistication it balances by moving closer to mother's home cooking. Wherever possible vegetables are fresh, milk is used exclusively in the custard and cream is real. In 1961 a snack bar was established in what was the waiting area for the main restaurant and this has been an unqualified success. The Civic Restaurant now has seating for 200 people and lunches consist of a range of permutations on fish and chips, sausages, beans, potato and other staples. Shepherd's pie is very popular with customers. A main lunch course costs 2/10, a sweet 9d and a cup of tea 5d. Until recently it also produced more than 1000 meals a month for the W.R.V.S. Meals on Wheels service. The setting has been made a little more intimate by the provision of opaque screens, Members of the Cambridge Catering Committee are frequent customers at the Restaurant - which does not go unnoticed by the staff. 68 11 28 # c.27.47a

December 1968 CN

1968 12 05
King's College chapel new setting for Adoration painting – 68 12 05 # c.44.5

1968 12 09
Walter Easy drives Cambridge taxis for 50 years; was provincial car company in 190 which started at old tram depot in East Road; father one of first to have motor transport – T-model Ford, later motor-cycle taxis – details – 68 12 09 # c.26.48 # c.26.47

1968 12 10
Lords Bridge railway station to be observatory – photo – 68 12 10

1968 12 14
Cambridgeshire Local History Council put people in touch with expert – 68 12 14

1968 12 17
New techniques for sewer-laying and new pumping station which will use current derived from effluent – detailed feature – 68 12 17, a # c.29.8

1968 12 27
History of non-university rowing researched by James Moy – details – 68 12 27 # c.38 : rowing

1969 Cambridge News / Cambridge Evening News

I have copies of these articles

January 1969 CN

1969 01 11
Trustee Savings Bank opens fourth branch in Burleigh Street – 69 01 01
John Hilton Bureau – the postal service run by the 'News of the World' – closes – 69 01 11

1969 01 13
David Constant appointed City Council director of leisure activities – 69 01 13
N.A.B. celebrates 50th birthday; was opened by King George V and Queen Mary; started with 10 acres of grounds, worked on virus-free potatoes – 69 01 13a # c.18

1969 01 15
Mathematical Laboratories in Corn Exchange Street to be demolished; how to move Titan computer; EDSAC 1 started in 1949, EDSAC 2 in 1958 – 69 01 15 # c.36.9 # c.27.5

1969 01 22
RAF Bassingbourn to close – feature- 69 01 22

1969 01 24
Cambridge-St Ives railway line could be kept running – feature – 69 01 24

1969 01 30
Undergraduate sit-in at Old Schools in solidarity with students at LSE – 69 01 30, 30a, 69 01 31a # c.36.92
Challis & Sons fishing tackle shop in Newmarket Rd to close after 31 years, was formerly Hardings; made Pembroke and Trinity reels – feature – 69 01 30b # c.38 : fishing

1969 01 31
Lloyd Stokes sells land at Trinity Hall industrial site; as farmland would be worth £130 an acres, now sold for £200,000 – 69 01 31 # c.27.1 # c.49.64

February 1969 CN

1969 02 03
Jehovah's Witnesses start to build new Kingdom Hall in Stanley Road using volunteers; 10 years ago were 40 Ministers of Jehovah in Cambridge, now are 140; lists rooms used since 1933 – 69 02 03 # c.83
Kenneth Gilbert closes butcher's shop in Newmarket Road; to become coin-laundrette – 69 02 03a

1969 02 04
Abandoned cars between De Freville Ave and Haig Road worry parents – photo – 69 02 04 # Q.Al.

1969 02 05
Lion Yard plan decision delayed by Minister – 69 02 05

1969 02 07
Sports Hall plans delayed by Government – 69 02 07

1969 02 08
Snow traps scores in Cambridge – 69 02 08, 08a # c.12.1
Prince Charles crowns Rag Queen- 69 02 08b, 69 02 15a # c.36.98 # c.36.95 # c.02

1969 02 13
W. Heffer & sons open new children's bookshop in Trinity Street, plan to move main shop from Petty Cury – 69 02 13 # c.25

1969 02 15
Rag Day takes new look; parades off in break with Poppy tradition; squeeze into mini car – 69 02 15 # c.36.95 # V.U

1969 02 21
Fitzroy Street redevelopment – architect's impression – 69 02 21, 21a # c.49.66 # c.49.4

1969 02 24
James Ritchie, Cambridge's only head brewer at Star Brewery – profile – 69 02 24 # c.27.41

1969 02 25
Prince Charles as singing dustman in Rag revue – 69 02 25 # c.36.95 # c.02
Wallis open new garage Mitcham's Corner – 69 02 25a,b # c.26.48

March 1969 CN

1969 03 01
Walk-out over 'dictatorship of Stretham rector John Hornby – 69 03 01
Prince Philip and Princess Anne watch Prince Charles perform in Trinity College revue, handed protest leaflet about tour of South Africa by undergraduates who broke into auditorium – 69 03 01a # c.02 # c.46.92

1969 03 03
Darwin College new buildings opened, include first octagonal dining room – 69 03 03 # c.44.5

1969 03 05
Banham's Boatyard old premises being switched to new building to make way for Elizabeth Bridge – 69 03 05 # c.29.65

1969 03 07
NIAB opening by Queen Mary in 1921 – memories – 69 03 07 # c.19 # c.02
Riverside Jazz Club revived with New Riverside Jazz Band – 69 03 07a # c.69

1969 03 12
Queen visits Prince Charles at rooms in Trinity then visits NIAB – 69 03 12, 12a # c.02

1969 03 13
Cambridge News first evening newspaper to include full-colour photos less than 24 hours after they were taken; film flown to colour plant at Coventry and printed pages driven back to Cambridge in fleet of radio-controlled vans – 69 03 13, 13b # c.043
NIAB Royal Jubilee – Queen visits – 69 03 13a , b # c.18

1969 03 14
Whippet coaches buy six more vehicles – 69 03 14

1969 03 18
Cherry Hinton old spring cleaned out – photo – 69 03 18 # Y.Cher

1969 03 19
Milletts outfitters, St Andrew's Street damaged by fire which threatened a whole block of shops and offices; may have been raided – 69 03 19, 19f # c.27.2 # c.34.75

Front of McManus estate on Histon Road, which has been derelict for several years, is to be developed; new firm hopes to start work on 63-house estate – 69 03 19a # c.23

Enid Porter 'Cambridgeshire customs and folklore' book published; review – 69 03 19b # c.03

Gwydir Street public baths opened in 1927; part may be turned into sauna – 69 03 19c # c.21.1

ADC Theatre given permission to show films all year round , stands empty for much of year – 69 03 19d # c.76 # c.76.9

Arthur Marshall appointed Sheriff – 69 03 19e

1969 03 20
Dunsmore Close, modern development astride old Cambridge- Mildenhall railway line – photo – 69 03 20
Northampton Street cottages, four empty converted by St John's College for use of married graduates – 69 03 20a

1969 03 27
Titan computer lowered into place after being transferred from old mathematics laboratory into New Museums Site – photo – 69 03 27 # c.27.5

1969 03 29
Prince Philip opens Churchill College conference – 69 03 29 # c.02

1969 03 31
Harry Beard world in theatre – profile – 69 03 31
Flying Scotsman stops at Cambridge station – photo – 69 03 31a # c.26.2

April 1969 CN

1969 04 03
Cambridge prefabs to be demolished – feature; have gone from Church End, Walpole Road and Fisher's Lane; leaves 40 at Gilbert Close and in Lichfield Road – Golding Rad area – 69 04 03 # c.23

1969 04 05
Excavation of Roman town in Mounty Pleasant, Albion Row area- 69 04 05 # c.41

1969 04 09
Simon Community home for vagrants – profile – 69 04 09, 09a # c.32.9 # tv photo

1969 04 15
Clara Rackham bronze bust unveiled at Alex Wood Hall – 69 04 15

1969 04 21
Stanley Stubbs retires as head of Perse – profile – 69 04 21 # c.36.5

1969 04 24
Inner Relief Road scheme rejected by Minister – 69 04 24, 24a # c.49.62
Louisa Hall memories of Edwardian Cambridge – series – 69 04 24b, c, 69 05 01b,c 69 05 08, 69 05 15, 15a

1969 04 25
Abbeyfield Cambridge Society houses for elderly – feature – 69 04 25 # c.32.9

1969 04 29
Combined Electronic Services factory, part of Pye group, closes – 69 04 29 # c.27.1 # c.27.1: Pye

1969 04 30
Sidney Street properties to keep façade during major changes by Trinity College – 69 04 30
Bridge Street buildings on corner Round Church Street must be restored to original condition; owners P.H. Allin want to demolish – 69 04 30a. Storm over plans to demolish – 69 05 14 , 14a# c.61

May 1969 CN

1969 05 01
Tanner and Hall roofers move from Hills Road railway siding to new offices at Harston, formed in 1953 – 69 05 01, 01a # c.23

1969 05 02
Undergraduates try burn academic gowns on laws of Senate House in protest against examinations – 69 05 02, a # c.36.92
Inner Relief Road rejection – what now – 69 05 02b # c.49.62

1969 05 05
Fencolor Laboratories move from Abbey Road to Coldham's Road; started in early 1950's in Bridge Street; will increase workers to 80 – 69 05 05 # c.65.5
Cambridge United win Southern League championship – 69 05 05a,b # c.38 : football

1969 05 06
Tracked hovertrain prepare for Earith track – 69 05 06

1969 05 09

Lion Hotel demolition begins – photo – 69 05 09

1969 05 15
John Pesie, founder of Cambridge Asphalt Group dies – 69 05 15

1969 05 17
Ely Woolpack inn closes – 69 05 17

Baldry's move to new factory in Harvest Way from Gold St; started in 1923, first to use all-automatic crown cork sealed bottles; took over Cambridge Soda Works and in 1925 acquired important contract for mineral waters with a local brewery; began bottling cider in 1930 and in 1935 extended range to confectionary, cocktail sausages, pickles and groceries. Bought Sawston Aerated Water Company – 69 05 17a, b, c # c.27.4 # c.27

1969 05 19
Selwyn College Cripps Court opens – 69 05 19 # c.44.5

1969 05 20
East Road roundabout planted with flowers – photo – 69 05 20

1969 05 21
Snowy Farr, Oakington roadman with trike and top hat – 69 05 21

1969 05 22
Ely Library receives Civic Trust award – 69 05 22

1969 05 28
King's College to become second to admit women – 69 05 28 # c.36.98

1969 05 30
University 'Science City 'planned for 300-acre site near Coton – 69 05 30 # c.49.4 # c.49.8

June 1969 CN

1969 06 05
Steam punt with paddle wheel launched by student – 69 06 05 # c.26.3
Work on bridge carrying A45 over stream at Quy – photo – 69 06 05a

1969 06 06
Sainsbury's want two self-service shops to replace their antiquated premises in Sidney Street, one in Trinity Street, the other in the Kite – 69 06 06, 06a # c.27.4
Coldham's Common lake listed in sports report – 69 06 06b
Gasworks ceases production after 140 years to make way for sea gas, 60 lose jobs – 69 06 06c # c.24.4

1969 06 09
A.G. Hutchinson, chapel clerk at Trinity College – profile – 69 06 09

1969 06 10
Queen Mother attends centenary lunch at Girton College – 69 06 10, 11a # c.44.5 # c.02
Midsummer Common four-day pop music concert prompts protests – 69 06 10a # c.69

1969 06 11
Maud report on local government says Cambridge to become geographical centre of huge new authority as part of three-tier system – 69 06 11 # c.35.1

1969 06 18
Petty Cury flower seller loses pitch with demolition of Lion Hotel, is built replacement site – 69 06 18

1969 06 19
Gelignite used to blast away one of four brick piers which carried the old Cambridge to Bedford railway line over the Cam at Trumpington – 69 06 19 # c.26.2

1969 06 23
Investment Research start biggest micro-filmed chart library of stock exchange dealings – 69 06 23

1969 06 24
Walnut Tree Avenue site for storage equipment for construction Elizabeth Bridge; Banham's boatyard has moved to new premises, ferry remains – 69 06 24 # c.44.7
Midsummer Fair china seller feature – 69 06 24a # c.27.31

1969 06 26
Pete Sayers, Newmarket singer has own TV show in Nashville – 69 06 26

July 1996 CN

1969 07 01
Red Lodge plans for bypass cause controversy – feature – 69 07 01
J. Lyons & Co sign Petty Cury to change – photo – 69 07 01a # B
Prince Charles' career since he came to Cambridge – feature – 69 07 01b,c,d,e # c.02

1969 07 02
Sale city centre property including Arts Cinema, Miller's Music, Eaden Lilley warehouse, Jarrolds – 69 07 02 # c.06
Trustee Savings Bank introduce first 24-hour self-service banking – 69 07 02a # c.32.7

1969 07 04
P.O. Reed, hairdresser started 53 Trumpington St, 1946 to Mill Road, then King St etc – history – 69 07 04

1969 07 09
Reach - 'King Len' abdicates, gives village back to Queen – 69 07 09

1969 07 10
Elizabeth Bridge engineering problems – feature – 69 07 10 # c.44.7

1969 07 11
Swim through Cambridge – exiting finish to women's race & photo – 69 07 11 # c.38 : swimming

1969 07 17
George Moons shop, Fitzroy Street recalled – 69 07 17 # P.Moo

1969 07 18
Women Land Army WWI, includes Mrs E. Hobbs of Milton (3rd from left) photo – 69 07 18 # T.W.8

1969 07 19
St Luke's CofE Primary School official opening – 69 07 19 # c.36.5

1969 07 22

Waterbeach electric pumping station near locks in Ranold Road were installed last February, completed in May – 69 07 22 # c.29

1969 07 25
Queen Anne Terrace car park plans approved, to open next June – 69 07 25 # c.49.62
Walt-ham-stell, large house in landscaped gardens, Barton Rd is the 1795 'House in the Fen', a famous old coaching inn; is tunnel to Grantchester & Roman well. Permission granted for demolition but should be saved – 69 07 25a # c.61

1969 07 28
Norman Higgins, impresario, was manager Tivoli in 1928, involved Arts Cinema & Theatre, served on board – profile- 69 07 28 # c.76

August 1969 CN

1969 08 07
Swaffham Prior old fire engine restored – 69 08 07
King's College to close two gates at weekend in bid to control tourists, others consider – 69 08 07a

1969 08 21
Traffic warden controls cars – photo – 69 08 21 # T.

1969 08 23
Demolition on corner Gloucester Street & Castle Hill for new County Council premises – photo – 69 08 23

1968 08 25
Percy Reed hairdresser – profile – 69 08 25

1969 08 27
Cantab Enterprises creditors to meet - are retail owned buying group of grocers and general stores, formed 1959, cash-and-carry warehouse started 1966 – 69 08 27
Arbury Roman settlement – archaeology – 69 08 27a

1969 08 29
Cambridge may have an improved Tourist Information Bureau in the section of the Central Library in Wheeler Street now occupied by the Children's Library. This department will be moved to the newspaper Reading Room which is used regularly as a place out of the rain by undesirables. The papers and periodicals displayed there will be put into the existing Reference Library section. The moves will allow for the present music library to be extended. The scheme would mean the employment of two additional staff members at a total cost of about £2,000 a year. The new Bureau could undertake answering accommodation requests from tourists and possibly also sell picture postcards and photographic slides. – 69 08 29 # c.77.4

September 1969 CEN

1969 09 02
Cambridge News changes title to Cambridge Evening News – 69 08 26 (old) 69 09 01, 02a; change names on vans – 69 09 02a # c.04

1969 09 08
Maurice Stevenson, longest-serving film projectionist – memories – 69 09 08 # c.76.9

1969 09 15
Percheron parade through streets – 69 09 15

1969 09 16
German bomb might be buried in mud of Cam near Victoria Bridge – 69 09 16

1969 09 18
New Addenbrooke's Hospital progress – feature – 69 09 18

1969 09 23
Alison Quiggin memories of Women Citizen's Association and women's activities – 69 09 23
Gloucester Street building site progress – photo – 69 09 23a

1969 09 24
Market holders discontent over plans for Market Square – 69 09 24; plans delayed – 69 09 25; plans outlined – 69 10 01, 01a # c.27.3

October 1969 CEN

1969 10 03
Civic Restaurant to end when building demolished for Lion Yard, to be no new home – 69 10 03 # c.27.47

1969 10 08
Mill Road maternity hospital premature baby unit opened – 69 10 08 # c.21.4

1969 10 09
Dons divided on plans for science city proposals for West Cambridge site – 69 10 09 # c.49.8 # c.36.9 # c.49.4

1969 10 10
Royal Cambridge Hotel fire – 69 10 10 # c.34.75 # c.27.45

1969 10 25
Cambridge Scientific Instrument Company second fire in two weeks – 69 10 15 # c.27.1 : Cambridge Instruments # c.34.74
Demolition of Regency Houses in Bene't Place to make way for bio-chemistry department – inquiry – 69 10 25 # c.61

1969 10 30
Hiam's farms at Shippea Hill, Pratts Farm Prickwillow, Ape's Hall Littleport and Stretham not sold – 69 10 30
Enoch Powell dodges protesting demonstrators when speaking at Union Society – 69 10 30a # c.33

November 1969 CEN

1969 11 04
Magdalene Bridge to be replaced with present cast-iron structure replaced with 'a simple modern design', says Ministry – 69 11 04 # c.44.7

1969 11 06
Pye establish new computer centre opposite St Andrew's Road HQ – 69 11 06

1969 11 07
Garlic Row industrial site final stages, is for relocation of businesses within Cambridge – 69 11 07

1969 11 11

Capt A.C. Taylor, managing director of CDN for 40 years; his father William Farrow Taylor founded paper in 1888; he became manager in 1919; was acquired by Lord Iliffe in 1959 – 69 11 11 # c.04
Judge leaves Trinity en route Assizes – photo – 69 11 11a

1969 11 12
Cambridge Collection grows – 'Arbury News' magazines being added by J. Barham, is developing an S.D.I. system to inform readers; copy photos, use of books increases 50% in three years – 69 11 12 # c.77.4
Banham's ferry being used by engineer – photo – 69 11 12 # K.F.

1969 11 15
Josephine Victory of Stretham starts training RAF nursing – 69 11 15

1969 11 18
Tracked hovercraft model on show – 69 11 18, 69 12 04# c.26.2
Railwaymen deliver newspapers overnight – feature – 69 11 18a & b # c.04 # c.26.2

1969 11 20
Tunnellers prepare for Elizabeth Bridge, divert pipes underground – profile – 69 11 20 # c.44.7

1969 11 26
Traffic jams in Magdalene Street due accident – photo – 69 11 26

December 1969 CEN

1969 12 03
Elsworth village lacks sewers, bury waste – feature – 69 12 03
Barclay's Bank extension, Bene't St – photo – 69 12 03a

1969 12 10
Clare Hall new college – feature – 69 12 10, 10a # c.44.5

1969 12 13
City traffic emergency test – motorists headed for car parks on edge of city, Midsummer Common, Shire Hall – 69 12 13 # c.26.46 #c.49.62

1969 12 23
Ratepayers force council to hold a public vote on their Private Bill aimed at giving council wider financial powers and improve building lines – 69 12 23 # c.35.7

1970 Cambridge Evening News

I have copies of these article

January 1970 CEN

1970 01 03
Bassingbourn parish library in parish church for 250 years sold to Universities of Cambridge and Essex. Was started in 1717 by resident and comprises 800 volumes – 70 01 03

1970 01 06
U.F.O. over West Wickham rattles roof – 70 01 06
Mitcham's Corner being widened, the end house being demolished – photo – 70 01 06a # B.Mit

1970 01 09
County to ease ban on city industry, approve science-based industry – 70 01 09, 09a # c.49.64 # c.49.4

1970 01 13
Vicarage Terrace now site of Cherry Trees Old People's Centre – photos before and after – 70 01 13 # B.Vic

1970 01 14
Simon community derelict pub on East Road taken over as place of refuge is to close – 70 01 14 # c.32.9

1970 01 15
Herbert Webb blacksmith in Russell Street – photo – 70 01 15 # PC.Bla
Gonville Hotel planned to grow into one of city's biggest with room sup from 20 to 100 – 70 01 15a # c.27.45

1970 01 20
Elizabeth Bridge construction work on subway – photo – 70 01 20

1970 01 21
Ted Salisbury garage to expand with coming Elizabeth Way – 70 01 21 # c.26.48

1970 01 23
Jack Hobb's childhood home at 4 Rivar Place, Sleaford St to be demolished – photo – 70 01 23
Papworth St Agnes village owned by St John Sperling – feature – 70 01 23a & b

1970 01 28
Regency houses in Bene't Place may not be demolished for University biochemistry – 70 01 28 # c.61

February 1970 CEN

1970 02 04
Ministry of Technology Computer Aided Design Centre, Madingley Road operating nine months; staff outnumber the firms who have found anything useful to design by computer – 70 02 04 # c.27.5

1970 02 05
Steadily and inexorably the flood advanced and by dusk much of what in the morning had been fertile fen was a mass of grey water gleaming dimly in the fading light. Houses, bungalows, farm buildings and stacks stood maroon and desolate. Destiny may have chosen 1947 to devastate fen country with one of the worst disasters in its history. But destiny also chose the man to record it, Mr W. Martin

Lane of Ely. It was a remarkable fulfilment of a childhood premonition that bought Mr Lane to take 1,000 photographs. Examples from a set of 300 pictures in this priceless record of the floods are the centrepiece of an exhibition of local history being staged in by Cambridge City Libraries in the Guildhall from February 11th to 13th . When a child Mr Lane was shown tide marks of floods in old fen houses. He had a premonition that the fens would flood again and that he would be there to photograph it. As acres went deep under water he went into action with his camera to record a record of the flood in detail that no Fleet Street photographers could hope to emulate. Mr Lane's pictures, which one's raised large sums to help in flood relief, form a centrepiece to a varied exhibition. It will include sections on local arts - fiction set in Cambridgeshire, poetry and the theatre - tourist Cambridge, trades and industries, Cambridge at war, amateur and professional press, transport and other aspects of local history – 70 02 05; exhibition sets up – Mike Petty, Alison Barker, Clare Beatty - photo – 70 02 11a# c.29 # c.77.4 # F.D.

1970 02 06
George Cunningham school dentist to be remembered – 70 02 06

1970 02 10
Malting Lane, Newnham – sketch – 70 02 10 # B.Mal

1970 02 11
Anti-Greek junta demonstrators fail disrupt tourist exhibition at Dorothy – 70 02 11 # c.33

1970 02 11
The mayor of Cambridge was presented with 1000 negatives of the fen floods of 1947 by Mr W. Martin Lane at the opening of a local history exhibition in the Small Hall of the Guildhall. The photographs provide the central feature of the exhibition which is to be open for the next days. Opening the exhibition, the Chairman of the Libraries Committee, Alderman Elliot Ridgeon, said the collection of local history was obviously very useful to historians and equally interesting to the general public. But many people probably did not know of its existence, because it was housed in a very inadequate room which was not open to the public. The items in the collection are available only on request from the Reference Library. "I hope the publicity that we are able to give it will enhance the use to which it is going to be put. By 1974 we hope the new library will be built in the Lion Yard and there should be adequate facilities to house the Collection there", he said 70 02 11a

1970 02 14
Garden House Riot against Greek holiday promotion – 70 02 14, 14a, 14b# c.36.93 # c.33 # c.34.6

1970 02 16
Cambridge Computer Services ltd take delivery £200,000 computer, 10-unit ICL 1903a delivered through window at Juniper House – 70 02 16

1970 02 17
Tenpin bowling rink, Mill Road, shuts down suddenly by Magnet Bowling who opened it in 1965 – 70 02 17 # c.38 : bowling

1970 02 18
Student demonstrations menace – discuss Garden House violence – 70 02 18 & a # c.36.93 # c.33 # c.34.6

1970 02 21
Prince Charles in Trinity Review with bagpipes – 70 02 21 # c.02

1970 02 27

'Grandfather's Cambridge' – memories of Bob Acres – 70 02 27, 70 03 06, 70 03 13, 70 03 20, 70 03 26 & 26a, 70 04 03b, 70 04 10 & 10a, 70 04 17, 70 04 24a, 70 05 01, 70 05 08 & a, 70 05 15 & a, 70 05 22, 70 05 29 & a National Health Service new buildings in Vinery Road – 70 02 27a # c.21.16

March 1970 CEN

1970 03 04
Lion Yard library might be built by Development Company instead of the city council. Ravenseft Properties may agreed to build the three-storey library because it is scheduled to go on top of a block of shops; the city would then lease the building from the company – 70 03 04 # c.77.4 # c.49.

1970 03 09
Moore Pianos to close after 50 years due problems skilled staff – 70 03 09 # c.69
What now for Magnet bowl and old cinemas – 70 03 09a

1970 03 10
Fulbourn Hospital renovation – feature – 70 03 10 # c.21.5

1970 03 13
Elizabeth Bridge last concrete span fixed in place – 70 03 13a # c.44.7

April 1970 CEN

1970 04 01
Richard Duce took over Coldham's Lane site in 1948 after a brickyard closed and since then recovered 23,000 tons of copper and aluminium from scrap metal' has sold most site to London property company for new trading estate; to demolish chimney and move to bottom of the site between railway line & Newmarket Road – 70 04 01 # c.21.15
Otto Wehrle jewels shop clock may disappear as shop closes after 125 years – 70 04 01a # c.27.2

1970 04 03
Y.M.C.A. celebrate centenary – feature – 70 04 03e # c.37.9
Two Tees Boat Yard opened by Ernest Tyler and Mo Tyrrell, worked for Banham's – 70 04 03a # c.29.6

1970 04 23
Library roof leak – photo of children's library – 70 04 23; 79 09 18 # F.D.

1970 04 24
Bassingbourn school discover glass slides – 70 04 24

1970 04 25
Harold Woolfenden runs Cambridge Music Shop – profile – 70 04 25 # c.69
Trinity College plan 13-acre Science Park – 70 04 25a # c.49.64 # c.27.1

1970 04 30
Gustava Vasa memorial, Chesterton restored – 70 04 30 # c.62
Tracked Hovercraft concrete track – feature – 70 04 30a,b,c,d # c.26.2

1970 04 31
St Faith's School new hall opened – 70 04 31 # c.36.5

May 1970 CEN

1970 05 06
Roller skating – 200 attend Corn Exchange – 70 05 06
Prince Charles opens Kettle's Yard – 70 05 06a # c.02 # c.03

1970 05 11
1,000 march to Free Greek Rally – 70 05 11 # c.33

1970 05 13
Prince Charles speaks Union Society, with Earl Mountbatten – 70 05 13 # c.02

1970 05 14
Kent Cambridge Scientific set up in USA to market electron probe made by Cambridge Scientific Instruments – 70 05 14 # c.27.1 : Cambridge Instruments

1970 05 16
Painting farm house junction Newmarket Road & Coldham's Lane – 70 05 16 & a # B.Newm

1970 05 18
Free Press licensee Geoffrey Nichols there 43 years – memories – 70 05 18 # c.27.4
Newmarket Road new roundabout – photo – 70 05 18a # B.Newm

1970 05 22
Elizabeth Way taking shape – aerial photo – 70 05 22a

1970 05 37
Taxi drivers push cabs – photo – 70 05 27

1970 05 28
Fire Serck Services radiator firm, East Road – 70 05 28 # c.34.75

1970 05 29
George Porter of Galloway & Porter profile –firm started in 1901 – 70 05 29b # c.25

1970 05 30
Cambridge United elected to 4th Division Football League – 70 05 30, b15 06 14b # c.38 : football
Police move to Parkside HQ – 70 05 30a

June 1970 CEN

1970 06 01
Prince Charles walks back to college rooms after examinations, Senate House Passage – photo – 70 06 01

1970 06 02
Public works committee members cross Cam on ferry at inspection Elizabeth Bridge – photo – 70 06 02 # K.F.

1970 06 03
Kidney Unit at Douglas House can be opened following permission for junior doctor; team headed by Prof Roy Calne; unit contains ten kidney machines – 70 06 03, 03a # c.21.4

1970 06 04
Parkside police station – feature – 70 06 04

1970 06 08

Cambridge United welcomed in return from German tour – 70 06 08

1970 06 10
De Vere granted permission for hotel and office block at Pound Hill – but will be inquiry – 70 06 10 # c.49.4 # c.27.45

1970 06 12
Dr Dale has private 'black museum' – feature – 70 06 12 & a # c.03

1970 08 15
Harry Porter, professor steeped in theatre – profile – 70 06 15

1970 06 16
Birch's Garage began Victoria Road in 1956, moved Milton Road – feature – 70 06 16 # c.26.48

1970 06 17
Kite area plan 'torn up behind locked doors' – city reject consultants' recommendation, to form consortium with Jesus College and a property company, inquiry told – 70 06 17 # c.49.4 # c.49.66

1970 06 19
University Graduate Centre – feature – 70 06 19, 19a # c.36.9
David Lane and Scurfield talk during election county – photo – 70 06 19b # W.33

1970 06 20
Keith Whetstone, editor of Cambridge Evening News – profile – 70 06 20 # c.04

1970 06 22
Cliff Richard sings and speaks at Gt St Mary's – 70 06 22 # c.69

1970 06 24
Garden House Riot – trial – 70 06 24 # c.34.6 #c.36.93

1970 06 25
Ely-Ouse – Essex scheme – feature – 70 06 25 & 25a # c.29
Barclays Bank modernise Bene't St HQ – feature – 70 06 25b & c # c.32.8

1970 06 26
Monsoon Day floods Campkin Road
A freak storm hit without warning and for more than two hours Cambridgeshire was lashed by rain hand and gale-force winds. Two and a half feet of water gushed into houses in Captain Road, Cambridge, causing hundreds of pounds worth of damage. Every house from 68-78 was flooded. And just as householders began to win the battle with the water heavy vehicles, forcing their way back way through, Sent shockwaves of water cascading back into their houses. At number 68 residents stood in the middle of a running river of water flowing through their front door and out the back. The husband cast a baleful look over the brand new deep pink wallpaper in the Hall. It was slowly changing colour as the water crept up. "We decorated the place only a couple of weeks ago. We managed to get out carpet up in time. But we don't think we have lost anything" he said. A widow said "Everything is soaking. We are using bed covers and any material to mop up and keep the water out." Several neighbours formed bucket chains to remove water. At the Jenny Wren Public House on the corner of Saint Kilda Way Water burst into the cellars and the Landlady was worried her beer stocks might suffer. At the Kingsway Flats underground garages were swamped and at Ferrars Way the subways to the lock up garages were impossible. On the McManus Estate Chatsworth Avenue was one of the worst hit points. Householders in shorts and swimming costumes battled to keep the flood water out.

Dozens of calls for help were sent out by people to the fire service and police but because of the situation throughout the county no help came until the floods abated around 6pm. 70 06 26a & b # c.12

July 1970 CEN

1970 07 01
History Faculty building wins RIBA award, despite leaks – 70 07 01 # c.61

1970 07 03
Six Cambridge students were sent to prison for the part they played in the demonstration at the Garden House Hotel in February. Two others were sent for borstal training and seven acquitted. The Judge said the sentences would have been heavier had he not been satisfied that they had been exposed to the evil influence of some senior members of the University. All admitted they were present at a demonstration when a crowd of several hundred gathered outside the Garden House Hotel during a protest against a dinner and dance which was the climax of a Cambridge Greek Week. Students threw bricks and stones, smashed windows and pull-down electric lights. Their careers were now in jeopardy and there was a possibility they might be sent down from the University.– 70 07 03, 03a,b; clash with townspeople – 70 07 06; verdict – appeal rejected – 70 08 19 # c.34.6 # c.39.63

1970 07 04
Jim Smith, machine room manager of Cambridge News for 37 years retires – 70 07 04 # c.04

1970 07 10
Hope Tebbutt started first nursery school in Cambridge 45 years ago, Stagsholt Nursery School Gresham Road for poorer areas; was 15 years before another – 70 07 10 # c.36.5 # c.37.9

1970 07 11
Proctors' future for discipline to be considered – 70 07 11 # c.36.9 # c.36.93

1970 07 22
Aerial photo from five miles up – 70 07 22

1970 07 23
Lion Yard development – only legal snags remain – 70 07 23 # c.49.4 # c.49.47

1970 07 28
Pye – album of photos of workers found – 70 07 28
Stretham Ferry Bridge accidents – 70 07 28a

1970 07 29
Ely Diocesan report says four churches may close – St Andrew the Great, All Saints, St Giles and St Peter- 70 07 29, a,b # c.83.01
Dr Dale's black museum sold, no buyers for county gallows – 70 07 29c # c.34.9 #c.03

1970 07 31
Co-op store alterations increase floor area, new high-speed checkouts – 70 07 31

August 1970 CEN

1970 08 01
Jonas Webb statue to move from Corn Exchange – 70 08 01, 70 09 18; to relocate to South Cambs DC HQ, Hills Road – 70 11 05 # c.62

1970 08 04

Hovertrain line collapse halts work – 70 08 04;

1970 08 11
Turnpike house near Barnwell Bridge bought from Jesus College, converted into house – 70 08 11 # c.61

1970 08 13
Children's Relief International investigation – 70 08 13 & a # c.32.9

1970 08 17
Science laboratories devastated in big explosion laboratory on New Museums site – 70 08 17, 18; caused by natural gas – 70 08 22 # c.36.9 # c.24.4

1970 08 17
Eight men have been laid off at the Tracked Hovercraft site at Sutton Gault while an investigation is carried on into the track collapse which brought construction to a halt. Track building for the pioneer Hovertrain was halted after three 50 ton concrete beans crashed 25 feet to the ground two weeks ago. Construction firm Shephard Hill of London said they were hoping for news from the investigators next week. A decision will be made then about work for the 30 men left at the site. It will be several weeks before building can start again. There has to be a bit of a clear up and some modification of the beams will certainly have to be made, said a spokesman. Foundation work on which most of the men have been kept occupied is running out. But it may be that the investigation will show that the track will need more supporting beams than planned at first. A three- mile stretch of experimental track is being built between Earith and Sutton Gault ready, it is hoped, for a first large experimental vehicle to use early next year. 70 08 17a

1970 08 18
Heffers to move bookshop to Trinity Street – 70 08 18a

1970 08 26
Railway track removed at Gt Shelford junction – 70 08 26 26
Cambridge Philatelic Society 50th anniversary – 70 08 26a # c.42

1970 08 28
Bridge Street overhanging first floor room damaged by lorry – 70 08 28

September 1970 CEN

1970 09 15
Several charities to merge in bid to build new almshouses on Old Manor House site at Church Street, Chesterton to replace old Wray's Court Houses; Henry Wray trustees apply city council – 70 09 15 # c.32.9

1970 09 16
Rudi Dutschke, radical German student living at Clare Hall; will not be allowed to remain – 70 09 16 # c.33

1970 09 18
Supermarket price wars – 70 09 18b # P.Tes

1970 09 22
Elizabeth Bridge construction work photos – 70 09 22

October 1970 CEN

1970 10 01
The cost of the marina planned for the Fish and Duck Inn at Little Thetford will run into thousands of pounds, said the owner, Mr Albert Cedar. There will be a jetty almost 100 yards long providing moorings for 60 to 70 boats, slipways, undercover accommodation for at least six boats, fuel and provisions stores. Work has already started and a channel is being cut to allow access to both sides of the proposed jetty. The marina is planned to come into operation next spring.A car park would also be provided and he is turning a nearby 12-acre field into a golf driving range. "This will not be a money-making object but an extra facility for people coming to the marina", he said.
The Fish and Duck stands at the junction formed by the Ouse, Cam and Old West Rivers.
70 10 01

1970 10 02
Heffers open new bookshop, Trinity Street – 70 10 02 # c.25

1970 10 05
Cambridge to St Ives railway line final journey – 70 10 05 # c.26.2

1970 10 07
Cambridge Scientific Instruments axe 70 workers – 70 10 07
Taxis running on propane gas with United Taxis private gas tanks in Hills Road – 70 10 07a # c.26.47

1970 10 09
Stearns photographers to merge with Eaden Lilley photography department – 70 10 09 # c.65.5
Parkside police station official opening – 70 10 09a # c.34.7

1970 10 10
Pye Unicam redundancies follow news sacking at Cambridge Scientific Instruments – 70 10 10 # c.27.1

1970 10 13
Cambridge University Proctors are no longer to attend student political demonstrations which take place off university premises. In future undergraduates taking part in such demonstrations will be subject only to police and civil law. The Proctors will retain their jurisdiction both on university premises and elsewhere in accordance with recently-amended statues and ordinances. The Council of the Senate appointed a committee after eight Cambridge students had been sentenced for their part in the Greek Week demonstration at the Garden House Hotel. In evidence the Chief Constable had made it clear that maintenance of order in public places was the responsibility of the police. 70 10 13

At the Union undergraduates called for the abolition of the Proctors. A don urged "Get rid of the Proctors, change the basis of authority in this university and get rid of the capitalist system". He claimed the Proctors were forced to give names of students who had taken part in the demonstration to the 'State'. The 'State' chose to prosecute. Twelve of the 15 charged were members of the Socialist Society. The Proctors existed partly for enforcement of rules and partly as spies for authority. Cast in that role, students would never be satisfied until they were completely dispensed with.
But a former Senior Proctor emphasised that the role of Proctors was now largely to keep "an open and free climate for rational debate". To call for the abolition of the proctorial system would gain immediate sympathy but in the long run would do more harm than good. "In political demonstrations the Proctors have been strictly impartial". In the Greek demonstrations they came in for criticism from both Left and Right and that was a sure sign they were being used as scapegoats. He blamed the "crazier elements" of the extremist fringe for the damage that had been done to political demonstration. However a Trinity College history done declared the Proctors had become the object of ridicule throughout the world. Chasing undergraduates down King's Parade for the benefit of cameramen was not the way responsible officers of Cambridge University should be shown. He was not alone on the high tables of Cambridge in condemning the position in which the Proctors had been placed over the Garden House affair. 70 10 13b# c.36.9 # c.36.93 # c.34.7

Planners may ease band on industrial development; suggest land be earmarked for science industry park – 70 10 13a # c.27.1 # c.49.64

1970 10 14
Cheddars Lane should be preserved and listed say Government – 70 10 14 # c.61 # c.03

November 1970 CEN

1970 11 04
Magdalene bridge should be demolished and replaced say Ministry of Transport but opposition likely – photo of proposals – 70 11 04 # c.44.7

1970 11 06
CCAT new building, the fifth instalment, to be opened next month – 70 11 06 # c.36.7

1970 11 10
Granta Tyres buy old Granary building in Histon Road – 70 11 10

1970 11 23
Sewerage work Newmarket Road to replace surface water sewer – feature – 70 11 23

1970 11 26
Sutton Gault Hovertrain route back on track – work to restart – 70 11 26

December 1970 CEN

1970 12 03
Lion Yard car park from Corn Exchange Roof – photo – 70 12 03 # B.Lio

1970 12 07
Lion Yard plan goes ahead on schedule – 70 12 07; work finally starts – 70 12 28 # c.49.4 # c.49.67

1970 12 08
Fire True Form shoe shop, Petty Cury was caused by candles used during electricity cuts – 70 12 08 # c.34.75 # B.Pet

1970 12 10
Electricity strike cuts expected to black out central Cambridge – 70 12 10 #c.34.6

1970 12 12
Cambridge News curtails number of editions due power strike – molten metal used to cast type will quickly solidify – 70 12 12 # c.04

1970 12 15
Banhams and Appleyard Lincoln boat builders to attend London Boat Show – 70 12 15

1970 12 29
Fitzroy-Burleigh redevelopment may start as Samuel Properties start discussions – 70 12 29 # c.49.4 # c.49.66

1970 12 30
Long Road college of Further Education to replace York Street FE Centre approved by Government – 70 12 30 # c.36.7

1970 12 31

St Andrew's Junior, Park St Infants & Junior and St Paul's infants and junior schools must go, Alderman says – 70 12 31

1971 Cambridge Evening News

I have copies of these articles

January 1971 CEN

1971 01 01
Coulson's builders celebrate 50 years by installing a computer – 71 01 01
Lt Thetford round house restored – 70 01 01a

1971 01 02
Alderman Howard Mallet, champion of youth, dies; worked for scouts for 50 years, youth club named after him – 70 01 02 # c.37.9

1971 01 07
Grosvenor records issues record of organ music from Cambridge – 71 01 07
King Street architecture criticism – 71 01 07a

1971 01 08
Rudi Dutschke who came to Britain in 1986 to recover from gunshot wounds and has been living at Clare Hall should not be allowed to stay, Tribunal recommends – 71 01 08; call for University strike – 71 01 11; students plan protest – 71 01 14; 1,000 students march – 71 01 16 # c.33 # c.36.93
Hot-air balloons launched over Cambridge by Perse schoolboys – 70 01 08a # c.26.1

1971 01 21
Pye plan new complex for production, storage and offices in St Andrew's Road – 71 01 21 # c.27.1 : Pye
First mobile library arrives – 71 01 21a # c.77.4
Jonas Moore statue moves from Corn Exchange – 71 01 21b

1971 01 23
Archaeologists have ten days to investigate King's Ditch under Lion Yard – 71 01 23 # c.41

1971 01 27
Postal strike – private stamps issued by Donald Hofford – 71 01 27, 27a, 71 01 30 # c.42
Shire Hall plan Castle Court extension with landscaped offices – 71 01 27b # c.35.1

1971 01 29
Midsummer Common may be used as temporary car park – photo cows – 71 01 29

February 1971 CEN

1971 02 03
Two new mobile libraries have been commissioned in the last three days. In Cambridge the Mayor opened an articulated unit which will serve points in the city suburbs while the Chairman of the County Library committee handed over a similar vehicle for the county service. It already runs three other vehicles which account for about a fifth of the 2.5 million borrowings by rural readers each year. When the new vehicle, stocked with about 2,500 books, is fully operational all villages in the county will be served either by a mobile unit or by a branch. All branches, mobile or static, are backed by the resources of the central County Library in Cambridge. Fordham, Milton and Waterbeach will be served by libraries as soon as the service can build three permanent branches. These villages are too large for the mobile units. Country dwellers find the service invaluable and a social event as well. One

Oakington housewife says "It's a marvellous service. It saves us time, money and gives us a chance for a chat as well". In cases of real hardship the mobile librarians are prepared to take the books into the houses of those who are unable to go out to the vehicle. Librarian Dennis Cheason says that there are unexpected perks for the staff. Some of them have been given flowers or fruit at various times of the year. There are practical advantages for the county's finances as well. There are 21 part time permanent branches and four full-time ones. They serve a comparatively small part of the county and cost a lot to build, staff and maintain. The mobile units are staffed by two people cover two or three villages a day and by allowing people to keep their books for some time they only call once a fortnight. The economies are substantial. In comparison Cambridge is just learning about mobiles. They discussed paying for a mobile as long ago as 1949 but nothing came of it until last year. Now the unit has been commissioned and will save money in the long term. The articulated lorry has some advantage over solid chassis lorries for urban work. Once the trailer unit with the library inside has been towed to one of the 12 sites around Cambridge it will visit each week, the tractor unit can be taken away for other work until the trailer is due to move on again. The City Librarian, Eric Cave, estimates it will make about 90,000 lendings in the first year of operation – 71 02 03. 03a # c.77.4

1971 02 04
Refuse disposal problems as cement works pits fill up, plans for pulverisation plant at Cheddar's Lane – 71 02 04 # c.21.15

1971 02 06
County Hall Hobson Street may be sold by County Council to raise money for new offices behind Shire Hall – 71 02 06 # c.35.1

1971 02 08
Jewel raid at Saqui & Lawrence, raiders break through wall to steal £5,000 rings – 71 02 08 # c.34.6

Home Secretary Reginald Maudling visit to speak to University Conservatives ends without trouble – 71 02 08a, b # c.33

1971 02 10
Changes proposed to inside of Catholic Church – High Altar to be moved – 71 02 10 # c.83.02

19171 02 11
Cambridge United battle to take over Whitehill allotment land for use as car park – 71 02 11 # c.38 : football

1971 02 12
Gas works buzzer finds new home as Natural Gas forces closure of gas works – 71 02 12

Banks coped with Decimal Day – feature – 71 02 12a; The D-day non-event: D-Day hit Cambridge like a damp squib. Banks, shops and offices were predicting one of the biggest non-events of all time. Business was slow but smooth and confused customers were few and far between. All the preparations seem to have paid off. The banks had set up special inquiry counters. Shop assistants were patient and ready to explain. And most of the shoppers were taking it all in their stride.
Staff at Heffers were putting the final touches to their re-pricing – from today it will be decimal prices only. Someone went decimal a day early yesterday – Great St Mary's Church had one new penny piece in the collection plate. But almost a hundredweight of old pennies, worth about £24 crashed to the ground at the Old Spring public house in Ferry Path at a ceremony arranged by the Cambridge Cancer Campaign. They had been collected over the last eight months. – 71 02 13a # c.32.8

1971 02 13
Golden Rose landlady retires, pub closes – memories – 71 02 13 # c.27.4

1971 02 16

Railway station façade facelift – 71 02 16 # c.26.1 ‘ I.N.

1971 02 19
Rudi Dutschke leaves Cambridge – 71 02 19, 19b
Cambridge Free Radio off air after being hunted down by Post Office engineers – had been broadcasting over a 25-mile radius from Histon – 71 02 19a # c.27.81

1971 02 22
Rag Day violence forces decorated float procession to be abandoned – 71 02 22 # c.36.95 # V.

1971 02 24
Cambridge Students Union link with CCAT, outnumbering undergraduates in an organisation they brought into being at the beginning of last term – 71 02 24 # c.36.7 # c.36.92
CCAT – how long to wait for polytechnic – feature – 71 02 24a # c.36.7

1971 02 26
Pye sack 260 works, rising costs blamed – 71 02 26 # c.27.1 : Pye
CCAT new computer will be used by hundreds of schoolchildren as part of their normal syllabus – 71 02 26a opens – 71 03 11a # c.27.5
Community radio concept for city: Brian Jackson of Advisory Centre for Education has developed a proposals for new form of broadcasting; Enid Porter would speak on fen customs – 71 02 26b # c.27.81
University to buy new £1.7m computer – IBM 370/165 to take over from Titan – 71 02 26c # c.27.5

March 1971 CEN

1971 03 02
‘Women are People’ group protest about restrictions on taking pushchairs into colleges – 71 03 02 # c.46.45

1971 03 06
Fire at gas works when oil residue caught alight as workmen using acetylene torches cut metal plates from demolished gas storage tank – 71 03 06 # c.34.75 # c.24.4
Head Post Office in Regent Street modernised – 71 03 06a # c.27.7

1971 03 09
Jesus College new organ, older one restored – 71 03 09 # c.69.4

1971 03 11
Fly posters deface empty shops – 71 03 11

1971 03 12
Market Hill redevelopment – British Cinemas to build offices and shops at 3-5 but plaster ceilings and beams to be preserved – 71 03 12 # c.61

1971 03 13
E.S. Summers, commercial and heraldic artist for 40 years to retire when Lion Yard redevelopment sweeps away premises at 13 Alexandra Street – 71 03 13 # c.58 # c.64

1971 03 18
Ted Salisbury build new garage with showrooms on site of Elizabeth Way; started 52 years ago when heard rumours of new bridge – 71 03 18 # c.26.48

1971 03 19

Banhams boatyard transformed from home of traditional craftsmanship to an industrial production line of fibre-glass boats – 71 03 19 # c.29.6

Arbury residents cut off from shops; is functional and austere, offering adequate homes at economic rents and a place to sleep. But few pensioners can afford price of bus ride to centre and council puts off cheap bus fare scheme – 71 03 19a # c.23 # c.26.46

1971 03 19ES
Expansion plans at Lt Thetford. 71 03 19ES

1971 03 22
Terraced houses plan will ruin Lt Thetford say residents. 71 03 22

1971 03 25
Jehovah's Witness' new Kingdom Hall in Stanley Road nearly ready – feature – 71 03 25 # c.83 # c.83.08

1971 03 30
Garden House Hotel £1m extension scheme starts – 71 03 30 # c.27.45
YMCA to celebrate centenary by move from Alexandra Street to Gonville Place – 71 03 30a # c.37.9

April 1971 CEN

1971 04 02
6,000 properties could become the slums of tomorrow unless deterioration is halted and basic amenities installed – feature – 71 04 02 # c.23

1971 04 03
When Jack Baldry decided to become a mineral water manufacturer in Cambridge he fased competition from 32 firms who were selling in the town. Today he is chairman of Cambridge's last remaining soft drink factory - a handsome new plant built at Harvest Way. He took up an apprenticeship with the well-known Cambridge firm of Baker and Sons and ran the company doing the Great War, Later he started on his own: "I worked from dawn to dusk, there was no gas light no electric light and in winter we had to shut at four because we couldn't see". The first order was from the Livingstone Hotel in Petty Cury and was for two dozen cases of lemonade. He has seen the business growth from output of 100-dozen bottles a day to its present capacity of 400-dozen bottles an hour but manufacturing costs and prices have risen enormously. The Cola industry change the trade: "I had the sole agency for Pepsi Cola before the war and bought the first barrel. They almost gave me a brand new lorry to get it going. I couldn't sell it, couldn't give it away. But when the war came over along the American forces came over and they had to have coke. In America it's a drug. After the war the younger generation all asked for cola which is a tragedy for English manufacturers. It used to be a seasonal trade but he says we are up to our house in work all the year round and production obviously increases during the summer months and production increases during the summer months but he insists "We are up to our eyes in work all the year round". 71 04 03 # c.27.41

1971 04 05
Dr Barnardo's home in Fitzwilliam Road to close after 20 years; only five children remain – 71 04 05 # c.37.9

1971 04 06
Meadowcroft Stretham – advertising feature for new homes.
Introducing 'Meadowcroft', Stretham; only 10 miles from Cambridge by the fast A10(T) road. Five superb types of properties each of striking design and layout. All properties to have Central heating, Car ports, Choice of decorations, N.H.B.R.C. 10-year guarantee, Coloured bathroom suite, Fitted kitchen. Prices from £3,995 to £5,425. When you reserve a home, no matter how much the costs rise, we guarantee to hold that price until you move in – provided you exchange contracts within eight weeks. Costs are rising fast and house prices could well go up 10 per cent during 1971 so this guarantee is worth a lot of money. Once you have purchased your new R.H. Spicer home, the service doesn't stop. After six months every one of these architect-designed properties, at your convenience, is given a full inspection by a senior representative. If anything needs fixing they fix it, quickly and free of charge. 71 04 06

University Library faces crisis due static staff while work increases – 71 04 06a

1971 04 11
Gypsy Jim Loveridge sleeps beside Romany van – photo – 71 04 11 # RA.Gyp

1971 04 13
Cambridge Instrument Company sack 150; follows Pye redundancies earlier – 71 04 13 # c.27.1 # c.27.1 : Cambridge Instrument
'Guildhall News' – full page advertisement of city council activities starts – 71 04 13a

1971 04 14
Regal Cinema to be twinned – two different films to be shown – 71 04 14 # c.76.9

1971 04 16
Pye Group to set up new computer bureau, Cambridge Data Processing – 71 04 16 # c.27.5 # c.27.1 : Pye
De Vere Hotel plans rejected by Government – 71 04 16b # c.27.45 # c.49.4

1971 04 19
Cheddar's Lane A.F.S wartime photo, seek trace members – 71 04 19

1971 04 23
Commercial radio: culture or canned music – feature – 71 04 23 # c.27.81
Colleges may shut out tourists if numbers continue to increase at Trinity & St John's – 71 04 23a # c.46.45

1971 04 24
Ashdon revolt by farm workers against low wages in 1914 – 71 04 24
Roman Catholic mass and confirmation service held to be held in St Edward's church for first time since Reformation – 71 04 24a # c.83 # c.83.02
Corn Exchange may be converted to concert hall – 71 04 24a

1971 04 28
Fitzroy Street shopping report published – feature – 71 04 28 # c.49.4 # c.49.66

1971 04 29
Sir Frank Lee, Master of Corpus, dies – 71 04 29

1971 04 30
Trinity Wren Library to reopen after restoration – 71 04 30 # c.77.81
Cheddars Lane pumping station to open for steam weekend – 71 04 30a # c.03 # c.29.8
Barley Corn Lane sign repainted – 71 04 30b

May 1971 CEN

1971 05 01
Progress on 'Science City' development adjoining Madingley Road may be slow, Senate says – 71 05 01 # c.49.81 # find pic

1971 05 05
Gas works retort house landmarks to disappear; put up 15 years ago; five-storey warehouse in Fitzroy Street also to be demolished – 71 05 05

1971 05 12
Regal cinema organ – last chance to preserve – 71 05 12 # c.76.9 # c.69.4

1971 05 13
Western Relief Road across Lammas Land prompts mass protest – 71 05 13 # c.49.6

1971 05 14
Anchor Inn alterations and modernisation with new river bar and restaurant – 71 05 14

1971 05 17
Herd of Frisian cows eat roses in churchyard Gt St Mary – 71 05 17

1971 05 22
100 more meters, double charges and double yellow lines introduced – 71 05 22

1971 05 24
Billy Smart's circus procession Hills Road – photo – 71 05 24 # V.I.24

1971 05 25
Jehovah's Witness new Kingdom Hall, Stanley Road dedicated – 71 05 25 # c.83

1971 05 28
Cambridge to lose Assize Court under new reforms – 71 05 28

June 1971 CEN

1971 06 01
Hovertrain – another 50-ton beam wheeled along the track at Earith – photo – 71 06 01

1971 06 04
Stretham not a village for large-scale housing and plans by J.B. Smith for 42 homes off New Road would be against policy – 71 06 04

1971 06 05
Jesus Lane demolition of houses to make room for new buildings at Wesley House theological college – photo – 71 06 05 # c.44.5

1971 06 09
Three 17th-century cottages in Water Street, Chesterton being converted into one house – photo – 71 06 09
John Parry Lewis appointed by Government to head study team to examine future of Cambridge as a major East Anglian regional centre – 71 06 09a

1971 06 10
Bridge Street debacle: the two faces of Cambridge – laments crumbling buildings; feature 'A city in shackles' – 71 06 10 & a # c.49.4 # c.44.6 # c.61 # B.Bri

1971 06 12
A bulldog's life – Edmunds Hill, University Constable 40 years – feature – 71 06 12 # c.36.9 # c.36.92

1971 06 16
Cambridge United Supports' Club open new bar and lounge – 71 06 16, 71 06 18 # c.38 : football

1971 06 17
St Botolph's church crumbling; tower needs restoration – 71 06 17
Toilet at East Road – Mill Road junction being demolished – 71 06 17a # c.29.8

1971 06 23
Lion Yard first level complete – view over site – 71 06 23

1971 06 26
Prof Colin Buchanan engaged by Cambridge Preservation and Civic societies to prepare plan for Cambridge development – 71 06 26 profile – 71 08 28 # c.49.4
Littleport station master's house being demolished – 71 06 26a

1971 06 28
Fitzroy Street, Burleigh Street shopping – photos – 71 06 28 & a # B.Fit B.Bur

July 1971 CEN

1971 07 06
Queens' College apply for new footbridge over Cam between Mathematical Bridge and King's; would allow access to proposed new building- 71 07 06 # c.44.7
Burwell brickworks closure. One hundred years of production of Cambridgeshire white brick is to cease with the announcement that the Burwell Brick Company is to close having been trading at a loss for several years. It produces 9½ million bricks a year and employs 50 men, 45, are production staff average wage about £20 pounds a week. All will be made redundant. Since the factory first started production Burwell whites have been a common feature on the Cambridge in landscape. They have proved popular with local authorities over the years and their light-reflecting qualities were once in demand for the interior walls of hospitals and factories. For more than 50 years the tall chimneys have dominated the flat fenland landscape. Now their use is coming to an end and with it a village industry, which grew from a local farmer's interest in coprolite mining in the 1860s. Although Masters and Company set up in 1864 as coprolite merchants and artificial manure manufacturers, coprolite mining did not provide year-round work and the Company turn to brick making to pick up the slack. By 1888 under the ownership of Colchester and Ball, brick-making was fully established alongside chemical manure manufacture. In the early 1930s Fisons, Packard and Prentice took over the company and Fisons continued with an interest until 1966 when they were bought out by the Ibstock Brick and Tile Company Limited.
Now in a few more weeks, the brick company will disappear, as had coprolite mining and chemical manure manufacture before it. 71 07 06a

1971 07 07
Catling Brady and Bliss celebrate centenary; started by James Catling in Free School Lane; Brady joined 1895, Bliss in 1959 – 71 07 07 # c.06
Cambridge Computer Services to be centre of major new computer services group – 71 07 07a # c.27.5

1971 07 09
City through camera's lens – review of Reeve 'Victorian and Edwardian Cambridge in old photos' – 71 07 09 & a

Alan Howard of University Department Investigative Medicine pioneers new treatment for heart cases – 71 07 09b # c.21.4

1971 07 10
Cambridge police spy on homosexual's haunts, says Liberal; photos toilets – 71 07 10 # c.29.8

1971 07 13
Elizabeth Bridge, Cambridge's is first major road link across the river for close on the century, was officially opened by Lord R.A. Butler, Master of Trinity College. Large crowds of spectators gathered in bright sunshine to watch Lord, Butler cut the ceremonial tape to mark the new bridge open. Just before he cut the white ribbon he invited the mayor, Councillor Jean Barker to join him at some future date in the Mayoral car 'For a little drive over the new bridge'. "This might well increase the density of the traffic but it will also add dignity to the cavalcade", he quipped. The Mayor read a message from the Queen saying she was very glad that the bridge should bear her name. The Elizabeth Bridge and approach roads was started about two years ago and finished right on schedule.It is designed to link the Cambridge-Newmarket Road with the Cambridge-Ely Road taking much of the heavy through traffic crowding Victoria Avenue and Mitchells Corner. Elizabeth Way made a marked impact on some areas of Cambridge traffic. Soon after its opening 'it was like motoring in the city early on a Sunday morning'. But already the bridge and approach roads have been called the worst possible thing from a pollution point of view to happen to the West Chesterton area for many years. There is apprehension by people whose houses overlook the new road. They fear the effects of noise and vibration on their homes. And the effect of pollution on themselves. 71 07 13; review feature – 71 07 13a, b, c, d; complaints – 71 07 15a # c.44.7 # c.49.62

1971 07 15
RAF Oakington trains pilots – feature – 71 07 15 # c.26.1

1971 07 16
Cambridge News sales top 50,000 for first time – 71 07 16 # c.04

1971 07 17
Runciman's veterinary surgeons: profile of Cambridge business; has just moved from Downing Street to Chesterton Road – 71 07 17 # c.19 # c.27

1971 07 23
University Press celebrate 450 years of book printing – 71 07 23 # c.25

1971 07 26
Cambridge Scientific Instruments Company trading improves with electron microscope – 71 07 26
Harry Cooper opened furniture shop in Newmarket Road about 50 years ago; would pull down shutters for fear bullocks would get in – 71 07 26 # c.27

1971 07 29
City council reject plans for comprehensive education which would have ended 11-plus – 71 07 29 # c.36.1 # c.36.5a

1971 August CEN

1971 08 04
Hovertrain arrives in Earith – photo near Abbotsley – 71 08 04

1971 08 05
Cambridge to Fen Ditton road closed for removal railway bridge on old Mildenhall line – 71 08 05 # c.26.2
Force Three Associates advertising firm formed five year ago, flourishes – 71 08 05a

1971 08 06
Tourist's view of Cambridge from St Mary the Great – photo – 71 08 06

1971 08 09
Regal cinema to convert to two screens – 71 08 09

1971 08 10
City Library issues soar, when Cave came in 1954 were 560,000 – 71 08 10

1971 08 23
Newmarket Road derelict house last of 'padding cans' houses built for navvies who came to build railways and dig coprolite – 71 08 23 # c.61

1971 08 24
Railway station new travel centre and entrance hall opened – 71 08 24 # c.26.2

1971 08 26
John Howes cycle firm founded 1840, move into new showrooms, Regent Street – 71 08 26 # c.26.485

1978 08 30
Regal cinema closes for redevelopment – 71 08 30

September 1971 CEN

1971 09 02
Barnwell in 1853 – feature based on Morning Chronicle article – 71 09 02

1971 09 03
King Street new buildings ruin environment, Architectural Review claims – 71 09 04 # c.61 # c.44.6

1971 09 07
Harvey Housing Association flats for unsupported mothers with day nursery – feature – 71 09 07 # c.32.9

1971 09 10
Comprehensive education plans impeded – feature, photo Coleridge school – 71 09 10 # G.Col

1971 09 13
Cambridge Microfilm Services a success story, set up two years ago – 71 09 13 # c.27.5 # c.27

1971 09 14
Arbury Estate gets new post office, Cameron Road – 71 09 14 # c.27.7

1971 09 17
City in shackles feature on planning delays – 71 09 17 & a # c.49.4

1971 09 24
Greene King draught beers withdrawn from 22 public houses brought by Whitbread from Dale's Brewery – 71 09 24 # c.27.4

1971 09 27
World Chief Guide, Lady Baden-Powell visits Perne Road HQ – 71 09 27 # c.37.9

October 1971 CEN

1971 10 06
Prince Hirohito of Japan's visit to Cambridge 1921 recalled – 71 10 06 # c.02
Millers Wine Parlour frequented by dons, lawyers and businessmen who petition against closure – 71 10 06a # c.27.4

1971 10 07
Queen Anne car park opened – 71 10 07 # c.26.48 # c.49.62

1971 10 08
Gas works retort house demolition – 71 10 08
Hovertrain to make first run son – photo – 71 10 08a

1971 10 10
First automatic mail sorting machines delivered to Post Office in Mill Road – 71 10 10 # c.27.7

1971 10 12
Cambridgeshire Collection exhibition on River Cam in Guildhall, Mike Petty and G.R. Wilson – 71 10 12 # c.77.4

1971 10 14
Queens' College plans for new Cripps building – 71 10 14 # c.44.5

November 1971 CEN

1971 11 01
Queen Anne car park unused; photo parking King's Parade – 71 11 01 # B.Kin

1971 1 02
Hovertrain positioned on track at Earith – photo – 71 11 02, 02a

1971 11 10
Geoff Beasley makes last milk round, Stretham – 71 11 10a

1971 11 13
Charles Perrin joined Bailey and Tebbutt brewery in Panton Street in 1920; has seen take-over by Greene King in 1925, closing of brewing in Cambridge and launch of new depot in Harvest Way – profile – 71 11 13 # c.27.41

1971 11 23
Watson's estate agents founded about 1880, opened in Cambridge 1954 – history – 71 11 23 # c.06

Cambridge Assize closure ends 710-year tradition of judge's stay at Trinity college – 71 11 23a # c.37.9 # c.39

December 1971 CEN

1971 12 03
Libraries should remain under city control following local government reorganisation, committee say – 71 12 03 # c.77.4

1971 12 04
John Elven, Town Clerk, reflects over five years in Guildhall – 71 12 04 # c.35.7

1971 12 06
Kite – a sad saga of city-county clashes – feature – 71 12 06 # c.49.5 # c.49.66

1971 12 07
Problems of where to put extra shops – reflections on last eight years – 71 12 07, 71 12 08, 71 12 09, 71 12 10b # c.27.2 # c.49.65 # c.49.4
Mackay plans to extend engineering factory and build more shops and offices on East Road blocked – 71 12 07a # c.27 # c.49.4 # c.49.66
King' Hedges School water tower erected – 71 12 07b

1971 12 08
Hovertrain makes first full-scale test run – 71 12 08a, 71 12 10

1971 12 10
Sidney Street and Bridge Street townscape analysis report – 71 12 10a # c.61

1971 12 17
Clare College to offer places to 36 girl undergraduates – 71 12 17 # c.36.98
Townscape Analysis report acclaimed – 71 12 17a

1971 12 22
Prime, Cambridge building firm started more than 150 years ago cease trading, main yard at Adam & Eve Street – 71 12 22 # c.23

1971 12 23
Ernest Blows joined CEN in 1914 when circulation was 7,000 copies delivered by horse and cart; now sells move than 51,000 with four editions covering 1,500 square miles – 71 12 23 # c.04

1971 12 24
Lion Yard plans approved by Government – 71 12 24 # c.49.4 # c.49.672323

Cambridgeshire Scrapbook 1972 January to April, by Mike Petty

I started to compile the Looking Back column in the Cambridge Evening News with the issues of March 1947. I read through issues of the paper listed potential stories and transcribed one for each day. I have copies of the articles to March

1972 Cambridge Evening News
I have copies of the articles to March

January 1972 CEN

1972 01 07
Star Brewery to cease brewing this year – illustrated feature – 72 01 07 & a b # c.27.41

1972 01 12
Regal Cinema reopens as ABC 1 & 2 twin cinemas – illustrated feature – 72 01 12 # c.76.9

1972 01 13
Cambridge Consultants sold to American Arthur D. Little organisation – 72 01 13 & a # c.27.1

1972 01 14
Old Fire Engine House, Ely – illustrated feature – 72 01 14
Robert Knight's memories of a mail coach driver before WWI between West Wratting and Cambridge 72 01 14a # c.26.42 # c.27.7

1972 01 18
Norwich Union building, corner St Andrew's Street and Downing Street – history – 72 01 18 & a b # c.44.6

1972 01 28
Roman Cambridge may be lost – dereliction of Shelley Row, Mount Pleasant area – feature – 72 01 28 #

February 1972 CEN

Cambridge University members of the National union of Public Employees are planning a large-scale membership drive in the university. Their Secretary said today that a claim by the union for a £20 basic weekly wage for manual & ancillary staff in universities would not apply to Cambridge workers. (Meanwhile Melbourn Discount Warehouse offered a Hotpoint twin-tub washing machine for £108 - £12 less than recommended price - but more than five times their weekly wage)

"The visual quality of New Square is totally spoiled at present by its use as a car park. When new multi-storey car parks are built in the Fitzroy-Burleigh area however the square will be returned to grass and will once again be a valuable part of the Cambridge townscape"

A four-bedroomed detached house at 35 Luard Road, Cambridge was sold for £23,000 at an auction sale in the city. The house, built in 1937, includes three-quarters of an acre of gardens with 36 bearing peach trees.

1972 02 01

Councillor Gough-Goodman dines in Petty Cury as no entry experiment starts – 72 02 01, 01a # c.44.6 # c.49.62

1972 02 02
Downing Street veterinary surgery used by Runciman, built as part of former Bird Bolt Hotel, demolished – photo – 72 02 02 # B.Dow.K72

1972 02 04
Jack Overhill confessions of barmy winter bather at Sheep's Green – 72 02 04 # c.38 : swimming

1972 02 07
Undergraduate sit-in at Old Schools caused damage, forced way through doors into the Squire Law Library; carpet in Combination Room burned by cigarettes – 72 02 07 # c.36.93

1972 02 10
Cambridge News starts installs new conveyor system to speed packing time – 72 02 10b
Sheeps Green bathing place – photo showing Henry Hardy, custodian – 72 02 10a

1972 02 17
Cambridge News juggles with power cuts to get the paper out – describes printing process etc – 72 02 17 # c.04

1972 02 23
Jack Overhill recalls fetching coal from Beale's coalyard using handcart borrowed from Ayres the wheelwright in Bentink Street – 72 02 23

1972 02 26
Production of the noses of the Concorde supersonic airliner, which was planned to be in Cambridge, has been taken away by the British Aircraft Corporation. All the research and development work on the nose has been done by Marshall's at Cambridge airport. The senior shop steward is to see the Cambridge MP, Mr David Lane to try to get the decision reversed

1972 02 29
Petty Cury reopens after experiment week of closure, firms concerned about delivery problems – 72 02 29

March 1972 CEN

Note: I started my 'Looking Back' column in March 1997. I listed potential stories and summarised one for each day

1972 03 01
The Cambridge M.P., Mr David Lane yesterday waived aside professional traffic statistics and asked those at the by-pass inquiry to use their eyes and their common sense. In a statement to the three-week old inquiry Mr Lane gave his whole-hearted support to both the proposed western and northern bypasses and claimed to have the backing of most people in Cambridge. A woman living in Elizabeth Way wrote "On this bend to which the big lorries cruise and then rev up hard out of it it is one frightful nightmare and the fumes are really killing". A man living in Chesterton Road wrote: "Life is now intolerable and the only acceptable answer is an alternative route by-passing the city altogether" In supporting the northern bypass Mr Lane said disturbance to Girton village must be minimised.

Full power in a few days, p1
Ratepayers 16½p rate, p1
Cambridge Scientific Instrument Company cut staff, p11

Cambridge News backs local radio, p15
Power cuts rota unfair to Ely, p13

1972 03 02
Power cuts go, p1
Try for derelict land for car park, p9
Buchanan plans, 200 houses must go, p11
Elizabeth Way noise plan rejected, p12

1973 03 03
RAF Oakington to shut 1975
Parker's Piece space, p5
Addenbrooke's Hospital no cash, p17
West Suffolk highway officials are considering what went wrong when a £30,000 road improvment scheme to speed traffic at Newmarket's busiest junction caused chaos and confusion when it was tried out this week. Irate motorists complained to police as traffic piled up on all roads leading to the junction on Tuesday night and yesterday a fire engine called to a chimney fire had to take an alternative route to avoid an early-morning snarl-up. Under the scheme a system of traffic lights is to replace the Clock Tower roundabout. But less than 24 hours after the new system was marked out kerb stones & traffic diverted along a new road between Exeter Road and Fordham Road it was abandoned, p22

1972 03 04
Residents at Over have been saved a 1/2p [0.5 pence] rate rise through the efforts of the village's Young Wives Club disclosed the chairman of the Over Parish Council, Mr Albert Barker. He said the Over Young Wives Club had bought a children's slide for the village from their fund raising activities. "They have saved not only the young people but the old age pensioners as well, in fact all the villagers a 1/2p rate. It is a very worthy effort". The £150 slide is to be erected on the recreation ground. About 1,250 residents of Over will benefit from the fund raising activities of the Young Wives Club, p11

Undergraduates at Downing College today continued a 24-hour occupation of the dining hall despite a warning that violent protest could close the college for the rest of this term. They are protesting against the expulsion of two undergraduates and the rustication of a third for their part in sending an obscene leaflet to Downing college dons and undergraduates. A supported by a march last night by more than 500 students blocked Regent Street for more than an hour, with demonstrators seated in the road outside the college, 72 03 04 p11

Where will Frost saga finish, p5
Steeple Morden school capacity to double, p7
City traffic intolerable, p9

1972 03 06
A Burwell landmark, one of the two 180 foot high chimneys at the disused brickworks was demolished on Saturday – but only after two earlier bids failed. The first two attempts left the chimney standing on a section of its base measuring only three feet by 18 inches. A final explosion with one-and-a-half pounds of blasting gelatine was needed to send the chimney crashing. The operation was part of a plan to clear the former Burwell Brick Company which ceased production last autumn. The brick company folded s they were no longer making money due to a shrinking order book, old plant and high costs. The firm were sold by their parent company, Ibstock Brick & Tile Company to Ruane Developments who plan to turn the 40-acre site into a rubbish dump, p10

First computer-designed –welds, St Ives, p6

1972 03 07

Cambridge's Civic Restaurant, one of the last in the country, will be closed on March 30 after 30 years of service stretching back to the days of British Restaurants The old Post Office building, where it is situated, is to be demolished to make way for the next stage of the Lion Yard development. The restaurant which for several years has served an average of 1,000 lunches a day has been there since 1947. Before then its previous home since 1942 had been the the Pitt Club in Jesus Lane. It was then that it was known as a British restaurant, one of the thousands set up by the Government throughout the country to provide a communal feeding service during the war years, p5

Lion Yard redevelopment starts soon, p5

1972 03 08
Papworth youth club, p4
Coton reservoir nearly complete, p6
Addenbrooke's Hospital computer blood tests
Heart of Ely plan
New Street Residents Association plan Prospect Row

1972 03 09
Student trial row over police, p1
Newmarket traffic plan reconsidered, p14

1972 03 10
Sainsburys are planning a major supermarket development on a four-acre site at the corner of Coldham's Lane and Brooks Road, Cambridge. The group seeks either to build a supermarket with a petrol filling station, four shops and parking for 355 cars, or a supermarket with four shops and space for 390 cars. Sainsburys, whose city centre supermarket is expected to open in July, describe their new proposed development as a "district shopping facility". "We believe that edge of town developments are the thing of the future" said a company spokesman. "Cambridge needs two Sainsburys, one to serve the centre needs and one to serve the district shopper. This one must have plenty of parking. We would sub-let the shops and filling station and the parking development would serve adequately the whole development", p8

Villagers at Great Gransden voted to put 1p on their rates for a year to raise £174 towards electrifying their church clock, which is one of the oldest working clocks in the country. Some of them gasped when they heard at the annual parish meeting that the total cost of repairing the clock and electrifying the winding mechanism would be £918. But they relaxed a little when they were told that there was a good chance that most of the money would be found by the Pilgrim Trust. The clock, which was made around 1680, has an extremely rare mechanism and its chimes play six different tunes. The clock was last repaired in 1931. Someone has had to climb the spiral staircase every day for 282 years to wind the clock. 56-year-old Mr Sonny Sherman does it at the moment, but the parochial church council doubt if they will be able to find anybody to take over the job if Mr Sherman has to give it up. 72 03 10

Proctor injured in uproar, p1
CEN to tender for radio, p1

1972 03 11
The former Ministry of Housing and Local Government simultaneously agreed to the building of one of the world's biggest radio telescopes near Cambridge and the routing of a major road straight through it, the inquiry (into the Western bypass) heard yesterday. Professor Sir Martin Ryle said in 1966 an application for a grant to build a 5 km radio telescope along the line of the old Bletchley to Cambridge railway at Lord's Bridge and extend it as far as the bridge over the River Cam was being discussed. A grant of more than £2 million was made for the telescope. Later it was learned that discussions had led to a route for the Cambridge Western bypass which passed through the line of telescopes. As a result the size of the telescope had to be reduced to 4.6 km with a considerable loss of power and the instrument was site half-a-mile further west. In 1970 it was announced that the by-pass was to be built as a motorway. Then it became known that radar devices were being developed for long-distance vehicles to prevent multiple motorway crashes. It seems likely that some of these devices will be introduced during the next five years. # c.36.9

Observatory and road plan mix-up, p9

1972 03 13
Milk - 1 pt (silver top) 5½ p Bread - large medium sliced 0.10; butter 1/2 lb Lurpak 15½ p Margarine - 1/2 lb Stork 6p Coffee - 8oz Nescafe 50½p Tea - 1/4 lb Typhoo 8½ p Whisky - 26 3/4 oz Johnnie Walker £2.65 Cigarettes - 20 Woodbine plain 26p Petrol - 1 gall BP 4-star 36p Newspaper - Cambridge Evening News – 3p. Car Park - multi-storey Park Street, up to 2 hours 7p

Oliver Rix M.D. resigns, p6

1970 03 14
Histon house prices, p6
Simca 1000 special car, p8
Decay of villages attributable to farm decline, p10
Marathon light switch-on almost complete, p11

1972 03 15
A group of educationalists today unveiled detailed proposals for a community radio in Cambridge. If the trust get a licence they will cover everything from university talks to darts matches. They make it clear that they do not want a station which resorts to excessive pop music, peak listening periods would be devoted to local news, light entertainment and pop music. From 5pm to 6.30 pm there would be a children's programme followed by news. The late night slot from 11pm to 1 am would be aimed at the University age group with a programme on the lines of the old television favourite "That was the week that was" # c.27.8

Students want proctor disciplined, p14

1972 03 16
Grantchester fight bypass inquiry, p13

1972 03 17
It is known that William the Conqueror launched a full-scale against Hereward. But did he attack through the Aldreth causeway or along another causeway from the direction of Stuntney and much nearer Ely. Now Dr R.C. Smail, Fellow of Sidney Sussex college and his son Richard a Perse school pupil will be arguing against Reg Holmes, a noted Ely historian and Charles Bester, parish clerk of Haddenham. The chair to be taken by J.R. Ravensdale lecturer at Homerton and another local historian. (And it was organised by a young Mike Petty!; just for the record the audience voted in favour of Aldreth)

Cambridge Instrument Company to move from Chesterton Road, p12
How hard to get dentist?, p15

1972 03 18
Cambridge voted a big Yes to the permanent closure of Petty Cury in a survey. The results published today show that 92.1 per cent agreed that the closure had added to the convenience of shoppers. There was also overwhelming feeling that the experiment should be tried on other roads. The most common comment was "Close the whole Market Square to traffic"

Les Waters joins police degree squad, p10

1972 03 20

Victoria road, Cambridge, is a narrow one with even narrower pavements barely wide enough for one person. But this road is used unceasingly day and night by heavy traffic. This is a confounded nuisance because of the noise and vibration and pollution caused to the unfortunate people who live there and use the road. The blast from these high-powered lorries driving at speed along the road means old and weaker people are literally blown aside by the blast. (Letter)

1972 03 20
Most of the people who will be displaced by the Burleigh Street-Fitzroy Street redevelopment (Cambridge) want to be rehoused in the same area according to a report. Counc. Christopher Bradford claimed that the land was bought by the city council for "chickenfeed" ten years ago and is now worth £65,000. The council paid only £200 to £300 development value for some of the houses and perhaps £2,000 for some of the others

1972 03 21
Labgear move house – pic, p10
Huntingdon shopligting, p11
Local radio concerp, p12
Shortage of homes for sale, city allow engaged on list, p14
Cambridge fight Peterborough for supremacy in local government review, p14
Whaddon pioneer bus Royston, p17

1972 03 22
New Lion Yard car park takes shape, pic, p10
RAF Debden to close, p11
BBC order Pye TVT transmitters
Comprehensive schools opposition – Thatcher, p15
New signals Milton Road / Gilbert Road, p16
Censors consider Clockwork Orange, p19

1972 03 23
Petty Cury trial ban backed, p1

1972 03 24
It was "eyes down" for the first time last night in Cambridge's new £10,000 bingo hall which will offer enthusiasts an almost non-stop programme throughout afternoons and evenings six days a week. The bingo hall which can accommodate nearly 1,000 players at a single sitting, is in the converted former Central Cinema in Hobson Street # c.76.9 # BINGO

King Len of Reach article, p4
Cherry Hinton pedestrian crossing, p35
Rose Crescent traffic ban & Quayside, p37

1972 03 25
Three separate lines for the proposed Huntingdon by-pass were put forward yesterday at the re-opened by-pass inquiry. The official line proposed by the Department of the Environment would take the traffic along a north-south route past the town. This is being opposed by the county's M.P., Sir David Renton, who favours an East-West line. But yesterday's surprise was a third proposal put forward by a Hemingford Abbots man which would incorporate the town's by-pass in a major route between Ipswich and the M1. He said in the next 10 years the increase of traffic with East Coast ports would boost traffic through Huntingdon to such a degree that a second by-pass could prove necessary if the current north-south line is adopted

Cherry Man plea for life, p6

1972 03 27

The site of the old Woolpack Inn, the 200-year-old pub at the corner of Market Street and Newnham Streets Ely, has been bought by a Northern development company. Work is to start soon on building a shop and offices. The pub was closed nearly 3 years ago. It was knocked down last year

Huntingdonshire subsidised milk scheme fails, p7
Cambridge salutes RAF Oakington, p8
Pye profits, p14
St Neots one-way traffic, p18

1972 03 28
Some parts of central Huntingdon could be turned into piles of rubble in five years unless the pace of demolition work in clearance areas is changed. The Council's Labour Mayor-elect, Coun. Vic Howell attacked a move to class an area in Castle Hill as a clearance area. "In four or five years all we're going to have left is rows of piles of rubble in this part of town. Let’s make no mistake the piles of rubble will lay there for years" he said

Gay Cambridge appeal to Thatcher, p9
Stapleford plagued by little horrors, p10

1972 03 29
Girton College was warned yesterday that without the Cambridge by-passes the road outside their front gate would be "a hell on earth" within the next 20 years. The County Surveyor said it was estimated that by 1990 the road would have to carry the equivalent of more than 50,000 cards a day - well over twice its present load. It would necessitate the provision of dual three-lane carriageways and this would mean the demolition of many of the properties fronting the road

Byepasses Royston, Soham & Chatteris preliminary approval, p3
Linton bypass fight improve safety, p8
Budgens to take over Adlkins, p21
Bobby Moore not take factory Huntingdon, p15

1972 03 30
Old tank training ground, Milto Road for gypsies?, 9
Civic Restaurant shuts, p22 # c.27.47

April 1972 CEN

1972 04 01
Couples queue for houses, p1
Sewage for more rural areas, p11
Civic closes, Mayor cuppa pic, p16 # c.27.47

1972 04 03
Addicts set poser Addenbrooke's Hospital, p5
Communists to fight, p12
New use Newmarket Doric cinema, p13

1972 04 04
Country life to save money, p4
No lighting please, p7
Sawston sewer, p7
Gupsy camp plan, p9
Histon suburbia, p11
Hells Angels, p12

1972 04 05
Radio Cambridgeshire, p12

1972 04 06
Being a loyal supporter of Cambridge United I must say how disgusted I was with their performance against Bury. Remember Cambridge United were elected to the Football League because they were considered worthy of league status. Now after only two seasons we are told the club are £2,000 in debt and cannot afford new players. But they are able to afford an assistant manager, trainer, coach etc - men who do not play but cost a lot of money. A player-assistant manager like Alan Gilzean would attract the crowds. Gates are 2,000 down, equivalent to £1,300 in a season - more than enough to play the wages of a few star men Letter from P.J. Smith)

Shooting game losing tweeds image, p7
Apple crop, p7
Workmen destroy rare barge, p14

1972 04 07
Cambridge soft touch for drunks, p1
Plans to promote Ely, p18
64-bed hotel at Bar Hill, p22
Milton gipsy [ark, p24

1972 04 08
Mildenhall parochial church council got a shock when they diligently followed their Archdeacon's advice to see their church was adequately insured. For the 13th-century church which has a unique "angel roof" was valued at a quarter of a million pounds with an annual premium of £620 to pay - which they cannot afford. The Vicar of Mildenhall, the Rev Frank Bosley said "It was a tremendous shock to us". He said the diocesan quota was £625 a year and amounts were paid for cleaning and heating the church as well as to the curate and vicar. The vicar is still trying to raise £5,000 to complete a £12,000 roof repair appeal, p11

Milton library site, p6
Barretts shop at Royston closes, p9
Pye, Newmarket, p9
David Lane promotion, p10

1972 04 10
The last pint was pulled in the "George and Dragon" in Thompson's Lane, Cambridge, last night. The pub, on the corner of Jesus Green by the river is to come down to make way for a modern pub-restaurant. Although the pub, more than 100 years old and owned by St John's College was a Tolly House its successor, to be called The Dragonfly, will be a joint venture. Undergraduates and many University organisations have used the George and Dragon, once known as the Spade and Becket. The outgoing hosts, Jack and Wynn Asplin, take over the Great Northern Hotel by the Station Road roundabout, p10

1972 04 11
Free milk and hang the consequences. That was the decision reached by Haverhill Urban Council last night after four months of soul-searching on the free school milk issue. Government legislation last year stopped free milk in schools for children over seven. Despite pleas to wait for a High Court ruling members voted to give milk to seven and eight-year-olds. The council's clerk asked members to await the High Court verdict on the legality of councils paying for milk themselves, any councillor who voted against a motion that was subsequently found to be illegal was not liable to be surcharged as a result of the decision. Coun. Hartley replied "We may be a poor authority in terms of money but we are rich in our children"

Bypass, p11
Histon allotments, p12
Market Square pedestrianisation, p13

1972 04 12
Hundreds of seagulls are leaving their mark on Cherry Hinton. But the people who live there are not impressed and have asked Cambridge councillors to start a clean-up campaign in the area. The seagulls live on the refuse tip at Coldham's Lane where the pickings are good. But they do not confine their activities to the waste ground and have started to make themselves felt on the residents. And this has upset the housewives who have told the councillors that they prefer their white washing to stay that way. Some residents have referred these problems dropped on them unexpectedly from the heights to the council's Conservative leader, Ald Stanley Bowles. Today he admitted "I just don't know what we can do about the problem. Perhaps we should issue the seagulls with nappies"

Go-slow threat trains, p1
Comberton Youth Centre, p4
Cambridge Secretatial Services, p10
Cherry Hinton cattle market plan, p13
Civic closure, p15

1972 04 13
Linkline starts, p9
Millington Road house price, p16

1972 04 14
The Green Man at Grantchester calls itself proudly, if obscurely, a Bilstafayre Restaurant and expresses the hope on a little printed card that its proporietors have created the right atmosphere for you to enjoy. On a Saturday evening the atmosphere is controlled more definitely by the patrons and can get pretty thick. The clientele is on the trendy side - leather thongs and see-through dresses. There is a good selection of meats which you debate in the bar over a sherry or gin and tonic (39p). We chose Prawn cocktail (35p), Entrecote steak au poivre (1.20) with tossed salad (15p). The trifle (20p) was distinctly dry and a concoction of pears and meringue (20p) was rather ordinary. At 6.75 for two it is not cheap, p9

Local government in two years, p18
Pye mark 25th year, p20

1972 04 15
Women's Lib is fighting a losing battle. Though they are trumpeting the call for greater freedom for women, modern pressures are making it more difficult for women to break free from domestic chores. So said Dr Edward Leach, social anthropologist at King's College, Cambridge. With more use of contraceptives families could be created at will. This meant the old way of having large families spread over the years with older daughters helping at home with the babies was disappearing. "Daughters are now more in the nature of parasites. They cannot really help at home. Again, the modern woman is more tied to he home" said Dr Leach, p10

Mr Alexander Dale, of The Old House, Histon, the noted collector of macabre historical relics, has died. He was 63. His "black museum" contained the last gallows ever used in public execution at Cambridge, assorted bloodstained wrist crushers and torture instruments from the Bastille. Most of the exhibits were sold at public auctions in Cambridge during 1970 when Dr Dale wanted the space at his home which the museum was occupying, p10

Girls High School, p9
Scout award, p9

1972 04 17
In due course all Cambridge colleges will be co-residential, according to a senior University tutor. So far Churchill, Kings and Clare have agreed to open their doors to women but there was little likelihood of any more colleges following suit at present. A student from St Catharine's college said "They would never think of it at my college. The reason is basically because we have a large proportion of the public school type on the governing body and they feel their role is to promote the college in the public school image", p11

Population stats, p6
Zanzibar news, p6
Drugs problem, p9

1972 04 18
The Conservative chairman of the Cambridgeshire Planning Committee, Tony Cornell, has told the Government that local councils should be allowed to buy land compulsorily unless land prices come down quickly. The cheapest houses in Cambridge and county will cost £9,000. And only one fifth of the young couples who want their own home will be able to afford one. What land is coming on the market now is changing hands at £30,000 - £40,000 an acre and rising

Laundress Green scutpture, p10
Hauxton & bypass, p11

1972 04 19
MP's two jobs, p15
Large stores in Kite, p16
St Neots bypass, p18

1972 04 20
The Dorothy in Cambridge has been sold. A new role for the city's best-known catering and dancing centre has not been decided by the new owners, but may include a "quality" department store. The Dorothy's present owners, G.P. Hawkins ltd said that parking restrictions have hit the firm's business. The Dorothy contains a supermarket, restaurant, large ballroom and other rooms used by many organisations for official functions, p10 # c.27.47

Can you afford to run a car, pix

1972 04 21
Shopping in Cambridge in the lunch hour is becoming a nightmare. Many small local shops have been squeezed out of business. At the same time 'modernisation' and self-service hare becoming the rule almost everywhere for ordinary frequently-bought items. The attitude seems to be 'If we have got it, and you can find it, and you don't mind queuing to pay for it, you can buy it'. Many items have to be weighed and measured in one place and paid for in another. Whose time is being saved? - letter from Mrs A. Hull, p22

The traffic lights at the Trumpington Road – Lensfield Road -Fen Causeway junction in Cambridge are expected to be working again this weekend. Some new lights control equipment which went wrong before it was installed last week has been returned from the makers. The City council had intended to install the equipment in a bid to cut delays at the junction. Traffic experts consider that the system which was working until last week gave preference to "minority groups" and caused hold-ups for most other road users. There had been no reports of accidents so far on the corner but the City Surveyor, Geoffrey Cresswell, feared that motorists might get used having no lights at the junction and be tempted to take chances, p28

Dr Addenbrooke would gasp, p14
Foxton cottage up 66 percent, p18

Rampton coaches, p20

1974 04 22
Newmarket hotel, p9
Let engaged on waiting list, p10

1972 04 24
Two middle-aged women who jumped from a first-floor window into the Garden House hotel's back gardens to escape the fire were later found by a Cambridge milkman wandering along Fen Causeway in their nightclothes. A friend said "The women looked like refugees with smoke-blackened hands and faces. They had walked across Coe Fen. The milkman stopped his float and asked if he could help them". Miss Sarah Wilhelm from Ohio said she was woken by a burning smell. She saw the room starting to fill up with smoke and saw the paint on the inside of the door turning brown. She jumped from the window and the other lady followed, p1 # c.27.45

1972 04 25
City's airlink, p8
Girton bypass, p14

1972 04 26
The planning go-ahead has been given for the re-development of the old Chivers warehouse site in George Street, Huntingdon. It is the largest single industrial site in the town. The agents revealed it was hoped to attract one major industrial concern to take over the entire six and a half acre site. The offices to be housed in a modern block will front George Street and will be set back from the road in line with the present post office and alms houses. The property was sold at the beginning of the year for an undisclosed five-figure sum and the re-development is eventually expected to generate many job opportunities in the town, p12
Pye colour tv, p13
City v county on planning, p15
Local Government reorganisation, p17

1972 04 27
Housing policy 'silence', p9
University pay rise, p10
Trumpington hotel, p16
Local government reorganisation, p18

1972 04 28
Full central heating is to be installed after all in 44 family homes to be built as part of a £332,000 development in Brooks Road, Cambridge. The Housing Committee had earlier decided on only part central heating to cut costs. Coun David Keate said "Let us pitch our standards a little bit ahead for once and prepare for the future when all houses which do not have full central heating will almost certainly have to be altered to install it" , p24

Sealed without kiss, p8
Lensfield Road lights, p28

1972 04 29
Common Market lorry drivers on a trans-European trip to Britain would probably bring their girlfriends along with them, the Cambridge By-pass inquiry heard yesterday. And if their route passed close to the famous city of Cambridge they would want to call in and see the sights, said the chairman of Hardwick Parish Council. The inquiry now holds the record for the longest public inquiry into a road scheme ever held in Britain. On Tuesday it will be 11 weeks since it began, p9
Victoria Road traffic, p10

May 1972 CEN

1972 05 01
Altogether 715 people completed the 28-mile Cambridge Oxfam Walk on Saturday ... including one 79-year-old, Dr A.E. Clark-Kennedy, A Fellow of Corpus Christi College. He has walked in several Oxfam walks and has always completed the course, P11

Grass track racing, Bourn, p8
Shire Hall gazumpers, p18

1972 05 02
The first proper May Day march in Cambridge for many years collected together most of the action and pressure groups in the city on what is traditionally the workers day worldwide. As they marched through the city streets in the thick of the lunchtime crowds, passers-by tried to grab posters that were being carried. Amongst the marchers were the Anti-Interment League, Women's Lib, the Anti-Common Market Action Committee, the National Federation of Old Age Pensioners Association, who had to have a breather in the middle of the march, the Cambridge Tenants' Association and the Stepping through the doors of the Rock Hotel, Cambridge last night was like stepping back in time. Teddy boys were propping up the bar, Jerry Lee Lewis was rock'n'rolling on the turntable and other teds were jiving around the floor. But these were not the teds who slashed cinema seats and slouched around in the late 50's. The velvet drapes were there along with drainpipe trousers, bootlace ties, frilly shirts and hair cream. But the years had mellowed the people wearing them. The occasion was the first meeting of the Cambridge Rock'n'Roll Club. One ted said "It's nice to remember the good old days" 72 05 02

Association of Teachers in Technical Institutions
Madinglet best-kept village, p11

1972 05 03
Teddy boys, p1
Barges, p7
Hovertrain, p12

1972 05 04
Council forcing out business, p10
All clear for runway extension, p12
Resuced bellows on show, p11
Whitehall refuse Bridge Street offices, p17

1972 05 05
Sainsbury's "edge of town" shopping scheme for Coldham's Lane has been rejected by Cambridge City Council's Planning Committee because it does not conform with their policy. The "edge of town" policy would have been fully exploited in Cambridge for the first time. The Planning Committee refused the scheme because the land is zoned for industrial use, p18

Borough council elections, p1
Guilden Morden school, p15

1972 05 06
New plans for office block development on the corner of Bridge Street and Round Church Street, Cambridge, are likely to be submitted soon, said developers, the Scottish Mutual Assurance Society. The Department of the Environment's refusal of the previous plans was announced yesterday, after a seven-year wrangle between developers, planners, and preservationists which culminated in a public inquiry last December. One of the crucial points of the first scheme was the future of number 10 Bridge Street on the corner which was to have been demolished. Objectors feared this would enable city planners to push back the building line in Round Church Street and set a radical precedent that would ruin the whole street, p9

1972 05 08
Attempting suicide is becoming an epidemic disease and soon there won't be many sane people left, the Professor of Medicine at Cambridge University said last night. "The pattern of illness has changed practically over the last 10 years through the strain and pressure of life. In 20 years' time there won't be very any sane people around", he said. "It is the expansion of affluence which is getting to the point where it is interfering with the human brain". A man often went on strike not because he wanted more money but because other people were doing better than he was, p11

More than 100 former pupils of Papworth Everard Primary School took a stroll down Memory Lane on Saturday when they met their old headmistress, Mrs Muriel Dykes. And there were gasps of amusement or horror as the visitors, who all went to the school between 1922 and 1946, caught sight of photographs of boys in "short" trousers reaching below their knees who are now respectable-suited businessmen and shy little girls with smocks and ringlets who are now married women. Mrs Dykes came to the village school as head in 1922, when she was 28, and retired in 1946. She said "The whole village was started for soldiers from the First World War who were suffering from Tuberculosis. So many of them were townsmen, coming from sophisticated places to a place where water wasn't laid on, or electric light. They were disgusted that their children should have to go to a village school" 72 05 08

Land for 2,700 homes, p13

1972 05 09
Leading groups from the world of Soul, Beat and Pop are to be booked for a new season of entertainment at the Howard Mallett Youth Club, built at a cost of £60,000, four years ago as a "drop-in" club for youngsters in the city. Discotecheque equipment costing £200 is also being installed for a new programme of Sunday discos. "We intend to get back our crowds of 200 for the discos and 500 for the dances" said the warden. Nearly half the area of the club is devoted to the coffee and snack bar and lounges. "There is no sort of membership. Anyone over 17 can drop in to meet friends and talk. The admission is 5p." p5

A604 Fenstanton, p11

1972 05 10
Over church bells, p8
Milton leisure park, p12
Joe Bugner, p22

1972 05 11
Midsummer Fair fees, p8
Archaeology report, p8
"Berlin wall" road, p9
Viscountess Bury, p18

1972 05 12
Robinson and Gimbert, the Cambridge builders with reputation for high class work have been taken over by one of the "big boys" of British home building. From next week they will be trading under the direction of T & E Homes ltd of Reigate. The Cambridge firm who started in Guildhall Street 25 years ago and moved to Victoria Road six years ago have 60 full time employees. Robinson and Gimbert currently have schemes on the go at Oakington and Stapleford, and recently completed one at Waterbeach. They build about 50 houses a year, p20

Haverhill housing, p26

1972 05 13
It's whatever turns you on, man, and for 3,000 people who gathered at Parkers Piece last night the message was : "If you're gonna turn on, turn on to Jesus". The "drop your dope" call came from 31-year-old Arthur Blessitt, the self-styled leader of the Jesus People movement in America. His message was simple: "Go, Go, Go with Jesus" -and his technique was the fast-talking hard sell of detergent commercials. Mr Blessitt became known in Britain after a mammoth nation-wide walk and his followers grew from a handful to many thousands, p7

1972 05 15
The story-book world of Bambi the baby deer came to Gilbert Road, Cambridge, yesterday when Mr Roy Wing looked over his garden fence. He couldn't believe his eyes. A small, brown, bright-eyed young deer was sitting calmly among the foliage in his neighbour's garden at 142 Gilbert Road in the middle of suburban Cambridge, many miles from the known haunts of deer, p11

Victoria Road crossing, p9

1972 05 16
Newmarket rail crossing, p12

1972 05 17
Revolution swept quietly through the Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge when for the first time a modern musician accompanied the preview of an exhibition by a contemporary artist. The folk-singer, Donovan, played his guitar and sang to the predominately-young audience who had come to view the opening of a showing of sculptures by David Wynne. Sitting cross-legged on a lime-green cushion and flanked by the odd Murillo depicting a biblical scene, Donovan's presence was clearly not part of the Fitzwilliam tradition. Donovan was one of the subjects whose heads were depicted in bronze in the exhibition, p16

1972 05 18
Insignificant Hardwick, a ribbon development west of Cambridge has become "millionaires' row" with the sale of land destined for a huge new housing estate. A building firm have bought 84 acres from 51 landowners for close on £1 million. The 480 strong village was said by many to be "dying " through lack of interest and development. In 1935 the land was bought by the philanthropist Mr William Game. He had the idea of it becoming a "green dream" for Cockneys who wanted to quit London for the countryside. Many people who bought land there reared chickens but when the bottom fell out of the egg market in the mid-1950s most of the land fell into disuse, p18.

Stapleford land prices, p10
Peter Wright mayor, p17

1972 05 19
A Cambridge building which has had a richly varied history enters yet another era of its life when Eastern Electricity's enlarged shop opens at 4 Market Hill on Monday. At different stages of its history the Market Hill building has been a cinema - oldies of the "penny-gas" days of the early twenties before the talkies were projected on to the wall of what is now a sub-station behind the shop - and a tearoom frequented by undergraduates, who took their 1920's tea and muffins in the panelled room upstairs, p43

1972 05 19
Faith, Hope and Charity will never be quite the same again if the Government go ahead with their proposed motorway interchange at Girton. Faith, Hope and Charity are the names of three fields on the Cambridge University Farm - and their future is in some doubt because they lie at the exact spot where the city's Northern and Western bypasses are due to meet up with the A604. Although the university farm has some picturesque names - Youngman's Pasture, Pheasant Meadow and Stickfast - it is an experimental unit rather than a pure agricultural investment

The rapid growth of Burwell - which has almost doubled in population in 10 years - may have to be slowed down to allow public services to catch up. The village which now has a population of more than 5,000, needs improved sewerage facilities to cope with the new homes and trade waste from a large factory, p19

Upware pit to be nature reserve, p19

1972 05 20
Mount Pleasant Roman link, p6
Burwell growth, p9
Jack Overhill article, p6

1972 05 22
Travis & Arnold profits, p9

1972 05 23
Cambridgeshire people are not "prison-minded" and they display a certain apathy towards crime, claimed Cambridge's Senior Probation Officer, Mr William Gaskell, last night. The reason was that the county had no prisons. Yet the effects of crime were very much with us. "We have people from this county in 25 different prisons and borstals in counties in East Anglia and South East England", p11

McArthur microscope, p8
Newsells Park sale, p11

1972 05 24
Two homeless, unsupported mothers have taken over a house in Milton Road, Cambridge, as squatters and intend to make it their home. They expect to be joined by four more mothers and another nine children. The mothers, who refused to give their names, are members of a group who call themselves the Cambridge Squatters, formed only a week ago. They want to bring greater recognition to the social problems of unsupported mothers, p12

City lose sewers, p19

1972 05 25
ABC Taxis of Cambridge, have taken over one of their biggest rivals, United Taxis Ltd, and now run one of the largest fleets of hire cars in the area. United were in the news two years ago when they decided to run all their cabs on petroleum gas which, they claimed, gave a considerable cost saving in spite of expensive conversions to the engines, p16

Newmarket bypass, p21

1972 05 26
Brick shortage, p16
Victoria Cinema plans, p27
Hardwick's new rich, p42
Burwell boom over, p45
Newmarket traffic lights, p46

1972 05 27

Hundreds of acres of root crops have been lost or badly damaged in the severe dust storms which swept Cambridgeshire fens yesterday. Farmers say it was the worst for 20 years. During the storm visibility was down to as little as five yards and trees were uprooted. Mr Fred Abbs, a manager of several farms totalling 1,000 acres at Swaffham Fen estimated today that he has lost more than 100 acres of carrots and sugar beet. Mr Abbs estimated the lost crops were worth about £2,000, p9

An unlovely and inhumane heap. That is how the "Architect's Journal" describes the £12 million second stage of New Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge now complete after six years of building. "One would have to go a long way to find such an unlovely and inhumane heap, which looks as if it was designed piecemeal by a team of untalented temporary assistants, p11

Cheap milk, p1

1972 05 29
Butchers want price rises, p1

1972 05 30
Sainsbury, who open a new supermarket on the Matthews site in the centre of Cambridge on August 1st, are to auction their old shop in Sidney Street. Property values in central Cambridge are soaring, agents talk confidently in top rental terms of £6 and more a square foot on prime sites. The closure of the Sidney Street premises is part of Sainsbury's policy to do away with service stores. The new shop is in standard supermarket style, p30

1972 05 31
A free parking bonus will be given to motorists using Cambridge's show-piece Lion Yard car park during its first weeks operation after the opening date on July 24 The city's Traffic and Parking Committee decided to cut parking charges by 5p during the working day for the first week, which means one hour's free parking during each parking period. If a motorist leaves his car at Lion Yard for one hour or less it will be completely free, p15

Fen blows, p13

1972 June CEN

1972 06 01
Sit in security, p1
Hemingford Grey house for sale, p11
Duck plague, p16

1972 06 02
Ex-United star dies in clinic, p1, p22
Lion Yard park free bonus, p18
Proctors feared pitched battle, p19

1972 06 03
Old Huntingdonshire road signs which have been obsolete for several years could be sold for more than £100 each. Ald George Earl said the four foot long signs, which contain the word Huntingdonshire and the old county crest could be quite valuable. Ald Donald Daking, a Peterborough auctioneer and surveyor, said "they should by all means make a nice little figure. You might get £25, but I doubt you will get three figures, p9

Jimmy Saville at Addenbrooke's Hospital, p11

1972 06 04
Water economy urgent, p11

Thrilling occasion for Mayoress, p5
King recalls undergrad days, p6
Cosmopolitan closing, p10 & 6th p8

1972 06 05
Petty Cury, Cambridge, was closed to all vehicle traffic today and handed back to pedestrians for the second time this year. It is likely to stay closed to traffic for at least two years and perhaps permanently. The same city centre street was closed to traffic for a month's experiment in February which was rated highly successful. The whole of the southern side of Petty Cury will be demolished in the next three months and a new Central Library will appear within the next three years

Garden House delay, p9

1972 06 06
It's not every road sweeper who goes to work in a taxi. But Mr Ernie Hatchelt, who works for St Neots Urban District Council goes in style every day. It all started three months ago when Mr Hatchelt's motor cycle broke down and he faced the problem of getting to work from Tempsford six miles away. Now he goes in a taxi every day to St Neots and clocks up £7 a week in fares each week. A road sweeper's basic pay is £17.90 a week but bonus takes it up to £19 gross, p13

Printing without inky fingers, p8
Sainsbury plan shops conference, p10
Pop record plan, p13

1972 06 07
Shocks behind kitchen doors, p15
Student kicked bulldog, p17

1972 06 07 c
"Costly and inadequate" bus services in Cambridge are stopping many teenagers from enjoying themselves in the evening. This is one of the findings of a special survey into youth activities carried out by the Cambridge Association for the Prevention of Drug Addiction. Transport formed an almost insurmountable problem. "Bus services were costly and inadequate; entertainment often had to be curtailed to all the last bus home to be caught. Outlying villages were even worse served, and as they were without entertainment the young people had become very discouraged". The Committee recommended the setting-up of a disco-coffee bar

1972 06 08
It will be Cambridge's feast of the year. At a cost of up to £33 a head, the 60 or more guests will be treated to the full flavour of haute cuisine. Turtle soup, lobsters and the very best wine. But this "men only" dinner at Christ's College on June 30th is not a junket for visiting royalty. It is a special "plug" for the Cambridge Sports Hall Appeal. The host will be a London restaurant proprietor. He is gambling that if you are prepared to spend up to £2,000 to feed 60 to 70 people you can expect to receive up to £10,000 back in donations to the appeal, p11

Two long-haired students from the Cambridgeshire College of Arts and Technology picked the wrong moment to walk into a Cambridge restaurant. It was about the time of day that the cafe's manageress had seen enough shoulder-length locks to last her a lifetime. And she refused to serve the students at The Whim in Trinity Street. The students claimed they were subjected to a stream of almost hysterical abuse and told they were dirty and disgusting. The manageresss said she had tried to be patient but found it difficult to run a business when customers filled up the restaurant for hours at a time having only paid 5p for a cup of tea 72 06 08

Jancis Harvey, p4
Denny Abbey will be open, p10

1972 06 09
The family firm of D. Mackay, Britannia Works, East Road, Cambridge, celebrate their 60th year jubilee this week. The Britannia Public house from which the works took its name has recently been demolished, and the houses which formed Britannia Place have long since disappeared, as has the Smith which stood in the public house yard. Many other landmarks have been swept away in the new Roadworks. It used to be said that by standing at the corner of East Road and Newmarket Road one would be sure to meet one's friends. Now it is difficult to see which is the corner, and the traffic roars past too fast for leisurely greetings, p27

1972 06 10
Fenstanton diversion, p7

1972 06 12
I have just had my first and last visit to Cambridge. I walked half-way round the city to find a toilet. I was directed to the one on the market. It stank so much I would not use it. Getting back to the market - it is a disgrace, with old clothes stalls which smelt and old vegetable leaves on the floor a danger to the public. There were about two decent stalls there and in the centre round the fountain were the drunks, a revolting sight - letter from visitor from Bexhill, Kent, p8

Unloving mother blamed for crime, p10
Pp festival message, p10

1972 06 13
Girton College now has more rooms for resident students than any other women's college in Oxford or Cambridge, claimed the Mistress, Professor Muriel Bradbrook yesterday. She was speaking at the official opening of Wolfson Court which adds 100 rooms to those available at the main college site. It was financed by an appeal including a £150,000 contribution from the Wolfson Foundation, p15

Mid Anglia industrial boom, p10
Police pay Garden House Riot claim, p13

1972 06 14
Cambridge's famous Magdalene Bridge is to be preserved, the Secretary for the Environment, Mr Peter Walker, has decided. His move follows last year's public inquiry into proposals by his Department to knock down and replace the 148-year-old bridge. Mr Walker has ruled that the bridge should be strengthened internally and that a temporary bridge should be provided alongside while work is going on, p18

Pensioners fight for £30, p12
Salvation Army men in streets, p19

1972 06 15
Pop group drummer rant

1972 06 16
People living in Norfolk Street and Gwydir Street made it clear at a meeting in Cambridge that they want some peace and quiet - and soon. They want to be able to park their cars free outside their own homes and are calling for rapid police action to enforce parking bans in the area. Half the 1,400 vehicles recorded during a 13-hour period were using the narrow roads in the area as a short cut between Mill Road and East Road, p26

High-speed runs are to begin next week at Earith for the hovertrain being developed by Tracked Hovercraft Ltd, the Ditton Walk, Cambridge, division of the National Research and Development Corporation. A more powerful motor has been fitted after a three-week overhaul of the research vehicle which has been constantly used since its first run last December, It is planned to reach 110 m.p.h. - the diver of a high- powered sports car would be hard pressed to achieve the same speed. Work is going on to finish the two-mile extension of the track which will eventually be 12 miles long when speed of 300 miles an hour should be possible, p20

Arbury adventure playground, p5
Senate calls for new Music School, p24

1972 06 19
Early in 1974 a new county will be born. Its name: Cambridgeshire. Instinctively, most Cambridge people will look to Cambridge as the county town. The largest and most important community in the new administrative area. Ask a Cambridge citizen about Peterborough and he may describe is as industrial, a little characterless and distinctly Midlandish. Oh yes, and it's due to take a few overspill Londoners ... The facts are somewhat different. In 15 year's time Peterborough may be almost twice as large as Cambridge, it will almost certainly have the largest representation on the county council and its industry and commerce may be looking towards Cambridge for new horizons, p11

1972 06 20
As President of the Cambridge Antiquarian Society, I am aware of the many calls for help received by the handfull of professional archaeologists in the city and county. A full-time professional archaeologist, appointed by the area authority, would be able to supervise and plan much of the work. Some authorities have already created such posts. There is an immense fund of goodwill in the present younger generation which needs to be channelled and encouraged. I write to plead with your readers to press their local representatives into an active realisation of their responsibilities. The problem is urgent - letter from Christopher Parish, Cambridge, p10

Cambridge missing in radio race, p13
Teacher hit by house prices, p13

1972 06 21
Car parking facilities at New Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge, have sparked a row between the National Union of Public Employees and the hospital administration. N.U.P.E. claim that while consultants can park on the doorstep, other staff are being pushed to the site's outskirts, p16

1972 06 22
Leys ‘Mrs Chips’, p4
Elizabeth Way jams, p8

1972 06 23
Six months of commercial disaster have brought new doubts about the future of Stansted Airport, scene of one of Britain's biggest and most bitter planning battles. Essex County Council have long made it clear that they want to see the airport shut down by the early 1980s. Their view is based on the Government's rejection of Stansted and subsequent choice of Foulness as the site for London's third airport. But recent events suggest Stansted could fade and die long before 1980. But is Stansted's future as an airport really that gloomy? In recent years the volume of traffic handled has grown enormously. Passenger figures have jumped from 13,991 in 1967-68 to more than half a million last year, p23

University signs wages pact, p24

1972 06 24
Labour councillors will ask the city council next week to build moderately priced houses - for sale to their tenants and private buyers - on land at Arbury Road, Cambridge, which the council plan to sell to property speculators. The six-acre site off Arbury Road - between St Laurence Junior School and the newly built multi-storey council flats - is now on offer to developers prepared to give a good price and willing to draw up a development scheme acceptable to city planners. Some property sources have suggested that the land could be worth £500,000 to the city council, p11

Owlestone Croft nurses home, p5
House prices rise, p10

1972 06 26
The City Council are to continue their campaign to eventually take control of 22 villages around Cambridge. When the city council put forward their take-over plan more than a year ago, it met with total opposition from all the villages concerned. The city council have on a number of occasions claimed that by taking an area around the city within a radius of roughly eight miles they would form an ideally sized 'district council' under the new local government shake-up, p13

'Miss Worl' opens fete, p13

1972 06 27
Although the war ended 27 years ago the little patch of Cambridge around Alexandra Street has a distinct 1940s look. In common with all the little alleyways off Petty Cury, Alexandra Street is in the throes of the Lion Yard re-development scheme. The old is being swept away by the demolition gangs to make way for the new and soon the whole face of the area will begin to change. The first phase of the project - the multi-storey car park - is due to open at the end of next week. Work on the second stage - the demolition of the southern side of Petty Cury and the building of shops and service roads on the Lion Yard - is already under way and is expected to take about two years. The third stage - the building of a large central library - will start soon after this, p17

Rotary jubilee, p5
Playbus sought, p4
Newsells Park Royston sale, p15
Cromwell Museum reopen, p15

1972 06 28
Loo dossier, p15

1972 06 29
A Mid-Anglia firm claim to have pocketed a world market with a new electronic calculator announced yesterday in London. Sinclair Radionics Ltd of St Ives Mill, who are mainly known for their hi-fi equipment, launched the Sinclair Executive calculator, which is smaller than a 5p bar of chocolate. The Executive is 5 1/2 inches long, 2 inches wide and just over 1/4 inch thick, and will easily fit in the breast pocket of a suit. It will sell for £70. The calculator uses 7,000 transistors, 10 times as many as in the normal colour television set. The calculator has an illuminated display of up to eight digits. It will add, subtract, divide and multiply instantaneously, p12

Cambridgeshire loose Haverhill, p1
New Dutch Elm disease, p9

1972 06 30
"For many years until recently we at Milton have suffered the stench from the city's sewage farm. Milton has developed enormously in recent years into a thriving community. We hope to develop a large recreational area for boatmen, fishermen, picnicking etc to which people will be welcomed from elsewhere. Now however as a blow to all these hopes comes the suggestion to site a gypsy encampment on our boundary. It also appears we shall have to suffer the northern by-pass nearby and extra traffic with it. We ask, is this fair?" - letter from D.Pearson, chairman of Milton Parish Council, p22

Cut price parking 'unfair', p23

Boundary plans shock council. P25

July 1972 CEN

1972 07 01
Cambridge - "an environmental jewel" - is in danger of becoming an environmental slum because of the motor car, according to the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for the Environment, Mr Eldon Griffiths. And the only way to stop the rot, in his opinion, is to keep cars out of the city centre and to speed ahead with the building of the Western and Northern by-passes. "The sooner a pedestrian precinct can be established in the city centre, and later extended, the better", p9

1972 07 03
The announcement that Stansted Airport was expected to handle 3.5 million passengers a year by 1980 has again raised the spectre of a major London airport being based at Stansted. But officials of both county and amenity groups are confident that this "back door" method of building up the airport could be blocked. The 3.5 million figure, a 600 per cent increase on the present passenger flow, came from the British Airport Authority. The B.A.A. made their shock predictions despite the closure of two Stansted based airlines this year. The chairman of Essex County Council Planning committee said today he through the figures projected by B.A.A. were "quite unrealistic. I do not think we have anything to worry about", p9
Lauries summer sale, p3
Kelsey Kerridge, p7
Cambridge Scientific Instruments new factory, p9

1972 07 04
It is unlikely that many ratepayers will visit the Shire Hall in Cambridge this week to see how their money is being spent on the latest chapter in the De Vere Hotel saga. They should. Almost everybody agrees that the city could do with that 200-bedroom hotel at Mount Pleasant. The proposal by De Vere Hotels to build a £2 million hotel was originally approved by the County Council but the Environment Minister claimed that the development was too large for the site. If the hotel is not built the developers could claim compensation of up to £500,000 & ratepayers would have to foot the bill

New police headquarters topped out, p6
Newmarket Road Barnwell Bridge, p15

1972 07 05
A group of Bar Hill villagers last night decided after more than two hours of argument, that they would like to see a Community Association formed there. Mr Rodney Dale, who had headed a special working party explained that such an organisation would seek out the needs of the community as well as co-ordinating village activities. At the end of the meeting the chairman of the Parish Council said it had been a "difficult, irritating and niggling meeting". "But", he added, "it is right that we should have conflicting views, and it is good and healthy that they are aired"

1972 07 06
Chesterton Preparatory School, p4
Histon British Legion club, p22

1972 07 07
The Government amendment to the Local government Bill retaining Newmarket in Suffolk has been agreed by the Commons. The amendment which has been bitterly opposed by Newmarket Urban Council means that Suffolk's borders will remain largely unchanged, but East and West Suffolk will become one county. At Newmarket today, the chairman of the urban council, Coun. Leslie Bell said "This now starts the fight". Representatives of the urban council, Newmarket Rural Council and Ely Rural and Urban Councils are to meet the county council members and officials to see if anything can be done to reverse the ruling. The four councils have been working together for more than a year on the basis that they were to form a new district council within Cambridgeshire

No sign cheaper houses, p15
Graffham Water sailors, p41

1972 07 08
The Cambridge By-pass Inquiry began their 66th session yesterday with a spell of market square haggling between Milton village and the Department of the Environment. Milton Parish Council are worried about the proximity of the Northern By-pass to the village and the effect of an interchange on the A10. They had put forward an alternative by-pass route but offered yesterday to withdraw it if the Department made three concessions. The Department offered two but hesitated on the third. Said the Inspector "It seems to be what is called a piece of horse-trading". The clerk to the Parish Council, Mr Kenneth Humphries, said that the proposed western by-pass for Milton should be built concurrently with the Northern By-pass in order to cope with the extra traffic.

Hildersham pub sale, p10

1972 07 10
A pirate radio station operating from a Cambridge council house was pounced on by GPO officials and police yesterday. They took away a transmitter and a cassette recorder. The raid on the house came exactly six minutes after the illegal radio station – calling itself Radio Caroline - started its regular Sunday lunchtime pirate broadcast. For more than a year GPO engineers have been trying to track down the wavelength and whereabouts of the radio and using detector vehicles they closed in on the Cherry Hinton area. The station had been broadcasting fairly regularly each Sunday for almost 18 months

1972 07 11
Firms in Haverhill are having to go to the north-east to recruit workers and last night a local councillor accused them of paying wages that were too low to interest Londoners. "If you go to London and ask skilled workers to come here on local rates of pay they will laugh in your face", Coun. Mrs Vera Godden told members of the town's housing committee. One firm, Halliburtons, had requested houses for 42 key workers from Sunderland. The firm had found it impossible to attract labour from London through the Industrial Selection Scheme. Since they put in their application two more firms in Haverhill had asked for a total of 19 key worker homes. The Greater London Council would release only 25 houses for key workers.

1972 07 12
Six-lane A604 dangerous, p17
City library as Civil Restaurant, p18
Elizabeth Way sound plan, p19
Sewer scheme guest honour, p20

1972 07 13
For simple country folk, such as myself, living to the north of Cambridge, the Elizabeth Bridge is a godsend. For a year now it has enabled me to leave my home, 17 miles from the city, at a civilised hour and be at my office desk within 30 minutes. And in the evenings all I have to do is find my lane and with minimal traffic hold-ups be out on the A10 to Ely again. It now seems hard to remember than once one allowed at least 20 minutes for the Newmarket road- Arbury road run at either peak hour: that to be stuck interminably at Mitcham's Corner was a commonplace. Today my only wish is that more and more improvements are allowed by the planners so that everyone can enjoy a quality of life freed as much as possible from traffic pollution

Doomwatch – Newmarket, p12

1972 07 14
The Cambridge Arts Theatre has suffered "staggering" financial losses this year - often £1,000 a week – and the Secretary and General Manager, Mr Andrew Blackwood, said yesterday : "We can't go on like that. We would soon be out of business". The reason for high production costs was that touring companies require guarantees of £1,500 or more before they would visit Cambridge. Seat prices generally ranged from 40p-90p and 50p-£1. Audience attendance figures were 14,000 down on the year - and he blamed Cambridge's impossible car parking situation for the loss

Cambridgeshire planners '£3 million idea of turning the historic Battle of Britain airfield at Duxford into a gigantic sports complex has been turned down by the Environment Minister, Mr Peter Walker. And Mr Walker has, temporarily at least, locked the doors on the Home Office's present plans for turning parts of the airfield into a Borstal. The decision could mean that the airfield will be derelict for years to come. Mr Walker told the planners that he is not satisfied that the impact of noise, traffic and crowds on the Duxford area, which the sports complex would bring, would be either tolerable or justified

City needs sites one-man businesses, p20

1972 07 15
Villages get city overspill, p9
Back-street houses facelift, p11

1972 07 17
A Cambridge architect, Mr David Page, has blamed the Cambridgeshire planners and he County Surveyor's Department for the "boring conformity" of new housing estates in villages surrounding Cambridge. He explained "There is a boring conformity from one village to another of new building. All the windows seem to be coming from the same factory, all the bricks are the same cheap sand-faced range, roof tiles are similar, layouts are very seldom varied and all dominated by the County Surveyors inflexible designs for forecourts and footpath. What an appalling state design has been reduced to when the character built up over the centuries is completely ignored and decimated in less than a quarter of a century"

1972 07 18
Two large new city council housing estates - each with probably hundreds of homes - are being planned for Trumpington and at Fen Ditton, just outside the Cambridge boundary. The Trumpington site was the home of the Royal Show some years ago and is expected to start a storm of controversy because it involves land regarded by the preservationists as being of high scenic value. The Fen Ditton scheme, too, is unlikely to meet with much approval from the village authorities, because it would greatly increase the community's size

Arthur off to Yarmouth, p1
Plum harvest, p11

1972 07 19
It was the end of the road for the Cambridge By-pass inquiry yesterday. It died in the afternoon at the tottering age of 72 days - and no-one shed a tear. It had lingered through six tedious months and had achieved notoriety as he longest public inquiry into a road scheme ever held in the British Isles. There were 76 objections and scores of witnesses and counter- objectors and every nook, cranny and cubby-hole of the by-pass project was explored to the horizons of desperation and beyond. It was the Inspector who raised the point which had occurred to everyone but which no one liked to mention. "I do hope that I survive long enough to write my report", he remarked casually one afternoon, "For all your sakes"

Council house prices, p18

1972 07 20
£25,000 record price, p19

1972 07 21
Mid-Anglia police were very happy with their new Volvo patrol cars - until they found that usin their VHF radio cut the car's speed by about 15 miles an hour. Drivers doing 50 m.p.h. found that when they made a radio call their speed dropped to 35 m.p.h. – alarming for them and for anyone travelling behind. The Volvos bought on the insistence of the Chief Constable in the face of opposition by some members of the police authority came into service earlier this year. They have a special computerised fuel injection system, and when drivers made radio calls the VHF signal sent the computer haywire. The result was that the engine was starved of petrol supply and the car quickly slowed down. But the mystery fault has been cured - by a mechanic from Sweden and a roll of baking foil.

Improvements to the A10 trunk road, including by-passes for Melbourn and Buntingford, and new bridges at Littleport and Foxton have been announced by Whitehall. The by-passes should be started within the next 10 years and will cost in the region of £1 1/2 million. The Deputy County Surveyor for Cambridgeshire said At Foxton there are continuing delays at the crossing gates and there are regular accidents. It has been a black spot for longer than I care to remember, and the only way to stop it is to do away with the crossing, and the only way to do that is to run a road bridge over it". The Chairman of the parish council said. "I am honestly very pleased at the news; it is a major step forward. The next thing will be to get the actual work done"

Punt-hire firms, p18

1972 07 24
The Lion Yard multi-deck car park opens on Monday proving another 500 car spaces within a stone's throw of the centre of Cambridge. The completion marks the first stage of he city council's multi million redevelopment project for the area - which was first proposed nearly 25 years ago. The new park, which aims to cater for the shopper and the shortstay motorist, is the second major car park to open in the city in less than a year. The other is at Queen Anne Terrace, which opened last October. The usual parking fees will be 5p for the first hour, 15p for two hours, 25p for three hours, up to a maximum of 75p for 10 hours. The council hope the prices will encourage people who work in the city centre to leave their cars in the parks away from the centre, like New Square and Prospect Row, where the charges are considerably less.

1972 07 25
Museum chief to quit, p13
Village bobby come-back, p17

1972 07 26
A total of 160 houses in the Burleigh street – Fitzroy street area of Cambridge will have to be demolished to make way for the city council's shopping redevelopment scheme. At present only 34 of the houses are unoccupied. The city council are prepared to buy the houses at full market value if the owners cannot find other buyers. Some of the houses have already been classed as slums and earmarked for demolition. A number have in fact already been closed, such as in parts of James Street or demolished, as at Adam and Eve Street. A year ago the city council gave details of a large area outside the Burleigh Street - Fitzroy Street complex which they said would not be required for demolition. This gave the house owners the go-ahead to apply for grants of up to £1,000 to improve their homes

The Cambridge Arts theatre lost almost £14,000 last year, £9,000 more than their loss in 1970-71. The chairman of trustees, Mr George Rylands, told the annual meeting that it had been a "disappointing and worrying" year which seemed to point to a decline in interest in Cambridge in the live theatre. Mr Rylands blamed the over-all loss on the increased cost of productions, higher salaries and wages, and a decline in attendances of nearly six per cent. He hoped the opening of the new Lion Yard car park would induce new patrons to the theatre

1972 07 27
By throwing out plans to fluoridate Huntingdon and Peterborough's water supply, the county council have only postponed the day for two years. Because when the new health authorities take over, there is little doubt that fluoride will be in every water supply in England & Wales. Their decision means that for the sake of having no fluoride in the water supplies to a small part of the area around St Ives and Ramsey, they have denied fluoride to almost 200,000 people in the Cambridgeshire & Isle of Ely area. This is because both councils were linked in a £68,000 plan to be carried out by the Cambridge Water Company

Commercial radio, p16

1972 07 28
With Murkett Bros' move to new premises in Histon Road on Tuesday, Cambridge will shortly lose a familiar landmark. The Huntingdon-based firm's motor car showrooms and offices at the corner of Huntingdon Road and Histon Road is to be demolished and a million-gallon-a-year petrol service station built in its place. Murkett's sold their prime corner city centre site to Chevron Oil (U.K.) earlier this year. Chevron consider the purchase of the old showrooms a coup. "With a traffic count of around 40,000 cars a day at this junction, it is a prime site equal to some of the best in London", said a spokesman

Hildersham thrifty village, p4
Barnwell Bridge work, p16

1972 07 29
The Department of the Environment have squashed a plan to develop a 20-acre industrial estate in Milton Road, Cambridge, opposite Trinity College's proposed 13-acre science park. Bitter controversy has shadowed the scheme from the start. It was first approved by Cambridge City Council but later vetoed by the County Council who said they had already earmarked sufficient land for industry. The planning permission was for construction of roads and sewers as a first step to an industrial estate being sought by Stokes of Cambridge ltd. When they were turned down by the County council they appealed to Whitehall and a public inquiry was held in February this year

CEN dispute Monday?, p1

1972 07 31
Delay on Kite, p12
Folk festival, p12
Lion Yard park success, p13

August 1972 CEN

1972 08 01
Two Cambridge University computers half a mile apart have been operationally linked by an infra-red beam - the first system of its kind to be set up in Europe. The computers involved are the massive new £1.7million machine just installed in the mathematics laboratory, and the smaller, older, instrument in the Department of Engineering. The link is established by a beam transmitter and receiver at the top of each building and an essential condition of operation is that no obstruction lies in the path of the beam.

C.S.I. factory plan, p10
New Sainsbury’s open, p15

1972 08 03
Is the panic going out of house buying in Mid Anglia? With more and more houses coming on to the market the answer, according to Building Society spokesmen is Yes. It is not so many months ago that estate agents were advertising for houses to sell. Now their lists appear to be as long as ever. The Leicester Permanent Building Society manager said "It can now take weeks to sell houses which a short time ago were being sold in a couple of days. I believe these are the first indications of an end to the recent hectic price spirtal" More private houses were started in June than ever before. Council housing starts, too, have reached their best level since last year.

Traffic study urges new relief road, p1 & p13
Waterbeach planning, p14
Land price rise terrifying, p15

1972 08 04
Cambridge housewives face soaring prices this weekend as thousands of tons of vital imports lie strike-bound in Britain's ports. Fruit and meat imports are the biggest casualties of the national dock strike which entered its second week today. In Cambridge the Mill Road greengrocers, Clements have raised the price of imported Granny Smith apples from 11p to 14p a pound, while bananas are up from 8p to 11p a pound. At Tesco, in Regent Street, the manager said they had run out of bananas, but oranges and apples were still available and had not gone up. Tomatoes however had risen by about 5p to 18p a pound
Get tough policy on planning, p13

1972 08 05
The long-awaited Cambridge Transportation Study was finally published yesterday. It is two years overdue and has cost £113,000 - almost £1,000 a page. It was jointly commissioned in 1967 by the Cambridge city and County Councils and the University. It was to be carried out by R. Travers Morgan and Partners and was estimated at that time to cost £78,000. Its major proposals include a Railway Road leaving the A10 south of the Trumpington street traffic lights, hugging the northbound railway track all the way to Newmarket Road. After crossing the Cam the new road would veer sharply west to follow the St Ives railway line along to the A10 Milton Road before linking up with Arbury Road. The Railway Road should be largely dual two-lane carriageway. Full construction could take many years

Red revolution landlords win Watney war, p11

1972 08 07
The Backs have been described as "one of the world's most beautiful assemblies of buildings and grass and trees". Queen's Road, which skirts The Backs, is also one of the busiest heavy lorry roads in Cambridge. For many years the university have urged the closure of Queen's Road to through traffic, but the counter-argument is that there is no other convenient traffic route in west Cambridge. Travers Morgan's Transportation Study proposes a new West Road which would carry some 60 per cent of the traffic using Queens Road and Grange Road which would then be closed, to bring peace once again to the Backs

New guided bus, p10

1972 08 08
I was among the first into the new Lion Yard multi-deck car park when it opened. The public hadn't really caught on, and the vast concrete halls echoed emptily to the dumpers and merry shouts of workmen still constructing it. Later in the week I returned. Now the park was known and very full. It was clearly making an impression on the parking situation in Cambridge for there were now more parking meters available than usual. It won't be until all the decks are in use at Lion Yard that the final effect on Cambridge parking will be seen. In my view it must be beneficial – Rodney Tibbs

How bikes depose cars, p11
Newnham smoke ban, p13

1972 08 09
Breaking car commuters hold, p15
Newnham smoke ban, p17

1972 08 10
Melbourn out of ordinary, p8
Crazy spiral of housing market, p9
Sainsbury new store, p12
15,000 use Lion Yard, p16

1972 08 11
Crandal - a village within a village. The most pleasant village of Gt Shelford, has been for many years an idyllic residential area. The character and charm has been retained whilst every modern amenity is available. The strong community spirit that exists has led to the establishment of many local societies and clubs. It will be understood that the local authority wish to reserve the village feeling of Gt Shelford. It has therefore been after much direct consultation that Arjon Development Company have evolved the concept that is Crandal, a development of exciting and unique homes. Plans have been approved for expansions of the amenities with a further 6 shops, a supermarket, library and health centre. All enquiries to sole selling agents – Adrians

Six building sites halted, p1

1972 08 12
Castles in the air are all very well but when it came to haystacks in the sky villagers at Histon began to think they were really dreaming. Airborne straw rained down on the village yesterday and clumps of it were scattered over roads and in the gardens of puzzled residents. Seven year old Carmen Moore, who watched the whole event said; "I thought it was very funny seeing haystacks in the sky". The mystery of the falling straw was solved by the R.A.F. Oakington meteorological office. A spokesman said "This comes from burning fields of stubble. The heat from the ground can lift loose straw up to 10,000 feet and it can travel as much as 30 miles before it falls down again"

Cambridge University student, Mr Colin Rosensteil, was so annoyed by the grubby looking and almost illegible street nameplate outside his home in John Street that he decided to brighten it up himself. Now he is thinking about going round the other street nameplates in the area - if his requests to the city council to do the work fall on deaf ears. He has written to the city council's Conservative leader, Ald Stanley Bowlesasking for a rush programme of sign repainting throughout the city.

A Cottenham man used to be quite fond of cheese but he has rather lost the taste for it since he learned that the once-famous Cottenham product probably stands to lose him a few thousand pounds. Two cottages he had planned to sell to make way for new housing have just had a preservation order put on them because of an old cheese press and cheese room in one of them. It is though that the last cheese was made in Cottenham about 80 years ago and the press may prove to be extremely old. In the 18th century there were large herds of cattle in the village. The milk was used to produce large quantities of butter and the surplus to make the famous "Cottenham Double Cheese", a speciality of Stourbridge Fair and other markets in the area

Market Street opens again, p7

1972 08 14
The first boat to go through Roxton Lock, near St Neots since the beginning of the century, took the Duke of Bedford a mile up-river towards Great Barford after he had opened the new £80,200 lock on Saturday. The opening marked the 21st birthday of the Great Ouse Restoration Society whose pressure has so far opened up three locks between Eaton Socon and Bedford. There are three more to go, Great Barford, Willington and Goldington.

1972 08 15
Pye profit, p8
Arbury community centre, p12

1972 08 17
The Rex cinema in Cambridge may soon echo to the moans and groans of live wrestling. This is just one of several ventures planned for the cinema by Victory Theatres who will take over as new owners in a few days' time. The front of the cinema is to be re-modelled and additional heating installed. In keeping with its luxury refit The Rex is to be renamed the Royal Luxury Cinema. "It will be a cinema of the seventies", said the Managing Director of Victory Theatres, Mr Victor Freeman. Other ideas for the revamped Rex include a Christmas pantomime. Victory Cinemas are buying The Rex from Abbey Sports Club. The ballroom at the cinema will continue to be owned by Abbey Sports Club

The strike by building workers forestalled the demolition of one of Cambridge's best loved buildings - the University cricket pavilion built at Fenners in 1875. The pavilion - the nursery of many great names in cricket and the host to countless others - is to be replaced by a new pavilion whose completion is being delayed by the strike. Such celebrities as Dr W.G. Grace were among the first to use the pavilion and Donald Bradman, the prolific Australian run-machine found a corner to hang his head in shame after being bowled for a duck at the ground in 1934.

Fewer boating enthusiasts Ouse, p9

1972 08 18
In a small blue and yellow Bermuda sloop 26 year-old Shane Acton will sail down the Cam from Cambridge tomorrow morning on the first leg of a round-the-world voyage. Shane bought the 20 foot sloop last Christmas with £600 saved during two years. Since then he had been living on the boat, moored on the Cam near Mitcham's Corner. He plans to sail around the coast to Falmouth, then across the Atlantic to the Azores.This will be the first time he has ever made a journey of this length sailing solo

Summer madness on building sites, p23

1972 08 19
Arbury get grant, p10

1972 08 22
The setting up of a full-time Cambridge tourist department is likely to be recommended to the city council. Tourism is at present looked after by the library committee. During the nation-wide local government reorganisation in 1974 responsibilities for running library services will go to the new county council. But the new District Council will obviously want to run Cambridge tourist facilities. The Library committee's Labour chairman, Coun Roger Thornely said the tourist work of the City's Libraries department was increasingly rapidly and taking up more of the department's time and added: "I believe that at times the Librarian does not see a book for about four or five days at a time"

1972 08 23
The tourist is choosy, picking for his photographs only that which pleases his eye. It would be small wonder then if he were to gloss over the less attractive of the Cam's backwaters. It is the city resident who suffers the full impact of the Cam's dirty ditches. Week by week through the tourist season the waterways gradually clot up with tin cans, bottles and paper to leave an unsightly blot on the city's scenery. In the stagnant stretch of water behind Queens' College the sludge of rotting leaves and branches produce an overpowering smell. Ducks struggle manfully amid the tin cans and broken bottles which poke up through the thick layer of scum on the surface.

1972 08 24
It has been an irritating summer for the hundreds of visitors to Cambridge who have been forced to scour the surrounding countryside for hotel rooms. Cambridge has always had a notorious reputation for being unable to accommodate all the summer visitors. This year the situation was made worse by the Garden House Hotel fire in April which left the city the poorer by 75 bedrooms. Help is already on the way. The Garden House Hotel is being rebuilt; the Gonville Hotel will open again after alterations and work has started on a 100-bedroom hotel at Bar Hill. Whitbread have outline planning permission to build a 60-bedroom motel extension at the Red Lion Hotel, Trumpington and De Vere Hotels are awaiting the outcome of the inquiry into their application to build a 200-bedroom hotel on Castle Hill

1972 08 25
Smelly Cam, p23
Liberals scrap Relief Roads, p26

1972 08 26
Six mile queues of traffic built up at Newmarket today as the big Bank Holiday getaway moved into top gear. The A.A. warned drivers to steer clear of the town, a notorious holiday bottleneck for people heading to the East Coast. The Newmarket bottleneck caused queues to bank up along the A11 as far as Six Mile Bottom. Drivers were taking almost an hour to travel the two- mile stretch from Stetchworth Toll to Newmarket and an estimated 1,800 cars an hour were passing through the town

1972 08 27
Bar Hill villagers have won a temporary bus service into Cambridge. It will begin on the first day of the next school term. Villagers have been campaigning for a full bus service into Cambridge as "a matter of life and death". One woman has already been killed crossing the busy Huntingdon Road which children have to get over to reach the existing bus service to Cambridge outside the village. The service will run three journeys a day each way.

Cottenham cheese, p9

1972 08 28
City leisure fair, p9

1972 08 29
Cambridge colleges will have to take a very close look at controlling the number of visitors passing through their courts and cloisters, warned college Bursars, after one of their busiest tourist seasons ever. And while visitors have been allowed in with a minimum of restrictions in the past, it looks as if the day when the turnstiles are installed at the Porter's Lodge may not be far off. It could mean that 1972 will be the last year of free access to the colleges for the thousands of visitors who flock to Cambridge, one of Britain's top half-dozen tourist attractions.

Prince William flying, p13

1972 08 30
Builders prices too high, p14
Care for old in villages, p13

1972 08 31
The preservation and restoration of the historic frontage of 10-16 Bridge Street, Cambridge is assured in new plans for a 40,000 sq.ft. development by the Scottish Mutual Assurance Company. An earlier version of the scheme was turned down after a public inquiry. It involved knocking down the corner building and replacing it with a new structure which the inspector at the inquiry described as "aggressive in design". The new plans preserve the Bridge Street frontage. The scheme occupies a prominent site at the corner of Round Church Street and Bridge Street which has been a topic of heated discussion between developers, planners and preservationists for several years.

Brucellosis, p4
Addenbrooke's Hospital transplant by telex, p17
Irish children visit, p18

September 1972 CEN

1972 09 01
Cambridge folk have become accustomed to large scale demolition in various parts of the city, and soon yet another prominent building will disappear when the premises of the Hills Road Methodist Church are sold and taken down for development. The building is much too large; its seating capacity is 750 and the present membership is less than 200. Secondly the premises are over 100 years old, and while the sanctuary is in good condition, the premises downstairs are in a poor state and hopelessly out of date. As the adjoining premises were being developed it seemed a suitable time to sell.

The Cambridge & County Folk Museum is run on a shoestring, but thanks to its indefatigable curator, Miss Enid Porter, it has become a model of what a people's museum should be - intimate, quaint and compact. That the museum so ably embraces the local community's way of life is due, undoubtedly, to the skill and reputation of its curator, who is acknowledged as an expert on East Anglian folk lore and witchcraft and is particularly renowned for her understanding of fenland. Miss Porter is a powerhouse of activity since coming to Cambridge in 1947 she has created an invaluable display of bygones and bric-a-brac. When it is remembered that she does it on £3,000 a year the scale and depth of the exhibition is nothing short of miraculous

1972 09 02
News that the old R.A.F. station at Stradishall, near Haverhill may be used to house Ugandan Asians was greeted with mixed reactions. The chairman of Clare Rural Council said "I regard the Asian problem as an international one. I think we should bear our share of it as a nation, but not the whole brunt of it. When little black dictators act like that what can you expect?" In Stradishall's only pub, the Hound, most of the locals thought it would be a good idea for the Asians to come. Pensioner Mrs Ann Brown said "Some people just don't like anything - aeroplanes, prisons, anything. I think it would do the village a lot of good to have some strange people in". Jack Cook thought the 200 villagers would give the Asians a friendly reception if they came.

Joe Bugner - St Ives' former British European and Commonwealth heavyweight boxing champion could be forced to train outside Huntingdonshire if his plan to build a gymnasium at Wyton is turned down. Joe currently trains in a gymnasium in St Mary's Street in Huntingdon. His manager Mr Andy Smith said "I should think that in view of Joe Bugner's contribution to this county in the past they could perhaps give him a little consideration"

1972 09 05
Asians, p15

1972 09 06
"The demolition of the old Y.M.C.A. building will no doubt bring a touch of nostalgia to many of the Cambridge residents who have lived here for well over 70 years. I can remember that the very first "talking pictures" in Cambridge were shown there. These took the form of a rather jerky film show, screened from the rear, and the talking was done by a lady and gentleman behind the screen, After the performance they came to the front and bowed to the audience, which, on Saturday afternoon mainly consisted of children, and each child was given either an orange or a bag of sweets on the way out" - letter from F.C. Woolfenden

1972 09 07
For an event that will create such havoc in the Saffron Walden area, the coming of the M11 has caused surprisingly little resentment among the affected residents. Local people are either being remarkably tolerant and understanding of the nation's needs, or else they have not yet comprehended the likely effects of this concrete serpent as it winds its way across the countryside. The latest official line from the Eastern Road Construction Unit is that a start will be made late next summer and that the work will be completed in two years.

Strawberries, p5
Jane Asher sells hideaway, p26
Sunday trading, p26

1972 09 08
Just a few miles from Cambridge on the fast A604, the Trinity Foot continues to service a wide selection of lunches without dropping its standards in the process. I chose a beef curry and was surprised at the generous portion for 40p. My companion chose a cold chicken salad accompanied by a side plate of "extras" such as Russian salad, cold baked beans, potato etc for 50p. With two pints of well-kept Whitbread Tankard our bill came to £1.22 - perhaps a trifle expensive for everyday eating out, although we could have had a good lunch there for far less.

Just in case The Bomb should ever drop, eight powerful new air raid warning sirens are to be installed in Cambridgeshire. Although few people ever see or hear them, the Home Office has about 22,000 warning points in the United Kingdom equipped with electric or hand sirens for air attack warnings and maroons for fall-out warnings. Now they are to be replaced by powerful compressed-air sirens which are much more efficient and much louder. The eight which are to be installed in Cambridgeshire will be at Brooklands Avenue, Cambridge, Waterbeach Barracks, Oakington airfield, Great Wilbraham, the old Duxford airfield, Bassingbourn Barracks Lt Eversden & Linton 72 09 08

Verdict on Petty Cury, p18

1972 09 09
Ugandan Asians, p9

1972 09 11
Salvage barge, Reach, p11
Scrap city centre parking meters call, p12

1972 09 12
St John's College, Cambridge, have refused to sell land on the long disused army camp at Milton which Cambridgeshire & Isle of Ely County Council want for building a gypsy caravan park. For years the City Council have been urging the County council to provide a site near Cambridge for a gypsy caravan park to prevent gipsies from illegally occupying various council owned land in Cambridge. But whenever either the city or county have suggested any particular site there has been an immediate public outcry against the plan

Garden House Hotel lady, p5

1972 09 13
A full-time tourist officer should be appointed for Cambridge, a special meeting on tourism decided yesterday. They also agreed that a disused car park attendant's hut on the Market Square should be commissioned as a tourist information centre. The Mayor, Coun. Peter Wright suggested that voluntary workers could staff a tourist information kiosk in Market Square. The City Librarian, Mr Eric Cave, suggested that if the kiosk plan went ahead it could remain open on Sundays so that the present Sunday skeleton service at the Information bureau could be closed down.

1972 09 14
Six out of seven vehicles which travel along Newmarket High Street - the bottleneck of East Anglia's road system – will be diverted away from the town if a 14-mile-long by-pass is built, a Department of the Environment official told a public inquiry yesterday. "On market days, on race days, at weekends and at many other times, long queues develop through the town centre of Newmarket and stretch back, sometimes for miles, along the main roads into the town" John Coates of the Eastern Road Construction unit said.

1972 09 15
Two men have launched in Cambridge a unique publications and visual aids service for industry to fill the gap between straight advertising and full scale book publication. Their firm, Woodhead-Faulkner (Publishers) ltd began business at 7 Rose Crescent this week. The whole concept is one of "below the line" advertising in which firms sponsor books in highly specialist fields while at the same time getting publicity for their products from the sponsorship

1972 09 15
The lychgate made by prisoners of war in Changi Prison, Singapore, in 1942 has been brought to England and reassembled at Bassingbourn Barracks, near Royston. A small plaque on a side post tells how the gate was made by men of the 18th division of the British Army, which included men from the Cambridgeshire Regiment, and erected at the entrance to the prison cemetery where abut 600 prisoners of war were buried. When the cemetery was cleared after the war and the dead reinterred elsewhere, the lychgate was removed and later put up outside St George's Garrison Church at Tanglin.

Fletcher panto dame bows out, p6
Salvation Army hostel, p15
Woodhead-Faulkner sets up, p16

1972 09 16
Cambridge City Council have halted the demolition of some of their old prefab bungalows at Histon Road while officials find out if they could be used for housing Ugandan Asians. The bungalows, which were built shortly after the Second World War as temporary homes, are being demolished to make way for a large council houses and flats development. A few of the buildings are still occupied but the tenants are due to move shortly.

1972 09 20
Bank architecture, p12

1972 09 21
A rubbish-filled claypit off Coldham's Lane, Cambridge, bought by a firm of London property developers less than four years ago for little more than £100,000, has just been resold for £300,000 without a single building being put on it. The former claypit was filled with rubbish in the late 1940s before being bought by Mr Richard Duce in 1948 for "a matter of a few pence". In the mid-1960s attempys were made to build a shopping centre on the site but these fell through. Then at the end of 1968 Summerfield Developments bought the seven- acre block with an option on the remaining seven. Plans were announced to build warehouses but these in turn fell through. Now the land has been bought by J. Coral Estates, another firm of London developers at around £40,000 an acre. Coral also intend building warehouses

No to Ugandans in prefabs, p23

1972 09 22
The church clock has stood for far too long at ten to three, and Grantchester has deteriorated with time. Its inhabitants seem to be living still on past glories and cannot see that their world-renowned village is but a shadow of what it was. Or to put it in the words of Mr Reginald Lambeth and Mr Vernon Cross "The whole village can only be described as scruffy". Messrs Lambeth and Cross came to their conclusion one summer day in June. They had been charged with the task, unpaid, of picking out Cambridgeshire's best kept village. Swaffham Prior won the contest and Mr Lambeth and Mr Cross eliminated Grantchester in the second round. They were "shocked by the low standards of "property maintenance" although they mentioned notable exceptions such as the White Cottage. The decrepit state of things, they say, cannot be blamed on the roadman, who has to look after three villages, nor on the traffic. Bitterly they conclude; "People who are proud of their association of Rupert Brooke should at least keep to his standards"

1972 09 23
The Mayor of Cambridge, Coun Peter Wright, last night gave an assurance that the City Council had no intention of promoting tourism at the expense of attempts to expand light industry in the city. In fact, he told the council's Library Committee, the council must encourage light industry if they were to boost tourism. "The more industry we have here the more will be the council's rates income. The council can then spend more on providing facilities for tourists, as well as their own citizens", the Mayor said. Ald Elliot Ridgeon warned that there was the danger that more tourists than ever would come to Cambridge as the result of appointing a tourist officer

1972 09 23
The introduction of a computer has brought the Board's accounting right up to date and saved the work of half a person, the Clerk to Ely, Mildenhall and Newmarket Water Board told members yesterday. Mr J.W. Robins said that for the first time he could remember all accounting was up to date and the stores programme and accounts were to be transferred to the machine was soon as possible. He said the equivalent of half a person's duties had been taken over, but there had been no redundancy because somebody was still needed to answer the telephone.

Kendall Way bathrooms, p12
Duxford airfield motor noise, p13

1972 09 25
Police arrested five youths, two from Peterborough, and rushed a sixth to hospital after running battles between rival gangs of supporters following Saturday's Fourth Division derby at the Abbey Stadium. Fighting broke out at the Newmarket Road end soon after Cambridge United scored the first of their three goals. Police moved in and restored a vestige of order. This was the pattern with skin-headed youths proudly presenting bloodied noses for their pals' benefit. A raging battle with fists and feet flying sent ordinary supporters scurrying for shelter. Fathers lifted children above their heads and cups of coffee and orange squash were hurled into peaceful sections of the crowd.

Ugandan Asians, p12

1972 09 26
The Wolfson Building of Trinity College, Cambridge, once described as a liner stranded in a dry dock, opened its doors yesterday for an official tour of inspection. The building rises lozenge-shaped behind the historic and preserved facades of Trinity Street in the city centre. It is topped by two large winged roof-lights, which, the architects said, were added deliberately to be a modern feature of the city skyline. The scheme provides rooms for 125 Trinity students. Beneath the college buildings are the commercial premises which include the Sainsbury supermarket, Heffer's booksellers, Horne's the men's outfitters and Barclays Bank.

1972 09 27
Only hours after moves began to cut its food bill, a Cambridge hospital has learned that it is one of the top four in the country for its bill of fare. New Addenbrooke's Hospital is only one of four hospitals named in a national survey by the Egon Ronay organisation as providing "completely good meals". The Ronay accolade is a tribute to the efforts of New Addenbrooke's head chef Douglas Lambert and catering officer Miss Mary Chivers - still working together in the kitchens after 24 years. General hospitals visited spend an average of £2.40 each week on food for patients. The food bill at New Addenbrooke's has risen recently to £3.20, and the Hospital's estimates committee recommended the bill should be cut back to about £2.50

1972 09 28
We, the teenagers of Girton village, strongly resent the slur that has been cast on us. Admittedly we use the bus shelter as a meeting place, but that is because there is literally nowhere else to go. There are about 20 of us basically decent, normal, healthy teenagers with the boisterousness of youth and it is not physically possible to meet all at once in each other's houses. So the only building which protects us from the weather is the bus shelter. We absolutely deny that it has an offensive smell and is strewn with litter. In fact the bus shelter at Mayfield Road is in a far worse condition and is not used by members of our age group. - letter signed by 23 Girton youngsters

A collection of Cambridge nostalgia went under the hammer as the fixtures and fittings of the Old Dorothy restaurant and ballroom were auctioned. "The Dot" as it was affectionately known to Saturday night dancers down the years was a mecca of weddings, parties, dinners and thousands of personal memories. It was a child of the tea dance and potted palms of the 1920s and survived the Second World War to outlive nearly all its contemporaries. It closed its doors to the public in August and now its future is uncertain. Today it looked drab and tattered with mirrors, lights and other fittings ripped from the walls. About 150 attended the auction but many were only there to pay their last respects. 72 09 28

1972 09 29
Women wrestlers, p8
Magdalene College close sports ground, p45

1972 09 30
When the North wind doth blow the children know where to go - to the cloakroom to dress for school dinners. Mid-winter meals have often been taken in topcoats in Burrough Green village near Newmarket. The trouble lies in the old reading room which stands 50 yards down the road and has been used as a school dining room for the past few years. When villagers built on a kitchen with volunteer labour it meant blocking up the two fireplaces, having one small electric fire. Mrs Maureen Ward said "The school classrooms are well heated and the children go straight out of a warm room and freeze in the reading room. They get such things as gravy and custard on their sleeves if they are wearing their coats"

October 1972 CEN

1972 10 02
John Nicholson is a tall, solemn, ranging character with a Biblical appearance. Currently he runs two shops in Cambridge. Neither of them makes a profit. Before that he published an "alternative" newspaper "Cambridge Voice", a paper which ran to 16 issues. After a skirmish with "The Shilling Paper" he felt that a University element were against him. His two shops are the King Street Market and Cockaygne, Portland Place, New Square. It's an unusual shop selling a range of science fiction and occult books, "underground" periodicals, American comic books and all sorts of pamphlets

Haverhill bailiffs, p7
Clare girls, p8

1972 10 03
Modern-style living has caught up with Histon. A few years ago the parish council could not find tenants for their allotments. Now people are living in houses dubbed as "rabbit-hutches" the council have more applications than allotments. In the past about 18 allotments in Spring Close and The Dole have given way to housing developments. Mr A.J. Gayle, who is Chairman of Chesterton Rural Council told members that before the allotments were swallowed up the parish council could not find tenants for them. He went on: "Now they are building rabbit hutches and they all want gardens"

Lion takes another step, p10

1972 10 04
Since 1892 the University Typewriting Office has provided the link between thousands of Cambridge graduates and their doctorate degrees. In the 80 years hundreds of Cambridge women have typed out millions of words on every discipline in the alphabet. Now, for the first time, the business has a man at its helm. Founded by a Mrs Marion Marshall, guided for 50 year by a Miss Minnie Pate, then by Miss Marjorie Sutherland and finally by Miss Mary Noble, the business was sold in May this year to Mr Walter Falles, a chartered secretary.

Addenbrooke's Hospital accident unit, p19

1972 10 05
The bulldozers and demolition gangs may have ruined the character of Petty Cury and destroyed Falcon Yard forever, but for those who appreciate the past two crumbs of comfort: Fisher House was saved. Reprieve too for Ramsey and Muspratt, the photographers in Post Office Terrace, where silver bitch trees have sprouted in the old courtyard behind the studio. There have been photographers in Post Office Terrace since the 1860s. Lettice Ramsey and Helen Muspratt took over from Palmer Clark in 1933. "We took over the whole thing, lock, stock and barrel, with about 50,000 old negatives. We have been here ever since", said Mrs Ramsey, competing with the noise of a pneumatic drill. Now she and her women assistants battle through the noise and dust every day to maintain a "business as normal" service

Bottisham court house, p10

1972 10 06
Ant invasion closes Papworth, p1
Stop Press comeback, p12
Main post office closes Sundays, p19
Newmarket swimming pool, p21

1972 10 08
National Register of archives, p8
Cherry Hinton bungalows, p4
Civic Restaurant, p5

1972 10 09
Britain's first purpose-built Interdenominational Church Centre was opened at Bar Hill by the Dean of Ely, when 200 people crammed into the new hall to hear the special service of dedication. The people of Bar Hill were never too choosey about where they said their prayers. Just as long as they had a roof, any building was good enough. During the past five years there have been services in private houses, in a contractor's hut on a muddy building site and in the half-finished shopping arcade. But whether it was Holy Communion by the supermarket or Evensong in the living room there was always the hope that one day Bar Hill would have its own church.

Arbury playground, p8
Rail axe scheme, p9

1972 10 10
An 1875 bicycle made a rare appearance on the streets of Cambridge to promote Cambridge City Library's exhibition "Tourism in Cambridge" at the Small Hall of the Guildhall. Its owner, Mr J.D. Howes took it from his Regent Street shop and gave it a spin along the road before it went to the Guildhall. The third exhibition of its type to be staged by the library it puts Cambridge into its proper setting for both Fenland, county and city are covered by the various displays.

Wedgewood Benn, p9
Co-op discount warehouse, p12

1972 10 11
By ceasing to have University councillors on Cambridge City Council when local government is reorganised, Cambridge would be losing the benefit of wise men's counsel, the Deputy Mayor, Mrs Jean Barker said last night. "I personally regret the passing of the university councillors elected by the university, although I know it is considered undemocratic, but we had some outstanding brains working for us". In her year as Mayor, Mrs Barker attended 290 social and other functions, 76 in company with her husband, Mr Alan Barker, headmaster of The Leys School

Two councillors resigned today as accusations mounted over a £300,000 gift offered for a swimming pool at Newmarket, which has now been withdrawn by millionaire racehorse owner Mr David Robinson. One of the terms laid down by Mr Robinson was that the pool must be built on the Severals at Newmarket and that the council must be unanimous in accepting his offer and conditions. At Monday night's meeting councillors could not agree on where the pool should be sited. Mr Robinson was accused of trying to dictate to the council. Mr Robinson withdrew his offer in a letter.

Chesterton homes bar, p11
Alderman Bowles resigns, p14
Darling & Wood, p16
Butler butchers close, p16

1972 10 12
A charge that they are workshy has been levelled against the unemployed of Cambridge by a shop stewards committee representing the largest engineering business in the city, Marshall of Cambridge. The senior union men are angry at the inability of their firm to find sufficient labour to maintain an important long-term Government contract. They cannot understand why with 897 registered unemployed in Cambridge it is proving impossible for Marshalls and other firms in the area to fill their labour needs. They ask "Do the men really want work? Or do they have sidelines which make it unnecessary for them to take up jobs paying up to £30 a week?"

Comberton's village pond has dried up. And the famous group of wild mallard which live there have flown away. The pond has dried entirely only for a week in the driest of summers before. This time it has been dry for three months. The chairman of the Parish Council, Mr William Watts, suggests that trench-digging around the village to install main drainage, has stopped up the flow of surface water into the pond. He said "We are worried about the situation but we'll wait until there has been a real good fall of rain to see what happens before we actually do anything about the lack of water. If the water does not run into the pond then, we might have to consider sinking a well or something. The village pond is a real amenity"

Growing demand Social Services, p6
Hamilton Kerr gift of house, p7

1972 10 13
At the Pagoda Chinese restaurant in Regent Street Cambridge there are over 100 items listed on the menu. The easy way out might have been to opt for Special Meal (£2.55 for two persons) but that sounds too much like totalitarianism so we sifted out portions of Sweet and Sour Pork (large 48p, small 42p), Chicken on bean sprouts (48p, 40p) and Sliced Beef, green pepper and Black Bean Sauce (55p). Fried rice (14p) went almost without saying. Cheefoo White Wine, bottled in the People's Republic was not worth the £2.15 it cost per bottle. After all this only a sense of duty led us to share a dish of lychees (25p). The meal cost us £6.57 for two, but if you did not fall for the "wine of the country" bit, it would be very good value

To get toutist offices, p17

1972 10 16
Action on Newmarket Road, p5
Royston cave, p112

1972 10 17
Sergeant Dixon at Parkside, p5
Christmas lights, p9

1972 10 18
Radio telescope inaugurated, p11
“University wants wages to be low”, p13

1972 10 19
Undemployment, p16
Colour televisions, p19

1972 10 20
New laws which have given the Cambridge planners control over the future of old, but not historically important buildings may preserve much of the city's side-streets and stop redevelopment in odd corners and byways The planners could use their powers for the first time when they consider a request from a London development company to demolish the Red Cow public house on the corner of Corn Exchange Street and replace it with a four storey office and shop block. The County Council are thinking of preserving the adjoining Guildhall Chambers building which overlooks the Lion Yard redevelopment

White Ribbon Hostel, p9
Murkett’s garage demolished, p15
Fluoride, p16

1972 10 21
Fears of another prolonged power dispute this winter have led to panic buying of every type of candle in towns throughout Mid-Anglia. Stores report that candle stocks are low or run out and emergency heating and lighting lines are rapidly dwindling. The rush for stock started last week, and now that the electricity power workers have given October 27 as Disruption Day demand for emergency heating and lighting equipment are so great that stores are having difficulty in coping. The manager of Hatters Hardware in Milton Road said his lamp trade had gone up by 60 per cent this week. But he was sorry for the shoppers. "There may not be a strike. If not, the £3 or £4 they spend in here seems rather an expensive insurance policy"

Coton shopkeeper retires, 72 10 21 p6

1972 10 23
Prickwillow British Legion, p10

1972 10 24
The tiny Cambridgeshire village of Great Wilbraham has become so popular with property developers, that villagers have decided to draw up their own village plan in an effort to keep control of the threatened invasion. Since the word has got out that the village (population 323) will soon be on complete main drainage, planning applications by the dozen have been lodged at Shire Hall. Some property developers have asked to build as many as 24 houses in the village at a time. The chairman of the Parish Council said "There is no doubt that our drainage and sewerage scheme has made our village more attractive to developers

Standard of living, pxviii

1972 10 26
Cambridge University are finally to come to terms with decimalisation and, after next year, undergraduates who break the rules will no longer be liable to a fine of six shillings and eight pence. Instead they will have to pay the Proctors a sparking new 32 pence. When the British Government decided on decimalisation, Cambridge University decided to wait until the 1973 edition of their rule book was published before completing their changeover. Their current accounts were converted at the same time as the rest of the country.

Although the credit card is obviously here to stay, the euphoria surrounding this week's launch of "Access" does not appear to be shared generally by traders and the public. Local traders objection is simple and forthright; "It is costing us money to provide credit" In the city centre firms like Heffers, Joshua Taylor and Robert Sayles are not members of the scheme. Eaden Lilley's have joined and on the first day the firm took £174 from 12 customers using the card

On wash days Mrs Marlene Bassett walks up and down her garden about 50 times a day emptying buckets of water. The only tap in the house is a cold one which runs into a sink. The sink has no drain - the slops from it have to be collected in a bucket and taken to the end of the garden. She lives in a row of four three-bedroomed houses which have no hot water, no bathrooms, no drains and outside the kitchen door is the lavatory, a metal bucket under a wooden seat. They are at Wenden Lofts and the owners of the houses are Saffron Walden Rural Council. The Clerk of the rural council said: "These were some of the first of the council houses ever built and they were very good council houses, but they want modernising. As villages get sewered so we modernise houses and put them on the sewer"

Rent rises, p11

1972 10 28
Addenbrooke's Hospital will have to use many self-employed agency nurses to cope with the extra beds in Stage II of the new site. The hospital could need 100 extra nurses. Miss Mary Bonner, the chief nursing officer said; "Our total complement is somewhere between 800 and 900 nurses in the hospital group - but we will need all those for Addenbrooke's alone in 1973. With 841 beds, eight suites of theatres, the new accident admissions units and the out-patients department we will still need between 200 and 300 more nurses. An agency nurse can expect to earn around £25 for a 30-hour week, a little more than the hospital-employed nurse

1972 10 30
From today letters posted to addresses at Ely, Haverhill, Newmarket and Saffron Walden should bear postmarks. And the Post Office hope people in these areas will show a better example than Cambridge residents. For after four years only 30 per cent of the letters posted in Cambridge are postmarked. A Swedish postmaster who recently visited Cambridge said "We have no problems with postmarks in our country. Ninety per cent of the people responded immediately to the system". Asked how they achieved that amazing success rate he replied "We don't deliver the letters to the addresses that are not postcoded"

1972 10 31
Twenty-five thousand second class letters are being deliberately held up every night at the Post office's mechanised sorting centre in Mill Road, Cambridge. The letters are sorted into bundles by the 2pm to 10pm shift ready for loading on to trains from Cambridge. But they do not leave the centre until the next morning after the rest of the second class post has been sorted. Assistant Post-master for Cambridge, Mr Reginald Starkey said "It is a second class standard of service. They have paid only 2½ pence". Ironically it is only the second class post which goes through the £500,000 worth of equipment installed at the Mill Road office five months ago.

Sunday market, p11
Barwell tyres, p12

1972 10 31
Barwell Engineering, the £1 million-a year specialist rubber processing equipment firm have launched a new re-treating system which literally lays new tread on to old tyres. The process known as "pressuretread" is a development from the Swavesey firm's Queen's Award- winning precision performing equipment. Launched in August the new retreading system has taken 18 months to develop and already the first plant has been sold to the United States. Already the firm have had enquiries from Japan, most European countries, and New Zealand. The complete plant, including the autoclave curing oven and a milling machine, costs around £30,000

November 1972 CEN

1972 11 01
Allotment men warn United, p15

1972 11 02
Fen Ditton takeover, p10

1972 11 03
With plans nearly complete for the 152-bedroom Garden House Hotel, due to rise on the site of its burnt-out namesake in the middle of Cambridge, the hotel's neighbours and other people are claiming that the building will be too big, and might create a traffic nightmare. They fear the narrow streets round Granta Place will be choked by a heavier flow of vehicles and some are worried that the only answer will be a new service road across Coe Fen. Before the fire in April which destroyed the old 76-bedroomed Garden House, an extension with 48 new rooms was already under construction. Work carried on while the ruins of the old building were demolished. The site is now being prepared to take the new main section ringing the total number of bedrooms up to 152

Pity the poor dogs of Huntingdon, Haverhill, St Neots and Mildenhall. An R.S.P.C.A. inspector said: "Many Londoners come down to places like Haverhill and feel they are in the country for the first time. They've not been allowed to keep animals before and their first thought is: 'Now we can have a pet'. They usually get a Labrador dog without thinking how big it will grow". Lack of time to give the animals sufficient exercise and a small garden often resulted in its being turned out on the streets and this was when the dogs joined up in packs to roam together. At St Neots the dogs roamed the estates in packs all day, frightening children and old people.

1972 11 04
Britain's top female liberationist, Miss Germaine Greer, told Cambridge undergraduates of the sexual tensions she had become aware of in the university while studying at Newnham College five years ago. She said: "Most people feel that this university enshrines the most incapacitating mistakes about the relationship between men and women. Why was it when it came to May Balls male undergraduates always invite girls from the language schools, or their cousins from London?. The thing that amazes me is that the girls do not break into the May Balls by inviting all kinds of truck drivers as their escort. I went to most of the balls over the fence and what I cannot understand is why girls have baulked at this male confidence trick"

City school comprehensive, p5

1972 11 06

A firework, probably a rocket from a Guy Fawkes party, is thought to have caused a fire which almost burned out a historic 18th century thatched cottage at Landbeach. The cottage, built in the 1760s by the then Rector, had been unoccupied for the last three years. Fireworks were also believed to have started a fire which badly damaged an old wooden barn used by Bar Hill junior school as a storeroom. Almost the whole of the 2,000 sq. ft. building, part of the original Bar Hill Farm and one of the new village's oldest buildings, was destroyed

The odd man out in Mr Heath's wide-ranging Government reshuffle is Mr Francis Pym, the 50-year-old Chief Whip and M.P. for Cambridgeshire. Mr Heath has decided that it would be imprudent to dispense with Mr Pym's skilful role as another stormy session looms. Mr Pym welcome the promotion of his colleague, Mr Peter Kirk, the MP for Saffron Walden, from a relatively obscure junior post in the Defence Ministry to leader of the first Conservative delegation to the Common Market Parliament. The new Solicitor General, Mr Michael Havers is a former chairman of West Suffolk Quarter Sessions and lives at Ousden, near Newmarket. Sir Harry Legge-Bourke, the Isle of Ely MP whose decision to quit the chairmanship of the Conservative 1922 Committee was announced at the weekend is expected to be on sick leave for a month
Hawthorn Way house, p8

1972 11 07
University workers beat freeze, p7
Addenbrooke's Hospital computers, p9

1972 11 08
Jaffe at Fitzwilliam Museum, p13
Wolfson gift, p14
River Lark baptisms, p5

1972 11 09
A45 delays, p11
University College, p22

1972 11 10
Only three months after starting work on a housing scheme at Great Shelford, a development company who pitched their prices too high are pulling out and re-selling the land. Arjon, of Stansted, advertised three and four- bedroomed houses planned for the estate on September 15. The asking prices were from £21,500 and £23,500 respectively. Only two people placed reservations on houses & later one of them withdrew but this house was later reserved at the price £3,000 lower by another purchaser. Now after partially completing the two houses reserved, Arjon have put the 18 remaining plots on the market

It's five years since the carriage doors slammed at Longstowe station. Now it is one of four stations on the old Cambridge to Bedford line which will go under the hammer at an auction in Bedford next month. They were all closed by Dr Beeching. Longstowe is a rare opportunity for the railway enthusiast with the money to back up his fanaticism. It has a vacant station house and the station building to go with it. The track and sleepers have already been taken up and the lines sold to adjoining landowners

Landbeach spire, p26

1972 11 11
Mr David Robinson, the millionaire Newmarket racehorse owner and businessman may be the "mystery benefactor" behind the plans of Gonville and Caius College Cambridge, for a new mixed undergraduate college. Mr Robinson's name has been linked with the anonymous gift announced a year ago which is thought to be worth about £5 million. Caius College, founded in 1348, has been considering possible sites for the proposed college. The college-owned house "Finella" on Queen's Road and their sports ground on Barton Road have been considered.

1972 11 13
The roof was torn off a Cambridge house and hurled down the street as 60 m.p.h. gales and torrential rain swept through Mid-Anglia during the night. The storm left a trail of chaos throughout the area, with trees uprooted, chimneys dislodged and motorists stranded by water-logged cars. Hundreds of trees were uprooted in the region and villagers at King's Ripton, near Huntingdon turned out in the early hours to clear a tree which blocked the Ramsey Road. The storm caused widespread power cuts; one of the biggest failures was at Gamlingay where 200 consumers were without power

1972 11 14
Newmarket Road closed, p7

1972 11 15
Young people in Cambridge have lost their Saturday night dances - the high spot of their week - and this has meant more violence in the city, Steve, an apprentice chef at Christ's College claims. The Dorothy - the city's best known catering and dancing centre - closed in August. Teenagers have looked for other dances, but tend to spend more time wandering around looking for somewhere to go that staying in any place. Saturday night dances at the Corn Exchange suit another type of person, said Steve. They prefer a different sort of music, which he describes as "heavy". He and other young people who frequented the Dorothy preferred Tamla Motown music. There are more than 80 people who used to go to the Dorothy. Many of these now wander the streets of Cambridge, travelling from one pub to another looking for something to do.

Kidney card, p14
Dorothy to become furniture shop, p16

1972 11 16
De Vere approved, p15

1972 11 17
Plans for the conversion of Cambridge's Corn Exchange to a 1,500-seat concert hall costing £936,200 will be considered at the inaugural meeting of the Concert Hall Action group. Before the meeting will be a feasibility study drawn up by Arup Associates, the London consultants who were responsible for the Maltings concert hall at Snape. One of the partners said "not only Cambridge, but Britain as a whole, will gain a concert hall of potentially international stature". The study recommends an extension to the Corn Exchange involving the closure of Parsons Court and the acquisition of other properties on its west side

The Government are considering the future of Tracked Hovercraft, the experimental air cushion transport project presently under test at Earith. Speculation has surrounded the project for some time. The work is well behind schedule. One major problem is the test track at Earith. At present this is little more than a mile long and the much vaunted 100 mph speed for the experimental vehicle RTV31, has not yet been reached. Early reports expected three miles of track to be completed last year and the full eight miles to be ready at the end of this year

Inflation hits WRVS service, p25

1972 11 20
Twins are supposed to look alike. But there is no similarity between Haverhill and its proposed twin town of Pont St Esprit in the south of France. The French town, swamped in sunshine and steeped in history, is half as big and twice as pretty as Haverhill. But the contrasts between the two towns and their ways of life will simply serve to intensify their interest in one another, and also help to promote an interchange of people and ideas

Queen's silver wedding, p4

1972 11 21
The Cambridge City Council's planning consultants who are designing the redevelopment plans for the Burleigh Street- Fitzroy Street have suggested the building of a departmental store East of Napier Street. Consultants feel that the introduction of shopping uses at this point would improve the whole project in addition to saving housing land to the North of Maids Causeway and James Street. They have also proposed that the pedestrian way along Fitzroy Street should be graded down and Napier Street itself raised over the pedestrian way. This appears to be the best way of separating traffic and pedestrians

1972 11 22
The campaign to re-open the Great Ouse to boats between St Neots and Bedford has made a huge step forward with an "outstanding gift" of £100,000 from Bedford Corporation towards the rebuilding of Great Barford lock. The money should amount to more than half the cost of restoring the lock and dredging the river beyond it. After Great Barford only two other major locks would need to be restored before navigation reaches Bedford.

1972 11 23
Billy the Kid, fresh from his latest brush with the law, stood in a makeshift office in the derelict, boarded-up pub in East Road that is the Cyrenian's haven for dossers in Cambridge and threw down a challenge. "I'll bet you", he said in the most confidential of tones, "that I can pick up in Cambridge as much in one week as ever you can earn". Now Billy the Kid's reputation among the "touchers" of Cambridge stands high. Billy the Kid is the city's uncrowned king and no sane man would ever doubt his begging ability. "Well", I queried, playing safe, "I might be interested". "You've got to beat 75-quid and most of that is from the students"

More jobs are available today in Mid-Anglia than at any time since the mid-1960s. Department of Employment statistics out today show that more than 2,000 jobs are on offer - the first time this figure has been topped since 1967. This is almost double the jobs on offer at this time last year. On the unemployment side the picture is equally encouraging. The drop in the number of jobless begun in October has continued - 2,053 being registered out of work this month compared to 2,132 in October. In terms of work on offer only Haverhill is worse off that it was last month

Visitors to a new house at Barway, near Ely, may be asked to take a pew. After all, that's what people have been doing there for 600 years. The idea is to convert the village's tiny St Nicholas Church into a two or three-bedroomed house - a job that has been loosely described as a major alteration. St Nicholas, which has been unused for the last 10 years has been bought subject to planning permission to convert it into a house. If the deal goes through the new owner will inherit an unspecified number of skeletons - not in the cupboard but in the one-time graveyard outside. 72 11 23

City answer to tourist flood, p11

1972 11 24
Nuns selling up, p12
Cottenham Co-op, p22
Duxford sports complex, p28

1972 11 25
Rag cash to Poppy fund, p2

1972 11 28
The opening of the Union of Construction, Allied Trades and Technician's eastern regional headquarters in Cambridge marks a major step forward in acquiring the "modern image" required in today's union activities. For several years the Union, known then as the Amalgamated Society of Woodworkers, operated from small offices in Newmarket Road. Now with the move completed to new offices at the corner of Abbey Road "the union are in a position to project their image", says regional secretary Ivor Jordan. The offices were to have been opened in July but the ceremony was put off because of the building workers strike

1972 11 29
The badly-needed extension to St Neots branch library will not be built for at least three years, the County Librarian, Mr R.V. Keyworth, said yesterday. This was the earliest the County Library Committee had managed to include the cost in the Huntingdon and Peterborough capital spending estimates. They intended eventually to double the library size. "I wish somebody could tell me what we could do in the meantime", said Mr Keyworth. "There is nowhere to spread – only backwards. We will really be scratching our heads in a couple of years"

1972 11 30
A new hotel opens in Cambridge this week - and with 33 bedrooms it becomes the fourth largest in the city. The new Arundel House Hotel is a complex of red brick houses on Chesterton Road overlooking the River and Jesus Green. The development follows the purchase of number 61 Chesterton Road last year and its conversion into a 12-bedroomed hotel. Now John Norfolk has converted two other adjacent properties he owns - from flats and bedsitters to an integrated hotel complex. "With house prices as they are now it is virtually impossible to charge a proper rent related to these new values," he said. "The transition of Chesterton Road into a hotel was the obvious answer to get a proper return"

Cambridge City Council's Trinity Hall Farm Industrial Estate looks more like an army practice ground than a land of golden opportunity for trade and commerce. The only thing that is conspicuous by its absence is industry. Although it is now 10 years since the 12.6 acres off Nuffield Road were designated for industrial use there are still only two firms with premises there. Only firms displaced by council re-development or public works can be sited there. At last week's council meeting members agreed to seek permission from the Department of the Environment to change the re-location criteria in order to allow other firms to take up sites on the estate 72 11 30

Traders fed up with Kite delays, p13

December 1972 CDN

1972 12 01
A plan to build up to 600 houses on farm land off Long Road, Trumpington has brought mixed reaction from local residents. A Birmingham development company who earlier this year took over Cambridge builders I.J. Stocker ltd, want to build houses and a group of shops on land at Clay Farm. But some local residents object because they think the land should remain open. It is zoned as open space and playing fields, with most of it within the green belt, in the Cambridge town map. The developers said it would be a 5 or 6 year scheme from the starting date

Post Office precautions over bonus, p17

1972 12 02
The Arbury Estate, a local authority complex on the northern fringe of Cambridge and Bar Hill, a new village about five miles away, both suffer from the lack of a strong separate identity and from isolation. Bar Hill is suffering from the recent phenomenon of maximum human isolation. It arises from two factors. The first is that Bar Hill lies in a cul-de-sac. The second is that there are no lines of communication dissecting the village. This would not be so bad if there were something in the village to draw people from the surrounding area, such as a countryside museum, miniature railway or area sports centre. Without any major facilities or attractions the village is being by-passed by the community at large

An R.A.F. camp - complete with barrack block, N.A.A.F.I., officers' mess and guard room - is due to be auctioned at Newmarket later this month. The camp, which was formerly an important communications centre, is one of the smallest in the country. Although there are all the facilities for training a private army, the camp at the top of Newmarket High Street, is likely to be sold to property developers. Planners have indicated that permission for housing is likely to be given. The three-acre site has been empty since the R.A.F. Eastern Region communications headquarters was moved away, and Post Office staff now run a communications section. Another Newmarket landmark, the old goods station at All Saints road is also to be auctioned on the same day. The station is a grade two listed building and is regarded by experts as one of the finest examples of early Victorian baroque architecture, but is now in a bad state of repair

1972 12 04
Fowlmere planning, p14

1972 12 06
There was a bit of a flap in Comberton this summer when the village ducks took to the wing and flew away. The village pond had dried up. The ducks came back when the autumn rains began and the pond started to fill up again. This week the Army came to the rescue. The officers and men of the Royal Engineers, based at Waterbeach, decided that a spot of pond digging would be good training for their excavator operators and on Monday the job of lifting several tons of slime and silt began. An army spokesman said "We have a number of families living in the village and we decided it would be neighbourly and help us at the same time"

Chesterton rents, p15

1972 12 07
A large out-of-town shopping complex covering about 10 acres is being planned for Newmarket Road, just outside the Cambridge boundary. But Cambridge planning committee decided to resist the project. Fears were expressed about the effect the shopping centre would have for the city council's plans for redeveloping the Burleigh Street - Fitzroy Street area. Marshalls of Cambridge (Engineering) made an application to develop the shopping complex, together with car parking and garages on a site immediately to the East of their vehicular workshops off Newmarket Road. The site faces Cambridge airport

Cycleway network, p17

1972 12 08
The future of Fisons is based firmly on research said the group's chief executive when he opened the agrochemical division's new laboratory complex at Harston. The new buildings comprising a laboratory block and a product applications department will eventually house 80 research, chemical engineering and analytical staff. Fisons Agrochemical Division employ 600 people at Harston of whom about half are headquarters administrative staff

An estimated 2,000 people turned up for the first day's trading at the Marcade, Cambridge's first indoor market. The Marcade is the brainchild of two city businessmen, one of whom said "We have spoken to every trader today and most of them have said they have taken as much in five hours todays as they usually take in a week" There are 48 stands in the market, which is in the old Eastern Electricity buildings in East Road and they hope to have a total of 100 by January. "The whole idea is to make it a good market where someone can buy anything at competitive prices and of good quality". They were aiming at at market where a customer could buy everything from a kitchen sink to a fur coat, said Mr Smith

1972 12 12

The death of 12 people on the three-lane A604 between Fenstanton and Cambridge brought protests from members of Mid-Anglia police authority. The chief constable, Mr F. Drayton Porter said "The sooner that road is made a dual carriageway the better. The police strongly object to three-lane roads. The A604 quite frankly has reached saturation point". The Department of the Environment had already been pressed to make the road into a dual carriageway but they wouldn't hear of it

Invitations for dance hall, p7
Elm disease, p15

1972 12 13
Rag fund backed – Haig, p13

1972 12 14
Ely may find itself heading downhill during the next 10 years unless central and local government come to the rescue, warns a report out today. Ely and the surrounding Fenland villages are among 16 "problem" rural areas listed in the Small Towns Study commissioned by the East Anglia Economic Planning Council. The report says the district is suffering; as agriculture becomes more mechanised there is a steady drift from the land but the influx of industry is insufficient to compensate. The result is a general rundown of the market towns and surrounding villages with fewer jobs, fewer services and fewer inducements to stay. The report urges inducements to industry to establish more factories in rural East Anglia

Stubble-burning bylaw, p4
Defy Whitehall – spend, p11

1972 12 15
East Anglia has the lowest overall average earnings of all the regions of Britain. Of the counties in the region Cambridgeshire and Isle of Ely top the earnings league with an average £1,130 per worker - well ahead of lowest paid Norfolk with £1,080 per worker. Half the men over 21 earn less than 60p an hour; half the women less than 40p an hour. In fact in return for 45.9 hours work a week East Anglian men averaged an hourly income of 62.53p. The typical East Anglian budget includes Housing £3.02, food £6.74, tobacco £1.23, clothing £1.81

1972 12 16
The last five plots of the old Cambridge to Bedford railway were sold yesterday for a total of £137,250. The line was once the link between Cambridge and Bedford but those days went when Beeching axed the route. Since then British Rail have taken up the rails, and sold the land on which they stood to neighbouring farmers. Yesterday four of the stations and their accompanying yards came under the auctioneers hammer. The last plot was the Old North Road station at Longstowe. The buyer who paid £23,000 for it said he had no idea what would be done with the 1.25 acres site and the station house, booking office, waiting rooms and goods shed

1972 12 18
It’s not every day that you meet the Minister for Education. So it’s a bit embarrassing to do so when your hands are covered in sticky modelling clay. But that's what the children of Haddenham playgroup did on Saturday. And the Minister, Mrs Margaret Thatcher loved it. She sat down and joined in their activities. She was there to open their new extensions, built on to the vicarage. Mrs Thatcher said: "This is a marvellous example of what can be achieved from basic beginnings". The group were formed four years ago. Today 39 children attend and are looked after by the vicar's wife, the Honourable Mrs Margaret Fox and a group of 20 adult helpers

Bassingbourn lychgate, p11

1972 12 19

Snowy Farr, the self-styled King of the Road, who has raised more than £1,400 for the blind in two years, has been priced off the road with the tractor that tows his mobile menagerie. Since Snowy bought the tractor two years ago to replace the tricycle he had used previously he has driven it on a £5 a year concessionary licence. But now he has been told that he must have a general haulage tractor licence which costs £60 and he says he hasn't got the money. Snowy first became famous when the cart he used for his work as a roadman around Oakington began to take on a very individual appearance as he added to its basic shape. He then started to take his pet animals with him. Someone suggested he should raise money for charity because so many people gathered to see his mobile show wherever he went.

1972 12 22
The £2 million De Vere hotel building project at Mount Pleasant - Huntingdon Road corner in Cambridge has been given final clearance by the Cambridgeshire planners. The drawings of the proposed 200-bedroom hotel - the largest in East Anglia were given approval privately this week by the city planning department. Last month the Environment Minister gave approval to the project. The De Vere hotel saga has dragged on for more than four years during which time it has occupied two major public inquiries and has been the subject of a High Court hearing

Trinity Hall plan, p14

1972 12 23
An acute shortage of bricklayers is putting up the cost of new houses in mid-Anglia. This is in addition to the rise in prices caused by the building workers' autumn pay increase. The demand for new building since the end of the builders' strike has produced an even greater crisis. One Cambridge building contractor said: "Six months ago bricklayers were getting about £16 per thousand bricks laid. Now they get about £24 and for some work up to £30

1972 12 27
An electronic design team lead by a Wendens Ambo man have produced a miniature power supply unit which could revolutionise whole fields of electrical equipment. Now with this single vital piece of equipment greatly reduced in size, the desk top computer becomes a reality. What Malcolm Murchall and his team of four engineers at Advance Industrial Electronics have done is cut down the size of the normal power supply unit to one-eighth of its present size. Already a number of large orders have been received with Japan, Australia and Canada all showing a strong interest in the new device

Flu hit the now-traditional barrel-rolling relay race at Grantchester on Boxing Day and a cool drizzle resulted in fewer than usual spectators turning out for the event. But neither the practical difficulties nor the celebrations of the previous day prevented a team from nearby Barton romping home minutes ahead of their rivals to carry off the 48-pint prize. Their nearest rivals were a team from the Queen's Head at Sawston. Women made their debut last year but illness had depleted entries down to one team - from the Green Dragon in Cambridge so the four women agreed to divide into two team and Mrs Tricia Newman and Mrs Ann Carter won the day. Their prize was 48 pints

Wilkinson Mastermind, p7
Old-world living cost more rates, p7
City pubs & shops, p8

1972 12 29
Fen Ditton will die is Cambridge City Council go ahead with their plans for a 1,000-home estate in the village, says the parish Rector, the Rev Raymond Harrison. Writing in the parish magazine he says that with an estate of almost 1,000 homes in the village the population would increase by nearly 4,000 people. "This plan is not for some distant future, but in three or four years' time when the city fathers allege they will have no more building land in the city area. Clearly the whole character of Ditton will be altered if this pernicious plan is put into operation". The city council are continuing their efforts to get planning permission to develop an 80-acre site in the village, and another at Trumpington

Cann Bircham celebrates 25 years at Sawston, p4

1973 Cambridge Evening News

I have no copies of these articles

1973 probably
So many patients are being infected by bacteria after operations at Old Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge, that £15,000 is to be spent on renovating the operating theatres. Surgeons have expressed their concern over the number of infections and have asked the hospital board for a policy to be laid down to control it. Their request comes only 10 months after the Chief Nursing Officer publicly declared "No risk is involved in the old building which has well stood the test of time". That statement came only a few days after two theatre sisters resigned over hospital practices which they considered gave rise to an unacceptable infection risk to patients undergoing surgery at Old Addenbrooke's

January 1973 CEN

1973 01 01
Thriplow's three-quarters-of-an-acre recreation ground is up for sale - by order of the village. At the weekend a village referendum came out, by 5 votes to 40, in favour of the sale. Now all that is needed is the approval of the Department of Education and Science who have indicated that if two-thirds of the sale price - expected to be £15,000 - is used for building a new village hall, the rest can be used for establishing a new recreation ground. At present a First World War hut is all that the village has in the way of a community hall

1973 01 02
The people of Stow-cum-Quy will be fully consulted before a decision is taken to close the village school, members of the County Education Committee said today. A petition signed by almost the adult population of Quy was presented before their meeting today. The document voiced the residents' opposition to suggestions that the school at Quy, which serves only 30 children, may have to be closed because it is grossly "substandard"

1973 01 03
A message of sympathy to the victims of American bombing in the North Vietnamese cities of Hanoi and Haiphong may be sent by Cambridge City Council following a move last night by Labour councillors. The group have drafted a special motion to be submitted to the council at their next meeting. It expresses "anger and horror" at the bombardment of civilian targets by the American forces

St Ives rail link, p16

1973 01 04
Pubs join boycott, p1
King Street almshouses, p12

1973 01 05
The rising price of beef is already being felt in Cambridge shops, but at least one supermarket are keeping the price down to 94p a lb for home-produced rump steak. Butchers will be doing all they can to help housewives pick the best buys of "Common Market" meat prices. Argentine rump steaks are around 65p a lb compared with 95p for English, with topside at 45p against English topside at 60p a lb. Roger Purvey, the Tesco manager thought that prices had to ease off. "People are buying more lamb instead of beef"

1973 01 06
Haverhill must go on expanding until it reaches the 30,000 population envisaged in the town plan by 1980 - even if it means taking up more agricultural land, the chairman of the East of England

Economic Planning Council, Lord Walston, said at the council meeting. A very large problem would arise in 10 years' time because the population brought into the town so far had been very young and in 10 years' time there would be a large amount of school leavers looking for jobs, Lord Walston said. If jobs were not available because Haverhill had not expanded then it would go from being a very young town to an old one, because all the youth would leave to find jobs elsewhere

Kite scheme might begin, p7

1973 01 08
Pye Telecommunications of Cambridge have opened a Middle East office to service their expanding interest in that part of the world. The office in Beirut, capital of Lebanon, opened for business on Monday. Their director of International Marketing said "Pye Telecommunications look upon the Middle East as a key territory in their international operations and intend from these arrangement to provide an improved service for their existing and potential customers throughout the territory"

1973 01 09
Balsham growth, p9

1973 01 10
It is a popular view that Arbury must be treated differently from Cambridge's other outlying communities. Necklace village populations, it is argued, choose to settle away from the heart of a town and are more likely to create their own neighbourhood environments. The early Arbury settlers, on the other hand, had little choice. They were placed on an estate by circumstances over which they had little control. Because Arbury was built as an appendage of Cambridge it lacks trade, industry and recreation. And this has become a particularly serious problem since 1960 with the emergence of young vigorous families with a high proportion of active youngsters under the age of 15. Everywhere is flat and featureless. There are no mounds to run up, nor gradients to run down. It is mostly a flat maze of little dwellings and concrete paths

1973 01 13
Long Road plan, p9
Butchers cut orders, p11
Coral estate, p12
A45 blackspot, p14

1973 01 12
In the medical field a health centre is a social parallel to a village college. A health centre provides a very wide range of services and facilities to its "customers" all in one place. While Cambridgeshire was not among the real pioneers it has certainly joined the vanguard quickly. For it is now believed that there are more general practitioners based in Cambridgeshire Health centres, as a percentage, than anywhere else in the country. And this has all happened since the first health centre in the county was opened at March in 1969. Sawston Littleport and Whittlesey followed that year. Ely and Soham got similar centres in 1971, two more at Bar Hill and Fulbourn are now being built for opening next spring

Dial-a-bus future?, p17

1973 01 13
Pye of Cambridge Ltd have become the first company in the modern electronics industry to be granted armorial bearings. They grant which has royal assent has been made in recognition of the company's contribution to the nation. One reason for Pye receiving this rare distinction was their role in designing and producing equipment which helped to bring the Second World War to a close. They switched their production to inventing and making military equipment and by setting up a village network of 14,000 people. They led the field in radio location, radar, bombing aids, radio communications, and one of the first guided missile devices

1973 01 15
Willingham's new £7,700 recreation ground pavilion was opened on Saturday. The new brick- built pavilion replaces an old wooden one built in the 1920's. The new building incorporates a main club-room, dressing rooms, showers and canteen facilities. Chesterton Rural Council have also paid to have public conveniences included in the rear

1973 01 16
Dale's old brewery in Gwydir Street, Cambridge, officially became the hoe of the new International Centre when it was declared open last night - but for the time being it will remain "dry" for it does not have a licence. Instead, the cavernous rooms of the old brewery, which once echoed to the clatter of horses' hooves and the rattle of casks now hear the merry pop of Coca Cola cans and the chatter of many tongues as foreign students find themselves somewhere to gather for the first time in six years. The director of the new centre, Sudhir Agarwala, has established and financed the new International Centre from his own pocket

1973 01 17
This year could see the beginning of changes in the pattern of shopping for people who live in Cambridge and the surrounding areas. Plans have been put forward to build several "out-of-town" shopping complexes and a public inquiry next week will hear an appeal by J. Sainsbury Ltd against Cambridge City Council's refusal to allow their "edge of-town" supermarket at Coldham's Lane. Last month the Council turned down an application by Marshall to develop a 10-acre site on the Newmarket Road as a shopping complex. A scheme by Brierley's to build a big drive-up shop on a 3½- acre site at Bar Hill with parking for several hundred cars was withdrawn

Pig market shutdown, p12
Radio group company, p13

1973 01 18
Nurses desk jobs, p18

1973 01 19
Cambridgeshire will soon boast a 60-acre country-park at Milton Pits and picnic sites at Mepal Pits and Shepreth if a Committee proposal is backed by the County Council. The Countryside Commission are poised to give grants to cover 75 per cent of the purchase and development costs for all three sites. The picnic site at Shepreth would cover about 24 acres of smallholdings land on the western side of the road from Shepreth to Barrington. One side has a frontage to the River Rhee. The Cambridgeshire & Isle of Ely Naturalists Trust say they are prepared to lay out a nature trail for visitors

The Earl Haig fund was finally dropped from the list of Cambridge Rag charities last night when the city council decided to let the students do as they like with the money from their annual street collection. That means for the first time ever this year the Royal British Legion's fund for ex-servicemen and their dependents will get nothing from the proceeds of the annual February parade and collection through the Cambridge city centre. Instead the money will go to five local charities. The Earl Haig fund has benefited from the Cambridge Rag ever since it came into being earlier this century. Until the mid-1960's the fund received all the Rag proceeds, which sometimes amounted to as much as £12,000. But in recent years their share has been cut to a third

Lammas Land voye, p14

1973 01 22
Cambridgeshire farmworkers have called for a £30 minimum wage for a 40-hour week. But they turned down demands for strike action to back their claims. At present farmworkers receive a £16.20 minimum for a 42-hour week. An increase bringing it to £19.50 was due on January 22nd but was caught in the freeze and will not be paid until April. Little Downham farmworker Michael Collins said that farmworkers were living on a minimum wage. "We have got to throw down our tools and hold the country to ransom like the miners and the power workers. The country has got to wake up to the fact that we are an important industry and we want a living wage". Others pointed out that the Prime Minister himself had said that anyone earning less than £20 a week was on a starvation diet

1973 01 23
Wages in Haverhill are amongst the lowest in the country. They are lower than anywhere else in the area, which is the lowest paid region in the county. Members of Haverhill's Housing Committee had before them figures which showed the national average earnings for adult men as £37.00. The East Anglian average was given as £33. For Haverhill the average was £29.50. A report by the Housing Manager on some of the “economic & social problems" that faced tenants and that had led to the council's rent arrears crisis told of families on low wages, inexperienced at managing their affairs, often being seduced by the attractions of hire purchase schemes they had no hope of meeting. Traders in the town who sell goods on credit have equal problems in getting their money

Pay freeze council officers, p8

1973 01 24
The overspill agreement that aimed at changing Mildenhall from a sleepy West Suffolk village to a small rural industrial town was signed on March 31, 1965 between the Rural Council and the then London County Council. Now with the scheme at the half-way stage the question can be asked: How has it worked? Almost 50 acres of land has been allocated to new industry, all of which has been taken up. With a block of 200 homes nearing completion in Clare Close and St John's Close 700 new homes will have been built. The earliest problem, overspill families returning to London dissatisfied with the few amenities is beginning to be overcome but leaves in its wake a difficulty in finding skilled labour

Haverhill overspill, p16

1973 01 25
Two national organisations are interested in building a dance hall in the Fitzroy-Burleigh Street area, the Cambridge Arts and Entertainments Committee were told last night. The Director of Leisure Activities, Mr David Constant, reported that the Mecca organisation had written to the Town Clerk confirming their interest. Another firm of national dance hall promoters were also interested, he said. Meanwhile public criticism of the lack of dances in Cambridge has led to a decision to hold a series of monthly dances at the Guildhall from next October to March. Mr Constant said the cost of a ticket, without subsidy would be 75p. If the dances proved a success they might be able to lower the price

No council houses post 1975, p9
Sainsbury enquiry, p13

1973 01 26
Cambridge Moslems will soon have their own mosque if a scheme to convert a property goes through. The City's Moslem Association have bought 175 Chesterton Road and hope to use it for their Friday prayer meetings as well as religious festivals and other meetings. A Trustee of the foundation said "We have about 70 members and we hope that it will be a meeting place for all Moslems who are living or staying in Cambridge. If we get permission for it we shall be sending back to our home countries for donations and help from there"

St Ives boxer Joe Bugner will not be alone when he steps into the ring to face Muhammad Ali in Las Vegas next month - for beyond the ropes & out of the spotlights will be scores of his local fans. Many fans from his home town of St Ives are making the once-in-a-lifetime trip to Las Vegas to cheer their hero in the biggest challenge of his career. Amongst the crowds will be the proprietors of his local Seven Seas fish and chip shop, Keith and Eileen Holland. Since they opened their shop four years ago Joe, the European heavyweight champion, has been one of their regulars

Gt Shelford smell, p21

1973 01 27
I hope it will not have escaped notice that in the absence of any signals, traffic is now flowing through the Trumpington Road / Lensfield Road / Fen Causeway junction nearly as quickly as it did a year ago, when there was a power strike and the lights were not working. I am an everyday user of this particular junction and have noticed that traffic will always be clear, and on no account is there any traffic jam, when the lights are not working. As soon as the council turns them on there is chaos everywhere. When will they ever learn the more they do to that particular junction the worse they make it - letter G.D. Mills

1973 01 29
Cottenham health centre, p5

1973 01 30
To most people Value Added Tax means a slightly worrying period round about April 1st of this year when the prices of familiar objects are likely to do funny things. But to the staff of the new V.A.T. wing of the Customs and Excise Department it means a massive piece of reorganisation to be undertaken in a remarkably short period of time. Although 6,00o extra people have been employed nationally the Cambridge sub-office does not have a particularly large staff. When fully up to establishment it will employ about 26 people involved in the administration of VAT and this number will include officers and secretarial staff. From dealing with 500 people over Purchase Tax the officers of the department will now have contact with 10,000. But against this the tax is easier to administer in some areas and has been designed for computer control from the outset

1973 01 31
Wrights of Cambridge, who claim to sell a quarter of all vehicles sold in Cambridge, have been taken over. The new owners are Gilbert Rice Ltd, a south coast garage chain who, like Wrights, are Ford dealers. Wrights began 60 years ago as motor and agricultural engineers. The family business boomed and they took over Cambridgeshire Motors in 1963

Planners' dream / nightmare, p13
City fight for Hovertrain, p16

February 1973 CEN

1973 02 01
Cambridgeshire and Isle of Ely County Council may hand back more than £1 million to ratepayers in an attempt - during the authority's last year of life - to stop rocketing rate increases forecast for this year by financial experts. The council will be asked at their budget meeting to levy a total rate of 30p in the pound during 1973-74. The coming financial year will be the County Council's last. They amalgamate with the Huntingdon and Peterborough County Council on April 1 1974 to form the enlarged Cambridgeshire council. Before the merger takes place, the committee want to pour back more than £1 million to bring the county council's financial balances into line with those of the Huntingdon authority

Bartlow mound, p18

1973 02 02
Buried under the car parks of a handful of pubs in Cambridgeshire are little areas of gault clay, about four feet square. Forty years ago these were sites for one of England's oldest and most venerable sports - quoits. This sport, along with devil-among-the-tailors, bat-and-trap and shove ha'penny have disappeared from the Cambridge pub scene. Cards, dominoes, darts and the occasional skittle alley hold sway in Cambridge now. But in the twenties Cambridge was the centre of quoit-playing in East

Anglia. It had its own league, with a set of rules which differed from more northern quoit-playing area of England

Householders, traders, planners and property developers have a common hope in the outcome of next week's public inquiry into the proposed comprehensive development plan for the Burleigh Street area of Cambridge. They all want a firm answer to a question which has blighted a decade of Cambridge planning history. The answer, if it comes, will not please everybody, since homes and small businesses are threatened by the scheme, but it should put an end to years of confusion and uncertainty. The question is: Will the Government give the go-ahead for redevelopment on the lines of the current proposals?

1973 02 03
Super-Cambridgeshire, p5

1973 02 05
Cambridge's longest slogan - all 60 yards of it - spanning the Lion Yard hoarding along Petty Cury is likely to remain for some time. The slogan, which advertises the Cambridge Claimants' Union, exceeds even the anti-Vietnam banner erected on King's College chapel some years ago. The foot-high, spray-painted slogan proclaiming: "Fight for the right to live with Claimants Union, the union for all unemployed unsupported mothers, low paid supplementary pensioners, sick people" seems set to stay

1973 02 07
Hovertrain, p1
New shops no threat centre, p11

1973 02 08
Hovertrain, p11
Tesco plans, p15

1973 02 09
Famous painting, Huntingdon, p4
Golden Ball, p10

1973 02 10
Golf, p10

1973 02 13
Varsity to close Saturday, p1
Electronic banking, p13
Philosophy new Cambridgeshire, p7
Burleigh Street inquiry, p9
Communism, p15

1973 02 14
The Government have abandoned the Hovertrain project. They decided two weeks ago not to plough more money into the project, but the decision was kept secret because the Aerospace Minister, Mr Michael Heseltine, hopes to sell of parts of the project to two contractors. Mr Heseltine said nearly all the 150 workers on the project would lose their jobs. An arrangement has been made with Hawker Siddeley to develop the linear motor. British Rail had agreed to continue development of the magnetic suspension system. The Tracked Hovercraft Company was set up in 1967 and £5,250,000 was originally earmarked for the project

Devlin report, p13

1973 02 15
Student sit-ins in Cambridge should be met with firm action, and, if necessary, criminal proceedings says the University's High Steward, Lord Devlin, in a report on student disturbances. In the report - arising out of last February's occupation of university offices by students - his advice to the university for dealing with demonstrations is clear. First there should be "persuasion by the proctors and university constables, reinforced by enough physical presence to test the atmosphere". If that fails the police should be called in and criminal proceedings instituted. Lord Devlin calls for more student participation in the university government, a forum for discussion of student vies and a better information service

Joe Bugner fighting a mercurial Muhammad Ali was clearly out-pointed in his world title eliminator in Las Vegas. Any chance the European champion from St Ives had of taking the initiative disappeared in the first round. From then on his fight for survival was only infrequently interspersed with bursts of aggression. The Mayor of St Ives, Coun. Mrs Susan Phipps said she was going to send Joe a telegram congratulating him on putting up "such a splendid fight"

Stretham faggot cutters photo, p9 73 02 15
Heseltine defends Hovertrain decision, p13
Demonstration, p14

1973 02 16
Mr Jeremy Thorpe, the Liberal leader, visited residents in the Burleigh-Fitzroy Street area of Cambridge, whose homes are endangered by the proposed shopping development which is at present the subject of an inquiry. Amongst the people he met was Mrs Lavinia Hawes, who moved to her James Street home six months ago and said that it suited her family perfectly. She would be giving evidence at the inquiry. After a visit to the new Cambridge volunteer bureau in Fitzroy Street, Mr Thorpe left to see Bar Hill

Society save Hovertrain, p15
Heffers priinters move, p21

1973 02 17
Cambridge Undergraduates are to continue their occupation of two university buildings until Monday morning. The Sidgwick site sit-in is now Cambridge's longest student occupation on record. Last year's protest at the Old Schools lasted just 48 hours, while the one two years previously was a short-lived 36 hours. The Sidgwick occupation was sparked off by university rejection of some Economics Tripos reforms and now incorporates a protest against Lord Devlin's recommendations to the university

1973 02 19
Sit-in students, p10
Gonville Hotel reopens, p11

1973 02 20
Tourist guide classes, p6
Music Hall appeal launched, p10

1973 02 21
Green Shied stamp raid, p1
Addict since 12 days, p13

1973 02 22
Waffles demolition, p13
Robinson new Newmarket pool offer, p18

1973 02 23
Roses Fashions may move

1973 02 24
Car park fees up, p1
Street parade axed from Rag, p1
Sir Roger de Trumpington price increase, p5

1973 02 26
Mildenhall Museum fire, p12
Lure workers to Cambridge, p15

1973 02 27
Railway route plan, p11
Coral Park estate starts, p13

1973 02 28
King's College drugs – Robin Page, p13
Oakington church bells, p12

March 1973 CEN

1973 03 01
A beds shortage has forced Old and New Addenbrooke's Hospitals, in Cambridge to halt admissions for routine operations. At the same time the hospitals face a stepped up campaign of industrial action, including selective strikes, by their non-medical staff. The beds crisis has come at a time when there are 3,000 people on the waiting list for routine operations at hospitals in the United Cambridge group.

The building where the first electricity for lighting in Cambridge was generated is now on the market. The property, No.2 Market Passage, was the premises of Bailey, Grundy and Barrett, electrical contractors. In 1891 the firm produced the first electricity for lighting in the city with a gas engine and a dynamo installed in the basement. In those early days private electrical generating plants were supplied by the company to several of the Cambridge colleges. Until after the 1914-18 war such plants continued to be installed in country houses in outlying districts. As this business declined, the company moved into wireless, the design and making of temperature control equipment for laboratories and other specialised apparatus

Inquiry inspector, p11

1973 03 02
Arts Lab plan, p18

1973 03 03
The £16,000 hydraulic platform which the Cambridgeshire Fire Brigade bought two years ago has revolutionised fire fighting in Cambridge, and made it much more efficient. In view of its success the County Fire Brigade Committee decided to abandon the use of the old-fashioned hook-ladders which have been used for years to reach the tops of high buildings. The hydraulic platforms, which extend to a height of 80 feet can be used to operate over the tops of parked cars in narrow and congested city streets

The Master of St Catharine's College, Professor Edwin Rich, was involved in a scuffle with women's lib demonstrators last night when 30 of them interrupted the Cambridge College's dinner. College Fellows left the high table and with waiters rushed to the 69-year-old Master's assistance when women demonstrators began struggling with him after he had grabbed a bugle which one woman attempted to blow in his face. The demonstration was aimed at drawing attention to the lack of places for women in Cambridge University. The trouble started immediately after grace had been said and halted waiters in their tracks leaving them poised with trays of grapefruit. The demonstrators - all women - swept into the hall led by a bugler and carrying an assortment of placards on the theme "Sexism - out"

1973 03 05
Sinclair Radionics Ltd, whose launch of a miniature electronic calculator less than a year ago bred a host of imitators on the market, are still cock-a-hoop. For today, with eight month sales behind the, the St Ives firm still dominates the market, sending out from their riverside mill factory each month more than half the United Kingdom sales. Now the firm have hit harder still at their competitors with a £20 reduction to £59. The executive calculator is smaller than a 5p bar of chocolate. It uses 7,000 transistors, 10 times as many as in the normal colour television set

Ambulance HQ, p7

1973 03 06
One of the largest single orders - £2.1 million - ever placed to a Pye group company has been won by Pye TVT Ltd of Coldham's Lane, Cambridge, to supply colour television equipment to the government of South Korea. Many Far East observers believe that Korea could be expanding industrially to the point where it could become another Japan so the long-term prospects for business there seem very good. The contract is for a full colour television installation for the national broadcasting system. TVT will supply four colour television studios, a monochrome studio, colour and monochrome cameras, mobile studios, a master control and associated equipment. It also covers the training of Korean engineers

Housing crisis, p15

1973 03 07
With pomp and pageantry - and a large clap of thunder and deluge of snow and rain - Ely cathedral's 13th centenary celebrations were launched. There was something almost supernatural about the thunder and lightning and the deluge which came as the heavens opened up. It was almost as if the monks, who 1,300 years ago established the first monastic settlement in the historic city, were watching and where determined to make their presence felt. But the celebrations got off beneath the shadow of the cathedral which dominates Ely, as hundreds of townspeople, visitors from the surrounding area and tourists watched. It marked the beginning of a year of activities

Bar Hill superstore, p13

1973 03 08
CEN dispute, p12

1973 03 09
St Ives rail link, p13
Go-ahead for spine traffic cut, p17
Christ’s College women’s lib, p19

1973 03 10
An ancient forest of bog oaks has been dug up in a 10-acre field at Soham Fen. A contractor ploughing the field only three inches deeper than usual found his plough catching two or three oaks in every run across the field. Mr John Fletcher who farms the field said; "I've been cultivating this land all my life and only struck the odd one, but this year it is just as if there is a whole forest of them. It has taken four men with two tractors a fortnight to clear the field. Some of the oaks were 60 feet long and had to be cut into three parts before the tractors could pull them out". A National Farmer's Union spokesman said "The oaks lie at the bottom of the peat soil on the hard sub-soil. By ploughing deeper

Mr Fletcher has struck this level". He said: "Bog oaks are not as common around Ely as they used to be as most of them have been cleared. They are several thousand years old"

Mecca ice rink, p5

1973 03 12
The people of Elsenham, near Saffron Walden, regard their pump house highly. When someone fenced it in they reacted strongly. Within hours a crowd of 100 villagers gathered round the fence and minutes later all that remained of it were planks of wood tossed ito a back garden. The woman who put up the fence watched helplessly as it was destroyed. Now she and her mother were leaving the village. It was difficult to find villagers prepared to talk about the incident which revolved around a village pump house built by Sir Walter Gilbey in memory of his wife. The pump house has been used as a meeting place by youths and children for many years. The question of who owns it is still unresolved

Ambulance HQ, p9
University seek damages sit in, p10

1973 03 13
A change in the system of Government financial aid to developing towns will severely affect industrial schemes in mid-Anglia. Huntingdon councillors were last night dismayed by the impact of the new system and Mildenhall are seeking talks with Government to offset the problems it will create for the town. At Haverhill the council are less worried because industrial expansion is fairly well advanced in the town. St Neots is not affected because they do not rely on the Greater London Council for providing these funds. Expanding towns have been borrowing money freely from the G.L.C. to finance non-key scheme such as industrial expansion projects. Now this will be more difficult

Redundancy may follow rises, p11
Girls Grammar School to be community college, p13

1973 03 14
Student strike, p1
Are you being served, p3
Lamp standards disappearing, p10
Chery Hinton plan, p14

1973 03 15
A man died yesterday when a tanker loaded with 6,000 gallons of diesel oil crashed and exploded on the A11 at Quendon near Saffron Walden. Two others were injured the crash and the road was blocked for six hours. The crash occurred when a tanker and an articulated lorry collided head on. Both vehicles went up in the air as they hit, then the lorry caught fire. Burning fuel flooded down the road and the hedges caught fire. A pall of smoke rose over the A11. Firemen faced what one described as "flames rolling down the road towards us". They put out the fires in the hedges and used foam to control the blazing vehicles.

Cambridge's notorious Trumpington Road - Lensfield Road junction was back to its old bunged-up state last night, with queues of smoking traffic and frustrated drivers paralysed by £3,000 worth of new, improved, traffic lights. Having been out of action for the best part of two months the lights came on again having been retimed, moved and the traffic flow redesignated by the traffic experts of the Department of the Environment's Bedford-based traffic unit. The junction's real test came at teatime and by 5.40 p.m. mutinous drivers were breathing imprecations through their exhaust fumes. Drivers were saying that 15 minutes had been added to their travelling time

Garden House plans, p11

1973 03 16
The ghosts of mid-Anglia will provide a job for members of the new Cambridgeshire County Council when they start their work after April. For the council will have to look at the organisation of all the old council records and other archives now kept by the separate Cambridgeshire and Isle of Ely, and Huntingdon and Peterborough councils. The archives of Huntingdon and Peterborough are managed jointly with those of Northamptonshire by a single archivist. Cambridgeshire archivist, Michael Farrar, says "Any solution that involved the separation of the historical Soke records from those of Northamptonshire is archivally objectionable and next to impossible".

Cambridge Water Company may appeal to gardeners and car washers to ration their water this summer, after the lowest winter rainfall for many years. The deputy manager of the Company said "We are in the situation where in March we are down to end-of-summer levels. We have had about only one half of our normal rainfall. And only a quarter of that has got through to the underground strata. We usually get ten inches of rainfall in the six winter months. This year, after five months, we have only had five inches"

Cambridge drop necklace villages plan, p20
Sir Roger de Trumpington price freeze, p21
Tourism team, p24

1973 03 17
Rex drink licence, p5

1073 03 19
Unions back St Ives line, p7
Cromwellshire, p9
Soham HQ new council, p10

1973 03 20
Laser-Scan Ltd, who will become the first Cambridge company to move on to the Trinity Collage science park at Milton Road, are a typical science-based concern. Founded in 1969 the Company was the brainchild of three Cavendish Laboratory scientists. They could not afford the type of equipment which could do the work they wanted, so decided to design their own apparatus and get it made. Within two years they had established firmly the principles they wished to follow, within two further years they had built the necessary working equipment, known as a "sweepnik". However a firm cannot stand still and the firm hopes to be in their 5,000 square feet factory on the Science Park by the end of the summer. As a high-technology business Laser-Scan are precisely what the planners have in mind for the science Park. Work on laying the spine road and sewers began this month and developers hope to have the first phase completed by August. When fully developed the 13-acre site is planned to provide up to sixteen factory units. Trinity College expect the final development to provide jobs for up to 1,000 people

Haslingfield recreation centre & doctor, p12

1973 03 21
The Ugandan Asian emergency camp at Stradishall, near Haverhill, ended today, six months after those who were forced to flee President Amin's regime arrived at the former RAF camp, penniless, cold, tired and miserable in the September drizzle. The vicar of Wickambrook, who has organised much of the social resettlement of the refugees, voiced his deep appreciation to the people throughout mid-Anglia who have taken Asians to their homes for weekend visits. Now plans are being made for a new group of residents at Stradishall who are unlikely to be allowed to make approved weekend visits to local homes. From April 1at the camp becomes Home Office property in readiness for its conversion to a prison

1973 03 24
The Stretham Sunday feast parade which appeared in jeopardy earlier this week will go on the Rev John Hornby said yesterday. Fears that the feast might be cancelled grew when Mrs Lottie Wright of Eric Wright Haulage of High Street Stretham said they would not be helping an6y fund-raising activities in the village. Mrs Wright told the annual parish meeting she t6hought remarks made by councillors about her firm's safety record were "libellous" and this was why she pulled out. But Mr Hornby, the village rector said he had an offer of alternative vehicles for the May6 parade within 24 hours of the announcement

1973 03 26
Work on the proposed £4 million industrial development scheme for Studlands Park, Newmarket, is to begin shortly. The developers, Beadle Property Holdings, announced that tenders for the first part of the 30-acre project are going out this week. Work is scheduled to begin on the first five 10,000 sq ft factories in the summer. The complex, to be known as the Beadle Trading Estate will take four years t6o complete and will provide jobs for an estimated 1,000 people

1973 03 27
The Pye group intend to maintain their workforce at about 23,600, the chairman, Lord Thorneycroft, said today. This followed four years of staff pruning in which 6,000 people have lost their jobs. Since the Philips takeover in February 19sixtyseven a policy of rationalisation has been carried out in all companies and operations within the Pye group. Staff cuts were made from a peak of 29,636 employees in 1969. Over the past five years sales per employee have almost doubled and trading profit has shot up from 8.4 to 22.4 per cent

1973 03 27
Captain Adrian Hudson, a self-confessed Colonel Blimp, and one of the best-known eccentrics in Cambridgeshire was found dead last night in his battered caravan home at Caldecote. About 10 years ago he began a long war of attrition with all forms of bureaucracy. He called for the dissolution of Caldecote parish coucil and he once tried to take a colection of plastic buckets into the public gallery at a county council mee6ting. Once, when interviewed, he descried himself as "an old blimp. One of the many Old Blimps knocking around disregarded by pedagogues who don't know how to run anything"

Castle Street widening, p12
Pye chief on jobs / profits, p10
Dinette at Ely, p14

1973 03 28
There is a serious housing shortage in Soham, one of the town's representatives told the annual parish meeting. "We have been striving to get additional accommodation for Soham. We are in a very bad condition as far as houses and bungalows go. The housing list gets longer every month, and we now have a colossal list". Work on Palmer's Field development scheme, consisting of 11 houses and 22 bungalows was expected to start in a month or two. "We hope that early next year we will have some accommodation with which we can help some of these people on the housing list"

Elsworth schoo, p16
Library checking system, p20

1973 03 29
Ice rink hopes, p9
Spiritualists' hall, p19
Cambridgeshire Hotel, Bar Hill supplement

1973 03 30

The slow release of new building land by both national and local government was condemned by one of the nation's leading property developers, Mr Victor Matthews, when he opened the new £1m. Cambridgeshire Hotel at Bar Hill. He told the "News" that he could build "at least a dozen Bar Hills" - at £50m a time - in the south of England if there was land to use. The hotel and sport facilities complex at Bar Hill is owned by Cunard-Trafalgar Hotels Ltd. He said, "When we took over Bar Hill five years ago it was a brilliant concept, of an entirely new village, which had turned sour. He said the whole village, which his group took over from the original developers, would cost £50M by the time it was complete

Bailey Grundy Barrett sale, p25

April 1973 CEN

1973 04 02
Goldie, the Cambridge University shadow Boat Race crew, sank in the Thames today. The crew were recovered by a police launch, but the boat has not yet been recovered. The Cambridge oarsmen were unaccompanied when they went down at Barnes Elms Reach, and had to swim for their lives until a police launch arrived. Said a Tideway expert: "I don't know why Goldie went out. The conditions were atrocious and no eight should have undertaken a row. They did not have a coach's launch with them and I understand the crew were in the water for about a quarter of an hour before they were picked up by a police launch". The sinking is the latest in a series of blows to the Light Blues as they prepare for Saturday's Boat Race

Sunday market, p11
Fordham builders Tattersalls, p15

1973 04 03
A rota for extracting water from rivers for crop irrigation and controls on the use of domestic water are among the suggestions put forward by farmers to counteract the water shortage crisis in the Great Ouse River basin. Mr Derek Crawley stressed that farmers argued it seemed unfair that there should be a ban on supplies which were needed for their livelihood when there were no controls on car washing or garden hoses. The river authority pointed out that it is important to keep river flows to a certain level in order that there was the necessary level of dilution to check pollution and ensure the dilution of sewage outlets into the rivers. Already the Ouse at Denver is the lowest since 1934 when records started

Gales, p11
University pact with unions, p12

1973 04 04
Proposals to eat into the Green Belt between Cherry Hinton and Fulbourn to help solve the Cambridge city housing problems were given a rough ride yesterday by Chesterton Rural District Council, who are responsible for much of the area involved. The proposals include a 1,200 unit housing programme for a 105-acre site on the borders of the city and Chesterton rural district. They would be built to meet the city's housing needs up to 1978. Land outside the city was investigated recently by the city and county planning authorities who favoured the Cherry Hinton site - but Chesterton councillors were upset at the likely intrusion into the green belt

Election apathy, p8
Canal plans, p15

1973 04 05
Shoplifting amongst schoolchildren is a "sport" which is growing, said to the President of Cambridge Chamber of Commerce, Mr Jack Newbon. "It is not something that just happens. It is calculated. They come down to town from school having already planned on what they intend to do, and then pilfer goods. People who say that this is something that happens on the spur of the moment do not know about the calculation that goes into this sort of thing", he declared

1973 04 06
The villages bordering Cambridge have earned the "necklace" prefix because of their obvious connections with the city. Thousands of commuters have migrated further into the countryside during recent years and some of the once-sleepy villages have had to swallow huge dormitory populations. But, almost without exception they have fought to retain their rural independence and fiercely resisted the take-over ambitions of Cambridge City Council. Now with the county planners talking of another 100 acres for council housing at Cherry Hinton the city council may abandon their fight to expand the Cambridge boundaries

Mr Jack Baldry, chairman of Cambridge's last remaining soft drinks factory died yesterday at the age of 71. He started as a mineral water manufacturer in the city 50 years ago. When the company was started it faced competition from 32 firms in the city. Initial output was 100 dozen bottles a day, but business increased and four years ago a new plant was built which enabled an output of 400 dozen bottles an hour on each of its two units

Devil's Dyke, p10
VAT on city prices, p21
Wash reservoirs, p27

1973 04 09
The Market Square ends of Guildhall Street and Peas Hill, Cambridge, were closed to traffic today as part of city council's plans eventually to make much of the central area into a pedestrian precinct. It is now possible to walk from Sidney Street to King's Parade without crossing a road. City surveyor, Mr Geoffrey Cresswell said that some motorists were still driving round Market Square attempting to get into Peas Hill. The present closure is officially regarded as only "temporary" - although it will last for possibly another two years - while rebuilding of the adjacent Lion Yard site is under way

1973 04 10
The village shop is alive and well, say the British Tourist Authority. And to prove it they have picked out the village shop and post office at Gt Abington. The shop, run by retired R.A.F. squadron leader Jack Armitage, has been highlighted in an article in the magazine "In Britain". Since he and his wife took over the shop they have modernised the inside but left the old front as it was to blend in with the rest of the village. Since they took over three years ago takings have almost doubled. "I am sure there will always be a place for the village shop", she said

Library decline, p7
Sawston traffic, p16

1973 04 11
Bomb disposal experts have been alerted following reports of two explosions under a council house at Southoe, near St Neots. The tenant, Mr Reg Darnell, now believes that is home was built on top of a stick of small anti-personnel bombs which were dropped in the area during the war. He said "I can well remember the bombs being dropped. They didn't go off and were dug up next day from the field where my house now stands. I am convinced that some of the bombs are underneath the place and that's what caused the explosions". He was having a quiet pint in the village pub when the explosion happened. About 10 minutes later there was another even louder explosion. It was just like a bomb going off

Give postmen mini-buses, p15

1973 04 12

The £2¼ m complex for the Cavendish Laboratory on Madingley Road, Cambridge, was declared open by the Vice Chancellor of the University, Prof. A.W. Deer. Large earth banks will hide the new Cavendish site from the Cambridge Inner Relief Road, if it is ever built, and it is hoped the University will not continue to crowd buildings in upon the new site until it achieves another science slum like that left behind in Downing Street

Liver transplant, p1
Swaffham Prior bypass, p13
Freemans history, p14

1973 04 13
Nurses at Chesterton Hospital have dreaded what might happen if flames gripped the most vulnerable of their wards. Sister Pat Hough, of Harston ward, said, "Our ward has 19 continuous care patients. It has a wooden floor and it is above the kitchen". But yesterday she was a lot happier after a mock fire exercise at the old people's home in which a new invention came through its first test. The invention - a harness that lies under the mattress and clicks like a car safety belt into an emergency hammock for the patient - is the brain child of the Hospital's fire officer. She said: "The first patient was down the fire escape 35 seconds after the alarm went off. That is about four times quicker than we could have expected if we had used the conventional method"

The Conservative and Labour parties have both failed to gain overall control of the new Cambridgeshire County Council. Instead of one political party ruling the big new county the balance of power will be in the hands of a centre group of Independents and Liberals. New councillor Mrs Jean Willmer of the Huntingdon rural division said: "People have begun to realise that party politicians are sometimes not as sincere as Independents". Now with the election over there is a two-week lull before the first meeting of the new Cambridgeshire County Council on May 1st. Much of the rest of this year will be spent in appointing officers ready for the final take-over on April 1 1974

Willingham growth, p26

1973 04 14
When 80-year old Louis Sylvester died a secret died with him. For more than sixty years Cambridge people marvelled at the irresistible ice cream that "Lew" of Milton Road, Cambridge, made in the family business he took over from his father. His son Tony said, "Nobody has ever made ice cream like dad. He won diplomas at Olympia for it. I used to help him but only he knew the secret. It is the end of the line now". No other people in Cambridge run that sort of business. When Mr Sylvester left his shop four years ago his departure marked the end of 100 years of the Sylvester ice-cream business

1973 04 18
Old folk care at home, p15

1973 04 19
Cambridge water reserves are now lower than at the end of a normal summer, Cambridge Water Company disclosed yesterday. Officials who have been monitoring supply and demand very carefully during the exceptionally dry winter are now hoping for the sort of summer deluge which will make garden hoses redundant and car washing a waste of time. The average Cambridge rainfall is 22 inches a year but in the 12 months ended March 31st there were only 13 inches. A spokesman said "We are certainly lower than at any time on record and we don't know just how our sources will react. But there is no cause for alarm at the moment

St Ives line, p19

1973 04 21
Every day 83-year old Mr Percy Hoare picks up his buckets and makes his way cautiously along 30 yards of uneven path to collect his daily ration of water. Should he glance up as he fills the buckets from a stand pipe he might be excused a cynical smile. For just a few feet in front of him is a brand new pumping station of the Lee Valley Water Company which each day pumps thousands of gallons of fresh water all over the district. But not to Percy : he and the nine other residents of Silver Row at Wendens Ambo near Saffron Walden are still waiting for the water to be connected to their homes. His landlord points out that the rents were very low. Mr Hoare pays £11.68 rent for six months

Good Friday opening, p7

1973 04 23
Helicopter rescue units at United States Air Force bases at Alconbury and Lakenheath are to close down. There has been a rescue unit at Alconbury since 1968 when it was transferred from a base in Germany. The unit is closing down because of a re-arrangement of the U.S.A.F. rescue services, says the Alconbury base newspaper "Photogram". All rescue personnel are to be given new jobs

1973 04 24
Therfield Heath, p9
City council blueprint, p11
Tories name Robert James leader, p13

1973 04 25
Hilton parish council do not trust the county planners. They have brought out their own village plan, months before any firm proposals by the county. Their main worry is that the character of the village, near St Ives, may be destroyed by overdevelopment, says the parish council clerk, Mr Maurice Furniss. The village proposals criticise Huntington and Peterborough County council planners and claim "they may not be sensitive to the environmental aspects of the village". The Parish council are concerned the planners may not have considered the need, with a more than doubling of the population, to provide sites for shops and other services

In the ordinary course of events Gerald Brown of Great Gransden is a farmer who goes about his work without anyone taking much notice. But in common with others he greatly cares for the centuries-old village church of St Bartholomew. So when the weather cock on top on the steeple became dangerous during the recent gales, it was a quiet farmer who volunteered to become a steeple jack to put matters right. Helped by the Vicar, Rev W. Harbury, and others he climbed the 100 twisting stone steps to the top of the tower. The party then had to haul up two ladders by rope and Gerald climbed to the top of the spire. The cock was leaning at a crazy angle. He carried out the repairs, oiled it and now hopes it will be at least another 40 years before it again needs repairing

1973 04 26
The scheme to build a hypermarket for Tesco on the outskirts of Cambridge has been rejected by the city council. The scheme was put forward on behalf of Tesco by Stokes of Cambridge Ltd. They asked permission to build a 100,000 square foot hypermarket with a car park for 900 cars on land off Milton Road next to the railway line. The store would have been one of the largest in Cambridge. In turning it down the planning committee said it was outside the area allocated for development, would encourage extra traffic on a fast trunk route and was against the shopping policy for Cambridge in which large scale development is aimed at the Fitzroy Street - Burleigh Street area

Owlstone Croft, p16

1973 04 27
Cambridge city council's housing waiting list has been rising at a crisis rate since the beginning of early last year. Counc. Christopher Bradford said: "Throughout last year applications for the waiting list have been accepted at the rate of 75 a month. Last year hundreds of people put their names on our housing list because they can no longer afford to buy their own property". Coun. Mrs Doris Howe said: "I believe the problem will get a lot worse. It is now almost impossible for a young couple in this city to buy a house unless they have one to sell. We must have a vastly increased programme for letting houses and we must have the land"

The railway children will be laughing and chattering again soon in the waiting room and ticket office of the ghost station at Haddenham - although it is years since the train passed along the line. The little station will come to life again as a result of the vision and far-sightedness of Mrs Jean Holdaway, the Girl Guides County Commissioner, who saw that the crumbling building had the possibility for being turned into a splendid outdoor activities centre for Guides. The old waiting room will become the living-cum-dining-room for the parties of Brownies, Guides and Rangers who will use the centre. The first Brownies will arrive to stay at Haddenham Halt just as Mrs Holdaway retires as County Commissioner after five years in the job

A combination of originality and discipline had distinguished his company over the past 25 years, said Mr Sam Alper, chairman of Caravans International Ltd. He was reminiscing at a luncheon given to celebrate a quarter of a century of the Sprite caravan, which is manufactured at the rate of one every four minutes at the company's factory at The Oaks, Fordham Road, Newmarket. Mr Alper paid tribute to Newmarket where the firm had come by chance in 1948. "It is unique and it would be a tragedy if it lost its uniqueness because the importance of racing were to disappear or fade and become insignificant". His firm had had their problems with what was the only industry in Newmarket but that was natural to react against the introduction of a foreign body

Lion Yard site, p17
Royston tithe barn fire, p19

1973 04 30
Cambridge United into 3rd Division, p1, 6-7

May 1973 CEN

1973 05 01
WVS mini-van, p9

1973 05 02
Exultant Cambridge United players shared the glory with the fans after Saturday's epic 3-2 win against Mansfield - the win which takes them into the Third Division. The Untied players, directors, officials and their wives will be guests at a civic reception at the Guildhall. It has never been done before and will probably never be done again. That was Cambridge United's chairman Geoffrey Proctor's view of the clubs starling 22-year rise to the Third Division since turning professional. "It all started in 1950-51 when we turned professional in the United Counties League and now we are in the Third Division. Naturally we want to go up to the Second Division and even First Division football. Meanwhile manager Bill Lievers, the author of so much emotion the day before, spent yesterday morning helping groundsman Alec James take down the Abbey Stadium goalposts in readiness for full-scale work on levelling the pitch at the Newmarket Road end 73 05 03 [14.10]

Recluse, p11
Cabbage & carrots, p13
Prayers & praise, p15
May Day march - TUC Day of protest against Government, p18

1973 05 03
The government has overruled the Cambridge city planners and given Sainsbury's the go ahead to build a large supermarket and shopping complex in Cambridge. Last autumn planners rejected an application to build on what used to be a precast concrete factory site at the Brooks Road - Coldham's Lane corner. Now the Department of the Environment has granted permission. There is little doubt that city planning officials are embarrassed by it - because it cuts sharply across their own proposals to safeguard the council's Burleigh Street shopping re-development project 73 05 03

1973 05 04
It could be a record year for four singers from Cambridge area who have all had new LPs issued within the last few months. They are Pete Atkin, Jancis Harvey, Pete Sayers and Shusha. Mr Atkin, a professional singer appeared in several University Footlights Club revues. His lyricist is Clive James, a Pembroke graduate, critic, journalist and erstwhile front man of the television programme "Cinema". Jancis Harvey, clear-voiced as ever but now very much more professional, has filled the Albert Hall at Nottingham while singing in concert. Pete Sayers, country singer and guv'nor of Grand Ole Opry, the monthly show at Newmarket, needs no introduction to countless Newmarket fans

Newnham log fires, p17

1973 05 05
Cambridgeshire & Isle of Ely County Council today ignored a Government request to axe £750,000 from their estimated £34 million spending this year. Alderman John James said that if money could be saved in Cambridgeshire this year it would be put in the balances of the new county council purely for the benefit of Huntingdon and Peterborough ratepayers

1973 05 08
Arrests for drug offences in the mid-Anglia region are equal to those of any large city and other more densely populated areas of the country, the Chief Constable, Mr F. Drayton Porter, said today. The number of people taken to court for drug offences was 246 last year, almost double the 1971 figure of 125. He said the arrest rate pointed to the increasing effectiveness of the Aid-Anglia police drug squad

1973 05 09
Cambridge Students' Union secretary, Mr Rodney Smyth, made university history yesterday as the first undergraduate to speak during a Senate discussion. Normally only Dons are allowed to take part in discussions but for consideration of the joint Don-Student Committee report on student representation in university government both undergraduates and postgraduates were given a special dispensation. Mr Smyth, who had earlier listened to criticisms of the C.S.U. told Dons that he did not think the organisation at present was representative enough of Cambridge students. Proposals to put four students on Cambridge University's "inner cabinet", the Council of the Senate, got a frosty reception

Mecca dance hall, p15
Hovertrain team, p17
Royston trains, p20

1973 05 10
County planners envisage that the population of Sutton - classified as a "growth village" - may almost double to 4,000 by 1981. The council chairman, Mr Marcus Darby, said, "I don't see why we shouldn't accept the proposed growth. It must help the prosperity of the village". Planning officials spoke of possible extensions at the village school, or the building of a second school and possible areas for new building development. They suggested the former airfield and the old railway station as suitable sites for any small firms who might wish to come to Sutton. Councillors also suggested the allocation of a site for a community centre

1973 05 11
Cambridge college libraries, which are of fundamental importance to undergraduates, have strikingly small staffs, states a report published this week. It says "No fewer than nine college libraries, including two large ones, have no full-time staff. They have well under half the ratio of staff to books found necessary for the efficient administration of departmental libraries". In the present year, it is estimated that the University will give college libraries a total of £12,000

1973 05 12
A woman doctor spoke last night about sexpot girls from Cambridge schools who wander around trying to be sexual objects. Dr Shirley Emerson, a family planning advisor, said "I have met girls who have never learned anything about sex except that sex is the thing to do but that you have to be successful at it. Boys and girls are trying to do sex at "O" levels, I have 17-year-olds coming to me complaining that they are frigid"

Pampisford pub fire, p7

1973 05 14
Over 5,000 people - umbrella-ed, rain-coated and overcoated against a cold drizzling afternoon - packed into Ely's park for the BBC "It's a Knock-Out" between Ely and Hertford. It turned out not so much of a knockout as a slaughter as Ely won by a record 19-1. Now Ely have won themselves a trip to Arnhem in Holland for an international "Jeux-sans-frontiers" heat in August. Genial Eddie Waring - sharing commentating duties with Stuart Hall said "It is a remarkable performance and I think the biggest margin we have ever had". Team manager, David Cornwell said, "I don't believe it"

1973 05 15
The centre of Ely became one big pedestrian precinct as streets were sealed off to traffic for a ten-day festival - the 1,300 year-old city's most spectacular event of this, or possibly any other, century. Six thousand costumed children from 670 schools in the Diocese poured in by train, coach and on foot to make merry in a festival organised as part of the cathedral's 13th-century celebrations. It aimed at recreating the atmosphere of the ancient St Etheldreda's fair. Monks, peddlers and mummers roamed the streets, slaves were auctioned, bears were baited, beef was roasted on spits in the Market Place, local shopkeepers and their staffs in costume joined in the fun making

Methodist leaders are planning an all-out campaign to beat Haverhill's mounting social problems. Their main targets are the bingo playing mums who spend their house-keeping money, child cruelty, rowing parents and street corner youngsters with nothing to do but drink. Rev George Sharman said on bingo: "It's harmless for a little while. But we know that some mothers spend £3 or £4 a week. They start spending their housekeeping and the tension mounts

1973 05 16
Ely festival, p12
Bottisham peacock, p15
A45 motorway, p20

1973 05 17
The fens were yesterday swept by the most severe blow this spring, as high winds picked up the lighter peats in the Soham, Stretham and Mepal district, uprooting new sown crops of beet and carrots, which are particularly vulnerable. The blow appeared to be widespread and raged for several hours. There have been two blows so far this spring but neither has caused widespread damage. Last year, more than 10,000 acres of sugar beet had to be replanted after a blow at roughly the same time. A Soham farmer, Mr Guy Shropshire has been using a prototype machine which "plants" straw between vegetable rows to prevent wind damage on his 1,000-acre farm

Willingham planning, p9

1973 05 18
More than a thousand farmers and industrialists through Mid Anglia are being sent warning letters telling them they may be ordered to reduce their water consumption next month. A clampdown on the amount of water used for farm irrigation is now being seriously contemplated. Rainfall over the last year has been almost the lowest on record and now there are fears that the quality of Mid Anglia rivers may reach crisis point during the hot summer months unless action is taken soon

Swavesey estate, p23

1973 05 19
Milton Hall, p7
Willingham plan, p7

1973 05 21
Sir Harry Legge-Bourke MP has died at his London home. He came to live in Ely in 1946, the year after he won the Isle of Ely parliamentary seat from the Liberals. He farmed at Witchford for the next 12 years and named his Ely home Witchford House. Sir Harry played an active role in county affairs and was a popular and hard-working Member of Parliament. He fought eight campaigns to retain his Isle of Ely seat for 28 years. Sir Harry was often dubbed "the galloping major" for the zest with which he tackled his electioneering campaign

Clay Farm scheme, p8
Baldry jubilee supplement

1973 05 22
Vice-chancellor in demonstration, p7
St Neots bridge, p13

1973 05 23
After 700 years of male domination the first woman to be chosen as Vice Chancellor - the effective head of Cambridge University - does not anticipate any particular problems in dealing with her male colleagues. Miss Rosemary Murray, who is president of New Hall, was nominated by the Council of Senate. She will take up her post in two years if the nomination is accepted by the university, usually a formality. She is due to take charge at a difficult time in the university's history, when students are demanding more and more say in the running of its affairs

The £11,000 a year top management job on the new Cambridgeshire County Council has been given to 38-year-old Mr John Barratt, the deputy town clerk of Bradford. He will take control of the hundreds of staff who will ultimately be appointed to the new council or transferred from the present Cambridgeshire and Isle of Ely County Council. One of his first jobs will be to advise on the appointment of a team of chief officers who will form a boardroom style management group when the new council takes over responsibility from the old on April 1st next year

1973 05 24
Shelford superstore, p14

1973 05 25
After 86 years in business the Cambridge firm of A.W. Crisp and co., the first people to commercially introduce heraldic design work in the city, have closed down. Their premises at King's Parade will come up for auction next month. As one of the few freehold properties which become available in the city centre a price of £150,000 is on the cards. The firm were responsible for the wooden spoons given to the mathematics tripos candidate with the lowest examination mark.

Steeple Morden hall, p4

1973 05 26
5-mile jams, p9

1973 05 28
Waterbeach feast, p7

1973 05 29
Extra police were drafted in from Mid-Anglian towns for a pop concert at St Ives attended by hundreds of teenagers who had come to see The Sweet pop group. The crowd was not as big as organised hoped. Even one of The Sweet commented when he got up on the stage; "There isn't many of them, is there". The top pop group was supposed to have arrived in a helicopter, but in fact they slipped almost unnoticed into the grounds in a large black car. Only a handful of fans saw them come in, most were listening to a supporting discotheque

There was no one to take the Mayor of Cambridge for a ride when he opened the centuries-old fair at the tiny fenland village of Reach. After performing the traditional opening ceremony the Mayor usually takes off his hat, and the town clerk hangs on to his wig for a civic whirl on the dodgems. But this time there were no dodgems. There were not any coconut shies either, or rifle ranges, or roundabouts. In fact Reach green was almost deserted apart from a hot dog caravan, a fluffy doll stall, a sweet stand and a beer tent. The cause of all the trouble was that the newly designated spring bank holiday this year had clashed with the anniversary of the Reach fair charter, which was granted by King John in 1201

Magrath Avenue violence, p11
Burwell windmill, p16

1973 05 30
A £90,000 bypass has brought peace to the village of Eltisley, near St Neots. Suddenly last week the roar of traffic from the A45 ceased and a comparative silence descended on the man road. The rumble of continental juggernauts stopped and the danger from fast-moving cars almost disappeared. To celebrate the arrival of the by-pass one young married couple took a leisurely stroll down the middle of the old main road - something that would have been impossible during a normal bank holiday with a stream of traffic travelling at least 50 mph. But not all Eltisley welcomed the by-pass. The local garage owner, Mr Tim Furlonger, since it could be a disaster as far as his business is concerned

Motorists pay to park at home, p12

1973 05 31
The skid-lid industry is booming in Cambridge where sales of motor cycle crash helmets are rocketing. The reason for the boom is the June 1st deadline when police start enforcing the new law that all riders of motor-cycles must wear securely-fastened crash helmets. While 80 per cent of motor cycle owners currently wear crash helmets far fewer passengers own or wear them. Now they will have to. At Halfords in Bridge Street, Cambridge a spokesmen said their sales were up by at least 50 %. Hallens of Cambridge, probably the city's biggest motor cycle and accessory firm said; "Saturday was chaotic"

Saffron Walden building, p12

June 1973 CEN

1973 06 01
Air pollution in the older parts of Cambridge is currently higher than the urban average for East Anglia. Even so it is well below those of other parts of the country. The National Survey of Air Pollution says "smoke concentrations in the older high-density residential area are currently above the urban average, smoke pollution in the remaining areas should be generally below average". Sulphur dioxide concentration monitored on the roof of the Guildhall is below average, but in other areas of Cambridge were not so favourable

Cars soon banned, p21
Superstore policy shelved, p22

1973 06 02
Students invade garden party, p7
Joe Bugner, p10

1973 06 04
This is the week the bulldozers break through a tangle of red tape and purse strings to make a start on two vital bypasses for towns in the Cambridge area. Today a start is made at Huntingdon, in two days it will be the turn of Newmarket, one of Britain's worst bottlenecks. The two schemes have escaped the Government's road spending axe. Together they will cost £15 million and take two years to complete

1973 06 05
The Cambridge City Surveyor, Mr Geoffrey Cresswell, claimed today that speed-reducing ramps built into roadways - sometimes called "sleeping policemen" are "positively dangerous". He told the Public Works Committee that these bumps in the road could cause fatal accidents, particularly to cyclists and motor-cyclists. The Government are asking local councils to look for suitable areas where these ramps could be installed. After a brief discussion the committee decided they did not want any "sleeping policemen" in Cambridge

St Ives line, p16

1973 06 06
Kite pay park, p5
Gt Shelford plan, p10

1973 06 07
History was made in Cambridge today with the birth of the first calf from a frozen embryo which had been transplanted into a host mother. The Hereford bull calf was born at the Agricultural Research Council's Unit of Reproductive Physiology and Biochemistry. The calf was reported to be in god condition by the pioneer of the new technique, Dr L.E.A. Rowson of the Cambridge A.I. centre. The process has been achieved successfully with a number of smaller animals like mice and rabbits but this is the first time that it has been done with cattle

A severe shortage of casual labour in St Neots means that dustbins in the town aren't being emptied every week. The council's Engineer said "No-one seems to want jobs like emptying dustbins or cutting grass verges any more. Although people could earn about £30 a week it just doesn't seem to attractive to them"

1973 06 08
Labour have taken control of the new Cambridge District Council with a landslide win over the Conservatives. When the final results were declared they had a clear majority of 10 on the new district council which supersedes the city council on April 1 next year. This is the first time in Cambridge local government history that Labour have won overall control. The Mayor of Cambridge, Ald. Stanley Bowles, a former Conservative leader on the city council was defeated. He will continue as mayor until the city council ceases

1973 06 11
Newmarket council shock, p12

1973 06 12
Mid-Anglia police have armed themselves with CS gas shotguns for use in quelling mob violence. The force are also standardising their other weapons. They have taken delivery of five Smith and Wesson revolvers, the first batch of a total of 28 handguns the area's policemen will have at their disposal. To complete the arsenal the Chief Constable has authorised the purchase of a dozen 7.62 mm rifles with telescopic sights. Until last April the force held about a dozen .303 rifles and about 30 assorted handguns

1973 06 13
City council Alderman, Mr Jack Warren, will be elected as the first chairman of the new Cambridge District Council. His vice-chairman will be city councillor Mrs Wendy Nicol. Both are prominent Labour party members. Ald Warren has been a member of the city council for more than 20 years. He was mayor during 1964. Mrs Nicol is a comparative newcomer to the Cambridge local government scene, being first elected just over a year ago. She is a former civil servant who has lived in Cambridge 30 years.

1973 06 14
Queen Mother visit, p15

1973 06 15
Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, relaxed and obviously enjoying her visit to Wesley House, Cambridge, delayed part of her programme to talk to more members of the college than planned. The six-year-old daughter of the Senior Tutor - Rosemary Skinner - showed a marked reluctance to hand over a posy of flowers to the Queen Mother, but the three-year-old son of the college students' chairman decided to make his own impromptu and unscheduled offering of a potato crisp. And watched by the Lord Lieutenant, the university's divinity professors and a host of other dignitaries young John Oglesby persisted and all the assembled guests had to wait their turn. The queen Mother, in a grandmotherly way, accepted his gift with thanks and a brief chat

Tickell Arms – service not included, p5

1973 06 15
"If your face doesn't fit don't be surprised if you are told". Thus runs an entry for a Cambridgeshire pub in a new guide to hostelries. The pub? The Tickell Arms at Whittlesford - and the outspoken entry appears in the Country Gentlemen's Association Pub Guide. But to the landlord-owner Mr Kim Tickell it comes as no surprise - his establishment has appeared in a number of guides - but later been removed for a variety of reasons. The entry reads "a unique place and unlike anything else in the world. The landlord is apt to leap over the bar, insult you, send you into fits of laughter, depending on his or your mood". It gets bottom marks for service

1973 06 18
Marshall of Cambridge (Engineering) have just finished a nose transplant - on a giant Hercules transport aircraft. The successful transplant "operation" took two years to perform. The modified aircraft will investigate turbulence in clear and cloudy weather and is the only one of its kind. Inside the Hercules the transformation has been no less striking. A laboratory has been constructed and four scientists can keep track of data as it flows from the nose instruments to the aircraft's "brain centre"

1973 06 19
Waterbeach may get a £150,000 by-pass instead of just a new minor road into the village - because of Cambridge's traffic problems. If the plans are accepted the by-pass will link the main Cambridge-Ely road near the Slap-Up junction with the Clayhithe Bridge over the River Cam. The mile-long by-pass would replace the short stretch of road originally planned to link the A10 with the centre of Waterbeach. The County Surveyor said that the by-pass was now being recommended because of the large volume of traffic using the Fen Ditton - Waterbeach road as a short-cut to the Eastern side of Cambridge to avoid the congested city streets

One way housing dilemma, p7
Another rainless week, p12

1973 06 20

Mid-Anglia revelled in rain last night. Nearly one-and-a-half inches soaked the area - about a quarter of this year's total rainfall - and although there was some damage to crops and minor flooding in country areas, farmers said that the rain came just in time to save the threat of poor crops. The downpour also helped the water shortage temporarily but a water board spokesman said: "No-one should think they can go ahead and use all the water they can. We are still in difficulties". The only flooding of any proportion was at Duck Lane, St Neots, a notorious spot for trapping water

1973 06 21
A 7½ cwt bullock, slaughtered on Monday, was hoisted on to a pit alongside a wood fire in the Park at Ely. For the next three days it will be slow-roasted ready for a barbecue that will form part of an Ely festival year entertainment on Saturday night. The operation is being supervised by Ely butcher, Mr Toni Rayment. It is the first whole ox is to be roasted in Ely for 38 years. The last time was in May 1935 when his father roasted one for King George's jubilee celebrations. It will be cut into 5,000 helpings.

Linton village factory, p7

1973 06 22
Claims by a prominent Cambridge trades unionist that many bored and disgruntled Cambridge City Council tenants were demanding to be moved from the Arbury estate were rejected this afternoon by the Housing Committee chairman, Coun John Powley. The claims were made by Don Millard. He said both young and old people were asking to be moved nearer to the city centre because they were bored with life at Arbury. He added that the boredom was due to the lack of social and community facilities and a dearth of public houses. The claims were supported by Counc Mrs Janet Jones, a Labour county councillor for the area. "Arbury and Kings Hedges are just like an isolated satellite town", she said. "People are always asking us to help them move away because they do not like living there"

1973 06 23
Two Mid-Anglia farm workers with 106 years' service between them will be presented with long-service awards at the East of England Show. Mr Bertie Cowl of Soham can look back on 52 years on the land, most of them working for the same employer. Mr Harry Pryor can look back on an almost unbroken span of 54 years on the same farm at Great Shelford. Mr Cowl was born in Soham Fen. When the late Mr Herbert Bedford took over Fletcher's farm he joined him and has been there ever since. As farming has become more mechanised Mr Cowl has one special regret: "I particularly miss horses", he said. Mr Pryor who is 70 started on a farm at the age of 10 as a part-time cattle drover earning 3d a week. "We used to leave off school at 12 and then I'd run down to the village to take the cows from the fields into the barns for milking". He has never fully come to terms with driving a tractor and still looks back affectionately to when horse provided the power in the fields

1973 06 25
The Bishop of Ely, the Rt. Rev. Edward Roberts, and the Bishop of Huntingdon, the Rt. Rev Eric Walls, completed their 300 miles "beat the bounds" tour of their widespread diocese on Saturday. And their return together to Ely brought shopping to a standstill. Shopkeepers and their staffs, summer dressed and shirt-sleeved customers, lined the streets to watch the Bishops, accompanied by Ely's civic leaders, join in a procession of over 300 diocesan churchwardens to the cathedral for a service addressed by the Archbishop of Canterbury to mark the 1,300th festival service - on St Etheldreda's day

Professor Holloway, p4
Bassingbourn plan, p14

1973 06 27
Samaritans, p9

1973 06 28
A £750,000 deal has been signed for Sinclair Radionics Ltd, of St Ives, to supply more than 30,000 electronic pocket calculators to Japan over the next 18 months. Sinclair, who claim to be the largest European manufacturer of electronic calculators say that the order will mean a 50 per cent increase in the present staff of 120. To help with production they have just taken a lease on a second factory at St. Ives. Mr Clive Sinclair claims the Executive is the world's smallest pocket calculator - it is the size of a 5p bar of chocolate. It sells at a price which puts it at the top end of the market in Japan, in line with their policy of selling a product which has quality and features which make it a prestigious purchase

Royston Brown Librarian, p7
Gamlingay baker, p16

1973 06 29
Huntingdon's "forgotten" town museum may be re-born if plans by the Local History Society get off the ground. They want to build up a town museum in one of the many County Council buildings in the town which may become vacant when the new district council takes over next year. The chairman, Mr Philip Dickinson, said that a Government report, out yesterday, which hits out at the way the county is neglecting its local museums, could have been written for Huntingdon, whose museum closed in 1950

1973 06 29
Latest casualty in the Hills Road office redevelopment programme is the 100-year-old Methodist Church. Demolition work started yesterday. In autumn last year any people were surprised to learn that an active church in so sound a financial position and such good repair should close its doors. But the trustees had been aware for some time that the building was just too large; it has a seating capacity for 750 and a congregation of less than 200. The congregation transferred to the Wesley Church, Christ's Pieces, or to other Methodist churches closer to their homes. The property went on the market in November 1972.

1973 06 30
Mr Clement Freud is to be Liberal candidate in the Isle of Ely by-election. he was chosen last night by a convincing vote by the Isle Liberal Association. It is the first time Mr Freud, a journalist, television personality and gourmet has stood for parliament. The by-eection is caused by the death of Conservative MP, Sir Harry Legge-Bourke

United seat prices, p5

July 1973 CEN

1973 07 02
Social services director, p11

1973 07 03
Joe Bugner will be the world heavy-weight champion in two years time. This is the prediction of his manager, Mr Andy Smith, today as he reported Bugner fit and well after his tremendous 12 rounds battle with Joe Frazier, the former world champion. After Bugner's points defeat, Andy Smith said: "We have no regrets either abbot last night's fight, nor the one Joe lost to Muhammad Ali in February. I would be happier if he had won"

1973 07 04
For the first time sales at the St Neots Co-operative Society have topped the £1,000,000 mark in a year, to complete a decade in which the society have broken records on all fronts every year. "Up until 1962 we were just jogging along, doing all right, but nothing sensational. But since then sales have gone up every year", said the managing secretary, Joe Brooks. The net profit would be available to members either through the Co-op trading stamps or the "nest egg" bonus scheme. The President, HS.

Cobbold, said the management and staff were responsible for the "excellent progress" of the St Neots Co-operative Society, and thy had made "a success story of which St Neots could be justly proud"

Postman shortage, p11

1973 07 05
Emergency hospital treatment had to be given to 11 people after a drum of poisonous chemical spilled on to the roadway at one of Cambridge's busiest junctions as the afternoon rush hour started. The chemical spilled when the drum containing ethyl acrylate split open after falling from a lorry at the Huntingdon Road - Histon Road corner. Immediately the air, in spite of a strong breeze was pungent with the smell of the liquid. The police and fire brigade were called to deal with the problem. The drama, which led ultimately to the total ban of traffic at the junction began at 3.10pm, by 6pm the acrylate was safely loaded on to a sand covered trailer, then in convoy with two fire tenders and police cars it was taken at less than 10 mph the seven miles to the Royal Engineer's airfield at Waterbeach

Oakington, the last operational RAF airfield in Cambridgeshire is to close down and will be sold off within two years, the Defence Lands Committee have recommended. The committee also says that other mid-Anglian airfields and military sites should be returned to civilian use and over 600 acres of land at Molesworth should be sold. It was a bomber base during the war and is now used as a United States Air Force stores and housing complex in association with their use of RAF Alconbury

Council homes costs, p7

1973 07 06
Cockayne theatre, p6

1973 07 07
Hundreds of tons of high explosives are driven through Cambridge every week on open-backed unmarked lorries. This was revealed yesterday after one of the lorries burst a tyre on Huntingdon Road, a mile from the spot where 48 hours earlier a drum of deadly poison fell off a lorry and burst. The high explosives come through Cambridge en route from Felixstowe docks to an ammunition manufacturer at Grantham. Dozens of unmarked lorries pass through Cambridge every week to 10 days carrying the explosives. Many then return to Felixstowe carrying the finished product, various types of ammunition for export abroad

Thunderstorm, p1

1973 07 09
Rosensteil paints road signs, p11
Burwell expansion, p14

1973 07 10
Long trousers will be in vogue at the Netherhall School, Cambridge, this autumn - and it will not be just boys who are wearing them. Netherhall Girls' School will be the first in the area to introduce trouser suits as part of the official uniform. The trouser suit - a French navy crimpeline sleeveless jerkin and trousers - will be worn with a white turtle-neck sweater or a blue-and-white check blouse. Yesterday 14-year-old Linda Shaw modelled the suit, which 11-year-old girls joining the school will be invited to buy. The only objection raised by the girls seems to have been that the trousers are not flared enough

The scheme to widen the notorious A604 Cambridge to Huntingdon road could be axed as a result of the big cutback in Government road spending announced a few weeks ago. The A604 is one of the few roads in the area with long stretches of three-lane single carriageway and has been described by the Chief Constable as the worst road in East Anglia. It is also one of the busiest with much of the East coast port traffic and there have been improvement plans n the pipeline for several years. Under present proposals the road would be turned into a full six-lane highway between Girton and Godmanchester 73 07 10

1973 07 11
The possible reopening of the St Ives - Cambridge passenger rail service is a very real priority, said Mr Robert Gemell, the Chief Passenger Manager of British Rail. He gave an assurance that he was doing all he could to get the line reopened. But the future was really in the hands of local councils and the people living in the area to make their demands for this service heard in the right places, he said. The final decision was with the Government on the advice of British Rail. The recent estimated cost of re-opening the service was £100,000 but British Rail were trying to see if this could be reduced

1973 07 12
It may be the end of the year before the Government finally makes a decision on the already long-delayed plans for St Neots town centre, the MP for Huntingdonshire, Sir David Renton has warned. The delay may last six months until the Government have earmarked which road is to be used as the main Midlands to East Coast ports traffic artery. Planning in St Neots town centre has been virtually paralysed since 1971 when a public inquiry was held into objections to the proposed town map

Mr Geoffrey Datson, Deputy Clerk of Cambridgeshire & Isle of Ely County Council, has been appointed Chief Executive of the new Cambridge District Council. Yesterday Mr Datson said he was "very pleased" about his new job. "The interchange of staff between the county council and the city augers well for the future" he said. It may be some time before Mr Datson knows his exact salary. The committee wants to pay him at the top end of the nationally agreed scale for chief executives. This scale goes up to £8,300 a year

1973 07 13
St Tibbs Row, p5
Hills Road SOS, p17

1973 07 14
Nine days after a leaking drum of ethyl acrylate caused a scare in Cambridge, a five gallon drum of poisonous chemical was found in a field at Sutton - and it took officials six hours to move it to a safe place. It was sitting 10 feet from the main A142 road. The police had no responsibility to move the can. Neither had the fire service. It was finally removed in a local contractor's Morris 1000 pick-up truck and locked away in an isolated hut at Witcham sewage works. (The can, which was labelled "ethyl acetate", was later found to contain pond water)

Whittlesford accident, p6

1973 07 16
Patrick Stephens move, p11

1973 07 17
A "stress centre" may be set up in Cambridge for student nurses under pressure in their professional and personal lives. This is because stress is causing many of them to give up their careers while still in training. For a number of reasons such a centre could not be established for some time, but in the meantime doctor are thinking about carrying out a psychological assessment of those nurses who want to give up their jobs, and appointing a full-time counsellor to give advice to hospital staff generally. It is thought that as many as 15% of those leaving could be suffering, unknowingly, from some form of psychiatric illness

Garden House hotel supplement

1973 07 18
Hildersham pub, p8

1973 07 19
Ely last night won the fourth European heat of the television "It's a Knockout" competition. The ancient cathedral city of Arnhem erupted with English roars and cheers as they scraped home by just three points. The team and their 100 supporters ran riot over the market place. The chairman of the urban council, Coun. Stanley Cornwell, kissed every woman in sight. Later there were all-night parties for the Ely invasion force. The team are now almost certain to go to the final in Paris

Shelford superstore, p10

1973 07 20
Girton Parish Council is to ask the county council to give urgent consideration to drawing up a village plan in a bid to get effective control over large-scale development. The prime concern is the preservation of the Old Rectory, in the heart of the village, until parishioners can decide whether they wished to retain the 18th century building or not. Already 150 homes have been approved which takes Girton to its 1981 population limit. Now it could mean a further large area of land being released for development

Alderman Rigeon dies, p22

1973 07 24
There are 17 vacancies for every unemployed school leaver in Cambridgeshire, it was disclosed yesterday. The principal careers advisory officer, Miss G. Miller, said the jobs glut had highlighted last year's raising of the school leaving age. Most of the vacancies were in shop and offices. Jobs were also plentiful in manufacturing industry - chiefly unskilled labour. A spokesman for Pye, who employ more than 6,000 workers in Cambridge, confirmed they were having difficulties in recruiting school leavers

A Cambridge pensioner claims that old people are being forced to stay away from their church on Sunday mornings because they are baffled by the Series Two Holy Communion service. But now, claims Mr Richard Pettit, who has been going to St Augustine's church, Cambridge, they are outraged by a plan to do away with Series Two and bring in Series Three - a new version of the service in modern English. "They are being forced to sit at home because they can't follow the services, and it's a crying shame" he said

Double triple trouble, p1
First egg transfer trials, p15

1973 07 25
A commercial radio consortium backed by three of the largest firms in Cambridge are asking other city organisations to join them in making plans for local broadcasting. The group have the support of Cambridge Newspapers ltd, the Pye group and Marshall of Cambridge. They represent the first major opposition to the Cambridge Community Broadcasting Company - a consortium set up several years ago by Mr Brian Jackson of the city-based Advisory Centre for Education. It may be almost 1980 before there is any chance of Cambridge getting a commercial station

1973 07 27
A massive vote of no confidence in Ted Heath's government gave the Liberals two shock victories in by-elections today - and made Clement Freud the new M.P. for the Isle of Ely. As the result was announced the 49-year-old journalist, broadcaster and gourmet was hugged jubilantly by his wife and two of his children. Mrs Freud said she had not really thought of her husband as an MP until last week when she was canvassing for him in Ely. She said "I talked to people and I suddenly knew that he was in"

Please make what use of this you may. Kindly remember where it came from – www.mikepetty.org.uk

There was more than a sense of achievement in the air at the official opening of Hemingford sewage works. More than 80 guests had first-hand experience of that certain something that distinguishes a sewage station from any other kind of plant - because the wind was blowing in the wrong direction. In his opening speech the chairman of St Ives Council Health Committee said "I must apologise for the lack of control of air pollution, but I understand it was not possible to have air fresheners for everyone so you will have to put up with it"

1973 07 31
As 9,500 folk music fans slowly drifted away from Cambridge's ninth and largest weekend Folk Festival, the mammoth task of clearing the site at Cherry Hinton Hall began. Damp weather also took its toll of the ground as thousands tramped over the grass. Hundreds had to be turned away as the allocation of tickets was sold out. Festival director, Ken Woollard, said, "It has become a family affair now with whole families and their children coming. If it were much larger it would lose the character and atmosphere"

Rubbish tipped Roman Road, p31

August 1973 CEN
1973 08 01
Rock age revical, p10
Swaffham Prior pub, p11

1973 08 03
Restoration work on the Victorian murals which cover every inch of the chancel at Hildersham parish church has brought a startling change to the interior. They were commissioned in 1880 by the parish priest. The restoration started in February and took 10 weeks to accomplish including cleaning, repairing, regilding and repainting. The dingy state of the murals was not an effect of modern pollution but due to the fact that candles were used exclusively for the church lighting until the 1920s

The story of an old church and a redundant pulpit will unfold its final chapter at Shepreth parish church on Sunday. Two years ago the Vicar visited Hignam Rectory near Gloucester where he noticed a Caroline pulpit standing in the hall. It came from the redundant church of nearby Lassington and they didn't know what to do with it. Mr Breay suggested they give it to Shepreth church and it was eventually agreed. The expense of restoring and installing it was borne by Mr Percy Austin of Harston in memory of his wife. The pulpit and its delicate carving has been expertly restored by Cecil Adams, a local man

1973 08 04
A grand piano which takes several men to lift, was the centre of an attack at Haverhill's Town Hall by the town's Centurians Theatre Group. The group claims they were told by the council that workmen would move it "for a small charge" but it was not done. "A dress rehearsal went on with a grand piano blocking half the stage. The piano was still there on the first night so shoulders to the wheel the actors removed it". Then came the account, together with a bill for its removal. The Council treasurer said the hall is a multi-purpose building. "If it doesn't exactly suit the Centurions they can hardly expect us to transform it for their own particular activity"

1973 08 06
Large housing estates on the Cambridge county boundaries may be built jointly in the future by the new Cambridge and South Cambridgeshire district councils, under a new plan outlined today. It suggests that the councils should get together and set up a special body to hammer out their mutual housing difficulties. At the same time this body could make strong demands on their own local councils and the new Cambridgeshire county council to earmark more land for housing. These efforts would go hand in hand with a concerted drive by commerce and industry to provide more homes for their own workers - perhaps by converting existing buildings into flats or other dwellings

1973 08 07
Shopping and traffic surveys are being prepared to support West Suffolk county council's oppositions to plans to build huge supermarkets in Kentford, near Newmarket and Saxham near Bury. Two firms have applied to build a hypermarket at Kentford, the latest outlines a 60,000 sq foot supermarket with parking for 400 cars. Despite outraged opposition from villagers Mildenhall rural council are supporting this plan. Their clerk said: "They feel these things are coming so we may as well have the rateable value as anybody else. It's a practical way of looking at it"

Hovertrain factory sold, p11

1973 08 08
There are more homes on the market in Mid-Anglia today that there ever have been before. They are changing hands more slowly than they have done for several years. There is less money around, in real terms, to buy them with. Yet their prices remain largely constant. That is the paradox of housing in and around Cambridge in August 1973. But it was only a year ago homes were being snapped up as quickly as an owner hinted he wanted to sell. For many they had watched the value of their house double in less than a year. Today to shift a house in under three months is good selling; to have it on one's hands for six months is not uncommon

Late revellers, p15

1973 08 09
Cambridge is breaking all records this year for visitors. Business at the city council's tourist information bureau has almost doubled and staff are working flat out to cope with the demand for help and advice. The council's new hotel booking service has been overwhelmed by visitors looking for rooms and late yesterday a queue of tourists looking for accommodation had formed at the Guildhall bureau. Miss Margaret Badcock, who is in charge of tourist information estimates that the market square kiosk is handling up to 300 questions a day. She estimates that business was up by between 80 and 90 per cent

New Civic restaurant, p10

1973 08 10
Brrington lorries, p16
Magdalene Bridge, p23

1973 08 11
Three young women in distress have put Cambridge public health inspectors in a tight spot. They are victims of a mystery wind-borne attacker that makes holes in their tights - but only on Monday mornings when the trio are walking to work. "Little holes suddenly start appearing in our tights", said 20-year-old Sally Chapman. “There are small black holes like burns around the holes. Jo gets holes round her ankles. I get them round the knees and down. All sorts of places.” The public health department has twice taken pairs of tights away for examination.

1973 08 13
It is now one of the last places in Cambridge one would look for a blacksmith's forge ... an old brick building standing behind a large, brand new house in Russell Street. Most of the other buildings in the street have fallen to demolition. Cambridge's last remaining blacksmith, is Chubb Webb. The family business, which will be 100 years old next year, now shoes horses mainly for riding schools, but it also has as much work as three men can handle in other directions - making springs for vehicles, forging wrought iron for gates, widows and grilles and using brass for window surrounds. One customer ordered a life-size cat cut out of steel. She wanted it to go on top of a sign, to name her house

Essex drivers Vascar, p12

1973 08 14
Just how important is one product in the range of a group which has 40 companies turning out a whole range of products? The answer for Pye - when it comes to colour television - is very important. For continuing good sales of colour television is one of the main reasons for the group's record sales and profits in the first six months of this year. The chairman, Lord Thorneycroft forecasts continued high sales: "I think the actual rush is over but with the Royal wedding coming along in November and the World Cup series next year there is no knowing where it is going to end". The sales of the group rose 29% to £84 million

1973 08 15
Super-county team now complete, p13

1973 08 17
As the temperatures soar the queues for ice cream get longer and longer but buying ice cream nowadays is an expensive business and prices vary considerably from queue to queue. This year ice cream should be cheaper because it is zero rated for VAT. In fact some of the ice cream makers have knocked 1p of some makes. A 3p lolly last year costs 2p in many places and a 6p choc bar last year can now be bought in some places for 5p. But prices vary from place to place. A medium sized ice cream at a shop in Arbury, Cambridge, costs 4p yet a similar one on Newmarket racecourse costs exactly double

Mini "bombers" are terrorising tourists on the River Cam. Mr Bell of Scudamore's boatyards, Mill Lane, Cambridge, said "A lot of people who cannot swim go out on the river. It seems nothing is going to be done till somebody is seriously injured or drowned". He said youngsters were playing "bombing" games, jumping in at the iron bridge and diving boards near the swimming pool and landing as close to the boats as possible. He understands that youngsters involved are in the seven to 11 age group 73 08 17

Tony Cornwll in New Guinea, p4
David Lane on planning, p19

1973 08 20
Only three boats took part in a demonstration cruise to drawn attention to the Reach and Burwell lodes which were in danger of being closed and drained. But Great Ouse River Authority had already agreed to spend £155,000 in preserving the waterway. The lodes were constructed to drain the fens but the drainage has shrunk the peat soil so that the waterways and their banks stand above the surrounding land. Now the banks are wearing and leaking - flooding the land they were constructed to drain

Norman Hall organs, p3

1973 08 21
A group of doctors who set up a hard drugs clinic in Cambridge during the 1960s believe they have now contained the spread of heroin addiction in the city. The first full report on almost seven years work by the Containment Unit for Drug Misuse has been produced by Dr Ross Mitchell, a Cambridge consultant psychiatrist. The unit was established to deal with hard drug addiction and he is not sure whether the same methods could be used to deal with the spread of "soft" drugs. "The misuse of drugs like cannabis and LSD have a large personal, political and ideological component. Our concern should be with young people at risk and we should attempt to set up facilities which will recognise this risk and try to provide continuing support", he said

Mid Anglia Police yesterday settled down to business in their lush new headquarters complex at Hinchinbrook Park, near Huntingdon. Removal men are busy removing stores from the old buildings at The Manor, Brampton. Removal vans laden with police equipment will be on the road again next weekend. Huntingdon divisional headquarters are to be moved from Ferrars Road, Huntingdon to The Manor. Work is already going on building a new police station at Ferrars Road, Huntingdon for the town's police

1973 08 24
At the Gardenia Middle Eastern Restaurant in Rose Crescent, Cambridge, I began with Houmous (25p), a thickish paste made with chick peas and oil which you scoop up with pieces of unleavened bread. It was quite tasty though for the price not particularly plentiful. It is not particularly elegant tackling by hand a four-skewer kebab (60p) in an envelope of unleavened bread with bits of onion and tomato spilling out. But the Gardenia does not pretend to be the place to take a grande dame out to dinner with candles. The Kadeifi (15p) which followed looked on the plate like a prandial imitation of Dougal, everyone's favourite long-haired television dog.

Hotels in Cambridge are not facing the acute shortage of accommodation that they did last year. At the Cambridge Tourist Bureau Mr John Franklin, a co-ordinating assistant, said they were working flat out trying to fit people in at boarding houses in the city. The average cost of bed and breakfast in a private house in Cambridge is £2 a night, while the cost in a leading hotel is at least double that. "What we badly need is something like a hostel where people can stay at £1 a head", said Miss Margaret Badcock at the information bureau. "Most of the people who come to us can't afford to stay at the hotels" 73 08 24

1973 08 25
Attendance figures at the Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge, dropped last year by more than 4,000 to 116,998. The deputy director, Mr Graham Pollard, said it could be part of a national scare about museum charges. The same had been experienced by national museums in London where charges are due to be introduced from next January. "We have no intention of imposing charges", he said

Flames roared through more than 150 acres of prime crops worth more than £10,000 in Haverhill's worst farmland fire in living memory. The fire swept for two miles through six fields on neighbouring farms. Firemen armed only with flails and forks were powerless as the wind fanned flames across hedges - scorching trees and telegraph poles and missing farm buildings by only yards. Reinforcements were brought in from Clare, Wickambrook and Bury - nearly 20 miles away - as the blaze cut into 50 acres of oats and barley on Mr Bill Patrick's Haverhill Hall Farm. Police and even children armed with branches cut from trees, joined the battle

1973 08 27
The second oldest business in Cambridge, G.P. Jones, the grocer of Trumpington Street closed down at the weekend. They were established in 1623, three years after the oldest business in the city, Bowes and Bowes. Now the old-world grocery shop, famous for their blends of teas and statuesque tea jars, will become a fine art shop. Mr Sidney Jones looks back with resignation to the days when the shop had its own tea blending room before the war and produced over 20 blends. He said, "It was inevitable that the grocery had to close as our regular customers became fewer and fewer. More people have come in to try and buy the jars and old furniture of the shop but I'm not parting with it for the moment"

1973 08 28
Fulbourn Hospital, p4

1973 08 29
Coton forge, p12

1973 08 30
New bait house hunters, p11

1973 08 31

The £20m redevelopment scheme for the Fitzroy Street - Burleigh Street area of Cambridge may go ahead with only minor modifications, following the result of a 13-day public inquiry earlier this year. Several schemes for the area have been considered and rejected over the past 10 years, but the present plans, designed by international architects Piano & Rogers were adopted by the city and county councils last year

A mixture of anger and amazement greeted the news that the redevelopment scheme for the Fitzroy-Burleigh area of Cambridge may go ahead with only minor amendments. Some of the mass of objectors criticised the inspector's recommendations. Coun. Colin Rosensteil, Liberal Association, said it would be challenged in the new Cambridge District Council: "It seems to ignore the whole question of city centre congestion and the views and feelings of the residents of the area". Mr Bernard Greaves said, "A grandiose re-development scheme like the one proposed was out of date"

Lifetime of schooldays, p8

September 1973 CEN

1973 09 03
Chesterton Rural Council today increased their mortgage interest rates to new borrowers to a record of 12 per cent. This is believed to be one of the highest figures charged by any local council in the country. Their rates to existing borrowers remain unchanged; some of these are as low as five per cent. The council's clerk said "People are not going to like our new rates but we have got to charge them". Both Cambridge City Council and South Cambs Rural Council have also increased their mortgage rates to 10 per cent

1973 09 04
De Vere's have been given final planning permission to go ahead with their plans to build a £2 million-plus hotel at the Huntingdon Road - Mount Pleasant junction, Cambridge - almost five years after the project was first proposed. But the London-based company are not saying yet when they intend to start building on the derelict site overlooking one of the city's busiest road junctions. It was at the beginning of 1969 that De Vere Hotels and Restaurants Ltd submitted their original plans for the hotel

At least 40 new jobs will be created by the take-over of Clockwork Orange's clothing factory at St Neots by the Gay Girl group of London. In place of a split line making dresses, trousers and blouses, the new ownership will make only slacks, half of which are destined for export markets. Gay Girl, a £3-million a year group, have formed Nethermere Ltd (St Neots) to run the operation and expand it. If things go to plan they will be looking for another factory within a year, said the Managing Director

Communities – nobody there, p14
Potatoes left to rot, p15

1973 09 05
Cholera vaccine, p14

1973 09 06
Hovertrain bunglers, p1, p11
Kerridge takeover, p14

Telephones, p15

1973 09 07
One of the longest and fondest traditions in American military history came to an end yesterday when the very last Dakota DC3 to serve in Northern Europe made its final flight into Mildenhall air base. They used to call the plane the Gooney Bird because of its ungainly and awkward appearance on the ground. Right on schedule the US Navy plane flew in for a champagne reception at the Naval Air Facility, Mildenhall

King's Parade pedestrianisation plans, p16

1973 09 08
The men from the Ministry have given in to the potato pickers of Burwell. They say villagers can go and dig up the 80 tons of potatoes which red tape threatened to let rot. They are in a field which has been bought for the construction of the Newmarket bypass. Earlier this week about 40 villagers who were trying to salvage the potatoes were ordered off the field by workmen. Villagers and conservationists raised a storm of protest.

A Fen Drayton grower who has dumped 12,000 lbs of tomatoes because it was not worth his while selling them, is appealing to colleagues to unite and agree on a minimum price for the fruit. Mr Eric Jarnet owns six acres of land two of which are covered by greenhouses. Last week he dumped the crop because the market price had dropped to between 30p and 35p a 12lb chip. He said he would be left with 8p for a chip of average grade after covering marketing and transportation costs. Out of this he has to cover staff wages and the running and maintenance of his property

1973 09 10
Prof John Parry Lewis, the Manchester don who has just finished the biggest Cambridge re-development plan ever devised, has told the Government that it may as well be scrapped now if the new Fitzroy-Burleigh Street shopping centre goes ahead. When his final report is published it will contain some sweeping proposals. One of these is for a new commercial centre on the Cambridge outskirts - perhaps in the Trumpington area - in order to siphon shops and traffic away from the historic heart of the city

1973 09 11
Fairview Estates, the first major developer to beat the building ban in Saffron Walden caused by the sewage crisis, have suggested making a financial contribution towards the town's £1¼ million sewage scheme in return for a further planning agreement with the borough council. They already have permission to build 130 of 250 new houses allowed by improvements to the existing sewage works. The new offer follows the refusal of their planning application for a further 90 houses off Railey Road. George Wimpey also want to build 56 houses at Highfields

Rag Day doubt, p11
Rail line demonstration, p13

1973 09 12
Farm wages, p16

1973 09 13
Eighteen Ely people won international fame for their home town when they battled their war through a crazy obstacle course in a game which is being watched by 150 million television viewers. Ely became the Knock Out kings of Europe by a mere two points. With defeat staring them in the face they staged a storming finish to wrest he crown from six other countries in Paris. Many Fenlanders were openly weeping or walking around the arena in a daze as they realised they had achieved a dream which started more than a year ago

Revitalised Cam plans, p15

1973 09 14
Cambridge City Council and the new County Council have to settle a who-pays-what dispute that could delay the opening of the City's new public library by many months. The row centres on the cost of fitting out the new library. Local government reorganisation means that the City Council will disappear and their successors will not have any legal responsibility for running libraries. This will rest with the new County Council. They are worried that rural area ratepayers will be saddled with the cost of a large prestige building mainly for the benefits of City residents and if they pump hundreds of thousands of pounds into it other large towns in the county will demand similar treatment

Knock-out, p17

1973 09 15
Apple cropm, p8

1973 09 17
Ely's victorious "It's a Knockout" team who followed up their British win and international success at Arnhem by winning the European championship were given the biggest civic reception ever seen in the city. Thousands of cheering people lined the streets for what team manager, David Cornwell, described as a "fantastic response". Afterwards there was a champagne celebration at the Maltings

Barnwell bridge, p1
Gas masks, p9
Storms, p11

1973 09 18
The Cambridge by-passes have been given the Government go-ahead. Work may now begin in less than a year on the £30m.-plus scheme to give the city its biggest new road complex in history. Within four years Cambridge is likely to have 14 miles of new motorway and nine miles of new trunk road to bleed heavy lorries and other traffic away from the historic heart of the city. It will also mean a much-improved A604 route between Cambridge & Huntingdon - at present one of the busiest and most accident-prone roads for miles. Today's announcement ends years of argument and months of speculation following a record-breaking public inquiry stretching over six months early last year

Swavesey railway, p9
Fumes fear, p14

1973 09 19
The environmental effects on the Cambridgeshire countryside and a number of villages in the building of the Cambridge bypasses are given in the Government's go-ahead to the projects. The inspector concludes that at Grantchester environmental intrusion would be mitigated by a properly conceived planting scheme & the effects on the village would not be serious. At Hauxton and Lt Shelford the environmental effects, though great, would not be intolerable. The Inspector does not support Girton's claims that the area will be severed in any practical sense by the Cambridge Northern Bypass. The new road would pass in a cutting and noise screening is recommended. At Fenstanton the Inspector thinks that the noise problem is more important than any partial severance of the village by the A604. He recommends noise screening

Longstanton planning, p20

1973 09 20
The scheme for the first stage of major housing development at "millionaire row", Hardwick is now before the county planners. More than 50 villagers made around £1 million last May when they sold their shares in the 80-acre site to two developers. The land had been bought back in 1935 by the "philanthropist" Mr William Game who saw it as a "green dream" for Cockneys who wanted to quit London for the countryside. His vision was for a one-acre plot and a cow for each owner. But it dimmed when the plan failed because of the poor quality of the land, which fell into disuse from the 1950s. Now the village is set to get a recreation ground, village hall and school in a scheme devised for the Limes Estate. The first phase comprises 147 houses and 10 bungalows

Brandon Creek picnic, p17

1973 09 21
Like some great suicidal spider Cambridge will have eaten its heart out by the turn of the century. Such is the dramatic prophecy of Professor John Parry Lewis who has been making a complete study of its future. Specifically he is saying is that if Cambridge proceeds with the scheme to build a twin shopping centre in the Fitzroy Street - Burleigh street area it will be signing the death knell of the present Market Square area. He concludes that a new focus for commercial activity must be developed on the edge of the city either in the Trumpington area or to the east near Marshall's airport. This cannot be done if the Fitzroy-Burleigh scheme proceeds, as the indications now are that it will Long-established family business in Cambridge city centre say they may be forced to close because their college landlords are demanding up to nine times the existing rent to renew expiring leases. The owner of Colin Lunn Ltd, a tobacconists which has stood in King's Parade since 1899 said he had received a letter from Trinity Hall's estate agents specifying a 95% increase from his current rent of £500. Mr Peter Stockbridge attacked Corpus Christi College for almost trebling the rent for his antique shop to around £3,000. An abrasive reaction came from the proprietor of the Copper Kettle restaurant who have been told unofficially that their rent is to be trebled 73 09 21

1973 09 22
Attempts by 93-year-old Miss Florence Lilley to get Castle Green, Kimbolton, registered as a village green and for 17 acres of Kimbolton Park to be registered as common land have failed. The Commons Commissioner says the use of the land by Kimbolton residents was not as of right. But Miss Lilley declared she would fight on. "Rogues have cheated Kimboltonians out of everything. I have been fighting them for 20 years". She told the Inquiry that Queen Alexandra's Nurses occupied the castle during the last war and that Lord Montagu held a 21-year lease before that. As evidence of public use she produced picture postcards of Queen Victoria's Jubilee celebrations, which she remembers.

1973 09 24
Rabbit breeding, p11

1973 09 25
If a superstore was not built at Bar Hill the existing shops in the village would peter out, a director of Bar Hill Development Company told members of Bar Hill Parish Council and the residents association. He added "the shops are costing us money and there is a limit to how much we are going to spend". The only way the shops would prosper was when a superstore was operating nearby. But it was obvious that several members of the audience did not agree with this. A survey showed 44.3% did not want a superstore anywhere in the village. "We don't want a large store bringing in hundreds of people from outside into the village," said Ron Page of the residents' association

1973 09 26
Oakington planning, p12
Ely sugar beet, p14

1973 09 28
A group called the Romsey Town project intend to open a cafe which will serve as a community centre, discussion room and open newsroom for their paper "Romsey News". The paper, which is self-supporting at 2p a copy has a circulation of 1,500. Jean White, an organiser, said "The people of Romsey Town get a rough deal in Cambridge as far as amenities are concerned. There is no cinema - only pubs and the Labour Club. There is no real centre for the town as Mill Road carries traffic straight through - though in my opinion the shopping centre is better than the centre of Cambridge. We have joked about charging higher prices depending on the length of hair so that the cafe will not become a student centre from the University"

The cost of improving and modernising the public library at Mill Road, Cambridge, has risen to £13,790 due to inflation. For a number of years the Library Committee have had a programme of improvements they hoped to make to some of their ageing branch libraries. But repeatedly the economy-conscious city council have cut back on the projects. This year they agreed that the Mill Road scheme could go ahead to brighten up and repair the buildings. But since the estimates were received inflation has taken its toll

Uplands restaurant, p13
Library reprieved, p15

October 1973 CEN

1973 10 01
A chronic staff shortage could force another halt on routine admissions to Addenbrooke's Hospital this winter. The situation is so grave that the hospital's laundry have less than half the 60 staff they need, New Addenbrooke's have only 13 of the 24 cooks and assistant cooks they need. The general porters and distribution section have only 31 out of 41 members on the establishment. No extra beds have been opened at the new site since July when 15 wards were opened with 372 beds. The board hope to have 514 beds in 21 wards open by February of next year

1973 10 01
A close-circuit funeral for an "old friend" will be televised at Cambridge University. A special eulogy will be delivered and he will be dismembered for research studies and sent to the scrap heap. The "body" will be the much-loved 10-year old Titan computer. It has been on light duties since the end of its 18-month phasing out link with his more powerful replacement £1.7million worth of I.B.M. 370/165. The 370's memory is being doubled in size & the main disc memory for holding all the files is now 1,000 million characters

1973 10 02
The hospital service is starting to fall apart at the seams, Ian McLaughlin of the National Union of Public Employees claimed last night. The number of people on the waiting list at Cambridge hospitals is up about 30 per cent to 4,121. "People can stand so much under pressure. It is possible we may get to a stage where people walk out in sheer frustration, but other hospitals in East Anglia can get staff," he said. Low national pay rates, competition for labour during low unemployment and Cambridge property prices were the key reasons.

1973 10 03
The trapping know-how of an obliging Royal Engineer is helping Waterbeach Parish Council clear up a plague of rabbits in their burial ground. After a variety of remedies had failed, Sapper Nigel Packer, from the neighbouring barracks, took a hand and set two of his own ferrets on the job. And already the ferrets have paid their way in fighting the nuisance caused by the rabbits chewing up graveside flowers and burrowing beneath the gravestones and surrounds. Sapper Packer's expertise is a welcome relief to villagers, who have enjoyed a long history of community service by the Royal Engineers

Tolly, the East Anglia brewers may sell off their £1 million Star Brewery site in Newmarket Road, Cambridge within the next three years. The 4½acre site includes the brewery buildings and the Burleigh Arms public house. The old Star Brewery stopped production last year and the buildings have been used as a storage depot. It is understood the directors have been considering various possibilities for the Newmarket Road site, which is bounded roughly by Auckland Road, Midsummer Common and Parsonage Street. One includes building luxury flats, a hotel and public house on the site. "There is no possibility of us leaving Cambridge. It is a very important place for us", said Tolly's managing director

1973 10 05
It is one thing criticising your own husband, but how would you feel if you had to sit and listen to other people hurling abuse at him? It is something which faces the wives of Cambridge United footballers. The wives do get upset, particularly when they feel the criticism is unfair or when they know their husband's play is going through a bad patch. The footballers are idolised. "You know the girls make a bee-line for the players", commented one wife. The wives just have to learn to live with it and trust their menfolk. "I feel very proud of him", said another. And that is true of all the wives. Carefully they store away match reports in scrap books and polish the trophies.

1973 10 06
St Ives railway line, p8

1973 10 08
Students at Cambridgeshire College of Arts and Technology today began searching for a hall in an emergency plan to beat what they claim is the city's worst-ever shortage of rented accommodation. The situation at the Technical College, where there are more than 1,000 students who have to live in rented accommodation in the city, has been aggravated by the failure of a plan to buy up houses for use as hostels. A housing association was set up earlier this year and agreement reached with a building society over 100 mortgages. But then came the building societies' financial difficulties and the whole plan has been shelved

St Neots thunderstorm, p7

1973 10 09
Cambridge sank deeper into a planning quagmire last night as opponents in the sub-regional study row tossed words at each other from their offices in Manchester and London. Down in the jungles of mid-Anglia the News intercepted and sifted the communiqués and tried, despairingly to bridge the 184-mile gap between the protagonists. And when it was said and done it proved far less difficult to plot yesterday's progress in the Middle East war and to assess Mr Heath's Phase 3 counter-inflation plans than to determine who was making progress in Cambridge's shopping centre controversy

Sawston town, p9
B.E. Cock’s garage, p14

1973 10 10
Bowyer letter, p12
Foxton crossing, p15

1973 10 11
More than 100 students from the technical college who are squatting in Owlstone Croft spent last night moving in food and other supplies. Occupation of the building, which has been empty for almost four years, followed a meeting in protest at the lack of student accommodation in Cambridge. Owlstone Croft became the target of criticism as officials pointed out that the Department of Health are now planning to demolish the fully-equipped hostel after refusing to sell it to the college. After half and hour's discussion about 200 students left the college to occupy the building

1973 10 12
Partly-completed dungarees are delivered to your house. Your job is to machine stitch the bib and braces, insert elastic into the waistband which has to be stitched and gathered, sew on a pocket. How much would you expect to be paid? This was the task given to a young Huntingdon mother who answered a clothing factory's advertisement for home workers. It took her five hours to complete two pairs, then she abandoned the venture. Providing her own machine, electricity and thread she decided the work was "exploitation". The payment was 10p a pair.

No further inquiry, p1

1973 10 13
A Cambridge councillor told the city council meeting he hoped there would be some money left over for books after meeting the £490,000 bill for fitting out the new central library in Lion Yard. But Councillor Neville Auker said; "We have been in need of an up-to-date library in Cambridge for many years. The staff at the present library do enormously well. But for a city of Cambridge's standing the library has long been a disgrace"

There are still a lot of young people around who remember the Fifties, those golden days when Bill Haley was top of the charts and the permissive society had not been heard of. More than 40 of them got together in Gt Chesterford's village hall to celebrate the 26th birthday of an Ickleton teddy boy. Most of them wore the "teds" uniform of drainpipe trousers, long jackets, bootlace ties, slicked-back Tony Curtis hairdo's. They jived until midnight to the music of the Bluebird's Rock 'n' Roll Band. One said, "The only time he doesn't wear his teddy boy clothes is at work, but even there he wears old creepers and one ear-ring" He added "Whatever anybody says I don't think there has ever been anything smarted than ‘drains’"

200 students squatting, p1

1973 10 15
An appeal for special heavy-duty breakdown equipment went out after an articulated lorry overturned at Mitcham's Corner, Cambridge - and the wrecked vehicle and its scattered load were still there six hours later. The lorry overturned outside Wallis' garage showroom at 6.40 am. But the major equipment of local garages was already committed to other things and later the army sent some from Waterbeach. The accident caused extensive delays - at one time there was a queue right back to Washpit Lane, Girton, more than a mile from the city boundary on Huntingdon Road

1973 10 16
Owlstone Croft, p1

1973 10 17
News that Royston could finally have a new sewage works in three years was greeted by town councillors with relief tempered with scepticism. It is 21 years since a new works was called for in 1952. In recent years the council have lived through a saga of complaints from farmers about crop damage due to sewage flooding, petitions from tenants about smells from the old works at Coombes Hole, and increasing difficulties in dealing with the quantity of sewage from the town which culminated with a brake on further housing development when the works could no longer cope. But Bassingbourn village have complained about losing land for the scheme

Student problems, p11
New art gallery, p13

1973 10 18
Cambridge Aircraft Preservation Society, p15

1973 10 19
A £13,000 facelift for Mill Road branch library in Cambridge has been shelved by the city council to leave their architects free to concentrate on housing schemes. The Library Committee were forced to postpone the modernisation plan after hearing that it would be caught in the Government's current economic policy to cut back local council's capital spending. Mill Road was to have been the first of three branch libraries in the city to be modernised with new lighting, decorations and layout. Those at Rock Road and Milton Road were to follow. Members agreed to contact the new Cambridgeshire County Council, who will take over libraries in April, to ask them to consider the three schemes sympathetically

South Cambridgeshire District Council have agreed to enforce fire laws which could mean the "death knell" for many village halls. Councillor Watts declared: "There are places of entertainment which do not match up 100 per cent to what the fire authorities would insist upon. It will mean the death knell for our older, less prosperous village halls". Surely it was better for halls 90 per cent safe to remain under the control of local people than to be closed - some of them never to be opened again. But Coun. Powles stressed; "It only wants one person to lose their life unnecessarily in a fire for us to be in a very serious situation with the public. The laws will be applied as sympathetically as they can be"

Laser-Scan Laboratories Ltd, a science-based Cambridge firm set up four years ago, made history when they became the first tenants of the new Cambridge Science Park this week. The Trinity College scheme is being developed on land off Milton road. The Senior Bursar, Dr John Bradfield said they believed it was the first science park in England. "We are 99 per cent certain on signing a contract with a second tenant and we have two more in advanced stages of negotiation", he said. "The idea was first mooted four years ago by the Mott committee and I think we have done very well to get this far in four years". He said the college were looking for a commercial return on their venture, but not necessarily in the usual financial expectations of recovering costs in a given number of years 73 10 19

Waterbeach school, p17

1973 10 20
Burleigh Street plans, p6
Knickers at Fulbourn, p6

1973 10 22
Mr Harold Wilson stirred the Labour Party workers of East Anglia into a fiery fighting mood at their regional rally in Cambridge. The audience of about 1,000 people gave him a standing ovation. Mr Wilson raised cheers with promises of pensions of £10 for a single person, £16 for a couple, strict controls on big business and action to secure the public ownership of land, especially for public amenities, schools and hospitals. His speech contained many personal swipes at Mr Heath. He said: "The truth is that while the three great social priorities - housing, education and hospitals - are being cut back, office building and property speculation runs on unchecked"

Taxi driver, p3

1973 10 23
Ely RAF Hospital may be developed as one of the three main Service hospitals in the country. The report of an inquiry into Defence Medical Services says each service should have one major hospital of up to 400 beds. In the case of the RAF it suggests that either to Ely hospital or the one at Halton, Bucks., would be suitable for this kind of development. Ely RAF Hospital was opened in 1940 and since then has been considerably extended. For a number of years it has also admitted civilian patients and it is reckoned that about 30 per cent of people treated there are civilians. Last year it treated 6,000 in-patients and just over 31,000 out-patients

Marshall homes plan, p12

1973 10 24
Huntingdon's county ambulance service is being forced to run its vehicles into the ground to keep up with demand, and the situation is likely to get worse next year. Extra work is having to be put in by the mechanics to keep vehicles on the road because two new ambulances had to be sent back to British Leyland with brake trouble. One is still out of action and another had to be taken out again last week. Some of the remaining ambulances are wearing out faster than expected and will have to be replaced next year - and there is a nine-month waiting period on new orders

Nobel prize, p17
St Neots sewers, p20

1973 10 25
De Vere have finally abandoned their plans to build a 5-star 200-bedroom hotel at Cambridge's Mount Pleasant - Huntingdon Road junction. Instead the company have suggested to planners that the site could be used for a four-storey block of residential flats with a restaurant, showrooms, offices and a bank included in the development. The company say it is "no longer economically viable" to go ahead with the hotel project which has been on the stocks for four years. It is being suggested that the originally estimated building costs of around £2 million has now risen to about £3.8 million

Newton Hall, p17

1973 10 26
Owlstone Croft, p23
Newmarket rail users, p27
Shudy Camps pub a temple, p33

1973 10 27
The Dalai Lama held the attention of a 1,000-strong Cambridge audience last night while he talked for almost an hour on Buddhist doctrine - mostly in Tibetan. Hundreds of people queued for nearly an hour outside the Senate House. They filled every seat, crowded four-deep in the side galleries and were left clinging to the outside window sills to get a view of "Kundun" - The Presence. In his crimson and saffron robes His Holiness delivered his address in a casual, conversational style, occasionally breaking into English to drive home a point. After his address he walked through the Cambridge traffic to Trinity College where he was due to attend a buffet supper

1973 10 29
A group of people found an unusual way to spend an afternoon on Saturday - using paint to pick-out the detail on a Cambridge lamp-post. The lamp-post which stands at the paths junction in the middle of Parker's Piece has for many years been painted plain grey. Now after some hard work by five friends part of it is resplendent in blues, yellows and red. The friends who are all students were led by brothers Sandy and David Cairncross. They obtained permission of the City Surveyor's department before beginning.

Charles Cudworth, p3

1973 10 30
Plans by a London catering company to convert the 17th century Bath Hotel in Bene't St, Cambridge, into a steak bar rival to the Turks Head have been vetoed by Corpus Christi College who own the site. Dr Peter Lewis said, "We don't want to change the atmosphere of the Bath Hotel and these plans would have done that too drastically". The Bath Hotel is basically a 17th century building with extensive 18th century modifications. West End Catering, who put forward the proposal said, "The college's grounds for refusal are absolutely unreasonable and invalid. The dons seemed to be examining our plans as a viable place for them to eat instead of examining them in terms of popular catering"

Harston hall, p18

November 1973 CEN

1973 11 01

A senior planner warned the new Cambridge district council faced a serious position over the acute shortage of council housing land in the city. David Urwin explained that even if the council were allowed by the government to go ahead with their plans to build houses on 100 acres of land at Cherry Hinton all available council housing land in Cambridge would be used up by the end of 1978. The Environment Committee chairman said "South Cambridgeshire district council apparently do not take gladly to any form of development outside Cambridge. But I hope that we shall be able to negotiate with them"

Coldham's Lane trafficlights, p15

1973 11 02
A stretch of A1 near St Neots was sealed off for five hours last night after a chemical-carrying articulated lorry burst into flames, threatening overhead power cables and sending toxic fumes towards Eaton Socon. More than 20 firemen fought the blaze with foam and water shuttled in an emergency tender. The lorry was loaded with chemicals widely used in industry. The crash is the latest in a series of incidents involving the leakage or spillage of chemicals in Mid Anglia roads in recent months - provoking calls for a tightening-up in chemical transport regulations

Clark Kennedy cockerel, p4
Dogs on leads, p17

1973 11 03
Nurses under stress, p5

1973 11 05
Cambridge's prospective parliamentary Labour candidate, James Curran, believes that the way gipsies are thwarted at every turn should be on everyone's conscience. He said "The city council have deliberately built obstructions round waste ground which they feared might be occupied by gypsy settlement, they have hounded gipsies out of the city". He claimed the site earmarked for possible use by gypsy caravans at Milton - part of the disused army camp was "totally unsuitable". "It is sandwiched between the proposed by-pass on one side and the sewage works and waste disposal company on the other. Why should gipsies have to put up with what everyone else in Cambridge would find intolerable"

Balloon record, p7
Saffron Walden Boots store, p10

1973 11 06
6,000 people turned out to support the second firework spectacular presented by Cambridge Round Table at Cambridge United's Football ground. Hundreds of children were amongst the spectators to watch the £400 firework display. A variety of set pieces, most of which largely featured Catherine wheels won plenty of admiration. But for many sitting high in the terraces the displays of rocket fireworks were unseen and wasted, obscured by the covered stands. Bonfire night in Cambridge was one of the quietest for many years. The Fire Brigade had only one call - and that was a false alarm

Play bus, p10
One-sex colleges move, p13

1973 11 07
Eastern Electricity this week produced a detailed rota and chart to help the public tell when their area would most likely suffer power cuts. A cutback in electricity supplies could take place tonight. Voltage reductions were feared during last night's period of peak demand - usually the largest of the week - but they were not necessary. The men's associations have agreed nationally with the electricity industry that they should get special payments for "unsocial hours" they have to work, but the agreement has been blocked by the government.

Sinclair calculator, p8

1973 11 08
Motorists are having to wait for up to a month for spare parts in a situation which is becoming a head ache for some Cambridge garages. Mr Frank Taylor of B.E. Cocks' garage in Newmarket Road commented: "Delays are getting longer and it's proving to be an awful headache" Apart from the long waits motorists are having to face large bills for hiring other cars. "We do the repair work as quickly as possible and then it comes to a full stop because we have been unable to obtain the necessary parts", added Mr Taylor. "The spare parts situation is becoming a joke in the trade"

Some of the Cambridge school buildings which have to be altered to turn them into comprehensives may not be ready by the time the new system starts in September 1974. Alterations costing more than £100,000 are being held up because builders, who have a lot of work on their hands and face an acute labour shortage, are unwilling to undertake any more City council contracts. Worried council officials had to approach 13 building firms before they could find anybody willing to undertake a £4,000 classroom building job at the Coleridge secondary school

1973 11 09
The 10,000 agricultural workers in mid-Anglia were today bitterly disappointed at the £2.30 a week rise awarded by the Agricultural Wages Board after 10 hours of negotiation. The workers' spokesman said they were bound to be aggrieved at the award which gives a new basic rate of £21.80. The farm workers had asked for a £25 a week minimum wage. The higher rate of increase will go to tractor drivers, horticultural specialists, stockmen and foremen.

Dorothy Grainger post box, p16

1973 11 10
A crowd of several hundred greeted BBC disc jockey, Tony Blackburn, when he arrived at the Cambridge Co-operative Society store in Burleigh Street. Store officials, red faces streaming with perspiration, linked arms and strained hard to keep the ground, largely consisting of weeny-boppers in order. He was appearing at the store to mark its £40000 ground-floor refit. The new hanging racks of jackets and jumpers were under almost continuous siege with children of all sizes, as they tried to get nearer to Mr Blackburn. After 40 minutes he left the store pursued by young fans. Nevertheless a number of children left in tears clutching unsigned photographs

1973 11 12
United fans battle, p1
Beer drought, p10
Ramblers Association formed, p14

1973 11 13
Thriplow development

1973 11 16
Cambridge University's extra-mural studies board will move out of the city and into new offices at Madingley Hall if a £60,000 plan now being considered by dons is approved. But they are hoping that the scheme would cost the University nothing – a gift of £47,000 is being offered by a trustee of the University of Southern California and the Board of Extra-Mural studies would be required to meet the remaining £13,000 from their balances. Madingley Hall at present houses 55 residents who are either visiting scholars or graduate students of the university.

1973 11 17
Godber price increses, p1
CALA building, p5

Waterbeach power cut, p5

1973 11 19
No more Cambridge council houses will be sold after April 1st – because the waiting list of people who want to rent them is growing daily and building land is running out. The new Labour controlled Cambridge district council also intends to clamp down on speculators who buy old houses cheaply and sell them at big profits after modernising them with the aid of improvement grants. During the last five years almost 300 city council houses have been sold to tenants and a number of other possible sales are in the legal pipeline.

The cost of bringing the White Ribbon Hotel at East Road, Cambridge up to the standard needed to meet fire safety regulations and public health requirements now about £4,000 – nearly three times the amount originally estimated. Until last April the hotel was run by the Salvation Army as a hostel for city working men with no family roots. But, because of the high cost of maintaining the building and bringing it up to the new standards, the Salvation Army moved out and the |County council took over the building. Cambridge city council have told the county that they will not pay any more than £750.
73 11 19

Soccer fans, p1

1973 11 20
Many mid-Anglia motorists had to take petrol pot-luck today as reductions in supplies began to bite at garages around the region. The Cambridge Short Street garage warned the fuel crisis could force them out of business while others reported rationing and restrictions on opening hours. The manager said "We are now restricting petrol to our regular customers. They can get £1 if they have one of our stickers". The owner of Ted Salisbury & Son's garage said: "We are limiting petrol to four gallons a customer. Our sales were 37% up last week as a result of panic buying. We ran out of petrol last night".

Edward Towgood and sons ltd of Sawston, who run the 300 year-old paper mill, one of the oldest in the country, is to close in February. The mill, the last left in East Anglia, is part of the Reed paper and board group. The firm announced losses totalling more than £ ¼ million over the past three years. The other factors were acute labour shortage in the area and the alarming world shortage of materials. The decision to close in no ways affects its close neighbours Spices (stationery) ltd. It is hoped that many people currently working for Towgood would join Spicers.

Xmas lights, p13
St Neots pop flop, p18

1973 11 22
It was the Second World War which boosted the trade in used agricultural machinery at Cambridge cattle market. Now, after 30 years on the Hills Road site, it is hoped that the move to the new sales area down Milton Road will give a similar fillip to what is generally regarded as one of Europe's outstanding second-hand implements market. The cattle market developed over the years and continued unchanged until 1966 when the advent of an £8,000 new corn market proved more or less a flop from the start and received negligible support from farmers and auctioneers. There have been frequent prophecies that the cattle market will eventually go the same way. Obstinately though, it refuses to die

1973 11 23
Queen's Ely visits, p1
Bassingbourn Village College, p17

1973 11 24

The Queen came to Ely yesterday – and made history because she gave her permission to allow Ely the right to remain a city after the local government reorganisation next April. The most hectic moment of a busy day came in the afternoon on the market place where crowds had gathered to see her watch 600 schoolchildren put on a display of the Ely street festival seen earlier this year. A black mongrel dog kept following the Royal party. A police officer gently pushed the dog into the crowd and gave instructions to people to stand with their legs close together to prevent the dog running out again

Dalham mill, p8

1973 11 26
Newmarket can be described as the typical small country town for shopping – alL the necessities of life and a few of the luxuries are available in one main area and in several small ones. There are no less than five saddlers in the town. Apart from such rarefied suppliers many of the grocery chain stores have branches in the town: Liptons, International Stores, Fine Fare and the Co-operative Society. Smaller grocery stores are dying out but Laing's, an old-established and more specialised food chop, keeps going under the aegis of Fine Fare. There is nothing special in clothing. Ashfords is a good general drapery if you don't expect high fashion, and Janes two boutiques with Norma's room at the Top are respectable rather than distinguished.

Uri Geller screwdrivers, p1

1973 11 27
Cambridge greyhound stadium moves from the dog racing backwoods in February next year when their twice-weekly meetings will come under the auspices of the National Greyhound Racing Club. At present their meetings at Cambridge City Football Club's Milton Road ground are continuing on Wednesday and Saturday during the floodlighting ban with the aid of a generator installed at Milton Road.

Rail electrification, p3
Geller screwdriver missing, p13

1973 11 28
The construction of a nuclear power station at the old wartime bomber site at Molesworth, west of Huntingdon, is being planned. The Central Electricity Generating Board are currently investigating the suitability of the site and they need planning permission from the Government before they can go ahead with the £200 million development. The scheme was announced today. If plans go through they don't expect to start actual building work until the late 1970s. The airfield closed down in the mid-1950s and has since been used as a store by the United States Air Force

Petrol ration books, p14
County planners shortage, p25

1973 11 29
Molesworth reaction, p15

1973 11 30
Free bus, p18
St Neots houses, p18

December 1973 CEN

1973 12 03
Technical College expansion, p7
Pym as Northern Ireland Secretary, p9

Ice rink, p11

1973 12 04
Freeze devastates celery crop, p15
Mr Pink & Louise Rayner, p16

1973 12 06
University arts students, p18

1973 12 07
Only one woman in a Saffron Walden factory knows the recipe of natural oils and moisture that go into a huge melting pot to reduce Britain's biggest selling moisturiser. British women have always had a reputation for good skins and it is only recently they have begun to turn to moisturisers and skin care creams to help slow down the advance of lines and wrinkles. Latterly these products that have cornered the fastest growing section of the cosmetics industry and the Garsalle factory at Shire Hill, Saffron Walden has been carried along on the crest of a wave. It employs just over 30 people turning out 150,000 bottles of skin care products a week. And the factory is bursting at the seams.

1973 12 07
Reach, the tiny but historic village in the middle of the Cambridgeshire fens could do with a pub. The last public house closed some years ago. It is considered that the village would benefit socially if a public house were re-established, but, of course, such a project must be shown to be commercially viable. This need is spotlighted by the County Planning Department in their outline proposals for village development in the next ten years.

YMCA, p15
Reach pub, p29

1973 12 08
Lightwriter device, p6

1973 12 10
A series of explosions rocked the centre of Cambridge over the weekend and so far the cause remains a mystery. Gas board officials say the bangs have nothing to do with natural gas leaks. The bangs were reported to police by householders in the Green Street – Sidney Street area. They brought people rushing from their houses, but they could find no cause for the explosions. While the people were outside more bangs occurred, apparently from underground

1973 12 11
A 160-foot-high chimney that was used in the old days as a furnace for brick-making in the heyday of the Cambridge brick industry is now a pile of bricks, strewn about a sticky clay building site off Coldham's Lane, Cambridge. The chimney was abandoned well before the last war and remained as a blackened reminder of the glories of an industry past its peak. The new owners of the site, J. Coral Estates Ltd, decided they did not need it at their £3 million warehouse and industrial development on the 11 acres they have bought so they blew it up. The bricks will become the fill for part of the new warehouse development already christened the Coral Park Estate

1973 12 12
Place to dance, p14
Coral Park estate, p19

1973 12 13
Councillor Don Maltby told Cambridge housing committee that Cherry Hinton had always been an isolated part of the city – and residents wanted it to remain that way. "The people of Cherry Hinton are not selfish but are wondering why all these houses should be built there. I think they are right because this is the one part of the city which has always considered itself to be a village". He was speaking about plans to build up to 1,500 houses and flats to accommodate about 4,500 people together with shops and a school in the area.

1973 12 14
Mid Anglia seems set for a bonanza Christmas with people determined to enjoy themselves while they can – come power, petrol or rail crises. Most of the region's shops report that business is booming although they are unclear as to whether this Is because of the traditional pre-Christmas spending sprees or because housewives are stocking up in fear of worse to come, hoarding things which they though might become scarce. Many of the smaller towns believe the petrol shortage is helping them by keeping shoppers away from the big centres, Cambridge and Bedford.

Ely Rural Council, who sold 44 of their houses in the last financial year, are now considering buying some newly-built private houses – to ease their waiting lists. The houses at The Row and the Hillside, Sutton have been empty for several months and already existing residents fear the idea will bring down the value of their homes.

Comberton parents back to school, p9

1973 12 15
Churches combine, p7

1973 12 17
The world's longest surviving liver transplant patient, Mrs Winifred Smith, made her annual pilgrimage to Cambridge to see the surgeon who saved her life five years ago. She was one of 100 kidney and liver transplant patients who had come from all over Britain to acknowledge their debt to Prof. Roy Calne and his team at an annual Christmas reunion in the new Frank Lee Centre at Addenbrooke's. These get-togethers have been held for the last seven years

Shops meet crisis, p9

1973 12 18
Thousands of women planning to look just a bit prettier this Christmas with a holiday hairdo will be disappointed. For leading Cambridge hairdressers have announced they have been forced to cut their bookings by almost half because of Government measurers that say only five out of the next ten days can be worked. Joshua Taylor's hairdressing department "Raymond" said, "We can do simple appointments which won't involve the use of electricity but I estimate we will have to turn about 1,000 people away"

Bus shortage, p9

1978 12 19
Industry copes with cuts, p11
Cherry Hinton development plans, p15

1973 12 21
Total disaster faces the world in about two generations according to Prof Mike Pentz of the Open University. Speaking in Cambridge he said so much energy is now being burnt that the temperature of earth's atmosphere will rise by half a degree. "This will melt the polar caps and start a runaway reaction which will raise the ocean levels by a height which will bring about disastrous flooding." A rise of 100 feet in this country would put Cambridge well beneath the waves.

Cambridge University has been given £10 million to build and endow a new college for graduate and undergraduate students, the Vice-Chancellor, Prof Jack Linnett, announced today. The lump sum gift has been handed over by the Newmarket racehorse owner, Mr David Robinson, who started his career at the age of 15 as an apprentice in his father's cycle shop in Cambridge. The new college will be built on a 12½ acre site on land bounded by Herschel Road and Grange Road.

Cambridge residents spoke about the "bombshell" news that their homes are on the site proposed for Cambridge university's new college. Most of them were informed about the plan 24 hours before the news was announced to the public. One 78-year-old resident said "The letter from the college came as a horrible shock, just at Christmas time"

1973 12 24
Mid Anglia stores say they are making valiant efforts to give the public every opportunity to do their Christmas shopping. Most will depend heavily on emergency lighting and special security measures will be taken to beat the shoplifters. Eaden Lilley say that on days without electricity old gas lamps still fitted in the shop will be used. The January sales have been brought forward at Robert Sayle to take advantage of remaining days with electricity before the more stringent regulations come into force in the New Year

Shoppers in Cambridge defied the gloom of crisis-torn Britain and were out in force to do their last-minute Christmas shopping. At Woolworth's in Sidney Street the manager said: "People are determined to enjoy Christmas despite the gloom and doom". Tesco, in Regent Street, said they were fairly busy. The general manager of Joshua Taylor said that trade was about 20% up compared with last year. 73 12 24

1973 12 27
It looked like Sunday in Cambridge yesterday with most of the city's shops closed, and only a few people on the streets. Only a few small "corner" grocers and one supermarket were open for housewives who ran out of essentials. In the city centre Waring and Gillow, the recently-opened furnishers, began their sale. Most of the staff of city shops were having the day off after putting in extra time to cope with the pre-Christmas rush. Most of the shops have used their five days of electricity and will not be able to use any more until the New Year

Home sides routed all opposition at Grantchester in the annual Boxing Day barrel rolling competition. And not only did the Rose and crown men's and women's teams carry of the 24-dozen bottles of beer between them, they also ensured that it was a family affair. For with just one exception, the members of the teams were all related

Cheveley plan, p12

1973 12 28
Wayman builder St Neots, p15

1973 12 29
Saffron Walden printer, Mr Jim Samuels plans to beat next week's three-day working week by substituting electric power with pedal power. He has been taking the dust-covers off an 1893 pedal press which he plans to use when industry in the area will be without power. "We used the old press when we started Two Jays press, but when we got automatic machines it went into retirement", he said. "I shall be doing the pedalling, it's what's my right leg's for"

1973 12 31
Much of what happens in Newmarket next year will be a continuation of this year's events. The by-pass will be opened, the George Lambton playing fields laid out on the Fordham Road, the Rookery and All Saints' areas developed and the swimming pool (maybe) started. But by far the greatest event is one in which the public has not been much interested – the joining of Newmarket and Mildenhall into one administrative body, Forest Heath district.

Haverhill, p9

Please make what use of this you may. Kindly remember where it came from – www.mikepetty.org.uk

1974 Cambridge Evening News

I have no copies of these articles

January 1974 CEN

1974 01 02
Marshalls exempt from three-day week, p13

1974 01 03
Council offices in the Cambridge area are making the most of daylight hours to beat the power crisis by opening earlier and closing as soon as darkness falls when there is no electricity. Chesterton and South Cambridgeshire Rural Councils are now both closing at 3.30 pm on the non-electricity days of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. St Neots urban council open half an hour early and their dinner break is cut to 30 minutes. Their offices are managing to maintain near-normal hours with oil lamps.

Something of the wartime spirit has crept into Mid-Anglian managements who are faced with the three-day electric week and oil shortages. The Pye Group employ a large percentage of women, so they don't want to ask them to work Saturdays, as the power rota demands, because of family commitments. So they will be using generators to give basic power on the other days, and will do as much as possible on those days that does not need power tools. They'll also cut down the lunch break

1974 01 04
Paraffin threat, p1
Bridge Street pollution, p15
Bottled gas, p18

1974 01 05
One of Cambridge's finest medieval buildings, the Abbey House in Abbey Road, was formally presented to the city council as a gift from the Cambridge Folk Museum. The house was originally given to the museum in 1946 by the first Lord Fairhaven who had hoped it would be an enlarged Folk Museum. But the curator, Miss Enid Porter, said he had come to realise the building was just not suitable and the museum did not have the resources to keep the house in good repair

1974 01 07
Many more young people are sleeping rough in and around Cambridge than anyone has estimated. A man who has slept rough for the last 30 years says he knows of about 100 people aged from 17 to 30 sleeping out in woods and fields around Cambridge. But his estimate has been rejected as "exaggeration" by the rector of Girton, who has been helping to tackle the problem

House prices are still falling in Mid Anglia. Even after a £1,000 tumble in the last six months further falls are expected. Until now the brunt of the drop has been carried by standard three-bedroomed homes in the £10-£12,000 price range. It appears unlikely the housing market will move out of stagnation until three-bedroomed semis are on sale from around £9,500. The Cambridge Building Society said "We have funds for members, but with interest at 11% house buying is not very brisk

Pye allowed full week, p1

1974 01 09
People living at Swaffham Bulbeck are being asked by the Cambridgeshire planners to tell them whether they would prefer an expensive bypass built around the village or a cheaper, shorter road between the two main built-up areas. The new road is needed to do away with the three right-angle bends in the centre of the village.

Cambridge has escaped lightly so far from the effects of the three-day working week. Only about 250 workers are being paid benefits by the Department of Employment. The vast majority of those temporarily laid off are receiving benefits from their own firms under a "do-it-yourself dole" scheme. The firms will be reimbursed later by the Department. At Saffron Walden the town's largest firm, Acrow Engineering Ltd, are treating Thursdays and Fridays, when industry in the area is without power, as part of their workers' normal holiday entitlement

Ambulance work to rule, p13
Gales, p15

1974 01 10
Old folk cold at Christmas, p9
Potatoes rot in ground, p16

1974 01 11
With heavy symbolism and an optimism to fight the gloom of the national crisis, Cambridge's erstwhile unlit Christmas lights were lit up in all their glory last night. At least a small group of them in Sidney Street were aglow for just two minutes. In the face of the ban on public decorative lighting the Chamber of Commerce could not have the cheerful Christmas light gaiety in the city centre. But, because they had bought new lights, they thought they would like at least a glimpse of what might have been, had it not been for the Government bans.

When Cyril Brady started in a Cambridge estate agents and valuers a new semi-detached house in the city sold for £425 cash or you could rent it for 14s.9d. a week. Now those same houses run to five figures and rent comes out at around £40 a month, unfurnished. The figures reflect the changes in the 41 years that Mr Brady has been in partnership which has been running under the name of Catling, Brady and Bliss since 1969.

Sawston Village College, p9
Tourism campaign, p15

1974 01 12
The economic crisis has forced a Haddenham baker to cut his van deliveries by half, leaving an estimated 600 customers in Cottenham, Haddenham and Wilburton to find alternative suppliers of their daily bread. Mr John Wright said that he was pulling three of his five vans off the road permanently. The national association of master bakers said the profit margin per loaf was too small to make van deliveries economically viable. Barker's bakery, Betabake and the Co-operative Society all have shops in Cottenham

1974 01 14
Downham village hall, p9

1974 01 16
Women's libbers pulled off a master stroke when they won equal rights in Huntingdon's new working men's club being built on the town's housing estate. And minutes after the decision was announced, the first woman was voted onto the management committee of the 700-member BRJ club under construction at Sallowbush road. Not content with their victory, the women are also demanding that as the men have had two fund-raising stag nights they should have the chance of a hen party

1974 01 17
The number of books borrowed from libraries in the region since the early tv closedown came into force has gone up considerably. Late evening boredom in Huntingdon and St Neots has, according to the county librarian, Mr Reg Keyworth, given rise to a "substantial increase" in the number of books being taken out. "People have been coming into the libraries saying they are bored and want something to read because of the earlier television closing down times" he said.

Cambridge's new export club got off to a great start at the inaugural meeting. The three men who promoted the idea expected four or five people to turn up, have a chat over a pint and then go home. As it was, 40 enthusiastic men and one woman involved in both export marketing and the movement of products made in mid-Anglia agreed the scheme was a "must" for Cambridge – and forthwith set up a committee to get things moving

1974 01 18
Relief road plans, p15
Pampisford pub, p16
Shops accespt big rises, p20

1974 01 19
Pedal power has taken the "Cambridge Evening News" boardroom by storm. Former chair and car-bound executives and cycling to appointments on bicycles to beat the petrol shortage. Leading the two-wheel revolution is the deputy chairman and Managing Director, Mr Anthony Durham closely followed by the "News" editor, Mr Nicholas Herbert. Mr Durham, with cycle clips protecting his pin-stripe suit, has personally tested four cycles bought for staff and found them the ideal answer to the city's one-way systems and parking problems but staff will not be forced to use them

Classical concert dropped, p7

1974 01 22
Villagers at Elsworth who look to the church clock to get the right time may be unlucky in a few days. For the church authorities are unable to get at the winding mechanism of the clock since thieves stole the key to the tower of the church. Mr Kenneth Hollier said "We can't get into the tower to have the clock wound, so it will start to run down within a few days". The thieves also took the key to the west door of the church.

Houses out of reach, p7
Molesworth nuclear tests, p12

1974 01 23
Empty houses, p12

1974 01 24
Many Cambridge Scots have been spared the disappointment of a Burns Night without haggis thanks to a 120-mile "mercy dash" by a city butcher. Because of rail and post problems the supplies to Mr Derek Traylen, a Newmarket road butcher dried up over Christmas which left many of his regular customers without haggis for Hogmanay. So with Buns Night coming up he decided that he could not let his regulars go without again. His Glasgow suppliers were unable to send a normal parcel because of the train drivers' industrial action but they could send his delivery direct to Euston station. So Mr Traylen drove to London and picked up about 2 cwt of haggis yesterday

Student dig problems, p11
Fen Ditton house plans, p13
Sidney Sussex co-ed, p13

1974 01 25
South Cambridgeshire Rural Council are considering a plan to create a new village near Duxford airfield using the 150 houses on the 30-acre airmen's married quarters site as a nucleus. It would be a completely new village with its own community hall and centre. Cambridgeshire planners are hoping to develop a large open air sports complex on the 600-acre airfield which closed down some years ago

1974 01 26

Supplies of foodstuffs and household goods in Cambridge have been disrupted by the national crisis, but there is no need for panic buying, said store managers. Customers have flocked to buy toilet rolls, and stocks at Woolworth's have been exhausted. Supplies of paper and plastic based products have suffered because of world shortages. But food is plentiful, partially because the food industry are exempt from Government restrictions on power

1974 01 28
A United States air force sergeant who defied the military haircut regulations, was driven off to start four months detention and hard labour – to a rousing chorus of "Haircut Rebel" songs from sympathisers. The Vietnam war veteran with a Good Conduct medal had been found guilty at USAF Alconbury court martial of eight charges involving his refusal to trim his hair, moustache and side burns. After the trial he said: "I have a constitutional right to wear my hair as I please. When they cut my hair at the detention centre I will go the whole way and shave my head, my legs and my arm pits."

1974 01 29
Milk bottle shortage, p9
Huntingdonshire power staion fuel, p11

1974 01 30
Meldreth has nearly doubled its population during the past 10 years from less than 900 in 1962 to about 1900. About one third of the population increase could be attributed to the Manor School run by the Spastics Society. It is now the major source of employment in the village although the biggest employers are the Atlas Stone Co. Ltd. just outside the village. Planners say the electrification of the Royston – Kings Cross railway line will undoubtedly create development pressures.

Play council, p14
Mill Road traffic plan, p15

1974 01 31
Since the traditional bar in Alexandra Street was closed down for the Lion Yard development, the name of Henekeys has been missing from the city scene. The Henekey Tavern, which has just been completed under the former Dorothy Restaurant has brought it back in style. The Alexandra Bar keeps a link with the past and adjoining it is a farmhouse-style chop bar. In the contrasting Squires Bar a more substantial meal can be eaten in plush surroundings

February 1974 CEN

1974 02 01
Rex nightclub plan, p19

1974 02 04
When Christ church, in the parish of St Andrew the Less, Cambridge, was built in 1839 the cost was £3,800. On Saturday a new church- installed at gallery level in the original building at a cost of £40,000 - was dedicated. Rebuilding began nine months ago, following the sale of Abbey church hall and Christ church institute to Cambridge city council as part of the planned redevelopment of the Burleigh street area. Now the building provides a new church with seating for 465 and at ground level a hall with seating for 200

1974 02 05
The Eastern Sports Council fear that unless former airfields like Duxford are used for sporting pursuits, some activities which require large areas of space – like parachuting and land yachting – may be forced out of existence within ten years. The 600-acre airfield has been disused for a number of years and its future is still in doubt. A £3 million scheme for a major sports complex was rejected last year together with a counter-plan to build a prison for young offenders on the site. South Cambridgeshire RDC have proposed turning the married quarters into a nucleus of a new village Cambridge students sitting university examinations next term will not be allowed to use electronic calculators. The Board said: "It is not that calculators are noisy or interfere with anyone else. It is just the question of inequality – they are expensive things and which some students can afford them, others cannot. We do not want to give the better-off students an advantage". Instead they are being told to stick to the more traditional aids like slide rules and log tables.

1974 02 06
Car owners living in Stretham face greater rusting problems than car owners elsewhere in the country. The AA which has been undertaking an extensive survey on vehicle corrosion report that a car which is used in a dry part of the country rusts at a faster rate. Stretham is said to be the driest spot in the country. On this basis cars there face a limited life. Lack of rainfall means they do not benefit from the scouring effect which removes mud that contains salt and acid deposits from the roads

1974 02 07
During wet weather "concrete cabbages" grow in Cherry Hinton area gardens and "stone-dashed cars" appear overnight in the streets, a Labour councillor claimed. The reason for such unusual sights is the outfall from the chimney of a cement factory, he said. "If any clothes are left out to dry overnight on washing lines they need to be washed again in the morning because they are covered with a fine dust. If you clean your house windows and there is a little rain you have to clean them all over again"

St Ives line backed, p18
Twentypence Inn opening, p28

1974 02 08
Cambridge city council's controversial plan to stop Gwydir Street being used as a short-cut between East Road and Mill road has come into action and already shopkeepers are reporting trading losses of up to 50%. Norfolk street, once continually busy with traffic, is now silent and virtually at a standstill. And the shopkeepers of the street are beginning to wonder if they might soon be at a standstill too. Mrs Linda Gregoris who owns the Athena restaurant lent on her broom and surveyed the five customers. "It is 11am and normally this place is chock-a-block and people have to fight for a seat. Yesterday we had five people in here – normally it would be as many as 80"

Pym bodyguards, p16
City centre car ban, p20

1974 02 09
Half-an-inch of highly brittle steel is all that has been holding up the 200-foot spire of Saffron Walden parish church, disclosed by the architect who has been surveying it. If the metal rod had snapped, the top of the spire would have become highly unstable and might have collapsed. The spire, which was found to be almost two feet out of plumb, has now been stabilised.

Hundreds of in-calf cows in East Anglia are being slaughtered because their owners cannot afford to keep them, claims a Haddenham farmer, Sidney Ward. He also predicts a milk shortage. The price of feeding stuffs has doubled in the past 18 months. But the price of milk is still the same. The outlook for milk and beef is bleak because many of the lower production cows are not economic to keep in the present situation. When he started retailing milk in 1931 a full loaf of bread was the same price as a pint of milk. "Look at the difference now. We are in a crisis" 74 02 09

1974 02 11
Swaffham Prior church chest, p8

1974 02 12
Parking on grass verges, p12

1974 02 13
City archives, p15

1974 02 14
A former Mepal pub is the new home of Clement Freud, Liberal candidate for the Isle of Ely, and his wife Jill who moved in yesterday in the middle of their election campaign. Mrs Freud, who spend the morning arranging furniture before going out to canvass for her husband, was not at all worried by the rush of moving house during the campaign. The family will stay in their new home whichever way voters turn on February 28th. "We will be very happy to live here anyway, it is a very simple place, but it very nice", she said

1974 02 15
The menu at The Three Horse Shoes, at Madingley, is reasonably extensive for so unpretentious a pub. We plumped for a peppered fillet steak with cream (£1.55) and a whole crawfish provencal (£1.95). The latter lived up to its name, the aroma of garlic lingering for several days. The pub follows an interesting policy of charging a flat £2 for all full bottles of wine. The dessert trolley offered a good selection from which we chose a sherry trifle (40p). To sum up dinner is a pleasant experience but at £10.10 for two (there is a cover charge of 10p each) it is not an experience which many people will be able to repeat very often.

1974 02 18
The three Cambridge parliamentary candidates competed for the ears of shoppers in a battle of decibels in the Market Place. The Liberal, Dr Michael O'Loughlin, was coming to the end of his soap-box session when his Conservative opponent, Mr David Lane, arrived armed with a megaphone. Minutes later the Labour contingent arrived with their candidate, Mr Jim Curran. Their loudspeaker van made a tour of the Market Square booming out the socialist message and drowning everyone else.

A 22 year-old student at Girton College, Cambridge, Miss Susan Inkster today became the city's fourth parliamentary candidate. A student of social and political sciences she described herself on the official nomination papers as "Digger". She was accompanied by a group of young men carrying large placards saying "Dig for victory". She was reluctant to talk much about her policy. 74 02 18

1974 02 19
Cambridge city council are negotiating privately with the University to buy 20 acres off Milton Road which could provide space for up to 400 council houses. The council's Conservative leader, John Powley, denied any behind-the-scenes deal with the University on planning permission for the new Robinson College in exchange for the housing land. The 20 acre site lies behind the council housing estate at Ramsden Square. It is occupied by a number of university departments. Some of the land is used for genetic experiments with plants.

Swaffham Prior church restoration, p14

1974 02 20
Haverhill disco, p11
Newmarket swimming pool, p11
St Ives blackspot, p15

1974 02 21
A waste tanker dripped foul-smelling butchers' waste through the streets of Cambridge before it was stopped on Elizabeth Way Bridge. One lane of the bridge was closed to traffic as men worked for nearly two hours down the road. The waste – including excreta and chicken waste – was washed down to the road below. There were mixed descriptions of the odour from residents in Abbey road. One said the smell was "like a dog's lavatory – it invaded the whole house", another as "like rotten eggs" but one woman said she didn't even notice the smell among the fumes of the traffic.

Linton garage petition, p12

1974 02 22
Mr Eric Cave, who has been the Cambridge city librarian, officially announced his retirement today. There have been many developments in the Cambridge library services since he was appointed in 1954. He seen three new libraries built, the introduction of mobile libraries, the opening of the record lending library, and the introduction of library services to old people's homes. He hopes to see the final completion of the fitting-out contract of the new library being built in the Lion Yard.

1974 02 25
Lights for polling, p1
Pull up road, p11

1974 02 26
Mr John Impey told Melbourn parish council: "There are an awful lot of rats at Melbourn. One old gentleman watches rats run through his home and others watch them play in their gardens".

A decision by the new St Ives parish council to wear robes on civic and other special occasions was criticised as being out of touch with the young electorate. Councillor Bertie James also warned about embarrassing future parish councillors who may not be able to afford the £30 to buy a robe for civic functions. A majority of councillors disagreed and the decision to wear robes on civic occasions and other occasions where councillors thought fit was carried

Shire for pub signs, p11

1974 02 27
The Queen has agreed to allow Cambridge to remain a city after local government reorganisation takes effect on April 1st. Her decision means that the ancient office of Mayor of Cambridge will continue. The new mayor will be Councillor Jack Warren who has been chairman of the Labour-controlled district council since their formation last June

Some housewives are being charged 100% more for meat than farmers were getting, Mr G. Duke of Ickleton told the Cambridgeshire Farmers Union. Mr Keith Roberts of Great Wratting maintained that the pig industry was "in a frightful muddle". The return on pigs was £6.90 less than last October while the extra feed costs were £2.95 more. "We need 60p a score to make pigs pay". The Danes were receiving £3 in subsidies for each pig through compensatory amounts paid by the E.E.C. 74 02 27

East Cambridgeshire allowances, p11
Ely 'Knckout' video, p10

1974 02 28
Jesus College demonstration, p11
Neighbourhood Law Centre, p13

March 1974 CEN

1974 03 01
A photo-finish to the General Election has been predicted. Both major parties will finish up with about 300 MPs according to a computer-based forecast. Amongst ministers returned was the Education Secretary, Mrs Margaret Thatcher. The Conservatives held Cambridge. The Labour candidate, James Curran, said the University vote had been a major factor in his defeat. The Digger candidate, Miss Susan Inkster, gained 369 votes. She said: "This is only the start. People in Cambridge will be hearing much more of the Diggers in the future"

Johnson Matthew pollution equipment, p19

1974 03 02
John Stevens, the Tory candidate in the Isle of Ely, was the only combatant surprised by the more than five-fold increase in Clement Freud's majority. The constituency was a Liberal stronghold many years ago. But it has taken the personal magnetism of Freud to revive that Liberal tradition.

A jubilant Sir David Renton went horse-riding to celebrate his victory for Huntingdonshire's Conservatives in the General Election. The 65-year-old MP and Queen's Counsel galloped his grey mare from his home at Abbots Ripton knowing that he had been returned to Westminster for the ninth time since 1945

1974 03 04
The last page was turned on nearly 500 years of history when Edward Towgood and sons ltd , probably the country's oldest paper mill, closed its door for the last time. The mill at Sawston is believed to date back to Caxton's time around 1490. Now its days are over. With accumulated losses in the last three years the present owners Reed Paper and Board have closed it down and made 150 people redundant

Cycle demonstration, p7
Land deal, p8

1974 03 06
The new Cambridgeshire County Council are leading a nation-wide drive to pressure the new Labour government into giving them more money to keep down rates. The Conservatives changed the mathematical formula for assessing the level of grants paid to hard-up county councils operating in areas of low population and rateable value. This has meant the county has received £27 million in rate support grants which is 4m. less than they would have received under the old assessment formula

Plans for a water park at Baitsbite lock, including a 2,000-metre rowing course have run into trouble with Milton parish council whose objection was that good agricultural land would be lost. It would slice through the ancient course of Fen road, now an almost traffic-free track to the river, which would become choked with heavy traffic. Milton would be overwhelmed with recreation areas since hundreds of acres have already been zoned for a country park.

1974 03 07
Cambridge councillors voted to end a 400 year civic tradition when the District Council, who take over at the end of the month, voted to make the wearing of gowns optional on ceremonial occasions only. The custom dates back to 1558. Councillors wore simple black gowns and aldermen scarlet gowns on four special "scarlet days" and black gowns at other times. Councillor John Powley said he had some regrets against seeing the end of such a long established tradition. "I shall not be disposing of my gown. It may be going into mothballs, but it may well be coming out again in two or three years' time".

Council buy Sawston, p10

1974 03 08
Three Cambridge aldermen who between them have served the city council for 87 years were conferred with the honorary freedom of the city at a ceremony at the Guildhall. They were Geoffrey Hickson, Tom Amey and Cecil Mole. The ceremony was a rare event – only seven individual honorary freedoms have been granted in the past 30 years. All will be retiring from local government at the end of the month when the city council goes out of existence and is replaced by Cambridge District Council

The announcement of a return to the five-day week was greeted with relief by mid-Anglia's industrialists. Pye of Cambridge said that all their factories would be back to normal working on Monday. The secretary of Cambridge Trades Council said that for workers the main gain was a return to normality. “In this area we were not hit very hard by the three-day week, but it is a good thing it is over”

Addenbrooke's Hospital chef, p9

1974 03 09
Liberals had not a “hope in hell” of seeing electoral reform introduced within the life of the new parliament, said Isle of Ely MP, Clement Freud. A conference on the subject, along with two cabinet seats and “enough junior ministries to ensure that we would have no-one left on the back benches” had been some of the “bribes” offered by the Conservatives in their attempts to form a Liberal-Conservative coalition. But to have accepted these would have meant “selling out” the Liberal electorate.

1974 03 11
Teddy boys, p9
CIBA expansion, p13

1974 03 12
Chris Marsh, p13
University staff pay, p14

1974 03 13
Robinson College, p11

1974 03 14
Lyons restaurant in Cambridge city centre is to close at the end of the week. It opened first as a tea shop just over 42 years ago in Petty Cury. Lyons said that the restaurant was closing because of reorganisation within the group. A spokesman said: “The shop does not fit in with our plans for the future”

Cambridge Evening News new editor, p1
Mortgage rise, p15

1974 03 15
A 17-feet high wire mesh security fence is taking shape round the former RAF camp at Stradishall near Haverhill, which is being converted to a prison. The camp, more recently used as a transit camp for Ugandan Asians is due to receive its first inmates next January. The base was abandoned by the RAF No.1 Navigation Training School in 1970 after 31 years’ service. Now the camp will hold 700 prisoners, 500 category B offenders (not high-risk) in the main prison, to be called High Point, and 200 young offenders in a detention centre called North Ridge

In barely twenty minutes the chairman, Mr Leonard Childs, pushed sentiment and nostalgia firmly aside … and by the close of the meeting the Great Ouse River Authority was dead and buried. It seemed ambitious when vested with wider powers to replace the Great Ouse River Board in 1964. The board replaced the drainage boards dating back to 1920, which replaced smaller units … and so on back into shrouded fenland history. The momentum of change gathers pace with the advent of the new Anglian Water Authority bringing a new dimension not only to water and drainage but sewage as well.

Stapleford school room. P22

1974 03 16

Cambridge University gave Mr David Robinson's £10 million new college a massive go-ahead when a total of 916 dons voted for the project and only 135 against. The university will now apply for outline planning permission for the college on the Herschel Road, Thorneycreek site.

Ida Darwin management, p7

1974 03 18
Lyons restaurant, p9

1974 03 19
Last week psychiatric nurse Jock Watson was in charge of wards full of mentally ill patients at the Ida Darwin Hospital, Fulbourn. This week he's back with a brush and a bucket scrubbing out the same wards in his new job as a hospital domestic – and he's £5 a week better off. After 16 years' experience he was earning a basic wage of only £26.98 a week. Some male nurses work a 72-hour week occasionally and hardly see £25.

Hardwick development, p9

1974 03 20
A loyal 94-year-old patron of a century-old Cambridgeshire pub has vowed to give up beer drinking now that the Golden Lion in Over has closed. Mr Ernest Few, of Fen End, lifted his first pint there as a lad of 16, which makes him the oldest customer. For his patronage he received a tankard at the closing down party. However it seems he will have little use for it. "You ask me what I'll do when the Golden Lion closes. Blowed it I'm going to walk after the stuff. Just have to buy a tin of cocoa, that's all"

Inflation University, p12

1974 03 21
Bakers, p11

1974 03 22
A fellowship of Royal Society at the age of 32 is probably unprecedented. To achieve this in the face of the difficulties set in the path of Dr Stephen Hawking is astonishing. His is severely disabled. He cannot walk, has immense difficulty with speech and uses a special typewriter to produce his papers. During the past ten years a major portion of his research has been concerned with Black Holes.

1974 03 26
More than 200 past and present teachers attended a farewell reception for the retiring Cambridgeshire education chief, Mr George Edwards. He relinquishes his post after almost 20 years in office. He succeeded the late Mr Henry Morris, whom he served as deputy for 11 years. Mr Ian Cunningham succeeds him as chief education officer of the new County Council on April 1st

Lion Yard library, p13

1974 03 27
Chesterton rural council (1894-1974) began its final journey into the history books of local government when chairman, Coun. Frederick Rhead, removed his chain of office to mark the end of the council. It disappears next Monday when the area will be taken over by the larger South Cambridgeshire District Council. It was created in 1894 when the poor law guardians of the Chesterton union of parishes were reorganised. The new council met in the Poor Law Institution, now Chesterton hospital in Union Lane, Cambridge.

1974 03 28

Robin Page is again finding himself unpopular – this time for publishing some home truths about his home village, Barton. His book "The decline of an English village" has upset several residents. He believes that newcomers have diminished the quality of life of people born and bred in Barton. But the row is unlikely to match the time he was sacked by the Health Department for offending the Official Secrets Act.

St Ives plan, p11

1974 03 29
Cambridge City Council met for the last time yesterday. It took the council about ten seconds to dispose of their formal business – approving the spending of £1,248,000 on the new Central Library at the Lion Yard – then they went on to spend almost two hours saying goodbye to themselves, their retiring chief officers and exchanging presents. On the last day of the month, the city council, who more or less in their present form have run Cambridge since 1836 will make way for the new Cambridge District Council.

April 1974 CEN

1974 04 01
Cambridgeshire and Isle of Ely County Council has died at the age of only nine. And before their chairman, Ald. Maurice Payne, performed the last rites by formally signing the minutes, he expressed doubts about the wisdom of Whitehall in killing them off in their prime of life. The council are a victim of the nation-wide local government reorganisation which comes into effect on 1st April. They are being replaced by the new Cambridgeshire County Council made up of an amalgamation with Huntingdon and Peterborough County Council.

1974 04 01
Throughout the country hundreds of local councils are ready for the blast off into a new age. The council reorganisation which takes place today is the biggest upheaval ever to affect local government in this country. Hundreds of rural, urban, borough and city councils are swept away and their places taken by a new structure of county councils working with a network of district authorities. With a wan smile they have shrugged off the all-too-obvious jokes which were levelled against the start date for the new administration – April 1st

1974 04 02
Water services have undergone a sweeping change. The new governing body is the Anglian Water Authority, who are now responsible for services previously administered by the river authorities, water boards and local authorities in a huge area. In Mid Anglia they have taken over responsibilities previously carried out by 22 authorities. Cambridge Water Company will continue to have delegated powers catering for the needs of nearly 300,000 consumers

Services which attract large numbers of people are being banned at Mildenhall Baptist church because of the state of the building. If it deteriorates any more, the congregation may have to abandon it. The minister, the Rev William Hitchcock, said he had to switch a wedding to his other church at West Row because of the large number of guests. "It's not that the building is unsafe, we are using all the premises for regular services, but we are anxious not to have a large number of people to crowd the building out just in case", he said

Hempstead pond, p10

1974 04 03
Anyone who wants to release pent up tensions and generally let off steam should go the Abbey stadium when Cambridge United have a game there and shout off their heads, says the new Mayor of Cambridge, Coun. Jack Warren, President of the United Supporters. Maintaining his loyalty to the club, he is reluctant to say whether he thinks they will remain in the third division. "Let me say that if I was a betting man I would not put much money on their chances", he said

Parent power, p9

1974 04 04
Cambridge City Council's hope of converting the church of St Andrew the Great, in the city centre, may be dashed by the high cost involved. Estimates for the conversion work have been put at £137,000. Coun. Mrs Doris Howe said: "It would be ideal to house organisations like the Citizens' Advice Bureau, the Tourists' Information Office and the Consumer protection Advice centres under one roof and even perhaps think of using part as a Civic Restaurant. But it as an awful lot of money to spend.

Over mill, p6
Hospital start, p11
Site sold, p15

1974 04 05
The Exorcist the controversial film about demonic possession, gained its first hospital victim in Cambridge last night. A young girl was taken to New Addenbrooke's by ambulance from the Victoria 1 cinema to add to the tally of more than 50 cases of treatment since the film opened on Sunday. "We haven't had anything like this since the days of Ben Hur, 15 years ago", said Mr Colin McCurdy, a senior officer of the St John Ambulance Brigade. "Most of them have fainted, a few have been sick, others have been giddy and in all these cases there has been some shock". The cinema manager said the film was claiming between eight and 12 victims a day

School unifroms, p8
Housing priority, p17
St Ives buses, p20

1974 04 06
When Cherry Mann moved into a council house in Holbrook Road, Cambridge this week it was not just a new home for her but the beginning of a whole new way of life. It was a dream came true. She has been severely disabled by a rare and incurable disease for more than 30 years, and her home for the last three years has been a hospital bed. The house been converted into a self-contained flat with wide sliding doors, accessible light switches and doors on to a specially-built patio so that she can propel herself in her wheelchair into the fresh air. "It is just incredible to be here", she said.

An estimated 500 million people will watch the Eurovision Song Contest. There are more girls than ever before competing including Olivia Newton-John, the Cambridge born United Kingdom hope. She lived here as a child, though in 1955 she left for Australia with her parents. Olivia was non-committal about her song "Long Live Love". (She came equal fourth. The winners were Abba with "Waterloo")

Boy Boon has them reeling, p10

1974 04 08
How children see Barton, p8

1974 04 09
A gang of hooligans are terrorising old folk living on the Arbury estate in Cambridge, says County Councillor Mrs Janet Jones. She said the gang have let off fire extinguishers in the Edgecombe flats, cut down washing lines in the gardens of old peoples' bungalows, gathered at Arbury Court refusing to allow old people to pass and rampaged along the alleyways linking Crowland Way with Campkin Road, smashing dozens of windows in garden sheds. "There appears to be a gang going round and there is not much else one can do except to ask them to behave themselves", she said

York Street, p10

1974 04 10
There has been less than 1½th of an inch of rain during the last 21 days – and that was before the drought period began 18 days ago. Yet the subterranean water table is showing a considerable improvement on its level at the same time last year when there was an eight-inch deficit. “It will probably be a matter of two years before we get back to the level which existed two years ago”, said a Water engineer

Car-owning league, p17

1974 04 11
Cut-price homes plan, p25

1974 04 13
Cherry Hinton residents were up in arms after they woke up to find a thick film of dust sprinkled over their gardens, houses and cars after a breakdown in the nearby Norman Cement Works. The dust showered during the night from a tall chimney known locally as “Smokey Joe” which dominates one of the new estates. A resident said “It’s all very fine to talk about cars but we must be breathing this stuff in 24 hours a day”

Easter motorists, p1
Foxton station, p7

1974 04 15
Truly, Christians are crazy. In the bitter cold before dawn, 250 of them huddled on the frosted Gog Magog hills to sing to the sound of 13 guitars and a tambourine. They had travelled from the warm beds and frozen bird baths of suburban Cambridge to bring sanity to society. This was the local launching of Power in the Land, a year-long national evangelical campaign by Christians of all makes. We had most sorts in our lot yesterday, from high Anglican to Plymouth Brethren – Christopher South

1974 04 16
Bourn market, p10
Millers music centre, p13

1974 04 17
There have been big changes in shopping habits at Royston over the past decade and now, with addition of a new supermarket and extensive modernisation of many stores, the town can boast that they are able to cater for all the major needs of the modern family. Easily accessible by car, bus or train, it has become increasingly popular among a wider range of neighbouring villages whose inhabitants have found other shopping centres too inaccessible or too congested. Royston with its pedestrian precinct does not have either of these worries.

Huntingdon landlords, p14
Gravel pit protest, p15

1974 04 18
Gwydir Street traffic doubles, p12

1974 04 19
The barman with the fastest gulp in St Neots, 46-year-old Edwin Cheeseman, looks set to hold on to his month-old record for sinking a pint. Edwin, an agricultural worker of Eaton Socon, has fought off a score of challenges at the Greenacres pub, Longsands, all determined to better his astounding 3.1

seconds to drink a pint. None has succeeded. “The secret is just to open up your throat and pour, there’s no time to swallow”, he explained

12-year-old dancer, p8
Huntingdon bypass warning, p18

1974 04 20
Four youths were arrested and three needed hospital treatment when 1,000 pop fans went on the rampage at Cambridge Corn Exchange. 68 windows were smashed and police with dogs took an hour to restore order. Police said trouble started when an American group, The Drifters, failed to appear. The packed hall had waiting for 90 minutes for the group to turn up. Each had paid £1.10p. to get into the 8pm to 1am pop concert

1974 04 22
A blue double-decker bus interrupted an historical pageant when it trundled slowly down Haslingfield High Street between a clutch of monks and Queen Elizabeth I riding side-saddle. It became part of a two-day festival to raise money for the restoration of the parish church. The embarrassed passengers looked sternly in front of them as the crowd clapped and cheered an old woman alighting at the bus stop.

Prickly problems, p7
First-class mail delays, p10

1974 04 23
People feel sorry for Shirley Leivers. “They often come out with things like, ‘You must a terrible time at home with him’”, she told me, as she came perilously close to falling off her chair with laughter. “Him” refers to her husband, Bill Leivers, manager of Cambridge United, the man who put Cambridge on the football map, the former “iron man” of Manchester City, who is seen by some as “the ogre of the Abbey stadium”. United, the club he took from Southern League obscurity to the Third Division of the Football League in just four seasons have faltered, and fallen straight back to Division Four

Arts Theatre losses, p6

1974 04 24
Clive James and Peter Atkins write some of the best songs. They are always classic essays in lyric writing, perceptive, incisive, studied and restrained – and a long way from rock lyric writing. The lyrics are written by Clive, Peter is the musician and performer – and they both live in Cambridge. Their partnership cemented while they were both students. Evidence of the excellence of their music can be heard on three albums by Atkin including: “A king at nightfall”

Newport manion flats, p18

1974 04 25
County Council HQ, p14
Mildenhall jets, p14

1974 04 26
Plans are being discussed for another hospital to serve the Cambridge area in a bid to ease staff and administration problems at the giant new Addenbrooke’s in Hills Road, Cambridge. The Department of Health have indicated that they think the ultimate 1,700-bed hospital is too big to be managed satisfactorily and too difficult to staff adequately. Officials have been studying surveys with a view to siting the new hospital near where it could best recruit nursing and ancillary staff. Ideally this would be near a big housing estate such as Arbury

Council tenants will move into four-bedroomed homes on a high-class privately built housing estate in St Ives if Whitehall agrees. Huntingdon district council say they are waiting for the go-ahead to buy a dozen empty houses on the White Cross estate, Ramsey road. But home owners already living there are continuing their protests that it would be unfair to have half the estate council–owned and the rest in private hands

1974 04 27
The Government have refused to give any more financial handouts to Cambridgeshire ratepayers this year. Changes made by the late Conservative government in the local government system have had an adverse effect on the new county. Under the rate support grant system it receives about $5 million less than the total received by the former county councils Rising costs facing the electricity supply industry meant that Eastern Electricity was heavily in the red. But sort-term difficulties should not inhibit the long-term development of the industry. "With its ability to use poor qualities of coal and oil and with the growth of nuclear energy, this industry is destined to play an increasing role in the energy supply of this country", the Chairman said.

1974 04 29
Fisher House rebuild, p3

1974 04 30
One of the most significant features of the reorganisation of local government from 1st April 1974, has been the changes in function. Cambridge city council will have no further responsibility for education, libraries, weights and measures, sewage disposal, or the domicilliary health service. The advantages claimed for the transfer of these services to larger bodies should lead to greater specialisation, the adoption of improved methods and techniques, better levels of service and economy of scale. Time will show whether these ideals can be realised.

May 1974 CEN

1974 05 01
A controversial street traffic experiment was being scrapped today. Council workmen were removing the bollards which had blocked Cambridge's Gwydir and Sturton streets to through traffic for the past three months, after the traffic committee decided the experiment had been a failure. Dozens of residents from neighbouring streets packed into the meeting to hear the debate on the future of the scheme. Afterwards the residents' association chairman, Mr Ian Henden, said: "This just shows what people can do when they stick together."

Parking may soon cost up to 50% more at some of the Cambridge's city council parks. If suggestions are accepted the charge at Park Street will go up from 5p to 7p an hour with a maximum rate of 75p for more than five hours. The present maximum is 50p. The daily charge for the Queen Anne Terrace (multi) and the Saxon street ground level park will go up from 10p to 15p. At New Square the maximum for more than five hours will rise to 40p.

Ely canon, p1

1974 05 02
Labour peer Lord Walston of Thriplow, said today that despite his plea in the House of Lords for a £35 a week minimum agricultural wage for farm workers he could only afford to pay that amount to one or two of his own workers. He said that until provisions had been made for farmers to get better returns from the market it would not be possible to pay the wages he wanted for farm workers. People could not, and ought not, to rely on cheap food bought at bargain prices

Dog loss, p11

1974 05 03
Cambridgeshire county council member, Mrs Janet Jones, strongly tipped in political circles as the city's next prospective Labour parliamentary candidate, has withdrawn from the nomination scramble. She said she could help Labour's cause by concentrating on her local council work in Cambridge and the rural area. "I sincerely believe local government can give more practical help to the people of Cambridge"

Swaffham Prior ghost estate, p18
Bridge Street façade, p20
Melbourn ghost town, p30

1974 05 06
Addenbrooke's Hospital fire, p1
Sports Hall, p9

1974 05 07
300 young people mobbed BBC disc jockey "Diddy" David Hamilton as he tried to punt down the Cam and forced him to abandon a live radio broadcast. As he crouched under a plastic mack in a Trinity college punt trying to conduct interviews and introduce records to several million Radio 1 listeners the crowd squirted gallons of water at him and threw pepper. Mr Hamilton, who had been keeping up a radio microphone link with an outside broadcast van at Garret Hostel Bridge was rescued after a chaotic half-hour during which several people including a representative of the city's entertainment department, tumbled into the river.

Huntingdon ambulances, p10

1974 05 09
Sand to desert, p19
Shelford shopping, p24

1974 05 10
The placing of the Garden House Hotel into the hands of a receiver-manager illustrates all too clearly the fine line between success or failure in business plans. At one moment the £2 million scheme was all go, and even at an interest rate of 10½ %, would have been viable for the family business. But then, almost overnight, rocketing interest rates killed off all hopes of doing anything other than paying a loan. Even though the hotel is making a profit on a day-to-day basis they could not contemplate it. To pay off a bank overdraft accrued since the fire that gutted the original buildings two years ago, they had to expand and create a higher turnover.

Water seeping through the banks of the Reach, Burwell, Swaffham Bulbeck and Bottisham lodes presented the Great Ouse local land drainage committee with a cash dilemma: spending a smaller amount of money but partly closing the system to navigation or spending a lot more to allow boating to continue. The engineer said there was a straight choice. This involved demolishing all or part of the high-level lode systems so creating a new low-level system of drains, or retaining the high-level systems and controlling the seepage that occurs. "Once you close a system of waterways to navigation you will never get it open again", he said.

Bar Hill houses 'diabolical', p6
Robinson petition, p22

1974 05 11
Stansted airport action group were guarded today about reports that it may become London's third airport after all. This is certain to rekindle the fires of a few years ago when pressure from local residents quashed a Government plan to develop it. A committee member said: "We feel that the airport's existing facilities area adequate to handle two million passengers a year"

Wilkinson wins Mastermind, p7
Maharishi symposium, p7 (& 13th p9)

1974 05 13
An experimental five-day ward at New Addenbrooke's hospital, Cambridge, has opened. Five patients requiring minor surgery were admitted, and barring any unlikely complications, they will be back home by Friday. The ward is an attempt at cutting the hospital's long waiting list and at the same time offering a five-day week for nurses. On Friday night, they pack up for the weekend and the patients go home. The free weekends, it is hoped, will be more attractive to staff, and it is staff the hospital is very short of.

1974 05 15
Cambridge City new manager, p15
Garden House is viable, p19

1974 05 16
Taxi fares are to go up in Cambridge by 24% if the city council agree. The new rate for the first three-quarters of a mile of any journey will be 26p. The present rate is 18p. Subsequent rates will remain at 3p per quarter-mile.

Abington Pigotts sewage, p11

1974 05 17
Huntingdon swimming club's dream of an international standard pool in the town was sunk last night by Huntingdon district council. Club members listened to a debate on the council's capital expenditure programme for leisure schemes hoping to hear favourable comment on a £280,000 plan for an indoor pool alongside the existing Bushey Close swimming baths. But they heard councillors agree to put only £5,000 into the programme and to meet Cambridgeshire county council officers to discuss the idea of a dual-dash use pool which would not be built to international competition standards

1974 05 18
Homing, the sport that for many still conjures up a misty picture of bleak northern hillsides, cloth caps and mufflers, in thriving in Cambridgeshire. Where there were only three clubs after the Second World War there are now 14, the newest of which, Cambridge Granta, was formed four years ago. In the Cambridge area alone there are about 450 fanciers with a total of 25,000 birds.

1974 05 21
Residents of the north Arbury estate did not need a heat wave to remind them of their need for another pub and the opening of The Ship will meet with eager response. Campaigners for real ale will be pleased to find that Wells of Bedford are making this their fourth Cambridge pub, providing beer connoisseurs with their prize-winning bitter as well as a wide range of other beers, wines and spirits in spacious new premises 74 05 21

Cycleway plan, p6
Savage cuts social services, p9

1974 05 22
Arch-goon Spike Milligan hosted a reception at the University Arms Hotel with folksinger Jeremy Taylor to mark the release of a double album, "An adult entertainment: Spike Milligan live at Cambridge University", recorded in concert at the Lady Mitchell Hall last year before an invited audience. Spike made a military entrance dressed in a blue-denim jacket – buttoned up wrongly – and a flowery shirt and inspected the guests who lined up in military ranks. He had spent the day in Cambridge being filmed by a BBC crew. In the afternoon he visited the market and briefly served behind the counter of Mr Andy Gray's record stall

One of Swaffham Prior's last two remaining pubs is to close. The Allix Arms, a small pub has been run by one well-known village family for 44 years. Mr Arthur Bye, the present licensee, was handed his notice from Tollemache Cobbold breweries. The pub occupies two rooms of the house where he lives. He uses the pub yard for his coal business. "I am the last tradesman left here. This village is becoming a dying duck, but if I can't find another yard, my coal business will have to close too", he said

Newmarket take-over, p11
Oakington aircraft, p14

1974 05 24
British rail passenger fares will go up by an average of 12% from June. Cambridge commuters to London will pay £1.79 instead of £1.60 for a second-class day return, while the ordinary return fare goes up from £2.55 to £2.87. Other increases affecting local travellers are: Huntingdon-London day return up to £1.79; Ely to London day return now £2.36 while a second-class single from Cambridge to Ipswich goes up 10p to 85p

The former Lyons Restaurant in Petty Cury, Cambridge, is to be reopened in the autumn as a dress shop. Dorothy Perkins Ltd have been trying to get into Cambridge for some years. The restaurant which opened 42 years ago as a tea shop was closed because of reorganisation. At first the city council planned to investigate reopening it as a Civic restaurant. But their hopes were dashed when Lyons announced they had already sold the premises to a private buyer 74 05 24

1974 05 25
With head down, feet in the air, a gentle bounce on his head and a good smack on his bottom, 12 year old Barry Watson was the first to suffer the bouncing ceremony in Cottenham. Altogether about 75 villager set off to take part in beating the bounds of the parish – a tradition dating back to medieval times. They intend to walk all of the 20 miles in a day long tramp around the boundary. At four places boys were bounced according to a custom originally intended to make sure they never forgot the siting of the parish boundaries.

Newmarket traffic jam, p6

1974 05 28
The vicar of St Ives defended gambling after children had been placing dice for bibles in his church. Canon Ronald Jennings said the 300-year-old ceremony was one of the town's traditions. It takes place each year because in 1675 a town doctor left a legacy to pay for bibles to be diced for by children in the parish. The youngest was 7-year-old Claire Coleman and the top scorer was 10-year-old Rachel Anderson.

1974 05 30
Cambridge city council have been advised to buy privately-owned houses to cut down their waiting list, and in most cases pay a maximum price of £11,500. But the move angered the leader of the council's opposition conservative group who condemned it as "Nothing more than a Labour Government attempt to nationalise housing". The new government had given local councils powers to buy houses to increase their housing pool. But Counc. Terry Sweeney said the shortage of mortgages and high interest rates were the reasons so many houses remained unsold. The council would be doing a public service by buying and letting them, he said.

1974 05 31
An alleged ghost, affectionately known as Fred, in a 17th-century building in St Neots town centre, is the subject of an intensive investigation by the Society for Psychical Research. The alleged apparition, said to be that of a man dressed in a three-cornered hat and wearing a cloak, has been reported twice in five years in the building. The owner of Carousel Restaurant called in experts because she wants the matter cleared up. "My cook saw him. I'm not scared but I wouldn't like to see him suddenly", she said

Lion Yard, p6
Ditton Lane land, p26

1974 June CEN

1974 06 01
Important research experiments were destroyed when fire badly damaged a wing of the University Department of Biochemistry on the Downing site. Four floors of the building, which was opened in 1963 and is the workplace of about 40 people, were damaged. Expensive equipment and research papers were badly affected on the second floor where research work into proteins is carried out. The top floor, home of the chemical microbiology research centre, was also affected.

Foxton barn fire, p7

1974 06 03
Spicers at Sawston, p11

1974 06 04
The drug pushing problem in Cambridge was stopped overnight when four youths received prison sentences for drugs thefts. They were the heaviest ever imposed in the area & had been imposed for stealing drugs worth than £2,000 on black market from a Sawston chemist's shop. "All burglaries of chemists' shops have so far been detected by the Drugs Squad and in many cases the property has been recovered", said Chief Constable F. Drayton Porter

The site of the Co-operative laundry in Cambridge, which closed at Easter, is now up for sale. The company bought the site in Histon Road during the last war and began operations in 1941. At their peak 100 people worked there compared to the 60 at the time of their closure. "The problem was getting staff. It was terrible," said the Chief executive. They are keeping open three shops at Histon Road, Arbury Court and Mill Road 74 06 04

King Edward potatoes, p11

1974 06 05
Cottenham sugar beet, p18

1974 06 06
The Isle of Ely Conservatives are arranging for six Liberal voters in the constituency to undergo intensive psychoanalysis in an attempt to discover why they lost the seat they had held for 28 years to Mr Clement Freud in the last General Election. Their agent said the attempt to get to the root of the "Freud on the Brain" condition was meant to be secret

Storeys House opening, p14

1974 06 07
Cambridge Poverty Action Group have agreed to support Gingerbread, the organisation concerned with the needs of one-parent families, who want the County Council to help them establish a day centre where children can be cared for while their parents are at work. Gingerbread's chairman said he would like to see it open from 7.30 am till 6pm five days a week throughout the year. At least 50 children in Cambridge needed such a centre.

St Ives passenger service, p14
Roads plan, p17

1974 06 08
A computer device which will enable police to produce statistics in four hours instead of the present four weeks, is to be installed at Police Headquarters, Hinchingbrooke. It is a data entry system which will replace the present manual system used for drawing up quarterly and annual statistics. The information will then be run through the County Council computer at Shire Hall. Cambridgeshire Police do have another computer carrying criminal records and names on police files. This machine will eventually be linked with the national police computer terminal at Hendon. It has come in for criticism nationally because of "big brother" fears

Dr Frank Stubbings, fellow and Librarian of Emmanuel College, was elected Cambridge University Orator. He could be the University's last Latin-speaking orator. The council of the Senate have said they are thinking about dropping Latin as the official language of the University. If it is dropped the post of orator, with a stipend of £612 a year, will be open to any artsman or scientist. At present with the job of writing lengthy Latin speeches the orator must be a classicist.

Library book shortage, p7
Strawberry prices, p8

1974 06 10
Norman Higgins, a trustee and former managing director of the Cambridge Arts Theatre died at his home. Eight years ago he retired as general manager of the Arts cinema which he had started as the Cosmopolitan cinema in 1933. His contribution to the cultural life of Cambridge since he managed the old Tivoli cinema was immense. He willingly responded when Lord Keynes invited him to supervise the building of the new Arts Theatre and was subsequently responsible for more than 200 productions of opera, ballet, plays, revues and pantomimes

Burleigh Street scheme, p7

1974 06 11
School bans water, p7
Sawston cemetery, p11

1974 06 12
After 50 years of growing and packing flowers on a farm in Fordham Mr Reginald Nicholls is retiring. He has worked for Mr Reginald Reader at Halesfield, Fordham, since he set up as a flower grower in 1924. He is foreman in the packing shed, where up to 950 boxes of flowers are made up every day for shipment to Manchester, Glasgow and London. "I can remember when we had 30 people working in the packing shed, and on August Bank Holiday the fields were blue with scabius as far as you can see", he said. Mr Reader said: "You can't make money growing flowers as you could. You can't get the labour. Some of the women who pick with me have been with us for 20 years"

River Stour fish, p12
Fordham flowers, p17

1974 06 13
Cambridge rock and roll fans were out in force last night for a concert given by the Bluebirds Band which was filmed by a television crew. Dressed in their best sneakers and velvet collared "Ted" jackets, the 200 fans danced the night away to the tune of Telstar and the Shadows and Buddy Holly numbers. It was the second rock and roll evening organised by the Roc Club and manager, Mr Charlie Flack, said that if the club succeeded in buying the old Rex Cinema, top name groups would be playing there. The film is part of a series "Portraits of Places" which is to be screened on Independent Television next month.

Ely bypass, p9
Taxi plates, p10
Bedders trade union, p17

1974 06 14
It is the most interesting job 53 year-old Wally Edwards has done in 37 years of carpentry. Bird Brothers the builders took it on because nobody else seemed interested. The success or failure of their work will be plain for all to see. It stands high and dry on top of a hill near Saffron Walden and just outside the village of Ashdon. And once Braggs Mill is renovated, Mr Edmunds Vestey hopes it will provide a focal point for sightseers. The mill was built in 1800 and is one of the oldest post mills in Essex.

Thriplow school, p23

1974 06 15
Dairy princess, p1
Corn Exchange disgrace, p7

1974 06 17
Reubens' "Adoration of the Magi", reckoned to be among the most valuable in the world was damaged when raiders, who stole money from an offertory box in King's college chapel, scored the letters IRA across the lower middle of the painting. Discovery of the damage was made by a tourist. Earlier it had been missed by both police and college authorities when they investigated the break-in. The scoring, with a blunt metallic object had penetrated through the varnish and pigment into the grounding. "There is every hope we can repair it", said the Dean, the Rev. Michael Till

MP papers lost commons bomb, p8

1974 06 18
Ely Nat-West bank, p12

1974 06 19
Children who have fixed up a suitable career should be able to leave school at 14 rather than spend two wasted years at school, says the Liberal MP for the Isle of Ely, Mr Clement Freud. He said the amending of the school leaving age was necessary if education authorities were to have any hope of checking the large increase in truancy. "The younger ones are now following the example of the 15 year olds and staying away as well, and in some cases teachers are not coming in because they cannot face another day trying to teach 15 years olds who are simply fed up with school", he said

The £2 ½ million extension to the Cambridge trunk telephone exchange in Long Road was declared open. It has more than doubled the size of the original building which was opened in 1965. The ceremony also celebrated the recent completion of STD facilities. Cambridge is the first area in the Eastern region to have 100% STD facilities. By 1976 Cambridge people should be able to telephone direct to North America and most of Europe, covering 65% of the world's telephones

1974 06 20
Farmers may face compulsory restrictions in their use of river water this summer because of the acute water shortage. Rain last winter was again well below average and the water shortage suffered last year could be expected again. The worst time was likely to be during the spray-irrigation season when farmers will be taking large quantities of water from the rivers to water their crops. A special watch will need to be kept to make sure that sewage treatment is kept to the highest possible standard as the level in rivers drops.

1974 06 21

Bassingbourn vets return, p19

1974 06 24
John Wesley, founder of the Methodist church, was famous for riding 50 miles a day on horseback. But his counterpart in a Haverhill pageant had to walk. The pageant, part of the town's Methodist church centenary celebrations, was to have been led by a parishioner dressed as Wesley and riding a horse. The first horse selected for the job went lame and another refused to enter a horsebox. So Wesley walked. Methodist minister Mr George Sharman said: "It rather spoilt our pageant as John Wesley was famous for his riding. But apart from that the celebrations went off well".

1974 06 25
The Newmarket millionaire racehorse owner, Mr David Robinson, is to sell Cambridge city centre property in Sidney Street. The site, which includes Millers Music Centre, the Arts Cinema and part of the Eaden Lilley store is due to be auctioned in London. But the future of the Arts cinema, on which the lease does not expire until 1981, is safe. Any future owner will have to retain its use as a cinema

Ramsden Square modernisation, p13

1974 06 27
A warning that within 10 years the Lion Yard areas of Cambridge, now being completely redeveloped will become a "twilight zone" is given in a new booklet, "Walks round vanished Cambridge", published by Land of Cokaygne. It says: "Within 10 years the town centre will have moved east to the Kite area, the University west to the science city. Lion Yard will be a twilight zone lost somewhere between the two".

Bradwells Court carpet, p8
River Cam sick, p13
Sewerage rate robbery, p18

1974 06 28
Threshold pay increases for teachers have cost the new Cambridgeshire County Council an extra £1M. more than they bargained for. Now they are faced with the mammoth problem of finding this extra money which seems certain to end in cuts being made in the education and other council run services. County Treasurer, Jack Barton, said the council provided 9% for pay award increases in their budget but this has not proved enough.

Things have changed since Mr Edgar Blincoe went into service at Cambridge University. "When I first went to the University all the undergraduates came up in lounge suits and bowler hats. Now you see them going down the street eating fish and chips". The discipline has gone. It was for this reason that by the time he carried out his last duties as a Bulldog (or University policeman) he had seen his role reduced. 27 years ago, when he began work, undergraduates had to be in by 10, wear gowns one hour after sunset, and refrain from smoking in academic dress. And when they were caught they faced a 6s.8d fine for not wearing a gown. For returning to college an hour late the price was 1d.

Cottenham plan, p19
Gamlingay growth, p32

1974 07 29
Brampton cadet HQ, p6

July 1974 CEN

1974 07 01
Johson-Matthey jobs, p11

1974 07 02
It was 50 years ago that Mrs Ruth Mellanby began to guide people round the colleges when she was asked by a newly-opened travel agency in Guildhall St, Cambridge to take two elderly American tourists round. This was the beginning of a life-long and distinguished career as a guide. In 1950 she wrote her little book, "Cambridge in brief" as a thumbnail sketch of the colleges. Then 20 years ago she started the Cambridge Guide Service, training a group of around 20 guides. The Guild of Guide Lecturers ultimately drove the street touts who at one time operated their own dubious type of tours, out of business

Police sealed off part of Hills Road, Cambridge, for most of yesterday afternoon after a 1½ ton container of deadly formic acid toppled from an open-backed lorry and began to spill its contents on to the road. The acid is poisonous and corrosive. Cambridge has experienced 21 such incidents in the past two years. Police cars blocked the road and three fire units drenched the rear end of the lorry with water, yet a girl on her way to a nearby post-box splashed through the liquid around the lorry, wearing nothing on her feet but wooden sandals 74 07 02

1974 07 03
Council pay package, p11

1974 07 04
Projecting a good public image is going to cost the Anglian Water Authority £40,000 in publicity, exhibitions, printing and recruiting propaganda – right down to £500 for grooming leading spokesmen on how to give television interviews. A Lincolnshire delegate said: "I think this may be a little excessive at the moment, bearing in mind the hard times we are living in"

1974 07 06
The White Ribbon Hostel, in Cambridge, which provides accommodation for nearly 30 single men with no family backgrounds, may soon be run jointly by Cambridgeshire County and Cambridge City Councils. Until 18 months ago the Salvation Army ran the hostel at East Road. But rising costs and the prospects of having to pay thousands of pounds to bring it up to the new fire safety standards led them to hand over the project.

1974 07 08
Newmarket bypass, p9

1974 07 09
Bus company cuts, p10
Littleport milk firm, p14

1974 07 10
Transport cafes, p7
Kimbolton go co-ed, p8

1974 07 11
The bells of Oakington church are ringing again after 50 years silence thanks to the efforts of four boys from the village. For almost a year, Graham Brasnett, aged 13, Tony Moore, 12, his brother David, 11, and their friend Michael Cleaver, 11, who all live in Water Lane, have been helping the vicar to repair the 300-year-old bells which experts said would never ring again. The vicar, Rev. James Alexander, said he was very pleased the bells were ringing again. His only disappointment: "They don't have a very beautiful ring"

1974 07 12
Time and cost, two major problems when you are having your own house build, have been drastically cut in a revolutionary new house in Cambridge. It took only three months to put up the tall, airy three-bedroomed house at 214 Chesterton Rd, and the cost (without land) was £7,200 – less than half the normal figure to build a house of this quality. This remarkable feat was achieved by a Cambridge University lecturer in architecture who designed it for his own family. His method was to use unconventional building material. A timber frame, flat asbestos sheets form the walls and a feature of the design is the huge expanse of glass. It is an exciting, attractive home which could set a new style in house building.

Kent takeover, p24

1974 07 13
Learn for fun classes, p5
Rescued horse, p8

1974 07 15
The world's first test-tube babies have been born, and at least one of them is alive in Britain. A Cambridge University scientist, Dr Robert Edwards, of the Department of Physiology, has figured prominently in work involving producing a test-tube baby. He and a colleague, Dr Patrick Steptoe, an Oldham gynaecologist, have been working on the technique of fertilising the human egg in the laboratory.

Debden celebration Diocese, p9

1974 07 16
Royston has allowed itself to be spoilt; it lacks shopping facilities; it is an expensive place for housing; and it is a town in limbo not knowing whether it should turn to Cambridge or North Hertfordshire, says Prof. Parry Lewis in his planning report. "This is a town that is surrounded by extremely beautiful countryside containing several villages of delightful character and appearance. As one approaches there is an expectation of something that might perhaps have something of the quality of Saffron Walden. The expectation is rudely disappointed", he says.

1974 07 17
Haverhill planning, p5

1974 07 18
Seven generation of Barretts have been supplying the citizens of Cambridge with pottery and glass since the C18. This week the family business is virtually "coming home to roost" in opening up new premises in Gt St Mary's Passage – only a stone's throw from the spot where Simon Barrett opened up his first shop nearly 200 years ago. The long-established premises in St Andrew's Street will still remain in business.

1974 07 19
Urgent talks on the future of Stansted airport are being called by the MP for Saffron Walden, Mr Peter Kirk, following the decision to scrap the Maplin airport plans. He is arranging meetings with local authorities and pressure-groups around Stansted to thrash out a collective opposition to the possibility of massive expansion of the airport. Under a new scheme Stansted, which only recorded 31,000 aircraft movements last year, could be coping with 16 million passengers by the 1990s.

1974 07 19
Parry Lewis and his team of planners have examined the possibility of expanding Cambridge. Their studies convince them the best plan was to expand the city in a southern direction. Development would follow a line east of the new Western bypass. A second shopping centre would be located to the south-west of Trumpington. There would in addition be various district centres and a suitable amount of industrial and office development

Rent-a-witch, p8

Swaffham Prior church, p22

1974 07 23
The people of Cambridge would never accept the building of the proposed Western Relief Road project, linking Huntingdon Road with Trumpington Road and going through Newnham or near Grantchester, it was claimed by city councillors. In addition the county proposed a road linking Huntingdon Road with Madingley road. But Counc. Overhill supported the road. “If this was proposed through the middle of Chesterton, nobody would complain. It is only because it is going through Newnham that people are against it”, he said

Adult classes, p7
Over Baptist manse, p11

1974 07 24
Comedian Eric Morecambe, in a borrowed Ironside helmet, led the celebrations at St Ives when extensions at the Golden Lion Hotel were officially opened. He met hundreds of local people who came along for the free beer and merry-making. Between signing autographs on beer mats Eric sparred with Joe Bugner, one of the guests

1974 07 25
The racing industry would collapse without stablelads. They are the nursemaids of the industry. There are about 750 stable workers in Newmarket. For years their conditions and rates of pay were deplorable. This has changed completely since the strike of 1960 and Newmarket is considered one of the best racing towns in which to work. The basic weekly wage is now £26.43

1974 07 26
After all the artists had been booked for the first Cambridge Folk Festival 10 years ago the agent of a young American singer rang up the Festival director, Ken Woollard, to see if the singer could be added to the bill. They accepted an offer of £14 worth of complimentary advertising in the first programme and the singer appeared. His name was Paul Simon. Ten years on, with the Simon and Garfunkel world-winning partnership already cold history he is top of the word in his own right. So, too, in its own world, is the Festival

County seek cash, p19
Newmarket lads, p19

1974 07 27
The USAF open day at Alconbury has been cancelled after IRA bomb warnings. The decision to put off the flying spectacular, which annually attracts thousands of visitors, was taken last night. Alconbury is the base of the 10th Tactical Reconnaissance Wing and their 54 Phantom aircraft operate within NATO

St Luke’s centenary, p7

1974 07 29
Folk festival, p5

1974 07 30
A Cambridge undergraduate accused of cheating in an examination has been found guilty by the University Court of Discipline. He has been rusticated for the whole of next year and deprived of the chance of obtaining an Honours Degree. This was announced in a statement from the court, who had only their second sitting in history to hear the case. The undergraduate has the right of appeal to the Septemviri. They are the higher court of senior University members who would be convened specially for the occasion and who have not sat since before the last war

If you drive down Mill Lane, Gt Chesterford, you had better be prepared to abandon your car. For although it is open to vehicles down one side, it's for walkers only on the way back. The trouble is a classic case of bureaucratic bungling between two county councils. They have given different designations to each side of the road, which straddles the county boundary and leads to a sewerage works. On the Essex side it is a byway open to vehicles. But on the Cambridgeshire side it is a footpath and only open to walkers.

Addenbrooke's Hospital, p11

1974 07 31
Save Kite, p15

August 1974 CEN

1974 08 01
Cambridgeshire Football Association's annual attempt to improve their position as one of the poorest of poor relations where coaching is concerned gets under way at Cambridge City's Milton Road, ground. Freddie Barrett, the county's head of coaching, has been running short, intensive annual courses for 25 years since he qualified as a full-time FA coach, but despite his considerable efforts, coaching in Cambridgeshire is still in its infancy. Over 6,000 people turn out every weekend in Cambridgeshire to play football which puts in perspective the figure of 32 for attendance at last year's coaching course

Soham cottage, p4
Brooke Crutchley retires, p15

1974 08 02
The 1¼ acre Arbury adventure playground looks like a Wild West stockade, with tall telegraph poles visible above the high fencing and a tattered union jack blowing in the breeze. It lies on the northern edge of the housing estate. As many as 250 children are likely to be there during the school holidays. It was parents on the estate who got the venture going and raised the initial money. Fencing alone cost more than £1,000. Since then the city council have helped with grants

The White Ribbon hostel in East Road, Cambridge, which provides a home for 30 working men with no family backgrounds, has been declared a great fire hazard by Cambridgeshire Fire and Rescue Service. For many years the hostel was run by the Salvation Army but they were forced to give up when the high cost of bringing the building up to fire safety standards was discovered last year. The building was then run by Cambridgeshire Mental Welfare Association. But because of other commitments, they have handed over the administration to the county council. Eventually the authorities hope to replace the old buildings with new ones. But no swift action is likely in rebuilding because of the present serious shortage of money in local government circles. 74 08 02

Sugar shortage

1974 08 03
First into the new swimming pool built by the men at Waterbeach barracks was the officer commanding 63 Headquarters Squadron, Major J.M. Allen. He was thrown in by his men at the official opening ceremony. A squad of 17 men built the 30-metre pool from scratch. It cost about £10,000 and is Waterbeach's first major amenity purpose built for the 1,000 men. Next September a Government-built gymnasium should be completed

1974 08 05
Cambridge teddy boys were out in force on Saturday for a double Teddy boy wedding at the Shire Hall. Members of the Cambridge Rock & Roll club dressed up to the nines in teddy boy drapes, creepers, dazzling socks and boot-lace ties formed a guard of honour for the two couples as they left the register office. All their rock & roll friends were invited to a joint reception at the Alex Wood Hall when one of the country's top rock and roll groups, the Impalas from London, played

Violent storm, p11

1974 08 06
Battling mothers at Abington last night won the first round in their fight to stop Education chiefs from removing a mobile classroom at the village's primary school. Workmen who arrived at lunchtime intended to carry off all three sections of the classroom to a school at Swaffham Bulbeck. But a group of more than a dozen mothers sat in the final part of the classroom and prevented the workmen removing it. The parents say the village hall, which the Department want the children to use instead, is unsuitable for teaching in 1974 08 08

The Government has given the go-ahead with the production of a cigarette containing artificial tobacco. N.S.M. (New Smoking Material) is really de-lignified wood pulp shredded to look like a tobacco material. It has been under study at the Huntingdon Research Centre for the past three years. The man in charge pronounced the new product "terrible, it smells ghastly when it is burning, just like burning wood. I'll stick to ordinary tobacco", he said

1974 08 09
Cedar Cycles of Cottenham, one of the biggest wholesale and retail bicycle dealers in the Cambridge area, intend for the first time to exhibit foreign bikes only at the Cambridge Leisure Fair. The decision seems to be part of a trend that could subtly change the cycling scene in Cambridge – capital of British pedal power. More and more foreign bikes are to be seen on city streets. Cedar Cycles, who cover a large area in Mid-Anglia, say they sold nearly 1,000 new bicycles in 1973 and aim to double the total within five years. They have just become East Anglian agents for Yugoslavia's Unis bicycles.

Several hundred people were turned away from the Corn Exchange, Cambridge, when a top American group, the Ronettes, failed to turn up for a concert date. Their agent confirmed their lead singer Ronnie Spector had been taken ill. Earlier in the year several hundred fans went on the rampage when another American group, The Drifters, failed to play a concert date

1974 08 10
The decision to close down the RAF base at Oakington, first announced in 1972, was confirmed yesterday. There were tears in the eyes of many workers when Wing Commander G.J. Daly made the announcement. Mr Ivan Cockbill of Willingham, a chef at the station since 1970 said: "We hoped the closure would be shelved". Another worker, Mr Martin Rainesford, of Cambridge, who has worked at the base for 17 years said: "We are all sorry to see it close down". The Royal Regiment of Fusiliers will take over the base in April next year

Camp site crisis, p6

1974 08 12
Rag cancelled, p7
Savoy Jazzmen, p9

1974 08 13
Many shops in Mid Anglia are trying to beat the sugar shortage by selling specially-imported supplies, and customers are eager to buy the new stocks although they are having to pay 20p a kilo (almost 2¼ lb). British produced sugar has been selling at about 11½p for 2 lb. At Royston two main supermarkets have been hit by the sugar shortage. The Spar stores in High St, Hemingford Grey had imported sugar at the weekend and demand was so great they sold out by Saturday evening. Two Haverhill supermarkets have no supplies of sugar this week.

1974 08 14
United line-up 1974-5 season - supplement

1974 08 16
Some publicity pictures are a real hang up. But one sent out by Cambridge folk group, Spriguns of Tolgus, is a fake (showing the group at Caxton Gibbet). The group's bass Mike Morton read that the last public hanging at Caxton gibbet was in the 1750s. He naturally wanted to put the record straight. "The last public hanging at Caxton occurred on 6th August 1974". The victim was the group's new drummer, Rod Moore. Mandy Morton is cringing and Chris Russon reads an ancient paper in the photo they commissioned. They reckon the scene is connected with one of their traditional folk numbers, about William Corder, hanged in Bury for the murder of Maria Martin

Someone in Haddenham was displeased when the parish council decided to reallocate allotments to local gardeners. So they decided to get their own back, says the parish council clerk, by planting his prize garden full of weeds – giant bindweed, nettles, twitch grass and willow herb. "I would have given anyone a pound for any weed they found in my garden, now I've dug eight or nine pailfuls of weed roots up from all over it" , Mr Charles Bester said. They had been cut into three inch root lengths, and dug in with a long-tined fork and the top soil carefully replaced. He found the weeds when digging in some fertiliser. And that's not all he found. By way of some small recompense he dug up a George I farthing, a William III farthing and a 1963 sixpence. 74 08 14

Swaffham Bulbeck best-kept village, p18

1974 08 17
Two Cambridge honeymoon couples are among the thousands of people hit by the collapse of the Court Line Holiday Group. One couple, due to be married at Girton, paid £190 for their honeymoon on Lake Como in Italy. Another couple who were due to be married this afternoon have had to make last-minute changes to their plans. They were due to fly out from Luton for a holiday in Ibiza for which they paid £133

The decision to close down the Tracked Hovercraft site at Earith was regrettable, the Hunts MP, Sir David Renton, said. A White Paper yesterday announced the closure. The scheme was axed in February last year because the then Conservative Government would not put in £4 million needed for the second phase on the grounds that there was no customer for it. Most of the 142 staff were made redundant at once. A few were kept on to tidy up THL's operations in Cambridge and Earith.

Ossie Neal motor cycles, p5

1974 08 21
The first council tenants have moved into the luxury homes bought by Huntingdon district council in a controversial bid to beat the housing shortage. Three families have moved into the £11,000 privately-built houses on Whitecross estate off Ramsey Road. The 26 house owners already on the estate have been protesting against the scheme ever since it was announced four months ago. A four-bedroomed house will cost £10 a week rent. On the other side of the road owner-occupiers are paying £17 a week mortgages.

1974 08 22
For the first time Cambridgeshire primary schools are to have direct representation by parents and teachers on their governing bodies. For county primary schools in the city it will be the first time that they will have had managing boards at all. Previously a sub-committee of the former Cambridge education committee have had delegated powers for these schools, but with local government reorganisation they are to be brought into line with the rest of the county

Cottage hospitals reprieve, p6

1974 08 23
A convoy of lorries carrying 50 one-ton bombs to an American air base were diverted on to the half-built Newmarket by-pass last night when some of the loads were found to have shifted dangerously. Explosive experts examined the bombs for damage before they were reloaded by a crane brought from USAF Lakenheath. The scare lasted for five hours and involved dozens of firemen, police and American military personnel. An atmosphere of secrecy surrounded the incident from its beginning near the railway crossing on the A11 at Six Mile Bottom. Military explosive shipments are on Cambridgeshire roads every day without police escort, and without information being given to the fire service.

Bacon shortage, p22

1974 08 24
Protesting housewives and placard-carrying teenagers forced a Haverhill market trader to stop selling sugar for 20p for a 2lb bag. Housewives returning from supermarkets with the same sugar sold at 11p but one bag per customer started to accuse the trader of profiteering. After trying to sell his sugar unsuccessfully for nearly two hours he put the packets under the counter. He said: "I only brought it because the public want it. I'm only making 25p in the pound."

Gleaming Duchess, p5

1974 08 26
Rex complaints, p6

1974 08 27
Life with Adamsons, p4
Saffron Walden land, p11

1974 08 28
Children on their own are banned from buying sugar in Lipton's Huntingdon supermarket because the manager says they are running a high price black-market. Others have taken action because mothers are sending in their children to beat the 2lb a family rationing by shops. In all towns in the area the story of the sugar stampede is the same: as soon as it appears in the shops it is snapped up. The manager of Civil's supermarket in St Ives said they were having to ration to make sure a steady flow was kept. In Cambridge sugar was not available at most supermarkets but Arbury Discount had enough for every customer to be allowed one bag.

1974 08 29
A former patient at Addenbrooke's hospital, Cambridge, who has invented a machine to aid victims of speech paralysis presented the hospital with the first production model. Called a lightwriter it uses an electronic typewriter keyboard and display screen to give the power of rapid communication. The inventor, Mr Toby Churchill, was himself paralysed when he contracted a neurological illness. Left dumb he gathered a team of specialists and between them the produced the prototype. The lightwriter will sell at £450.

Ely postman, p11

1974 08 31
Between 400 and 500 people attended the funeral in St Neots of a Romany, Mr James Lee, aged 71. The funeral, one of the biggest for several years, was attended by scores of Romany families, some from Scotland and Ireland. Four wagons carried more than 200 wreaths & the graveyard was decorated with flowers in the traditional Romany fashion. Mr Lee's caravan, in which he had lived for many years, was burned in the traditional Romany way at Gt Paxton earlier in the week. Mr Lee, a horse and general dealer had lived in the area for 30 years.

Vicar drives 50 miles, p6

September 1974 CEN

1974 09 02
Rain delayed and upset the programme of events at the Burma Star Day at Waterbeach barracks. The air and ground display spectacular, which attracted thousands of people, was threatened by a heavy downpour. The show is recognised as one of the largest of its kind in Britain and is probably the only one combining service and civilian, air and ground activities

James Webb is a well-known figure in the St Neots area, but is isn't an easy man to find at any one time, for his traditional craft of knife-sharpening takes him to all corners of Bedfordshire and Huntingdonshire. With his broad-brimmed hat and weather-beaten face 47-year-old Romany Mr Webb and his cycle-driven grindstone has been a familiar sight in the streets of local towns and villages for 40 years since he first travelled with his father learning the craft of giving a keen edge to steel. Children love to stand and stare as he unloads the grinder from his van an begins to send a stream of sparks from a pair of garden shears or a knife

Minster pub, Ely, p11

1974 09 03
Cambs Drugs Squad have dug up 30 cannabis plants from back gardens at Cambridge and Littleport since they made their appeal in last Saturday's News, to the public to keep an eye open for "pot" planters in their neighbourhood. The head of the squad said: "In the case of the plants we have no doubt they were planted in all innocence"

1974 09 04
Elsworth pub feast, p18

1974 09 05
Huntingdon amblulances, p12

1974 09 06
The leader of a Buddhist sect, based at Shudy Camps returned after a month's absence to find himself locked out of the house he set up as a temple. The door was padlocked and barricaded. The sect leader, former London bricklayer who became known as the Rev Nagaboshi Tomio, said that shrines had been stacked away, religious paintings on the walls whitewashed over, the house was decorated and a family were living there. He founded the Kongoru-Ji meditation centre in the old Three Horseshoes public house last October

Thaxted Holst festival, p9
MP on Benn plans, p11
Newton stream, p22

1974 09 07
Budge Brothers the Basildon-based builders who were developing a 145 house estate at Sawston, have gone into liquidation. The Sawston site and another 18 acres of land at Homefields, Histon, could provide more than 400 badly-needed new council homes. But the company's liquidation means that all their assets, including these two sites, are frozen. Houses on the Sawston site are well underway but building work stopped as long ago as February

Thaxted residents are laughing during power cuts. When the electricity supply goes off the 28 gas lamps, which the village still retains, keep burning. The man who keeps the lamps alight, 71-year-old

Mr Fred Johnson, a lively pensioner who has been looking after the gas lights for the parish council for six years can remember the time when gas street lighting – installed there in the middle of the last century – was practically universal. "But now, so far as I know the gas lamps in Thaxted are the only ones in the area"

1974 09 09
Gail force winds swept through Mid-Anglia uprooting more than 100 trees, blocking roads and tearing down electricity power cables. At Grantchester the elm standing in front of the Green man public house, believed to be more than 500 years old, was split in two by the wind. A piece of Huntingdon history fell to the winds on Lattenbury hill, Godmanchester, when a tree broke in half. It is said to have connections with the Highwayman Duck Turpin

1974 09 10
Anglian Water Authority have asked Souths Cambs district council to refuse permission for any new development and severely restrict building in a further 19 because of the overloading of the sewage treatment works, Milton, whose drains lead into the Cambridge works has suffered from a development embargo for the last four years. It is now joined by Shelford, Girton, Histon and Fen Ditton where a complete ban on development is requested. At Over, Gamlingay and Bassingbourn permission will only be given to one-building application. All of these sewage works have been badly overloaded for some time but the cuts in public spending have prevented AWA from going ahead with extension schemes

Haverhill development, p9

1974 09 11
Cambridge city football club have submitted plans for a £500,000 night club at their Milton road ground. It is planned that the 1,000-seater cabaret theatre will be built at the Milton Road end of the ground on a site that present houses the supporters' club. "Modern football is in the doldrums and will never pay for itself again", said the chairman. If the club get the go-ahead they intend to engage international stars and provide first-class food and drink

Histon, p8

1974 09 12
Patients are dying because of a stop on kidney transplants in Cambridge, the head of the city's transplant unit, Prof. Roy Calne said today. Operations have stopped since he received a letter from the Cambridge coroner saying he would withdraw co-operation in permitting the removal of organs from bodies unless relatives had agreed. The letter follows a case in another region where organs had been removed and the patient had begun breathing again

1974 09 13
Ely hairdresser Mr Fred Dobson is still shaving customers and tending hair at the age of 85. The family business started in 1739 and now, five generations later, is entering its last chapter. In his museum-cum-salon in St Mary's street hangs a 1730s print showing his great great great grandfather shaving a jolly side-boarded customer. Mr Dobson began his barber's artistry as a lad of 7, lathering the customers. He is famous for the bald patches recipe cure perfected through the five generations of the business. He was also well known for his wigs.

1974 09 16
St Andrew the Great church in the centre of Cambridge may be turned into a new Civic restaurant. If the scheme goes ahead it would be only a few yards from the site of the old restaurant which was demolished two years ago to make way for the Lion Yard Development project. City officials are looking into the possibility of converting the church buildings which the Diocesan authorities have classified as redundant. A feasibility study shows it could be converted into offices but would cost at least £135,000.

1974 09 19
Police cars throughout Cambridgeshire have been fitted with a controversial American speed trap. Known as VASCAR (visual average speed computer and recorder) it enables a police offer on patrol to measure the speed of a vehicle whether he is in front or behind the target, waiting in a side-road or even travelling in the opposite direction. Before bringing the instrument into operation use the police will be demonstrating the machine to the press and public

Ambulance seatbelts, p17

1974 09 20
City football nightclub plan, p17

1974 09 21
Housewives in Mid-Anglia who are stripping the shops of salt were described by shopkeepers and suppliers as mad and hysterical. The panic buying has been caused by false rumours and there is no shortage. Supermarket managers reported selling stocks that usually lasted three weeks in a day and a half. “This whole city has gone crackers”, said one manager. The International Stores on Market Hill, Cambridge, sold out during the week. At Lipton’s in Royston a delivery which normally would have lasted all week, sold out on the same day. At St Neots the Co-op sold out within an hour of delivery

The opening of Cambridge’s new indoor bowls centre at Chesterton brings to a climax many months of work by a group of bowlers who can now boast the only six-rink indoor green in the country. Sited next to their outdoor green in Logan’s Way, the impressive new building is the next best thing to bowling on a warm summer’s day. Already there are 400 bowlers on the membership lists and secretary N. Harper-Scott says there is still room for more

1974 09 23
Parties compete to save Lodes, p8

1974 09 24
Every night while the rest of the town sleeps six St Neots men are busy practising a deadly form of Kung Fu which can kill a man with one blow. For the last seven months they have trained from midnight until four in the morning enduring pain and exhaustion before going home to snatch a few hours’ sleep. Their Chinese instructor works in a Bedford restaurant so the men are forced to hold the training sessions in the early hours of the morning

Fears were expressed at a special meeting of Longstanton parish council that the village would become a “garrison town” when the army take over the RAF Oakington in April. The chairman said plans for 200 extra married quarters made a complete nonsense of the village plan. They are recommending that the quarters, if built, should be on the other side of Oakington’s airfield, adjacent to that village. Although one member suggested the council were “passing the buck” others felt there was “nothing wrong” with building the quarters in the next village. Oakington had been pressing for expansion

Sindalls record contract, p12

1974 09 25
Wine from an Isle of Ely vineyard at Wilburton may be on sale for the first time in the spring. Harvesting will go ahead in four weeks’ time. “The crop is ripening up very well at present”, said Mr Norman Sneesby, who works the vineyard with his family. It is planned to sell the wine under the name of St Etheldreda. She was founder of the monastery church at Ely whose monks produced wine in medieval times

1974 09 26

Early morning in Cambridge Market Place and indomitably breezy stallholders arrive with bulging cardboard boxes full of paws paws, crocus bulbs, turnips, antique Persian porcelain coins, brillo pads and all other things we need to victual our leaky ship. Before some of them can load their trestle tables from the cardboard boxes, they must gather up the broken and bloody hypodermic syringes, left behind by heroin addicts overnight. Once the syringes are out of the way, the square is soon ready for the public – Chris South

1974 09 27
A fourth candidate today joined the Cambridge election contest. He is Mr Christopher Curry, a 28 year old electrical engineer who is representing the United Democratic Party. Their platform is basically anti Common-Market. He said he had only heard of the party at the start of the week. Nevertheless he is organising an active campaign programme. The other three candidates were all surprised. Mr David Lane said: "We had a Digger last time. This will make a change".

1974 09 28
Bomb disposal experts removed an unexploded bomb from Manor Farm, Worlington. It was unearthed by farmer Mr Richard Mortlock when ploughing & had probably been lying in the ground since the Second World War. Three more small unexploded missiles were found behind a row of council houses at Gt Bradley, near Haverhill. Police said they were small aircraft shells, probably dropped during the war.

1974 09 30
John Saltmarsh dies, p9
Industry supplement

October 1974 CEN

1974 10 02
Today sees the first issue of a talking newspaper in Cambridge. Carried on tape cassettes it will be issued to 30 blind, elderly and infirm people and will provide a service of news based on material appearing in the C.E.N. Pye radio provided £1,500 worth of tape recorders to launch the project and the Vice Chancellor has offered University recording facilities. The "Talking News" was originated by Mrs D.M.C. Matthews of the Blantyre Home for the Blind in Glisson Rd and is now administered by a special trust.

Fly-by-night greyhound coursing and poaching is again proving a big headache on Cambridgeshire farms. Those responsible always knew the police wouldn't get the time to tackle the problem. One farmer pointed out it was quite possible to take the same remedies as were used in protecting sheep. Where coursing was taking place the hares could be defended like other animals on a farm – with a gun. But the Chairman warned that this was not advisable. 74 10 02

Littleport notices, p14

1974 10 03
The most costly new houses are so difficult to sell that some Mid-Anglia builders have temporarily stopped constructing them. But general house sales are picking up after a slump of two months ago, say estate agents. A £15,000 three-bedroomed detached house built at Shelford two years ago is to be sold shortly. Hockeys Ltd of Cambridge report that houses costing less than £10,000 were selling "extremely well". At Haverhill prices have dropped to a lower level. The houses that were not shifting were in the £12 - £20,000 bracket. In Newmarket houses in the £10-14,000 price bracket were selling quite easily

1974 10 04
Ely Cathedral restoration, p20

1974 10 05
A £2 million plan for converting the old Cambridge corn exchange into a multi-purpose concert hall was accepted by the City Amenities Committee. An early warning of stormy times ahead was given by Coun. Peter Cowell who said: "There is bound to be a lot of opposition". In their report the architects claim that "not only Cambridge but England as a whole will gain a concert hall of potentially international stature which could attract the finest musical talent". They suggest the reshaped building could hold up to 1500 people and would also be ideal for events such as boxing, wrestling, operas, plays, exhibitions and conferences.

Cambridge Co-operative Society announced that only customers spending at least 50p on food in their shops would be allowed a 2lb packet of sugar. "To ensure that distribution reached as many customers as possible and the minimum purchase set at 50p to avoid embarrassment to our pensioned customers with limited purchasing power", said a spokesman. Sainsbury's say they were not operating any such system although they were asking customers to restrict sugar purchases to 2lb each. A Budget spokesman said they were limited supplies to regular customers only 74 10 05

1974 10 07
About 7,000 men and women in the Cambridge area work for the Pye Group of Companies. More than 1,000 employees travel daily to work by Pye bus. The first of the 40 buses in daily use sets out from Wisbech in time to make the Cambridge works by 8am. Almost 30 per cent of the workers get to and from work by the buses. A special crèche has allowed the mothers of some 40 youngest children to return to work. Without a firm commitment to planned industrial expansion Cambridge could well fall behind more dynamic centres within commuting distance, and, in time, become a quaint but declining tourist backwater in the fens, say the company.

Haverhill is heading for an industrial boom unprecedented in its 20 year history as an expanding town. Formerly a decaying market town built around agriculture and a single textile industry, it today has more than 80 factories and the industrial estate spills over into the surrounding countryside. The town's largest employer is situated two miles away at Lt Wratting where Frank Sainsbury's farm has developed into one of the largest pork product producing complexes in the country, Haverhill Meat Products

Brownies 60th anniversary, p9

1974 10 08
Diggers, p9
Roads problems, p10

1974 10 09
If you're looking for home in the Cambridge or Huntingdon area there's really only one place to go. David Charles. Wherever you want to live and whatever you want to pay you are almost sure to find your perfect home. Orchard End, Bluntisham – around £12,500; all have four good-sized bedrooms, fitted kitchen and full gas-fired central heading. The Elms, Dry Drayton - 21 four-bedroomed luxury homes a mere 15 miles from Cambridge from £17 - £18,000. Lanes End, Hauxton offers you a host of good things like beautiful countryside, shops, schools, entertainment and very attractive homes at realistic prices – around £13,500 – Advert

Sugar Ely, p15

1974 10 11
The Conservatives have held the Cambridge seat at the General Election, but with a drastically cut majority of 2,773 over Jim Curran by David Lane. Loud cheering greeted the three main party candidates as they appeared on the Guildhall balcony but boos, hisses and cries of "Seig Heil" greeted the United Democratic Party candidate when he appeared. A few tomatoes and apple cores were thrown on the balcony but none of the candidates were struck. The former Ulster Secretary, Mr

Francis Pym successfully defended his Cambridgeshire seat though his majority was 1100 down on second-place Labour's Mr Nick Farley. Stephen Jakobi, Liberal candidate, polled 15,841

Cherry Hinton plan, p17

1974 10 12
Linton's new £80.000 primary school will get a second mobile classroom soon to ease overcrowding in classes. The school, which only opened its doors in September is too small, because the County Council did not have the money to build it to the size required for 200 pupils. The five classrooms have already been supplemented by the addition of one mobile classroom.

Over parish council called a meeting to allow residents to voice their opinions on proposed development of the village. The mood was against a plan for the Doles area which included 57 houses and ten shops. A speaker said: "We first want to put in sewers for the rest of the village before we start to put in homes and shops". Another said: "We do not want this scheme, or any other scheme, in this village"

1974 10 14
Haverhill firemen had to mop up 30 homes in the town centre after a water main burst. Water erupting from the main in Crowland road sent a four-feet waves sweeping 400 yards down the road. The force of the water buckled the road surface and caused a crater over the entire width. Mud and rubble was swept down the roads and into homes. This is the second time that the main has burst

Beef problems, p12

1974 10 15
For the second year in succession the world's top physics accolade has come to Cambridge. Two of the University's foremost radio-astronomers, Prof. Sir Martin Ryle, and Prof. Antony Hewish have jointly one the 1974 Nobel Prize for physics. Sir Martin's major work in Cambridge has been the development of the Lord's bridge radio-observatory and the construction of the five kilometre telescope there. In 1967 Prof. Hewish started a series of observations which led to the discovery that some radio sources in space – later given the name pulsars – emitted extremely regular radio signals. As a result of this discovery it has been possible to establish the presence of neutron stars in the universe

Parts of French's mill, a Cambridge landmark, have been dismantled to make the ancient structure safe. The mill, half brick and half wood was in its heyday about 1912 and has been passed down through the French family. Corn grinding stopped there 17 years ago. Rot has set in to the main beams holding up the shaft and wheel which have been removed as they were afraid the beams would give way and the falling shaft and wheel bring the rest of the mill with them.

Haslingfield planning, p6

1974 10 16
Huntingdon bypass, p12

1974 10 17
Cambridgeshire planning department may be asked to scrap the ban imposed 25 years ago on industrial development in Cambridge, & they may also be asked to allocate up to 100 acres of land in Cambridge for industrial use. At present less than 30 acres are earmarked for this. The Holford report which was published in 1949 recommended that no new industry employing more than five people should be allowed to develop in the city. In 1965 the planners raised the limit of employees to 12. Repeated requests by the city council for the ban to be removed were all refused.

The A10 crossroads at Waterbeach, an accident blackspot which over the past year has been the scene of two death crashes, is to be altered before the end of the year. Milton's High Street is also acknowledged to be a stretch of road where accidents frequently happen. The head of the police traffic division said "I don't see there is anything basically wrong with the part of the road which passes through Milton provided people are sticking to the enforceable speed limit." During the year within Milton's built up area seven road accidents involving personal injury were reported.

1974 10 18
A1-M1 link road, p16
Golf course plan, p27

1974 10 21
Cambridge's western by-pass will be built to lower standards than originally announced – to save money and to reduce the land needed. The Government today confirmed the line the road will take but said the 14-mile motorway would be built with two-lane carriageways instead of the three lanes originally planned for most of its length. They say the lesser width will cater adequately for the expected traffic flow. No announcement has been made about a likely starting date.

Horseheath beauty tip, p4
Waterbeach coalman, p5
Football club merger plan, p7

1974 10 22
United sack Lievers, p1
Palestine Liberation Organisation at Union, p7
M-way traffic chaos, p9
Malcolm Heron death, p10
A604 trimmed, p11

1964 10 23
Woodcock memorial, p11

1974 10 24
Mid-Anglia's cigarette smokers can gasp with relief; tobacconists have stocks of most brands, and W.D. and H.O. Wills's workers have ended their strike. The manager of wholesalers Palmer & Harvey Ltd of Cambridge says regular customers have been getting about ¾ of the amount of Embassy and Regal cigarettes they had ordered. At Ely, tobacco wholesale Mr Patrick Fynes said he was severely rationing his customers. Asked if he thought this would force heavy smokers to cut down, he replied: "They will smoke anything". Finlay tobacconists in Ely High Street said they were not too badly off.

Theft construction, p12

1974 10 25
A crane with a 100 foot toppled over and smashed into a bridge being built for the Huntingdon by-pass. It was being used to lift a piece into place by the side of the Avenue in Godmanchester. One of the tracks was dug deep into the ground and the jib buckled, with part of it lying across the new section of bridge which will eventually span the river Great Ouse.

Theft construction equipment, p12
Cigarette shortage, p14

1974 10 28
Tourists at Cambridge colleges found themselves caught up in one of the largest security operations mounted in the University in recent years. It followed a message passed on by the Metropolitan police that there could be a bomb explosion at a college within 48 hours. As a result tourists carrying parcels were stopped by porters. Many central colleges locked their chapels and halls altogether. Last week bombs exploded in a London club and at Harrow school.

Flats for retired ex-servicemen in Cambridge which were completed for the Royal British Legion Housing Association a year ago were officially opened. Mrs M. Fernie, the daughter of the late Harry Scott, after whom the flats are named, unveiled a plaque by the entrance. Mr Scott was a former chairman of the Eastern Area Council of the Legion

Fulbourn alcoholic centre, p9

1974 10 29
The Parry Lewis super plan for the future of Cambridge, which took three years to prepare at a cost of £20,000, has been rejected by all the senior city and county planning officers. The plans main suggestions were for the immediate scrapping of the scheme for extensive development in the Burleigh Street – Fitzroy street area and the building of a second shopping centre in the Trumpington area. Chairman of the County Planning committee, Counc. Tony Cornell, said: "The technical boys took a look at Parry Lewis and they have not liked what they have seen"

Panton Arms up for sale, p11
Saffron Walden shopkeeper, p15
Chesterton school rebuilding, p16

1974 10 30
Cherryhinton Road Coulson & Fisher Close, p17
Register office weddings, p18

1974 10 31
Redmodel export cheer, p13

November 1974 CEN

1974 11 01
It gets ever more expensive to ride to hounds but another fox hunting season starts today with no sign of waning enthusiasm. One local hunt, the Cambridgeshire, will hold its opening meeting tomorrow. But hay for the horses has almost doubled in price since last year, the hounds' food now costs more, the staff who care for them undoubted receive higher wages, horses cost more to shoe and even the price of hunting coats and boots has doubled in the last few years. On the bright side subscriptions to both hunts have remained at last years' level - £50 for one days hunting a week and £80 for two or more. The hunt meets four days each week. Meanwhile the number of subscribers is more than 200

The Mayor of Cambridge, Councillor Jack Warren, was today considering diplomatic ways of asking some of the oil rich Arab sheikhs of the Middle East to help finance the £2 million conversion of the Corn Exchange into a public hall. Last night the city council gave him six months to raise the money needed.

MP Francis Pym lambasted the government for complacency and completely failing to cope with the agricultural crisis. He painted a grim picture of the plight of the British farmer and urged immediate Government action blaming Agricultural Minister Fred Peart for causing the collapse in beef prices. The pig industry too was facing great difficulties. 74 11 01

Bugner-Ali fight hope, p1
Agricultural crisis, p21
Cremation charges, p22

1974 11 02
The owner of Tebbit's bakery, probably the last in the Cambridge area with a coal-fired oven, retires after nearly 50 years of producing crusty loaves and rolls for Chesterton and East Cambridge. The bakery, off Gold St, run by Mr William Tebbit with his wife Bunny, is to be closed. Each weekday he has got up at about 5 am to start baking his daily batch of about 500 loaves, He forms the dough for cottage loaves, Coburgs and bloomers by hand

Sylvia Canham saves life, p1

1974 11 06
New plans for reshaping Cambridge's Burleigh St – Fitzroy St shopping area are being unveiled at a private meeting tonight. Although the project provides for more than 80 shops, including two major departmental stores, it is on a smaller commercial scale than the plans put forward three years ago. The project includes a new underground country bus station; placing much of Napier street underground to avoid disruption to people living nearby, a series of underground service roads to allow pedestrians traffic free access to the main shopping area, and the creation of landscaped parks. It provides for a new store for the John Lewis organisation and another for Laurie & McConnal

The departure of the last pilot training aircraft from RAF Oakington – a Varsity T Mark 1 – saw the end of an era at the base, which is due to be taken over by the army in March next year. The Varsity is the last of 31 used at the base since 1951. From 1962, about 1400 trainee pilots have recorded 60,000 landings at the airfield. The Varsity completed a sweep above the village and two fly-pasts at low-level before heading to its new home at Cottesmore in Lincolnshire.

1974 11 08
Saffron Walden's oldest Poppy seller must surely be Mr Jimmy Coe, who will be 91 later this month. For the last three mornings he has put on his overcoat and his row of medals and left his home at 6.30 am to sell Remembrance Day poppies on Audley End station. The decorations he wears include the Military Cross won he was serving in France in 1916. He is modest about how he gained it. "They just threw it at me, it came up with the rations", he joked

By Cambridge planning standards, the argument over how the Burleigh St – Fitzroy St area should be redeveloped is a relative newcomer to a list of current city controversies. It has been raging for only 15 years. Which means that at least another 10 years of inactivity are necessary before the Lion Yard redevelopment record is reached. Cambridge city council has announced its intention of making a decision on the future of the area by the end of the year. But even if this happens it will not be the end of the story by a long way. There will be inevitable objections and the problem of raising money must remain a formidable obstacle in these economic times.

Isle of Ely farmers have called on farmers throughout England to be ready to picket East Coast ports in protest against imports of surplus Irish beef. The NFU said "People have found themselves driven to extreme measures not just to maintain their existence or improve their position but just for survival." In the 1970s it was not just a question of squeeze but of strangulation. Coast had been shooting up but returns had been falling almost as fast, a situation which made it virtually impossible for anyone to compete. 74 11 08

1974 11 11
Sir – In the death of Mrs Doris Ditchburn, Cambridge has lost a much-loved citizen who will be missed by a wide circle. She and her husband came to Cambridge in 1934 to work at the old County Hospital in Mill Road. Together they worked to improve the standards of the hospital and towards her dream of a first-rate maternity hospital. Mrs Ditchburn was a most understanding person and most unlike the old-fashioned dragon of a matron, but insisted on a high standard from her nurses and gained their affection and respect. – Margaret Reed

A schoolgirl bride kissed her husband goodbye outside the school gates in Cambridge after being told by her headmaster "Studies before come before honeymoons". Instead of relaxing in southern Ireland as planned she is staying in the £120 a week Bridal Suite at Cambridge University Arms Hotel with her 18-year-old husband, and setting out each day for lessons at Parkside Community College. The bride's mother said "I went for an interview with the headmaster. I asked him if my daughter could have a week off, but he said it was not in her best interests as she is studying for O-levels"

Circus elephant parade, p4

1974 11 12
St Neots ice house, p10

1974 11 14
Sex attack, p1

1974 11 15
An Uttlesford District Council committee decided to spend up to £1,200 on a coat of arms and enamel and silver gilt insignia for the chairman after slashing nearly £½ million from its housing scheme. But the policy and resources committee decided to make private requests to councillors to give up part of their council attendance allowances to pay for it.

A barmaid told Newmarket magistrates court of the big problems small townspeople were causing her. She said "Newmarket is a very funny place to serve drinks. You get so many small people, you can't tell their ages". The licensee had been charged with selling liquor to persons under the age of 18. The presiding magistrate dismissed the charges.

1974 11 18
Owlstone Croft students, p5
Green belt housing, p8
Haverhill strip shows, p9

1974 11 19
Untreated sewage escaped into the streets of Cambridgeshire villages with pumping stations unable to cope with the volume of rainwater. At least 11 pumping stations were overwhelmed. With the pumps unable to get rid of the water fast enough, raw sewage forced its way up through manhole covers into the streets. A South Cambs Health Officer said "The smell doesn't give rise to any health hazard". The heavy rain also meant the sewage would be diluted. Provided people washed their hands before handling food there was very little to worry about.

Operation Mop-Up got into full swing as flood waters subsided after nearly two hours of rain in 24 hours. In Cambridge the river burst its banks from Lammas Land in Newnham to Pye's in Chesterton where the playing fields resembled a lake. At St Neots a disable d elderly man and his wife were evacuated as flood water burst into their homes during the worst flooding in that town since 1947. Office workers at the Anglian Water Authority headquarters at Huntingdon spend an anxious afternoon – waiting to see if they would be flooded. Children at Dullingham primary school had to be ferries across floods by a local farmer's trailer when water blocked the road. 74 11 19

1974 11 20
Ely sugar beet, p11

1974 11 21
The salt pot has disappeared from the dining tables of Cambridgeshire schools. Now school children can only help themselves to salt under the watchful eye of a supervisor. The rationing follows big cuts in the deliveries of table salts to schools. During some weeks they are getting none at all. Ten-year-old

Michelle Williams of Hardwick made sure of her salt supply by taking her own to her school at Comberton

1974 11 22
Hundreds of children are being robbed of the chance to use their school swimming pool because of the high cost of oil fuel. At Godmanchester primary school hundreds of pounds worth of equipment for heating their partially-covered swimming pool is standing idle. The headmaster said: "If oil were not so expensive we would have children out there now using the pool. I don't hold out much hope for next year either, with the rates going up as they are. We will open the pool sometime next year when it is warmer".

Ron Atkinson, 35-year-old Kettering manager and former Oxford United skipper, is to be Cambridge United's new manager. He said: "I think it is a club with a good chance of going places. I am not the type of guy to float in there and clear everybody out. There are some good players, although possibly they need a bit of a lift. There is still a chance we can get into the promotion race. All I promise is that I shall work as hard as possible to get the right results".

Juggernauts Saffron Walden, p20

1974 11 23
Customers at two riverside pubs near Needingworth found it was a case of "water, water everywhere, but a not a drop to drink" unless they came equipped with wellingtons to breach the floods. At The Pike & Eel, which was marooned on an island, staff helped customers across a relief route of up-turned crates. As the crates gradually became submerged customers had to be rowed to the pub in a rubber dinghy. At Overcote the floods stretched nearly 200 yards from the normal river edge & the normal footpath to the Ferry Boat lay eight inches under water.

Bomb threat, p7

1974 11 25
The first full degree awarding ceremony of Cambridgeshire College of Arts & Technology was held in an atmosphere of austerity. There was dignity but no frills as more than 130 degrees were awarded – no academic gowns or hoods, no flowers. The college officials felt that such "extras" might have offended the ratepayers.

Fitzroy Street put off, p8

1974 11 27
Huntingdon factory fire, p1
Hemingford Grey floods, p15

1974 11 28
Duxford explosion, p1 & p15
Meat prices, p6

1974 11 29
Tomorrow Arnold Parker will put the final batch of loaves from his oven at Lt Shelford. So ends a century-old baking tradition and so passes that delicious crusty loaf which arrived warm on the kitchen tables of homes in surrounding villages. Private bakeries have been dwindling rapidly in recent years. In 1971 there were half a dozen left, and now the numbers are very small. The economic situation will probably kill them all off in the next few years.

Start on bypass, p1

1974 11 30

Football fanatic Denise Langram, aged 15, had not missed a Cambridge United home match for four years – until today. She went into hospital more concerned about missing United's home game against Rotherham than about her treatment. But she was given some consolation when two of her heroes, United's longest serving player and former captain, Terry Eades and full-back Ray Seary took her a bouquet. Denise hopes to be out at the end of next week: "And I hope I never have to miss another match", she said

United new manager, p1

1974 December CEN

1974 12 03
Traffic came almost to a standstill in Coldham's Lane, Cambridge, as queues built up for the newly-opened Sainsbury's supermarket and freezer centre. By 9.15 the car park, which holds nearly 400 cars, was almost full and queues had formed outside the door. After Mr John Sainsbury had opened the store the eager shoppers converged on the packed shelves and crowds formed round the plentiful supply of sugar.

Paper dispute

1974 12 04
Cambridge chamber of commerce has discounted criticism that around-the-clock Christmas lighting in the city's streets is a waste of electricity. They consider that to switch off Christmas decorations now would only bring about an atmosphere of gloom when people should be confident and full of beans. Their president, Mr George Abbott, said: "We have been assured power stations have enough coal for a normal winter but if there is any suggestion the power situation is likely to become serious all local businesses will co-operate fully".

No more Whitehall cash, p16

1974 12 05
The best route through Cambridgeshire for the "missing link" road between the A1 and the M1 would be generally along the existing A604 Huntington to Cambridge road, the county planning committee decided. The government has indicated its intention of building the road within the next ten years. It would cost £9 M. and cause the least disturbance to housing and agriculture. In addition it would enable by-pass schemes for Bythorn, Spaldwick & Ellington. County councillors criticised the government suggestions that the road should be built to single-lane standards because there would be insufficient traffic using it to merit dual carriageways.

Bypass, p20

1974 12 06
The new Sainsbury's supermarket in Coldham's Lane, Cambridge, was almost overwhelmed with customers last night. The car park was filled, and the traffic jams built up to such an extent that the police were called to help to get things moving again. And there were jams inside the store. The doors were closed at 7.30 pm – half an hour earlier than advertised - in the interest of safety.

1974 12 07
Social workers were despairing, demoralised & frustrated at being pressed to carry out more welfare work while at the same time being faced with demands for strict economy, the County Social Services Director said yesterday. There was a desperate pressure of work on staff and many were having to work 60-70 hours a week. In addition, they faced demands from courts, the police and pressure groups for more services.

Saffron Walden hospital

1974 12 09
The rapist terrorising girls in Cambridge's bed-sit land claimed his fourth victim in two months when he struck in the Newnham area of the city yesterday. It was the fifth attack on single girls living alone. Four have been raped and one fought her attacker off on the doorstep. The man leading the 20-strong special police squad, Detective Superintendent Bernard Hotson said today: "We are looking for an extremely sick and dangerous man"

Bread supplies, p8

1974 12 10
Large-scale ward closures at both Old and New Addenbrooke's hospital are planned over Christmas and New Year because not enough nurses will be available to staff them. Patients will be sent home and only emergencies dealt with. The closures have been made necessary because the Health Minister, Mrs Barbara Castle, has ordered than nurses should take an extra six days holiday before March 31st next year and wants the leave taken as soon as possible. A nurse said: "We obvious welcome the extra leave, but it was not necessary for Mrs Castle to order it to be taken right away. We feel she took the measure to placate the more militant member of the profession"

Petrol prices, p11
Radio Cambridgeshire, p11

1974 12 11
Sawston parish council criticised an application for the demolition of Peasgood's shop in the High Street. The building, believed to date from the sixteenth century, stands in the heart of the village's conservation area. It has been closed since a fire damaged it about two years ago and is now derelict. Large lorries using the narrow Portobello Lane at the side of it have caused further damage. Councillor Tony Cartwright called it the last example of a medieval yeoman's dwelling left in Sawston. "It is a building of considerable historic interest. We would be very sorry in twenty years' time if we let this happen" he said

There are 24 council house tenants at Horseheath still using tin bucket lavatories at the end of their gardens 18 months after a new £170,000 sewer connection was laid across their back gardens. The parish council chairman said it was "unbelievable that people can still live in these primitive conditions". The new sewer was completed in April 1973 and the former South Cambs council announced an £80,000 programme for providing the houses at Allington Terrace, Bakersfield cottages and Meadow cottages with modern toilets and bathrooms. These houses contain young couples with children and pensioners. But still nothing happens

Pedestrians, p1
Beehive scheme, p4

1974 12 12
City library, p4

1974 12 13
Western bypass, p8
Cows phased out, p17
Horseheath sewers, p20

1974 12 16
This year for the first time in more than 30 years a group of Polish people will have a family-style Christmas in their own homes. After the war they arrived in this country as displaced persons or refugees. Because they were sick, they were admitted to mental hospitals, and they did not learn the English language. The new house, bought by the British Council for Aid to Refugees, has been simply but comfortably furnished. As a group, they are now working out what they will have for Christmas diner. The occasion marks the beginning of a new life

1974 12 17
Doreen Fred & David, p11
Antony Day artist, p14

1974 12 18
A once-and-for-all bid to tackle the flooding problem in the Swavesey area is to be made by South Cambs district council. For years, farmers in the area have complained about the flooding and the inadequacy of the Webb's Hole sluice gate. One said the problem would get worse, forming a threat to human and animal life, unless something was done. A landowner described how in the recent heavy rains the floods had completely covered a five-barred gate. The water had drained so slowly, that, a month later, there were still floods of up to a foot deep.

A series of trials have given an insight into Cambridge's drugs scene. It's an underworld you may never come close to, yet for the detectives of the Cambridgeshire drugs squad it's a very real world with its very own language. A large cannabis cigarette is generally known as a joint or reefer, but may be a "skliff" or "roach". A single ounce of ordinary cannabis vegetable matter currently fetches £18-£20. In August this year the drugs squad raided five Cambridge houses simultaneously. In the past year 605 persons have been arrested for drug offences.

There aren't too many places in Cambridge where one can get a meal of any kind for £1.25. So when a restaurant offers a choice of freshly carved beef, pork or lamb, with a sweet, and as many vegetables as you care to take for that price it seems too good to be true. That however is exactly what Jason's Carving Rooms do at their latest acquisition – the Red Lion at Grantchester. It has been completely re-designed so that customers can enjoy comfort with their meals. Starters such as melon or prawn cocktail are also available at extra cost.

1974 12 20
East Anglian wage packets continue to be the smallest in the country according to figures published by the Government today. The average annual income for 25-44 year-olds last years was £2,072 but the east Anglian average is only £1,182. House prices appear to be amongst the highest in the country. The average house purchase loan from mortgage societies was £6,002 against the national average of £6,181

Southend winger, Tommy Horsfall and Kettering youth team captain, Steve Fallon, are both set to sign for Cambridge United as new manager Ron Atkinson moves in to the transfer market for the first time. Fallon, an 18-year-old former March Grammar School pupil could be the first Cambridgeshire boy included in the United first team squad for years. "He is a lad who, with a bit of luck, could be gold-dust", said Atkinson

City shops go-ahead, p1

1974 12 21
The economic crisis does not seem to have had any marked effect on the influx of Christmas visitors to Cambridge hotels this year. All but one hotel in the city says it is as full as it wishes to be. The Garden House Hotel closes down after lunch on Christmas Day until New Year's Eve & the University Arms Hotels closes half its rooms to allow half its staff a free Christmas. The Gonville Hotel is "as full as it wishes to be" but the manager of the Royal Cambridge Hotel said "we have only about a third of last year's Christmas booking so far"

1974 12 23
Christmas in drain, p5

1974 12 24
Cambridge planners are looking at the possibility of turning the Central Library buildings in Wheeler Street into a Civic Restaurant when the library is moved into a new building in the Lion Yard next summer. The Library buildings are the centre of a legal wrangle between the city and county council who have now taken over responsibility for public libraries. The county claim the old library building should be given too, it but the city is arguing that as the library forms part of the Guildhall complex – the council's administrative headquarters – the county has no claim. The replacement of a Civic restaurant has been a top priority with the new Labour-controlled city council since it took office nine years ago

It took them most of yesterday to get Lord Lascalles out of a ditch at Gt Chesterford. They used heavy recovery cranes, a lot of sweat and a word or two that you wouldn't hear at midnight mass. His Lordship, a 20-ton traction engine slithered down the side of the bank on his way to a charity do at Ickleton. Uttlesford district councillor, Mr Stephen Neville, was behind the wheel when the accident happened. The engine has raised over £400 for charity this year.

1974 12 27
Sir Hamilton Kerr, a former Conservative M.P. for Cambridge has died in a London hospital. He represented Cambridge for 16 years from 1950 and lived at the Mill House, Whittlesford. He was parliamentary private secretary to Harold Macmillan between 1954 and 1956 and became a Baronet in 1957. He was a member of St John's College.

Home teams carried off the honours – or rather the beer – in Grantchester's annual Boxing Day barrel rolling race down the village's main street. Both the winning men's and women's team were from the Rose and Crown, Grantchester, whose landlord, Mr Len Tanner, organises the race. The Rose and Crown team were in fact all on the staff of Christ's College, Cambridge organised and trained by their kitchen manager, Mr John Bolton, and storeman Mr Ted Darling. Their recipe for success "I had for whiskies before I started. I think the more you have the better you do", said Mr Gardiner

1974 12 29c
More than 10,000 Cambridgeshire farm workers are bound to feel "disgusted and insulted" by the proposed award from the agricultural wages board. They adjusted their award of three weeks ago by 70p, raiding the minimum rate to £28.50 with a £2 increment in July. Although the county's workers receive at least £3-£4 a week above the minimum the Nation Union of Agricultural Workers organiser said a few men might fall short of the workers' minimum target of £35 a week

1974 12 31
The controversial multi-million pound redevelopment proposals for Cambridge's Burleigh Street – Fitzroy street area may be scrapped and traders and residents encouraged to rebuild as they wish. This is just what the majority of them have been advocating for most of the 15 years over which the controversy surrounding plans for the revitalisation of the area has raged. Leading members of the City council's controlling Labour Group are now trying to whip up general support behind the scenes for the new thinking. Moves come on the eve of the Government's expected announcement that after a two-year delay official approval is on the way to the area to be declared as suitable for comprehensive redevelopment

The Earith site of the Tracked Hovercraft trials is up for sale. The main "hangar" area of 6,300 square feet of industrial floor space is on offer. The prototype train ran at 107 mph before being scrapped in February last year because the Government would not put in the £4 million necessary to finance the second stage of the project which had, at that time, cost £5 m. The Government gave the go-ahead last August for the dismantling of the three-mile test track. The technology is now being pursued in Japan, Western Germany, France & Canada 74 12 31

1975 Cambridge Evening News

I have no copies of these articles

January 1975 CEN

1975 01 02
Hundreds of Cambridge secondary school children would be disappointed if their yearly opportunity to hear professional people speak had to be scrapped, Mrs K. Joice Taylor, the secretary of the Cambridge Holiday Lecture Association said. This was a real fear because it was now in debt and no grant money was available to safeguard the event which has become a tradition during the past 12 years. Last year in order to heat the lecture theatre during the fuel crisis, batteries were used. This resulted in a big heating bill.

A petition calling for the replacement of the hundred-year-old St Andrew's school, Chesterton, is to be presented to a Minister at the Department of Education. Efforts to get the school replaced have been going on for at least ten years. They were lent greater urgency when, last October, a young teacher was injured by a lump of plaster falling from the ceiling of one of the classrooms. Children at the school make a ten-minute walk along a dangerous road to go to lunch each day at the Shirley School in Green End Road 75 01 02

ADC grant, p12

1975 01 03
The meteorological office at RAF Oakington, which has kept weather records and made forecasts in Cambridgeshire since the second war is to close down. The closure of the office brings a step nearer the handover of the base in April to the army. Flying has ceased now. The weather area was a 50-mile radius around Oakington for flying purposes but forecasting for the public extended throughout Cambridgeshire

1975 01 04
A big increase in the number of Mid-Anglia firms in financial trouble is shown in figures for 1974 issued by the Department of Trade. They show that company insolvencies went up five times on the 1973 figures and there were nearly twice as many bankruptcies. 22 liquidations and 83 bankruptcies were handled by the Cambridge office of the Official Receiver

1975 01 06
The new face of Huntingdon will be shown to the world within two years if a £2m redevelopment of the town centre goes ahead. It will provide a new cinema, public houses, shops and offices in a complex stretching along the High Street from the existing Hippodrome cinema to W.H. Smith. Several well-known buildings including Fishers Department Store and the Queen's Head public house will be knocked down. Parking for 400 cars will be provided on a rooftop and a pedestrian arcade will link the complex with the bus station and the High Street

Hadstock post office, p11

1975 01 07
Frogs are in decline in the fens but are turning up in East Anglia towns disclosed A.S. Cook of the Monks Wood Experimental Station. "Traditional breeding grounds have disappeared because of changes in agricultural practice which has destroyed many natural habitats. Frogs have adapted by becoming more suburban than rural and shown a marked trend towards towns with places like St Ives becoming very frog-rich areas". The revival of the frog had occurred partly as a result of children bringing tadpoles from the rivers to their garden ponds

1975 01 09
Magdalene Bridge, p7

1975 01 10
The road across Oakington airfield linking it with Longstanton may be reopened to buses, cyclists and pedestrians. It was closed 18 years ago when the airfield was established. County Surveyor Mr Robert Lacey said he doubted if there was a case for the reopening of the road to all traffic because the building of the Bar Hill flyovers nearby would give a better access to Longstanton than through neighbouring villages

Bus services, p1

1975 01 11
Surgeons at New Addenbrooke's hospital carried out their first open-heart operation. The patient was a 15-year-old boy whose condition is "very satisfactory". The operation posed no problem. It was the type carried out regularly at Papworth Hospital but its significance is that patients coming into the hospital's accident service will be able to get heart surgery on the spot without having to be transported all the way across the county. The operation was carried by Mr T.A.H. English in association with Prof Roy Calne

1975 01 13
The Department of Environment's plan to make the proposed A1-M1 link a single carriageway road is to be reconsidered following criticism. The proposal to make the road a single carriageway for most of its length has been widely attacked by road hauliers, motoring associations and farmers.

1975 01 15
Cambridge dons are thinking of limiting the ultimate size of the University to 14,000 students. The University General Board says also that they should also be allowed to run against current policies which are producing more arts than science students. That means persuading the University Grants Committee that Cambridge is an exception to the rule and must be allowed to retain its pre-eminence in sciences, notably engineering and mathematics

1975 01 15
Liquid manure was used to stifle a lorry fire on the A1 near Buckden just as flames began to lick round the fuel tank. The driver was on his way to Doncaster with 20 tons of flour. He tried to put the fire out with mud and grass as he was afraid it would spread to the fuel tank. But just as he was beginning to despair a fertiliser tanker stopped.

University limits, p11

1975 01 16
Beehive plan, p18

1975 01 17
After nearly seven years of having to travel two miles for a drink, Reach villagers may soon be getting a pub of their own. Mr Michael Warrington of Church Farm House has applied to magistrates for a provisional licence to sell drink from his home. The last pub in Reach was the White Horse which closed in December 1967. If the application is approved the pub will be called Dykes End.

Until Sainsbury's opened their new filling station alongside the supermarket in Coldham's Lane, Holland Motors at the end of Mill Road provided the cheapest petrol in Cambridge. Sainsbury's station opened this week offering 4-star petrol only and no other forecourt services. Their price of 68p a gallon is regarded as something of an opening offer. Holland motors comes second with 4-star at 71p a gallon. The dearest is Oliver Rix at 74p 75 01 17

The wave of redundancy and short-time working announcements this week has heralded the arrival of the long-predicted industrial recession. Nowhere are the effects more keenly felt than at Haverhill. A pioneer in town expansion, its 20-year transfusion of industry and workers from the greater London area is now in a painful adolescent stage. Major town centre building projects have just left the drawing board, large chunks of lands are prepared for the final flood of factories and housing schemes worth £7½ m are under way to provide the workers with homes. Now the impetus is being lost as the cash flow stops and firms cut back.

Longstanton army houses, p20

1975 01 18
The question of whether to re-open the road across Oakington airfield is developing into an inter-village row. Villagers at Oakington and Girton say they do not want the road opened to traffic, but a number of people at Longstanton are in favour of the idea. The chairman of their parish council pointed out the new flyover on the A604 would cut out most of the inconvenience and danger to motorists and this may well be completed before any decision on the airfield road is taken.

1975 01 21
Over doles scheme, p5

1975 01 22
Robinson College, p12

1975 01 23
A call for Cambridge to opt out of East Anglia and become part of the northern Home Counties came from the Council's Labour leader, Peter Wright. He believes this would benefit the city and lead the Government to consider it more favourably. His call comes in the wake of the publication of a government-sponsored report on the future of East Anglia which suggested holding back Cambridge's development. This is in direct conflict with the city council's view of seeing Cambridge opened up to industrial development in a bid to increase local job prospects and expand the economy

Cambridge councillors will consider the possibility of turning the old Corn Exchange into an ice-skating rink if plans for converting it into a multi-purpose public hall fall through. Alternatively it might be possible to build the ice rink on spare land between the Parkside swimming pool and the Sports Hall complex. The proposal comes from the Ice Rink Action Group who say there is a growing demand for an ice rink in Cambridge

1975 01 25
A Little Paxton housewife is desperately trying to get rid of an expensive pet which is slowly destroying any furniture within pecking range. Percy, a four-year old blue and gold macaw has wreaked havoc since he was given as a Christmas present. He so far gnawed chunks out of an expensive dining table and chairs near his perch.

1975 01 27
Meteorologists at Honiton recorded gusts of up to 56 knots and an average wind of gale force eight during storms which swept the region leaving a trail of damage. At Swaffham Bulbeck the roof of the Girl Guides hut was lifted up and deposited on the village's fire station roof.

1975 01 29
The number of homeless families in the Huntingdon, St Neots area is rocketing. Scores of families have been made homeless after being evicted from tied houses or finding themselves unable to keep up with mortgage repayments. Hundred more are living with friends while they join the already-long waiting lists for council houses. The three-day week threw a lot of people on hard times, especially young men with wives and families with large mortgages. An official said the housing situation was "hellish" and was getting worse all the time

Please make what use of this you may. Kindly remember where it came from – www.mikepetty.org.uk

Bourn recreation ground, p9

1975 01 30
Lottery move, p1
Spy dead in cold, p9

1975 01 31
Sawston plan, p9

February 1975 CEN

1975 02 03
World records don't fall very often, but one took a hammering in Gt Shelford when Robert Manderson of Stapleford sang for nine hours without a break and that took care of the existing record for non-stop singing in the Guinness Book of records.

King's will be the first Cambridge college to experiment with non-meat meals following a campaign by Survival, the conservation group. The meals will be offered to assess student reaction. Another college, Christ's, has turned down the experiment but three more are considering the idea. Efforts to involve Cambridge restaurants in providing more vegetarian meals have so far drawn a poor response.

1975 02 03
Cambridgeshire chief constable, F. Drayton Porter, suggested that the defunct RAF station at Oakington could be used to house the county's problem children. This would prevent them being held in police stations and prisons when there was nowhere else for them to go. "This kind of accommodation could well be ideal. After all the housing of the Ugandan Asians in RAF stations was done in a matter of days", he said. A plan to build a prison for young offenders on part of the disused Duxford airfield was dropped in 1973.

1975 02 04
A complete Cambridge college – the second in eight years – is being offered for sale on the open market at an unspecified price, thought to be in the region of £1 million. Ridley Hall is for sale following a decision in 1971 to enter into federation with two other Anglican training colleges, In 1967 Cheshunt College in Bateman Street was sold for in excess of £225,000.

1975 02 05
Cambridgeshire MP Mr Francis Pym, has been asked to fight for the Tory leadership. He paid tribute to the former leader, Ted Heath. Mrs Thatcher's success was remarkable and he thought she was likely to win the second ballot. Cambridge MP, Mr David Lane, said "Conservatives now face a difficult period, but our loyalty to the party is even stronger than to any individual. Whoever is elected can rely on united support

1975 02 06
The Cambridge area property market offers a broad range of housing at the moment. It ranges from Ridley Hall to a tiny disused telephone exchange at Bottisham. Other exchanges at Cheveley and Steeple Morden are also on the market as STD spreads through the Cambridge telephone area. Some of them have possibilities as bijou cottage residences but buyers have to go on the waiting list for a telephone Royston's oldest inn, the Old Bull is now able to take more residents thanks to a six-bedroomed extension. Bargain weekends are one of the innovations brought in by the new proprietors. For £13.50 they offer accommodation for two nights and a dinner dance on the Saturday evening.

1975 02 07

The Government has decided after two years deliberation that the Burleigh Street – Fitzroy street area of Cambridge is suitable for redevelopment. This now lays the responsibility for action squarely on the city council who are likely to decide within two months whether to drop the much-criticised official development plan and go ahead with something less contentious. The plan has been unanimously rejected by the area's residents and shopkeepers.

1975 02 07
Fitzroy decision, p1
Road closure scheme, p15
Duxford museum plan, p17

1975 02 08
Spinners concert, p1

1975 02 10
Cambridge's city centre traffic experiment swung into action today. Thousands of motorists faced the through-traffic ban for the first time. The road closures and a system of one-way routes will operate for six months unless "utter chaos" develops. The scheme could then be swiftly abandoned. It closes two sections of road in the centre of town to private cars. One extends along King's Parade from King's College gate to Gt St Mary's while the other runs from Woolworth's along St Andrew's street to its junction with Emmanuel St

1975 02 11
Voluntary workers in Cambridge are battling to keep an old peoples' day club and meals on wheels service going while they wait for new premises. The WRVS Hill Top Club for the elderly is run in a dilapidated "pre-fab" on Castle Hill. The workers took the building over in 1958 from American servicemen who had used it as a social club. It has been feared the building would not last until new premises at Primrose Croft were built.

King's Parade tea party, p5

1975 02 13
Disco, Corn Exchange, p7

1975 02 14
Superstitious fears were cast aside by members of South Cambs District Council yesterday when they agreed unanimously to include "unlucky" 13 in their street numbering scheme. Undaunted by the day's date, February 13th, and reported complaints from the public about the use of 13 in numbering schemes, councillors came firmly down on the side common sense. Councillor Mrs Millie Pepper said that if she was given number 13 she would feel lucky to get a house at all.

A house-to-house survey carried out in six Cambridgeshire villages showed that residents were overwhelmingly in favour of a superstore for Gt Shelford, a public inquiry heard. The results delivered by the managing director of Scotsdale Garden Centre, the proposed site for the superstore, came as something of a shock on the last day of the inquiry. Up until then indications were that most people were strongly against a proposal of Asda to build a 50,000 square feet store and car park

For many months Andy's record stall has been one of the biggest market square attractions in the country. And with the opening of his new shop in Mill Road, Cambridge, Andy Gray has achieved another success. Opened by "Mr Top Twenty", Alan Freeman, the shop already houses more than 500 LPs covering the whole spectrum of folk, country and western, rock, motown and soul. There is also a cassette corner in the new shop. They will continue to offer discounts of between 50p and 90p off most LPs and albums.

Local radio, p5

1975 02 15
Stradishall's Highpoint prison is rapidly taking shape on 160 acres of the former RAF base. It will be a year before any prisoners appear. There will be four establishments: the main Highpoint prison for 450 male prisoners situated in the area of the former hangars; a detention centre, Northridge, for 200 young men at the former sergeants' mess; a prison physical education officers' school and a security dog training scheme near the former officers' quarters.

1975 02 18
Car park problems, p10

1975 02 19
Addenbrooke's Hospital is so short of staff housing that new recruits may be put up in hotels. Already it is having to turn away staff it has recruited because of the accommodation shortage. In spite of desperate staff shortage resulting in 168 beds remaining permanently unused, new staff cannot be taken on because no housing can be found for them either within the hospital or in the city.

Sawston over-sixties, p18

1975 02 20
Four men ran a pirate commercial radio station from remote spots in the Cambridgeshire countryside, magistrates were told. They were caught in a field near Histon as they had just closed down a two-hour broadcasting session of Anglia Free Commercial Radio. They had previously put out two-hour broadcasts on Sundays from various spots in Cambridgeshire, and the programmes were heard in places as widespread as Exning, Waterbeach and Fenstanton. The magistrates ordered the transmitter to be forfeited. The men were fined between £50 and £70 each

Milton has no chance of getting a branch library at the moment. Finance for such projects as new branch library buildings simply isn't available the Deputy County Librarian explained. Outline planning permission for the land at one end of a garden near Coles Road lapsed this month. Building on sites without outline planning permission is strictly embargoed by the Anglian Water Authority so Milton must put up with its part time, limited stock library which opens in the British Legion hall on two afternoons and two evenings. 75 02 20

1975 02 20
Cambridge University should be nationalised, the Kite area turned over to council housing and traffic banned inside the city boundaries, the Cambridge Communist Party says in a policy statement. Amongst other measures they would like to see are turning the church of St Andrew the Great into a civic restaurant, requisition of vacant accommodation if vacant for six months, industrial expansion of Cambridge with more council houses, and the banning of office expansion in favour of housing and jobs.

1975 02 21
Housewives were today urged top take advantage of low potato prices before they soar in the spring. But while shops are now able to buy cheaply at a cost of between 1p and 1½ p a pound, they are selling them in Cambridge at between 3p & 5p. A glut of potatoes from the fens has pushed prices down to an unprecedently low level of between £16 and £23 a ton off the farm. A potato merchant said "One of the things I can never understand is why the shop keepers don't pass on the benefits of the lower wholesale and farm prices to the consumers, but they never do"

Clare museum, p20

1975 02 25
Cambridge's ratepayers face an increase of about 20% on their rates bills from August. Last night the Labour-controlled City Board agreed to recommend a total rate of 71.6 p in the pound. The city council's own share of the rate will be 15.5p – a 51.2% increase. The decision sparked off heated protests from the opposition Conservative members. Their leader, Counc. John Powley, claimed the council was sheltering behind the county which was levying a lower rate than forecast because of large government grants.

Wendens Ambo plan. P12
Sawston take-away, p20

1975 02 26
Cambridgeshire County Council is to buy a 147 acre slice of Duxford airfield, including the mile-long runway, for an undisclosed sum. This will allow the Imperial War Museum to go ahead with its plans to house permanently its large collection of historic aircraft in the hangar and to develop the whole site into one of the largest aviation museum complexes in the country. The deal brings to an end almost ten years doubt and dispute over the future of one of the most historic airfields in aviation history

Rix to sell, p17

1975 02 27
Lodes scheme, p5

1975 02 28
Down in Gt Shelford the traditional pub games of darts and dominoes have a rival. It's chess. The stately game has found its way into the bars of the Square and Compasses public house where no fewer than 22 players entered the pub's chess tournament. Landlord Mr Ron Hughes has bought two special chequered-topped tables for the saloon bar. "It's obvious that this is something that's going to grow", he said. "It's about as popular as darts"

1975 02 28
The Mayor of Cambridge, Ald Jack Warren, and the Vice Chancellor of Cambridge University, Prof Jack Linnett, held a reception at the Guildhall for ten Nobel Prize winners' resident at the University. As the learned and the erudite stood in earnest groups they assured each other that the occasion was unique. "You won't see the like again" they muttered as the champagne went round and round.

Chess at Sawston pub, p9

March 1975 CEN

1975 03 01
The bizarre sight of city-suited lawyers in mud-covered town shoes, sorting out llamas, camels & elephants in a disused coal yard at Cottenham brought to an end the sage of Circus Hoffman. Earlier in the day the villagers had been treated to the unique sight of a high court tipstaff, complete with court orders and warrants, being chased by a baby elephant. It was all part of the tragi-comedy which opened last November when one of the four brothers running Circus Hoffman decided on a unilateral declaration of independence and peeled off what he considered was his chunk of the circus and headed for Cambridge from London. The final curtain was lowered amidst tears and curses when the peeled-off chunk re-joined the whole.

1975 03 03
The first gas-powered police car takes to the road today. With gas at about 30p a gallon and the cost of conversion from petrol to gas around £140 the car should be saving taxpayers' money in September. But police want to find out any problems that may crop up before committing themselves to spending money on more conversions. Other vehicles owned by the county council also fill up from the big storage tank in the Corporation yard, Mill Road, Cambridge

Coprolites, p13
Bath reopens, p15
Oakinigton, p16

1975 03 04
Archives, p5

1975 03 05
Finger-printing of juveniles is becoming standard practice in Cambridgeshire whenever anyone between the ages of 14 and 16 comes before a court, the County's chief constable said. In recent weeks fingerprints of 14 year old have been taken for stealing bikes in one case and stealing flowers in another. "There has been a large clear-up of offences through this. We often find that juveniles arrested for minor offences have been involved in burglaries and other serious offences after their fingerprints have been recorded", he said

Members of the newly-formed Cambridge rock 'n' roll club turned up to their first party last night at the Midland tavern, Devonshire Road, Cambridge, only to be told there could be no dancing. The club's plans came unstuck when Cambridge magistrates ruled that there had to be no dancing at the pub because it only had a licence for music – not for dancing or singing.

Archives better condition, p5

1975 03 06
Cambridgeshire planning committee yesterday drove another nail in the coffin of the Parry Lewis development plan for Cambridge when they joined the growing list of local council bodies which have pronounced the last rites over the plan which cost £20,000 and took nearly three years to produce. The plan suggests the city should scrap its super-shops plans for the Burleigh-Fitzroy area and develop a new large commercial centre in the Trumpington region.

The long dispute between Cambridgeshire planning committee and a number of Cherry Hinton residents about Cambridge city council's plan to build 1500 homes in the village has been brought to an abrupt end. The committee chairman made it clear that the decision to allow the development will stand. No public enquiry could now be held. More time had been spent on the Cherry Hinton issue than on any other matter he could remember.

Bar Hill unfinished, p5
Village fears as bypass, p10

1975 03 08
The Kojak craze has hit Cambridge. Sales of the sort of lollipop the actor Telly Savalas sucks in the popular television series have soared in the past three weeks in Cambridge, according to Mr Jim Reynolds, the 'Rock King' of Newmarket Road. He believes that most of the increased sales are being made to adults, not children. As far as Kojak hairstyles are concerned, Mr Terry Taylor, of Topman, Market Hill, Cambridge, said he had one or two customers who were thinking about adopting the Kojak look, but no-one has actually had the style done yet, he said

1975 03 10
RAF Oakington move, p9

1975 03 11
Newmarket Phohibition pub, p17

1975 03 12
Patients in some Cambridge hospitals over-eat because they are bored, and hospital wards are over-heated to the point of discomfort, health officials were told. Mrs Janet Jones said "Patients wade through enormous quantities of food, often stodgy and unappetising, simply because they are presented with it and have nothing else to do". On heating she said: "Patients quite often ask to have the windows open, not for fresh air, but to reduce the temperature. They said they are uncomfortably hot"

1975 03 14
Cambridge's new house squat got underway this week in Glisson Road. One occupant, who is unemployed and drawing social security benefits, said "There are now so many squats that we are thinking of forming a Cambridge squatters union to look after our rights and get the thing organised. We would move in and do essential repairs while living in the houses for no rent. . Cambridge is a young people's town and there are so many people here wanting accommodation but look around the town at the number of empty houses. The council just ignores them"

1975 03 18
700 Cambridgeshire police constables are sacrificing £3 a week each to allow the county to take on more men. They have agreed to work less overtime to finance the strengthening of the force which is faced with the faster-growing crime rate in the country. Last year it went up by 36%. The county council has no money to pay for the recruits needed to keep the force up to strength. About 190 more men are needed

St Bedes Duke of Edinburgh awards, p11

1975 03 19
Cambridge city council will drop its controversial waste paper collection experiment next week after losing almost £1,800 of ratepayers' money on the project. Now they intend to encourage voluntary bodies to organise their own collections. More than eight tonnes of waste paper were collected during the first week but the average had now dropped to below five tonnes. In addition the price which they obtained had dropped from £18 to only £14 a tonne.

Mr Edwin Appleyard's partnership with a Shell oil barge has ended after 18 years. The 60-year old barge was first introduced to the fens from Holland about 1910 and was used for delivering tulip and daffodil bulbs growing in the fens to Ely station. It next became a cargo boat plying between King's Lynn and Cambridge before being bought by Shell in the 1920s. It was then used to supply pumping stations with gas oil. Now it has been sold to a canal and passenger boat operator of Manchester.

East Anglia's "Mr Average" buying his three-bedroomed semi on a mortgage now needs an income of £3,927 a year to maintain his family's lifestyle - £300 a year more than he needed three months ago. A National survey shows the effect of the inflationary spiral. It indicates that East Anglia is 4.2% cheaper than the average of all other regions. The current asking price for a three-bedroomed semi in East Anglia is £9,800 and a five-six bedroomed house is £29,300

1975 03 20
An anonymous little dog-leg road near Mitcham's corner Cambridge is typical of many roads interlacing the grey huddle of bed-sit suburbia on the flanks of Cambridge. But on the night of October 18th last year its cover of anonymity was blown. It was on that night that an unsuspecting girl became a victim and a burglar became a rapist. Between then and December the rapist claimed five victims and sexually assaulted a sixth. During that time 130 policemen were trying to catch him. They didn't succeed. He is still at large.

Pop group noise, p5

1975 03 21
An appeal for £30,000 has been launched to convert the old Cheddar's Lane Pumping Station into a technology museum. The existing pumping station provides a centrepiece for the museum, representing technological developments during the 19th century. Single storey extensions with galleries to house exhibits are being built at the Riverside split-level site. A special gallery may be designed to enable children of all ages to participate in the building of working models. The museum began in 1968 when the old pumping station was replaced by an electric plant

Cambridge has become a garrison town, with more soldiers living within a 10-mile radius of the city than University dons. With the arrival of a new infantry regiment at Oakington there are now 2,500 soldiers in the area with 2,000 dependants. Most of the troops are stationed at Bassingbourn with the army engineers at the former battle of Britain RAF station at Waterbeach. There is no larger concentration of troops than this in East Anglia, other than at Colchester.

Knockout cheerleaders, p6
Debden RAF, p8

1975 03 22
Conservative Club closes, p6
Addenbrooke's Hospital slashed, p7

1975 03 24
Detailed recommendations aimed at presenting the town centres of St Neots, St Ives and Huntingdon from becoming “deserts” of industry and commerce – where no one lives – have been studied by Huntingdon district council. Up until the 1950s, the three town centres were mainly residential except for small cores of commerce. Even these had their high proportion of flats. Then came the dramatic expansion of the 1960s and 70s in housing with shops and offices following hard on its heels. Commercial activity forced out residential considerations and together with worsening traffic conditions the town centres gradually became less desirable places to live.

Banned Mass, p9

1975 03 25
Cambridge pubs range from grimy to gracious according to a drinker’s guide just published by a group of undergraduates. Grime, according to the guide, is synonymous with the Locomotive pub in Mill Road, and grace is one of the virtues of the Plough Inn at Fen Ditton. Praise is lavished on the “thematic scheme” of the Galleon bar in the Burleigh Arms, Newmarket Road. The Free Press has “exceptional character” and the Baker’s Arms, East Road, is called a “refreshing surprise”. The Bun Shop, Downing Street is said to be “something of a Cambridge institution and well worth a visit”

1975 03 27
A bus ride from the outskirts of Cambridge to the city centre is slightly cheaper than a taxi fare. It’s a close thing if you share a taxi with three other people, but if four are travelling together the private car journey, even with a 10p parking fee, is still the cheapest course. Camtax say from Cherry Hinton to the city centre the fare would be 53p. plus 2p VAT.

56 girls want to lead the cheers for the Cambridge “It’s a Knock Out” team – and the organiser are so impressed they have arranged for a mass audition. The girls will be trained to do a cheer leader routine in front of a crowd of 10,000 when Cambridge takes on Peterborough and Oxford at the Cambridge City FC ground on May 25th. Contenders include Mrs Judith Slater of Sawston, Debbie Haddock of Haddenham, Ann Pretty, a ballet student of Cambridge and Mandy Turner, a food research technician 75 03 27

The kitchen oven was doing overtime and the skilled hands of a skilful housewife at Lt Eversden were kneading and pressing the dough all day. The baking demon is Mrs Jill Marshall, who wants to help the village recreation ground committee out of its present money troubles. She hopes to have hundreds of hot cross buns ready by Good Friday morning. She is taking a gallon of milk a day this week, and has a sack of flour. She is no newcomer to the culinary big time. Her speciality is multiple-tiered wedding cakes.

Police at breaking point, p1
Bypass over Gogs plan, p25

1975 03 29
The Oyster Tavern in Northampton St, Cambridge is one of those restaurants that only those in the know are likely to be able to find. It is still listed in the telephone directory under "Bistro Italo". Those who remember the old Bistro will probably avoid it. They will be making a big mistake. Sirloin steak is offered at £1.90, salted beef at £1.40 and chicken Provencale at £1.25. Like almost everyone else we chose seafood and did not regret it. Apple pie and cream and chocolate nut sundae were both 25p.

April 1975 CEN

1975 04 01
Clampdown on homes, p1
Councils one year old, p9

1975 04 02
Melbourn, South Cambridgeshire's worst kept village, is determined to remove that insulting title from its records. But residents have a tough job on their hands because they claim the biggest rubbish culprits are people driving through the village. Last year the judges in the Best Kept Village competition relegated them to the bottom spot. The parish council feel the solution to their litter problem will only come when the proposed by-pass is built in a few years' time. "When we get the by-pass we shall be a village again", said Mr Aldridge. One of the worst spots is the village green near the traffic lights. Nearly every evening it was crowded with young people who tended to throw Coca-Cola tins and other litter on the green.

Hotel abandon plans, p12

1975 04 03
Joe Bugner will not be fighting Muhammad Ali for the world heavyweight championship next June. Ali, after his win over Chuck Wepner, declared that Bugner would be his next opponent. But the world champion has had second thoughts. Andy Smith, Bugner's manager, said, "Quite frankly, he's afraid that Bugner with his strength, fast jabbing and his intelligence, will beat him"

Leaving your car in the Lion Yard car park, Cambridge, between 5.30 pm and 6.30 pm can be costly. Mrs Carol Taylor of Trumpington drove her car into the Lion Yard at 5.46 pm and drove out again at 6.18 pm. She was charged 17p – 7p for the 14 minutes before 6 o'clock and 10p for the 18 minutes after. The charges change at 6 pm when the evening tariff comes into operation. She felt this was an unfair charge for 32 minutes of parking time.

Paul Day, table tennis, p10

1975 04 04
More than 40,000 people in the Huntingdon and St Neots areas are running a higher than average risk of drinking contaminated water. An Anglian Water Authority spokesman said water supplied from the Brampton treatment works could be hit by "lightning pollution". The works take part of its supply direct from the River Ouse just before treatment, so any pollution in the river goes straight into the plant. For many years there has been problems with the drinking water supplied by Brampton, because there were not sufficient storage facilities.

Wilburton traffic speed, p9
Fulbourn mill, p14

1975 04 05
A wooden road sign at Cottenham is of special significance to one of its villagers, Mr Alfred Maskell. He made the sign in the last few weeks before his retirement at the Highways depot at Cottenham. The sign, together with another at Meldreth, may turn out to be two of the last wooden ones in this area. Wooden road signs have been phased out in favour of metal ones for about 15 years, although some have been used when residents have specially asked for them.

Landbeach leisure site, p6

1975 04 08
Long term predictions about water shortages are beginning to look slightly off key as national population forecasts plummet. Only a few years ago ambitious plans were being made to swamp vast areas of good agricultural land in order to keep pace with demand. Now it looks like a false alarm. Plans for reservoirs like those at Abbotsley, St Neots, and Gt Bradley, Haverhill, rarely come out for a dusting. Even the Wash reservoir scheme may prove a costly indulgence. Population statistics have always been notoriously unpredictable. In the Eastern region the authority will probably have to cater for a 2001 population of nearly 7 ½ million against the present 5 million

1975 04 09
Snow ploughs and salting trucks were fighting the snow-ice blanket which dropped over Cambridgeshire. In one of the county's heaviest falls the snow settled to two-inch-thick carpets on the major roads as county council emergency highway crews worked in darkness to keep them clear. Some of the worst affected roads were in the Haverhill area. Weather experts are reporting further snow falls today.

Wilburton phone box, p14
Green boxing, p24

1975 04 10
Doctor's resignation, p1
Haverhill vicarage, p15

1975 04 11
It is difficult to equate gastronomic expertise with Mill Road, Cambridge. But when faced with a fancy for honest French cuisine it is just the place to go. For although La Garconne is a modest restaurant there is nowhere else quite like it. There is the temptation of pigeon in red wine (£1.10), or a casserole of rabbit (£1). Unfortunately the coq au vin (£1.35) was not ready until later in the evening. A brandy at 40p rounded off a very good meal for two which cost £7.86. It is possible to have an equally satisfying meal for two, with wine, for just under £4. By today's standards that is pretty good.

County HQ plan, p9
County Council staff crisis, p12

1975 04 12
The Prime Minister, Harold Wilson, came to Cambridge last night. For an hour he overcame both hecklers and the notorious acoustics of the city's Corn Exchange to win a standing ovation from almost 1,000 people. His main topic was the Common Market. He then went through a list of election promises and while harassed by the hecklers, who had paid 15p to get into the meeting, spelled out how each promise had been fulfilled.

1975 04 14
A screaming crowd of 2,000 teenagers blocked Haverhill High Street as BBC Radio One DJ and television personality Noel Edmonds opened a record shop. As the crowd, mainly of young girls, rushed the shop, the main window broke under pressure and the police had to evacuate the building.

Inside the shop 26-year-old Noel, suavely dressed in open-necked brown pattern shirt, cream jacket and brown flared trousers and Cuban-heeled boots was completely unruffled.

Rapist, p1

1975 04 15
Eight old houses near the railway line, at Mill Road, Cambridge, are being offered by the city council, which owns them, to dossers and down-and-outs. The houses are scheduled for eventual demolition to allow British Rail to widen the bridge when it starts work on electrifying the main Cambridge-London line. But because no date has been set the council has offered them on an annual basis to Cambridge Night Shelter. The council considers the houses which stand on the Argyle Street corner to be suitable because there are no other occupied houses immediately adjacent.

1975 04 16
King Street run, p6

1975 04 17
The main cooling towers of the £200,000 million nuclear power station which the Central Electricity Generating Board may construct on the former airfield site at Molesworth would be almost 400 feet high, the planning committee was told. And there could be up to six such tower buildings each 300 feet in diameter at the base. They would probably stand on the only piece of high ground in the area and be visible along the whole of the Nene valley and across large tracts of Cambridgeshire countryside. The prospect of such buildings was described councillor Robert James as "horrific".

1975 04 18
The Labour-controlled Cambridge city council has decided by a two-to-one majority to develop the Burleigh-Fitzroy area mainly as a regional shopping centre in partnership with Jesus College and a London property company. This is the first definite and much substantial move the city council has taken about the future of the so-called "Kite" area in the 15 years of controversy and discussion that has surrounded it.

Policemen have gone off on LSD "trips" just be handling a new super-powerful LSD pill, the size of a ball-point pen tip. And now there are warnings that the drug may be circulating in the mid-Anglia region and may find its way into Cambridgeshire. CID Commander Det Supt Bernard Hotson, confirmed that his force had been warned to look out for the purple and black speckled pills – and not to handle them.

The Government has given permission to the giant Shell petrol company to look for oil in south Cambridgeshire. The area selected extends from Gt Shelford up to Royston and southwards through Hertfordshire as far as Buntingford. In the west it takes in Ashwell, Steeple Morden and Gamlingay, while in the east it extends almost to Saffron Walden. The actual drilling areas have not yet been selected. Nearly six years ago an American oil company planned to make test borings in the north Cambridgeshire fens. A few years before that tests were made near Saffron Walden. Nothing came of either project

1975 04 19
The Cambridgeshire Library Service will break down if money to run it continues to be withheld by the County Council. The warning has been given by County Librarian, Mr Royston Brown, in a report on the effects of "no growth" budgets. The report adds "demands in many areas for provision will continue to increase in the next few years and be accelerated by the current economic and social difficulties. Short of new laws being made to forbid people from attending their local libraries it is impossible to regulate the use of them"

1975 04 22

Jerry Bol, the one-man-band who has tramped the streets of Cambridge collecting pennies from passers-by, has been invited to play alongside some of Britain's top musical entertainers at Gonville & Caius May Ball. Dutch-born Mr Bol has been busking in Cambridge since the beginning of this year. Since then his act has taken off with requests from all over Western Europe and an offer of an American tour.

Farmers dump onions, p7

1975 04 23
Austin circus, p6

1975 04 25
The bells of the parish church at Everton, near St Neots, may soon be up for sale. The church tower was struck by lightning last summer and a considerable part has had to be demolished. As a result, there is no longer a belfry and nowhere to put the five bells. If they are sold the money will go towards making up the deficit to restore the damage. At the moment, however, permission has yet to be granted from the chancellor of the Ely diocese

RAF Debden closed this week. The axe of economy has severed Saffron Walden's last real link with wartime Britain. The RAF isn't making a bit of fuss about it. A quiet ceremony in front of the top brass from London and a private dining-in night in the officers' mess is the only salute the station will get. It was an accident which caused the station to be built in the first place. An old Bulldog bi-plane crashed in a wheat field near Debden in 1934. War Office men who inspected the remains reported that it would be a good spot for an aerodrome.

1975 04 28
The King Street run or the King Street pint to pint is a Cambridge drinking tradition. It means drinking eight pints of beer in two hours. In the old days King Street had enough ale houses for the Run to be held along it, but now the organisers have to plan the route incorporating public houses elsewhere. The run last year ended at The Zebra in Newmarket Road but licensee Mrs M. Warren won't be allowing it again. Last year youths who vomited in Fair Street outside the Hopbine bought a ban there on all future runs.

Hardwick Limes, supplement

1975 04 30
St Ives centre, p6
City road system, p16
Mildenhall changes, p20

May 1975 CEN

1975 05 01
The Campaign for Real Ale has bought a disused pub, the Salisbury Hotel in Cambridge for £22,000 – with the house next door thrown in. Secured at an auction it is their fourth public house acquisition in the country. The auctioneer described the price as very poor for such a commodious property. The licence was never rescinded or transferred and so is available for an application to the city licensing magistrates for renewal. At the same auction the King William IV pub at Histon was taken off the market at £17,500

Stablelads picket, p1
Auction, p9
Preachers, p15

1975 05 02

Newmarket stable lads' pay dispute spread to the racecourse, bringing chaos to the first day of the Guineas meeting. Trouble started when 150 lads staged a sit-in on the course and delayed the start of the race by 15 minutes. Further sit-ins during the afternoon led to angry confrontations involving stable lads, jockeys, police, course officials and racegoers. Willie Carson said he was "sore, especially around the legs" where he had been hit with his own snatched riding crop.

Mental hospitals, p12

1975 05 05
Hundreds of Cambridge motorists were late for work today as the second stage of the city's traffic experiment turned into an enormous snarl-up. Police described the situation as chaotic. A police inspector said "Vast numbers of drivers are completely unaware of the new experimental scheme. At 8.30 this morning there was a solid block of traffic from the Catholic church corner of Hills Road to Perne Road island. Drivers are bewildered and completely at sea". One councillor said that while the first part of the experiment was a semi-hit, the extension was a definite miss.

Exactly a year ago, gardeners and farmers were gazing at parched spoil, cracked earth and dry ditches. There was worry about the future of crops and the height of the village duck pond. Now the situation has reversed with a vengeance. Much of Cambridgeshire is totally water-logged – again there is concern about the future of crops and the height of the village duck pond. 75 05 05

1975 05 06
Banhams, p11
Queens back plan, p10
Reach fair, p10

1975 05 07
Mrs Gladys Theobold, who has kept the White Swan public house, Stow-cum-Quy for 42 years served behind the bar for the last time last night. She has run the pub almost single-handed since her husband died 16 years ago.

Satan's bride, p12

1975 05 08
It seems to take a certain sort of woman to cope successfully with the life of being the wife of a professional football player or manager. The wife of Cambridge United's new and highly successful manager fulfils the role perfectly. Ron Atkinson's life is football. Apart from cutting the grass once a week and taking his car to the car wash he leaves to his wife all the responsibility for the day-to-day running of the home and garden. From the time she takes Ron's breakfast up to him in bed with the papers – he reads them all avidly – life in their home revolves around the one subject. When Ron does have a spare moment he reads football books and magazines.

David Patrick tug, p17

1975 05 09
Political extremists failed in their efforts to break up a mass pro-Common Market rally in Cambridge Guildhall last night while Mr Edward heath was speaking. But the agitators who frequently called out their support for the National front movement and waved banners and posters succeeded in halting the meeting twice – before fighting and scuffling broke out and they were thrown out of the meeting by groups of burly stewards. Repeatedly Mr Heath parried their tirade until the noise from agitators and the counter booing and shouting of hundreds of other people in the hall forced him to stop speaking

The Varsity restaurant in St Andrew's Street, Cambridge, is not the place to go if you are fussy in demanding smart décor. But it does offer good wholesome food at extremely low prices. We saw one elderly gentleman complaining that his carafe of wine (£1.10 a half litre) was too cold. The obliging waiter held it in front of an electric convector fire to bring it to a more acceptable temperature. It was little more than a gesture, as the fire was not plugged in. We ate a three-course meal, with wine, and the bill for two was £3.25 75 05 09

Tony Benn to visit, p20

1975 05 10
Vigilante patrols have been formed in some bed-sit areas of Cambridge by householders anxious to protect single girls from the Cambridge rapist –but the groups are not welcomed by the police. The Cambridge MP, David Lane, dropped in unannounced at police headquarters to offer his support and encouragement to detectives hunting the city rapist.

1975 05 13
The influx of army children to Hatton Park county primary school, Longstanton, is causing problems. A report showed there were now 144 army children, 17 RAF and 106 village children in the school. With the arrival of the newcomers 40-50% of each class was considered in need of remedial teaching.

1975 05 14
Landbeach comedian Jack Harding yesterday gagged his way to an expenses-paid holiday for two in the Mediterranean. For 66-year-old Jack won first prize in the senior citizens' talent competition at Leicester. Jack, a part-time retired mobile hardware and oil merchant, was supported by 200 well-wishers from Golden Age clubs in Cambridge.

1975 05 15
Robinson College, p1

1975 05 16
At the County Council meeting presentations will be made to mark the retirement of Col Geoffrey Hurrell as Lord Lieutenant and to Lord Hemingford as a Lieutenant of Cambridgeshire. These formal and social functions are likely to be the only bright spots at a meeting otherwise heavily laden with prospects of financial gloom. Dire warnings will be given of the possibility of the council's money running out before the end of the financial year. Jobs of some employees may be at stake if they press for too large a salary increase – because there is just no money available

Fourteen Cambridge student bodyguards were out in the city last night looking after single girls who fear the rapist may strike again. The Eden Street based Townswomen's Liberation Group has arranged for a self-defence demonstration. It will be for the benefit of anyone fearing assault. The Cambridge Evening News has offered a reward of £1,000 for information leading to the rapist's arrest and conviction.

Ministry camera, p9

1975 05 17
The Mayor of Cambridge, Coun. Jack Warren, is under attack by the Communist Party because he gave a sherry party for Mr Edward Heath when he spoke at a rally in the city supporting the Common Market. The Mayor, who makes no secret of his support for the Market, although many of his Labour Party colleagues are strongly opposed to it – gave a small sherry party in his official parlour for a number of leading members of the Cambridge In Europe campaign.

1975 05 19
Towns and villages were mopping up after a downpour which led to road chaos, flooding and burst river banks. Some of the most serious flooding was in the St Neots, Eynesbury and Eaton Socon areas after the continuous rain swelled tributaries of the Ouse until they burst their banks. It was the second time in less than six months that these areas had been hit by floods.
Cottenham beat bounds, p4

1975 05 21
Fen lodes meeting, p4

1975 05 22
Twelve traders at the Marcade in East Road, Cambridge, were each fined up to £10 for serving customers on a Sunday. The charges arose from an undisclosed complaint on the Sunday before Christmas and a visit to the covered market by a public health officer and three inspectors. One of the traders said he carried out a survey on the same Sunday and discovered 17 other shops open and selling goods contravening the law. They were giving a public service on the run-up to Christmas and were surprised other shops doing the same thing were not prosecuted.

1975 05 23
A row between Huntingdon district council and the village hall committee at Abbotsley, near St Neots, has led to the Common Market Referendum in the village being held in the back room of a High Street house. The hall management committee was demanding £1.50 per hour for the 15-hour voting period – and that was just too much for the district council. The hall treasurer said the council wanted to pay £5 for the whole day but if the village folk can't get it for less no one else should.

Appleyard Lincoln, p23

1975 05 24
For the first time since it was produced almost 20 years ago a prize-winning history of Cherry Hinton is to be available for reference at libraries. The contents were compiled by the Women's Institute in 1958. But the book, hand-written and with water-colour sketches, was too fragile to be easily available. But now staff from the Cambridgeshire Collection have made three complete copies of the book. One will be at Cherry Hinton library.

1975 05 27
Cambridge romped home to win "It's a Knockout" in front of a crowd of 15,000 at Cambridge City Football Club. In a close-fought contest the home team balanced, tugged, splashed, climbed and tumbled its way through a variety of crazy games. The score was Cambridge 22, Peterborough 20 and Oxford 18. This sees them through to an International round of "Jeux sans Frontieres" where Cambridge will be the only British team against contestants from six other countries.

Emergency action was taken at the weekend to cut off sections of Ashwell parish church and churchyard from public access because of the dangerous state of the 600-year-old church tower. An architect has reported that parts of the buttress could collapse at any time. Inside the church the altar, pews and other furniture have been moved away from the danger area. The organ will no longer be used for services and there is also a ban on bell-ringing. Emergency repairs would cost about £10,000 but the total bill for a major restoration would amount to £60,000

1975 05 28
Cambridge's largest all-male college, Trinity is to admit women. Graduate women students will be admitted from October 1976 and undergraduate women from October 1978. The college decision puts Trinity fourth in line amongst previous all-male colleges who are now planning to open their door both to women dons and students. In 1976 Sidney Sussex and Selwyn colleges will become co-educational, followed in 1977 by Trinity Hall

1975 05 29
Mr Bernard Smith is proud of the way he keeps Burwell's Gardiner Memorial Hall spotless. He polishes the floor seven hours a week. He is also proud of the way he keeps the cemetery tidy. He mows the grass until it is as smooth as a bowling green. But Mr Smith, who receives £35 a week says hooligans tearing holes the in tennis court fence, "breaking everything" and leaving the area "in a hell of a mess" makes looking after the 9½ acres of the recreation ground a thankless task

With the reorganisation of secondary school education 16-year olds must now look round at all the subject choices and courses at the different Sixth Form Centres. CCAT is far and away the largest A-level centre in the area. Its total of over 500 full-time A-level students considerably exceeds that of the Hills Road and Long Road Sixth Form Colleges together. 75 05 29

Despoiled land, p6

1975 05 30
The official opening of the Riverside Park at St Neots takes the town a step nearer to becoming an important inland centre noted for its fine leisure facilities. Although the project is costing about £300,000 ratepayers have not had to find a penny so far. It is a dream fulfilled for the scheme's promoters. At the turn of the century there were grandiose plans to turn the town into an inland spa by exploiting the "valuable medicinal" properties of the natural waters in the area. But the spa venture failed. Celebrations this weekend, the biggest event in the history of the town, are unlikely to end on the same dismal note.

June 1975 CEN

1975 06 04
A Bar Hill firm's bid to be Britain's number one odd exporter has been beaten. Eastern Sands and Refactories got into the running in a competition run by an export magazine and a drinks company for selling £50,000 worth of British sand to the Arab oil state of Abu Dhabi – which is all sand. The sand was needed to filter seawater.

1975 06 05
Bangles, baubles and beads have all featured in male fashion trends, and now a single earring is the fad followed by teenagers imitating their rock band idols. But six-year-old Neil from Haverhill, must be one of the youngest weeny-boppers to adopt this adornment. A gold sleeper through his pierced left ear completes his "bovver" gear of leather boots, striped socks, shin-length trousers, braces and tee shirt. A fan of such stars as Mudd and the Bay City Rollers, Neil plagued his parents for an earring after seeing his idols on "Top of the Pops"

Posters of David Essex, the Bay City Rollers and Elton John looked down on the voters of the tiny villagers of Conington as they filed into an 18-year-old pop fan's bedroom to record their Common Market voters. And with the polling booth at the foot of the bed and Mrs Nancy Jeffs drinking tea brought in by her husband from the next room as she checked off the voters' list, the whole exercise was quite a family affair. The village has just 95 people eligible to vote

Nigerian jeers, p1
Trumpington homes, p6

1975 06 06
Student yells of "Biafran butcher" at General Yakubu Gowon failed to disrupt the Honorary Degree ceremony at the Cambridge Senate House. The General gave the thumbs up sign to a bunch of two dozen students who chanted insults at the Nigerian head of state as he walked in procession. He was flanked on one side by a hefty special branch armed bodyguard plus the Cambridgeshire chief constable, Mr F. Drayton Porter, and by contrast on the other by the tall, elegant figure of Queen Margrethe of Denmark. The 60 policemen on duty had nothing more to do than keep the protestors at arms' length and stop the traffic for the snail-paced procession.

Dining at the Pink Geranium, Melbourn is warm, comfortable and cosy. In the partly-panelled dining room we decided on a bottle of Piersporter 1973 (£2.50), unwisely as it turned out because it was not sufficiently chilled to be at its best. It did not spoil the smooth, lightly-flavoured pate (50p) or the full smoky flavour of the trout (75p) and was in prime condition for the sole meuniere (£1.95) and the duckling with curacao sauce which followed. With brandy and Cointreau to round off the evening our bill amounted to £11.25. It is true to say it is thought locally to be expensive but it is possible to get a first-class meal, including a half bottle of wine, for something like £6 - very reasonable for such relaxing and homely surroundings.

Cambridgeshire votes to stay in, p1

1975 06 07
Danish queen visits landlady, p6

1975 06 09
A hoard of screaming women mobbed the man charged with raping seven girls in Cambridge as he was led handcuffed into the city magistrates' court today. A crowd of about 500 people gathered outside the Guildhall and when the car carrying the suspect pulled up at the rear entrance a section of the crowd surged towards him. The women shouted insults but were held at bay by police encircling the court

Cambridge Union Society's historic debating chamber, scene of heated exchanges between Britain's top politicians this century, was badly damaged by fire. The blaze spread through part of the floor of the chamber and went up through two floors of the Round Church Street premises. Crowds gathered in Park Street as a 100-foot turntable ladder was swung into place and three pumping appliances arrived on the scene. The main part of the building was not affected by the fire. Teams of undergraduates mounted guard on the building throughout the night 75 06 09

1975 06 11
The much-criticised second stage of Cambridge city council's central area traffic experiment has been abandoned and traffic flow systems introduced five weeks ago withdrawn. This means there is again two-way traffic in Regent Street, Parkside, Emmanuel Road and Short Street. Through traffic is still banned along parts of St Andrew's Street, Sidney Street & King's Parade. City police said many motorists were confused by the changes which it was improving impossible to enforce. Long traffic queues had built up at major junctions since the start of the experiment which brought traffic chaos to the city

The River Cam is not only so polluted as to be a bather's health hazard, but in recent years has had to be artificially aerated to keep fish alive, an Anglian Water Authority spokesman has confirmed. He spoke of children who suffered "diarrhoea and tummy upsets" after accidentally falling into the river in the Clayhithe area, and of skin divers who were ill after a sponsored Cam swim. He agreed that via Milton Road sewage works some 8 million gallons of effluent were going into the Cam daily. 75 06 11

Archive office crowded, p7

1975 06 12
Cambridge members of the Campaign for Real Ale will take part in a nation-wide investigation into overcharging in pubs. In Cambridge some pubs charge 26p for a pint of bitter that is sold for 20p in other public bars. In February the Courage brewery gave a breakdown of the 20p pint which showed the landlord to be taking 7p from each pint sold.

Pordage, p14
Sylvia Beamon, p17

1975 06 13
Wizards & witches, p17

1976 06 14

Ring road, p1

1976 06 16
'Knockout' bill

1975 06 17
Cambridge United have taken the first major step towards a merger with their Southern League neighbours, Cambridge City. United's chairman David Ruston said "It was decided that the best way to approach amalgamation was for us to make a proposition that if city agreed, we would in due course make an offer for their shares. Both sides are agreed that something like this is in the best interests of football in the city". Jack Ginn, City's former chairman said, "Nothing can save football in Cambridge other than amalgamation. I understand City have lost £15,000 in the past year and United more than £30,000. This cannot go on".

Lightning kills 12 cows, p8

1976 06 18
Cottenham fire engine, p4
Cambridgeshire starved by Peterborough, p12

1975 06 19
Part of the historic town centre at St Ives was in ruins today after fire swept through 200-year-old timbered buildings causing more than £100,000 worth of damage. At least one of the buildings collapsed and others may have to be pulled down. The fire started in a workshop in Crown Yard and spread rapidly to Crown Street. Firemen were hampered by falling debris as centuries old timber beams cracked and walls buckled in the intense heat

When the King of Tonga dropped in for lunch at The Leys School yesterday, it was the headmaster's wife, Mrs Jean Barker, who had to do the cooking. The King was more concerned with his son's progress who is in the middle of taking GCSE O-level examinations. The Kingly menu offered by Mrs Barker – "the first course in an eggy thing topped with fake caviar, followed by salmon and peach flan", she said

Farm land prices, p6

1975 06 20
Various local buildings are to receive Civic Trusts Heritage Year awards. At Thaxted the Hunt's almshouses, a row of 17th-century homes have been rehabilitated. The Trust comments: "Not only have these beautiful little houses been cleaned up – maintenance, paintwork and plastering – but rearranged internally so as to continue serving their ancient purpose". Ashwell qualifies for two commendations, the new infill scheme for elderly people's flats in Gardiner's Lane and the restoration of a miller's dilapidated cottage and building of an extension within the ruins of the old water mill, to form a private house

St Ives fire, p13

1975 06 23
Shoppers in Fitzroy Street, Cambridge, were astonished to hear the strains of a brass band drifting down to them apparently right out of the sky. But the band was real enough. Perched in the little bandstand on the top of Laurie & McConnal's store the player jogged memories back 40 years or more to the time when such entertainment was a regular event for Saturday shoppers. The revival was the idea of Kite Community Action. Eight members of a local jazz group agreed to revive the past and play again. Whether the Saturday morning continues is up to the players. The store would be very happy to have them play anytime

1975 06 25
Cambridge Science Park was officially opened by Sir Alan Hodgkin, President of the Royal Society and Fellow of Trinity College. The park came from an idea by Sir Neville Mott, who led a committee which first proposed the setting up of a Science Park in Cambridge to further scientific industrial development in the city. Trinity College has spent £650,000 to date on developing the centre. The site has four tenants so far.

One of St Neots best-known public houses, the Old Falcon Hotel, in the Market Square is up for sale and is expected to fetch at least £100,000. It is one of scores of properties which have been affected by the planning blight in the town centre during the past twelve years. One of the two proposed alternative road plans, later scrapped following pressure from townspeople, would have passed right through the rear of the hotel.

1975 06 26
The temptation to buy strawberries this weekend may be overwhelming, but buy without thought and you have a more than even chance of being taken for a ride. Prices vary from 42p to 40p per half-pound & only the astute shopped can be sure of getting quality and the right quantity. At a stall on Market Hill I selected a 25p box and asked for them to be weighed. They were below ½ lb and with a cheerful smile the assistant added two more strawberries – from another punnet!

Ombudsman, Cherry Hinton, p10
Hovercraft site, p13

1975 06 27
Sky-rocketing potato prices look like forcing many Mid-Anglian fish & chip shops into temporary closure. With new potatoes being quoted at upwards of £170 a ton owners are saying: “either we put up our prices and lose customers, or we shut for a while”. “None of us want to sell chips at 14p a portion”, said Mr Jack Holliday of the Quality Fish Shop in Mill Road. If he increased his price for a portion of chips from 8p to 12p or alternatively halved the size of the portion the public would cringe, he added.

Nude bathing is spoiling the prospect of fishing in a lake at West Town Park, Haverhill. Their antics are disturbing the 300 breeding fish. There were about six local people, men and women, swimming, snorkel diving and diving and the effect on the fish is the same as blasting a twelve-bore in a small room filled with people, complained one angler

1975 06 29
A glittering prize dangles within reach of Joe Bugner, of St Ives, tonight – the world heavyweight title. Bugner fights the legendary Muhammad Ali for the title – sport’s richest prize in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. The world will be Bugner’s oyster if he pulls it off, but win, or loose, he will have achieved a dream in fighting Ali for the title. His mother, Mrs Marget Bugner said:” I think Joe will win. He is very clever now, older, wiser and more mature”

July 1975 CEN

1975 07 01
Bugner may quit, p1

1975 07 02
Fifty patients were led to safety was fire raged through part of Fulbourn psychiatric hospital. The blaze began in the music room in the recreation block at Kent House, a unit established within the hospital 11 years ago as a residential and day centre dealing with psychiatric disorders. The house was empty, as the tenants had moved out that morning to a new home in Soham

1975 07 03

The Environment Minister, Mr Anthony Crosland has rejected a plan to build a supermarket on the Scotsdale Garden Centre site at Gt Shelford. He says that the development would be in the wrong place, at the wrong time and would result in the over-provision of large-scale shopping. If it was permitted in addition to the recently built Sainsbury's supermarket at Brooks Rd, Cambridge and the centre planned for Bar Hill it would overprovide shopping facilities in the "20-minute zone" car shopping journey area from Cambridge. In the longer term, however, population growth might justify further substantial additions to the food retailing outlets.

Only three of the 54 firms who have been given tenancies of the new shops in Lion Yard, Cambridge, are local, and there is considerable disquiet in some local quarters over this, said the secretary of Cambridge Chamber of Commerce. "A lot of the names are of big firms in London in the rag trade and jewellery. They can afford the high rents, but the smaller traders of Cambridge who would have expected to get the chance of a letting cannot", he said

1975 07 04
Joe Bugner, sporting a black eye and a slimmer waistline after his unsuccessful bid at the World Heavyweight Boxing Championship returned to his home town of St Ives to a tumultuous welcome from hundreds of townsfolk. The Mayor told the crowd: "We are perhaps a little disappointed that Joe did not bring back the coveted award this time"

St Michael's church, Longstanton, a part-thatched building dating back to the 13th century will be preserved for future generations. The church, which stands empty and has been the target of hooligans, is to be put under the care of the Redundant Churches Fund. It was declared redundant in November 1973 and was without heating or lighting. There are minor repairs to be carried out before the church will once again be opened to the public.

Beefeater, p10

1975 07 05
Dutch elm disease, p6

1975 07 08
Newmarket bypass opens, p7

1975 07 09
Dozens of traders in central Cambridge have mounted a campaign aimed at persuading the city council to drop its traffic control scheme, which prevents cars from going along parts of King's Parade, St Andrew's Street & Sidney Street. They are complaining about a big slump in business since the scheme started six months ago. Some say they have experienced a 50% drop. Shops are hit by the traffic ban during the day and restaurants, pubs & places of entertainment suffer at night. Tomorrow the council will be recommended to ask Whitehall to make the scheme permanent.

1975 07 09
Mid-Anglia's potato crisis is claiming its first commercial victims. With the potato shortage and rocketing prices, a number of fish & chip shops are considering closing down. One shop in Brampton shut up more than a week ago and others are wondering whether it is worth carrying on when they have to sell chips at 15p a portion. Bad weather at the start of the year delayed potato planting which meant old potatoes were running out before reasonably sized new ones could be harvested. Now drought is causing more problems

Pye buildings, p14

1975 07 10
Britain's first & only tracked hovercraft made its last journey – by road. The 21 ton machine, code number RTV31, was trundled at a maximum 25 mph the 40 miles from its hangar at Earith to the College of Technology, Cranfield. It will join other transport "has-beens", including the remaining TSR2 aircraft, that suffered the same fate – axed by the Government as an economy measure when still in its early prototype days. The site & buildings at Earith have now been sold to a firm who plan to use it as a plant and stores depot

1975 07 11
Motorists will soon have to pay up to 50% more to park in the centre of Cambridge. Meter parking will cost up to 15p an hour and parking at Lion Yard and Park Street multi-deck parks and on the New Square surface park will cost up to 10p an hour, and increase of 3p.

Newmarket bypass, p18

1975 07 12
Newmarket shoppers were amazed to find they could cross High Street without taking their life in their hands yesterday. Minutes earlier the £9.5 million 15-mile Newmarket bypass had been officially and unceremoniously opened by the last of the Wimpey men who have been working on it for two years. The long-awaited bypass immediately took 75% of the traffic out of the town. The manager of Laings sad the bypass would help shopkeepers as people won't be so scared to come out and shop on both sides of the road. It would encourage holiday traffic to stop and shop.

1975 07 14
Newmarket bypass, p7
Coaches, p8

1975 07 15
Linseed plants, p5

1975 07 16
St Ives based Sinclair Radionics Ltd, one of Europe's biggest manufacturers of packet calculators has introduced a new model. The Scientific Programmable Calculator is aimed at scientists, students, engineers and statisticians. Initially it will be available only by mail order

Stress on road, p1
Newmarket caravan factory, p15
Balsham sign, p15

1975 07 17
Cambridge planners have decided to refuse permission until January 1978 for all major developments in the city – because of the serious overloading at the sewerage works. But because of the general economic situation, the cut-back in private building programmes and the acute shortage of development land anyway the decision is unlikely to have serious effects on the city. A similar ban on development has been operated for nearly a year in the "necklace villages" surrounding Cambridge.

1975 07 17
Advert: An open letter to the citizens of Cambridge. We, the traders in the centre of Cambridge, have served you for many years. Thanks to ill-considered action by our elected representatives in stopping the free and unrestricted flow of traffic through the city centre we find that our livelihood is being threatened. It is a fact that without a city centre which is alive and throbbing the city will die. By taking trade away from the centre the city fathers have betrayed the trust we have placed in them. Let us make 1975 Cambridge Conservation Year and protest against the creeping paralysis which is being forced upon us by these out-of-date idiots – Cambridge City Centre Action Group.

Racecourse sabotage, p1
Anne at East show, p8

1975 07 18
A 53-year-old vicar made a terrifying 200 feet climb on the outside of his church steeple to publicise the church's restoration appeal. The Rev. Arthur Rodwell, vicar of Saffron Walden, shinned up steeplejacks ladders to help place the renovated weathercock on top of Saffron Walden parish church spire. He said afterwards: "I feel fine. I made a trial run up on Tuesday and I'm getting expert now"

1975 07 18
How much are stores paying to rent a unit in the Lion Yard Development? Last October companies were being asked to stump up between £15-17,000 a year. In the Lion Yard itself the asking price was between £7-10,000 per unit. Smaller units described as boutique types were on offer between £3 & £5,000. Wealthy national companies can afford to speculate and rent properties for a few years, but for small local traders the rents have proved too expensive so far. Of 54 units rented out only two may be occupied by firms based in Cambridge – Campkins (cameras) & Waits (menswear)

Caldecote 'tin town', p9
Royston Bull Hotel, p20

1975 07 19
Sports Hall, p10

1975 07 21
News photographer Tony Jedrej took a souvenir picture of his wallet by accident on Friday – then drove away from Girton and never saw it again. Part of his car was included in pictures taken near the Old Crown public house and it was not until later, when the developed the film, that he saw he had left his wallet on the boot. Mr Jedrej believes the wallet, containing £1, fell off when he drove away from Girton, though his long search of the area afterwards was fruitless

Caravan owners, p5

1975 07 22
Kings School 3Rs, p9

1975 07 23
The Queen Mother opened the new £½-million extension of the Fitzwilliam Museum. The Royal visitor, dressed in a pale-blue turquoise coloured outfit, paused several times to smile and wave to the crowd before being introduced to Museum staff by Prof Jaffe. She had a good look at the £2½ million collection of Cambridge plate on display and after tea she was driven to a waiting helicopter on the playing fields of St John's College

1975 07 23
Work is due to start on the diversion of the A10 and the construction of a new bridge at Stretham Ferry. It will involve diverting the road to the west. A new bridge will be built where the river joins Chear Lode. The Department of the Environment says the present bridge is deteriorating and the bend on the approach restricts visibility and is a hazard to traffic. In the past a number of accidents have occurred at the bridge.

1975 07 23
Cambridge city council has accepted an invitation from the County Council to build an £8,500 bus-rail interchange improvement outside Cambridge railway station. The scheme includes bus waiting bays and shelters.

Linton zoo, p6

1975 07 24
First bus lane, p13

1975 07 25
A protective walkway, quantities of scaffolding and expanses of wire netting surround the Tudor buildings that huddle around the corner of Bridge Street & Round Church Street, Cambridge. Behind the façade a vast mechanical screw digs into what was once Jordan's Yard, overlooked by the empty shell and sagging roofs of the rear of the buildings. Eleven years after it was suggested that something ought to be done to rehabilitate the delaying 16th-century houses, work is finally underway to preserve them as the front of a new office and shopping development

Chauffeurpunt, p17

1975 07 26
Cambridge Reading project, p6

1975 07 28
Folk Festival, p5
Jocket lads strike, p10

1975 07 29
General Gowon deposed, p1
Birdbrook fire, p8

1975 07 31
Church Army hostel, p6

August 1975 CEN

1975 08 01
It was a wet welcome that Cambridge was offering any tourist foolhardy enough to punt past Sheep's Green bathing place, Newnham. Young swimmers aged about 15 kept up a barrage of dive-bombing from springboards at the bathing place and from the footbridge nearby. A custodian said: "It's a hazard that people who come punting have to put up with. There's no way I can keep an eye on the whole lot: on a busy day there's probably 3,000 people here. Only a few every complain, I think most people enjoy being splashed"

1975 08 01
At Ferry Boat inn at Holywell we decided on avocado vinaigrette, & prawns and scallops in batter with tartare sauce at 75p and 85p. From a wide choice we chose coq au vin, the cheapest meat course at £1.95 and a steak au poivre at £2.30. Vegetables cost an extra 25p a portion and we shared the sauté potatoes, garden peas and mushrooms. A bottle of Gevrey Chambertin we thought was a little pricey at £3.04. The sweet trolley bore a choice of deserts, all priced at 50p. We ended with coffee and a brandy and cointreau which brought the bill to a total of £11.50

Prince of Wales, p11 & p12

1975 08 02
Some of the most sought after scenery in Cambridge is being devastated as a result of the fight against Dutch elm disease. Tourists visiting the backs of the colleges will find tree felling in full swing. The disease has spread to trees near Trinity's main college buildings and systematic felling began there in March. The college had carried out an intensive programme of tree injection but despite this the disease is spreading & it has decided to fell all the elm trees and replace them with limes.

1975 08 04
Hundreds of people crowded around the entrance to the Senate House to watch Prince Charles arrive in academic cap & gown to collect his MA Degree. They waited patiently for 20 minutes when he emerged again after the ceremony. But the formal schedule of his procession was broken when Mrs Phyllis Hepburn, a friend from his student days, hailed him from the crowd. The Prince turned and stopped to chat with her. She said he used to come to her home in Millington Road to play in a string quartet.

UFOs, p6

1975 08 05
President Ford flew into USAF Mildenhall for a 40-minute refuelling stop accompanied by the Secretary of State, Dr Henry Kissinger. He was greeted by thousands of servicemen with their families. Massive security was in operation, security men with pistols bulging under smart suits checked photographer's equipment and armed soldiers patrolled the entire base.

Willingham school, p7

1975 08 06
British Rail decided to blow up a redundant pumping station by the railway line near Teversham. But the building was more solid than expected: seven pounds of explosive was not enough. The pumping station, which stood over a 75 foot well, used to supply all the water for the steam engines in the Cambridge area. The site will now be bulldozed and earthed over.

1975 08 06
Cambridge' new £1 million plus central library being built in the Lion Yard, is due to open at the end of September – three months late. The task of transferring more than 100,000 books and reorganising the library's various departments is likely to take up to a fortnight. But Librarian Andrew Armour is hoping to keep the closure of the main library down to three days to minimise inconvenience.

St John the Baptist community, p6

1975 08 08
The Government has accepted the County Council's advice that the best route through Cambridgeshire for a new highway linking the A1 and M1 motorways would be to follow the A604 from Huntingdon. The county says this route would cost only £9m to build, against £15m for the other three alternatives and would prove much less destructive of property. It could be completed in pieces through the construction of village bypasses.

1975 08 08
A hairdresser and amateur inventor of Saffron Walden has been trying to interest the motor industry in his pointed safety car. The reinforced pointed bonnet and boot act as deflectors in a crash and lessen impact. He is using his smallest car, a Fiat 500 for the tests

Knock-out, p10

1975 08 09
Cambridge's top businessmen are swapping their bowlers for crash helmets and joining the motor bike brigade. Mr Andy Lee, who has been in the trade for 16 years said: "It's my best year ever". His customers include doctors, housewives and businessmen. They are just the latest recruits to a fast growing army who are finding that motor cycles can be more fun than four wheels

1975 08 11
Tourists and passers-by took little interest as two men groped their way up the south pinnacle of King's college chapel. They were steeplejacks from a London firm engaged by the college to remove a lavatory seat which has crowned the chapel since it mysteriously appeared on the pinnacle three weeks ago. It all looked easy as one man finally stood at the top waving the offending object high over his head.

Andrew Kendon crops, p5

1975 08 12
Knockout, p3
Robinson first head, p8
A1-M1 link, p9

1975 08 13
It was a disappointed Cambridge team that filed out of Stockport swimming pool last night having come sixth in its international round of "It's a Knockout". After the initial dejection at its defeat, the Cambridge team picked up, swapping t-shirts and track suits with other contestants. Back at their hotel they were met by the city's Mayor, Coun. Bob May. The biggest flop of the contest must have been the number of supporters who went to watch them. Only 16 people went up for the day trip and another 18 made an overnight stop. Angela Maxted said: "It's been worth it. Every minute has been worth it"

1975 08 14
Cambridge colleges are to be approached by the Arts Theatre trust in its bid for survival after running into the red to the tune of £18,000, its biggest ever loss. St John's College has granted a subsidy of £3,000 a year after hearing of the theatre's plight. The financial situation could deteriorate further due to the loss of a £2,500 grant from South Cambs. District Council and the failure to gain support from East Cambs. District Council.

1975 08 14
After 56 years trading the International Stores at St Neots is being closed down. The manager, James Pelley, said: "We have been one of the victims of the St Neots planning blight. We have been completely frustrated by the planners". The International took over in St Neots in 1919 from a private grocer, Paynes.

1975 08 15
First Heidelberg trip, p13 # c.45.7

1975 08 18
Fears are growing that the interchange between the Northern By-pass and Horningsea Road at Fen Ditton will bring serious traffic problems to the area. The Environment Secretary accepts that traffic would increase by 50% but considered the benefits to other roads in Cambridge far outweighed the disadvantages which the village might suffer.

1975 08 18
Milton children cycling or walking to Impington Village College will have to negotiate heavy traffic on the new by-pass for the village before they can reach their school. This follows the decision by the Environment Secretary not to build a special bridge or underpass where the bypass will cross Butt Lane. He feels that with improved visibility there would be less danger than at present. Vice Chairman of the Parish Council said the council had argued strongly in favour of such a crossing & it was a 'sad decision'

1975 08 19
Villagers at Reach have waited a long time for a pint in their own local but now they have the chance at last in The Dyke's End which opened last week. It is seven years since the only other pub, The White Horse, was closed. The 'King of Reach', Mr Len Warren said: "This is utopia for Reach. This is what we have wanted since the last one closed".

Pig farm, p3

1975 08 20
The controversial plan for a multi-million pound nuclear power station at Molesworth has been dropped. The Central Electricity Generating Board say the availability of water in the area would restrict generating capacity. Economic considerations and problems arising from the foundation conditions also helped them reach their conclusion.

1975 08 21
The finance director of the Pye Group, Cambridge's largest employer, is a worried man. Not that the group is going to the wall or even likely to run into the red in the current year – but the fact is that the group's profits are going to be less than 1974. Already this year it has cut out 2,000 of its 21,000 UK jobs and is making expensive efforts to sell goods. The problem is that the recession in Britain and Western Europe shows no signs of ending.

1975 08 22
The Cambridge Sports Hall, opened on July 1st, is already beginning to attract enthusiastic support. Trampolining and weight training have proved particularly popular with families who have also taken advantage of the squash courts. Volley ball and handball have done particularly well through the participation of Language School students.

1975 08 22
Even at 93 years of age farmer George Graves is working as hard as anyone in the Saffron Walden area to gather in the harvest. The family use a 70-year-old reaper to collect in the crop so that the straw can be used for thatching roofs. Next week they will thresh the wheat using a threshing drum bought during the First World War: "We don't need to buy new equipment to do the job properly because the old is just as good", he said.

1975 08 22
Willingham is a happy village. Mr Frank Rule, an owner of Berry Croft stores, attributes this to there being a good mix of long-established residents and go-ahead newcomers who are genuinely interested in what goes on. Next month the new primary school will be opened succeeding one built by the parish about 1856. Its future is undecided. Some residents think it should become a village hall, there is none at present.

1975 08 22
Rampton consists of only 350 people but it is singularly active. The Rector, J.D. Thomas, said "Rampton people are warm in their welcome (he is in his first year there), very friendly and lively, with an enjoyable sense of humour. We have a churchwarden in his eighties, Walter Cundell, who opens the church every morning about 7.30 and closes it every night."

1975 08 26
A visit to the lavatory by a railwayman has been caught up in a web of red tape. Mr Clarence Page who mans the signal box West River Crossing, Lt Thetford, wanted a proper flush lavatory, after getting through three of the chemical type in the last seven years. He got permission and a plumber came down and fitted it at a cost of £25. However when the bill reached British Rail headquarters they were not pleased. The flush lavatory was ripped out and another chemical one put in. He reckons the exercise has cost as much as £200. The Union representative says: "We want a flush lavatory. We want to be classified as human beings"

1975 08 27
With the school term a week or so away parents have been forced to dig deeper than ever to kit out their children in the approved uniform. At the Co-op prices of a girl's school skirt range from £3.15 to £4.25, white blouses cost from £3 and sweaters from £3.50. Boys trousers start at £4.25, shirts from £2.45 and a blazer from £7.75 to £8.30. A tie is 65p and shoes upwards of £5 a pair

1975 08 28

Harston pub, p14

1975 08 29
Isleham cricket, p11

September 1975 CEN

1975 09 01
Stallholders at the Marcade, East Road, Cambridge, were today counting the cost of a blaze which gutted the indoor market on Saturday night, destroying more than £100,000 worth of stock. The fire was first spotted at about 11.45pm and within half an hour the market was a raging inferno as clothes, antiques, records and household goods went up in flames and asphalt and glass sections of the roof began to cave in. The Marcade was opened two and a half years ago and many of the stallholders were just beginning to build up a profitable livelihood.

Isleham cricket, p7

1975 09 02
The rocketing cost of potatoes is having a drastic effect on school meals. In Cambridgeshire more than 66,000 school children can expect fewer potatoes in their weekly meals. Instead the County Council is trying to offset the rising bill by using more bread rolls, rice, spaghetti, suet, Yorkshire puddings and dehydrated potatoes. About 60% of schoolchildren have school meals, with parents paying 15p towards the actual cost of 30p a meal.

Kite redevelopment, p3
Country Centre, pxiii

1975 09 03
Frank & Babs Munns, well-known to numerous city centre newspaper buyers, have retired from their Market Passage newsagents. They have been in the business for 45 years. His family started in Newnham, one of only two wholesalers in Cambridge of Sunday newspapers. They started their first business in Castle Street and moved to Market Passage 14 years ago. Over the years there has been a big increase in the number of continental magazines people want to buy. Italians from as far afield as Bedford come to their shop for periodicals in their own language

1975 09 03
Britain's most popular barmaid stooped the traffic in Mildenhall High Street when she opened a new grocery shop. Hundreds of housewives spilled out into the road while waiting to catch a glimpse of Bet Lynch, the buxom blonde from behind the bar of the Rovers Return in 'Coronation Street'. Bet – Miss Julie Goodyear – spent almost two hours signing over 1,000 autographs in the new Spar supermarket shop before retiring to a back room to crack a giant bottle of champagne with the management.

1975 09 04
Police and firemen were today probing a mystery blaze at Longsands School, St Neots. Flames swept through the mathematics block only hours after the first day of the new term had ended. Seven classrooms were destroyed with thousands of pounds worth of books & equipment. Longsands is one of the largest comprehensive schools in the country with 2,000 pupils. The headmaster said: "For a small school the fire would be pretty disastrous but for a school of this size with 100 teaching spaces the damaged classrooms are a small percentage. It's inconvenient rather than difficult and the pupils' education will not be affected".

Huntington & Godmanchester, p7

1975 09 05

Linseed, p12

1975 09 06
Farms go metric, p5
Retiring milkman, p6

19765 09 08
Isleham Fenwomen, p11

1975 09 09
The unveiling of a sculptured horse mural in Newmarket's new £1.1 million Rookery shopping precinct developed into a comedy of errors. What opened with a rousing drum roll and the arrival of the band of the Royal Regiment of Fusiliers, ended with a barely audible whisper when the public address system failed. Happily councillor John Barker happened to have a loud hailer in is car. The developers' competition to find the best explanation for the clock bearing the figures 13 instead of 12 lost its point when workmen painted the extra Roman numeral I out. It had to be replaced with the help of black sticky tape.

Labour priorities, p1
Isleham angry, p7

1975 09 10
St Ives market, p8

1975 09 11
What is claimed to be one of the largest haystacks seen in recent years in East Anglia is dominating a field at Offord Darcy. The stack over 100 yards long and 20 feet tall has been assembled by farmer Frank Eayrs and is evidence of the increased value to farmers of the formerly useless fibres. The stack is designated for conversion into animal fodder at the new straw processing plant at Tilbrook near Kimbolton. Up to this year it might have been burnt as unwanted corn refuse.

1975 09 11
Princess Anne is to put the royal seal of approval on one of Cambridge's most controversial schemes. She has agreed to open the multi-million pound Lion Yard redevelopment complex in December. More than four years have been spent in its construction. Expert critics are unhappy about the scale of the enterprise and its relationship to the previously intimate and recently pedestrianised shopping precinct in Petty Cury. There has also been adverse comment on the nature of the shopping development which, because of the high rents, has made it a virtually unattainable Shangri-La for local businesses.

Police recruitment, p11

1975 09 13
The Cambridge Talking News, a talking newspaper for the blind, elderly and infirm, took over a prototype high-speed cassette copier. The machine can make two copies of a cassette in minutes. The copies are then sent out to blind people all over the area. The administrator at the Blantyre Home for the Blind, Mrs T.M.C. Matthews, said the machine had been fitted with a bleep so that blind people could use it easily.

1975 09 15
Cambridge's 13th scout group officially opened its new headquarters in Romsey Town. In little more than a year they managed to raise the £6,000 needed and get the building constructed on the site of two old scout huts. Some 200 people watched Dr Winifred Nott, the sister of the original Nott brothers who helped establish the group before the First World War, cut the tape and unveil a plaque to mark the official opening.

1975 09 16
Social workers too soft, p5

1975 09 17
There is no reason why Cambridge's first mini roundabout should not become a permanent feature. The roundabout at the junction of Queen's Road with Northampton Street came into operation yesterday morning. It is hoped this will overcome the long tailback which has occurred in Queen's Road since the introduction of the city centre traffic scheme.

1975 09 17
Over 25 years of argument, several million pounds of ratepayers' money and three years of toil what will we get? The Lion Yard development. On the first floor is a modest entrance to a building that Cambridge has desperately needed for many years … the new library. It has three floors. The top will be used for housing the Cambridgeshire Collection. On the first floor is a children's' room where young readers can comfortably browse through their selection. The building bears about as much comparison with the old Wheeler Street library as Buckingham Palace does with the Black Hole of Calcutta

Trumpington housing, p11

1975 09 18
A life sized mythological figure in bronze, the work of British sculptor Mr Michael Ayrton will be erected on the Lion Yard site. The semi-abstract sculpture represents Tarlos, the legendary man of bronze who was given to Mynos, ruler of Crete to defend the island. The leader of the city council, Peter Wright said: "No doubt some will like it and some will not"

Pedal power, p4

1975 09 19
Dossers shelter, p13
Police inexpensive, p15

1975 09 20
The failure of many back garden vegetable plots this summer is believed to be the reason for the increasing number of thefts of produce from farms. The thieves are stealing not only produce which has been harvested. Some of them are going into the fields at night to pick it for themselves. Recent reports include potatoes dug up and stolen overnight and several rows of runner beans stripped bare. Far more people have been trying to cut their housekeeping bills by planting vegetables in their gardens, and many have brought deep freezers hoping to fill them with their own produce. But this year's long drought has resulted in many back garden crops failing completely.

1975 09 23
A coffin-stool – one of the stools on which coffins used to be rested during a funeral service has disappeared from Stapleford church. "They are much sought after as furnishings for people's houses these days", said the vicar, the Rev C.A. Barber. "We haven't any proof that it has been stolen – it might just have been borrowed", he said

Bar Hill criticism, p8

1975 09 24
Cambridge garage chiefs are divided on the petrol retailers' call for the Government to peg the price of a gallon. Some say it is essential to stop the "mad price war" – others say it simply wouldn't work. One of the smaller garages that has suffered badly since the price war started is the Short Street Service Station where sales had recently dropped by 35%. A random check on the price of a 4-star petrol per gallon in Cambridge garages showed Sainsburys 63p., Holland Motors 68p, Short Street Service Station & Ted Salisbury 73p

Rams exported, p5

1975 09 25
Nine heifers escaped from Midsummer Common, Cambridge, this morning and used the Four Lamps Roundabout as a refuge from rush-hour traffic. Police kept an eye on them until the city pindar, Mr Harry Merton, arrived to open a gate to the common. Motorists were then treated to the sight of several men in blue and a passing school crossing keeper waving their arms and moving the cattle, cowboy style. The cows' owner thought they had squeezed through the common's bicycle barriers

1975 09 26
The fire risk wards at Chesterton Hospital have been drawn directly to the attention of the Health Minister, Dr David Owen, by the city MP, Mr David Lane. He expressed concern over the Hospital's Harston and Hardwick wards where 36 elderly patients are housed in cramped conditions. Both wards are 130 years old and were condemned more than two years ago as fire risks, but because of lack of cash nothing has been done to replace them

1975 09 26
The secretary of the Newmarket Stablelads' TGWU branch, Mr Harry Foley, retires after a lifetime in the racing industry. In a few days' time he will be 82 – but the little man who has been a familiar figure in Newmarket for 50 years is still full of fighting spirit. In defiance of his age, he fought alongside the pickets in the three-month-long stablelads strike.

1975 09 26
Standards of service in Cambridge Libraries have fallen since their administration was taken over by the County Council last year, City Councillors claimed. They were reminded of the decision to allow the city's ancient records to be housed in the County Archivist's' Department at Shire Hall. Counc Warren said: "It would have been even more convenient for the records to have been placed in the new library in the Lion Yard as we had intended in the first place".

1975 09 27
Library service poorer, p6
Doctors lop Brinkley patients, p7

1975 09 29
Number 10 Downing Street, Cambridge, the new Norwich Union Building has been 'topped out'. It replaces the former building on the corner of St Andrew's Street. There were some protests about the loss of the old buildings but planning permission was eventually given after the Royal Fine Art Commission approved the designs.

Trees topple, p8
Cycyleways scheme, p7

1975 09 30
Royston cave, p9

October 1975 CEN

1975 10 01
Cambridge is desperately short of rented accommodation and within 48 hours, as students join those already searching in vain for somewhere to live, the situation is likely to deteriorate. Already landlords advertising property to let are embarrassed and often upset by the number of applicants who plead for a room. One landlord ran an advertisement in this newspaper and in three days received around 100 applications for the flat. A Sutton man advertised one to let at £65 a month and in three days received 60 replies.

Madingley Hall extensions, p5

1975 10 02
The builders of Huntingdon bypass are helping experts to unravel the mystery of a centuries-old massacre in the town. Part of the site of a Norman castle at Castle Hill is to be dug out. The Archaeological Field Officer, Miss Alison Taylor, began work on the site and almost immediately uncovered human remains. 'It is all very mysterious. The remains are placed very haphazardly, which seems to suggest some sort of massacre occurred hundreds of years ago", she said

1975 10 02
Hop on a bus in Doncaster and it will cost 4p to travel 3½ miles. In Cambridge a similar journey is priced at a staggering 17p. And if Eastern Counties get their way when they go before the Traffic Commissioners the cost will be 19p. Fares for a one-mile journey have risen from 6p in 1974 to 9p today.

Gydir Street baths, p4
Tuck twins athletes, p21
Granta extension, p20

1975 10 03
The Conservatives held the Trumpington Division seat in yesterday's County Council by-election. Now the victor, Mrs Jane Brookes, a Cambridge housewife, says that she is "ready for anything" the council has to offer her. She added: "I am interested in people and that is what counts"

1975 10 03
Four people who helped police to end the Cambridge Rapist's reign of terror and the detective who made the arrest share the £1,500 reward offered by the CEN and two businessmen. They each played a significant part in the arrest which led to the conviction of the rapist who jailed for life at Norwich Crown Court for the Cambridge rapes and other attacks on girls.

1975 10 03
The Alley Boutique is now open in new and spacious premises in the Lion Yard arcade. Mr Ian Burns said: "Customers are flocking in, but we have plenty of room for expansion and we hope to introduce a mezzanine floor. We were the first boutique in Cambridge, opening in Falcon Yard ten years ago. We get customers of 12 and up to 60 years of age, but most are young". The Boutique sells almost any clothing from a jumper to a fur coat.

1975 10 04
Rape recovery, p1

1975 10 7
Chesterton church clock, p1

1975 10 08
The wretched quality of this year's potato harvest was graphically demonstrated at Rampton parish church. The harvest festival vegetable display did not include a single spud – just one pack of Instant Mash. I hope the Almighty takes the hint – Christopher South

Lottery plan, p1
Magdalene Bridge, p9

1075 10 09

Helping teenagers find work, p9

1975 10 10
Complaints have been made about the growing number of large container type vehicles using Waterbeach and Horningsea as a means of bypassing congested Cambridge streets. But the county surveyor pointed out that the building of the Northern By-pass would do away with the problems now being caused in the narrow winding village streets.

Balsham Black Bull, p23

1975 10 11
Denver Sluice, one of the great monuments of fenland engineering and a vital control point in the flood threats of the past, could soon be something of a white elephant. Its fate hinges on an investigation being carried out into the level of silt build-up in the Great Ouse River basin which the sluice may have limited power to control. The river systems increasing use for fresh water supplies through Grafham Water, the Ely-Essex water transfer project and proposals to regulate groundwater levels in the chalkland had reduced river flows and opened the possibility of silt coming in from the Wash.

1975 10 14
When the new Cambridge Central Library opens in Lion Yard it will have some of the most up-to-date individual listening booths in the country in its gramophone record section. But the booths will remain unused for the time being – because the economy conscious County Council cannot afford the £2,000 needed to equip them with cassette tapes. The booths would have enabled music lovers to listen individually to various recordings of music so they could decide which ones to choose. They would keep down noise levels and prevent disturbance to other library uses.

1975 10 14
The final chapter in the history of the long-established Ely boat-building firm, Appleyard Lincoln, was played out when more than 1,700 items were put up for auction. They went into liquidation earlier this year after being hard hit by VAT and lack of orders. Among the lots on sale were three motor cruisers still under construction

Library listening booths, p4

1975 10 16
Never had the cherubs on top of the marble columns looked down on a scene of such noise and commotion. For years they have held sway over an atmosphere of dignified hush in the library in Wheeler Street, Cambridge. But all that changed when removal men dismantled bookcases and piled thousands of books into crates ready to go to the ultra-modern library in Lion Yard. As men stripped away its contents the room with its faded splendour and peeling yellow paint looked remarkably small. It was never easy to reach the top or bottom shelves of the tall bookcases. Anyone bold enough to crouch down and survey the low shelf inevitably collided with some other borrower standing behind.

Elms hit, 200 perish, p4
Isle vineyard, p7

1975 10 17
Cambridge desperately needs cheap accommodation for dossers, a Cambridge police commander claimed. This was preferable to the free accommodation once provided by Cambridge Night Shelter whose facilities, he felt, only served to aggravate the city's vagrancy problem that had grown in the past five years. "I have to ask whether life has not been made too easy for alcoholic dossers in Cambridge. Aren't we in fact encouraging them to become what they are by giving money and a place to stay when they need it?" he asked.

1975 10 28
Union honours Macmillan
Kingston street name, p7

1975 10 20
A hunt begins to find former women dentists living in the area. If they can be persuaded to come back into the profession they may save dental services form imminent collapse. Health chiefs fear that unless the women are found quickly, an already serious shortage of dentists could become critical

Jumbo containers, p3
Jack Warren MA, p9

1975 10 22
Hare coursing, which has about 300 followers in Mid-Anglia, seems almost certain to face extinction. A survey carried out by the League Against Cruel Sports indicates that public opinion is overwhelmingly against it. There are six clubs operating in the region but the pursuit is not particularly a pre-occupation of farmers and the majority of the followers come from outside the agricultural industry

Tarlos and Coleridge School band, p5

1975 10 23
South Cambs District Council could save at least £1,500 a year on fuel if it agrees to convert all its mini vans to run on gas instead of petrol. If they decide to go ahead it will be following the example of the County Council. Comparative costs per mile were 1.36p for petrol and 0.97p for gas. The cost of conversion for the 22 vans is about £5,350

Corn Exchange, p7
School dinners, p11

1975 10 24
Willingham mothers have dismissed as "rubbish" suggestions that they cause traffic jams by gossiping outside the village primary school. A Parish Councillor claimed they turned up at the school half-an-hour before the children were let out to have "a chinwag". One mother said traffic did get very bad at Thodays Close, but "it is because there are a lot of cars". Headteacher Mr Roy Goodwin said: "there is a lot of traffic for ten minutes, but within ten minutes the whole area is clear"

School of Pythagoras, p15
Henneky's, p27

1975 10 28
Fire swept through the dry reed thatch of Madingley's Three Horseshoes public house. As firemen ripped wire mesh out of thatch on the building's roof & smoke billowed across the main street, 20 people were kept busy moving tables, stocks of wine, ornaments, pictures, carpeting and personal belongings. By lunchtime the whole of the roof had been affected, most of it exposing the wooden rafters below.

Abbey sports closes, p1
Tony Wicken, p7

1975 10 29
When I told friends I was going to sleep in the Victorian cells at Huntingdon police station they decided I was mad. After an hour lying on a rock-hard mattress with a wood block as my only pillow I began to think they were right. There is no provision for women. "We just say this is the woman's cell because it is a bit cleaner, doesn't smell so much and is nearer the loo", the sergeant said. Then he led me across the courtyard and into the air-conditioned warmth of the new police station. Seven cells have been provided for men and six for women. Every one has its own built-in toilet, central heating and air conditioning. Some senior detectives feel that the new cells are a trifle too comfy. Within the next ten days the old dungeons are to be destroyed to make way for a car park

Permanent mini roundabout, p4

1975 10 30
Royston industry, p10

1975 10 31
Motorists will be allowed to park on Midsummer Common, Cambridge, during the two Saturdays and three days immediately before Christmas – at a cost of 40p a time. The aim is to provide hundreds more parking spaces to supplement the permanent car parks which always become full during the Christmas shopping rush period. But the Labour leader, Coun Peter Wright said the Chamber of Commerce, whose shopkeeper members would benefit from the Christmas shopping spree, had never offered to pay for making good the damaged grass

Narkway house, p22

November 1975 CEN

1975 11 01
Cambridge's £60,000 Hester Adrian Centre was described as an "outstanding achievement" by the Minster for the Disabled, Mr Alf Morris at its official opening. The Centre provides work facilities for both mentally and physically handicapped people. He paid tribute to the co-operation between Cambridge St Raphael Club, the Cambridgeshire Mental Welfare Association and the County Social Services Department. "It is a matter of deep concern to the Government that in the field of the handicapped, there is so much that still needs to be done to bring facilities up to the standard we accept as necessary", he said.

1975 11 03
A £50,000 re-investment programme that has begun at the Cadbury Schweppes factory at Histon will make it the biggest jam factory in Europe, increasing capacity for jam production by 40%. When the programme is complete the front part of the Histon factory site will be almost entirely devoted to the production of jellies and the back part to production of Chivers, Hartleys, Moorhouse and Rose's jams and marmalades. A total of 1,300 work at the factory, 1,000 of them full-time

1975 11 04
Cambridge City Council has set itself a house-building target of 400 a year. Completions for 1976 are expected to number 250 but the new target should be met for the next five or six years. Councillor Don Mackay said he was worried that building such numbers might lead to "little houses being dotted all over" – as they were at Haverhill. Coun Liz Gard was concerned about the shortage of sheltered accommodation for elderly people in some parts of the city.

Junior doctors strike, p1

1975 11 05
An early harvest and wide publicity has saved the day for the Landbeach Society's bid to re-thatch a 16th-century tithe barn in the village. Work has just started on the £4,000 project. If good straw and a team of thatchers had not turned up in time, a £1,500 Architectural Historical Heritage Year grant would have been withdrawn. But at the last moment Huntingdon thatcher Mr John Dodson turned up and offered to do the job and straw of the right quality became available in Lincolnshire.

1975 11 06
Bourn, p12

1975 11 07
There are three restaurants in Cambridgeshire that are worth a star – according to Mr Egon Ronay in his latest guide, just published. The Old Fire Engine House at Ely, the Pheasant Inn at Keyston and Swavesey's Hotel de la Poste are amongst the best eating places in England. At Swavesey patrons are assured of an "extensive, interesting and impeccably French menu and swift bustling service". The Pheasant produces intriguing sea-food dishes & at the Old Fire Engine local women who have had no real professional training cook to a consistently high standard

1975 11 07
A £½ -million win on the Pools has helped two brothers on the way to success, so the bar of their new restaurant at Histon will be decorated with photographs of big pools winners to remind them of their good fortune. The old Green Hill pub, which has been the least attractive feature of the area, has now been transformed into a tastefully decorated establishment which will cater for lovers of good food and drink. It has a number of whiskeys – sold at low prices, and motorists will appreciate the large car park at the rear

1975 11 10
Cambridgeshire County Council will tell Government ministers that it is not prepared to make Cambridge area ratepayers foot the bill for the development of Peterborough new town. They will ask the Government to pay the Peterborough bill itself – or the Council will refuse to provide its services in the rapidly-growing area. For months the hard-up County Council has been making threatening noises about the increasing drain in the ratepayers cash caused by providing services in Peterborough

1975 11 10
Clashes between football fans and Cambridge police lasted more than three hours on Saturday; 13 fans were arrested, nine of them were Northampton supporters. The first clash came about 2pm when the glazed door of the Dog and Pheasant public house on Newmarket Road was smashed as rival fans met on the way to the match. As police broke up the confrontation, United fans collected £2.50 to help pay for the damage to the pub door.

1975 11 11
A storm blew up today over a plan published by City council engineers to build a road across the famous Grantchester Meadows beauty spot. The plan was condemned by one of the city's leading environmentalists, Coun Colin Rosensteil as "idiotic". And he warned: "It will never be built because there will be such a gigantic public outcry"

1075 11 12
Whittlesford mill, p1

1975 11 13
The Duke of Edinburgh opened the new Patscentre at Melbourn which has built by PA Management Consultants Ltd. Amongst the things he saw were solar panels which were being used to heat water, and a bicycle powered by a special high-energy electric motor – both developments by a company of which the racing driver, Graham Hill, is a director.

1975 11 13
The turkey, once a rare delicacy for the ordinary dining table, now reigns supreme on the country's Christmas menu. This season there are forecasts that turkeys will cost 40% more than last year with the top weights selling at about 50p a lb. One of the men rearing turkeys locally is Mr David Rayner, who farms 1200 acres at Burgh Hall, Swaffham Bulbeck. He has been producing turkeys for 15 years on an otherwise arable enterprise and now averages 10,000 birds a year

1975 11 14
Part of a horse's skeleton, pottery from Saxon and Roman England and an old black dog (very much alive) have so far come to light in the dig being carried out behind the Queen's head public house in Huntingdon High Street. Archaeologists believe the dog must have wandered through the fence cordoning off the dig during the night and stumbled into their trench. Unhurt, but cold and hungry, he was rescued next morning

Cattle Market sale, p14

1975 11 15
Male chauvinist drivers in Cambridgeshire beware – for the police driver who pulls you in could well turn out to be a woman. Cambridgeshire Traffic Division has just successfully trained its first three female drivers. WPCs Jill Melville, Susan Ashwell and Penny Bailey have sailed through the very stringent advanced police test and will be working with senior traffic patrols. They are the first in the country to become traffic drivers in a totally integrated force. They can handle £5,000-worth of police Range Rover as professionally as any man.

1975 11 17
Saffron Walden sewage, p8

1975 11 18
An elm tree at Gt Shelford was felled because a black cat named Jemima was trapped at the top and neither the RSPCA, the police, nor the fire brigade could think of any other way to rescue her. The tree – which was diseased anyway – was cut down and Jemima leapt to safety as it fell and made straight for the house where she was reunited with her very relieved owners.

1975 11 20
It looks like plain sailing from now on for one of Cambridge's best known sights, the Viscountess Bury pleasure boat. It was confirmed that a new site for her mooring near the gas works had been approved by Cambridge city council. It means the 87-year-old boat will still be plying the Cam next season. Earlier it looked like it may have had to leave Cambridge as Banham Marine, the firm who own the boat, have to move to a new site at Upware

1975 11 20
The number of women seeking Cambridge University places has remained virtually unchanged despite the opening of three previously all-male colleges to girl applicants. At present, with three women's and three mixed colleges about 500 women a year are being admitted. By 1978 four more colleges will have become mixed, bringing the expected number to 650 women. Miss Sheila Edmonds, Vice-Principal of Newnham College said while some well-qualified candidates still do not secure a Cambridge place, this would not be true if the total admission were 650, instead of 500.

1975 11 20
An underground tunnel 296 feet long, discovered at Wandlebury estate on the Gog Magog hills is likely to become Britain's only specially adapted bat sanctuary. A planning application has been made for a small brick tower which will provide access both for men and the bats. The 18th-century tunnel is believed to be part of an early drainage system which ran from the large mansion which once stood inside the famous Wandlebury ring. It was discovered by the present warden, Mr W.A. Clark when searching for a later drain.

1975 11 20
The first cannabis resin distillery to be found in Cambridge was discovered when drugs squad detectives raided a house on the north side of the city. After a tip-off police surrounded a private house in a residential area. Inside they found various pieces of equipment along with drugs substances. They took away tubing and bottles which forensic scientists are examining. They believe distilled resin has been used to impregnate non-drug vegetable matter and foodstuffs for consumption by drug users. Police regard their find as important in a city where soft drug abuse is fairly widespread.

CSU procession, p1

1975 11 21
Work started this week to preserve the surviving timbers of Fulbourn windmill. It will be the start of a four-year plan of restoration aimed at reviving the 167-year-old mill to its former looks. But sadly the ancient structure will never grind wheat again as the estimate for complete restoration back to a working mill is nearly £30,000. However an enthusiastic band of volunteers hope to set up a windmill society to financially support the restoration. It is at present owned by Dr Leslie Woollaston who has offered it to the trust and is 'delighted' to see the work being carried out.

1975 11 22
Stop of the stops, p6
Arts Roof Garden closed, p7 # c.27.4

1975 11 25
A 1,000-signature protest petition is being sent to the Charity Commissioners by residents who are campaigning against the sale of the old primary school at Willingham - disused since pupils moved into a new primary school in September. Willingham Social Club wants to turn the school into a social centre because its present base – a small wooden hut on the opposite side of the road - is in poor condition, but the trustees claim that under existing trust rules they have no option but to sell

Charter exhibition, p5
Boathouse developments, p9
St Paul's School playground, p11

1975 11 26
One man and his hot-dog stand are at the centre of a furious row which threatens to erupt into court. Since early this year the hot-dog stall now opens all day on Mondays and Saturdays on the pavement outside Bradwell's Court, Cambridge. Local cafes claim it unfairly undercuts them. The manager of the Wimpy Bar said he was losing seven per cent of his takings. The owner of the Stroll-in said he was thinking of having a minimum charge. People were coming in with a hamburger and just buying a cup of tea or coffee.

1975 11 26
The trustees of the Hunts Almshouses at Thaxted were presented with a Civic Trust European Architectural Heritage Year award for restoration work on the buildings. Before the improvements were made there was no inside water supply and only two outside toilets for the nine dwellings and the local authority refused to allow the houses to be reoccupied when old people left or died because of their poor condition. Now the buildings can house only three elderly couples instead of the previous nine.

School places reprive, p5
Road link scrapped, p7

1975 11 27
Petty Cury building, p5

1975 11 28
Cambridge City Council has brought the Rumble-Tum Restaurant at Burleigh Street and two private houses at Fitzroy Street. All are in the centre of the area, known as the Kite, which the council proposes to redevelop comprehensively in the near future. The individual purchase prices are not being disclosed. The Burleigh Street and Fitzroy Street properties will show an estimate future profit for the council of £1.137 a year from rents.

Swimming instructor, p13
Campkins supplement, p9

1975 11 29
Few towns can boast a singing garage man with a genuine 'silver' tenor voice, but Newmarket has one in the burly shape of pump attendant, 64-year-old Mr Percy Bursford. Favoured petrol purchasers at the Rutland Hill Motor garage have the pain of forking out for fuel eased by his liquid tones. There is nothing he enjoys more than letting rip with a full-throated burst of light opera over the cash till. He has been singing since he joined St Mary's Church choir and became a boy soloist at Ely Cathedral and he once got as far as an audition at Covent Garden.

December 1975 CEN

1975 12 01
Jet-ski Santa, p3
Ski slopes, p5
Boy-Bishop, p8

1975 12 02
The Lion Yard lion is up, carrying in his proud frame many years of history as he looks down on the centre of the Cambridge new development's shopping centre. The city's acquisition of such an appropriate symbol is a combination of luck and circumstance. The lion is believed to be the original wood carving for a cast lion which stood over the old Red Lion brewery at Waterloo station. It was discovered at the Woburn Abbey antique centre four years ago. Since then it has been completely refurbished at the city engineer's workshops at Mill Road. Now it has been put up in its final home-the Lion Yard

First Jobcentre, p11

1975 12 03
Pimbo book, p9
Lion Yard opening supplement

1975 12 04
Princess Anne, making her first official visit to Cambridge, insisted on an impromptu chat with some of the thousands of sight-seers who thronged the city centre Lion Yard shopping centre. An estimated 10,000 people packed the Market Square and stood eight deep each side of Petty Cury as she walked into the new shopping centre. She stopped to talk to the delighted shop girls who were crowding their doorways and also to the eager shoppers who pressed forward to get a closer look at her. She explained: "I am not a complete stranger here because I have been shown around the university and city unofficially by two previous students who are both fans of the old city"

1975 12 04
Large crowds turned out to see Princess Anne wherever she went in Cambridge during her visit yesterday. Inevitably the criticisms that have been voiced about the architecture of the Lion Yard were referred to during the formal speeches. The city council's Labour leader, Coun Peter Wright, spoke of the 'dissension' which still existed over the complex. And Princess Anne, who declared herself a "VI – that means very independent" observer of the architectural scene, said she would report back on the project to two "former students" at Cambridge University when she returned to London.

1975 12 04

The seasonal popularity of mince pies is reflected in current promotions and special offers. A box of six Mr Kipling's mince pies costs 24p instead of the usual 31p. At Fine Fare six mince pies are costing 22p. At Tesco, Robertson's mincemeat is 43p for a 29-ounce jar, saving 3p.

Regent Street rebuilding, p8
Pig trough city, p18

1975 12 05
Arkesden Axe & Compasses, p25
Save Lodes, p26

1975 12 08
The official opening of the Cambridge Jobcentre was carried out by the Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge University, Miss Rosemary Murray. She said a site in the centre was desirable for any supermarket – and jobcentres had been called job supermarkets. They are a new thing to get away from the old dole queue and form-filling image of job seeking. 30 staff have been transferred to the new Jobcentre from the employment offices in Brooklands Avenue. Currently the city has 1,650 out of work and 370 jobs on offer

1975 12 09
Grantchester Meadows road, p5
La Garconne, p12

1975 12 11
Families in East Anglia now have to earn 31 per cent more than they did a year ago to keep pace with inflation. This is .5 per cent above the national average. The Regional Survey reports that an East Anglian family buying a three-bedroomed 'semi' on 70 per cent mortgage & running a 1100 cc car, now needs £4,511 a year to maintain its lifestyle. The current asking price for a three-bedroomed 'semi' in East Anglia is £9,700 (£1,100 less than the national price). Council rent for a similar house is £5.02 a week

1975 12 11
A state of emergency has been declared for hundreds of old people living in Cambridge. The County social services leader, Coun. Mrs Janet Jones, claims that they are in serious danger of grave illness, injury or even death because they cannot afford to use the electric heating provided in many city council old people's flats. Because of this they are either shivering in the old or buying oil heaters which they could easily overturn

Meldreth & Fordham conservation, p13

1975 12 12
Elderly Pampisford villagers have been spare a long trek to collect their pensions because a temporary post office now operates in the village hall. Their own post office closed when the postmistress, Mrs Brenda Beere, resigned because of her husband's ill health. On Tuesday afternoon Mr Philip Burns, who normally works at Sawston post office, sat at a wooden table, surrounded by Christmas decorations, and doled out pensions and mothers' allowances. He said he was not used to working in such colourful surroundings. "There is a play group here in the morning and they have decorated the place", he said.

Cash from tourists, p7
Ashwell church, p19
Lion Yard cartoon, p23

1975 12 13

Commuters may grumble non-stop about trains being late, but few could work up enough steam to sustain a systematic six-month daily time check on arrival times. But Saffron Walden commuter, Mr Roy Mager, has been checking the 7.30 daily run from Audley End to Liverpool Street and claims that 92 per cent of the time the train arrived in London late – overdue on average by 6½ minutes. But, to be fair, twice it was a minute early.

1975 12 16
Snowy as Father Christmas, p11

1975 12 17
The controversial proposals for building a major road across the Grantchester Meadows beauty spot just outside Cambridge have been abandoned for the time being by the city council following the surprise discovery of a legal document signed 43 years ago. The document, signed by the Borough Council, King's College and the Cambridge preservation Society, effectively bans the building of roads across the meadows by local councils anywhere between the city boundary and the south of Grantchester village. Legal experts are to examine the document to see if it is still valid. The document came to light after King's College authorities drew the council's attention to it. None of the council's legal department remembered it.

1975 12 18
Cambridge will be completed ringed with major by-passes by the 1980s under a plan being worked on by government road engineers. They are planning major improvements to the A11 between the junction of the Northern and Western by-passes at Six Mile Bottom and Stump Cross. The A11 is a narrow single carriageway and very heavily used at present, but the Government have been working away quietly and will soon be producing a scheme for making it into a dual carriageway and building a series of village by-passes, to become an eastern by-pass for Cambridge.

1975 12 19
A plea was made for British Rail to open a station at Cherry Hinton. The existing traffic problems would get even worse when more than 4,000 extra people went to the village with the new council development. Passenger trains could easily stop there. The idea had already been suggested informally by British Rail and was under consideration. Coun Taylor said a mother with children could pay £1 just to get to Cambridge and back by bus. Coun Rowley thought his was evidence of how the bus service had failed.

Kingston road name, p16
Pike & Eel transformed, p25

1975 12 20
Veteran village milkman Douglas Childerley remembers winters so cold that roads were too icy to walk upon. And he suspected that the winter of 1975/6 was going to be a harsh one, which is why Douglas, who's been delivering milk in Coton, Hardwick and Madingley for 50 years, decided the time has come to retire. He was born in the Plough public house, Coton, where his father doubled as publican and village milkman before him. As a boy he helped his father carry milk on a yoke with a can at each end. Later he had a bicycle with two three-gallon cans on the front and two more on the handlebars.

1975 12 20
Rampton football club must have one of the most unusual changing rooms in the country … a double-decker bus. It originally plied a Yorkshire route but was bought by Mr Ted Young, who operates a transport service from Rampton, and who has loaned the vehicle to the footballers while a proper pavilion is being built. 'The home team change upstairs, and the visitors downstairs' explained the club secretary, Mrs Margaret Smith.

1975 12 22

Charges should be made for treatment in hospitals, doctors should be freed from committee work and top-heavy administration should be pruned to bare essentials if the National Health Service is to be cured of its present malaise, the Cambridge surgeon, Prof. Roy Calne, says in a long letter to 'The Daily Telegraph'. He says the service is afflicted by what little money there is being spent on the organisation and administration of care and not on the improvement of conditions in the hospitals. Doctors and nurses are being taken away from patients to sit on committees and become involved in administration. Token payments from patients towards food and medicines whilst they were in hospital would help ease cash problems in the service.

1975 12 23
Daisy's Christmas, p6

1975 12 24
Wrecked Spitfire, Lode, p18

1975 12 27
Councillors are concerned about the future of the Coral industrial estate off Coldham's Lane, Cambridge, where moves are being made to turn some of the storage warehouses into cash-and-carry centres. They fear this could result in a lot of extra traffic. It is built on derelict land which was once the city's household refuse tip & has been growing rapidly over the past few years. They will consider an application from the Kingsbury Warehouses chain to change the use of a warehouse to retailing and warehousing. For years planners have been worried about the lack of definition for planning purposes of the word 'warehouse'. Various authorities interpret the meaning differently and this had led to confusion.

1975 12 29
Cambridge's ADC Theatre has managed to keep solvent in face of 'overwhelming' expense only by doing without a stage manager for a time. Three years' ago Cambridge University intervened after a warning from the Trustees that without substantial financial assistance the theatre would have to close. While audiences have increased by 50 per cent and more use is now being made of the theatre by student societies, cash is still a problem. However they are confident it will continue to provide the facilities needed for the practice of amateur drama in Cambridge.

1975 12 29
Mr Cyril Asplin of Needingworth does not have fairies at the bottom of his garden – he has a concert hall. It all started with what he calls a 'half-hearted' construction built primarily as a store for his two musical instruments – Hammond and Lowry organs. From then it just grew and now it can comfortably seat 250 elderly or disabled people. When they cannot come to him, Cyril goes to them. He began touring seriously six years ago and has given 1,400 recitals for charity.

1975 12 31
Living on a modern house on a St Ives estate just did not have enough character for Mr Peter Cracknell and his wife. So they have taken on the mammoth challenge of bring back to life a railway station at Bluntisham. Accommodation is not exactly tailor-made for a family at the moment. There is a booking hall, waiting room, a kitchen in a shed, a ticket office, three bedrooms, a yard and outbuildings. 'There aren't many houses with a platform at the bottom of the garden with a railway line as well. Most of our friends think we are crazy', he said.

Union Society, p9

1976 Cambridge Evening News

I have no scans

January 1976 CEN

1976 01 02
County council cash crisis, p9

1976 01 03
Hurricane force winds gave Mid-Anglia its worst night of storm damage for years. Wandlebury beauty spot was closed for the first time in memory after gale-force winds ripped up magnificent giant beech trees by their roots during the night, causing three fires as they crashed down on high-voltage power cables. The warden, Mr Bill Clark said: "It looks as though we shall have large gaps – maybe for years – and this will make the park even more vulnerable if we have more gales."

1976 01 03
A huge clearing up operation was organised by emergency services as the hurricane winds died down. The trail of wreckage included tiles ripped off hundreds of homes, fences blown down, flattened greenhouses and television masts torn off chimneys. At Milton an ancient elm tree which only months ago was declared safe by tree experts was partly blown down. At Histon the side of a house was blown out on a new estate and some villages between Harston and Bassingbourn were still blacked out today after the hurricane blew down power cables.

1976 01 03
Almost all the stock of top class boats being built by St Neots Rowing Club were lost when the wall of the boathouse collapsed during the recent storm. They included a brand new boat that was to have been used by the elite four who had been invited to take part in Olympic trials at Henley. Also lost were some old clinker sculls and clinker fours, now virtually irreplaceable. There was also widespread damage in the area. At Alconbury the police office roof was damaged and council workmen were kept busy during the night clearing fallen trees on most major roads, including the dual carriageway A.1 north-bound road at Southoe

1976 01 05
About 700 homes in mid-Anglia were without electricity today – more than 48 hours after the gales. The areas hit by major faults included Saffron Walden, Ickleton, Burwell, Littleport, Haddenham, Gamlingay and Melbourn. Up until yesterday afternoon between 1,500 and 2,000 homes had been without power. The Fire Brigade dealt with 150 emergency calls and had all their appliances working to make wind-damaged property safe. Thirty caravans were blown over at Caravan International's Newmarket site.

1976 01 05
The St Ives boxer, Joe Bugner, former British, European and Commonwealth heavyweight champion, has retired from boxing at the age of 26. The 16-stone boxer is rated number four among the world's heavyweights. Bugner, who held his own with the best, began his eight-year career with a three-round knock-out defeat and ended it with a 15-round fight for the world title with Muhammad Ali. He said today: "Boxing was a sport which I never liked, but which I learned to love. The love died after the Ali fight".

1976 01 06
Grantchester murder hunt, p1
Bar Hill store closes, p11

1976 01 07

One of England's most successful ever horse trainers, Noel Murless, is to retire at the end of the flat-racing season in November. From his stables at Warren Place, Newmarket, he said "I am 65 years of age and have been actively engaged in racing for 50 years and it's time I got out of the way." On retirement he will hand over his yard and the majority of the 50 horses currently in training to his son-in-law, Mr Henry Cecil, and his daughter, Julie, who at present train at Marriott stables. Mr Murless became champion trainer for the first time in 1948.

1976 01 08
Newmarket traders are preparing to fight an application to build a £500,000 supermarket in the town. They feel the plan could mean the closure of some of the town's food stores. Whittome Properties Ltd has applied to build a 14,000 sq. ft., two-storey food and merchandise store for the John Lewis Partnership on the site of the Rutland Hill service station. There would be parking for 187 cars and a new access to Rous Road.

Wilburton Manor School fire, p4
Willingham social club, p11

1976 01 09
There was a double celebration at Priory Infants School, Cambridge – it marked both the 25th anniversary of the school's opening and Miss Gwendolen Meadows' 25 years as headmistress. The Mayor and Chairman of Governors were amongst the 200 guests who attended a reception. There were two teachers from Miss Meadows' own school days as well as somebody who attended the school as a pupil when it first opened its doors in 1951.

1976 01 09
One of Huntingdon's best-known filling stations is to close after more than 14 years because of plummeting sales. The Afton service station has been a victim of Huntingdon by-pass. It has taken away most of the passing trade and is cut off from its local customers. The final blow came when the access road passing the filling station was changed to one-way traffic into the town. Local customers could not get to the Afton unless they chanced a hazardous U-turn across the traffic flow

Bus subsidies, p1
Radio petition, p9
Quiet after storm, p15

1976 01 12
Two students had a dramatic escape from death when they fought their way through dense smoke after a fire broke out at historic Magdalene College, Cambridge. An electrical fault triggered off the blaze which caused widespread damage to an isolated three-storey building and at one stage threatened to endanger the famous Pepys library. It was the worst fire disaster at a Cambridge college for many years. The last severe University fire was at the Department of Biochemistry when there was £100,000-worth of damage

1976 01 14
Student dress, p9

1976 01 15
Eight women working on an horticultural farm near Wisbech have come out strongly against the new sex discrimination and equal pay laws. They want to be freed from the legislation that would give them the same pay as the menfolk on the farm because they do not drive tractors or lift heavy boxes. They have told the Agricultural Wages Committee that as they are not willing to do this sort of heavy work, they would be satisfied with being paid 75% of the wages earned by the men.

1976 01 16

A male stripper, who recently won national fame in a court case with a blazing Viking helmet, is to perform at one of a series of variety entertainments at Haverhill Town Hall. The shows are being organised by two men who have formed an agency to "bring life to a dead town". They have already staged a highly-successful stag night with female strippers.

1976 01 16
Trees along Cambridge's world-famous Backs felled because of the spread of Dutch elm disease have now been replaced. More than a dozen lime tree have been planted at Trinity College Pieces to replace 20 elms recently felled. Trinity college bursar said, "Not all of the elms were diseased but they were felled because, once the disease starts in a row it is difficult to contain unless all are removed". The disease was beginning to appear in a number of other elms, although at the moment those in the Fellows' Garden were unaffected.

Plane wreckage, p7

1976 01 19
The Free Press public house, Prospect Row, Cambridge, is being sold back to Greene King by the City Council. The tiny Kite-area pub, council-owned since the 1960s when it was bought as part of a slum clearance area was due to be demolished to make way for a road. That scheme was dropped in 1969 and now they are negotiating its sale back to the brewery, which continued to lease the pub after the council bought it.

1976 01 21
The Cambridge pressure group Kite Community Action are making a half-hour television film to be screened as part of the Open Door series and will put the case against the proposed re-development of the Kite as a regional shopping centre. They are trying to show something about the people who live there. The film will show the kind of neighbourhood which is likely to be sacrificed in the interests of motorised shopping.

1976 01 20
School dress, p6-7

1976 02 21
Kite tv film, p5

1976 01 22
Potatoes at 11p to 12p per pound are becoming a once or twice a week luxury in many houses. The current wholesale price for 56lb of potatoes is £4.80 and the price will go up at the end of the week. This time last year the price was 85p.

1976 01 22
As the Alcoholism Treatment Unit at Fulbourn reaches its first birthday Britain's chronic rate of alcoholism will reach a new peak. Nine years ago researchers found alcoholism was "a serious problem in Cambridgeshire". Their conservative estimates then of 514 alcoholics in the county is now inaccurate. The figure is more likely to be about 1,000. A National report shows an increase from 80,000 to 150,000 women showing signs of alcoholism

1976 01 22
Local authority planning has failed to stop the village of Bourn being "deflowered and desecrated" Coun Peter King said. Ten years ago it was looked on as one of the most beautiful villages, since then something had happened to desecrate it. In the centre on a beautiful square of open space, 21 houses were being built. "Yet if any village people want a little development they are turned down", he said

1976 01 24

The fire risk and crumbling condition of the building at the Cambridge Cyrenian's community short stay hostel for down-and-outs in East Road has added new urgency to their eight-year search for new premises. The chairman said: The building itself, the bricks and wood, are falling to pieces. You could pour £5,000 into it and achieve nothing. The dozen men living in the hostel all sleep downstairs because of the difficulty of evacuating in an emergency

1976 01 26
Chaos & slide to work, p1, p8
Willingham school, p4

1976 01 27
The experimental ban on heavy lorries using the narrow roads of picturesque Grantchester came into forced yesterday. Since 1972 villagers have been campaigning for a ban on heavy lorries using their twisting roads as a short cut to the A10 London road. Prof. E. N. Willmer, the historian who led the campaign said he was "well satisfied".

Extra council spending, p1
Rents, p11

1976 01 29
Little Shelford has said "no" to further housing estates being built in the village because, say the parish council, probably three-quarters of the residents of the existing Courtyards estate seem not yet to have fully integrated into the village community. The council feels Little Shelford should be allowed to keep its own identity and not be merged with other villages or be over-developed.

Hemiongford Abbots school, p11

1976 01 30
Inadequate heating forced a junior school headmaster to move 30 children out of their brand-new classrooms and back to the Victorian school building nearby. For four days the exodus from the new to the old has been a daily event at great Hormead Junior School, near Buntingford, because in cold spells children and teachers find it impossible to work in the new extension. The problem was partially solved when four new radiators were installed.

1976 01 31
Cambridge City Council may soon start building low price houses and sell them without profit to young couples on the council house waiting list. They are also looking into the possibility of encouraging self-build groups with the help of low-price land supplied by the council. The chairman of the Cambridge Labour Party group said: We want to prevent large profits being made from private development and give every one who wants to buy their home the chance of getting one". The council would not be changing its policy of not selling existing council houses to tenants.

1976 01 31
The old signal box on the Cambridge to St Ives railway line at Oakington was loaded on to a lorry and taken to the Bressingham Steam Museum near Diss. The box, one of the few remaining Great Eastern types dating back to the early 1900s, was bought several years ago by railway enthusiast Mr Mike Sharman, who lives at Foxton. However he ran into snags when he wanted to move the box to his home so he presented it to the museum.

February 1976 CEN

1976 02 02

More than 100 people were turned away from Holy Trinity church when Cliff Richard, pop star and evangelist, visited. About 700 people had already been admitted. Some of them had queued in freezing conditions to be sure of a place at the service. Earlier in the afternoon the singer had appeared in an evangelistic concert with the Brightwinter Group at Lady Mitchell Hall. Some 500 people paid £1 a head and the profit will go to a Christian charity.

1976 02 02
Because of its low unemployment figure Cambridge is a labour-importing city. Up to £3,000 worth of government grants could be given to a man and his family in an area of high unemployment to persuade them to live and work here. The new Jobcentre in Guildhall Place has aptly been described as a job supermarket. An inviting window display tempts people into the well-carpeted warmth. The centre employs 26 people who find their work far more enjoyable now than ever they did in the days of the Labour Exchange

Cyrenians take hostel, p8
Petrol prices, p9

1976 02 05
The Government has no intention of turning Cambridge into a museum city, said the Environment Secretary. He told MPs that fears that the Government-backed policy of moderate restraint would mean stagnation were unjustified. It was no secret that there had been differences of opinion between the city and county councils over the proper planning policies to be pursued in the region. Growth would continue but they could not countenance unlimited boon growth with the considerable impact that would have on the Cambridge environment.

1976 02 05
Details of a mass fight between a group of Sawston “smoothies” and a rival group called “greasers”, were given to Cambridge magistrates. To some people “greasers” conjured up images of Marlon Brando types with leather jackets, many were, in fact, perfectly respectable. The term refers to anybody who rides a motor cycle, whether he be the local curate or the local villain.

1976 02 07
Save Shire Hall library, p7

1976 02 10
Chips are one of those rare commodities that do not have to be sold by weight, quality or recommended retail price. So what do you get in 1976 for your six pen’orth. Well an old 6d won’t even buy you a squirt of tomato ketchup in some shops. There is a growing tendency to sell ketchup and tartare sauce in sachets at 3p each. Nowhere in Cambridge could I find chips selling for less than 12p a bag. Four shops had a 15p. minimum price. The most extreme difference in value were between the Quality Fish Shop in Mill Road at 7oz for 12p compared to only 5 ozs for the same price at Mike and Julie’s, Wulfstan Way and D.G. Munns, Old Chesterton

1976 02 11
Council house tenants in East Cambridgeshire who get behind with their rent could find themselves being moved to a remote farm cottage without hot running water. There were some tenants who do not take their responsibilities seriously and are quite happy to let the rest of society pay for them. The only alternative was to provide a property which, although habitable, lacked the standard of amenity or convenient location which most people now seek

New Central Library, p14-15

1976 02 12
Prince Philip is now the strongest contender for the Chancellorship of the University. Informed sources have disclosed that Prince Charles was offered the post but turned it down because of his naval commitments with HMS Bronington. Lord Ramsey, former Archbishop of Canterbury, is thought to have declined the invitation while Mr Selwyn Lloyd, recently retired speaker of the House of Commons, is still regarded by many dons as too close contemporary politics to command unanimous support. Prince Philip has for many years maintained a close formal and informal interest in Cambridge and has seen Cambridge life from the student viewpoint through unannounced visits while Prince Charles was up at Trinity

Punters, p5

1976 02 13
A new piece of equipment designed to aid rescue work at the scene of an emergency is now being used by Cambridge police. Called a 'stem light', it is a telescopic floodlighting unit mounted on the top of one of the force's vehicles. When extended it supplies a brilliant light, thus helping rescuers at the scene of an emergency.

1976 02 13
A village family, terrified by the ghost of a friend killed in a road accident, has called in the local vicar to help remove its presence. The wife says the poltergeist appeared at her home, tapped her on the shoulder, flung a cup to the floor, opened and shut and electric oven and sent the pet cat screeching from the kitchen. The spiritual visitor has frightened the couple and their five children so they called in the village vicar who said a prayer for the deceased. The presence has disappeared since the prayers were said.

Fenstanton pub, p7

1976 02 14
The mystery of a walled-up tunnel in an old coaching inn at Great Chesterford is to be explored by its new owners. It is believed the four-foot wide by six-foot high arched brick tunnel leads form the cellars of the Crown House Restaurant to the village church. But the passage is blocked by a four-foot thick brick wall from floor to roof – built perhaps by Cromwell's men. Charles II is said to have stayed in the Crown House in the days when it was a main coaching inn.

1976 02 16
Stokes' road, p9

1976 02 17
Standing on the Royal housing estate at Eynesbury, near St Neots you could be on any trim estate in any part of the country. The houses are comfortable and easy to run with pleasant gardens and quiet, safe, roads. For some it sounds idyllic, but for some women it proves just the reverse. They are the victims of "housing estate blues".

1976 02 17
Travel to the Channel Islands from Cambridge and all you need to do is get a taxi to Cambridge Airport. The airline services provided by Intra (Jersey) Airways began in 1972. Until this season the airline used DC3s but have now introduced the turbo prop Viscounts. Direct flights are also provided for the first time this year to Guernsey

Eynesbury lonely lives, p7

1976 02 20
Orange squash and cakes were the order of the day at Priory Infants School, Cambridge, when more than 200 youngsters celebrated the school's 25th birthday. Last month Miss Gwendolen Meadows celebrated 25 years as headmistress. There are about 215 youngsters aged between four-and-a-half and seven years at the school. Yesterday each class had its own cake

1976 02 20
Five members of the House of Lords went to a village near Huntingdon to see how greyhounds chase and kill hares. They were to gain first-hand knowledge as part of their investigation into hare coursing and whether it should be banned. Everyone was on their best behaviour to make sure their Lordships went away with a good impression. People shouted "Jolly Good" when hares got away, but when an anti-bloodsport leader tried to take a photograph of a kill a gum-booted woman hopped up and down in front of him to spoil his view

Blue Bear, p14

1976 02 23
In 1974 the Crawford Committee recommended Cambridge as an ideal centre for a small-scale radio station but neither the BBC nor the IBA has included it in firm plans. There is however some chance of improved stereo reception. The BBC says they "hoped" that stereo transmission will begin from Tacolneston, near Norwich, in the spring. A booster transmitter on the Cambridge gasworks for stereo was a "very long-term project" for which there was no date.

1976 02 24
Tony McPhee, lead guitarist with the Groundhogs, is moving from his home near Haverhill because the Department of the Environment has turned down his appeal to keep a prefabricated recording studio he built near his house. He bought his studio, which stores equipment including a £16-track recorder, because studios in London are expensive.

Milton quarry objection, p3

1976 02 25
When Texas open the door of their new super-store at Coldham's Lane on Saturday, Cambridge will have the largest Do-It-Yourself centre in East Anglia. Spurred on by the success of their year-old store which took over from Peaks Furnishers in Fitzroy Street, Texas are sure that Cambridge shoppers will make extensive use of the new premises, which are packed with all kinds of goods for the handyman.

1976 02 27
300 children were evacuated from Duxford Primary School after one of the pupils took what appeared to be an unexploded bomb to school. The nine-year-old found it while playing near the former Battle-of-Britain airfield in the village. When the Headmaster, Mr Peter Chivers, saw it he got it out of the school and called the police. All the children were sent home for the day. Later the Bomb Squad identified it as a practice rocket from World War Two.

Bar Hill flyover, p7
Shire Hall library, p8

1976 02 28
Vanishing villages, p6

March 1976 CEN

1976 03 02
Cambridge's last links with serving members of the Royal Navy will be officially severed next week when the Royal Naval Unit in Porson Road closes. It has been involved in providing 'guinea-pigs' for psychological tests at the Medical Research Council Applied Psychology Unit in Chaucer Road. Sailors from many parts of Britain have come to Cambridge to take part in the tests. The Cambridge unit first opened in 1945 at Parkside and moved to Porson Road in 1951. Research centred on the effects of hot and humid atmospheric conditions – heat stress – upon work.

1976 03 02

Workmen moved a few traffic cones and oil drums to open the £400,000 Bar Hill flyover. Construction began last April after years of pressure from residents who wanted improved safety for the junction between the busy A604 road and the village. The turning point had become one of Cambridgeshire's worst accident blackspots and the interchange was planned to relive traffic hazards.

Prickwillow pottery, p7

1976 03 03
The branch library at the Cambridge Shire Hall is to close down and will be replaced once-a-week by a visit of one of the county council's mobile libraries. The decision to close down the library – to save an estimated £6,000 a year was taken at the county budget meeting. A petition of more than 500 signatures of readers asked for the building to continue. When a vote was taken there were 25 for and 25 against and the decision was taken on the casting vote of the Chairman.

1976 03 04
Stokes' site, p11

1976 03 05
At the age of 67, a man believed to be Cambridge University's oldest undergraduate has been excused the "undue hardship" of relearning Greek. The University's cabinet recommended a special dispensation after earlier declining to accept Mr Bernard Greer's 1926 school certificate Greek for the tripos. The grounds for exemption were those of the "undue hardship involved at an advanced age and in a relatively short period of time".

1976 03 05
A group of Cambridge young people are hoping to be able to fly their hot-air balloon regularly this year, after spending more than three years designing, building and redesigning it. The Cambridge Hot-Air Balloon Association consists of about eight young men, several ex-pupils of the Perse school. The saga began when George Laslett started experimenting with model balloons in tissue paper. By the time they had progressed to building paper balloons of up to 1,200 cubic feet capacity and flying them as an attraction at village fetes, they felt the time had come to start translating their dream of a man-carrying balloon into reality.

1976 03 05
With its four-star grading proudly displayed the Garden House Hotel seems to be changing for the better. The a la carte menu us comprehensive but expensive. Main courses are priced at £3-£4 plus the cost of vegetables at 45p a dish. Starters and sweets are priced between 50p and £1. We settled eventually for the table d'hôte menu & our bill came to £12.60 and we thought the meal was disappointing for such a highly-rated hotel.

Arts Theatre struggling, p6

1976 03 08
A Surrey publican is trying to fill an entire block of flats at Newmarket with licensees from all over the country. He believes the flats in the Moulton Court block are very reasonably priced at between £12-£17,000 each but individual flats are not for sale. So he has advertised nationally in the trade press for 24 "sporting ladies or gentlemen" to join him in making a bid for the whole block which has been empty since it was completed about 14 months ago. Licensees are very well in small does but when they gather together they are almost unbearably ebullient. Moulton Road could become a very lively area of Newmarket – Chris South

1976 03 08
He may be 82 but Mr Archibald Clark-Kennedy proved that he was just as good as the other 778 competitors and one donkey when it came to completing a 25-mile cross-country sponsored walk round Cambridge for Oxfam. A Fellow of Corpus Christi college, he estimates that he has raised more than £50 for an activity he has been supporting ever since the annual walk was started.

1976 03 09
Newmarket Road trees, p8

1976 03 10
Two Cambridge brothers have just completed 50 years in the bakery business. Maurice and Dennis How, the bakers and confectioners in Mill Road started in the business by chance after leaving school. "Our father, who ran the business, was taken ill and had to go into hospital", explained Maurice. "There was no one else to take over and keep things going. When we started a large loaf cost four pence in old money. Now the same sort of loaf is 17p". Their father, Mr John How, started business at Shelford in 1868 and moved to Mill Road in 1901

1976 03 11
A new store, the Talk of the Town, is to open in Fitzroy Street, Cambridge in the building formerly occupied by Peaks Furnishers. The store is divided into individual sections, some let to local traders & some rented to national companies. An Elizabethan Tea Room complete with period furniture and fittings and a wedding dress section are on the top floor. The store has special design features such as log cabins for changing rooms in the fashion section and thatched roofing for the farm produce section

Rising costs, p4

1976 03 12
Gay liason, p7

1976 03 23
CUL accessions, p7

1976 03 15
Denny Abbey, the 12th-century monument near Waterbeach, is to be opened to the public as soon as possible. Original plans to allow the public access at Whitsun have had to be scrapped because of the economic situation and problems about getting staff. Conservation work has been going on for some 16 years. A new wooden stairway and walkways have been built inside the main part of the building. The Abbey dates back to 1160 but in more recent times were converted for farm use and are now the responsibility of the Department of the Environment

1976 03 15
The possible closure to through traffic of Arbury Road, Cambridge, will be discussed by the city council. Some councillors have been pressing for years for the road closure as a way of improving the environment for people living in the Arbury area. The road is, at peak periods, one of the busiest in Cambridge with commuter traffic. The suggestions are certain to cause a storm of protest. The main objection will centre round the claim that a lot more traffic would be pushed on to the already busy Gilbert Road.

Duxford church redundant, p8

1976 03 16
Both visitors and staff at the Cambridge County Record Office, Shire Hall, are still having to put up with overcrowded conditions. One visitor has described conditions as "the worst of any record office in the country". The county archivist says in his annual report that there has been no improvement in office or search room space. One woman who had been offered a post on the staff had declined it because of the overcrowding which she had observed. # c.43

Northern peripheral road, p3

1976 03 17
Cambridge pubs and beer gardens teem with tourists on hot summer nights – until shortly after 10.30 pm when local licensing laws decree that pub life must come to a sudden stop. But, as holidaymakers climb into their guest house beds, the evening's revelries are still in full swing in Wicken, Snailwell and Wood Ditton, not exactly cosmopolitan centres of jet-setting sophistication but villages allowed by local licensing laws to stay open until 11 pm from Monday to Saturday

1976 03 17
One of Cambridge's best-known characters, Trevor Hughes, was rescued by firemen from a blazing room in a derelict house in East Road. He was found choking in a smoke-filled room at the back of the old headquarters of the Cyrene Community. Trevor, the elder statesman of the Cambridge dosser community, is well-known to shoppers in the Market Square where he sits daily by the fountain

1976 03 18
In the past the Green Dragon at Chesterton has not lived up to the expectations of its distinctive sign. All this has been changed by extensive alterations which have transformed this Greene King pub from a cosy but unremarkable establishment into a comfortable open-plan rendezvous which has all the modern comforts without destroying the atmosphere of a very old business. A new extension provides new toilets to replace the old outside toilets "across the yard"

Bar Hill Queensway, p11

1976 03 19
Six primary schools in Cambridgeshire villages may have to close next year. Schools at Wood Ditton, Kirtling, Chippenham, Horseheath, Quy and Madingley have been shortlisted from a number of schools with less than 75 pupils which the county council feels may no longer be viable for educational or economic reasons. Other schools with few pupils include Ashley (30 pupils), Black Horse Drove (40), Castle Camps (55), Dullingham (30) and Stuntney (40)

Gt Gidding windmill, p16
Rampton pond, p19
Kite redevelopment, p22
Bedford Lodge, p36

1976 03 20
Office clampdown, p5
Waterbeach baker, p6

1976 03 22
Isleham's Methodists are having to hold services in their own homes as a result of the closure of the village's 136-year-old chapel after cracks appeared in its north wall. The small, clunch-build chapel stands perched on the edge of the village's old clunch pit. The congregation usually numbers about 20.

1976 03 23
Toilet survey, p7
Wood Ditton school closure, p8

1976 03 24
Bar Hill 'ghost town', p9

1976 03 26

The bells can ring out from St Cyriac's in Swaffham Prior once again – but they will call the villagers to worship in the neighbouring church of St Mary whose tower was not strong enough to take the strain of the bells. Now the sound of St Cyriac's bells mark the end of extensive restoration by the Redundant Churches Trust & the villagers can make suggestions on the future use of the building. Similar churches have been used as concert halls, folk museums or wedding reception halls. St Cyriac's was last used for services in 1902

1976 03 26
Marcus, a three-year-old Shire horse will soon become a familiar sight at Orwell when his owner, coalman Alan Neaves, uses him instead of a lorry to deliver coal in the village. Before becoming a coalman nine years ago he used to work with Shire horses at West Farm, Orwell. "Since then I've always wanted an excuse for having one", he said.

Eltisley green, p9
University Arms poster, p10

1976 03 27
Burwell refuse, p6

1976 03 30
The first of three aerials for the operation of a radio call-out system for mid-Anglia's "Flying Doctor" service was erected at Hill Farm, Fulbourn, at the weekend. This follows the Home Office decision to grant a licence to the Cambridge Medical Answering Service for a radio paging and telephone system for the Mid-Anglia General Practitioner Accident Service. The new service should be operating in about a fortnight

1976 03 31
A 21-year-old Cherry Hinton man was sentenced to 120 hours of community service at Cambridge Crown Court. It is the first time such an order has been made in Cambridge. The community service scheme, under which offenders are given work in the community under supervision as an alternative to imprisonment, comes into effect in the Cambridge area tomorrow.

1976 03 31
Angry Fowlmere villagers claim that the village has been singled out as the only location for South Cambridgeshire District Council's "sin bin" scheme, placing rent defaulters in sub-standard houses. Parish Councillors Mrs Janet Greenwood said villagers were disappointed that the council had spent £7,500 in preparing the derelict cottages for defaulters when there were sub-standard council houses in the village whose tenants paid their rent. "There are about 20 unmodernised houses, six of which have earth closets", she said

1976 03 31
A quick morning's visit by comedian Dave Allen and a television crew to the Haddenham Farmland Museum unexpectedly became a full-day's filming. The original plan was to feature the museum in a six-minute slot for a half-hour documentary programme, but when they arrived they were faced with a blacksmith, needlecraft specialists and a brass band, many of them pupils at local village colleges. They had to play at less than normal volume so they did not drown out the filming of a conversation between Dave Allen and Craig Delanoy, the 11-year-old founder of the museum.

April 1976 CEN

1976 04 01
Farmers in the Waterbeach Fen and Swaffham areas were assessing the damage after what one of them describes as the worst fen blow he could remember in 25 years farming there. Huge black clouds hovered over the fens nearly all day as high winds whipped up the light soil and blocked many drainage channels in the area. The blow does not appear to have involved any other light peat land south of Littleport.

1976 04 02
A plan for building a £13,000 halt at Cherry Hinton on the main Cambridge-Ipswich railway line was rejected by the county highways committee. Cambridge city council had asked for the halt, saying it would be useful for commuters and people working in the expanding office development in Station Road. Councillor Charles Swift (Peterborough) who is a train driver said that halts usually consisted of just a few old railway sleepers by the side of the track and not the station and buildings proposed for Cherry Hinton.

Kite report, p10
Whittlesford Red Cow, p29

1976 04 05
There is something splendid in the sight of an old steam locomotive thundering along the tracks. But like all grand old ladies, the Greene King which steamed proudly through Ely on a special run, hasn't got the stamina she once had, and instead of completing the run both ways from Ipswich to March she ran out of steam on the return journey. Now the old loco is at March waiting to be repaired so she can head back into retirement in Essex

1976 04 05
A new branch of Lloyd's Bank is due to open on the corner of Regent Street and Gonville Place, Cambridge. It will be the first entirely new branch of Lloyds opened in the city since 1964, when a branch was set out at Cherry Hinton. Five cashier positions have been provided inside the bank, together with a cash dispenser for quick service.

Royston cave, p7

1976 04 07
Rush hour chaos, p1

1976 04 08
Fire swept through the part of Mildenhall's prestigious new shopping centre late last night, completely gutting three shops, badly damaging five others and causing thousands of pounds of damage. Twenty-four firemen took just 20 minutes to contain the blaze which started in a recently-opened menswear shop. The shops gutted by fire were Mark Audio a radio and tv shop, the Stateside menswear shop and Laurie Wallis a bookmaker

1976 04 09
Cambridge Water Company consumers can expect to escape restrictions on water usage now being slapped on nearby areas. But that does not mean they can use water as freely as they like, even though they will probably not face the hosepipe ban imposed on the St Neots and Huntingdon area where the taps are fed mostly from dwindling surface reservoirs. They are up against acute difficulties if the summer is as dry as the past winter which had brought only two inches of rain since November.

Post Offices close Saturdays, p7
Milton Hall pub licence, p9

1976 04 10
Newmarket manhole riddle, p7

1976 04 12
Jesus College opened its Eden Street housing development to the public to show just what can be done with old properties in Cambridge's Kite area. The college plans the conversion of more than 30 two and three-bedroomed homes at rentals from £8 to £10 a week. Two major types of conversion are in hand, one of extending existing terraced houses to give two-bedroomed homes, and the other of combining two terraced houses to make one new one

1976 04 13
The Rev John Carre – latest victim in a spate of lead thefts from churches around Cambridge – has put fertiliser bags on the roof of St Andrew's. Chesterton, to keep out the weather. Thieves who stripped five sheets from the roof a few weeks ago, came back a second time and removed lead from the organ chamber. The parochial church council is to discuss possibilities such as slippery paint, and a dye which cannot be removed from the hands, in order to discourage further thefts. Christ church, Cambridge and churches at Fen Ditton, Quy and Haslingfield are amongst those which have recently been hit by the lead thieves.

1976 04 13
Twenty private beds will be axed at Cambridgeshire hospitals in the first phase of Government plans for phasing out pay beds from the National Health Service. There are 56 private beds in Cambridgeshire, 29 of them at Addenbrooke's & Mill Road Maternity Hospitals, Cambridge. Others are at Papworth (3), Huntingdon (1) & 23 in the north of the county.

1976 04 15
Fenland villagers who bought cheap whisky buried it in their gardens and poured it down the drain as police began investigating the theft of more than 2,000 bottles from Whitemoor railway marshalling yard at March. Almost £8,000-worth of Haig and J & B Export whisky bound for the continent was stolen in three raids from vans at the yards. Some whisky was hidden a suitcase, some was transferred to lemonade and sherry bottles, and some of it was drunk.

1976 04 15
The Twentypence Inn, Wilburton, claims to provide reasonably priced meals. The Sunday lunch menu offered a wide choice for £2 a head. It included prawn and peach cocktail, oxtail soup and ravioli for starters; and turkey and ham salad, roast duckling, roast beef and Yorkshire pudding, trout and lemon sole as the main course. This was followed by fruit salads from the fruit trolley. A carafe of red wine was £1.35

Bottisham specialist school, p6
Pye colour tv vans, p25

1976 04 17
The future redevelopment of the Burleigh Street - Fitzroy Street area of Cambridge is back in the melting pot following the decision of the outgoing city council to throw out the massive £30 million scheme proposed by a London development company for the Kite area. The rejection of the scheme, which would have brought a greatly-increased number of shops in to the area, together with car parks, a new road and an underground country bus station, was an easy matter for the city council. But it was far less easy for them to decide how to go about working out alternatives.

Reversing city traffic, p8

1976 04 20
Work on the controversial Tesco superstore at Bar Hill will start in a few days and the huge building should be open for business within a year. The building will include a bakery and a snack bar, a petrol filling station and car parking for 750 cars. Plans had to be revamped after the first ones submitted were condemned as "horrible" and "little better than a warehouse" by councillors.

1976 04 20
Bank holiday bargain hunters brought traffic chaos to Bourn airfield market when queues four miles long built up on the A45. Shoppers started moving in early to buy everything from double glazing to garden gnomes. By noon thousands of people crowded the market ground. Getting away from the market was no easier. By lunchtime four lanes of traffic stretched back for three-quarters of a mile, attempting to get out of a single gateway.

Stz Hazel Court opening, p12

1976 04 21
An historic house in the centre of Fowlmere was flattened by a bulldozer today – just hours after planning officials ordered that demolition work must cease. The destruction of the centuries-old Dovecote House came as angry villagers and planners were still battling to save it. Villagers who believed they had been granted a stay of execution for the house could do nothing as it was reduced to rubble. It toppled less than two hours after they returned to their homes and jobs after an early-morning site vigil

1976 04 22
Plants replace rubbish, p6
Pye museum, p10

1976 04 23
A visitor to the ancient village of Papworth St Agnes was appalled at what she saw. The cottages and old Manor House were falling down. “It did seem very sad that the whole village was decaying”, she said. Seven years ago there was planning permission for eight new houses. Only two were built before the contractors went out of business. Further development has been held up by the lack of a proper sewerage system. But now development is on again. A number of the rundown cottages have gone to private individuals who are doing them up and one farmhouse looks very smart.

Brampton litter, p9

1976 04 24
A Cambridge researcher has collaborated in helping a 35-year-old woman become pregnant by using the test-tube baby technique. Dr Bob Edwards, from Cambridge University Physiology Department, has been working on the technique for ten years in collaboration with Mr Patrick Steptoe of Oldham and District General Hospital. The success is the first documented case using the method, but the pregnancy developed in the tube connecting an ovary to the womb and the foetus died.

1976 04 26
A Cambridge family who won the national final of a tv quiz show was given an official thank-you in the form of tea with the mayor. David and Tina Burton, with their son Andrew and daughter Kathryn came first in the BBC show “Ask the Family” after a taut final televised last week. They now have a holiday in Calpe, Spain, to look forward to as their prize for winning the quiz

Anti-nuclear rally, p3
Scout jubilee, p9

1976 04 28
Cambridge has gone through its driest winter for 54 years, according to records kept by the Water Company. And if the drought continues it could be the worst year this century. With the forecasters still predicting dry, cold weather water-users are being urged to economise wherever possible. The Anglian Water Authority is preparing contingency plans for an expected water crisis in the late autumn. Hosepipe bans have been introduced in the Huntingdon and St Neots area.

1976 04 29
The rocketing price of potatoes has cost 90 people their jobs at a Haverhill factory – a move described by the employment adviser as a “disaster for the town”. The sackings come as a complete surprise to the staff at the Courtenham’s Products Factory, Holland’s Road. Only last year it doubled its workforce to 100 when it cornered the market in frozen chips by importing cheap Dutch potatoes during the poor home harvest.

1976 04 30
The eleven-month long drought brought two strong warnings today. Water supplies to all homes in the Huntingdon and St Neots area will be cut off within three months unless people economise. Elsewhere the dry weather is threatening all rivers with sewage pollution. Downstream from the over-loaded Cambridge sewage works the Great Ouse River Authority say the threat of wholesale sewage pollution was now "crucial".

1976 04 30
The River Cam is so polluted at Waterbeach that people who fall in it suffer from skin trouble and are sick if they swallow any of the water, claimed Coun Hilda Hatley. She said that a special anti-algae paint had been stripped off the bottom of a boat by the water. Councillors agreed the problem was the severely over-loaded Cambridge sewage works.

1976 04 30
Lime Kiln Hill could eventually become a footpath and bridleway if a proposed route for the extension of the Cherry Hinton bypass near the Gogs is approved. The County Council will be asked to approve a route which passes east of the reservoir eventually linking with the A604. This was a very long-term project and it was impossible to say when it might be built. There is a lot to be said for preserving Lime Kiln Hill – it is a pleasant rural lane. There would be great problems in widening and improving it

1976 04 30
Rabies, the terrifying disease which can be carried by animals, made an appearance on Newmarket Heath only six years ago. A diseased dog was probably running down Newmarket's High Street and across the Heath in 1970. Immediate action by the region's veterinary authorities isolated the animal, a terrier called Sessan. Later it was considered necessary to destroy a companion dog owned by the same family and the cats at a veterinary surgeon's. House to house enquiries were made at 310 premises and other dogs isolated. Fortunately the dog had not passed on the disease to wildlife or any valuable racehorses

May 1976 CEN

1976 05 01
St Neots rampage, p1

1976 05 03
May Day celebrations, p3

1976 05 04
Huntingdon dial-a-bus, p3

1976 05 05
A row over the introduction of Sunday cricket on the green at Eltisley has split the village into two opposing teams. Some of the villagers have no-balled the games as a desecration of the Sabbath and an interruption of the villagers' peace and quiet. Play was stopped while a resident walked on to the field to protest to Eltisley's captain, who is also chairman of the Parish Council. Both the parochial church council and members of the Methodist chapel are against it.

Gipsy wedding, p10

1976 05 06
Grantchester murder, p1

City 'unfriendly', p4

1976 05 07
Apathy, p13
British Antarctic Survey HQ, p19

1976 05 08
The huge council estate planned for Cherry Hinton by the former Labour-controlled city council is to be scrapped by the Conservatives following their runaway victory in the elections. The Labour plan envisaged up to 15,000 council dwellings, a bypass, shops, a community centre and four new schools. Some are likely to remain but many of the council houses will disappear in favour of privately-built homes

1976 05 10
Barton villagers paid tribute to Mr Bert Crick and his wife May to mark their retirement from running the village post office after 30 years. He came 45 years ago, providing both a milk round and a greengrocery round service before taking over his Wimpole Road shop. They intend carrying on with their General Store; "It gives us something to do", he said. The post office business has been transferred to Conkers store at the other end of the village.

1976 05 10
A flotilla of 14 boats sailed to Burwell in a "quiet demonstration" in support of preserving the ancient fenland waterways. The Commodore of the Cambridge Motor Boat Club, Chief Inspector Roy Hardingham of the city police said it was designed to make the point that the Lodes should be protected for boating of all kinds, for fishing and because they were part of our heritage. Mr Geoffrey Woollard said Anglian Water Authority now seemed convinced that it would be foolhardy to destroy the lodes, which are reputed to date back to Roman times

1976 05 10
Bottisham Village College's new £23,000 swimming pool was "christened" with a practical joke. To many of those who sat or stood in sweltering sunshine the fate of the college's former head, Mr Charles Brereton, may have seemed more than enviable. In the first breach of pool regulation rules he was pushed into the cool blue of the water. During his time at the college he presided over the raising of over £18,000 in two years.

1976 05 11
Two ponies for 12p worth of apples – that was the deal Mr Len Coe, a stallholder on Cambridge market, was offered. But the deal never came off, and the two brown ponies are back with their owner, a traveller who is camping in De Freville Avenue. It all started when the two ponies began having a free feed on the apples on his stall after the traveller had been not to handle the fruit. When Mr Coe demanded 12p for the apples the man said he had no money. Then he said: "Hang on to the ponies" and away he went.

1976 05 11
In the early days of the Arbury estate there were many complaints about the lack of shopping facilities, but with the completion of Arbury Court with its quarter-of-a-million-pound supermarket and wide range of other shops, most of the residents are more than satisfied. A very different focal point is the local, the Snowcat. Quite controversial at the time it was constructed, this Greene King house has now settled down to provide what the residents really want – a place with a bit of atmosphere where they can get together in the same way as the regulars of a village pub

1976 05 14
More than a sixth of south Cambridgeshire school leavers are expected to be on the dole this summer. To cope with what is likely to be the worst situation on record special instructions on how to claim dole money are being put out to the 2,700 children leaving school at the end of the term. The careers section has only 78 job vacancies on its books and officials fear that at least 500 teenagers will be without jobs. There are no vacancies in the building trade – although more than 200 enquiries have been made by those considering taking up apprenticeships.

Horseplay on market, p1

1976 05 12
Sawston Hall, p13

1976 05 13
Burwell windmill, p8

1976 05 14
School leavers face dole, p1

1976 05 15
Tourists left King's college chapel, Cambridge, when Stapleford sheep farmer, Mr Gerald Beavis, gave what many people took to be a demonstration for their benefit of sheep shearing. But it was a routine part of his work. With a flock of 41 Suffolk ewes grazing on Scholars' Piece he decided to do the shearing at the college rather than lose time by taking the sheep back to his farm

1976 05 17
Ridgeons, supplement

1976 05 18
Having just landed a job as one of Britain's select band of trainee fly-keepers a Merseyside man is pleased if not actually buzzing with excitement at the prospect. Yesterday he began his initiation at Lakenheath's Stallode Fen Farm which breeds maggots for sale to fishermen. Engulfed in a bristling haze of more than 200,000 wheeling and skittering metallic blue flickering insects it will be his lot to brave the fly-house daily, supplying fresh minced chicken meat and cleaning away fly-blown corpses into a maggot incubating room.

Big top, p7
Kite scheme, p1

1976 05 19
Cambridgeshire fire fighters are facing their biggest crisis in years as open water supplies throughout the county dry up. Previously they could have relied on open supplies like ponds and fen drains when fighting blazes in the county. Now they will have to summon water tankers to help them. The chief fire officer, Mr John Maxwell, said: "For the first time in many years supplies are so low they are not sufficient". Now urgent talks are being held with Cambridgeshire National Farmers Union in a bid to stop farmers burning straw and stubble later this year

1976 05 19
Cambridge boasts some of Britain's best buskers and two of them will appear on BBC Television's Nationwide. No doubt accordionist Dag Ingram and flautist Michael Copley will perform classical music with their customary elan but one viewer will watch with a baleful eye. Jerry Bol, the accomplished 22-instrument one-man band from Gt Staughton, a veteran of many television appearance, is sometimes belting out "I love to go a-wandering" at the same time that his rivals are dashing off a quick burst of Bach. – 76 05 19

1976 05 20
Parish pumps are not a frequent topic of debate among parish councils. But Girton parish council not only discussed the parish pump – they actually had it in the committee room, a large, broken, rusty object dating from 1902. It had been stolen by two students and the well had been cemented over.

Now the police had recovered the pump. Members agree there was no point in replacing it and decided to give it to a collection of rural bye-gones.

Cycle thefts, p9

1976 05 21
Plans for radical alterations to two listed cottages in the "Kite area" of Cambridge, the subject of a long and bitter row between a city man and council officials, would cost £59,000, it was stated at a planning inquiry. The scheme involves dismantling and rebuilding an 1825 façade and excavating a basement in Orchard Street. A council witness said the plan to build a facsimile of the façade would destroy the weathered texture and unity of the terrace.

1976 05 21
The Turks Head Berni Inn, Trinity Street, Cambridge, sucks inside an almost relentless stream of visitors. The upstairs bar serves ducking and scampi but we were heading for the simple steak sort of menu. Our two schooners of sherry cost 32p each and the wine, Cotes de Rhone, £2.34. The food was worth a wait. We had rump steak (£1.91) and a fillet steak (£2.73) which were very tasty, with chips, peas and tomatoes. We followed up with chocolate icecreams, which were included in the main course price. We could have had instead cheese and biscuits. Other offerings were Dover sole (£2.44) and Sirloin steak (£1.89).

Children in care, p1
Owl-home scheme, p11

1976 05 24
Armed raid on betting shop, p1
Percheron horse society, p3
Cyrenian community fire, p8
Analytical Instruments factory, p11

1976 05 25
Midi-bus scheme, p8

1976 05 26
Sixteen-year-old Jayne's new hair-do in aid of charity landed her in trouble at school. And it was not the style that caused a fuss, it was the colour. For her dark brown hair had been dyed … bright green. She is a pupil at Melbourn Village College and had her hairstyle altered at a charity fashion show at the YMCA. "As soon as I walked into college I was told off and told not to go back until I had had the dye taken out", she said. At Reed's Hairdressing Salon they said: "I find it difficult to believe that in 1976 a girl could be taken home from school for this reason". Other girls had had their hair coloured peacock blue, violet burgundy, sky blue and brilliant blue at the nape of the neck.

1976 05 28
University nursery needs, p13
Grantchester Red Lion, p22

1976 05 29
Dave "Boy" Green, seen in the fens as a reincarnation of their living legend, Eric "Golden Boy" Boon seeks the British title at the Royal Albert Hall. His ferocious fists have left a trail of 15 beaten bodies on his way to the title fight against Joey Singleton. It is fighter against boxer, the punches of the slugger from the country against the wits of the artful dodger from the city. When the bell goes he will storm forward like a runaway thresher throwing out punches from all angles, punches launched from awesome shoulders with murderous momentum – ten stone of terror on the rampage. He first put on gloves then years ago when he went to the local amateur boxing club in Chatteris

Haslingfield school pool, p8

June 1976 CEN

1976 06 01
A £34,000 radio link for Cambridgeshire doctors – the largest radio communication system in Britain – proved its effectiveness by calling out a doctor from a dinner to celebrate its opening. Dr Simon Bailey, a Newmarket General Practitioner, was amongst those who watched David Lane, MP, open the control room of the system. An hour later a pocket-bleeping device brought him away from his meal to the telephone and news of a suspected heart attack. Mr Neville Silverston, secretary of the organisation who set up the service, added that without the bleeper Dr Bailey would have had to miss the dinner altogether

1976 06 01
Vibration from heavy lorries thundering along Victoria Road, Cambridge, is causing considerable damage to some of the houses in the road, residents claim. Other have suffered cracking and crumbling mortar and damage to roof tiles. "The lorries are worse than ever now. It's not just the noise and vibration, it's the smell as well", says Mrs Mabel Haggis. The City Surveyor said: "The Northern bypass, which will be completed by the end of 1977, should lead to a considerable easing of the situation."

1976 06 01
The Kite is a thriving shopping and business centre with all the charm of a village within Cambridge, where the scale is human, where homes and businesses blend and where shopkeepers and shoppers know each other. It wears its quirks and curiosities proudly; where else could you browse through art nouveau curios (James Street), munch a crispy delicious waffle dripping maple syrup (Waffles) or buy a bargain pine dresser (City Road). There's a Kite community fighting every inch of the way to preserve the homes, the shops and the personality of this game little patch of Victorian Cambridge which is now more full of life than ever.

1976 06 02
When Mr Len Colvill first opened the door of his shop, horses and carts ambled by in Linton High Street and sugar, dried fruit and soap powder arrived by the sackful. The shop, which has remained an unchanged landmark in the village scene for 45 years is to close for good this week with the retirement of Mr Colvill and his wife Amy. Since 1931 customers have been served in an oak-beamed room stacked high with a complete range of household necessities.

Dave Green victory, p6

1976 06 03
Dave "Boy" Green returned in triumph to his home town of Chatteris parading the Lonsdale Belt through the streets in a horse and cart after his British light-welterweight win against Joey Singleton. A crowd of about 700 fans greeted him as he arrived at a civic reception at Cromwell Community College – his old school. He plans to continue his work at a Southery carrot-packing plant & stick to his planned route towards an eventual blockbuster showdown with Britain's world welterweight champion, John H. Stracey.

1976 06 03
The Royal Observer Corps posts, about one every 15 miles, are concrete bunkers buried deep in the ground. They are proof against radiation and a moderate amount of blast. If the radiation levels are intense the observers must be prepared to stay at their post for long periods, in total isolation. Should the very worst occur and the post find itself totally cut off with radiation reaching dangerous levels they could warn those residents above ground by operating their portable siren.

Haverhill dartboard company, p5

1976 06 04
A Sawston housewife, Pam Parfey, did the shopping for the next six weeks last night – and didn't have to pay a penny. She was the lucky winner of a competition, "Rob the Co-op". The prize was £100-worth of groceries. There was just one hitch – Mrs Parfey and one helper had to pick up the food and take it through the check-out in fewer than 15 minutes. They managed it with two minutes to spare

King's Parade traffic scheme, p15

1976 06 05
A cloak and dagger plan by the National Front to embarrass the Home Secretary, Mr Roy Jenkins, backfired. They had organised a protest by more than 60 people for his visit to St Ives – but he was not there. Four days ago he said he could not attend a Hunts In Europe dinner – but the National Front did not discover this until they arrived. They contented themselves with propaganda shouted over a loud-hailer

Bishop at Huntingdon, p6
Drought, p7

1976 06 07
Ely cathedral verger, p5

1976 06 08
Pound a gallon petrol, now a nightmarish possibility, would not only present problems to the motorist but to petrol companies as well. National Benzole gave a demonstration of futurist forecourt equipment, including a petrol pump head which could not only cope with metric measurements – litres instead of gallons – but which was also geared up for prices of a pound a gallon or more. If prices were to rise to 85p a gallon then most existing blender pumps would not be able to cope with it. Originally pumps were designed for prices like 33p per gallon

Grain shrivels, p5

1976 06 09
Cambridge chauffeur-punt service on the Backs can go ahead again this summer. Third-year Law student at Trinity Hall, Mr Jeremy Nicholson ran the service for a limited period last year but his application for a new licence was refused by the city council because of complaints from fishermen. Now it has been renewed with conditions about insurance and the condition of the boats.

Farmland Museum junk, p3
Welch first show, p6

1976 06 10
The newly-created Roman Catholic Bishop of East Anglia, the Rt Rev Alan Clarke, was at Huntingdon to carry out his first official engagement. The occasion was a special mass to mark both the centenary of the founding of the parish of St Michael and the 75th anniversary of the Hartford Road Church of St Michael the Archangel. Afterwards he went to USAF Alconbury for lunch as the guest of the officers.

1976 06 10
The Vicar of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Arbury estate, the Rev Martin Suter, climbed up the scaffolding to see workmen put the finishing touches to the iron and gold-leaf cross on the top of the church. He said a prayer of dedication before joining churchwardens and workmen for a glass of beer on the roof. It was one of the last things that had to be done before work on the church is completed in time for the visit of Princess Margaret, who laid the foundation stone in 1957

Arbury gun siege, p1
Water take-over plan, p4

1976 06 11
The first 1000 pints were on the house as friends of traditional British draught beer packed the Salisbury Arms, Tenison Road, Cambridge for its reopening under the ownership of CAMRA Investments Ltd. The pub was bought from Whitbread last year for £22,000 and has been renovated from top to bottom. It is their first pub in East Anglia.

Addenbrooke's Hospital cost problem, p1
Water costs double, p7
News photographer's exhibition, p8

1976 06 12
Farmland Museum, p8

1976 06 15
Shotgun sweep, p9

1976 06 16
Free school buses stopped, p1

1976 06 17
When the Rector of Conington, the Rev John Jones, found that the vestry needed rebuilding, he didn't launch a restoration fund, instead he and some of his parishioners did the job themselves. Work started on Easter Monday when a group of 15 people demolished the original wall. Since then he has been helped by churchwarden Mr Frank Murder, farmer Phillip Papworth and a Lolworth builder, Mr Laurie James, who built the new cavity wall.

Hosepipe ban, p5
Chesterton Road Instrument Company site, p13

1976 06 18
Cambridgeshire's motorists are being treated to nearly £60m of new roads but they have a price to pay … years of disruptive construction work. Top priority is the northern bypass which is due to start in August. An important adjunct is improvements on the A604 Huntingdon road which will be turned into a dual carriageway. Elsewhere the County Council is constructing a dual carriageway from Coldham's Lane to Barnwell Bridge; a dualling of Newmarket road beyond this will be delayed until the effect of the northern by-pass can be seen. Next year remains the official start date for the western bypass

1976 06 18
Wimpole Hall, the massive mansion which until her death last month was the home of Rudyard Kipling's daughter, Mrs Elsie Bambridge, has been left to the National Trust – which is uncertain it will accept responsibility for the bequest. "What we have to know whether she has left sufficient money to endow the maintenance of the property. Mrs Bambridge was an old lady and people did not go to the hall much. It has been a fairly closed house for some time and may need a good deal of work doing to it before it can be opened", a spokesman said. If they did accept the bequest Wimpole Hall would eventually be open to the public. "

Stapleford museum, p9
Bridge Street ceremoby, p11

1976 06 19

Cambridge's newest language school, the Newnham Language Centre, was officially opened at a reception. It is the brainchild of Mr Michael Short who was adult tutor at Comberton Village College for ten years. Students pay £70 for a four-week vacation course or £165 for a ten-week term and stay with Cambridge families. Tours to colleges and local country houses are arranged. It aims to provide facilities for small groups to learn the language in really attractive surroundings.

1976 06 21
The annual swim through Cambridge, organised by the Granta swimming club, has had to be cancelled for the first time in about 40 years because of the low level of water in the river Cam. Because of possible pollution problems they dare not risk the health hazards involved but hope to put the event on again next year. Typically 70-75 women and about 80 men would enter the event

Dust-cart teddy bears, p7

1976 06 22
Thaxted Morris Ring danced in the church at the funeral of a founder member of the ring. "We danced to the glory of God and the memory of Mr Fred Caton", said their bag-man, Wilfred Abbs. Mr Caton joined the first team of Thaxted Morris dancers formed in 1911. He danced with then until a few months before his death at the age of 79. His musical talents extended to the town's brass band of which he was the last surviving member.

1976 06 24
The fenland onion crop, worth about £9m., is being threatened by the drought. Rainfall has been so low that it looks as if there will be only about half the normal yield. About 5,000 acres of onions are grown on the Cambridgeshire black land but they have suffered from extremes of temperature. Summer rainfall has been less than half the average. The boom crop of the fens has played a vital part in boosting home-grown onions from 10% to 42% of total consumption. Prices are now about the £200-a-ton mark but the cost of growing the crop is narrowing the gap

Wandlebury elm disease, p8

1976 06 25
Water pollution, p15
Farmland sold, p19

1976 06 26
Long visiting hours at New Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge, can be more of an ordeal than a pleasure for relatives as well as patients. The visiting times are from 2.30 to 8 pm but the hospital finds the long hours can be a stress for both relative and patient, both anxious not to offend the other, but both finding the long periods wearing. Hospital authorities feel that 2.30 to 5 and 7 to 8 pm would be long enough for bedside "confrontations" – but that times should remain flexible for people travelling long distances.

1976 06 26
Extreme heat has begun to take its toll of animals and people, with little sign of letting up. For the past three days temperature has been in the 90s and this afternoon was a scorching 98 degrees Fahrenheit. At Cambridge abattoir in Coldham's Lane one animal died on the premises and three others have been dead on arrival because of the intense heat which induces heart attacks. At Haverhill Furniture Ltd, Rookwood, the management has been giving free drinks from an automatic machine while half of the fixed skylights at Taylor's Foundry have been removed to encourage a breeze.

1976 06 28
Wandlebury closes due heat, p9

1976 06 29

Railway workers spent almost seven hours repairing a section of the main King's Cross to Cambridge line at Shepreth which became distorted because of the heatwave. As temperatures hit 94 degrees in the centre of Cambridge one sour note came from King's College chapel where the organ was out of tune because of the weather.

1976 06 30
Heatwave, p1

July 1976 CEN

1976 07 01
Gentlemen visiting the Old Fire Engine House Restaurant at Ely may find it a little difficult to keep their minds on the menu. For the waitresses include three beauty queens, Debbie Rumbelow, who is Miss Ely; Julie Roberts, otherwise known as Miss Welney; and Linda Jakes who recently became Miss Coveney. "We don't choose our waitresses just for their looks; we chose them for their aptitude for the work. Appearances are secondary" explained their employer Mrs Ann Wheatley.

1976 07 01
Looking after an English country garden can be hard work, as Miss Gladys Prime well knows – she's been doing it for a good many of her 86 years. Gladys and her sister Edith were amongst the Barrington residents who opened their gardens as part of the village festival. Their garden contains a monument dating from the turn of the century which incorporates the first concrete produced by Barrington's original cement works. The sisters uphold another tradition – keeping geese. "The village used to be famous for its geese. They used to be kept on the village green", said Gladys.

1976 07 01
Children and adults from the Cam Causeway area in Cambridge turned out in force to help firemen fight a fire which threatened their homes. The fire raced across waste ground and broke through the fence line at the bottom of their gardens before it was controlled. It was the third fire on the land in a week. Cambridge Fire & rescue Service, already stretched with other alarms could only send one engine, so its first action was to put a call out for everyone to pitch in and help. First into action were schoolboy neighbours Stephen Stokes and Robert Earl.

1976 07 02
A meeting of over 100 parents at Hemingford Grey threatened to bring St Ives traffic to a standstill if the County Council does not reverse its plan to end free buses for village children at St Ivo School. A manager said: "If we lose, not one vehicle will cross St Ives Bridge on the first day of next term. It would only take one person to stop traffic crossing the narrow bridge. There was derisory laughter when an Education officer rejected suggestions that the St Ives Bridge was dangerous to children crossing on bicycles. The effect of 200 children crossing the bridge was not yet known.

Knife grinder, p26

1976 07 05
The rebel Roman Catholic priest from Downham Market, Fr Oswald Baker has been celebrating the banned Tridentine Mass in a converted outhouse in Cambridge. The Roman Catholic Bishop of East Anglia warned that such services were not authorised by the church, but Father Baker said that far from stopping he planned to increase the number of places where he celebrates the rite. He was sacked from his parish after he refused to accept the new version of the Mass which replaced the 400-year-old Tridentine rite a few years ago. Cambridge was one of the first places he had celebrated the old rite and he comes to the city about once a month.

Deaconess Ely Cathedral, p3
Dry Drayton feast, p9

1976 07 06
Mosque, p7
Fowlmere planning, p9

1976 07 07
Farmers told to halve water, p1
Tickell Arms, p9

1976 07 09
Planeloads of Scandinavia shoppers will arrive in Cambridge in the coming winter if plans being discussed by the East Anglian Tourist Board are approved. The aim is to create an East Anglian shopping rival to London; Cambridge with its added tourist attractions will prove better than smaller schemes now being run for overseas shoppers in Norwich. The first shoppers' "special" is expected to arrive next winter and if plans are completed between British and Scandinavian operators the plane will turn round immediately to take Cambridge people for low-cost weekend trips to the Scandinavian countries. Discussions have centred on charter aircraft seating an average of 60 people.

1976 07 09
The caretaker at Cambridge's Perse Boys' School for the past 21 years, Mr Ronald McAndrew, retires this weekend. He and his wife Dorothy are bound to be missed – not least because she has run the tuck shop for the last eight years. They will both miss the school, having seen generations of boys – boarders and day pupils come and go over the years; it has become a family affair – their daughter is a laboratory assistant in the biology department. They came to the school while Mr Stanley Stubbs was headmaster; the head is now Mr Anthony Melville.

1976 07 12
About 100 Cub Scouts and Brownie Guides collapsed from heat exhaustion at an open air service conducted by the Bishop of Ely at the Cub Scout jubilee camp at Braham Farm, Lt Thetford. There were about 4,000 people at the service, including about 2,500 Cubs and Brownies. The service was cut short and ended after half-an-hour. "The fact that this is the biggest-ever camp and that we expect almost 10,000 visitors just goes to show what a healthy state the movement is in this part of the world", said Assistant Commissioner, Mr Barry Howe.

1976 07 12
Has there ever been a more disastrous year for the trees of Cambridgeshire than 1976? The mild winter allowed the elm bark beetles to live on and their work of infection and destruction is plain to seen. In the high temperatures and drying winds of the last few weeks giant elm trees have taken only a few days to turn from green to brown. In January, gales felled many a fine tree which had taken a century or more to mature. Now Wandlebury has closed because the great heat is causing apparently healthy trees to shed branches without warning. What is more frightening is that young trees planted to make good the loss are dying too.

1976 07 13
Haverhill farm damage, p9

1976 07 14
The bamboo brainchild of a group of Cambridge University student architects which has been built over Grantchester primary school swimming pool could become a permanent feature of the landscape, if planners agree. But the dome has already run into trouble with some villagers who claim it is intrusive and damaging the view from Grantchester Meadows. When it was originally put up earlier this year the structure was only intended to be temporary but now the headmaster, Mr Kenneth Jackson would like it to be retained. "It helps to keep the pool warm and keeps out leaves and other dirt. It has many uses and we are pleased with it", he said.

1976 07 15

Cambridgeshire planners are asking major international airlines to start a high-speed airbus service linking Cambridge with Heathrow, Gatwick and Luton airports. They also want the network to extend to the other provincial airports in East Anglia. The journey between Cambridge and London airport frequently forced businessmen to stop overnight and the Philips electrical organisation thinks it is worth while running a trip for businessmen between its Dutch factory and Cambridge every week. But a director of Premier Airlines of Cambridge said he did not think there is a regular demand, at the price one would have to pay.

Quy head retires, p10

1976 07 16
Giant oil slicks choked the River Cam following failures in the city's drainage system at the height of last night's storm. Oil poured into the already heavily polluted river as interceptor tanks were overwhelmed by the sudden surge of water and workmen erected booms at points where drains entered the river. It appears the oil could have come from the Garlic Row area and may have resulted from oil which has collected in the drains during the spell of hot dry weather

1976 07 17
At Cambridge Museum of Technology there is no indication that the old Cheddar's Lane sewage station off Newmarket Road, is now a museum. The place looks a shambles surrounded as it is by knee-high weeds and forbidding "Keep Out" signs. Go there; don't be put off by the haphazard arrangement of exhibits and ask the helpful attendants when you fail to understand. A computer in a museum? An electron microscope – both are on display in this potentially breath-taking exhibition. I can't help but suspect that when the lease runs out the museum is going to be transformed into a profitable block of riverside flats. But I hope this does not happen.

1976 07 19
Sir – I would like to protest about the slur cast on the standard of cleanliness of the people of Stretham. The residents are no more negligent of hygiene that those of any other village. Meadowcroft is a new estate, very well kept by the owners. Those nearest the refuse tip are most affected by the plague of flies; more than 200 are being killed in one day in one house by one resident. It has been noted that when the tip has been sprayed the following day the number of flies has decreased. – Michael Young

1976 07 20
School leavers, graduates and redundant workers have combined to swell the Mid-Anglian unemployment figure to the highest level for five months, 5,285. At the same time the number of jobs available has dropped. Cambridge Jobcentre placed a record of 468 people in work in the past month – some 68 per cent of all the notifications of job vacancies they had. Unemployment in Cambridge is now 56 per cent higher than a year ago.

1976 07 21
By 1981, the Cambridge Water Company is likely to be short of more than 1¼ million gallons of water a day. But the demand could be met if the Anglian Water Authority's proposed ground water development scheme is allowed to go ahead. Taking ground water from the chalk would help in two ways: the water could be added directly to the public supply and as it would maintain river flows in dry weather, more water can be taken from existing boreholes. By pumping water into springs and rivers it would ensure that effluent from sewage works was adequately diluted even in periods of drought.

Junior doctors strike, p13

1976 07 22
Apathetic villagers in Burwell and Cheveley have caused East Cambridgeshire District Council to hold a fourth round of parish council elections in an attempt to fill two vacant seats. Both councils have had their membership increase because of additional population. Three poll attempts have failed to stir villagers' interest. The clerk of Cheveley council said people were apathetic – but they moaned when things weren't done. The chairman of Burwell council said: "I think it is disgusting; I know people who are willing to stand but can't be bothered to get the forms – and you can't nurse them"

1976 07 23
The design of the shopping centre at Bar Hill was criticised by a councillor who says it looked like a dilapidated bingo hall. Councillor Ken Turner said: "I'm worried that the shopping centre is not a going concern". Shops seemed to change hands very quickly and some were standing empty. Coun. John Impey said things might improve when the new Tesco store opened as people were not attracted to a centre with only small shops. A supermarket had served them badly by steadily cutting down the range of goods it sold and by increasing prices. They should give the village every possible support to see that there was a return to the high ideals with which it was built.

1976 07 24
Construction work on the long-awaited nine-mile Cambridge northern by-pass has started at last. The first shovelful of earth was dug at Madingley by the recently retired Cambridgeshire County Surveyor, Mr Robert Lacey. The symbolic act ended more than 10 years of controversy over the bypass which is aimed at taking away massive juggernauts from the city's winding narrow streets. It will take up to two years to complete.

Arthus Wills, p5
Downing Street cycle way

1976 07 24
A Cambridge hot dog seller was in fighting spirits after the latest attempts to have him moved from his regular "pitch" at Bradwell's Court. Last week Ravenseft Properties suspended four metal poles from the arcade roof at the St Andrew's Street end to keep the stall out – but he simply side-stepped the poles. Now they have fixed more poles. In order to stay he would have to stand on the public right of way through the court – and risk being summoned for obstruction. Managers of two neighbouring cafes claim his stall is damaging their trade and he can undercut them since he doesn't pay rates, rent or wages. Yesterday he was determined to fight it out "to the bitter end. If they want me moved they will have to carry me out", he said

Northern bypass starts, p6

1976 07 26
Gamlingay house, p9

1976 07 27
It is not very often that one hears of a big building project being completed on schedule but Cambridge builders John Brignell and Co are two months ahead on two major council housing developments at Tanners Lane and Berrycroft Soham. At a time when the building trade in general is going through a sticky patch, Brignells are full of optimism. They have just been awarded two substantial contracts at Fen Ditton, for 218 dwellings, and the King's Hedges estate, Cambridge, for 167 houses, maisonettes and bungalows.

1976 07 29
David Lane, p1

1976 07 30
The garage business of B.E. Cocks and Co. at Newmarket Road, Cambridge, has been bought by Marshall of Cambridge, and is to become a Leyland car centre. The purchase includes almost four acres of prime garage site next to the main A45 road, modern showrooms and repair facilities and the goodwill of a business which has been running in the city for almost half a century. This and the capturing of the Daimler, Jaguar, Rover and Triumph franchises from Wallis and Sons means the Marshall group is a real force against the big garage chains operating in the region.

1976 07 30
The chances of "Lane landladies" becoming a parliamentary cause celebre have disappeared now that the MP for Cambridge, Mr David Lane, has announced his resignation. He had been campaigning against the levying of Capital Gains Tax on those who let rooms to students because it was aggravating the city's accommodation problems. In spite of the energy he has spent in his years of campaigning for the landladies the statute book remains unaltered

Burning madness, p1

1976 07 31
Syringes, p9

August 1976 CEN

1976 08 02
An experimental free bus service for the Fitzroy Street area of Cambridge commenced at the weekend, providing the public with the first buses in the area for almost three years. 67 people made use of the first bus run at 10am on Saturday. The owner of the Talk of the Town shopping arcade, Mr Carl Owen, has hired one bus from the Eastern Counties Bus Company at a cost of £30 per day. He said he will hire more for a four-week period to prove the company were wrong to stop the service.

1976 08 03
The Government has decided that the experimental traffic restriction system in the centre of Cambridge can become permanent. Through traffic will be prevented from going along Sidney Street and St Andrews Street between Emmanuel and Market Street junctions, and along King's Parade. The experiment was introduced 18 months ago – against a background of support from amenity organisations and opposition from city centre traders who carried their protests to a public inquiry.

Histon a disgrace, p3
Arundel House Hotel, p11

1976 08 04
Cambridge's first bus and bicycles lane comes into operation along Victoria Avenue after the Government approved the city council's experimental plan to put down a special lane from the Four Lamps junction to Victoria Bridge. The plan also bans all parking along the Midsummer Common side; this means the hundreds of motorists who leave their cars there will have to find somewhere else. The aim is to speed up the substantial number of buses using Victoria Avenue, particularly during the evening peak period when traffic congestion causes extensive delays.

1976 08 05
The Rev Richard Smart is both incumbent at Dry Drayton parish church and, along with the Rev Gladys Seymour, a Baptist Minister, deeply involved in the Bar Hill Church Centre. This ecumenical experiment is supported by a number of congregations, but does not mean it stages a series of incomprehensible, mixed up, hotchpotch-like services of an experimental nature. The church is a large airy, octagonal building and the altar table changes position according to taste and need. It has aroused considerable interest and the future direction of the Church may be determined by the sort of togetherness now thriving at Bar Hill.

1976 08 06
Runaway bus, p1
Eros Restaurant, p24

1976 08 10
Planners, p7

1976 08 11
Mr Fred Unwin has paid £1,400 for the publication of his first book, Pimbo. While it was being printed he approached the 'News' and because of the book's mass of colourful detail about Cambridge characters it was decided to publish five extracts in advance of publication. When the extracts ended there was a lively market awaiting the book's publication but Cambridge bookshops said they were not interested in selling the hardback book because of the price, £2.95

1976 08 12
Cambridge Water Company has tentatively agreed to supply water in bulk to Anglian Water Authority areas north of St Ives. The operation would centre on a borderline area with Ramsey and Fenstanton on one side and Upwood and Hemingford Grey on the other. At a drought emergency conference it was announced that rationing would start in the Huntingdon and St Neots areas on October 11th, unless drastic action is taken by the public to conserve supplies.

1976 08 12
A natural spring that has supplied a Whittlesford home for more than 50 years without a break has dried up. Now the occupant of The Moors has to have water brought to her home in a tank for the 40 dogs boarded at her kennels. At present she baths at a friend's home and has to use a 50-gallon tank to store the water. Cambridge Water Authority say it would cost hundreds of pounds to have a standpipe fitted because of the distance from the road. As she had never asked to go on the mains before and had opted for a private supply she was "subject to the vagaries of nature"

Spring dries up, p5
Parsons garage, p16

1976 08 13
The Anglian Water Authority has called for police protection for the men who may have to tour parts of Cambridgeshire, cutting off householders' water. "We would not be so dramatic as to say we are expecting water riots, but we need to cover every eventuality", said a Deputy Manager. "Situations could arise where a lot of excitement could be generated and the presence of the police may serve to keep the situation calm". The Chief Constable, Mr Frederick Drayton Porter said: "There might be a bit of shouting and heckling but most people realise the crisis we face and will react sensibly"

1976 08 13
Householders in the Huntingdon and St Neots area will be two-time losers if water rationing is forced on them during October. Not only will they suffer a lack of water, but at the end of the emergency they will have to pay part of a £90,000 bill. This would be the cost to cut off 13,000 homes and introduce standpipes in the area. It does not include any county council spending on police, fire and social services.

1976 08 13
Conservation areas on farms may be one of the causes of a rabbit population explosion which is the worse for 20 years. In some areas it has brought numbers up to pre-myxomatosis levels. In 1953 outbreaks of the disease killed 99 per cent of the rabbits. They recover quickly after an outbreak; in a sparse population females may produce 24 young in a year. One Essex farm has lost a third of their crops because of their activities. Another problem is that we have lost 15 to 20 years of experience in dealing with them because of the disease, said a Ministry spokesman.

1976 08 13
The retirement of a glass blower brings to an end 150 years of family service to Cambridge University. Mr Cyril Smith joined the physical chemistry department in 1925 – following in the footsteps of his father and grandfather. He was presented with a cheque subscribed to by research students with whom he has worked since 1931. Many of them are now professors and several are Fellows of the Royal Society. “When one looks back at those young budding scientists it gives me great pleasure that my line of work has in some form shaped their future”, said Mr Smith

Hardwick bypass, p14
Downing Court, Swaffham Bulbeck, p15

1976 08 14
The standard of tidiness maintained by farms, shops and businesses has helped to win Little Downham the title of Cambridgeshire’s best-kept village. The judges described the public playground as “an appetising kind of place”. The only remark on the debit side was that some of the older houses could do with a facelift. Leighton Bromswold won the Huntingdon district title; “the joiner’s shop was commendably tidy but the farmstead at one end of the village left something to be desired, even allowing for the pressure now on the farming community”, they commented. Longstowe churchyard was well cared for but “the old school looked needlessly forlorn and the notice board would benefit from a touch of paint”, judges felt.

1976 08 16
Quins, p8

1976 08 17
The great and famous avenue of Wimpole Hall is now one of England’s sadder sights. Crows caw disconsolately in the leafless tops of trees devastated by disease and over all is the horrid scream of power saws. Three hundred and twenty elms more than 250 years old are being consigned to the sawmills and to smoke. But the elms, even without the final blow of Dutch elm disease were near the end of their natural span and, when the last has been grubbed out, new trees will be replanted. But not, alas, the lovely but vulnerable elms.

Exning gold medal, p5

1976 08 20
The scheme to reverse the flow of the River Ouse from Ely to Huntingdon is likely to upset boat owners and people living near the river; there could be noise from pumps at locks, and smell in the tidal part of the river. The scheme, a bid to offset the impact of the drought crisis, will mean closing seven locks to navigation between Earith and Offord. If it goes according to plan about 30 million gallons of water a day will be pumped into Graffham Water.

Cottenham museum, p9

1976 08 23
The landlord of a public house in Newmarket Road, Cambridge, issued a blunt warning to customers: “Watch out, there’s football fans about”. This is an area which has taken the brunt of local soccer hooliganism and violence. Walk along the Road on a Saturday afternoon when United are at home and you will sense an underlying tension as supporters trek to and from the Abbey Stadium. When the final whistle blows the United supporters and the respectable part of the crowd are allowed to leave. Nearly half an hour later the visitors are permitted to make their exit under escort.

Water rationing, p1

1976 08 24
Boreholes, p3

1976 08 25
200 men fought a blaze in forest and heath at Brandon which broke out when an American air force F4D Phantom jet fighter bomber crashed on take-off from RAF Lakenheath. A family narrowly escaped injury after a piece of the aircraft came through the roof of a nearby farmhouse. The bomber had recently been refuelled and had 600 rounds of shells on board. Some of the ammunition went off in the blaze, but no one was hurt. The main road was sealed off to all traffic as men struggled to bring the fire under control. The pilot and weapons systems officer both ejected to safety

1976 08 26
A rescue operation has been mounted at the University Botanic Garden to save fish from a lake which is drying up. The lake, one of the main scenic attractions, started to fall about ten days ago and dozens of fish, mostly larger roach, dace and chub, have been transferred to the nearby fountain pond. Now they are threatened by swooping herons. The lake is normally fed by Hobson's Conduit, but all but one of the springs at Nine Wells has now dried up and even the one that is active has been reduced to a trickle.

1976 08 27
Nothing is more likely to inflame feelings now that we are being urged to wash our smalls in the bath than the sign of a sprinkler spilling precious water over Parker's Piece, Cambridge, under the heat of the noonday sun. Because the issue has aroused so much controversy City Council officials checked with Cambridge Water Company & were told that "watering for survival" is permissible; the wickets on the public cricket pitches are kept watered to prevent accidents. College gardens are among the most famous tourist attractions and until a ban comes into operation most colleges are watering those parts which they feel are most prized.

1976 08 27
For more than 200 years anglers have been inspired by the legend of the big pike in the artificial lake at Chippenham Park Estate. Occasional sightings of the elusive fish have encouraged generations to pass the story on from father to son. But the drought may have dealt a terminal blow to the tale. Over the past few months the waters have shrunk as the lake's three source springs have gradually dried up and now only a sorry puddle remains of a lake once over half a mile long. This is the first year it has ever looked like drying up and now all its fish will have to be removed

Drought adverts mislead, p1

1976 08 28
Mildenhall church vandalised, p1
Stubble fire halt factory, p6

1976 08 31
Plans for a nightclub in the former Rex Ballroom and Cinema at Magrath Avenue, Cambridge, have been scrapped after residents succeeded in opposing both a drinks licence and a music, singing and dancing licence for the club. Mr Gordon Cave wanted to open 'The Carioca Club' on the premises but faced violent objections from the police, the city council and residents who have for years protested about the noise and nuisance caused. Their complaints intensified when the ballroom was turned into a nightclub a few years ago and the cinema became a bingo hall.

"Changin Scene" supplement, p5

September 1976 CEN
I have reader printer copies of articles dated 76 09 15 etc

1976 09 01
"Out of Reach" parish magazine was launched at a reception. Its editor said that although the village has a population of only 260 it would fulfil a real need for the distribution of news. In the first issue news of the village hall committee's fund-raising bingo, fishing competition and the "Pork and Punch" tramps' ball is leavened with the fruit of some personal research which indicates there are many more pigs than people in the village. It's the same with hens, but budgerigars, donkeys, ferrets and geese are in a distinct minority.

1976 09 01
Ickleton Parish Council is taking up villagers' complaints that pigs and cows have been straying through their streets, gardens and even houses. The pigs have been walking through the streets holding up the traffic, pigs and calves have been eating vegetables in gardens and one woman even had a pig in her dining room. One mother says she saw a pig rooting around her two-month-old baby, asleep in his pram in the garden. The man who owns the animals, a chartered accountant, said he had not kept pigs before he moved to the village: "It would have been more sensible to come and tell me personally. I'm usually here at the weekend".

Kite corner shop, p13

1976 09 02
Human glands are removed from bodies at Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge and sold to the Medical Research Council without relatives' permission being sought. About 250 glands a year are sold for 20p each to the Council's laboratory at Cambridge. The money is shared among the mortuary technicians who deliver the glands. These are the pituitary glands which produce two hormones which cannot be produced synthetically. They are removed by the pathologist and are used solely for the benefit of those suffering from stunted growth or infertility. They are the only ones disposed of in this way.

Park and ride scheme, p1

1976 09 03
A 45-acre site between Fen Drayton and Swavesey may be turned into a marina and water sports centre when its working life as a gravel pit is exhausted in three years' time. The proposal is being put forward by the Amey Roadstone Corporation which operates extensive sand and gravel extraction pits in and around St Ives. A plan for a marina for 75 boats on part of the site is being considered with a suggestion there should also be a water sports area which will cater for water skiing, skin diving, water activities for children and picnicking. The workings have been operated for more than 20 years and now the company have to produce plans for reconstituting the site.

1976 08 06
Admiral of the Fleet, Earl Mountbatten of Burma, dropped in at the Burma Star Day at Waterbeach Barracks. His aim was to see for himself how, in just five years, "a bunch of amateurs" had managed to turn a small military tattoo into one of the biggest displays of its kind in the country. Flying displays were put on by numerous veteran and modern aircraft, ranging from the Spitfire to the USAF'S new F5E Tiger II fighters, based at Alconbury. A record 50,000 people attended the show and more than £6,000 profit was made for six charities catering for ex-servicemen

1976 08 07
Ancient village pumps could creak back into action if the drought crisis deepens. The idea has been put forward by Pampisford parish council which has decided to call in experts to see if its own village pumps can be put into working order. There are probably more than 100 pumps in the district, many sadly neglected and dilapidated. Some date back around a hundred years and almost all are out of working order after falling into disrepair with the introduction of piped water supplies to the rural areas. Since local councils lost responsibility for water supplies there has been a long-running dispute about their ownership though there is usually a tremendous row if anybody wants to get rid of them.

Bourn airfield tower, p3
Madingley school closure, p3

1976 08 08

East Cambridgeshire District Council received 353 inquiries from tourists last month – more than 100 more than the same time last year. The council does not have a special department to deal with tourists who visit the area and all inquiries are handled by three girls in the secretary's department, in addition to their normal work. The Council's Chief Executive, Mr Trevor Hardy, said he was worried by the amount of inquiries they were having to deal with.

1976 08 09
Cambridgeshire planners are prepared to pay anyone who is interested in taking one of the oldest windmills in England – the 17th century Post Mill at Great Gransden – off their hands. But the new 'owner' will have to be prepared to spend up to £26,000 on repairing and restoring it. The mill is one of the oldest known examples of its kind – and because of the expense of putting it right, it is rapidly becoming an embarrassment to the county council. Architectural and windmill restoration experts have estimated that up to £7,000 needs to be spent on repairs just to make the building safe. The mill was bought by the former Huntingdonshire County Council almost 20 years ago. When Cambridgeshire County Council took over three years ago the mill was closed on safety grounds.

1976 09 10
Most of the 38, century-old elm trees around Parker's Piece, Cambridge are likely to be chopped down within 10 years because of Dutch Elm disease. A number of the elms along Gonville Place are known to be diseased and felling has already started. Now tree experts fear that at least 80% of the others are likely to be affected. Replanting, using oriental planes, weeping silver limes and hybrid lime would be an ideal opportunity to commemorate the Queen's Silver Jubilee in 1977

1976 09 10
Shoppers in Saffron Walden market place were alarmed to see a figure sawing off the top of the fountain. A closer look revealed the figure with the hacksaw to be the Mayor, Coun. Stephen Neville, who had turned steeplejack to remove the fountain's iron and brass pinnacle. Coun Neville, proprietor of Eastern Boiler Works, is asking fellow engineers to help him restore the ornamental metalwork free of charge so that the full £7,000 allocated to the fountain's facelift can be used to restore the crumbling stonework. His own part in the exercise is to mould a new finial to replace the one he sawed off yesterday.

BSM move, p3

1976 09 11
Families fled a sheet of flames which destroyed the heart of the tiny Bedfordshire village of Westoning, near Amphill, after a huge petrol tanker overturned and exploded. Some ran from a row of ten houses after being woken as their homes were turned into an inferno which swept along both sides of the main street. The ordeal started just after 7 am when the 5,000-gallon tanker went out of control on the wet road, apparently after skidding. Firemen brought the blaze under control – but not before it had spread through the 10 homes and also damaged the village post office, store, bakery and pub.

1976 09 13
Mildenhall lime pit, p9

1976 09 14
Although river flows have started to recover as a result of the weekend rainfall the Anglian Water Authority is sticking to its stand-by programme of controls in the Huntingdon and St Neots areas. But for the first time for many months it has been possible to pump water from the River Ouse into Grafham reservoir, which is an important source of water for the area. Director of Operations, Mr Geoffrey Bowyer said: "We need another six inches of rain fairly shortly to bring us back to anything like normal". The drought minister, Mr Denis Howell is to visit the area to inspect a focal point of the £200,000 reversal scheme at Earith.

1976 09 15

Stokeslea, p9

1976 09 16
HH Electronics cupplement

1976 09 17
In the pleasant dining room at the Hunters Fen restaurant at Cottenham we found the Cottenham smokies (55p), a mackerel smoked by the chef-innkeeper, Mr Noel Jeffery, was worth a place in anybody's recipe book. We were also trying for the first time "our local wine, St Etheldreda, Isle of Ely Sylvaner-Reisling" at £2.50. It was fruity and extremely pleasant, so pleasant that it seemed to go down almost too quickly. We could have had steak and kidney pie (£1.65), Hunstman's beefsteak (£1.95) or Cottenham lamb cutlets (£2.05). The vegetables were an absolute delight; for 45p each we had crunchy carrots, mashed potatoes, green peas and a delicious marrow and tomato concoction. We drove off into the wet fen night after paying the bill of £12.30 well satisfied.

1976 09 18
The Mayor of Saffron Walden criticised the town's magistrates when they stopped him playing a fairground organ because the noise was interrupting a case. Coun Stephen Neville planned to play the organ in the Market Square as a prelude to his ball at the town hall. He had set up two traction engines as well as the organ to entertain home-going schoolchildren. "We got at least 500 schoolchildren down here and then we were stopped", he said. "The magistrates could have held the case in the back court".

1976 09 20
Edmund House, Milton, p9

1976 09 21
Lloyds overseas branch, p10

1976 09 22
All fish in the River Snail, near Fordham, have been killed after a discharge of pollution from Newmarket Sewage Treatment Works during routine replacement of drive equipment to the aerators in the activated sludge plant. Coun Newport said the river was often used for paddling by young children and the pollution could have resulted in an epidemic. "The Anglian Water Authority did not mention it, hoping it would pass unnoticed", he said. "Fordham has already threatened the AWA with High Court action if this occurs again".

Saffron Walden swop shop, p12

1976 09 23
In eight weeks a gang of 120 men and their expensive machines have made a nine-mile scratch across the North Cambridgeshire countryside. In two years' time, and after £16 million has been spent it will be known as the Northern by-pass. As we browsed around the site at Stow-cum-Quy the foreman told us: "Look around as much as you like but don't stop the men from working. The machines are costing us £45 an hour". The labour force, numbering 120, is increasing week by week. Most of the workers are local men, so the by-pass is giving Cambridge employment figures a welcome nudge.

Robinson College, p7

1976 09 25
Trevor Hughes, p6

1976 09 27
Boats ban, p8

1976 09 28
Cambridge University Clinical Medical School was launched in a sea of champagne bubbles when students and professors got together at Addenbrooke's Hospital for an informal reception. The first intake of students consisted of 53 young men and women who have come to Cambridge for "on the job" training and will move from speciality to speciality under the watchful eye of consultants. Addenbrooke's is already the biggest and most prestigious provincial teaching hospital and by the early 1980s will be able to take 300 students.

New industy, p5
Lightwriter, p5

1976 09 29
Wine production in the region will be more than doubled this year as vineyards reach maturity. But prospects of a vintage year have been shattered by the recent warm damp weather which has proved an ideal climate for diseases. At Linton Mr Sam Alper of Chilford Hall said they were now pressing the grapes. Mr G. Reece of Gamlingay Vineyard is finding the disease troubles "a bit of a nuisance". Mr Norman Sneesby thinks his vines at Wilburton will bring a yield of ten tons while Mr Ron Jeffries of Saffron Walden who started Wenden Vineyard four years ago hopes to improve on last year's 1,000 bottles from his one acre site.

1976 09 29
Pure, clear water is what everyone who uses Fen Drayton village hall should be getting from now in. But for almost 40 years they have been drinking unsafe water – and no-one even guessed or showed the slightest sign of poisoning. Villagers found that their water came from the nearby Land Settlement Association reservoir, where it is used mainly for watering crops. A Cambridge Water Company inspector discovered it wasn't fit to drink. It only came to light when the estate turned off supplies at night to conserve water during the drought, and the village hall taps ran dry.

1976 09 29
A new flats complex for elderly people in Sturton Street, Cambridge, was opened by Mrs Rae Linnett, widow of the former Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge University after whom it is named. He was chairman of the appeal which raised money for the scheme which was promoted by the Anchor Housing Association. Linnett House, which includes communal rooms, a laundry room and a warden's flat, is the first new development for the use of Cambridge residents named after a senior member of the University.

1976 09 30
Plans to ease the water shortage in the Huntingdon area are being held up because there is too much water in the River Ouse to bring the unique £200,000 flow-reversal scheme into operation. Graham Water is already being recharged much faster than it is being emptied. Up to a few weeks ago the flow was so low that the reservoir pumps had been idle for weeks. Now they are putting in up to 50 million gallons a day as a result of the heavy rainfall which has swollen the Ouse River system. As the Graham pumps can only handle up to 100 million gallons a day there is no safety margin to allow the trial pumping to begin

1976 09 30
It is NOT the driest summer in the Cambridge are for 500 years, or even 250 years – and that is official. Cambridge Water Company strongly suspected the statisticians were becoming over-excited. Now its doubts have been confirmed. Weathermen have been forced to admit that the months from October 1920 until November 1921 were even drier; during that time there were 13.4 inches of rain in the Cambridge area, compared to 15 inches in the same period up to the end of June this year.

1976 09 30
The powerful stench in Haverhill's library is enough to make a bookworm's nose curl up. For two days librarian Roy Foster and his staff struggled to work in the polluted atmosphere. But finally the ever-increasing smell forced the library to close. Workmen who were called in to examine the sewers and drains traced the source of the smell to a warm-air heating duct where they found a decomposed hedgehog. Following a quick clean with disinfectant the library was back in business.

Shelford WI market, p7

October 1976 CEN

1976 10 01
Kingsway Flats residents have welcomed the move by Cambridge city councillors to put a stop to noise nuisance and vandalism by youngsters congregating outside their homes at night. The residents have complained for years about youngsters running through the passageways, banging on windows and smashing milk bottles. One said: "We are sick and tired of being sworn at and insulted by these gangs of young hooligans. These kids are only 13 or 14 at the most and treat us like dirt. They sit round on the concrete yelling and shouting every night. The girls are as bad as the boys. Their behaviour is shocking. It's not just kissing and cuddling they get up to. God knows what their mothers and fathers do with them

Traffic along Backs, p16

1976 10 04
Downham conker, p7

1976 10 05
A petrol tanker overturned near Saffron Walden and in seconds turned into a raging inferno. The driver was killed. Flames shot 50 ft into the air and a thick, black column of smoke could be seen miles from the scene, on the A11 outside Audley End House. Grass verges for 100 yards on either side of the tanker were scorched and a passing motorist came close to being trapped in the blaze. A ten-yard length of the flint wall was demolished and 60 square yards of the forest was destroyed by flames. It is the second tanker disaster on the A11 in just over three years. The first was a collision between a 6,000-gallon diesel tanker and a lorry at Quendon in March 1973. Two weeks later a tanker carrying 6,000 gallons of aviation fuel collided with a car at Audley End, but there was no fire.

1976 10 06
A Newmarket councillor explained why he slips out of "tedious" council meetings for a few minutes. "I find the only way I can contain my impatience is to go out for a pint", he said. "I make no bones about it I find certain meetings drag on with repetitions and irrelevancies". He was opposing a suggestion to reduce by £2 the attendance allowance of councillors arriving more than 15 minutes late or leaving the meeting for more than 15 minutes. He could down a pint in 15 seconds and be back from the pub within 15 minutes.

1976 10 08
Only six of Cambridge City Council's 11,000 tenants have shown any interest in buying their houses since the controlling Conservatives agreed to offer them for sale. Labour members complained bitterly about the policy of house-selling when waiting lists for council houses were growing larger and house-building programmes were being cut. They also complained about the growing shortage of private houses for letting. The council's Conservative leader, Coun. John Powley said: "I want to help to return the wealth of the country to the people of the country". The council went on to confirm its policy of selling houses.

1976 10 08
Stop building! That was the instruction from the Government that blocked plans for new homes in Cambridge. The Department of the Environment now has the right to veto plans for new house building for at least three months. The first scheme to feel the effects is the Cherry Hinton housing development plans for Walpole Road which were before the council for approval. Although the scheme was given the go-ahead they will now not be allowed to invite tenders during the rest of 1976.

University day nursery, p18

1976 10 09
Rhodes James nominated, p1

1976 10 11
Work is progressing smoothly on the extension of Barnwell Road, Cambridge, to link up in about two years' time with Brooks Road on the other side of the Cambridge-Newmarket main railway line. The aim is to provide a quick route for heavy traffic between Newmarket Road and Perne Road and out on to the main roads to London. This will by-pass the notorious traffic bottlenecks of Coldham's Lane. The scheme includes a new bridge over the railway and an extensive road island and an extensive road island at the Brook's Road – Coldham's Lane junction.

1976 10 11
A pirate radio station raided by police and Post Office officials last week was back on the air at the weekend. ABC England, which has been broadcasting a two-hour music programme to Europe each Sunday, was found transmitting at New Town Road, Haddenham. It is claimed the owner of the property was not involved and had merely lent out his shed. Amongst those caught were a number of Cambridge men known to have a keen interest in the cause of free radio. Operating on short wave it has been making regular transmissions since February. A spokesman for the radio station said a broadcast went out from a secret address on a replacement transmitter

1976 10 12
More than 500 women who make their living on fenland potato-handling plants are on short-time working because of the slump in demand. The plants, which prepare potatoes for powdered substitutes, chipping, pre-packing, crisping and the retail trade are only ticking over at a time of the year when they would normally be working flat out. As a result many poorer families are now caught in a poverty trap, working only 15 hours a week instead of 35. Even in normal times they earn between 60p and 70p an hour, which is well below the agricultural minimum of 91p an hour.

1976 10 14
As you read this Cambridge's kidney transplant team could be facing a choice. Two people, both dying. Which one should they allow to live? The reason is simple. Not enough kidneys are being offered for transplant. Last year the team at Addenbrooke's Hospital only carried out 36 kidney transplants – it could cope with up to 100. The desperate shortage is continuing; for about three months they only carried out one transplant, but after some good publicity on television were able to carry out five transplants over one weekend.

Colhham's Common arena, p9

1976 10 15
Council houses in south Cambridgeshire have suffered structural damage as an indirect result of the drought – and it may cost as much as £25,000 to put it right. Two houses in Elsworth have subsided so badly that the council are in favour of demolishing them. The long hot summer caused clay subsoils to shrink with the result that some foundations have settled and cracks have appeared. Cottenham and Dry Drayton are badly affected. Some houses are rectifying themselves with the wet weather. Doors which wouldn't shut now will and cracks are sealing themselves up. The committee authorised the underpinning of houses urgently in need of repair.

Flooding & Ouse reversal, p7
Cam & farmers, p7
Bus station, p9

1976 10 16
Rhodes James, p7

1976 10 18
A new sport was devised by an Oakington farmer, Mr D.W. Chapman: spud picking. Not the orderly picking carried out each year by part-time fenland workers but a less-refined version invented by ordinary people intent on surviving in inflation-hit Britain. The offer was 7p a pound for Red Desiree. "We dig, you pick" said the advertisement in the News. With forecasts of spuds costing at least 20p a pound by Christmas is was an offer not to be scorned; like diving seagulls people swooped, grabbing, scraping and grovelling. Others wandered off to a quiet spot, kicked away the top soil and clawed out the potatoes with their bare hands. One man lifted 12 plants and then noticed his wife was selecting the whoppers and leaving the rest for the vultures. "To hell with that", he said, throwing down his fork, "I'm off to the pub"

1976 10 19
Trumpington flats, p8

1976 10 20
Swavesey street sale, p9

1976 10 21
The work of Dr Stephen Hawking, the Cambridge Reader in Gravitational Physics, is described in the Science Research Council's annual report as one of the most important contributions to science for some years. He has been working on the theory of a tiny "black hole" in space, so small it can generate intense magnetic fields. If the theory holds good it would shed light on the beginning of the universe and tend to lean towards a Big Bang theory for the manner in which it all started. Dr Hawking is severely handicapped and only able to produce his papers with the aid of a special typewriter

Newtown development praised, p18 76 10 21

1978 10 22
Peppermint, p7
Heifer, p19

1976 10 23
City & Scandinavia, p6

1976 10 25
Jubilee fun, p9

1976 10 26
'Temporary' homes, p10
Melbourn housing estat, p10

1976 10 27
Reed school, p11

1976 10 28
It is 19 years since Princess Margaret laid the foundation stone of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Arbury Road, Cambridge. At the time the first houses on the Arbury estate had been occupied for nearly four years and acres of land still remained to be built on. Today as she sees the church finally completed the changes in the area are striking. The population of the parish is now about 17,000. When the rest of the Kings Hedges estate is finished in a few years it will be nearer 20,000 – a fifth of the people in Cambridge. Houses stretch in every direction. Arbury now forms, in effect, a small town on the edge of Cambridge.

1976 10 28
Princess Margaret whisked around Cambridge on a brisk visit. At the Arbury Estate many local people stood out in the rain to welcome her. The royal party then left for Langdon House, which she had opened during the previous visit where she met Mrs Francis Aldrich, the longest-serving member of staff. By now she was 15 minutes ahead of schedule for her visit to the University Clinical Medical School. "It threw us into panic stations" said the Secretary, Mr J.P. Howe

1976 10 28
In a "double wedding" the Vicar of Thaxted "married" two female couples. The women had their union blessed in the parish church by the vicar, president of the Gay Christians, an organisation for homosexual men and women. Parts of the Church of England marriage service were incorporated in the ceremony. Later the couples and their friends celebrated with drinks at the Turk's Head Stable Bar, Cambridge and the guests went on for more drinks at the Gay Scaramouche Club in Cambridge. One said the couple were women from Cambridge, not students.

1976 10 29
The long dry summer and drought emergency measures do not appear to have influenced experts studying the possibility of storing fresh water in the Wash. Their main conclusions are the storage reservoirs are unlikely to be required this century. A more immediate improvement could be to abstract residual flows from the rivers Great Ouse and Nene which could provide additional supplies of up to 75 million gallons per day, at a relatively low cost. Since 1970 predictions of population growth and future demands for water have dropped significantly 76 10 29

Clare Hall recipes, p29

1976 10 30
Drought plans marina, p6

November 1976 CEN

1976 11 01
Garden House sold, p1

1976 11 02
The signing of a £1 million sales contract for the Garden House Hotel in Cambridge marks the end of speculation and rumour about its future. Essentially a family business established in 1910, the hotel hit world headlines in 1970 when for five hours it was the scene of some of the worst violence Cambridge has ever experienced. About 500 students besieged the hotel, hurling bricks and abuse as a protest against the Colonel's regime in Greece and caused £2,000 damage. Two years later fire gutted the premises killing two guests. This disaster led to financial trouble and the appointment of a receiver-manager in May 1974.

Childrens' shoes, p7

1976 11 03
Saffron Walden youth club leader is worried about the lack of facilities. The town has got no cinema now, there is no marked out football pitch, nor a large hall for a disco. For a modest outlay you could build a putting green or a roller skating area, but it had neither. He can foresee a time when transport becomes so expensive that the children will look inwards to the town for all their entertainment. "There's no real problem with hooliganism yet, but it's only just around the corner – in about two years' time. Even now you can tell the nights when things don't click at the centre by the broken milk bottles the next morning. Kids are just bored. Drink is one of the most dangerous influences and he can foresee a time when young people will have to show an identity card before being served in a pub.

1976 11 04
Sawston name, p11

1976 11 05
Kite plan, p9
Invalid cars, p17
Kipling papers, p18

1976 11 06
Cambridge's experimental "Park-and-ride" scheme got off to a slow start today. The first bus left from the Cattle Market at 10 am and carried only 10 passengers. The scheme is designed to relive the normal pre-Christmas traffic congestion by allowing motorists to park free of charge and then buy a 15p return ticket to the city centre. It will operate each Saturday until January 8th with buses leaving every 15 minutes. The first passengers were enthusiastic about the acres of parking space available. "It's marvellous being able to park so easily" said Mr John Blackman, who had driven in from Sawston.

1976 11 06
Clearing up after a meal and doing the washing up are not the most popular of tasks. For most people they are just chores. But for the residents of Orchard House, Sawston, they are some of the things which stops their home from feeling like an institution. This residential home for the elderly is trying very hard to give residents a sense of independence and freedom. It is divided up into five communal flats each shared by eight people with its own kitchen, sitting and dining rooms. The House is the third of its kind to be built in the area – there are others at Fulbourn and Toft – and will be opening a day centre for elderly people to visit during the week to have a bath, see a chiropodist or have their hair done.

Rifle range, p6

1976 11 08
Invalid car, p1

1976 11 09
As the "soft" civilised world beds down for the winter in cushioned, curtained, blanketed comfort, Dick Barratt throws another stick on the fire and shrugs off the cold. He is a gypsy, a Romany, a traveller, a hermit, a woodland philosopher – a loner. In his permanent but makeshift camp a few yards from the thundering A11 Newmarket-London traffic, he makes only the occasional stranger welcome against a cacophony of barking dogs. A gentleman of the road in every sense, he doesn't steal, beg, live off the state, swear, spit, smell or go unshaven. He has charm, dignity, a great sense of pride – and trusts no one. 76 11 09

1976 11 09
Wicken's eldest resident, Mr Bert Bailey, who has been a regular at the Maid's Head since the middle of the 1890s, is to have his "long service" at the pub recognised by the brewery. When he reaches his 90th birthday on Christmas Day, Watney Mann intends to give him a beer allowance of one free pint a week for the next year. Mr Bailey started drinking at the pub in 1889 – at the age of three – when he was taken by his father. He became a regular at the age of nine after leaving school. In those days beer was 2d a pint, but he was only paid 6d a day for working on a farm at Padney. He has averaged two pints a day and says this has kept him in good health.

Eltisley letter, p3

1976 11 10
A proposal to set up nursery and crèche facilities within Cambridge University for the children of its staff and students was "wholly impracticable", dons were told. Parents ought to bear the responsibility for their children, "it was not something for the university or colleges to shoulder". But trades union officials said that Pye's had already provided nursery facilities for their staff. It would provide refreshment and revitalisation & allow women freed from family ties to become workers, students and academics.

1976 11 12
Wimpole Hall is to be taken over by the National Trust and opened to the public. The decision came after a lengthy meeting of Trust officials and their advisers, ending speculation they might not be able to afford the upkeep of the substantial house and grounds. Despite a large endowment there is a great deal of work to be done on the house and park and it will probably be some two years before the Hall can be opened to the public.

Lane quits, p1

1976 11 15
Hawking, p8

1976 11 16
One-time superstar Billy J. Kramer, who had a string of world-wide hits in the 60's, walked down Mill Road, Cambridge, looking for a sauna. The more exotic delights of the street didn't quite capture his imagination. Later at Romsey Labour Club his hour-long show combined new material with well-rehearsed medleys of old hits. By the end of the night people were standing on tables, clapping, stamping and cheering as he ran for the door to a waiting get-away car

1976 11 17
Agee deported, p1, p9

1976 11 18
Prince Philip is to be Cambridge University's new Chancellor, if dons agreed to his official nomination. The job has been vacant since the beginning of the year. Now his name has been put forward any 50 dons have the opportunity to submit an alternative name. If no further nominations are received the Duke will be declared Chancellor on December 17th. The announcement ends speculation which has ranged over almost every eligible name including Lord Ramsey, the retired Archbishop of Canterbury, and Mr Selwyn Lloyd, the retired speaker of the House of Commons

1976 11 18
Nick Barraclough leads one of the most entertaining bands to emerge in Cambridge for many years. Halfway through the set of Telephone Bill and the Smooth Operators in Willingham village hall, Nick, a veteran of Cambridge's folk scene, former member of the Grand Ole Opry Road Show and with masses of musical experience, is tall with a mop of curls a moustache and ever-ready grin. On stage he does the talking, sings and plays guitar, slide dobro, banjo. He also tries to keep the group disciplined, no easy task. All the music has a good time feel and the group bubble with good humour.

1976 11 19
A gang of art thieves broke into Wimpole Hall and got away with paintings and porcelain valued at more than £100,000. Under the cover of fog the gang – believed to be London based – stripped the hall's ground floor rooms of valuable Joshua Reynolds paintings and a vast collection of porcelain. Every available Cambridge detective under their commander Det Supt Keith Hookham went to the scene when police were alerted by an estate employee. The hall and its contents are valued at about £2 million. In 1949 it was raided by thieves and a collection of snuff-boxes used by Rudyard Kipling were stolen

1976 11 19
Val Doonican, Harry Secombe, The Spinners, Julian Bream, Stephane Grappelli, Los Paraguayos – all of these artists have appeared in Cambridge within a year. All were presented by the City Amenities and Recreation Department, working under director John Wilkinson. Every concert cost city ratepayers 6p per seat for every person attending, but two years ago the figure was 50p-per-seat. Sales for Val Doonican were disappointing and a loss of £1,100.83 was incurred but The Spinners drew a full house of 1,500 to the Sports Hall for the first time and a profit of £360.09 resulted. It now provides Cambridge with an auditorium large enough for bigger artists to draw sufficient numbers of people to pay their fees.

1976 11 19
Planners agreed a new policy for Papworth St Agnes – one of the smallest villages in Cambridgeshire. It has only one road in and out, no shop, no pub, no bus service, no vicar of its own, no school, no children of school age – and very little crime. Most of it is owned by Mr Henry St John Sperling who, as lord of the manor, patron of the church, chairman of the parish meeting and local councillor, has been trying to prevent the village becoming run down while preserving its unspoilt character. The new policy aims to inject new life, restoring and improving the church, manor house, old bakehouse and two thatched cottages; but the design and materials of new houses must harmonise with existing buildings

Elsworth chapel, p10

1976
Members of South Cambs Planning Committee spent more than an hour debating how they could make their meetings shorter. There have been so many applications for development that meetings have been going on from 10am to 2pm. Matters came to a head at the last meeting which went on for 6½ hours. “Meetings could be curtailed if members weren’t so verbose”, said Coun Hilda Hatley of Waterbeach. But the chairman, Coun Joe Brown, said he had no power to stop a full discussion not would he want to stifle debate. It was agreed to stop councillors repeating themselves.

1976 11 20
Litlington primary school, housed in wartime Nissen huts, is so damp that children and staff are running the risk of electric shocks if water penetrates the wiring system. A scathing report produced by the PTA claims that the children are probably sitting on diluted urine-soaked floors to change their shoes because the changing area is a continuation of the lavatory floors. The huts have been classified as temporary since 1950. “Not far from the school pigs are being housed in an identical building”, it says. At present there are 82 children at the school which is bleak and unfriendly and away from new housing developments.

1976 11 22
The former Liberal Party leader, Mr Jeremy Thorpe, spoke to shoppers near the Market Square, Cambridge above the noise of Conservative electioneering from the next-door stand. He arrived to join the Liberal candidate, Dr Michael O’Loughlin in addressing people at the corner of the Guildhall. A few yards away the Conservative candidate, Mr Robert Rhodes James broadcast his message through a megaphone. The Labour candidate, Mr Martin Smith, remained away from the shouting match – meeting people further along Lion Yard

1976 11 22
Eighty couples took a stroll down memory lane in Cambridge, many travelling hundreds of miles for the occasion. All had one thing in common – they were married at the United Reformed Church in Cherryhinton Road. The grand get-together formed part of the church’s golden jubilee celebrations. The “earliest” married couple there were Arthur “Snowy” Chapman and his wife Irene who were married in March 1933. He had been a salesman at Laurie and McConnals and they travelled to the service from their home near Nottingham

1976 11 23
There are now more than 1,000 Italians in Cambridge; the largest immigrant group in the city. Apart from a few prisoners-of-war who stayed on after 1945, the majority arrived in the 50s and 60s. Many have earned enough to start their own businesses and establish their own homes. The head of one Italian family says that with 88 hours a week spent on running a continental corner shop and bakery there is not much time for family or social life. He emigrated from Naples in 1961 to achieve a standard of living in which he could raise a family. His first job was in a college kitchen but he soon launched his own business from a bed-sit room supplying bread and cakes to the growing Italian communities from Nottingham to London and Ipswich.

1976 11 23
Cambridge University's most distinguished cycle stand bears the university's ancient coat of arms and is reserved for just one bicycle – the Vice Chancellor's own machine. Miss Rosemary Murray insists that the quickest way to travel on official business around the city is on two wheels rather than four. But she found herself squeezed out of the few cycle racks provided at the Old Schools. With an increasing number of staff cycles being pushed between executive cars in the courtyard drivers began muttering about damaged paintwork. So Miss Murray was given a "V-C-Only" cycle stand well clear of parked cars, doorways and other obstructions.

1976 11 24
Crime, p1
Loonies on poll, p9

1976 11 26
Since 1919 Miss Betty Macleod has run the 1st Cambridge Brownies, believed to be the oldest pack in the world; and she still runs it with a Brownie hut at the bottom of her garden and meetings in her own home when wet. The number of meetings she has missed can be counted on the fingers of one hand. But now the national headquarters has issued an edict that all guiders must give up their warrants on reaching the age of 65 – which counts out 79-year-old Miss Macleod. But before she hands over the pack she is organising a diamond jubilee party. The first meeting took place on January 3rd 1917 in Downing College; it was started by Miss M.A. Gaskell who in 1911 pioneered the Guide movement in Cambridge by founding the 1st Cambridge Guide Company.

1976 11 30
The continuing problem of some Elsworth council house tenants who have to use buckets for lavatories has prompted their parish council to back their demands for improvements. Most of the pre-war homes in Brockley Road and Smith Street have no lavatories and no hot water. There are about 16 houses altogether occupied by more than 50 people. The tenants have been campaigning for improvements for years and when sewerage mains work was completed recently they thought modernisation work would begin. So far nothing has happened and councillors fear that work may be postponed again because of the present financial crisis.

Addenbrooke's Hospital pathway, p9

December 1976 CEN

1976 12 01
Parents with children at several small village schools have lost their fight to stop them from being closed when Cambridgeshire County Council backed closure because they are no longer a viable proposition. The schools are at Madingley, Ashley, Kirtling, Chippenham, Wood Ditton, Hemingford Abbots and Coldham near Wisbech. Some have fewer than 30 pupils and are housed in outdated buildings. Councillor Margaret Shaw said "Village schools are the heart of our county". But hard decisions must be taken in times of financial difficulty. The Council also agreed that more than 70 places it provides at the Perse and Kimbolton schools should in future be 'assisted; and not free

1976 12 02
Cottenham fen land, p12

1976 12 03
There were three winners in the Cambridge Parliamentary By-election – the weather, apathy and Kojak. Together they succeeded in setting up the lowest turn-out in Cambridge this century. The biggest disappointment was that of the Liberal candidate, Dr Michael O'Loughlin who had hoped to take second place behind the Conservative, Robert Rhodes James. Labour officials were saying throughout the campaign that there was little chance of success, the Independent candidate was disappointed with his vote and the National Front result was a humiliation for them, getting less than 2% of the total vote. The only person not surprised by his lowly result was the Science Fiction Looney Party candidate.

1976 12 03
With its charming thatched church and peaceful atmosphere, Rampton gives the impression that nothing ever happens there. Not so, says the Rev Degwell Thomas. Only this week a car left the road and destroyed the bus shelter and before that another car demolished 12 yards of the rectory wall. Last Friday a fire almost destroyed part of the rectory and the dry summer has produced a three-inch crack in the east end of the chancel wall of the church. One of the new residents told the Rector "This is the most exciting place I have ever lived in"

Tory win, p1

1976 12 07
The curator of the Cambridge Folk Museum, Miss Enid Porter, is retiring this week because of ill-health, after running it single-handed for about 29 years. At the moment she is in hospital and the museum is closed. Since she took charge of the museum in 1947 its popularity and size have grown considerably. It was started following an exhibition of folk items by the Women's Institute in 1936. Cambridge Rotarians launched an appeal for a folk museum and eventually the present premises in Castle Street were acquired. Miss Porter has been a prolific author, writing books on Cambridgeshire folklore and customs and contributing articles to regional magazines.

French shopping, p9

1976 12 08
More than 1,000 jobs in the Cambridge area have been saved with the supply of £3 million of public money to the Cambridge Instrument Company, following a £1.85 million trading loss. The company has suffered serious financial troubles since it was set up after Metals Research Ltd of Melbourn took over Cambridge Scientific Instruments Ltd 15 months ago. The company is one of the leading British manufacturers of scientific instruments with opposition coming from Japan, the USA and West Germany. It is to retain this technology in Britain that the Government has put up the new money

Boy Green, p1

1976 12 09
The Cambridge College of Further Education could gradually die a slow death if all it is offered are an improved staffroom and lavatories. This is the fear of teachers bitterly disappointed at the latest proposals for the future of the college. Staff were hoping for a new college on the Long Road site in place of the decrepit York Street buildings – an old church hall with prefabricated classrooms across the road. It is one of the college's two centres – the other, Young Street, a more modern building is a five-minute walk away. In the windy, rainy autumn weather staff and students get wet every hour when they have to change classrooms. The college is proud of the results it achieves with some of the less academic young people, reaching higher standards than the national average in the 11 O-levels it offers.

Please make what use of this you may. Kindly remember where it came from – www.mikepetty.org.uk

1976 12 11
Shippea Hill line, p1

1976 12 13
The Cambridge Symphony Orchestra concert turned from a potential flop to a solid hit when music-lovers rallied round to save it from disaster on Saturday. The concert seemed doomed to lose more than £2,000 but with nearly 1,000 people attending they could just break even. The managing director of the non-profit-making orchestra, Mr Jonathan Wearn said: "Beforehand were all very despondent and our guest soloist and conductor, Mr Tamas Vasary, was doubtful about confirming his March booking. Afterwards he said it was definitely on. We were so encouraged by the tremendous response and the way people rallied round at the last minute that we shall continue our links with the city". He admitted that administratively the organisation still had some problems to sort out but most of the concerts have been successful financially

1976 12 13
The Cambridge Scouts' shop in Perne Road celebrated 50 years of existence. Known first as the Equipment Store it opened in a rifle range half way up the stairs at the old Grafton Street headquarters on 13th December 1926. The shop's manager, Mr Kenneth North, took over in 1934. He remained when the shop moved temporarily to Russell Street and then to the new Scout headquarters in 1956. Mr John Chambers has been associated with it since he joined as a boy in 1940 & Roger Woollard, Scout leader running the 13th Cambridge Scouts Group, also helps out

1976 12 14
For the first time in two years Pye is going to see its television and radio division make money, but final details of the deal in which Philips Industries will take it over have still to be settled. Jobs are reasonably safe despite the selling off of the radio, television and audio side of its activities: Philips will take on those still working at factories at Lowestoft and King's Lynn. It is prepared to pay hard cash for companies whose losses were running at about £2 million last year because of the commercial benefits of expansion. Both have been busy on research and development work on radio, televisions and hi-fi equipment. Elimination of half the work brings an immediate saving. The Pye group will in future concentrate its efforts on scientific and technical "professional" equipment.

Police cadets, p7

1976 12 15
For almost the entire 60 years the National Savings movement has been in existence, villagers at Bourn have been relying on the same family to help them save. Between them Miss Amy Clark aged 84, her sister Miss Ada Clark, aged 78, and their late father have docked up 111 years' service to the Bourn Village Savings Group. The sisters' extraordinary record has been marked by the presentation of long-service medals. The Bourn group has only five members now, including the two sisters themselves but can look back on much busier days when more than 40 people were "on the books", saving for National Savings Certificates.

1976 12 16
The River Cam is being downgraded from its present status as a top-class river because of its deteriorating condition, mainly due to sewage and oil pollution. Downgrading would be a black mark against the Anglian Water Authority. More money will have to be spent on sewage treatment. Its Scientific Director said there had been an improvement during the past year, but low flow had aggravated the situation.

1976 12 17
The Cambridge County Court moved into a new office block between Bateman Street and Norwich Street earlier this year. Both the court and the offices are uncompromisingly modern. They are efficient, comfortable but quite impersonal. The court room with simple modern furniture lacks the character of the old premises in the centre of Cambridge. But most cases dealt with are divorce and perhaps the less daunting informal atmosphere is more suitable. The witness boxes are so close to the judge's chair than an incensed witness could hit the judge and certainly see his notes.

1976 12 17
A storm of protest followed the building of a line of office blocks in Hills Road, Cambridge, about three years ago. Public meetings were organised and people claimed the character of the area was being ruined, good housing lost and small shops demolished or forced out of business. Most of the offices replaced large terraced houses of little architectural interest. But the busy main road was not an ideal site for housing and several were no longer private homes. The new buildings are individually of quite a high standard, but they appear completed isolated and out of character with the shopping area. They need something to break up their long facades and link them with the variety and bustle of the shopping area. But the offices have injected a new source of life into the area; already a bank and several eating places have opened up, presumably to catch the lunch time trade from the offices.

1976 12 20
The Government has chopped almost £10 million off its cash aid to Cambridgeshire County Council. Senior councillors have been shocked at the figure, which is almost £4 million more than originally anticipated and the most savage cut in the country. Councillors said that last year the Government took account of the county's growing population, but this year it has gone back to the old method and is working on population figures that are two years out of date. They have decided to shift money in favour of London and major urban areas.

1976 12 22
Waterbeach factory, p8

1976 12 23
Mr Stanley Chown has created hundreds of masterpieces over the last 50 years, only to see them destroyed in minutes. But he takes it as a compliment, because he is chef manager at Pembroke College, and has cooked his way to the top of his career. Last night a special reception was held at the college to mark his retirement. Mr Chown started as an apprentice chef with the college in February 1926. "In those days you did seven years' apprenticeship and then two more years before you were recognised as trained. I got five shillings a week when I began, and 15 shillings a week after five years", he said.

1976 12 23
When it's finished it will be the house that Jack – and Tom and Dick and Harry – built. In fact, almost everyone who lives in the Riverside Improvement Area will have made some kind of contribution towards the conversion of 6 Priory Road, Cambridge to make it their Neighbourhood House. At the moment it's a disused vegetable store, but now the City's Property Panel have given the go-ahead to turn it into a neighbourhood centre – on the understanding that residents carried out the work themselves. The centre will be mainly for the older people in the community. At the moment they go to the Howard Mallett club but it is very difficult crossing the busy Newmarket Road. Money raising ideas have already been put into operation. Christmas cards with a local Riverside area scene are selling like hot cakes. They were designed by Richard Darlington, closely involved in the project as the council's Area Improvement Officer.

Samuels shop, p8

1976 12 24
A question-mark hangs over the hub of local farming at Owen Webb House, as the county branch of the National Farmers' union embarks on a long round of negotiations which could lead to Ely becoming the capital of county agriculture. Negotiations for the proposed site in Silver Street, Ely, reputed to be worth about £50,000 are still in their infancy. The Owen Webb site in Cambridge has enormous development potential but the secretary is certain that the centre, opened in 1953, will remain the focal point for county farming

1976 12 29
Dozens of people armed with forks and spades descended upon a potato field at Over for easy pickings. The recent wet weather and the promise of sharp frosts promoted a local farmer, Mr Brian Burling, to make potato lovers an offer they couldn't refuse. They were given the chance of digging as many as they could at the rate of £6 a row, each row concealing about one hundredweight of potatoes. This could amount to selling potatoes at 5p a pound; in the village shop they cost 13p. Not all the pickers were locals. Some had travelled from Cambridge and Royston. Some found that the digging was not only kind on their pockets but also helped to work off the Christmas pudding and turkey. Mr Burling hopes that within six days about 20 acres, with 200 tons of spuds, will be cleared.

Grantchester barrel race, p4

1996 12 30
The Cambridge Polish community has a simple though to reflect upon. Fascism drove them out of their country and brought them to Britain & the advent of communism back home kept them here when the war ended. Poles like Henio Muszynski and Czeslaw Rataj, young infantrymen in 1945 recall the camaraderie of a post-war further education camp at Fowlmere where many were taught English and eased into British life. Cultural and social activities thrived; there was dancing and drama, "but we would just hire a place so that people would meet every week to talk Polish and just play cards", said Mr Muszynski. Four years ago the community raised the money needed to buy a three-story club house in Chesterton Road. It has 300 members and is a comfortably furnished piece of Poland in Cambridge.

1976 12 31
Bar Hill Christmas, p11

Please make what use of this you may. Kindly remember where it came from – www.mikepetty.org.uk

1977 Cambridge Evening News

I have reader-printer copies of these articles dated at end

January 1977 CEN

1977 01 01
Bar Hill floods, p1

1977 01 04
The New Year did not start very happily for two householders at Stretham. They awoke on the first day of 1977 to find their homes flooded after heavy overnight rain. Mr Derek Constable said the flooding was caused by a drain under the nearby A10 road which was too small. Flooding started after the road was built in 1964. Flooding also hit several places in the Huntingdon and St Neots areas and a small brook that burst its banks flooded two houses and other buildings belonging to the Cambridgeshire Hotel in Bar Hill. Traffic on the A604 was reduced to a crawl as the water swept across the road into ditches and roadworks on the opposite side.

1977 01 05
One of the more intriguing battles to be fought in the New Year is whether or not Cambridgeshire County Council's 47,000-acre smallholdings estates survives in its present form. The estate, which looks after the interest of about 5,000 tenants and workers is the largest of its kind in the land, established to offset the more disastrous injustices of the Depression in the 1920s and 1930s. The question is whether it would be better to carry out a phased withdrawal, say over 20 years, and allow those tenants who wish to buy their holdings to achieve their independence. The issue is further complicated by the fact that the estate is undergoing a radical amalgamation scheme designed to create larger and fewer holdings which are more economic to run. 77 01 05

1977 01 05
A former Cambridge businessman who built a £30,000 road at Milton without planning permission has now applied to keep it in operation to serve 12 proposed allotments. The site where the road was built in 1974 has been the centre of controversy for some years. Enforcement notices ordering the removal of the road, along with a Nissen hut and the clearing of scrap from the site were issued two years ago. Milton parish council clerk, Mr Barry Connor, said the village had two sets of existing allotments. One belonging to the parish council would be cut in half by the new by-pass. The other belonged to the church. There was a waiting list for the parish council's allotments.

1977 01 05
The golden age of British farming output and productivity had come to an end and a new generation of farmers will find life much tougher, according to Cambridgeshire MP, Mr Francis Pym. An incredible record of sustained production and productivity, unmatched by any other industry, had been upset by the present Government policies. "The years ahead are going to be hard and farmers are going to need all their reserves of will and skill to survive the difficulties", he concluded.

1977 01 06
A 19-year-old girl from the Royston area is in Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge, with polio. It is the first case reported in the region for several years. The Hospital stressed there was no need for undue concern but urged members of the public to check their own vaccinations, which is taken by mouth on a lump of sugar. In 1975 only one case of polio was reported nationally. Last year it rose to eight. It is believed the Royston girl is the second victim so far this year.

1977 01 06
Most tourists coming to Cambridge do not get a change to the see the places around the city, because they have no transport of their own. Now a freelance journalist has formed a firm called Traditional Pub Evenings with the idea of taking visitors – and locals if they want to go – out to two well-known inns, the Three Horseshoes at Madingley and the Chequers at Fowlmere, for what he calls a traditional night out in a natural environment. The price of £4.95 includes transport by coach to both of the inns supper at one of them and a hostess to supply historical information on the places visited. If it is successful the plan is to build up the service to three or four nights a week in the main tourist season.

1977 01 07
Newmarket's one-man band of talent, Pete Sayers once used to be a country singer. He is now an all-round entertainer. His "brother" Dennis, a yokel, has an inoffensive yet earthy sense of humour likely to brand him as Suffolk's answer to Billy Connolly. He speaks with wildly protruding teeth and wears thick-lensed spectacles, a cloth cap and a dirty old mackintosh. A firm favourite, he was less funny last night with the effect that his act went on too long. Another polished character is Ricky Storm, a raving rock'n'roll hangover from the 1950s with a "DA" hairstyle, "creeper" shoes and smart period suit, while Lawanda Davis, his female impersonation, is a full-figured country singer straight out of Nashville.

Netherhall alarm, p1
O'Loughlin retires, p7

1977 01 08
A Cambridge solicitor, Mr John Hales Tooke paid a £3 fine in court – not for himself but for a well-known Cambridge character, Trevor Hughes. The reason – he had overlooked giving Mr Hughes his regular Christmas box and thought that meeting the fine imposed for being drunk and disorderly was a good way of redressing the situation. And while Mr Hughes was lucky, so was Mr Hales Tooke. For one of the magistrates said that they would have made the fine £10 if they had known Mr Hales Tooke was going to meet it.

1977 01 10
Bourn windmill is expected to be in working order again in the Spring following the battering it received in last winter's gales. One pair of sails were torn off in a storm, but all four are being renewed, for it was discovered that the remaining pair were in such a bad state that a thorough restoration was needed. When the Cambridge Preservation Society embarked on the restoration work it was estimated that it would cost around £4,000. But the state of the remaining sails and their replacement has now boosted the costs to more than £7,000. Bourn Mill, a post mill which dates back to the mid-17th century is reputedly the oldest surviving windmill in the country.

1977 01 11
Molly Dancing, a special Cambridgeshire Plough Monday celebration which died out in the 1930s, has made a comeback at Balsham. The Cambridge Morris Men revived the custom as part of the ritual of taking an oak plough round the village. About £1,000 has been raised for charity since Plough Monday was revived seven years ago but for once the "Ploughmen" in breeches and waistcoats, jocularly threatening to carve up lawns unless given money, were upstaged by the enterprise of the Morris Men. Mr Russell Wortley said the costumes were as authentic and possible and the tunes were recorded from an elderly Morris dancer at Comberton who died many years ago. It was the first time they had been danced since the tradition died out at Little Downham in 1936.

Area traffic wardens, p1
Sinclair tv, p5
Huntingdon mill, p5

1977 01 13
Heavy snow hit Cambridge as the worst weather for 14 years caused nationwide chaos and led to widescale disruption on the roads and railways. Weathermen say the snowfalls will be heavy and prolonged and warm winds could produce drifts. In many places there were snowfalls of more than one foot. Thousands of people were late for work as hard-packed snow, freezing fog and black ice made driving treacherous. And many trains were late or cancelled despite an all-night fight against the Arctic conditions by British Rail who called in their full cold weather emergency procedures.

1977 01 13
The Cambridge "park and ride" scheme is to be continued indefinitely on Saturdays because of its success during the Christmas and New Year periods. At present the cattle market on the south side is used as a temporary car park and people can get at 15p return trip into the city centre on a bus. The service was started by the Eastern Counties Omnibus Company with the backing of the Chamber of Commerce and the City Council. The cattle market has spaces for about 700 cars and was constantly three-quarters full immediately before Christmas. The service might end if the city council wanted it to cease being a car park or if the bus company lost a lot of money on it.

Chishill church beer, p6

1977 01 14
The Cambridge cattle market, which has stood at Cherryhinton Road for almost 100 years, should be closed on its present site as soon as possible, the city council decided, because the ratepayers receive no benefit from the thousands of pounds spent on subsidising it each year. It is the only sizeable market in the whole of the county and played an important part in the city's life. Its closure did not exclude the possibility of its re-opening elsewhere. In the meantime the market should be accommodated on a smaller part of the site, thus releasing an amount of valuable land for industrial development.

1977 01 15
The Central EMI Bingo and Social Club, a converted cinema in Hobson Street, Cambridge, could quite comfortably have found a place in the zaniest of science fiction movies – with its brash psychedelic mish-mash of colours and huge electrically operated board that rises high behind the caller. The four-year-old club has 10,000 members and is an addict's paradise – open every afternoon and evening except Sunday and with hundreds of pounds at stake at each session. On Saturday the club linked up by phone to the EMI club in Oxford for a game which boasted a £400 jackpot. In the few seconds between games people dashed for the fruit machine which spills out its £30 jackpot in 50p pieces

Reach railway bridge, p6

1977 01 18
Joss sticks burned in King's College Chapel, Cambridge, when a capacity audience of more than 1,000 heard a recital by the world-renowned Indian sitarist, Ravi Shankar. The recital was in the ante-chapel with Mr Shankar and his accompanists seated on a specially erected dais covered with traditional Indian rugs and surrounded by electronic recording and amplifying equipment. James Day reported: "It was advisable to listen with closed eyes and let the music sink in; but opening them occasionally and focussing on the organ screen I would have sworn just for a moment that the carved bosses had turned into elephants' heads and that instead of being in King's I was in some oriental temple".

Marshall buy Oliver Rix, p11

1977 01 19
Reach mothers are uniting to press for the rebuilding of a bridge which they say is a potential death trap. It spans the disused railway line on the only main road into Reach from Swaffham Prior. Twenty feet below the bridge are the remains of the parapets, demolished by hooligans, brick by brick, over the last two years. A water main had burst on the surface of the bridge, which has subsided. The Assistant County Surveyor agreed the ideal solution would be to demolish the bridge and level the road, but they were unable to make funds available at the moment. The council is still in the process of taking the bridge over from the Railways Board.

1977 01 20
A grant of £650 is about to set the ball rolling in a bid to save something of a fast-fading group of wall paintings at Barton parish church. But it will scarcely cover the cost of restoring half of one of the major paintings – a picture of St Michael weighing souls, which is above the north door. Work is due to start after Easter. The paintings remained hidden for many years after they were covered up during the Reformation period. An attempt at restoration was made in 1929 but modern methods were not available and the work was not a success. Over the years the paintings have deteriorated further. Five years ago costs were estimated at around £3,000 and prices have spiralled since then.

Cycle sale, p9
Trumpington pub to houses, p10

1977 01 21
Parents at Hemingford Abbots have come up with a do-it-yourself plan in a bid to save the village school. It suggests parents teaching at the school as well as cleaning it and serving school meals & is to be studied by the parish council and school managers. It was put forward after the county council confirmed its decision to close the century-old thatched school where two teachers handle two classes of five to 11-year olds. It is due to close in September next year. Mrs Joan Keane, parish council chairman said: "We have got to save the school because it is the only real focal point for the village. If the school goes the village loses its heart and its identity"

P.D. James profile, p21

1977 01 22
More than 22,000 people are waiting to go into hospital in East Anglia, a substantial increase on last year when only 18,056 were awaiting admission. 1,447 cases were classified as urgent and 966 of them had been waiting for a bed for more than a month. Waiting times varied greatly from speciality to speciality but about 5,000 people have been waiting more than a year. The regional medical administrator said the figures were "surprisingly encouraging" bearing in mind the no-growth financial situation and the disruption caused by industrial action.

1977 01 24
A ticket system devised to control tourists visiting Cambridge during the summer might deter some people from coming to the city, according to a city council report. The system, introduced on April 1st is starting because ever increasing numbers of tourists have been causing chaos at the colleges. It requires the issue of a permit to visit the college – at £1 for every 24 people – well in advance of the party's visit. Coach operators have warned the scheme will not work unless a convenient bus park is provided

1977 01 26
Sunday services at Rampton are being enlivened by the return of a colony of squirrels to the church roof, but the accompaniment they are giving to the hymns is upsetting the congregation. A previous rampage was resolved when they were flushed out after repairs to the famous thatched roof in 1975 & the squirrels' squeaking activities seemed a thing of the past. Now they have found a haven between the outer and inner roofs of the tiled chancel. So in warm and comfortable surroundings the squirrel squatters again scramble about as the congregation lifts its voices in song.

1977 01 26
The international entertainment organisation, Mecca, has invited Cambridge City Council to talk about possible future uses for the Corn Exchange, one of the city's main entertainment centres. Five years ago Mecca turned down a request, saying Cambridge was too small to support a large-scale complex. Four years ago the Council expressed interest in a massive facelift operation, but could not afford the then £1.5m for the work and was unable to find a private backer. Coun. Garner said: "It is often criticised as a white elephant, but it is surprising just how many functions are held there. We would not want to lose this amenity"

1977 01 28
Prof Kapitza, p7
Home Farm, Histon, p16
Girton golf club, p26

1977 01 29
Western bypass delay, p1
Fordham railway carriages, p7

1977 01 31
A wave of soccer hooliganism swept across Cambridgeshire as hundreds of supporters passed through the county on their way to three major matches in East Anglia. At one time a convoy of 21 coaches carrying about 1,000 fans was escorted by police. A whole coachload of Derby fans was arrested in Cambridge city centre and escorted back to the Essex border after cars were damaged and occupants hurt by thrown bricks, bottles and beer cans. Cambridge United's Fourth Division clash with Darlington at the Abbey Stadium was free from serious trouble but pubs reported incidents as fans swept through the city. A soldier was injured outside the Still and Sugar Loaf public house at the Market Square.

1977 01 31
Everyone – from nannies to kids – is getting in on the goat-keeping lark and membership of the Cambridgeshire Goatkeepers's Society has jumped by 50 per cent. They say that more and more people want to do things for themselves and avoid the impact of rising prices. Milk has become quite costly. Most of the goatkeepers keep their animals in pens and let them out in their back gardens for exercise. Unfortunately goats prefer roses and blackcurrants to keeping the grass in trim.

David Hughes, p13

February 1977 CEN

1977 02 01
Men stripped to the waist are continuing a chicory drying process used at a Lakenheath factory 40 years ago. Mr John Fisher has brought Home Grown Chicory Ltd and turned it into a profit-making business, carrying on where the combine, Rank Hovis McDougall left off after three years. Farmers within a 20-mile radius grown about 400 acres of chicory a year – all of which when dried goes to a coffee plant at St Ives. More than 10 years ago the factory was handling three times the amount of acreage and Mr Fisher hopes to encourage farmers to grow more. The main alternative crop is sugar beet but chicory does not require any pest control whereas the sugar beet farmer has to pay several pounds an acre to protect his crop

Milton blackspot, p4
Hospital costs, p9
Apthorpe-Webb, p10
Cambridge United, p17

1977 02 02
The Dorothy Continental delicatessen on the corner of Sussex Street, Cambridge, ceased trading at the weekend. It was the last remaining part of the former Dorothy restaurant and ballroom, sold by G.P. Hawkins in 1972 for £850,000. The Dorothy contained a supermarket, restaurant, large ballroom and other rooms used by many organisations for official functions. It was taken over by the Co-op in 1952. The above-ground part of the Dorothy was acquired by Waring and Gillow, the London-based furniture chain, the remainder now forms the Henekey Tavern. When the Dorothy closed, Hawkins moved it's outside catering section to the Alma Brewery site in Russell Street.

Order of boot, p5

1977 02 03
The villagers of Offord Darcy will shortly say goodbye to their most familiar landmark – a railway carriage which has stood at the entrance of the village for more than half a century. It is going to Kent to become part of a museum railway. Mrs Joan Athow has lived there since she was a child until just two years ago. Her grandfather bought the carriage when it was taken out of service in 1921. It was built in the 1890s and did the London to Scotland run which passes through Offord station, since closed down. Recently it began to deteriorate and they began to look around for someone to restore it. The operation will cost around £2,000. – 77 02 03

1977 02 03
There are holes in the roof of old Peter Price's home and he has no proper heating, lighting, running water or sanitation. That is just the way he likes it. And he has turned his nose up at what his new landlord wants to do with his tumbledown home – one of seven derelict 18th-century cottages in Chilton Street, Clare. He is by his own admission a rather unorthodox character & has lived alone in the cottage since 1948. He survives on home-grown vegetables and a crate of Guinness a week. His only heat is an open-log fire over which a pot of "stew" is constantly on the boil. He won't say what he's stewing.

Haddenham pop pirates, p1
Corn Exchange, p11

1977 02 04
Every one of four generation of the Reynolds family is a past, present or future "rock king". They are Mr James Robert Reynolds, aged 85, his son Jack, his grandson John and his great grandson James Robert, seven. Jack still makes old-fashioned brown rock – square, not lettered - in a tiny plant at the back of his shop in Newmarket Road, Cambridge which he mans seven days a week. He joined his father when he left school at the age of 14. There have been "rock kings" in the family for at least six generations. "It would be nice to see it go on – and every one of them a 'J'" he said.

Ely beet factory, p13
Whim, p17

1977 02 05
Members of the Cambridge & District Skittles League see themselves as men of great skill and dexterity, pitting their wits against other eight-man teams in a three-dimensional game that has its own terminology. They hurl, toss or spin a flat, flying saucer-shaped cheese at a table resembling a large, sparsely padded armchair upon which are spaced nine wooden pins. Each player has a maximum of four throws to demolish as many as he can. The dedicated band of serious skittles players are a dying breed. Gone are the days when coachloads of players used to arrive long before the game to limber up.

1977 02 07
Ox-roaster, p11

1977 02 08
Nell Gwynne's house, p6

1977 02 09
The machinery from the old watermill at Little Wilbraham, disused for more than 40 years, is being restored and re-assembled at the Cambridge Museum of Technology, Cheddar's Lane, by watermill enthusiast Chris Hereward. Hawks Mill was discovered during a survey of industrial relics in the area and the farmer agreed to donate the machinery to the museum. Mr Hereward managed to transport many of the parts in his Mini van – although the ton-and-a-half main drive shaft had to go by trailer. Some of the ironwork bears the stamp of a local agricultural engineer, S. Long of Fulbourn.

1977 02 10
Planners took a long hard look around Cambridge to see where development could best be accommodated. They soon dismissed Histon or Girton because they have relatively limited potential for longer-term growth. At Milton there is considerable opportunity for expansion within the new road framework. Both Bar Hill and Waterbeach possess characteristics suitable for growth, but Cottenham is less accessible to Cambridge. Growth of up to 4,000 might be contemplated in the Teversham-Fulbourn area and the same at Bottisham. To the south it would be possible to develop the Clay Farm area of Trumpington and the Shelfords but Sawston seems to have the greatest development potential

Expand villages, p1
Stapleford museum, p13

1977 02 11
Reservoirs planned for Abbotsley and Great Bradley are no longer shelved. They were temporarily abandoned when the Government gave in to pressure for a Wash feasibility study. A decline in population, coupled with high costs have meant that any such scheme is now unlikely so Anglian Water Authority engineers are looking at the schemes again to find out how they compare in cost. Any revival of the Great Bradley scheme will be met with bitter opposition. When the plans to flood the 200-acre valley were first proposed 10 years ago the parish made the strongest protests possible and villagers believed the threat to their livelihood was dead. At Abbotsley parish councillors promised there would be violent opposition to the plan.

1977 02 12
After more than 200 years, the great elm avenue at Wimpole Hall, has now almost completely disappeared. The 202 elms had become so old and diseased that administrators were forced to call in contractors to fell the entire three-quarter-mile section of the avenue that stands on Wimpole land. The task has taken months and now little more than logs survive to tell the tale. Now the work of re-planting with lime trees will begin

Police strike, p1

1977 02 15
Arts Restaurant, supplement

1977 02 17
What kind of shopping facilities will we see in Cambridge in the future? If recent events are pointers then the small operator will be replaced – just as quaint non-conformist Petty Cury was replaced with the corporate dullness of Lion Yard. The rents jumped enormously leaving the high mark-up multitudes – Golden Egg, Dixons, Van Allen, Etam, Chelsea Girl et al to take the units paying between £3,000 and £18,000 a year in rent. It meant that the variety of shops was reduced. If the Kite complex proposals were to see the light of day then an identical effect could occur. 77 02 17

Vintage map, p15

1977 02 18
Children at Barrington are raffling a patchwork quilt they have made of village life. Mrs Diana Howard, the deputy head, and Mrs Pauline Pearson were the teachers in charge of the needlework classes that made the quilt. It is made up of 56 different pictures. It took over a year of craft afternoons to finish and was made by second, third and fourth-year pupils. Now it will be going on a long tour of the village before it is raffled. The money will go to buy equipment for the school playground

1977 02 18
The Three Horseshoes, Madingley is not the place to visit for lunch-time unless you are prepared to pay around £1.50 per head to sample the inn's delicious home-made steak and mushroom pie. The price does not seem unreasonable when you are invited to dig into at least four bowls of mixed salads and then pick up a chunk of bread and butter. Cheaper dishes are available. Drinks are priced at 30p for a pint of beer and 35p for a glass of wine. Coffee with cream is served in the bar at 25p.

Rampton bees, p9

1977 02 21
Business was brisk at Zacharama, three new Cambridge student travel centre when the first customers slipped in before the official opening by the Vice-Chancellor, Miss Rosemary Murray. It has been started with a £5,000 loan from Cambridge University. The travel service can be used by both students and the public, but some services will only be available on production of college identification. Profits will be used to repay the loan and provide student facilities both in the university and at the technical college

Cz Instrument Company workshops, p5

1977 02 22
Cambridge open-air market traders have slammed the city council's decision to close the underground lavatories on the Market Square during the day. It will be most inconvenient for the many fruit and veg sellers obliged by health regulations to keep hot water on or near their stalls. They now face a hundred yards walk to the Lion Yard super loos, described as the most palatial in the country. But women stall holders can face up to half an hour's wait during the summer tourist season.

1977 02 23
Miss Kitty Willers, for more than 60 years a bellringer at Trumpington parish church, has died at the age of 78, having lived her whole life there. Her cycling and bellringing feats established her reputation as something of an eccentric. Until recently she would think nothing of cycling hundreds of miles. Once she refused offers of a lift to Loughborough to see the church's new bells being cast. When the church party arrived at the foundry they found Miss Willers there already as part of the reception committee. She had started cycling at four in the morning.

1977 02 24
A train derailment has put a freight line from Cambridge to St Ives out of action. An engine pulling nine wagons left the rails at Fen Drayton. The train driver and guard escaped unhurt as the engine ground to a halt – leaning over only feet from a flooded field. One theory is that the recent flooding had loosened ballast under the rails, causing them to slip sideways. The line is used mainly to transport sand and gravel from the Amey Roadstone Corporation works to London and will disrupt shipments of thousands of tons of sand and gravel

1977 02 25
From 7 a.m. a business-minded man was to be found standing all day at Earith lock, poised to leap into action as cars spluttered to a halt in more than a foot of floodwater. The price for motorists who lost the gambol to get across the 150-yard section of waterlogged road was £1 for a push out and clean-up with a rag, £2 for a tow out with a Landrover. The 'get you out' service has been in regular operation for a number of years and is lucrative: "If they can't pay we'll take anything: watches, foreign currency, cheques", he said. By evening there was cut-throat competition from two enterprising schoolboys from Bluntisham; they had made £20 during the week.

Postmen, p13

St Neots golf, p17

1977 02 26
The BBC plans to open a local radio station in Cambridge as soon as the Government gives permission for an extension of local broadcasting. At present it runs 20 local radio stations, mostly in the densely populated industrial areas of the country but would like to open a further 45, of which one would be in Cambridge. Four years ago two local radio consortia were formed with the aim of applying for a commercial broadcasting station licence as soon as these became available.

1977 02 28
The hopes of setting up a World Mushy Pea Eating Championship were well and truly dashed at the Five Bells public house in Cambridge. The blame for the collapse of their record attempt was put on the peas themselves. "You just wanted to be sick, they were so foul", said landlord George Low. "They were so terrible no one could eat them. I was looking to eat 10 bowls-full myself but could only manage two". The processed peas were provided free by a commercial soup firm. Despite this Mr Ronald Toates managed to down nine bowls-full to win an impressive trophy provided by Cambridge Catering Equipment

Bypass bridge, p9

March 1977 CEN

1977 03 01
Somersham villagers are pleased to announce the departure of their old railway station. The disused wooden buildings claimed to be a potential danger to children are to be knocked down. But this does not mean the end of the line for the century-old station. A mystery businessman is having it turned into a mammoth jigsaw puzzle – to be erected more than 100 miles away near a small private railway line in Berkshire. The parish council chairman said: "We hope whoever it is takes a liking to the signal box as well. That needs to go too and then there will be no danger at all." 77 03 01

Castle Street property, p4
Squatters, p9

1977 03 02
Mr Dick Dunford of Waterbeach is a firm believer in hoof-power and would prefer to have his horse, Fred, than a smart car any day. He comes into Cambridge on a shopping trip, riding along the A10 from Milton. When they arrive Fred will happily stay put at any convenient car park, meter or cycle rack. Mr Dunford pays the going rate at meters and has never got a parking ticket: "The traffic wardens like him", he said. 77 03 02

1977 03 03
Cambridge councillors are considering a new plan for building large numbers of low-price houses. A major building company would build houses to a standard design on a number of council-owned sites; the council would prepare the land, put in sewers and build estate roads. They would then buy the houses from the builders and sell them to young people living in council houses or who are on the waiting list. The plan is linked with a savings scheme aimed at giving first-time homebuyers enough money to put down as a mortgage deposit. Coun. John Powley said: "We are determined to give as many of our tenants as possible the opportunity of buying their own homes – and this is a new way of doing it".

1977 03 04
Skateboarding, p4
Milton expansion, p9

1977 03 05

Winmau Darts is to move from its factory at Haverhill because it was unable to find premises in the town large enough to cope with booming export orders. The Rockwood Way factory will be closed in an effort to streamline production, bringing the manufacture of dart-boards and darts under one roof. They have tried to find alternative sites in Haverhill but have not come up with anything suitable and are looking at King's Lynn, Bury St Edmunds or Sudbury. All 85 workers will be affected but the company is hopeful that as many as possible will remain with the firm.

1977 03 07
Two youths mugged a 71-year-old spinster in Cambridge for the sake of 20 pence. The lady, who has a weak heart, was attacked from behind as she walked down Union Road and her bag containing 20p, an old-age pensioner's bus pass and a blue torch was wrenched from her hands. A senior CID officer called it a nasty, cowardly attack on a defenceless old lady. Plain-clothes officers checked pubs and police dog-handlers scoured the area but their search drew a blank.

1977 03 09
Cambridge City Football Club's move to quit the Southern League for the Isthmian League third division brought a blazing Milton Road mutiny last night. City chairman Laurie Boost was presented with a petition of 221 names calling for the directors to reverse their decision – or resign. Manager Roy Johnson announced he would quit at the end of the season, club secretary John Aves, groundsman and trainer Bill Brignell and even ball-boys Paul Craft and Philip Butler said they would follow suit if the directors stick to their decision. The players also repeated their view that none of them would drop into the Isthmian League with City.

1977 03 09
The RAF Hospital at Ely, whose future was in doubt because of defence cuts, will stay open, thanks to a decision by the Cambridgeshire Area Health Authority to help with its costs until there is a substantial expansion of National Health Service facilities. Closure of the hospital, which carries 65 much-needed NHS beds, would have a serious effect on hospital provision. They also pledged to keep the maternity service in Ely going should the Defence Department give them notice to quit the Grange Maternity unit

1977 03 09
The experimental mini-roundabout at the junction of Newmarket Road and Coldham's Lane, Cambridge was working well on the first morning of its operation. Even at the height of the rush hour traffic was flowing smoothly. It has been put in temporarily while the traffic lights at the junction are being taken down; they will eventually be replaced with more up-to date lights as part of the Newmarket Road improvement scheme. Police Chief Inspector Maurice Murden said: "To think our problems have been solved by an old tractor tyre! It is something we have advocated for years, and now we just hope that it will become permanent". One driver said his driving time to his home in Chesterton had been cut from 20 minutes to five.

1977 03 10
The church of St Andrew the Great, Cambridge, could be turned into a community centre or a restaurant, but planners have rejected its use as a shop or offices. The church is one of a number which Diocesan authorities wish to declare redundant. The Australian High Commission expressed concern about its future because it contains a memorial to Captain Cook and a number of people protested against the closure of a Christian place of worship. Another suggestion is that it should be converted into a mosque for the city's 400-strong Moslem population.

1977 03 12
Newmarket Road works, p4
Shooting, p5

1977 03 14
Citizens Guide car parks list, p23

1977 03 15
A novelist told how a surprise trans-Altlantic telephone call to her Cambridge home ended her days as an impoverished aspiring writer – with the news that she had become a millionairess. Australian-born Colleen McCullough was holding a small party for friends in her flat when her literary agent called from New York to say the rights to her novel "The Thorn Birds" had been auctioned for £1,117,000 – the most ever paid for a paperback.

Polio, p15

1977 03 16
Residents in some of South Cambridgeshire's small villages which do not yet have main sewerage, could still be stuck with their cesspools and septic tanks in the year 2,000. Among schemes which do not now appear in Anglian Water Authority's programme are the Balsham & Teversham treatment works extensions and the Sawston Deal Farm pumping station. This means West Wratting and Weston Colville cannot go on to main sewerage and new housing at Sawston is in jeopardy.

1977 03 16
For the Cambridge disco pub, the Plough and Harrow in residential Madingley Road, the dancing is over – and another venue for city youngsters loses its attraction. Brewers Tolly Cobbold have decided not to appeal following objections from people living in expensive property nearby. One resident said: "We are all academic and professional people around here and need quiet to be able to work. We don't spend money on alcohol because we haven't got it. We spent it on books and things". The county councillor said: "I think the pub could do very well as an eating house; many people would like somewhere to go for a quiet drink without feeling out of place". 77 03 16

Village sewerage, p5
Witchford fen cottage crafts, p12

1977 03 18
Jerry Bol, the one-man-band, will not be performing his eye-catching acts in Cambridge for the next few weeks; he is off to his home country, Holland, for a round of engagements and an appearance on Dutch television. He has spent almost 30 years here but says: "Things have been pretty tough lately and I was tempted by the offer. But I love busking in Cambridge and I don't want to stop". He began busking for a living two years ago and since then has made numerous television appearances. 77 03 18

Fuel costs, p9
Linton hostel, p10
Monster request, p16
CUL postcard collection, p24

1977 03 19
Cambridge University Tiddlywinks Club now has 21 members. In action in a dingy cold room upstairs at the Castle pub, Castle Hill they slouch on all fours over the felt mat playing area and talk intensely of tactics using weird words like bristolling, crudding and squopping surface. To a certain extent the dedicated members of the winking world feel under threat, their skills unrecognised by the mocking, unwinking masses, but say that tiddlywinks can give back health and mental stability to those who are ravaged by the complexity and over-mechanisation of modern life 77 03 19

1977 03 21
Steeple Bumpstead's hunting vicar threw about 30 young anti-bloodsports demonstrators out of his church when they began chanting during the Mother's Day morning service. The vicar took the banner-waving and horn-blowing outside the church in his stride until a group of demonstrators joined the congregation of about 30 parishioners. They filed into the front pews but refused to acknowledge the service until the end of the first hymn when they stood and sang "All things bright and beautiful, all creatures great and small; all things wise and wonderful, the vicar kills them all". 77 03 21

1977 03 22
Cambridge & District Co-operative Society's plan to expand the Beehive complex, which was turned down by the county planners, has been given the go-ahead by the Department of the Environment. The scheme, using the former Cadbury-Schweppes warehouse near Coldham's Lane will provide an extended shopping space, a garden centre and leisure goods sales centre. The Inspector said that as there were still no definite plans for the Fitzroy/Burleigh Street redevelopment the Beehive scheme would meet some of the shopping need without detriment to the city centre.

1977 03 23
Residents of Kingsmead Park Waterbeach complain they are jolted out of bed to the thud of heave machine-gun fire and the ear-splitting crack of high-powered SLR rifles and the birds have emigrated. The Army rifle range is right outside their bedroom windows & they are fed up with the day and night war games fifty yards from their caravans. The Army say that owing to the Northern Ireland situation all soldiers are required to fire a personal weapons test and that moving the range would be too expensive – it was there before the caravan park.

Cherry Hinton estate plans, p1

1977 03 24
Drugs are part of the attraction that brings hundreds of teenagers flocking to an all-night disco held every month at the St Ivo Recreation Centre, St Ives. Police say they set up roadblocks and enough drugs had been seized from vehicles to supply all 800 youngsters at the disco. But the promoters say there is no indication of widespread drug abuse and all they have found is one tablet in the cloakrooms. It was the second biggest disco in England & they attracted 14-18 year olds from all over the South. He had once tried to run an all-night discotheque in Cambridge but had found drug taking was rife and wouldn't go back there because of the problem

1977 03 28
Motorists were caught on the hop today as snow spread across almost all of East Anglia. The A45 was blocked near Newmarket when a tanker crashed at the Red Lodge petrol pumps & an unladen tanker overturned near the Four Went Ways. The Chatteris to Ely road was almost blocked & at Haddenham a baker's van slithered across the road. Police say there have been inundated with reports of hold-ups and accidents. Villagers at Hardwick were still without electricity at lunchtime, 11 hours after power went off. Parts of Papworth and Eltisley are also without supplies.

Regiment freedom, p3

1977 03 29
Ely market place, p5
Village expansion, p7

1977 03 30
Motorists pushed and fought their way to the petrol pumps in a panic-stricken rush to fill up before prices rose. Service stations were forced to close to save their remaining stocks and stop the motoring stampede. When news of the increase was announced on the radio Holland's garage, Cambridge, was one of the first to be besieged. A line of traffic stretched halfway along Mill Road and motorists, jealously guarding their place in the queue, were not even letting other cars out of the garage. At Huntingdon one petrol pump attendant said motorists had appeared to have "gone berserk" at the budget news

The volcano of violence that is Dave "Boy" Green erupted in an elemental awesome display of action fighting at Wembley. Proud Union Jack bearer, John H. Stracey, had as much chance as the citizens of Pompeii. Green, a threshing machine with eyes blazing like headlights swarmed all over him, punching him to a standstill. Hooks to the body and muckspreader rights to the head exploded from him as he poured on the pace and the Londoner capitulated to the remorseless punishment of the Chatteris champion's bombing punches.

1977 03 31
When Wandlebury reopens after nine month's closure visitors are in for a shock. Torn apart by gales, laid waste by drought the 52-acre estate has something of the look of a battlefield. The once-familiar walks have been devastated, whole new clearings created and a major avenue of trees wiped out. Nearly 60 mature beech trees were lost in the January gales last year; the drought accounted for at least another 148 trees. Warden Bill Clark has spent the last 15 months in a one-man battle to put things right and make the area safe but fears he will go on finding many more trees which will have to be felled 77 03 31

Village expansion, p10

April 1977 CEN

1977 04 01
Anglian Water Authority-owned eel fisheries should be offered in lots of sufficient size to allow a proper commercial enterprise to operate, but this may force out traditional companies. Eel fishermen already have to be licensed in Cambridgeshire where there is a tradition of eel fishing around Earith and Littleport but many waters are worked "unofficially". Waters are becoming more over-fished every year; Dutch companies are keen to take as many eels as they can and smoked eel sells at £4 a lb in Holland. If one of the present fishermen paid for an official lease he might police it more thoroughly and offer more protection for the fishery.

1977 04 02
Kite plans, p1
United 50-up, p9

1977 04 04
Haslingfield's new Methodist church was officially unlocked by the oldest member of the congregation, Miss Grace Huddlestone, for many years organist at the old chapel. It will have as its minister the Rev Denzil Sutcliffe of Royston. Standing in part of what was once the Manor House garden, the new church replaces a century-old building which is being retained for use as a creche.

1977 04 06
Mill Road Maternity Hospital in Cambridge, a former workhouse, was slammed for its cramped and appalling conditions. A report highlights overcrowding, complete lack of privacy for patients, appalling residences for nurses & pregnant women having to sit clad only in a dressing gown in draughty corridors waiting for attention. It is virtually impossible to expand the hospital, access is difficult and car parking impossible. This is a disgraceful state of affairs for a maternity hospital doing the standard of work that Cambridge does. It should be replaced by a 100-bed obstetrics hospital on the New Addenbrooke's site as soon as finance is available

1977 04 07
Pye top-out building, p9
Hauxton village hall, p10

1977 04 12
Four Cambridge schoolboys, keen supporters of the latest skateboarding craze to hit Britain following its spread from America, have been banned from practising during the holidays on the playground of the Priory School, Galfrid Road, Cambridge. It is the second school to ban skateboards and is creating come controversy in education and road safety circles. A senior county education administrator said if there was an accident the education authority would be responsible but a senior county road safety officer said it was better to have them off the road and on to places like school playgrounds. The boys hope to establish a skateboarding club with proper facilities.

Noel Edmonds, p1

1977 04 14
Cambridge scientists may be within six months of a major break-through. They hope that a new ultra-high-power electron microscope now being constructed will show atoms in the molecular structure of vital proteins and enzymes, including the life-giving substance DNA. Work on the new microscope has been going on at the Cavendish Laboratory for the past five years. Scientists in Japan are working along the same lines but the Cambridge scientists may achieve success first.

1977 04 14
Another stretch of the Cambridge-London Motorway – the M11 – was opened today. This second stage runs between South Woodford and Redbridge in London and South Harlow. With the section between Harlow & Bishop's Stortford opened in June 1975 there will now be 23 miles of motorway between the A12 at Redbridge and Birchanger. Work on the remaining parts of the M11 on to Cambridge is expected to start this summer.

St John's church centenary, p12

1977 04 15
Coleridge adult centre, p15

1977 04 16
Lutheran church, p6

1977 04 18
After four years of meetings, negotiations and hard work the villages of Hauxton have at last got their Village Hall. The opening by village storekeeper Mr Merrick Arnold marked the climax of a scheme thought up by the Women's Institute years ago. When a new school was built in 1974 a special committee set about raising £10,000 to buy the old school. Teams of volunteers knocked down walls, replaced plumbing and painted the walls. The chairman of the parish council, Mr Malcolm Woolf said it was "something the whole village should be proud of"

1977 04 18
The death of Sir Peter Kirk, MP for Saffron Walden, has cut short a highly promising and distinguished career. In Parliament before he was 27, he lost his Gravesend seat in 1964 but was promptly offered the safe Tory seat of Saffron Walden when it was relinquished by Rab Butler. Sir Peter was made Under-Secretary of State at the War Office and led the first Tory delegation to Europe in 1973 but had to face criticism of his frequent absences abroad. He always denied spending too little time in his constituency and was involved in many local issues.

1977 04 19
There may be treasure at the bottom of the garden at the Red House pub in Longstowe. Or on the other hand there may well not be. The landlord, Mr Rex Ford, is finding out – with the help of a team of expert divers. They spent six hours in the icy water but didn't reach the bottom after 90 feet & were forced to abandon the hunt having reached the limit of their decompression exposure time. They did find a large antique key on a ledge. George Hughes, aged 70, remembers drawing water from the well when a boy to power steam traction engines. "That is one of the deepest wells hereabouts and is reckoned to be over 300 years old", he said. 77 04 19

1977 04 19

A row is simmering just below the surface of the seemingly peaceful expanse of Eltisley village green. The wrangle turns on technical and legal points on the right to have driveways over a part of the green, which is common land. The question has split the village in two. It has brought the council into dispute with a vicar, a farmer and a doctor. It has made parish council meetings notoriously stormy and brought villagers out in force to watch the proceedings. The clerk and a council member have resigned over the row which make take a test court case to solve. 77 04 19

1977 04 20
A multi-million pound deal for the rebuilding of large parts of the Burleigh Street – Fitzroy Street area of Cambridge (The Kite) which would involve a handsome handout to the ratepayers is being negotiated between the City council and two internationally known development companies. Under the deal the redevelopment could be carried out without any cost to the ratepayers. The council would hand some of its land holdings – much now derelict – to the developers on a long lease. In return they would build large car parks for the council, re-grass the New Square car park and erect a number of shops, at least one of them a department store. And at the end of the development period the company would make either a substantial lump sum payment to the council or give it a large cut of the rents collected.

St John Ambulance HQ, p8

1977 04 21
Cambridgeshire County Council could be saddled with an expensive white elephant if it ever decides to use Whaddon Gap, near Royston, as a permanent site for caravan-dwellers. They are usually very superstitious people and some believe the site is haunted. One woman who stayed there said there was a sort of smoky mist coming up and she smelled burning and heard a horrible scream. When the same thing happened the next night she packed up & left. Residents say a tramp's body was found in a dug-out in 1940 and several aircraft came down in the area during the war. A few years later a Canberra bomber crashed and the three-man crew were killed. Nine years ago a gypsy who was living there was brutally murdered and caravan dwellers have never been there since. 77 04 21

Doreen Garner campaigns fof Cambridge causes – 777 04 21

1977 04 23
The new Bridge House office block and restored 16th-century buildings in Bridge Street, Cambridge, are a landmark and inspiration, said the Mayor, Coun Bob May, when he opened the £1.3 million redevelopment. "If only the architects had been involved at Lion Yard then things might have turned out differently there", he said. He praised the skill with which the historic and environmentally important site had been handled by the Scottish Mutual Assurance Society and its architects, Saunders Boston of Cambridge. It was an outstanding example of how a new building could be fitted into an old environment and how old buildings could be preserved.

1977 04 25
Printing technology is moving fast and regional newspapers are consistently in the forefront of developments. By concentrating on one major aspect the Cambridge Evening News has more than kept pace. The use of hot metal in printing is giving way to photography & we are the first in the country to print our papers by the Di-Litho method, enabling us to modernise and adapt our dated but sturdy and still efficient presses, improving the quality of reproduction in our publications and making working conditions easier and cleaner for staff. It is an indication of our confidence in the future that we intend to move to photocomposition, stage by stage, until completion in about a year's time.

St Ives Roman Catholic Church, p9

1977 04 27
Eric Morecambe and Ernie Wise sustained a non-stop fusillade of gags and sketches at Cambridge Sports Hall. An audience of more than 1,500 people roared them to success. Eric took a snap look around the room and declared: "I've never worked in an aircraft hangar before!" – much to the audience's delight. It is impossible to see where routine ends and inspired ad-libbing begins. Eric (about the audience): "Are they still there? They're not walking towards us with ropes and pulleys are they?" Later he told them: "You've been a marvellous audience, you really have. You've made me laugh, I tell you!"

1977 04 28
Cambridge undergraduates planning one of the university's most expensive-ever May Balls are insuring themselves against the Queen Mother's death. For she is patroness of Queens' College where May Ball tickets at £29.50 are now almost sold out. Her death before the college ball would result in cancellation leaving the student organisers with £10,710 worth of bills. One of the organisers said: "Cancellation could only really come about through the death of the Queen Mother or the college President and it is "court mourning" that we are most worried about. I suppose it is also something which is going to get more expensive the older she gets". The Queen Mother will be 77 on August 4th.

1977 04 30
Musicians' discontent over the Cambridge Symphony Orchestra turned to anger as more professionals claimed they were owned money. And as a London orchestral agency told of their wrangle over a cheque for more than £1,000 the Musicians' Union attacked the orchestra's policy of not paying amateurs.. The eight-month-old semi-professional orchestra is in a desperate financial condition. A London orchestral agent reported that he was "flabbergasted" at the way the Orchestra had treated its players. "I can't think why you people in Cambridge support it. I knew this would happen. You can't hope to run an orchestra on a shoestring", he said.

May 1977 CEN

1977 05 02
Corks bounced off the ceiling – and Steve Spriggs' head – and the champagne flowed long after Cambridge United's dramatic 3-2 victory over brave Brentford. They were celebrating promotion to Division Three. It will be one of the major shocks of football history if Ron Atkinson's team do not coast home to the Fourth Division title, sitting four points clear at the top of the table. They would have to lose their four remaining matches by at least three goals while the four teams below them would have to win all of theirs. It is all safely tucked away in the realms of fantasy, says Randall Butt

1977 05 03
Dennis is a Cambridge taxi driver who finishes work at two or three in the morning. But when he gets home there is no way he can get a night's sleep because he, his wife and nine-month-old baby share one room, 12 feet by nine, in which they have to live, eat and sleep. They leave a two-bar electric fire burning to dry out the damp. The family share a three-bedroomed terrace with two other families. There is no bathroom, the outside lavatory does not flush properly. There is just one kitchen. The house in Gwydir Street Cambridge is owned by the city council. The Housing manager agrees that conditions are far less than ideal but says the property is the last resort for dealing with real emergencies. A few years ago the family would have been split up with the wife and child going into a social services hostel.

Huntingdon crash plane, p1 – 77 05 03

1977 05 04
Two crewmen of an RAF Canberra and three children were killed when the plane crashed near houses at Oxmoor, Huntingdon. The main wreckage of the plane is spread around an area of grass at the end of Norfolk Road. The tail-plane of the Canberra wedged hard alongside one of the houses. Eight of the terraced houses appeared to be completely gutted with flames raging through the roofs. As the wreckage burned steadily police held back hundreds of watching residents. A spokesman at RAF

Wyton confirmed that one of their Canberra reconnaissance planes had crashed two miles from the runway as it came into land. 77 05 04

Mr Harry Evans of Sycamore Drive on the Oxmoor estate, Huntingdon described the scene as the Canberra crashed. "As I was walking along I looked across the estate and there was this jet coming in low like it was in a nosedive. It looked as if the pilot was aiming away from the houses. Then it disappeared from sight and there was a dull thud. We saw black smoke and flames". Mrs Betty Smith escaped from her blazing kitchen in Norfolk Road. "The plane virtually landed in my front garden. I'd just come down to the kitchen. I covered my ears like I always do when I hear a plane close and then could see flames. They were coming across the kitchen floor and under the table and I ran"

As Huntingdon mourned the death of three small children in the jet crash at Oxmoor, mystery still surrounds the cause of the crash. After experts had worked all night under floodlights amid the charred wreckage, one theory is that the twin engine Canberra photo-reconnaissance plane had suffered a failure in its Rolls-Royce engines. The two crewmen died as they fought to steer their crippled plane clear of the estate and a school 200 yards from the place where it crashed into eight terraced houses. Three small children died as blazing aircraft fuel spewed on to and into the houses

The two crewmen of the RAF Canberra killed in the tragedy at Huntingdon may have sacrificed their lives trying to keep clear of a school nearby where 250 children were about to start their lunch break. The headmaster of Sapley Park Primary School, Mr John Richardson, said the whole disaster was played out in full view of the school. The aircraft crashed about 200 yards away just as the bell was ringing for the start of the break. If the pilot had stayed in the air a few seconds more the school would have been hit. The crew could have ejected to safety and left the plane to its own devices.

The Mayor of Huntingdon said bureaucrats must take part of the blame for the Canberra jet crash disaster which killed five people. "It is clear the homes should not have been built under the flight path of the planes". The Oxmoor estate, where 2,000 families live, is mostly inhabited by Londoners who moved to the town under the Greater London Council expanding towns scheme and started in 1955. Residents have called for a halt to flights over the estate and threaten to block the runways at RAF Wyton. 77 05 04

1977 05 05
Oxmoor jet crash horror – 77 05 05

1977 05 06
Council elections, p1

1977 05 09
Cottenham residents can rest assured that their village bounds have been well and truly beaten following the traditional 20-mile hike at the weekend. 170 people took part in the annual ceremony to mark the parish limits and one who is unlikely to forget just where Cottenham stops and the rest of the world starts is 10-year-old Catherine Tompkins. She was chosen to go through the traditional "bumping" ceremony which takes place at each of the four corners of the parish. This combination of deterrent and reward, traditionally undergone by the village boys, entails being turned upside down, bumped on the ground, beaten with a stick and given a silver coin.

1977 05 09
Four men have resigned from Cambridgeshire Constabulary in the past six weeks over poor pay – the same number as in the whole of last year for the same reason. One 28-year-old detective constable has resigned after five years' service to double his earnings as a gas fitter. He had been taking home about £171 a month, including overtime and expenses. Another policeman is leaving to double his wages with a television hire company – and with a company car. The Chief Constable warned the service would continue to suffer unless policemen were paid above the national norm to attract the right men into the force.

Mill Road shopping supplement

1977 05 11
CU & Elton John, p6

1977 05 12
Huntingdon's "desolation row" where three children and two airmen died in last week's jet crash, will soon be no more. Contractors moved into Norfolk Road to begin demolishing the shattered and blackened wreck of seven houses. The machines brought to light pathetic mementoes of family life. Children's toys tumbled from upstairs bedrooms and the remains of a lunch that was never eaten disappeared under a shower of rubble. Huntingdon District Council intends to rebuild the block exactly as it looked before the crash. Greater London Council officials are searching their files for the original plans. 77 05 12

Inquest on Oxmoor crash – 77 05 12

1977 05 13
Bar Hill increase, p8
Arts cinema, p13

1977 05 14
Ickleton siege, p1

1977 05 16
The new Campaign for Real Ale guide to Cambridgeshire shows that, with the exception of a few oases, the north of the county remain a "real ale" desert. In the area between Huntingdon, Ely, Wisbech and Peterborough only 24 real pubs exists and of these five are in one town, March. The blame is put squarely on one major brewery, Watneys. But there are 42 more "real ale" pubs than last year, bringing the county's total up to 216 and in Cambridge itself 11 brewers supply real ale to more than 40 public houses

1977 05 17
Mill Road Maternity Hospital in Cambridge is medically second to none. The staff is good, the equipment the most up-to-date … but both are severely hampered by "appalling conditions" in the cramped old workhouse building. There is intense congestion in the antenatal clinic. Patients using the modern ultra-sound equipment have a long walk in their dressing gowns to reach a draughty corridor where they have to set near swing doors leading out of the hospital. Another £15,000 ultra-sound machine is being purchased but no-one knows where it can be placed. But the neo-natal care unit for new-born babies is regarded as probably one of the best in the country. 77 05 17

1977 05 17
The RAF disclosed officially that jet aircraft from RAF Wyton practice engine failures over Huntingdon but declined to comment on newspaper reports that a Wyton jet which crashed on the Oxmoor estate, killing five was practising a simulated engine failure when the disaster happened. A spokesman emphasised the manoeuvre is not dangerous and one engine was merely throttled back and can be put on to full power if something goes wrong.

Drugs, p1

1977 05 18
Drug addiction in Cambridge is running at a rate of more than seven times the national average – and addicts are spending as much as £70 a week on their habits. The drugs used are mostly Dexedrine and barbiturates, along with Mandrax, cannabis, amphetamines, heroin and LSD. In Cambridge there are 45 registered drug addicts on opiates and 15 known to be addicted to soft drugs – making a total of 60 known to the authorities, but this may only be about 10 per cent of the problem. There were 330 prosecutions for drug offences in Cambridgeshire in 1976

1977 05 18
Massive housing estates like Arbury in Cambridge and Oxmoor in Huntingdon are breeding grounds for drug abuse, says a Cambridge psychiatrist. While some of the young people started taking drugs through their family doctor's normal prescriptions, abuse was master-minded by European drug barons who imported the material via the east Coast ports. The influx of amphetamine-based drugs (pep pills) into large estates was considerable and there is a very sophisticated distribution network. Cannabis cost between £8 and £10 per quarter ounce – enough to last a casual user five or six days. Heroin cost around £40 a gramme.

1977 05 18
The Bar Hill Residents' Association was formed as a result of a meeting in October 1967 and now plays an important role in the village. It liaises between individual residents, the parish council and the developers and can act as a clearing house in any dispute. It has been involved in a project to construct an adventure playground and there are annual events such as the village firework display and fete. Its major function is to produce the monthly "Bar Hill News" which informs villagers of local activities, events and amenities, thus fostering the community spirit.

1977 05 19
It's three cheers for the red, white and blue in New Road, Sawston, where two families have already hung out the bunting for the Queen's Silver Jubilee. The homes now sport flags, bunting, a Union Jack and a giant-size poster of the Queen. "We are organising a street party for the children of New Road on June 6th and we thought we'd decorated the houses in advance", they said.

1977 05 20
A Conservative, Coun Maurice Garner, was elected Mayor of Cambridge for the coming year, succeeding Coun Bob Wright. A legal executive with a city firm of solicitors he is closely connected with many local organisations and has served on the council for 11 years. Yesterday he recalled how he first won his West Chesterton seat. It was all a family affair, he said – there are so many of his relatives living in West Chesterton that it was a simple matter to get elected. All the family voted for him and gave him a big majority!

1977 05 20
The bees are back in the wall at the Bees in the Wall. It is quite a relief to the landlord of the Whittlesford pub, Mr David Smith, because he has heard an old tale that if bees desert a building it falls down. The pub's name was changed from the Exhibition many years ago when bees first colonised high in the wall. They disappeared last October but a new swarm has now arrived, giving every indication that they intend to remain. Upstairs from the pub, in Mr Smith's lounge, are two glass panels showing back of the nest so he will be able to check the swarm's progress

1977 05 20
Cambridge City Council is likely to go into the public lottery business within a couple of months. Prizes of up to £1,000 would be given – and local cultural, sporting and welfare organisation could benefit by thousands of pounds a month. Under new laws the council is empowered to run a lottery once a month, using the profits for the benefit of services to the public. The council's Conservative leader, Coun. John Powley said: "I support the thing wholeheartedly". So far the only other councils who have indicated a willingness to promote lotteries are at Great Yarmouth and Thanet

1977 05 23
Each Sunday thousands of spectators flock to the West Row stadium, Mildenhall to cheer on their heroes, the Fen Tigers. And the heroes do not have to be adults. One rider in the mixed pairs was Melvyn Taylor who is just 16 years old. The stadium has mushroomed from humble beginnings in a mere three years. There is a good pavilion, a large bar, a snack room and various caravans dispensing hot dogs, beer, ice creams, cups of hot drink and souvenirs. The riders themselves are a mixed bag; there are one or two professionals like captain Bob Coles and there are promising young riders from the area. Admission is 80p adults, 35p children

1977 05 25
Tenpenny vanilla cornets were given away free in Lion Yard, Cambridge as two ice cream bosses lined up for battle. Mr John "Country Boy" Powell gave away more than a hundredweight of his home-made ice-cream as part of his cold war against rival seller Mr Giovanni "Lyon's Maid" Rozzo. He claims that he has a gentleman's agreement with the boss of Wally's Ice Cream to share the Lion Yard "pitch". So there were a few frosty glances when Mr O. De Gennare wheeled in Mr Rozzo's barrow and set up in competition right next door. "Its poisonous" said one schoolboy to another who was clutching no less than three chocolate cornets to his chest. "I've gone mad", Mr Powell told the inquisitive.

1977 05 26
Police Sergeant Ray Dukes was proceeding in an easterly direction at midnight when he spotted something irregular – a giant turtle walking along Downing Street, Cambridge. It was not just an ordinary giant turtle, it was a giant snapping turtle and it was very angry. Taking care to avoid the snapping jaws, which can chop off a finger without too much trouble, he carried the turtle into the nearby Department of Zoology. The only person there was the night porter, Mr Charles Willard, who promptly locked it up for the night. Now the police are appealing for its owner to come forward and claim it

1977 05 27
Births, marriages and deaths have become a way of life for Mr Peter Layng. For he has spent the last 11 years copying out parish registers. The first register he copied was of Stapleford when he was researching his wife's side of the family and his hobby took off from there. Now he spends almost every morning at the County Record Office and is working on his 45th register. He has copied out big registers such as Bassingbourn as well as small ones like Tadlow. His lists are typed up in quadruplicate by Mr Colin Hatton and his wife Angela.

Turtle back home, p1

1977 05 28
The Mayor of Cambridge, Coun Maurice Garner, has offered to arrange skate-boarding sessions for city children in the Corn Exchange, where the council has a roller skating area, to keep them off the streets and away from the traffic. The new craze is rapidly gaining popularity and already some schools have banned their pupils from practising in the school grounds. For months the Road Safety Committee has expressed concern at the growing practice of skateboarding in the streets. A council report concludes: "As more people join in with the sport there is no doubt that the local authority will be asked to provide skate parks such as are provided in the United States"

1977 05 30
Firemen risking their lives searched for a husband and wife believed trapped inside the blazing Conservative Club at Huntingdon. Fire raged through the downstairs area of The Views, George Street as four teams of firemen searched for the steward and stewardess until word was received that they had begun a holiday. The fire destroyed the lounge and most of the bar area of the 19th century building. The downstairs reception area was also damaged its portrait of Mrs Margaret Thatcher blackened by soot and smoke.

Wendens Ambo traffic, p11

1977 05 31
Flag-draped homes, street parties and organised sports and entertainments will herald the Queen's Silver Jubilee at Haverhill. All day Monday will be devoted to parties organised by streets and courts on the town's estates & Jubilee Day will be celebrated on the recreation ground with a Haverhill Girls v USAF basketball match and culminate with a torchlight procession and bonfire. At Linton there will be a wheelbarrow race, all old age pensioners will receive free food tokens and jubilee crowns will be distributed to schoolchildren. Horseheath will stage a village fair and a town crier in full period dress will herald the jubilee message around Wickambrook, visiting each of the eleven 'greens' which make up the parish. 77 05 31

June 1977 CEN

1977 06 02
With the opening of another section of the M11 it seemed a good idea for four "News" writers to set off for London. Each took a different route, setting off from Lensfield Road to Marble Arch departing at10.45 am. David Utting took the A11, clocking up 60 miles. The journey took two hours ten minutes. His verdict: "More a route to swear at than swear by". Tony Jedrej tried out the M11. It was three miles longer but took the same time. Rodney Tibbs drove on the A10 via Ware, a route of 55 miles & took one hour 45 minutes. John Gaskell recorded the fastest time on the A1 (M). It took him one hour 37 minutes to cover the 61 miles.

1977 06 03
Ashwell Street is no walk for the timorous. It needs nerves of steel to pass dogs barking and straining at the leash as the lane wends its seven miles between Ashwell and Melbourn. It is always hitting the headlines with stories of its squatters' rights problems, damage to neighbouring property at Litlington and litter, particularly at the Ashwell End. It is easy to understand why this is one of the more "unknown" green lane rambles. Maybe its not risking life and limb, but it comes darned close to it – David Waterson

Agee leaves Cambridge, p1

1977 06 04
The jubilee jubilations have begun in feverish earnest and Mid-Anglia is going red, white and blue all over. There were rumours that this sort of thing no longer stirs the imagination of the British public but News offices have been flooded with details of more than 3,000 jubilee events. Hundreds of street parties are being organised. Thoday, the fabric firm have out of their specially-designed Union Jacks and red, white and blue material within one and a half days and 20,000 red, white and blue plants are on their way to city flowerbeds and shop displays.

1977 06 08
More than 5,000 people cheered and sang the National Anthem when the only beacon in Hertfordshire was lit. The 30-foot-high beacon was situated in Beacon Field only a few hundred yards away from Tuthill Manor, Therfield, home of Mr & Mrs Rex Corbett who spent 16 years restoring the house. As the fire roared into life the high wind carried clouds of sparks over the field and as they descended hundreds nestled into the thatched roof of Tuthill Manor. The fire brigade provided a water carrier but the spray could not reach the top of the thatch & Royston firemen were called to douse the roof

1977 06 08
Thousands of people attended Cambridge's main jubilee celebrations – rustic games, music, a river boat procession and fireworks – on Midsummer Common. For the women there was a supermarket trolley race won by a team from Robert Sayles. Rain dampened the start of the carnival but large crowds gathered to watch the jubilee games and the procession of decorated motor boats which followed. The evening was rounded off by a fireworks display and there were cheers when the final set piece spelling out "ER II rules OK" was lit. At Thriplow a "Royal Show" included smashing the Royal Doulton, donkey rides from Anne's Riding Stables and a "Royal Free Hospital" blindfold stretcher obstacle race.

1977 06 09

After watching Jubilee fireworks until late last night Prince Philip flew in to Cambridge today, his 56th birthday, to be installed as Chancellor of Cambridge University. In the flag-waving crowd of about a thousand at St John's playing fields were two young girls, Jenny Nedderman & Katheryn Horsfall, carrying a hastily made banner wishing him a happy birthday. Later several hundred people waiting outside the Senate House broke into an impromptu rendering of "Harry Birthday to You" as he went inside for the installation ceremony & Julie Dunham surprised him with a birthday card and present.

1977 06 10
Only a man of towering pride and total lack of sensitivity could fail to be awed by assuming the ancient and distinguished Chancellorship of Cambridge University, Prince Philip told a packed Senate House. "I give a solemn assurance that I shall yield to no man in my devotion to the interests of the university and its students". About 70 demonstrators from the University Nursery Action Group stole the limelight as he led the procession to the ceremony. They were protesting about the lack of nursery facilities for the under-fives. The Prince gave the shouting mothers a quizzical look and a smile.

1977 06 10
More than 1,500 people packed into Great St Mary's Church, Cambridge to hear the Calcutta missionary, Mother Teresa, talk about her work among the dying and destitute of India. She asked the congregation "not to give from their abundance but to give from their love, till it hurts". Earlier she had been the first to receive an honorary degree from Prince Philip. The University Orator, Dr Frank Stubbings spoke of her work: "She saw the multitudes and had compassion on them; she went alone, in poverty, to the homes of the poorest, tended their illnesses and set up a school in the midst of the slums"

1977 06 10
Cambridge University, with its 11,000 students, is already larger that the "ideal" size for a university, according to its new Chancellor, Prince Philip. The bigger companies grew the more unsatisfactory their industrial relations were likely to be and the same applied to universities. Dealing with the arrival of women in what for almost 700 years were single-sex colleges the Prince said that if you have a limited number of students in a college and introduce women as a third of the number it could be difficult to provide sports teams. He thought it important that universities should have a very significant proportion of their effort directed towards science and engineering.

1977 06 10
One of Cambridge's best-known characters, Trevor Hughes, clocked up his 100th recorded conviction at the city magistrates' court when he admitted being drunk and disorderly in the Market Square. As he came into court, Mr Hughes, looking thinner and without his famous bobble hat or bushy beard said: "Good afternoon everybody". In court he said: "I won't deny it, but I can't remember. I like a little drop of tiddly, but I'm not abusive. But people say: 'look at that dirty old so and so', and I lose my temper". He was sent to prison for a month.

Milton site, p9

1977 06 11
Honorary degrees, p7

1977 06 13
Tenants' choice – to buy council house or not, p7 – 77 06 13
Save Fen Ditton, p11

1977 06 16
Pure water, p4
Uplands closes, p6
Swim through Cambridge cancelled, p10

1977 06 17
Victoria Road one-way, p9

1977 06 20
Library issue system, p5

1977 06 21
Gwydir Street traffic, p6

1977 06 22
Bus cuts, p1
Moon soil, p3

1977 06 22 c
Plans to make the A604 a dual carriageway between Bar Hill and Godmanchester have provoked a far greater public outcry that at first expected. The Department of Transport revealed it has received 91 protest letter, 24 of which were concerned with the effects on Fenstanton. They want to improve the road to link with the Huntingdon bypass so establishing a fast route between the East Coast ports and the Midlands. This was necessary to cope with the future volume of traffic, expected to reach 36,500 vehicles a day by 1995

1977 06 23
Roadmen on the A604 at Linton have been inconvenienced this week because thieves have walked off with their portable toilet – the second time it has happened. The toilet was beside the road one night. The next morning it had gone. Now they have called in Cambridge police in the hope they can trace the missing loo. The head of Cambridge CID, Det Supt Keith Hookham, said: "It's the second time in less and a month this thing has been nicked"

Britannia Building Society, p15

1977 06 24
Several Cambridge United players in dispute over terms offered for Third Division football next season have not yet signed new contracts. Manager Ron Atkinson said: "We know for a fact that last year our players were most certainly the highest paid in the division – and were entitled to be because they were the best. Every player has been offered increased terms. The biggest bone of contention is that the basic wage has not gone up as much as they would like, but the bonus scheme has gone up by about 50 per cent. We are having to budget on shoestring gates. The players know that what the club has got, they will get. But if it has not got any more, they cannot get any more"

Library amnesty, p10

1977 06 25
I managed to "steal" four books from the Cambridge Central Library in Lion Yard, just to test its new and highly complex system of checking books in and out. I just walked out with them under my arm into the street. The new system involves photographing a special ticket against the book borrowed. But it will not prevent theft unless the manoeuvre I tried can be made more difficult. In the old library one had to pass down a very narrow passageway when taking books out, and my nerve would have failed. But in the wide open spaces of the modern library it held good. 77 06 25

1977 06 27
In five seconds George Williams of Sawston broke the world record and the skyline at Whittlesey will never be quite the same again. He didn't actually press the button that reduced ten chimneys to a field of rubble – that was left to Lesley Judd of BBC tv's "Blue Peter. But it was his job to make sure they fell and fell in the right place. The chimneys, ranging from 90 to 230 foot, dated from the turn of the century and belonged to the London Brick Company; they will be replaced by only five.

1977 06 27
A Bar Hill shopkeeper, Mr John Wilson, will be closing down the grocery side of his business when the new Tesco superstore opens. Since January 1976, Bar Hill has been without a grocer's because Keymarket decided there was not enough trade to keep their small supermarket going. Their shop still stands empty. Mr Wilson stepped into the breach, supplying basic groceries from his fish and chip shop. Now he hopes to be 'frying tonight' for hundreds of shoppers parking behind his shop for the new Tesco store – 77 06 27

Bishop retires, p3
Hardwick postwoman, p9
Tesco supplement

1977 06 28
A team of Eastern Electricity apprentices are cleaning away about 150 years of soot, cobwebs and grime from the boiler room of the old fen pumping station at Stretham. They hope to restore it almost to the condition it was when the engine began operating in 1831 and are repairing as many of the valves and water level indicators as they can. The apprentices will also install lighting so that visitors will have a better view of the room and lights will also be fitted in one of the boilers to show its interior. The engine, which was last used in the 1940s is a popular tourist attraction

St Ives bridge, p9

1977 06 30
More than 1,600 Cambridgeshire school-leavers – about one-third of the total - cannot find jobs and most of them are drawing £9 a week dole money. The chances of them finding work are even more remote than last year as there are only 175 vacancies on the books. For months the careers advisory service has been making extensive efforts to find jobs but say they are very short of office and shop-type vacancies.

Californian cures, p12

July 1977 CEN

1977 07 01
All the customers in Berni Inns' Tudor Bar in Trinity Street, Cambridge looked like shoppers rather than office workers and it seems surprising that they have not discovered this quite spacious place to have lunch. The menu is not extensive but is reasonably priced; it includes a ploughman's lunch with either cheese or pate (65p), sandwiches and, in theory, cottage pie (46p) – but the chef was not at work. I tried the only hot pie available which the assistant "thought" was chicken and mushroom. As far as I could tell it was beef. Having spent only £1.50 between us we felt justified in lashing out on the speciality – liqueur coffee. At 51p it was an extravagance, but absolutely delicious

Oakington church repairs, p7

1977 07 04
The 600-year-old church at Wood Walton stands decaying in the middle of a field. Its windows have been broken, its furnishings smashed. A board still announces the psalm. It is isolated, almost a mile from the village which has a population of less than 300. Water and electricity have never reached it – parishioners used to carry their own candles to evensong. So it now rots. It is eerie, pathetic and beautiful. Its situation and condition mean that it will almost certainly never be used again and it is left to a group calling themselves "Friends of Friendless Churches" to try and preserve it. 77 07 04

1977 07 05
Cambridge City council announced details of its £10 million redevelopment scheme for the Kite area – and at once fell foul of the man who claims he can stop it all from happening, 76-year-old Mr Arthur Sutton. For nearly all his life he has lived at 1 Christchurch Street – one of the few houses which the council needs to demolish to make way for its new shopping and car park complex. But Mr Sutton declared: "Nobody is going to move me from the house I have occupied for 63 years. I am there and I am going to stay put". The new proposals are the latest in a string of plans produced during the past 20 years, all of which have been dropped. 77 07 05

1977 07 05
Cherry Mann's fight for independence has ended because she has died. And only death could have been her conqueror. She died weighing less than five stones. For 36 years – she was 38 when she died – she was the victim of a rare disease which turned 80 per cent of her body to chalk. She was incurable, and knew it; she could only move the forearm and three fingers on one hand. Yet she wrote in laborious long hand stories for BBC's Children's' Hour, poetry and gained her O & A levels. She fought for a home especially adapted to her needs and moved in when others like her had given up hope to wither away in geriatric hospitals. Her ambition was to help people. "I'll fight", she used to say, "to the day I die". And that was just what she did.

1977 07 06
Open air theatre plan, p1

1977 07 07
Rampton bees, p6

1977 07 08
Teddy Boys, ban-the-bomb and the Suez crisis are now all part of the history syllabus. Pupils at Netherhall School have been entering into the spirit of the 1950s by coming in wearing home-made "Ted" jackets and bootlace ties, with their hair slicked back – part of a competition for the best period costume. Parents have contributed 1950's "bygones" including ration books, a wedding dresses, pieces of pioneering Titan computers and valve amplifiers. The lads have borrowed school table knives to substitute for the dangerous 16th November flick-knives of the 50's.

1977 07 08
The Conservatives scored a massive victory in the Saffron Walden by-election, retaining the seat with an almost doubled majority, despite a low 65 per cent poll. Mr Alan Haselhurst described it as a victory for the party led by Mrs Margaret Thatcher. The Liberal, Mr Andrew Phillips, held on to second place but it was Labour's Ben Stoneham who took a pounding and returned a vote that will be embarrassing for the Government. Mr Oliver Smedley, anti-EEC, lost his deposit with less than 1,200 votes.

Rampton weathervane, p9

1977 07 11
A woman celebrated 50 years as a typist with the University Typewriting Office Ltd in Cambridge. Miss Dulcie Smith from Histon joined the firm when staff were enjoying new found freedom. "We were never allowed to come to the office unless we were properly dressed with hats and gloves and just before that the staff were never allowed to go into colleges unless they were chaperoned", she said. She has typed thousands of letters, accounts, theses and reports for dons and students and had to master the art of typing in a number of languages without having any knowledge of them.

1977 07 11
Young Thomas was a school dunce, an exam failure, a no-hoper. At best he was seen as unfortunate and underprivileged – at worst he was a stupid and lazy idiot. But this year, while many of his ambitious school contemporaries are kicking their heels in the dole queue, Thomas is enjoying his first job after being groomed for employment by the Work Experience Unit at Waterbeach. He got free travel & free overalls while learning to do simple tasks well, straight-forward repetitive jobs requiring concentration and co-ordination. Now he is one of the unit's 23 pupils to leave and find full-time work since Christmas, only seven are left out of work, compared to one-third of Cambridgeshire's school leavers who are doing nothing because of the national malaise of chronic unemployment. 77 07 11

University Typewriting Office, p5

1977 07 12
Rubbish pits, p7

1977 07 13
A group of Cambridge residents have started a legal battle to stop buses using the narrow, congested Parker Street to reach the city's Drummer Street bus station. They are trying to force four major bus companies to use an alternative route via Emmanuel Street and Regent Street. The leader of the objectors said: "Parker Street is fit only for local traffic, being narrow and with houses on each side. At the moment the pollution is disgusting. You cannot open a window and the noise is above acceptable limits". The Eastern Counties traffic manager said: "Buses represent only a tiny proportion of the heavy traffic using the street, so why we are being picked on I don't know"

M11 road hospital access, p5

1977 07 14
Elizabeth Way is a noisy and polluted choked artery which miraculously eased Cambridge traffic problems in 1971 but it now itself in urgent need of relief. Residents used to live in tree-lined Cam Road, a quiet residential street on a par with De Freville Avenue in houses which had front gardens. Now they have lead pollution and noise levels three-and-a-half times above "acceptable" limits. People live in back rooms as, despite double-glazing, front rooms are still noticeably noisy. "It is difficult to cross the road, nobody can come and see you and window cleaners refuse to come here – they say it gets too dirty", said Mrs Winifred French. Relief could come next year with the opening of the Northern Bypass –at least everyone living on Elizabeth Way hopes so. 77 07 14

Scrambling feature, p22

1977 07 15
Public schoolboy Clive Stafford Smith, of Clarendon Road, Cambridge, got fed up with common-or-garden sponsored walks, so he suggested a pram race to Paris. He wrote round to a few firms and suddenly the mischievous baby of an idea had come of age, with promises of £3,000 and more to come. Today he and 14 friends from Radley College set off on a 250-mile trip and expect to take nine days. The first to reach the Eiffel Tower will win a magnum of champagne.

Bejam comes to Cambridge, p18

1977 07 16
The two leading private gardens in the CEN gardens competition were in the easy working are of Trumpington. The winner, Stuart Brown and his wife Shirley, had moved into the usual near dereliction about three years ago. Runner-up was Mr V. Pike who has spent a lifetime in gardening. Other class winners were W. Brunt of Rayson Way, E.W. Gentle of Thoday Street, F.J. Elbourn, Norwich Street and K.C. Newman, Fallowfield.

Elm church lead, p3

1977 07 19

Some of the plans for the development of Cambridge, which upset people living in the necklace villages, are being scrapped. Cambridgeshire planners are rethinking the city development plans because they claim information on population figures and job opportunities was wrong. Population growth in the area over the next 20 years is likely to be only 13,000 instead of the original estimate of 17,000. Intense opposition mounted by villagers against the rapid build-up of houses and industry near their home has had its effect. The Fen Ditton, Waterbeach and Cottenham expansion is almost certain to be scrapped and in its place more housing in the city itself and in growing villages like Hardwick will be suggested.

1977 07 20
Parents and children said goodbye to Mrs Betty Barrett and Mrs Norah Hudson who have run Cambridge's oldest nursery school, the Cranmer Nursery School in Newnham Lane for many years. Now the Old Oast House which has been rented each weekday morning is being sold by its owners. Their long experience with pre-school children will not be wasted as they plan to give advice and help to someone starting up a new nursery school in another part of Cambridge. They were presented with silver engraved forks in appreciation of their work.

River stunt plan, p5, axed 21st p10
Milton superstore, p11

1977 07 21
One of the most striking features in the property market has been the resurgence of interest in the small terraced city house in the Romsey Town area. Fifteen years ago one could have bought a two up, two down, for about £1,350. By 1967 the price was £2,200 rising to £5,500 by 1972 and is now £8,500 – and increase of 530 per cent. In De Freville Avenue a semi which cost £3,000 in 1962 is now £15,000, and in Queen Edith's Way the figures are £3,350 and £14,500. A post-war semi in Cherry Hinton has risen from £10,000 to £15,000 in the five years from 1972. 77 07 21

Jack Parnell, p8 & 15th p11

1977 07 22
Proposals to build a £40,000 open-air theatre on Jesus Green, Cambridge, from the proceeds of public lotteries, were thrown out by the city council. The first lottery is to start next month. The estimated monthly profit is £5,000 and the Lottery Committee had suggested that the proceeds of the first nine should be spent on a theatre. It would, they thought, have given the scheme an impetus – and the plan had certainly created a lot of publicity, generating hostility towards the project. They were asked to think again and come back with some good ideas.

1977 07 23
The Mayor of Heidelberg officially opened the rooftop garden above Lion Yard, Cambridge, which has been named after the German town to mark the link between Cambridge and its twin university town. Oberburgermeister Renhold Zundel said a scheme similar to Lion Yard was being built in his city and they might have a garden named after Cambridge soon. 77 07 23

1977 07 25
The Newmarket millionaire Mr David Robinson has added another £7 million to the £10 million he gave in 1973 for the foundation of a new college in Cambridge. The additional money will be used to overcome the effects of inflation and establish a trust fund to attract top-class academics to the college mainly from abroad. The shy millionaire who started off in his father's bicycle business in Cambridge refused to be interviewed or photographed - 77 07 25 &(2)

1977 07 25
Parishioners at Oakington have raised nearly £5,000 to repair the church bells. On Saturday four bells were taken down from the tower by a group of villagers; by doing a lot of the manual work they have kept the costs down. The bells need a new frame to replace the present one which is 300 years old. They also need retuning and a fifth bell is being recast at Loughborough.

1977 07 26
Western bypass starts, p11

1977 07 27
The issue of redevelopment in the Kite area of Cambridge may have dragged on for more years than many care to remember but the controversy it has provoked is far from disappearing. More than 300 people turned up to the Guildhall. Opinions on the scheme varied. A pork butcher, Mr Jack Curtis, who had traded in Burleigh Street since 1945 said he had never seen a scheme that hurt so few people. There were interruptions, including an appropriately timed blast or two from a bugle smuggled in by Mr Arthur Sutton whose house is due for demolition – 77 07 27

Ely Cathedral appeal, p3

1977 07 28
The Railway Tavern, Shippea Hill, is threatened with closure by Watney Mann and the regulars are upset. The older men got to thinking back about the pub's previous owners. It was Steward and Patterson's, then Ely Ales, then East Anglian Breweries, then Watney's, then it was Truemans and then Watney's again. Three years ago it was one of the busiest pubs around. A lot of men worked in the station's goods yards but they were closed down and the custom drifted away. Now customers include a few farm workers and the passing trade: sales reps and occasional tourists. Sometimes servicemen from Lakenheath or Mildenhall pop in. – 77 07 28

1977 07 29
There are those who say that swimming in the Cam is only marginally less dangerous than going for a dip in an oceanful of sharks. There are others who swim in the river day in, day out and are the very model of health. The two sides met at the annual visit of the City councillors to the slowly decaying bathing huts on Sheep's Green. The Mayor said: "We're told the Cam is polluted. All we can say is: Swim, drink it and kill yourselves. Only don't say you weren't warned"

1977 07 29
Haverhill publicans are upset at what they see as "pot hunting" by a local darts team. The captain of the Black Horse darts team has asked three players from Sudbury to play for them in the forthcoming Haverhill District Winter League. Although importing good players from outside is not against the rules local landlords are describing the move as "sneaky" and "unethical". The players say they are only coming from Sudbury to Haverhill for a change of scenery

1977 07 30
Milton hypermarket, p7

August 1977 CEN

1977 08 01
Folk Festival, p5

1977 08 02
Skateboarders, p9

1977 08 03
Cambridge's £3 million concert and conference hall that never was began with a £2 million promise to pay for the conversion of the Corn Exchange. But that promise, made in 1974 was short-lived. Mr David Robinson decided that the Corn Exchange was ugly and should be pulled down. Instead he favoured a purpose-built concert and conference hall on the Downing Street end of the Lion Yard complex. The man at the centre of those protracted negotiations was Coun Jack Warren who told him it was a listed building and could not be pulled down but he pooh-poohed this. In October 1976 Mr Robinson wrote to say it would be impossible for him to provide the money, and then gave another £7 to Robinson College. – 77 08 03 &(2)

1977 08 03
Cambridge pop groups are to be given a chance to make their names in the music industry. Lee Wood, the owner of "Remember Those Oldies" record shop in King Street has just launched his own record label for lively local bands. Having acquired the 16-track recording facilities at Spaceward Studios he is looking for local groups to promote on his new label entitled "RAW" and has plans to produce an LP of all the Cambridge groups over the last ten years. One of the first bands to be recorded are punk-rockers The Users, whose single "Sick of You" has already sold 10,000 copies.

1977 08 04
Eltisley kidney donor register, p11

1977 08 05
Lord Adrian, Chancellor of Cambridge University for seven years and one of the world's leading scientists, has died. He was one of the most eminent of the Cambridge scientists and won the Nobel Prize for medicine in 1932. He was a Professor of Physiology and preceded Lord Butler as Master of Trinity College. He had more than a score of honorary degrees from universities all over the world

1977 08 06
A race against time to fly Concorde to the Duxford Aviation Museum is likely to provide a tense photo-finish. Contestants are the British Aircraft Corporation with its supersonic 01 prototype and Bovis with its giant bulldozers. The bulldozers are now poised to start digging up the runway to form part of the Western By-Pass and if they do it will end, once and for all, the on-off guessing game surrounding Concorde's "imminent" arrival. BAC's chief test pilot, Brian Trubshaw has made it clear he will need every available foot of runway to bring the aircraft in.

Violence warning, p1

1977 08 09
Cambridge wants its northern by-pass badly, yet it has done little to make the men who are building it feel welcome. At the by-pass site office a community of men from Bovis Civil Engineering Ltd living in 80 caravans find that after long hours when the continual chugging of the expensive machinery finally ceases and the clouds of choking dust begin to settle, that Cambridge has been found wanting. "It is the worst town for entertainment I have ever been in. About half of us are northerners and what we really miss is the working men's club sort of place", said one. Others prefer to live with their wives on the site and find the local school at Milton the best anywhere. About a dozen children from site families go there. – 77 08 09

1977 08 10
In 1952 Haverhill was bravely pioneering town expansion. The agreement with the Greater London Council provided for a population of 30,000 by 1991. Between 1961 and 1971 the population more than doubled and at the end of 1973 three-quarters of all Haverhill employment came from London companies who had moved to Suffolk. It has grown rapidly and the haste in which estates were built has been blamed for the grossly overworked sewage works. The last development to be completed with GLC assistance was the 360-home Chimswell estate. There are more than 200 empty houses for which the GLC has nomination rights and a further 100 have been leased to the USAF to house servicemen. – 77 08 10

1977 08 10
Paul Turpin has big plans for the Cow and Hare at Lode, which has been transformed from a very ordinary village pub into a glamorous night-spot, where customers can enjoy a pint of real ale, a reasonably-priced meal or a high class cabaret and music. It is his first pub and the last thing he wants to do is lose the custom of the "locals" so he has kept the bar looking like a bar, with draught Burton and Ind Coope bitter being varied according to demand with real ales.

1977 08 11
Robinson gift, p1
John Barry, p7

1977 08 12
For more than three years Cambridge has been on the verge of getting a £3 million civic hall gift from the Newmarket millionaire Mr David Robinson. But secret talks between City Councillor Jack Warren and the man who has paid £17 million to found a new college in Cambridge have collapsed with a letter from Mr Robinson saying, "It is impossible". Coun Warren made one last telephone call to the man he had come to know as a friend. Mr Robinson said his wife was ill and he was selling up and going to live in a bungalow.

1977 08 12
The first lottery tickets went on sale in Cambridge today – but still no one has any idea what the money will be spent on. The City Council's Lottery Committee has put off discussing ideas for another two weeks despite being told that it was illegal to sell tickets where there was no clear object in view. Any ideas should be given to council officers who will list them under three categories – charitable organisations, projects of a "social nature" and plans to the benefit of all residents such as the proposed open-air theatre. The council has still to sort out a kiosk selling point for the tickets but are aiming to sell 40,000 tickets through 32 newsagents for the draw on September 9th

1977 08 12
The Mayor of Cambridge had a go at skateboarding, the latest craze among youngsters. But try as he would to keep still the board had a will of its own and he had to hold on to one of a group of teenagers who went to see him about finding a proper skateboard rink in the city. He told them he had already made a firm request for the Amenities Committee to consider their 1,637-name petition and asked if some of the city's lottery money can be spent on one. The slopes of the Lion Yard present an ideal combination of smooth surface and different angles to turn in but shoppers say it is dangerous and large areas of plate glass windows are likely to be broken

1977 08 16
We have become so used to inflation that price rises are readily accepted as being a necessary evil. But what about the price of chips? In February 1976 the News did a survey and we have repeated the exercise now the raw material – the potato – is costing only a fraction of its previous price. None of the shops had passed on a reduction to customers. But cod is twice the price of 18 months ago and the fryer is having to subsidise his fish price from chip sales. The best value is at D.G. Munns in Old Chesterton. At 12p a portion the price is unchanged and for an extra 3p our reporter was given an extra half portion – three ounces of chips.

History under concrete, p3

1977 08 17
Haverhill policemen are finding a night's duty at their station is not a happy one. Ghostly bumps and bangs are disturbing their midnight sojourns by the cells. Heavy doors, soundly locked, have been heard to slam. Even typewriters in empty offices have started a spirited chatter. The station in Camps Road was built on the site of a pagan Roman court. In 19th century excavations bodies of slaves were found bricked into the walls. Now the officers feel their new headquarters in Swann Lane cannot be completed soon enough.

Bumps gun shed, p3

1977 08 18
The Labour Party has produced a controversial plan which could mean more power for large district councils like Cambridge City Council. It could soon be running its own schools and social services. This is only the first stage of a plan which ultimately would see English local government in the hands of a dozen regional and 200 multi-purpose authorities. The existing county councils would disappear altogether.

1977 08 19
Theoretically worth over £150,000 a year in rent, the 47,000 square foot office accommodation above the Lion Yard has stood empty since the precinct opened nearly two years ago. Agents trying to let the offices blame the economic malaise for their lack of success. The high price of central car parking is also a barrier. The city council made a former builders' site available to encourage offers and now one taker has at last been found. Vinters, the Cambridge solicitors have taken space. But Bidwells say matters will only improve when companies begin to expand and the perpetually optimistic estate agents say it is beginning to happen.

Arts outlook precarious, p5
Pye profits rocket, p10

1977 08 20
Concorde, proud emblem of British civil aviation swooped low over Cambridge and its necklace villages to her new museum home at Duxford airfield, ending months of speculation and delay. Pilot Brian Trubshaw circled before putting the sleek, streamlined beauty on to the runway. As the wheels touched down a parachute flew out from the back of the aircraft to slow her down on the comparatively short 6,000-ft runway. In the background was equipment belonging to the construction firm Bovis, waiting to lop 1,000 feet from the runway to make way for the Cambridge western by-pass. Now Concorde is here to stay – the runway is too short for her to take off again.

1977 08 22
Angry scenes ended a demonstration in which the vicar of Eaton Socon led parishioners into the main road to protest against heavy lorries. Seconds before the crowd was due to disperse after blocking the Great North Road for 15 minutes, two drivers decided they had waited long enough and tried to weave their way through. But residents, including young mothers with babies in prams, children and old age pensioners rushed to form a human wall round the cars. The demonstration was led by the Rev John Heffer whose banner proclaimed: "Diversions, not cremations"

Birdbrook treasure, p5

1977 08 23
Although it is a city which expects to attract two million overseas tourists this year, Cambridge has nowhere within its bounds where a visitor can pitch a tent. During the summer months the only welcome that Stanley Belcher, warden of the Camping Club site at Shelford, has been able to offer many visitors is a "site full" notice. There is an additional problem in turning campers away as planning regulations limit him to 60 pitches – about a quarter of an acre each. So when the site is full it certainly does not that way to foreign eyes accustomed to the crammed conditions of popular continental locations. It is ironic that Cambridge City Council needs no licence to jam tents in like sardines for the folk festival.

1977 08 24
Libraries face axe, p5
Lensfield Road roundabout, p8
Abolish County Council, p9

1977 08 25

"Come up with some proper plans" the city council told the skate boarders. And so they did. The Cambridge Sidewalk Surfers took their ideas to a commercial artist and the result is a scale drawing of the old bandstand on Christ's Pieces as they would like to see it. The present slab of grey asphalt would be replaced by a maze of ramps, tunnels and obstacles with one or two hair-raising features. They estimate the park could be built for less than £1,500 with club members providing some of the labour free. They would charge about 10p per session, just high enough to make a profit but no so high to keep people away.

1977 08 26
Skateboarders met Cambridge council officials and received a bit of a shock. They were told that the skateboard park they had designed would cost at least 30 times what they had estimated. "It's a quite incredible plan", said the Chief Recreation Officer. "It would give Cambridge just about the finest rink in the country – at a price. It would cost at least £25,000". He said a restrictive covenant governed development on Christ's Pieces, which would create all sorts of legal problems for the skateboarders. Their president said: "It's a bit disheartening"

1977 08 26
A campaign has been launched against the threatened closure of the Mill Road public library, Cambridge. It library is one of six which may close because of lack of money caused by severe cutbacks in Government grants. The County Librarian, Royston Brown, said the library needed £15,000 worth of repairs – and the county council did not have that sort of money. But the Romsey area has the highest percentage of old people in the city who use it as a daily reading room because they cannot afford to buy newspapers and magazines

1977 08 27
Lensfield Road roundabout, p5

1977 08 31
River Cam, p7
Last Burma Day, Waterbeach, p9

September 1977 CEN

1977 09 01
Experts have successfully uncovered medieval wall paintings at Barton church. They have spent weeks cleaning off wax applied in 1929 in a previous attempt to restore the paintings which probably did more harm than good. It was believed then that wax helped to protect them but experts have now decided that damp coming through ancient church walls is sealed into paintings by the wax layer and leads to severe blistering. The paintings were probably done in vegetable dyes by travelling artists & were covered up during the Reformation period. The latest efforts have brought to light new details including an evil-looking devil; the early workers thought this was a duck's head

1977 09 02
Girls will continue to be barred from grants to aid further education from a charity at Steeple Bumpstead despite recent sex equality legislation. Village boys qualify for money from the wealthy George Gent Trust to help offset the cost of a university degree and the Charity Commission has ruled that the original "Men only" intention of the benefactor must be adhered to. The Parish council chairman said: "There are many local parents who would have been glad of an extra £50 to help send their daughters on to higher education". But the vicar said the original intention should be allowed to stand: "Often when a woman gets a degree it's a waste of money. She gets married and all the money that's been spent on her is wasted".

1977 09 02
Burma Star Day at Waterbeach airfield has become one of the region's major annual events and it is with a mixture of sadness and relief that the organisers present their last show. After six years they have decided it is time for a rest. There will be the usual parade of events with the sensational display of the RAF Red Arrows, the freefalling RAF parachutists the Falcons and the flypast of the huge triangular Vulcan as the highlights of the day. Massed bands, motor cycle displays and the Battle of Britain Memorial Flight will be on show.

1977 09 03
Sitting in the enormous blue tent on Jesus Green and watching the incomparable Sadler's Wells Royal Ballet I felt that this is what a fully international university city should be all about. The huge tent provides a sufficiently large stage and seats to stage large performances and make them pay. Cambridge should consider investing in something of this sort. It took a lot of courage, hard work and imagination to bring Sadler's Wells to Cambridge and they have brought Cambridge to the crossroads. Either it goes forward from here or it retreats.

1977 09 05
The last Burma Star Day at Waterbeach went out with a bang – with record profits of more than £7,000 and a record attendance of over 53,000. It will be the last air show and display; the organiser and controller, Mr W.H.P. Clarke said "The show depends on many local volunteers who do this at weekends and in their spare time". The prime attraction must have been the RAF's Battle of Britain Memorial Flight but there was also the sole remaining airworthy RAF Mosquito. They were joined by aircraft of today including a Buccaneer, Phantom and a pair of Harrier jump jets.

Skateboarding, p8

1977 09 06
Heneky's bar in Cambridge had a prominently displayed luncheon list which included a "ploughman's lunch". It is a small bread roll, a very modest piece of cheese and some butter for 45p. But at the Bath Hotel in Bene't Street it arrived with everything – onions, pickled onions, tomato, lettuce and so on and the price was only 5p more. At the Still and Sugarloaf two sizes of cheese roll are obtainable at different prices. Each has a piece of processed cheese already in it.

1977 09 06
A bleak future faces the expanding towns of Haverhill and Mildenhall if agreements with the greater London Council are terminated. There would be little further factory building, fewer new schools and an end to major road schemes such as bypasses. Haverhill was the first town development scheme; the population doubled in ten years and is now about 16,500. But all planning had been geared to a target population of 30,000 and a £1½ million sports and swimming pool complex and other amenities provided for a town of that size.

1977 09 06
There is something innately rebellious about banger racing. It involves the smashing of a motor car into as many pieces as possible. At the end of a race the Concord Car Club's circuit at Henham looks like a breakers yard. What was once a Zephyr Zodiac is on its roof, the suspension of another car that defies identification has collapsed and another is wrapped up in the safety fencing. The criterion – "as long as it will run it will race" – applies to the cars which cost the drivers as much as £15 to buy. They can last for one meeting or perhaps three if you are lucky. Pay your £2 club membership and £1 every time you race and you're in. – 77 09 06

1977 09 07
Libraries revolt, p3
Conington pub, p7

1977 09 08
A scheme for a superstore at Milton, which would create 200 local jobs, got the thumbs-down from the planners. It was proposed by the Associated Dairies group which had similar plans for the Scotsdale Garden Centre site at Gt Shelford rejected after a lengthy inquiry. Like that plan the Milton scheme ran into fierce opposition as soon as it was suggested. Local traders said it would push many of them into bankruptcy. Their business had already been affected by the Tesco superstore at Bar Hill

1977 09 09
Littleport bridge, p9

1977 09 10
The owner of the Alley Boutique warned skateboard enthusiasts to keep out of the Cambridge Lion Yard after his shop's plate glass window was smashed. Police found a skateboard amid the broken glass. Ian Burns said: "This is the third shop window to be damaged since they started using the slopes of the walkways". The skateboarders who are aged from 10 to 25 use the shopping precinct as an evening time practice run. The Mayor said: "Until they can find their own rink they say the Lion Yard is the only place to go"

1977 09 10
The prospect of severe bread famine saw about 300 people waiting outside bread shops in Mill Road before they were open. About 80 per cent of the bread sold in the city comes from the big bakeries now on strike. At Spillers-French Baking in Sleaford Street, which makes about half of the bread sold in the area, 100 bakers joined the strike. Some small bakeries are limiting sales to one or two loaves or serving regular customers first. The joint owner of one of Cambridge's smaller bakeries, Mr Jim Markillie, accused housewives of hoarding.

1977 09 12
Kite plans changed, p5

1977 09 14
At 2.00 am while Cambridge slept a solitary light shines in Belgrave Road. Master baker Roy Markillie has arrived at the family bakery. His aim – to turn out 4,000 loaves in time for the bread queues that inevitably form outside his shop at 9 am. All his working life he has been an independent baker and so isn't affected by the strike that has crippled the big bread firms. He doesn't relish the thought of tripling his normal production rate – it simply means he will have to work flat out for the next eight hours. At 9 am the bread goes on sale – rationed to one loaf for each person

Snowy film, p4
Shippea Hill new tenant found, p11

1977 09 15
The fens are an area strange and largely unknown to outsiders. But far stranger is the portrait of the region just published in the "New Society". It presents a picture of an area struggling against poverty with people trying to bring up families on wages of £27 a week. Some live in council houses with a good show of vegetables in the garden but "grim and comfortless within". The article paints a picture of intermarriage producing subnormality, children whose slowness at school reflects their parents' lack of expectation for them – even the highest number of shotgun murders in the country. There are no redeeming features. Even the weather is described as grim, and community resources "at an unbelievably low ebb" – 77 09 15

1977 09 16
Huntingdon skateboards, p7
Swimming in snow, p26

1977 09 19
Veteran charity fundraiser Snowy Farr led about 150 children around Cambridge city centre with the intention of filming the opening sequences of a children's television series in which he stars. But Snowy took the wrong turning and helpful police radioed around the route trying to locate him; over-exuberant children kept overtaking his bike; cats fell off the trailer and the goats couldn't get through the crowd. And then, to cap it all, sirens screamed and blue lights flashed as three fire engines raced up Trinity Street to the Whim Restaurant. The whole thing was organised by a group of independent cameramen who are planning to sell a series to foreign television networks.

1977 09 20
Bread was being made at the large Spillers-French bakery in Cambridge for the first time in 11 days, as staff returned to work after settlement of the national strike in "plant" bakeries. The accountant at the Sleaford Street bakery said some loaves were coming off the production lines by mid-morning. But they would have to cool and then be wrapped before they could be sent out. During the strike the small independent bakers have been working flat out to try to meet demand. Most have managed to produce around double their normal output.

1977 09 22
A group of parents at Swaffham Prior primary school fought and won a battle to save a full time teaching job at the school. The village school with 80 children on its roll now has four full-time teaching staff. Now they want other parents to join them in a campaign to prevent any reduction in the present teacher-pupil ratio of 24 pupils to one teacher in most primary schools. Secondary schools average 16.5 to one

1977 09 23
The Cambridgeshire Structure Plan proposals, which have taken officials nearly four years to compile, were condemned as "a complete waste of time and energy" within minutes of their formal launch. The proposals, prepared at an estimated cost of many thousands of pounds, set out to chart the course of county-wide development during the next 15 years. They suggest the county council's aim should be to improve the quality of life in the face of a continuing lack of public money.

1977 09 23
Whitehall has rejected Cambridge City Council's representations that the county needs a larger slice of the rate support grant "cake", because of its growing population. The Department of Environment says that a larger population provides scope for economies of scale and will bring an increase of rate income because of new building. It adds that Cambridgeshire receives less aid because its needs are lower than those of most other authorities. The Chairman of the Finance Panel described the reply as "just Government waffle"

1977 09 24
Locals in Burwell cast a quizzical eye over the new thatched roof of a cottage in High Street. From a distance it looks the same as any other. But close up something appears to be different. The thatch is made of fibreglass sheets, screwed to the roof. It costs slightly more than a normal thatch but has been treated to make it fireproof, needs no maintenance and will last far longer than a straw or reed thatch. The product is manufactured by Fibrethatch, a Royston firm. Whatever the benefits the roofs are bad news for birds. They will not be able to burrow their way in to nest.

Captain Hatfield photos, p8

1977 09 26
Before I met The Stranglers I met their fans who formed a bizarrely-painted and clothed chain stretching from the Corn Exchange to King's Parade. First in the queue was a character by the name of Rat Rancid, with his mate Garry Gangrene, from King's Lynn. Here were some punks that looked every bit as vile as the ones we've all read about. They were horrible. I think it was the safety pins through the cheeks that made me feel slightly sick, but it may just have been the chains through their noses. They snarled and leered while my colleague, Mike Manni, took their pictures. Then Rat put down his can of Party Seven and scribbled his address. Could we send some prints. "To Rat Rancid", I asked. "Oh, no", he gasped. "My mum wouldn't like that"

1977 09 27

Greyhound pub, p6

1977 09 28
Royston has become one of the dirtiest and shabbiest little towns in Hertfordshire, according to one man who has to contend daily with a litter problem outside his home in Kneesworth Street. At night armed with a broom and dustbin bag he collects up piles of chip bags, sweets and cigarette wrappings, tissues and tin cans. A mechanical roadsweeper came down the street sometimes and he once swept the rubbish into the gutter. "The driver, believing I had emptied out household rubbish into the road, stopped his vehicle and pushed the whole lot back into my drive", he said

1977 09 30
An Army bomb disposal squad detonated a First World War bomb in the grounds of Sawston Hall – after the live bomb had been sitting in the hall's dining room for years. The 10-inch mortar was brought back as a souvenir of the war. The owner said he was going to give it to Duxford Aviation Museum but was advised to check whether it was live before donation. He doubted it was filled with explosive. It probably only had the detonator in, and would have needed a very hard knock to set it off.

1977 09 30
The Transport Minister is investigating claims that British Rail is planning to axe overnight trains between Ely and Norwich and King's Lynn. There had been negotiations over the cuts in services between 10 pm and 6 am. At present there are three or four trains during this time and ASLEF fear any changes would be the thin end of the wedge in steps towards closure. But British Rail say that far from reducing services they are actually planning some marginal improvements.

1977 09 30
The newsagents business of Lokers on East Road has been something of a landmark since Dobbie Loker founded the firm in 1861. They have come a long way, expanding from a little paper shop to one of the biggest wholesalers in the area and providing books, paperbacks, toys and other sundries as well as stationery for the newsagents of Cambridge. They were the last shop to leave the south side of East Road during redevelopment. Ten years ago they decided to concentrate on wholesale trade and look for new accommodation. They have now moved to Severn Place.

October 1977 CEN

1977 10 03
Forsythe at Bar Hill, p5

1977 10 04
The Cambridge department store Laurie and McConnal in Fitzroy Street is to close in December. Indecision over plans for the Kite area redevelopment is the reason, said Mr Anthony Frais. "We have tried everything we know to get something moving in the Kite, and while the council is now at last seeing sense we cannot afford to wait the two years before anything actually happens. As a small family company are paying penal rates." The business was established nearly 100 years ago. 77 10 04

1977 10 05
The sudden news of Laurie's closure has come as a shock to the City Council team involved in drawing up the Kite plans. Council leader, John Powley, said he was "very sorry indeed" and could well understand their frustration at the indecision. "Gradual renewal of the are, as some people want, just will not happen and will lead to a speedy decline of the whole area. A satisfactory scheme must be produced as speedily as possible. Constant delays are not good for the area, for the people of the city, or for Cambridge as a whole".

Milton laundry, p3

1977 10 05
The news that Laurie and McConnal's department store is closing will have come as a surprise to most people. But to anyone who regularly used the store it was only a question of time before they succumbed to the inevitable. Even at the height of the shopping day you could be the only potential customer in any one department. It had 50,000 sq ft of selling space, spread over five floors to service, heat, decorate and keep full of merchandise and the passing trade had dropped off dramatically as so many houses have been knocked down and food shops have disappeared from the Kite area. 77 10 05

1977 10 06
Hopes of bringing mains sewerage connections to isolated villages are no nearer being realised. The only exception being allowed by the Anglian Water Authority arises when the present conditions offer a health hazard. Coun Jack Warren said: "Conditions have got to be intolerable before we will do anything. I think we are a really stodgy lot. Sewage has got to be coming out of the taps before we will do anything". But the chairman said it was the Department of the Environment which had clamped down on pioneer rural schemes.

University Pagan Society, p1
Park & ride, p11

1977 10 07
Another step forward in Kite wrangle – 73 10 07

1977 10 08
More shops in the Kite area will be forced to close unless something is done quickly to rejuvenate the area. A number of stores have been teetering on the brink for some time and could go out of business. This has been caused by all the little ginger groups, all pushing for their own things. They hack and maul among themselves and all they succeed in doing is to cause the sort of intolerable position that Lauries found itself in. It is all very well saying the Kite should stay exactly as it is. But it cannot. It has changed markedly over the years and is still changing. It either has to be redeveloped in some fashion, or it dies. – 77 10 08

1977 10 10
Cash rescue hopes, p1

1977 10 11 c
The latest and controversial proposals for rebuilding the Kite area of Cambridge took another step along the long road to becoming reality when the city council accepted them in principle as a basis for discussion with a number of companies interested in financing the project. It took almost two hours of debate – which at times became heated and bitter – to reach the decision. Supporters warned against further delays; Coun Gough Goodman said "Filibustering in the council chamber has resulted in the loss of jobs for many people and the loss of a splendid business, Laurie & McConnal"

1977 10 12
Bypass machine, p11
St Andrews community centre, p17

1977 10 13
Stapleford Parish Council reaffirmed that it was willing to run the village library with voluntary helpers if it would result in it being saved. The library, which occupies a room in the school, is open for eight hours a week and its one of eight threatened with closure by the County Council. But the County Librarian says this could not be considered because it would cause trouble with the trade union.

Skateboard plan, p11

1977 10 14
Mitchams, the Cambridge department store, is to close after 68 years. Mr Charles Mitcham converted a house in 1909 and opened up the store. It spread into adjoining buildings and today sells almost everything but furniture. The shop was sold when Mr Mitcham died during the war and was taken over two months ago by a Manchester-based insurance group. The manager said: "It is more than just a shop closing. It is part of the city about to vanish" – 77 10 14

1977 10 15
Prime Minister, Jim Callaghan, arrived in Cambridge to address a Labour Party Conference in the Guildhall and talk to the Fabian Society in the Union Society building. Leaders of the city's Sidewalk Surfers skateboarding group waiting outside got no promises of support for their skateboard rink campaign. Over lunch local Labour Party leaders – including Mrs Janet Jones talked of next year's rate support grant settlement for the county. In his speech Mr Callaghan welcomed President Carter's willingness to reduce nuclear weapons and said he sought a comprehensive ban on nuclear explosions

1977 10 17
The Prime Minister, Jim Callaghan, has privately assured Cambridge Labour Party leaders that the County Council's financial difficulties will be sorted out – probably over a two-year period. Substantial Government financial help is on the way to stop massive cuts in council services – including the sacking of nearly 200 teachers. This follows cuts of more than £10 million in Government aid this year

1977 10 18
Undergraduates at Jesus College, Cambridge, are to keep watch in an ancient room for ghostly happenings on the night of All Souls. They will be on the look-out for the seven members of the college's reputed Everlasting Club, formed in 1738 which conferred eternal membership. Once a year the members promised to return to their original meeting room. But one by one they died. In 1766 the last surviving member sat down for annual cerebration with six empty chairs for his deceased colleagues. From 10 until midnight there was a 'hideous uproar' in the room after which he was found dead. – 77 10 18

1977 10 18
The Three Horseshoes at Stapleford, which had been closed since April 1976 is gone forever. And in its place is a completely new pub, The Longbow. Only the exterior of the building remains the same, inside are all the comforts of a modern establishment. Initially they are stocking Truman Crown, Whitbread Trophy and Whitbread "BB" mild on draught but intend to supply according to local demand.

Folk Museum move, p11

1977 10 19
Structure plan ideas for channelling Cambridge expansion population into the "pleasant little villages" of Milton and Waterbeach over the next 15 years have been described as "completely abhorrent" by Coun Paddy Crossman. He doubted that the population increase during the next 20 years would be anywhere near as high as the 12,800 predicted by the planners. Among the proposals is one to permit Milton (pop 1,400) to expand to 6,000 and to allow for industrial development in the village to provide jobs. Waterbeach is earmarked for some development, though on a much smaller scale.

1977 10 20
Take the dull and empty expanse of East Road roundabout in Cambridge, combine it with the recent clamour for a city skateboard park and the result is a plan which has just won Cambridge architect Keith Garbett and artist Jon Harris first place in a national competition. The idea incorporates a "pipe" with a viewing platform above where spectators can watch skateboarders emerge from a tunnel, a bowl with an up-and-down return slope and a slalom slope where skateboarders can weave in and out of rubber bollards. The Mayor said he would be happy to see the plan go before council officials for consideration but would it attract children to a busy junction and might impede its real purpose which is to let people cross the road safely

Skeleton shortage, p10

1977 10 21
Caravan site, p10

1977 10 22
Cliff Richard, pop superstar and hot gospeller, fervently preached a message to the converted during his first Cambridge concert for many years. Unfortunately the message was hammered home between every song. He talks about his religious beliefs so much that I was bored beyond embarrassment. Why couldn't he just sing? He delivered Elvis' "Heartbreak Hotel" and his own unforgettable early hit, "Living Doll" and just before the end really started rockin' up a storm with two heavy beat numbers, real vintage Richard rock 'n' roll.

Folk Festival move, p6

1977 10 25
The spate of UFO sightings south of Cambridge has continued. Saffron Walden police received two independent reports of what appeared to be two very large headlamps which went into a star shape the size of a double-decker bus. It then transformed into the shape of a shuttlecock with red beams coming from both ends. The sequence was repeated six times. The next night a driver saw a bright amber light trailing an aircraft, it then hovered and dashed across the sky at very high speed. About a dozen other people claim to have seen strange lights in the sky during the last few months. – 77 10 25

1977 10 25
There is a strong element of industrial activity in Cambridge at the moment. There are already a number of famous and well-established large scientific concerns and nearly every month sees the setting up of a new firm based on scientific manufacturing and development. It is an open secret that in the past a number of the world's scientific giants have made approaches to the official powers that be in Cambridge about the possibility of setting up business in the city. But the city authorities have had to reject the approaches reluctantly because of the development plan strictures designed 30 years ago. 77 10 25

1977 10 26
The Jesus Green and Abbey outdoor swimming pools in Cambridge may be drained until early spring and turned into temporary skateboarding rinks. The Mayor has asked city council officers to look into the possibilities and if the investigation proves they can be used he will try and persuade the city council to approve the plan, thus bypassing the long and tedious committee procedure. Meanwhile Forest Heath District Council has decided that skateboarding is here to stay and accepted in principle a proposal to provide 'beginners' skateboarding tracks at Mildenhall, Newmarket and Brandon.

1977 10 26
When Mr Reg Smart first looked at a site in Newmarket for which his company had tendered for the contract to build 259 council dwellings, he admitted it looked frightening. For this contract was worth £ 2 million. The business started in the early 1960s from a Cambridge council house with the sum of £30 holiday pay which he received when leaving the gas board. The success of Phantom and Moreton estate venture which was completed four months ahead of schedule shows how far R.H. Smart Ltd has come since its early days. The whole idea of the estate has been to get away from the often drab uniformity of council estates. It is in an ideal setting and has a rural feeling about it.

1977 10 29
Gas works car park, p7

1977 10 31
Restoration work on the picturesque Bourn windmill was officially completed this weekend. Millwright, Mr Phil Davies, put the finishing touches to the £7,000 job earlier this month and it was left to his wife to unveil a commemorative plaque above the entrance to the mill, reputed to be one of the oldest in the country. Work on the mill started after two sails were torn off during the gales of January 1976. When the Cambridge Preservation Society embarked on the restoration work it was estimated it would cost about £3,000 but the state of the other sails pushed the costs up.

November 1977 CEN

1977 11 02
Power cuts, p1

1977 11 03
Ghostly members of the 300-year-old Cambridge Everlasting Club failed to make their appearance at midnight despite a vigil by Jesus College students. More than a dozen undergraduates gathered in a room at the top of an ancient staircase to wait for the annual reunion of the club which claimed to confer eternal membership on those invited to join it. All members of the club are reputed to have met grisly deaths and the room was sealed for many years as a result. Last night the student occupant invited fellow members of the Jesus Old Contemptibles dining club to join him for drinks but nothing happened despite the consumption of bottles of port.

1977 11 03
Toddlers at Elsworth at last have their own play group building – an old motorway site office – after months of back-breaking work by their fathers who built the foundations and weekend by weekend installed plumbing and electricity. Previously the children had to share the cricket pavilion but cricket and children don't really mix and equipment had to be carried in and out for each session.

1977 11 04
A plan by a top Cambridge police marksman to set up a smallbore weapons range in a disused pit at Haslingfield has been turned down. More than 180 villagers signed a petition against the firing range. South Cambs planners were told that small bore shooting is the second most popular sport in the country and they could not have found a more suitable applicant. But Coun Joe Brown said the site has a variety of wild birds and flowers and is often used for walks.

1977 11 05
Eastern Electricity introduced rota cuts in Cambridge to combat the deepening power crisis. Disconnections are likely at any time. As many as 35,500 consumers are likely to be without power at some time during the day. The district manager said the situation was bound to get tighter as the work-to-rule by the engineers began to escalate. Office staff are manning telephones 15 hours a day to keep the public informed.

1977 11 05
Retailers in Cambridge city centre are angry because the power cuts threaten to deprive them of electricity for up to three hours every Saturday afternoon. They feel it is unfair that the same shops should face being cut off during a peak period every week. The manager of the Abbey Boutique said it could cost traders thousands of pounds. But Eastern Electricity say they have to think of the needs of all their consumers and the traders would do well to see how it goes this weekend before they start complaining

1977 11 07
A congregation of 2,500 people came to Ely Cathedral to see the Rt Rev Peter Walker inducted, installed and enthroned as Bishop causing a traffic jam as Ely's medieval streets took the strain of the influx of people coming to the biggest service since Bishop Robert's induction 13 years ago. The cathedral was packed as a procession of 10 bishops entered the building before the west end doors were firmly shut. The new bishop raised his crook to shoulder height and struck the vast doors three times. The echoes died down, the doors opened and with a fanfare the service commenced.

1977 11 08
St Ives town centre needs a drastic facelift, say planners. There are 134 protected buildings in the centre but more than 50 buildings are in need of renovation and two major sites – Dolphin Yard and Crown Yard - are derelict and need rebuilding. The main proposals are a new shopping precinct at Crown Yard & pedestrianisation of White Hart Lane. A new bus terminus is proposed at the Cattle Market plus a large new shopping complex on the Sheep Market. One development above all will have a significant impact – the provision of a by-pass to the east.

1977 11 09
A thief only got £5 for an original Constable – because an art dealer thought it was a poor copy of the one in the Fitzwilliam Museum across the road. But it WAS the one across the road, and the dealer only discovered that when he read about the theft in his morning paper. He dashed to his office, checked the painting and discovered it was the original. And while he was checking it the police walked in on a routine enquiry. So he handed it over. The picture was grubby and finger-marked because the thief had shopped it around five or six other dealers in Cambridge.

1977 11 09
Crowds waving flags and demonstrators waving banners greeted the Queen and Prince Philip as they arrived to open the new Wolfson College. For the Duke there must have been something familiar about the scene. For the second time in less than five months he was met in the city by pouring rain and by a group campaigning for nursery facilities in the university. He gave them a friendly wave as the car drove past. The Queen said she had laid the foundation stone of a college at Oxford and subsequently opened another of the same name at Cambridge. That this was possible was proof of the generosity of the Wolfson Foundation.

1977 11 11
A Cambridge tailors, James Neal Ltd, which has been in Cambridge for 107 years, has been taken over by another tailors which is even older. The firm which has bought out the Trumpington Street business is Ede and Ravenscroft which started trading in 1689. It specialises in ceremonial and academic robes and is a leading manufacturer of wigs and legal wear.

Magdalene Bridge, p1

1977 11 12
Cambridgeshire's fire authority has hidden a fire engine somewhere in Huntingdon for the use of the town's 13 retained firemen so they will not, it is hoped, have to cross picket lines of their full-time colleagues when a fire call goes out. The retained firemen have been refused service at the bar of the Firemen's and Ambulancemen Sports and Social Club. One said: "We are a bit disappointed. We wholeheartedly agree with their pay-claim and would do anything we could to help, except take strike action"

1977 11 12
A Cambridge genetics student has been refused a place in the university's late-night firewatch patrols, because she is a woman. But after she threatened to take the university before an industrial tribunal unless she is allowed to apply for the £16-a-night job an official said the policy was being reconsidered, adding: "At the time we started these patrols we did not think it would be right to subject young ladies to walking around all night". The patrol involves walking around different university sites and anybody who was worried by the prospect would not apply in the first place

1977 11 14
St Ives has more reason than most towns to be wary over the firemen's strike. When fire broke out in Crown Yard in the summer of 1975 it served as a grim reminder of past blazes. In 1680 a large part of the town was completely destroyed in a disastrous blaze and nine years earlier a fire started in a malthouse at the end of White Hart Lane, crossed the Market Place east of Bridge Street and destroyed all the houses to the river.

1977 11 14
There are almost 400 properties standing vacant in Cambridge according to the Empty Property Action Group. More than 200 are houses of which the great majority are privately owned. There are 1,026 people on the council's "live" waiting list and another 1,400 seeking council accommodation at some future date. Numerous organisations are seeking accommodation for special groups like the College of Arts and Technology, Women's Aid, Fulbourn Hospital and Cyrenians Night Shelter. The Kite and Castle Street areas share the highest concentration of empty property. The city council are worried that the list could serve as a kind of housing register for squatters.

1977 11 14
In 1975 St Ives Borough Council approved in outline the development of a shopping centre and office buildings at Crown Yard. They were asked to approve the demolition of the Jackdaw Boutique at the entrance, an old gymnasium and the music shop in the yard. These were among the buildings destroyed in a fire that summer. Coun. Fred Jennings observed that historically and aesthetically the buildings were important. "We do not want to repeat the mistake of Huntingdon where buildings of modern idiom are crying out among buildings of an older type", he said

1977 11 15
Skateboards rejected, p3
Fire strike, p9
Duxford pub, p13

1977 11 16
A string of obsolete fire tenders standing in a Cambridge scrapyard prompted speculation they could be brought out of retirement to relieve the hard-pressed Green Goddesses standing in for the regular fire appliances. But the owner thinks that the situation would have to get desperate before they could be considered: "They have been standing round for about two years and have been partially stripped", he said. The main market for them is as spare parts for similar machines still in use overseas. A few years ago he sold a large batch of the Green Goddesses to Iceland where fishermen have converted them into large trucks for transporting fish.

1977 11 17
The church bells at Ashwell will ring out whenever there is a fire to alert the newly-formed amateur firefighting force. Men in the village offered to take on the job at a special meeting called by the parish council. They were worried that the Army would not get to the village in time if fire broke out and if able-bodied men were on call they could stop a small fire and prevent it from getting bigger. A lorry loaded with sheets, hoses, stretchers and shovels will be positioned near the Bluegates Dairy and farmers who have water tankers agreed to keep them full.

Cherry Hinton shop fire, p1

1977 11 22
A Huntingdon inquest returned an accident verdict on the deaths of the crew of a Canberra jet plane that crashed on Oxmoor and on the three children who were trapped when their homes were turned into an inferno. At the time the plane was carrying out a practice overshoot of RAF Wyton which involved approaching the runway with one of the engines throttled back to simulate engine failure. Huntingdon MP, Sir David Renton, said the RAF must stop practising such engine failures over built-up areas & called for greater co-operation with the RAF about building homes under flightpaths. – 77 11 22

1977 11 23

Library reprieve, p5

1977 11 24
A suggestion that the controversial punk rock group, the Sex Pistols, should visit Cambridge has been turned down by city council officials who fear they would attract the wrong sort of clientele. All punk rock groups who appear in council buildings should be of the moderate and non-controversial kind. An agency had suggested that they could perform in a tent on Midsummer Common.

1977 11 25
Cambridge City Council is to think again about plans to sell the mid 17th-century Abbey House in Abbey Road. The Folk Museum Trustees had given the ancient house to the city council only four years ago in the hope they would look after it. Coun Warren said: "It is shameful if the council is now considering selling the house and keeping the money itself." Coun John Powley said that money to repair the property was limited and the best course would be to sell it to the person living there and let him carry out repair working costing thousands of pounds. 77 11 15

1977 11 25
New Kite plans get blessing from council – 77 11 25

1977 11 25
An Ely youth club has been forced to close because it is too successful. The Young Pioneers Club is now so big it has outgrown its usual meeting place, the homes of the leaders. As a last resort to get a suitable club room members have sent a petition to Ely City Council calling for help. The club was started about two years ago to cater for children too young to go to the other youth clubs. They started with 12 members, now they have 40.

1977 11 25
It will cost about £10,000 to repair the disused River Mill at Eaton Socon which has been battered by vandals for the past three years it has been empty, says the secretary of Anglian Landowner Mutual Ltd which has just bought the mill and will be moving in with other associate companies next year. Vandals they have torn down ceilings, smashed every lavatory and even removed a complete staircase. The building, also known as Addison Mill has had a chequered history. At one time there were plans for it to be converted to a three-star hotel

Kite plans, p1
Datsun cars, p9

1977 11 29
Oakington road, p4
Birdbrook coins, p9

1977 11 30
Lovers Lane, p6
Turks Head arcade, p11

December 1977 CEN

1977 12 02
Sir – some months ago Cambridge central library introduced a new computer system. The computer broke down and 250 borrowers were notified that books which they had already returned were overdue. The Electronic machine is our century's God and to suggest that a human being with ballpoint pen would be more efficient than a computer is, to those idol-worshippers, plain blasphemy. Since the Browne system was abandoned folly reigns in the pixilated Library – Mrs M. Daniels.

1977 12 02
Sidney Street, Cambridge can be a battleground at this time of year. The narrow pavements and heavy traffic are a strain for anyone trying to shop. A right turn down Sussex Street may prove more fruitful. It has a solid old-fashioned atmosphere and a tightly-packed variety of specialist shops. The decorations and window displays are refreshingly quiet. The shopper can get a bite in the newly-opened Took's snack-bar, or relax for a shampoo at Diane's Hair International. Pigotts has a large stock of ironmongery and clothing shops include Paris House and the Rose Cavern Boutique, Easifit shoes and Charles' leather shop.

Orchard Street case, p11

1977 12 03
Restoration work is underway on a pair of thatched cottages in Church Street Stapleford, bought for just £1. Also included in the deal was an old slaughterhouse next door. All are being rethatched. The buildings were owned by a development company and were offered to the Parish Council when a preservation order was made. The cottages were then sold to the Cambridgeshire Cottage Improvement Society who will renovate and let them to people in the village. The council has kept the slaughterhouse which may be used as a museum.

1977 12 05
Cambridgeshire lottery, p5
Military games, p9

1977 12 06
Fears that there may be danger of radiation created by the Cambridge atom-splitting team of the 1930s has resulted in a decision to open up a laboratory locked up and sealed for the past 30 years. The room, at the top of the tower in the old Cavendish Laboratory, was locked when Lord Rutherford died in 1937. Since then it has been opened only once – in 1946 when it was cleaned and all materials taken out of it. The room was immediately sealed again because of possible danger of radioactivity from the walls, ceiling and floor. His successors were prepared to live with the locked room but the new tenants of the building – the university's social scientists – need reassurance.

1977 12 06
The chairman of Cambridgeshire Public Protection Committee, Coun John Mitham, got a first-hand taste of firefighting when he was among the first on the scene at a blaze in a barn at Swavesey. He lives only a few hundred yards away and when he heard the siren go at Barwell's engineering works he made a dash for his van. Villagers started dousing the fire before the arrival of six soldiers in the Green Goddess which took nearly threequarters of an hour to make the journey from Coldham's Lane, Cambridge.

1977 12 06
More than 300 trees at Byron's Pool are to be felled because they have become dangerous through disease and drought. Most are large, mature specimens and the city council are calling in professionals to fell them. Officers say that the two dry summers of 1975 and 1976, together with the rapid spread of Dutch elm disease, has seriously damaged them

1977 12 06
Cambridge City Council should consider linking with a private developer to build a skateboard park & look at providing a beginners' skateboarding area and practice runs from the rates. A report says that contrary to some people's beliefs skateboarding is not just a passing phase. Areas like the Romsey recreation ground and the King George playing fields at Trumpington would be suitable introductory areas and Kings Hedges recreation ground and the disused bandstand on Christ's Pieces could be suitable for practising. But it would be difficult to get permission to use the Elizabeth Way roundabout

1977 12 07
Plans to save branch libraries from closure by moving careers advice offices into Cambridge central library have angered librarians. Andrew Armour said the move could lead to conditions as cramped as those in the old library in Wheeler Street. "It seems that just as we were settling down to being librarians we are back in the melting pot again". It would mean moving the children's & music libraries into the lending library with possible closure of the picture loan service, closure of the 'quick reference' section and moving the Cambridgeshire Collection into the reference library causing enormous disruption in services to readers.

Milton murmuring, p19

1977 12 08
A Cambridge sociology lecturer says Government cutbacks are welcomed in East Anglia as they provide the perfect excuse for councils to go on doing nothing. He found low wages, a high cost of living and inadequate schools, social services and public transport. The draconian restrictions on development, coupled with a fashion among townies for living in the country has driven up house-prices and rents to the point where land-workers either leave or accept tied cottages. In Suffolk conservationists, hand in hand with farming interests 'not only preserved hedgerows and views, but low wages and inadequate housing provision', he claims

1977 12 08
A big new development of houses for American servicemen is being planned for Newmarket. George Wimpey Ltd is seeking permission to build 227 houses at Studlands Park. A year ago the USAF announced it needed 600 houses and Forest Heath council offered to help find them a site. The council could have the option to buy the houses when the air force did not want them, at the price for which they were built. But the Studlands Park Neighbourhood Council will oppose the scheme. "This was intended to be a private development and self-supporting village in its own right. This would make it into a mini Army base" the chairman said.

Jubilee memories, p11

1977 12 09
Throughout the war Mrs May Webb was one of 40 ladies at Bassingbourn who worked to provide snacks and hot drinks for American bomber crews from the nearby airfield. But the old Church Room which housed the de-luxe soup kitchen is now lying damp, dilapidated and forgotten. Now she is determined to see the building restored in time for a commemorative service planned next year and feels it would provide a useful community meeting place.

1977 12 10
Nestling among the rose bushes in a well-kept front garden in the village of Abbotsley is a petrol pump, which is fed from two tanks sunk under the front lawn. It was in the garden before the Second World War when petrol was just 1s.6d. a gallon. The proud owner, Mr Harry Smith, enjoys a handy supply of petrol on tap. "It is always nice to have petrol, but it still costs us about 79p a gallon, so I suppose there is no real reason for keeping it", he said.

Mill Road shut, p1
Skateboard, p7

1977 12 12
The Spinners filled the 1,600-seat Cambridge Sports Hall for the second time this year, with their Christmas show. They are a perfectly assured, wholly-professional, middle-of-the-road group with a wide-ranging repertoire and pitched into a selection of songs and carols including some of their hits like "The Family of Man". Audience participation is very much a part of the technique; they had the people at the back drowning the rest of the audience in a four-part 'round' & started a three-part medley with "While Shepherds Washed Their Socks by Night"

1977 12 12
The mystery of oriental activity on Cambridge's Coe Fen deepened with proof that its water margins abound in wild cress – and further evidence of Chinese harvesters. Streams by the Leys School are virtually choked with watercress and one resident told how she watched a group of 10 Chinese carefully cutting and bailing the cress. Generations of Newtown people culled the Coe Fen paddy fields for their own salads and there are memories of a professional cress gatherer, 'Tug' Wilson, who operated before the First World War and sold it round the pubs and houses. He used to have a wooden cart he towed along and people ate it because they thought it was good for the blood.

Cavensish laboratory, p8
Thriplow house, p11

1977 12 13
Barkway gets a virtually new pub when The Chaise and Pair opens up again after nearly a year. Ian Scott bought the former Whitbread Inn after it closed down last February and after three month's hard work he is ready to open the doors to the new Free House. Younger's Tartan and McKewans bitter will be supplemented by major Green King brews, including mild, which is not easily available in the area.

1977 12 14
Library 'palaces', p11

1977 12 15
Two 600-year-old wooden effigies were stolen from Hildersham church. The eight-foot long effigies of a former lord and lady of the manor were the church's most treasured possessions and two of only 90 such monuments in the whole of the country. They were carved out of oak and carried in front of the funeral processions of the Bustlar family – lords of the manor in the early 14th century. "They were the most treasured of all the beautiful things we have in the church and we all feel absolutely shattered", said a parishioner.

1977 12 15
It was the dawn of the atom age and in small, cluttered and uncomfortable rooms in Cambridge great scientists set about a momentous experiment – splitting the atom. The rooms then moved into the space age, but in one room time stood still as the doors were locked at the top of the stairs of Lord Rutherford's old Cavendish Laboratory. Only the ghosts of the pioneers remained behind the doors and, according to some, so did the deadly product of their work – radiation. Safety experts have now gone into the room to remove every trace of radioactive material but some are still unsure that the old building will be completely safe. – 77 12 15

1977 12 15
It pays to discover the shops in King Street, Cambridge. There are three antiques shops and Andrew McCulloch's and Hi-Fi for Pleasure do a wide range of sound equipment. For records there is a choice between the instant-nostalgia shop, Remember Those Oldies, who rather oddly sell punk records, and Garon Records – more conventional with a good selection of bargain-price discs. The Cambridgeshire Health and Beauty Salon offers a facial at £3.95, sauna at £2 or a manicure at £1.50 and at Norman and Son you can still buy old-fashioned woolly long-johns.

1977 12 16
Newmarket plane crash, p1 & p18
Sawston charity, p12
Green Street, p26-7

1977 12 17
Abbey House, p6

1977 12 19
Bread strike, p1
Fire strike, p7

1977 12 21
Cambridge market is the logical starting point for the Christmas shopping trek: it's close to shops of every different kind, and is surrounded by banks. But heading straight for the centre and hoping to find a parking space somewhere is a mug's game at the best of times. At Christmas it's plain daft, although people still do it. Traffic wardens are not so many Santa Clauses in disguise and you'll just end up going round the one-way system a few times … slowly. Or paying £6 for the privilege of stopping.

1977 12 22
Cambridge is not short of record shops, so what chance has another one got? The answer, says Andy Gray, is plenty. His latest shop "The Beat Goes On" is something out of the ordinary in that it caters for those interested in "golden oldies" and New Wave records. They specialise in records up to the 1970s and have on display portraits of "The Jam" who opened the shop on Friday. The new shop in Regent Street supplements the premises opened in Mill Road three years ago and Andy's Record Stall on Cambridge market which is still a gathering place for music lovers.

1977 12 23
Bottisham map, p11

1977 12 24
The only barber in Burwell still to practice the art of shaving is retiring. Tom Ellis of High Street has been hairdresser in the village for more than 50 years and still has regular customers coming in for a shave. He said: "I don't know what some of the old men will do now because they can't shave themselves, even with a modern razor. Before the war my father used to collect a few papers for the people in the village who could read, which wasn't many. When I started we used to collect them from the train, but when the station closed the Burwell and District bus used to drop them off here. Now the van brifire strike, p7ngs them and we sell something over 500 papers a night."

1977 12 28
Wren toys, p4

Wandlebury trees, p7

1977 12 30
Charles Cudworth, p11

1978 Cambridge Evening News

I have scanned reader-printer copies of those articles which are dated eg 78 01 06

January 1978 CEN

1978 01 01
Banham death, p7
Ballrooms, p7

1978 01 03
Three publicans are so alarmed by the prospect of trouble at punk rock concerts in Cambridge Corn Exchange that they will close or guard their premises on the nights of the shows. Their concern follows two concerts when four youths were taken to hospital after a fight and a shop window was smashed. The licensee of the Eagle said "It was absolutely dreadful: all the London trains were full of punk rockers coming to Cambridge because all the other towns have banned them. They spit and strip on stage". The groups on stage that night were the Ramones and the Rezillos, two American bands.

1978 01 03
A tornado cut a two-mile swathe through Newmarket. Roofs were ripped off buildings, windows smashed and cars overturned. Every window in the railway station signal box was smashed. Chief Inspector Trevor Hewitt of Newmarket police said: "It's a disaster area. It was just a freak storm and only lasted a couple of minutes. The damage is appalling. Roofs have caved in, windows have been smashed and cars overturned". In Cambridge the wind lifted the roof from a house in King Street.

1978 01 05
The signal box at Newmarket railway station, which was badly damaged in the tornado, has been demolished. In half-an-hour a mechanical digger managed what the freak winds had failed to do – reduce the wooden building to a heap of torn timber. It was right in the path of the tornado which shifted it on its foundations and smashed most of the windows. After the early morning trains had passed through the station the digger set to work tearing the box apart. A temporary hut has been erected and the equipment needed to operate the points and signals installed. It will be used while British Rail decides on the provision of a new one.

1978 01 05
A plan by a Cambridge businessman to build a skateboard track on a field in Chesterton Fen Road has been turned down by planners. Mr Gordon Cave asked for permission to use one acre of the field but the plan was rejected on the grounds that the site had bad access and is two-thirds of a mile from the nearest bus stop. The majority of users would be schoolchildren, many of them young and unaccompanied, and the road had no footpath. But Coun. Peter King said: "It would be disastrous to be over-protective where young people are concerned. They are not bothered about a bit of mud or a walk from the bus stop. It would be better to offer a skateboard park here than nowhere".

1978 01 06
The impact of the tornado which unleashed tremendous energy, sufficient to rip up fully-grown trees along the edge of Newmarket cemetery and fling them about like bowling pins, was almost identical to tornado activity which occurred in May 1950 & caused considerable damage around Sutton and blew over a double-decker bus. Tornado tracks were plotted from near Hemel Hempstead, through Bedford, St Ives, Earith, Sutton, Witcham and Coveney. Cambridgeshire is a good tornado and thunderstorm region. The 50-odd destructive tornadoes in the British Isle from 1868 to 1950 were the most numerous in the eastern lowlands of England. 78 01 06

1978 01 06

Four Cambridgeshire policemen are trying to get on the right beat as much as possible – even when they are not working. Off duty they make up "Copper Plate", one of the few all-policemen music groups in the country. The group started when two members got to talking about music while in their patrol car. At the moment they are playing about one booking a month to audiences ranging from a village pantomime to more than 400 people at a dance in St Ives. One member said: "It sometimes surprises us that we actually manage to get together even for a practice, let alone a booking, with us all working different places and different shifts. We like to think of ourselves as being a versatile music and harmony group able to play anything from Beatles to barber's shop"

1978 01 06
A councillor went into battle to save three 17th-century cottages at Orwell – armed with a drawing and the heart of an oak tree. Coun. Peter King had sketched the cottages, which had been bought by the District Council in 1966 for £13,000 & were now worth £90,000 for council house building. They could be fully restored and the council would make a profit. He held up a small lump of wood which came from a ship which fought the Spanish Armada to show how strong the cottage timbers were. The council had recommended the cottages be pulled down to make way for an old people's housing development, but now they will remain standing.

Histon council, p7

1978 01 10
Cambridge City Council has told a group of Peterborough councillors to stop interfering in their affairs. The slanging match was prompted by the Cambridge Kite development project. The Peterborough councillors want to avoid a repeat of what has happened in part of their city when redevelopers moved in and put up "a lot of horrible concrete buildings all over the place". But the advice has upset members of the panel who are overseeing the Kite project. One said: "I would tell Peterborough to mind its own business; they should put their own house in order and I would thank them for not trying to tell us what to do"

1978 01 11
The bells of Pampisford church will soon be able to ring full circle – something they have not done in living memory. Four bells were taken down for renovation in 1975, along with the rotten wooden frame. Now a new steel frame has been put in to hold the bells. The old tenor bell, dating back to 1743, has been melted down and the metal added to that of a bell from the redundant church at Papworth St Agnes to make the first three bells. The original three bells dated about 1848 have been retuned to make up the set of six

1978 01 12
An overnight storm left more than 10,000 consumers without power; the Eastern Electricity area manager said: "I've called everyone off all duties except restoring supplies and have 300 men on the job. I had to call my men off at midnight because the conditions were so bad with trees crashing down all over the place". Road clearance operations were hampered by heavy rain, which washed away the salt and grit laid on frozen roads earlier. In Cambridge the wind speed was enough to blow out the gable end of a three-storey house at Mitcham's Corner and a bus was blown off the Sawston road by high gusting winds.

1978 01 13
It could cost up to £8,000 to repair the gaping hole left after storms tore down part of the 500-year-old east wall of Yelling Church on to the altar, damaging brass candlesticks but miraculously leaving unscathed a framed tapestry of the Last Supper hanging behind it. The Rev Mark Bishop said: "Although there were cracks in it there was nothing to give any clue that would happen". A tarpaulin was being used to cover the damaged wall and the Sunday service will be going ahead.

Blackout, p1
Weather, p15

1978 01 16
Shoppers at St Neots fled screaming when a man shot a woman in a busy town centre supermarket. Police threw a cordon around the High Street Co-op store as the man stood over his victim who lay bleeding on the tiled floor. For almost an hour terror reigned. Frightened shop assistants hid in an upstairs office while outside the building police kept crowds of passers-by away from the plate glass windows. Then, just before 11.30 the man gave himself up, police moved in and an ambulance took the injured woman to hospital

1978 01 17
Traffic jam, p1

1978 01 18
Cambridge United have appointed club coach John Docherty team manager and made assistant manager Paddy Sowden general manager in a move to fill the gap left by the former manager Ron Atkinson's move to West Bromwich Albion. Docherty was appointed by Atkinson after quitting as Brentford manager in a clash with the London club's chairman early last season. He joined in a part-time capacity but was given a full-time one-year contract in recognition of his contribution to United's successful playing style. A former Brentford, Notts County, Reading and Queen's Park Rangers forward, Docherty turned down the chance to join First Division Leicester as youth coach earlier this season.

Berni Plough & Harow, p3
Traffic jam, p11

1978 01 19
Laurie & McConnal's department store in Fitzroy Street, Cambridge, opened its doors for the last time as the auctioneers moved in, just over a month after closing. Between 200-300 people milled around the five floors as the left-overs of almost 100 years of trading went under the hammer. Most of the faces were strangers, but a few of the old employees called in just to pay their respects. The sale will strip the building down to its last box of light bulbs – even part of a tin of toilet soap was in the catalogue. According the agents the building itself has attracted a few offers around the asking price of £250,000, but no-one has signed anything yet.

1978 01 19
For thousands of Cambridge holidaymakers the North Norfolk coast is their summer playground. But today they are wondering if it's worth making any plans for the 1978 season. Hunstanton's 110-year old pier has gone, most of it finishing up at Heacham, and the amusement arcade on the front was heavily damaged by a storm. It could cost half a million pounds to rebuild and is not a worthwhile investment. At Wells the most spectacular sight was the placement on the prom of the 120-ton coaster, The Function.

1978 01 20
Dozens of public libraries throughout Cambridgeshire will double up as social and community centres if a pilot scheme is a success. They could be used as meeting centres, law and political 'surgeries', advice centres, or simply as places where young mothers or elderly people with time on their hands could meet and chat over cups of tea. The social and community uses would run alongside the general library function as much as possible – but would also continue after library hours. The Mill Road branch library in Cambridge, which is threatened with closure, would be an ideal site for the pilot scheme. The county council sees the dual-use project as a way of raising extra cash for buying books for the libraries, which are threatened with severe cuts because of cuts in Government grants

1978 01 20
The village of Bar Hill has been slammed by an article in 'Architects Journal'; planning consultant Graham Moss claims it is artificial, takes up too much farming land, is too large and too posh. It has developed as an area of luxury properties, marketed through exclusive London agents who have imposed urban ideals on the countryside. Because the houses are so posh they are unsuitable for essential agricultural labourers, he says.

1978 01 23
Hempstead is one of those pretty inglenook-infested Essex villages beloved of merchant bankers as a retreat from the City. In summer tourists flock to see Dick Turpin's cottage and the pub of which he was landlord. But now it is a village of fear: there have been three major fires in four months and now yet another thatched cottage has caught fire. The blaze did about £7,000 damage to the shopkeeper's cottage and was certainly arson. There was a similar spate of fires in Arkesden six months ago. Police are trying to find a pattern in the events.

1978 01 23
The bells of Buckden parish church, unused for 10 years, will soon be ringing again – thanks to the enthusiasm of a small band of children who are keen to learn the art of campanology. As a prelude to their training the children spent Saturday in the belfry, cleaning away 10 years' accumulated dust. At one time the bells were rung by a very expert team, but they have been out of use for some years because the previous vicar was not very keen on bellringing.

1978 01 24
Members of the National Women's Aid Foundation have worked long and hard to establish a refuge for battered women in Cambridge. After they were given the use of an old three-storey house which had been used for emergency accommodation came the physical hard work of cleaning, stripping, decorating and plumbing. The task is not yet complete; work is still going on to provide a sitting room for the women, most of who arrive with only clothes for themselves and their children. Once they are in the refuge they run the house themselves as a group and make rules about such things as children's bedtimes and bathtimes. It is a temporary resting place until they get some permanent accommodation of their own

1978 01 25
A dispute has broken out over the Quy interchange where the B1102 road to Burwell meets the Newmarket-bound A45, now being re-constructed to the size of a motorway. The problem started when motorists and police expressed concern that the newly-built junction could give rise to road accidents. Quy parish council say it has been built different to the original plans & the County Council say safety improvements will have to be carried out, but the Department of Transport say there is no need for improvements at

North Sea floods, p13

1978 01 30
Ely Cathedral Mass, p3

1978 01 31
A recent move to sell the Abbey House, Cambridge to its long-standing tenant, retired Professor Peter Danckwerts, raised eyebrows among people who know the history of the place. It was bought for the Folk Museum by Lord Fairhaven in 1945. No endowment was made and the museum found it impossible to keep up the house. It was given to the city in 1973 and the city has found it an embarrassment ever since, spending little on repairs. But a former Mayor and chairman of the Cambridge Preservation Society threatened to take the city council to court if it was sold

February 1978 CEN

1978 02 02
Essex MPs have warned the Government that they will fight any plans to turn Stansted into London's third airport. Increasing the passenger capacity to four million was one of the options put forward in the airports policy White Paper, but Saffron Walden MP, Alan Haselhurst, will be seeking 'copperbottomed assurances' that a ceiling would be placed on development at the airport: "To allow it to grow to the dizzy heights would thoroughly despoil one of the loveliest parts of Essex", he said. The White Paper claimed that if Stansted were expanded only 2,000 people would be affected.

1978 02 03
At least 1,300 Cambridge families are living in privately owned houses which council officials think are unfit for human habitation. The houses suffer from structure defects, extensive dampness, general disrepair and lack of conveniently accessible lavatories. And 2,000 other families live in homes – some of them council houses – which are classed as substandard because they lack basic amenities such as indoor lavatories and reasonable food storage, says a city council report

1978 02 04
He used to stand at the corner of Trinity Street and Green Street in Cambridge, touting his wares. Every few minutes he would break out into a chant which sounded something like "Toodle-oddle-aidie-ar". One day I couldn't stand it any longer – not knowing what it meant. So I went up and asked him. "Two o'clock late London", he said, not so much as raising an eyebrow. "Paper, sir?" Every community, in every day and age, has its 'characters', even if there never seem to be quite as many about as there once were. Today busker Jerry Bol happily makes an exhibition of himself as a one-man band, while 'Snowy' Farr and his menagerie delight thousands of people with their weekly Saturday appearances.

1978 02 07
The road accident everyone feared happened on the new Quy interchange. A giant articulated container lorry failed to negotiate one of the controversial tight bends and plunged down an embankment. The crash came only hours after Quy parish council had met once again to urge the highways authority to take action. The Cambridgeshire police traffic commander said the accident confirmed police fears about the safety of the road at that point.

1978 02 09
Ely Cathedral, p9
Lt Eversden house, p10

1978 02 10
A Newmarket restaurant where royalty and racehorse trainers used to eat is now providing bed and breakfast for stablelads and lorry drivers. L'Aubrge du Cheval Blanc, in Old Station Road, had a world-wide reputation for its French cuisine. But Mr Robert Petit, one of the two Frenchmen who ran the restaurant for the last five years says: "It's no use being posh if you've got no money". He is continuing to run the restaurant providing bed, breakfast and an evening meal for £4 while his partner has gone back to his old job at the London Hilton. There had been no co-operation from the racing world or local authorities to make Newmarket more attractive to tourists who could have given more business to the restaurant

1978 02 10
The Minister for the Arts, Lord Donaldson, visited Saffron Walden library and arts centre in the former Corn Exchange and went on to visit the town museum. The Cambridge-born Minister said: "This is one of the best laid out libraries I have seen and I am very impressed with the Victorian collection of books". He was accompanied by the Librarian, Mr John Ridler, Mayor Coun Russell Green and Town Clerk Mr Malcolm White

Weather, p1
Lock charges, p7

1978 02 11
Magdelene Bridge, p6

1978 02 13
I went for a pub-crawl the other night – without moving from my 'local'. Warmed by two or three pints of good beer I decided to call at The Criterion in Market Passage, which used to be a popular Saturday night pub, the Bun Shop just off Downing Street and the Volunteer in Green Street before tramping on to the Earl Grey in King Street and the Duke of Cambridge in Short Street. Every one of these pubs had its own special 'character'. The journey took only a few minutes but the best part of 15 years – during which time all of them have closed.

Freud pancake, p9

1978 02 14
A County Council report recommends that two old church schools in the centre of Cambridge, Park Street and St Matthew's, should close. It says no school will take more than 60 infants a year; all schools will have nursery classes from three-plus, and that separate infants and junior schools will be merged into one school taking children right up to 11. Catchment zones will be introduced for primary schools. At present Morley Memorial is under a great deal of pressure and children are taught in a rented church hall across a busy road while Sedley Infants and Romsey Junior have empty places.

1978 02 15
Ely must be the most historic city in the fens and has some of the leading firms. The premises occupied by the Fenland Carpet Company have a varied history. Over 50 years ago it was possible to have a carriage built by a firm trading as 'Fennings' Later it became well-known for supplying cycles and motor cycles in a business run by Mr Garnett & Mr Horace Wallis, under the trading title of Walbro and more recently they were occupied by Millers the music people and part was used as a 'discotheque'. Fenland Carpets was first formed about 15 years ago and give personal attention to their customer's requirements. 78 02 15

1978 02 16
After 17 years work costing nearly £1 million the 18 miles of River Ouse between Bedford and St Neots has been fully restored for boating. The Goldington project, which involves rebuilding the decayed lock along with dredging the river, has been the most expensive part of the operation. Previously a determined boater who was prepared to be his own lock-keeper and do some heaving and pulling might have made it through to Bedford with luck. Now it should be a straightforward journey

1978 02 16
After a disastrous fire which gutted the lounge and bar of the Conservative Club in Huntingdon last May, the restoration work has now been completed and the club will be official reopened by the MP for Huntingdonshire, Sir David and Lady Renton. This will be a great relief, as the club has only survived by using a Portakabin in which a bar was installed. The club will now hope to encourage more applications from members of the local branches of the Conservative Association which exist in nearly every town and village in the constituency.

1978 02 17
The battle for the Free Press has been won and this celebrated Kite survivor was officially reopened in all its renovated glory. It is a small street corner public house, originally on the end of a terrace of cottages. In 1964 it was purchased by Cambridge City Council as part of a clearance area and the cottages were demolished. But the pub was leased back to Greene King so it could continue to trade until required for demolition. The challenge has been to preserve and enhance the original character, retaining all the interesting features while enlarging the premises. It was reopened by Miss Brenda Nichols whose family ran the pub for 48 years.

1978 02 21
The Bonnett public house at Ashdon – famous for its annual pumpkin planting contest and its real ale – has closed down. This follows the death of the landlord for the past 12 years, Mr Len Murphy.

Greene King has put the two-bar, three-bedroomed pub up for sale with the licence rather than find a new tenant at a price of more than £17,500.

1978 02 23
Shopping Guide decided to investigate the cost of a cup of tea in Cambridge snack bars. Best value for money was The Whim in Trinity Street where a pot of tea costs 15p and with a jug of hot water and plenty of milk you can get three cups for your money. Worst was the tea and coffee counter at the Arts Theatre Roof Garden where you pay 15p for one cup. Thornhills in Regent Street was the best for choice as you can have a cup (8p) or pot (18p) whilst at the Coffee Pot in Green Street you pay 20p for a pot that held four cups, if you had the thirst to match it. Joshua Taylor is the only department store which has a coffee or tea shop but has a lunch-time minimum charge.

1978 02 24
The Cambridge Evening News has achieved a feat unprecedented among provincial newspapers by winning three awards in British journalism's most important honours list, the British Press Awards. Chief amongst the News winners is cameraman Tony Jedrej who has won the title of News Photographer of the Year for a picture of a gunman and woman hostage at Ickleton. Reporter Alan Rusbridger receives a commendation in the Young Journalist of the Year class for articles on Cambridge Symphony Orchestra and a punk rock group while Assistant Editor John Alexander is commended in the Provincial Journalist of the Year class.

1978 02 27
The foundation of the largest LSD ring the world has ever seen were laid in Cambridge in 1970, a court was told. Five men living in Cambridge at the time launched the operation that would end up supplying more than 90 per cent of Britain's LSD and more than 50 per cent of the world's total consumption of the drug, said the prosecutor at the start of the 'Operation Julie' trial. One man had ordered a tablet-making machine to be delivered to him at the University Chemistry Laboratory and delivered drugs to a house in Cambridge by simply dropping them through the letter box

1978 02 27
Cambridge University Footlights Amateur Dramatic Club celebrated the opening of a new cellar clubroom at the Cambridge Union Society. Only a couple of crates of fish were lacking to evoke something of the atmosphere of the late lamented club room, situated above a fishmonger's in Falcon Yard. Clive James topped the bill at an inaugural cabaret. A chunky, rapidly middle-ageing figure with fast-receding, Sinatra-like hairstyle, his sharp vinegary wit seemed to be the essence of monologue. Clive Anderson demonstrated that there might be a place in show business for a genuinely sophisticated stand-up comedian.

1978 02 28
Pete Sayers, the local boy made good, will be joining Gwennie Lee and the Len Ebbage Showband at the opening of the Carioca night-club in Cambridge. He is the first in a series of showbusiness personalities who have been booked to appear at the two-tier club which has been built within the premises of the old Tabernacle buildings in Newmarket Road. It aims to provide 'middle-of-the-road' dancing and discos on the top floor with a full-scale restaurant and cabaret below.

LSD, p1

March 1978 CEN

1978 03 01
A unique village 'industry' may have dried up at Earith, and villagers are delighted. Winter flooding on the main road to Cambridge meant that people with tractors could sometimes make money by towing out stranded motorists whose cars stalled in the water. But now the County council has spent £23,000 on raising the level of the road by more than ten inches, and hope that this will keep at bay the waters of the River Ouse. Previously flooding had meant the road was blocked to cars for sometimes 15 days a year.

1978 03 01
Cambridgeshire County Council have imposed the highest rate increase of more than 400 local councils in the country. It fixed a rate of 76p in the pound, an increase of 20 per cent on last year. But the Council's Conservative leader said it was necessary owing to the lack of further financial aid from the Government. Despite all the Government's claims that local government is being helped this year, Cambridgeshire is now substantially worse off than it was before. This year the council expects to spend more than £100 million on running public services. The Government, through its rate support grant system will pay £31.5 million, with the balance being footed by the ratepayers.

Ely Grange Maternity, p12

1978 03 03
No public libraries in Cambridgeshire will be closed this year – and books stocks will not be depleted – although the County Council is facing a continuing financial crisis. The council had threatened to close the Milton Road and Mill Road libraries in Cambridge, village libraries at Stapleford and Milton and two libraries in Peterborough. The threats caused storms of protest and now financial experts have discovered the council has saved £60,000 on last year's spending which can be used to buy new books.

1978 03 03
'Giant Haystacks', otherwise known as Luke McMasters, towers above every other wrestler in the British ring at 6ft 11in and 32 stone and you could only pity tiny 15½ stone Mike Marino as he stepped into the Corn Exchange ring to pit his strength against him. The bout looked over when Haystacks body-slammed Marino to the canvas and, with a contemptuous glance, headed for the dressing room. But incredibly Marino managed to stagger to his feet before the count ended and Haystacks could not lumber back into the ring in time. Earlier a crowd of 700 watched Bert Royal and Vic Falkner beat Hungarian exile Zoltan Boscik and Britain's Chris Bailey.

1978 03 06
Work has started on building a walk-way through from the Tesco site at Bar Hill to the Mall and the shops which back onto the superstore have plans to turn round. The Tesco superstore has attracted a flood of shoppers to the village – but they only see the backs of the small shops in the nearby precinct and some do not know the Mall even exists. One small supermarket and several other shops have closed and a hairdresser's and a chemist's are also closing. The clerk to the parish council said the village had taken a lot of knocks but would become a "key-centre" in the region and a great credit to Cambridgeshire

1978 03 07
Residents are occupying a deserted house in Fitzroy Street, Cambridge, after learning that the city council is about to demolish three other "unsafe" houses in the Kite area. Officers offered to re-assess the situation if the protesters paid them £340 – the cost of making the buildings safe. The Kite group stayed up collecting the money, only to be told the council would not accept it after all. The action is in spite of an assurance that demolition would only take place once the redevelopment scheme had been approved. The protesters are deeply disturbed that private citizens have to pay for council work in order to avoid the premature demolition of sound properties in the Kite.

1978 03 07
Princess Anne was mobbed by student demonstrators when she arrived at the Cambridge Union Society Rag charity debate. She was held up outside the door by demonstrators sitting in her path and screaming abuse. They were protesting that the motion "The woman's place is in the harem" was sexist" and none of the abuse was directed personally against the princess. Nearly 150 demonstrators representing a variety of student groups including Gay Cambridge, Anarchists and Men Against Sexism picketed all entrances to the building. Other guests ran the gauntlet, Derek Nimmo was spat on and Robert Morley was catcalled and buffeted.

1978 03 09
Both St Matthews and Park Street schools in Cambridge are housed in high-ceilinged, drab buildings. There are no green playing fields, the playgrounds are cramped and asphalted and Park Street has outside lavatories. But for all this they inspire a great deal of loyalty from parents who see them as small family schools within a community. Both are in the central area and a few years ago found their rolls were dropping. But now there is a definite trend bringing young families back into the city centre terraced houses and they are battling to save the schools from closure.

1978 03 10
House-hunters looking to live in the country should be prepared to put up with country life – like flies and farmyard smells, said Coun Ken Turner of Hardwick. "Some people come into villages – they might be called the bed-and-breakfast residents – and the first thing they want to do is do away with the country way of life". Coun John Impey from Melbourn said a chicken farmer had been threatened with enforcement action by the environment department after a complaint about flies. The flies were not from his farm and it seemed unfair that pressure could be put on a long-established business because someone had decided to build homes nearby

1978
Planners have given the go-ahead to Sawston Parish Council to use part of the village car park as a weekend skateboard track. But South Cambs District Council decided to absolve themselves from risk of injury claims and leave the question of any insurance up to the parish council. They plan to rope off the area on Saturday afternoons and Sundays to solve the problem of youngsters skateboarding on pavements.

1978 03 11
Down on the pig farm something stirred, for it was the day of the VIP visit by the Leader of the Conservative Party, Mrs Margaret Thatcher. First came the locals, anxious to get a glimpse of the woman dubbed the Iron Maiden. Next came the convoy of Pressmen, then the motorcade of organisers and officials. All eyes stretched skywards for a glimpse of the helicopter which ferried her from a tub-thumping speech at Wisbech to the Sears Brothers pig unit at Manea, one of the largest and most modern in the area. She was soon talking shop with the stockman, Mr Grenville Emmerson. Mrs Thatcher described it as the most efficient pig farm she had seen and with a classic smile and wave she was off to Peterborough, leaving the pigs to wonder what all the fuss had been about.

Kite plan, p1

1978 03 13
The latest scheme for the Kite redevelopment in Cambridge threatens to collapse amid renewed bitterness and bumbledom. The 20-year-old history of "something being about to be done" has resulted in large-scale blight and buildings mouldering beyond repair. Just as predictable as crumbling masonry has been the increasing fed-upness of the people living in the area. They fought long and hard but until last week most of them realised their cause was lost and that the latest scheme would go ahead. Now at the last moment it probably won't because of a blunder by council officials.

1978 03 14
Life may return to the disused parish church at Little Raveley – but its walls could ring with the sound of family living instead of hymns. The 700-year-old church, which has been empty for almost 10 years, may be offered for sale for conversion to a house. The vicar said: "Even when it was open the last few services were attended by only a handful of people. The cost of maintaining and restoring it would be out of all proportion to the number of people who would be involved as a congregation. People now go to the Upwood church" Arrangements would be made to separate the graveyard from the church with a small area of land used as a garden

1978 03 15
Addenbrooke's Hospital, one of the world centres of medical excellence, is in danger of losing its international status through lack of money. The hospital is overspending by £200,000 a year. Once described as "a Rolls Royce hospital being run on a Mini budget" it has been in the forefront of medical advance in transplantation, eye and brain surgery and leukaemia treatment. But it has never had the financial recognition to support its regional specialities which pull patients from outside Cambridge.

Mobile classes, p11

1978 03 16
Bottles and stones were thrown at a Huntingdon headmaster after an incident at St Peter's School sparked off a demonstration by more than 200 pupils. Police were called after pupils who had been sent home at lunchtime because of teachers' industrial action, returned to find a gate locked. Motorists complained that children were blocking the road, making it difficult for cars to get through. But the head said the demonstrators were a group of disobedient children spurred on by a small group who were not members of the school and that the gates had been locked in an attempt to cause trouble.

1978 03 16
A new reservoir at Abbotsley might never be needed. Speculation about the future of hundreds of acres of farmland has been rife since the area was put forward as a reservoir 14 years ago. But now it is felt that the water needs can be met by developing Grafham Water, and a number of other options ensure the idea will not even be considered until at least 2001. The key factor is the big fall in the rate of population growth. But planners are not completely ruling out the scheme, it is just not on the cards within many people's lifetime.

1978 03 16
Heavy snowfalls caught motorists unaware as blizzards blew across East Anglia. As road gritter lorries struggled to get out into the roads in Cambridgeshire the A.A. warned that conditions could turn the county into a skating rink. Heavy lorries were unable to negotiate the Gog Magog Hills and two articulated lorries slewed across the road, blocking it. At Haverhill the Castle Manor School closed down when hundreds of children from outlying areas were unable to reach the town in coaches and cars.

1978 03 17
Cambridge schoolchildren will soon get their first skateboard park, perhaps two. Cambridge councillors earmarked money to convert hard tennis courts at Romsey and Trumpington with wooden embankments and ramps, but it may not now be possible to do both. They also decided that the former council storeyard off Newmarket Road would be ideal for the building of a large-scale permanent skateboard park. Four commercial firms interested in building a park have approached the council who have agreed to offer the land on lease if the park is built at no cost to the ratepayers

1978 03 17
The Three Tuns at Fen Drayton won't look quite the same once Bert Culmer has gone. Not only will regulars miss his familiar face behind the bar, they will also have a job to recognise the interior of the pub, stripped of the collector's pieces he has covered the walls with during the past 27 years. Hardly an inch in the bars was left uncovered by brasses, guns, swords, wooden carvings, lamps and pictures. Some of the brasses, which took nearly five hours a week to clean, will go with him, but most of the collection will be auctioned. Scruffy his talking parrot, who has been with him for 12 years now, was for once lost for words.

1978 03 18
Quy junction, p6

1978 03 20
The Kite, once the busiest out-of-centre shopping precinct in Cambridge is no longer flying high. Years of indecision by the City Council about the site and shape of successive rebuilding schemes have left their mark. The uncertainty had already led to the closure of Laurie and McConnall's and a number of smaller shops, branches of national chain stores have also moved away. The closures have meant fewer shoppers being attracted to the area and a general run down of business for many of the traders.

Nora David honoured, p1
Parish boundaries, p7

1978 03 21
The new Beehive Home Interiors centre opened in Cambridge by the Co-operative Society is unique in Britain. With more than 25,000 square feet of space, home interiors are laid out in authentic room settings and the Co-op has gone up-market. There is a four-piece suite which costs a cool £1,000. They hope to supply all the goods on show from the stock carried in the ground-floor warehouse and people will be able to hire roof racks or vans to get it home if their cars won't take it. It has a children's cinema so that parents can leave their children occupied while they discuss furniture with the sales staff.

1978 03 22
Banhams, p16

1978 03 23
The future of the picturesque St John's Church, Duxford hangs in the balance. It dates back to the 13th century but has not been used as a parish church for more than 150 years and was declared redundant in 1976 by the Church Commissioners. Several attempts have been made to find a buyer and one scheme to turn it into a house fell through. When a recent public inquiry turned down a scheme for a village community centre the church was mentioned as a possible site where some village activities could take place.

School buses, p15

1978 03 28
Naturalists are trying to account for a dramatic decline in the number of hares in Cambridgeshire. It's reached such an extent that the Cambridge Woodpigeon Club who have traditionally rounded off their winter stints with a hare shoot, have had to call it off. Various theories have been put forward for their decline including high prices which could have led to them being overexploited recently. A lot of hares are shot for export to the Continent. Farmers however are pleased at the drop for it means less damage to crops where the impact of hares has sometimes been overlooked because of the even worse damage done by rabbits.

1978 03 29
A Cambridge businessman, Lloyd Stokes, has submitted plans to build a 21-acre industrial estate just north of the old railway on the A10. It is opposite the Trinity Hall Farm science park which he developed from farmland worth about £130 an acre and has recently sold for £200,000. Mr Stokes is still involved in a four-year planning wrangle over what the District Council considers an illegal road at the rear of the Milton Industrial Estate.

Pubs map, p16

1978 03 30
Essex County Council may relax its opposition to any expansion of Stansted Airport. In the face of Government pressure to utilise the airport more fully it may agree to consider growth to four million passengers a year. But they would take all possible steps to oppose the growth until final decisions have been made about future airport policy after the examination of all options open. Uttlesford District Council, which has been more amenable to growth, have agreed to support the recommendations.

April 1978 CEN

1978 04 01
Cambridge United, planning for Second Division football next season, want part of Coldham's Common for new £100,000 expansion plans. These include a skateboard park running nearly the length of the Habbin stand, extra car parking and a 2,500-seater stand over terracing on that side of the ground. Facilities at the Abbey Stadium have already been stretched to breaking point in the Third Division, most notably when Peterborough played a local derby in front of 10,998 people in January.

1978 0 03
A common language between social service departments dealing with baby-battering cases is urgently needed – that is the main finding of an official inquiry into the death of Soham baby Simon Peacock. The inquiry concludes that there was "an unfortunate combination of weaknesses in communication" between the Suffolk and Cambridgeshire County Councils. The recommendations were accepted by both the authorities involved

1978 04 03
Horace Bull, Britain's oldest angler – who went sea fishing after his 100th birthday – celebrated 101 years with a drink and a cigar in his favourite pub, The Royal Oak at Stretham Bridge. The former Waterbeach butcher who started angling more than 90 years ago hopes to have another sea fishing trip this year – if he can find a fellow angler who won't be sea-sick. For a man who remembers the A10 when it was just a cart track and who bought whisky for £1 a gallon, Horace is still fit and active

1978 04 04
Peacock report, p9

1978 04 06
Quietly and without fuss our daily bread got dearer this week, with the news that the big three bakeries were adding 2p to the cost of a "standard" sliced and wrapped loaf, bringing the cost up to 28½ p. In Cambridge the price of farmhouse loaves is left to the baker. Bridgeman Bros of Norfolk Street charge 30½ p for a very crusty, tasty and attractive loaf; Tylers of Mill Road charge 30p, & E.J. How and Godfreys of Regent Street 29p. The most expensive are Dixon's of Fitzroy Street & Maskell's of Victoria Road who charge 31p for a pale golden, high, crusty, loaf.

News awards, p5

1978 04 07
A growing number of rampaging foxes are causing havoc among the hens and ducks of the area around Wicken Fen, but the warden doubts the foxes are breeding on the fen. Farmer Stephen Beckett of Isleham said: "Four or five years ago we didn't know what a fox was around here. But now we've got them all over the area. Six weeks ago my brother saw a group of three on his land". The secretary of the Naturalists' Trust said the fox population had gone up very markedly, but so has the rabbit population which causes more damage. Elsewhere huntsmen are complaining of a shortage because of a demand for red fox fur by the fashion industry. An uncured pelt can fetch £18 before the furrier and fashion house begin to mark up the price of the finished article.

Gt Chishill fire, p7

1978 04 08
The Cambridge Instrument Company is being taken over by the Government following a trading year in which it lost £2.8 million. That's the effect of the National Enterprise Board's decision to increase its shares to 80 per cent. The intention is to let the company go independent again in three years' time if it makes enough sales generating cash flow and profits by then. The chairman of the Company said: "This is the best thing for us in the short and medium term. Now we can go forward with confidence and have a lot more scope and room in which to manoeuvre"

1978 04 11
Many Cambridge dentists are refusing to give some treatment under the National Health Service because of their dispute with the Government over pay. Denture repairs and emergency treatment are in most cases only being done privately by dentists and a patient was recently quoted £20 as the price for two filling replacements. Dentists say NHS work is not profitable enough. The rate for a temporary dressing was 84p – a job which could take 15 minutes and require the dentist to provide drugs and equipment

1978 04 12
Traffic had to be stopped on Huntingdon river bridge as workmen took down overhanging boards and tiles from the listed derelict hosiery mill. The owner says it may soon be sold for redevelopment. Interest in the mill has become greater in the past few weeks. It might be used for many different things, a hotel, or maybe a leisure centre

Huntingdon mill, p11

1978 04 13
The closely-guarded secret about the future of a Tudor cottage at Sawston is out – it is being advertised for sale by auction. The sale description includes: "Large gardens with the benefit of potential for residential building plot". The Parish Council has protested against any plan to sell the house, which was left by John Ward in the 16th century to be held for the benefit of the parish church. The trustees of Ward's House in Church Lane have been meeting in private to decide what to do about the property, which is standing empty.

1978 04 14
It is often said in Cambridge that the cream of the city's machinists are at Cambridge Instruments. They've got to be good, working to measurement of one millionth of an inch in metal. And the firm is now looking for people with the same high skill level to help boost output. To younger people, training at CI can be the springboard for a career anywhere in the industry, within the company on promotion or anywhere in the world. A major expansion programme and a rapidly rising inflow of international orders have created 70 new jobs. Some 750 people work at the factory in Rustat Road

Milton footbridge, p9
Stansted, p17

1978 04 18
It would cost nearly £300,000 for Cambridge United to move to the Cambridge City club's ground in Milton Road – and the facilities would be no better than those at the Abbey Stadium. The suggestion had been made repeatedly over the years by supporters of both clubs and has come to a head again with United's plans for expansion and a skateboard park. Directors know their plans to take over common land would be an emotive issue, but it is a waste area and they would pipe a stream which is usually nothing more than a foul ditch.

1978 04 19
The Post Office has been criticised over the state of a large Georgian house in the heart of Saffron Walden's conservation area. The 30-room Hill House in the High Street is a listed building and former town post office. It is coming increasingly under attack from vandals since it was abandoned four years ago. The District Council would like it restored and converted into flats and offices. The three-storey building once housed a famous family called Gibson who founded a bank in the town.

1978 04 19
The restoration fund for Yelling parish church, which was badly damaged by freak storms in January, has reached £1,000. Amongst the donations is £100 given by Yelling Baptist Church; the Rector, Rev Mark Bishops, said: "It is unusual for another church of a different denomination to contribute, but we get on well and they obviously felt our need was great". He is awaiting an architect's report on the extent of the damage. Part of the 15th century east window and wall were destroyed and have been replaced with a temporary covering, resulting in little interruption of services.

1978 04 19 c
Eerie midnight howling is haunting the Caxton Gibbet Hotel – but the spine-chilling sounds are very real. They come from a homeless dog which has been roaming the district for about four years, ever since it was abandoned near the Gibbet Hotel. The elusive creature, a greyhound, has been christened Queenie. "It comes here most nights at about 12.30 and howls away at the front of the pub", said Mrs Mavis Spencer, the landlady. "I leave food for it each night and we turn out the lights and watch as it grabs a piece, runs off to eat it, then comes back for more"

1978 04 20
A recent review of the retail grocery trade reported a drop in the number of food shops in general – with the exception of freezer centres, which were on the increase. East Anglia came out above average with 43.1 per cent of homes owning a freezer. In a rural region such as this a freezer represents a saving on frequent trips to the distant shops as well as storage for gluts of home-grown vegetables. Cambridge has seen a growth in the number of specialist centres devoted to the sale of freezers and the frozen foodstuffs to fill them. They must be the most boring shops in existence.

1978 04 21
Sewage, p24

1978 04 22
Hildersham parish church has been the target for thieves for the second time in five months. Church officials unlocked the vestry and walked into chaos. Church documents and stationery had been scattered around the room. But the only item missing was the Victorian desk in which all the church papers had been kept. Last December two valuable 600-year-old wooden effigies were stolen when the church was forced into, but this time there was no damage. Earlier this week thieves walked out of Linton church in full view of three parishioners carrying three antique chairs

1978
The "Cambridge Students' Prospectus" aims to give the student view in parallel with information sent out officially to people applying for places. It says "King's College social life centres around a large, rather squalid bar where undergraduates and the friendlier fellows gather at lunchtime. The college is as cliquey as any other institution but tolerant. It is probably the happiest college with quite a lot of sex, drugs and rock-and-roll". But the Senior Tutor said he thought the remark was 'an unfortunate one which might better have been left out' and had spoken to the publishers.

1978 04 24
An arsonist terrorising two Essex villages has been foiled in his seventh attempt to set a home alight. The man escaped across fields at Hempstead in the early hours after stuffing straw under the eaves of a house. This was the fifth time an arson incident had coincided with a full or new moon and Saffron Walden police are not discounting the theory that the firebug is moon-mad. Six thatched houses in Hempstead and Great Samford have been badly damaged or destroyed since the arsonist first struck last August.

1978 04 24
Landbeach village sign was unveiled by the oldest and youngest inhabitants, Mr Horace Bull, aged 101, and Mrs Sarah Wilson aged 91, and babies John Abrahams aged three months and Gemma Horlock aged only 10 days. The sign is a combination of several prize-winning ideas submitted by villagers and includes a capsule buried in the stone plinth which will, when opened, reveal some interesting facts to a new generation about the clothes we wear, the wages we earn and what the Queen's Silver Jubilee was all about.

1978 04 24
A novel method of treating rheumatoid arthritis is being developed at the Strangeways Laboratory in Cambridge and offers hope for millions of sufferers of the disease. The treatment, which is still being assessed clinically, involves using hydrocortisone – which was hailed as a wonder drug when first used 30 years ago, but then fell out of favour because of undesirable side-effects. Now scientists put minute amounts into tiny droplets of natural fat which are injected directly into the joint affected.

1978 04 25
A plan to sell off part of the playing fields at Bassingbourn Village College is being considered by Cambridgeshire County Council as part of its programme to raise cash. Development land has been fetching up to £40,000 an acre and all their land is being looked at to find any that can be sold with planning permission. But the scheme is likely to run into heavy opposition from villagers. The site is also used by the primary school and by young footballers who cannot use the recreation ground because of a restrictive covenant banning Sunday games. A similar scheme to sell land at Bottisham Village College is also being opposed

1978 04 25
Cambridge Magistrates may have acted outside their powers in seeking to license college bars. Cambridge colleges have operated student bars in the past, arguing that the Vice Chancellor has the right to issue licences within the university to authorise the sale of all alcoholic liquors, including wine. But while the right to authorise wine-selling has not been challenged, the sale of beer has come under official scrutiny. At King's College students fear the grant of a licence would affect many social events; it would become a criminal offence for a student to be drunk at his college bar and the police would have the right to enter without warrant or invitation.

1978 04 25
The Precinct is the latest thing in road sweepers manufactured by Melford Engineering in a very unobtrusive long low building in the fens near Sutton. Looking rather like an overgrown Dalek they are coming out of the factory in increasing numbers and beginning to appear on the roads in Germany and even Saudi Arabia. Just about all the little sweeper is made at Sutton. It has power steering, power brakes, a heater and the ability to travel sideways at the nose when required. Beer tins, half bricks, dust, plastic bags – everything is sucked up into the innards of the little vehicle.

1978 04 26
Quy sign, p10

1978 04 27
The 150-strong Jersey dairy herd on Lord Walston's Thriplow estate, one of Cambridgeshire's oldest and best known herds, fetched more than £27,000 when it went under the hammer. It was started in 1910 but time and economics have caught up with it and the sale marked the end of an era as they fell into line with the rapidly declining number of milking herds in the county. Two of the stockmen, George Fuller and Doug Andrews, said few younger people wanted the responsibility every day of the week. Buyers came from as far away as Devon and Scotland; the highest price paid for a cow was nearly £230 and a bull made £441

1978 04 27
Fowlmere parish council has protested that their village has become a dumping ground for bad council house tenants. The District Council's policy is to move tenants who refuse to pay rent or create a nuisance into sub-standard council homes and say it is unfortunate that such property exists at Fowlmere. This has been going on since the War when problem cases were housed in old forces huts in the village. They have 16 tenants who owe £4,000 in rent between them. But the parish want the houses converted into warden-controlled old people's homes

1978 04 27
A campaign has been launched to save the 23-pupil Madingley Primary School by turning it into a co-operative. For 39 years the school has been run by the headmistress and the only teacher, Mrs Gwen Ruddle, who retires in July. The County Council thought that would be an appropriate time to close. But the parents say it would kill off the heart of the village and do not like the idea of sending their children to Coton school, 1½ miles away

Paint prices, p4
Frank Reeve, p21

1978 04 28
Madingley school, p17

1978 04 29
Haddenham Farmland Museum began with a modest box full of bric-a-brac collected by 13-year-old Craig Delanoy but has inspired support from the most unlikely of sources. There's never any difficulty in persuading the village youngsters to do their bit and indeed the whole village of Haddenham seems to take pride in what the museum has achieved since it opened in 1969 and more than £2,000 has been raised for charities. But an illustrious Cambridgeshire county councillor from that centre of culture, Peterborough, has condemned it as a glorified load of junk

May 1978 CEN

1978 05 02
Nearly 400 Protestants and Roman Catholics joined together at Haslingfield to revive a pilgrimage thought to be more than 500 years old. Led by the vicar and the Sawston Roman Catholic priest the pilgrimage wound their way up Chapel Hill to the site of a medieval shrine dedicated to Our Lady of Whitehill. In the Middle Ages it was used by pilgrims en route to Walsingham and brought much trade to the village, "enriching the priest and benefiting the inhabitants". It disappeared without trace about 1541. The modern pilgrims continued to Harlton parish church, pausing at intervals for hymn singing and Bible readings

Cambridge United, p1

1978 05 04
Sewage scheme, p12

1978 05 05
Cambridge's place in the forefront of test-tube life took another step forward when mice that were put into frozen suspended animation more than five years ago at the Physiological Laboratory were running around in a cage. They were frozen in liquid nitrogen as three-day embryos, then thawed and implanted into a female mouse. Frozen embryo banks are likely to become an increasingly important feature of future animal husbandry and one day embryos of whole herds of cattle may be shipped across the world in frozen containers, by-passing disease controls and ensuring preservation of rare breeds.

1978 05 06
Flood alert, p1 & p3 – 78 05 06

1978 05 08
Floods, p1, p3, p10-11 – 78 05 08&(2)(3)(3)
Occupation Road, p4

Teletext, p9

1978 05 09
Docherty as manager, p16

1978 05 10
Addenbrooke's Hospital to stay open, p4
Cambridge buskers, p5
Pye supplement

1978 05 11
Comberton plane crash, p1
Lady Nora David, Romsey's Lady in the Lords – profile p9 – 78 05 11

1978 05 12
The Sunday Times devoted many pages to portraits of such people as Burgess and Maclean photographed during their undergraduate days in a "relaxed" style then very usual. They were taken by the famous Cambridge photographers, Ramsey and Muspratt in their studios at Post Office Terrace. The article also mentioned the 50,000-odd negatives left behind there by generations of photographic firms, but there could be even more. In a separate building at the back are cupboards, not opened for at least 70 years that are absolutely stuffed with glass negatives. But now a selection of them have been printed by the Cambridgeshire Collection

Landebach leisure centre, p6
Quy school, p17

1978 05 15
To raise £5,000 in five months from 500 people was the Rector of Fen Ditton's ambitious aim – and now he has done it. The project will not only provide a central meeting place for the parish but has also kindled a community spirit. Every night and weekend under the floodlights and in all sorts of weather people have been working voluntarily on the hall, said the Rev Lawrence Marsh. Two seven-year-olds raised £26 with a disco for the under 12-year-olds and a sponsored knit-in raised more than £900

1978 05 15
Newmarket shops have as much to offer as those in Cambridge and Bury St Edmunds. The town's greatest asset was extensive free and convenient parking. This was a considerable attraction for shoppers who knew if they went to Cambridge they would have to pay to park and might have to queue for a space. The future prosperity depended on the new Waitrose supermarket; if this could bring in shoppers it would benefit the other traders in general, even if one or two food stores were forced out of business.

1978 05 16
Horse VD, p5

1978 05 17
Fast action and a screwdriver avoided civic embarrassment at Great St Mary's Church, Cambridge, when a door lock jammed only minutes before the mayor's procession arrived for the church's 500th anniversary service. Verger Mr George Clark and a sidesman, Mr Claude Maskell, removed the ancient lock just in time to avoid halting the mayor and city councillors in the street outside. Representatives of city and university with clergy of many denominations crowded into the church for a unique thanksgiving service in which the church's historical records were brought to life by students and other readers.

1978 05 17

A historic bell that has been gathering dust for almost a quarter of a century has started a feud between the two neighbouring churches of Leighton Bromswold and Barham, who both claim it is theirs. It was originally at Woolley church and went for storage when the church closed down. It lay unwanted and forgotten in a side room at Leighton until the church council decided to sell it to boost church repairs. From nearby Barham came a howl of protest followed by a demand that the bell should be placed in their church where Woolley parishioners now worship. The two church councils are deadlocked over the issue which may be thrashed out by an ecclesiastical court.

1978 05 18
Fulbourn Hospital has announced a new deal to help ease their cash crisis. If people came and said 'If you take my old father we will come and help out with meals and keeping the old people occupied' it would free nurses for more specific skill tasks. The help would be unpaid but the benefits would be the treatment made available to the relative. The shortage of beds now means a large number of elderly patients cannot be given the long-term hospital care they need. Fulbourn does have empty beds, but not the staff needed to use them

1978 05 19
Cambridge City Council has applied for St Paul's school in Russell Street to be listed as a protected historic building. Built in 1845 it is the earliest elementary school in Cambridge and was designed by Ambrose Poynter, possibly the only classical school building by him in England. For 10 years there have been plans to build a brand new school on an adjoining site but now there are proposals to remodel the old one to allow more classroom space. – 78 05 19

1978 05 20
A fairy tale has come true for eighty children at Fen Ditton primary school. Their ancient record player is to be replaced with a brand new music centre despite none of their entries being successful in the recent News contest. It wasn't for lack of trying. Every single child in the school, plus the teachers, had a go at winning something they have wanted for years. Pye Telecommunications, sponsors of the competitions were so touched by their enthusiasm they decided to contribute half the cost of a new centre and the News has chipped in the other half. "Everyone is thrilled and delighted about it", said the headmaster, Mr A.M. Jones.

1978 05 23
Baitsbite Lock has a claim to fame that makes it a memorable gateway to Cambridge for the visitors arriving by river. It is the most expensive lock in the kingdom's entire waterways system through which to take a boat. For years there have been ripples of dissent among boating folk about the charges and now matters have come to a head with the announcement of a further increase. People whose leisure or livelihood depends on river boating are close to mutiny over the issue: "They keep putting up the fee just to keep the cruisers out; it's the rowing people: they want the Cam to themselves", one said

1978 05 24
Barnwell station will not be reopened to deal with next season's influx of soccer fans … because British Rail does not own it. There has been growing support for the idea since Cambridge United won promotion to the Second Division, as a way of stopping fans who come by rail from wandering through the city. But the station has ceased to exist and the land is part of a private dwelling. Any new halt would be an expensive and complicated business. The station house, platform and access were sold off in the 1960s and now form the flourishing Kindrum Kennels.

1978 05 24
The dedication of a memorial to American GIs based at Bassingbourn during the war gave a Cambridge woman an excuse to wear her black hat, which is 37 years old. "I wear it with pride as it is a wartime relic", she said. Doris Foster, who used to be the landlady of the Angel public house at Royston, failed to recognise one of her wartime regulars Sam Cipolla from Chicago. But he remembered her: "I used to sneak under your fence to get a pint & used to give sweets to the children who called me Uncle Sam", he said. He may have recognised the hat which she often wore while serving in the bar because the Americans liked it.

1978 05 26
Betty Clarke and Joyce Evans and the boys got together again down at the old village café. These days it's a garage storeroom; the ceiling paint is peeling, a fire has not blazed in the corner for decades and the old piano is long gone. But for the men of the 78th Bomb Group it was a memory mission. Five broke away from the main sightseeing group at Duxford to take a nostalgic trip to one of their wartime haunts, the Aerodrome Café. It was a day full of laughter and only the happiest memories. One of the visitors said: "Berry hasn't changed a bit, I'd have known her walking down any street"

1978 05 27
The Government is to give £40,000 towards a controversial plan to convert the Methodist Church in Mill Road, Cambridge into a youth centre for the Romsey area. Objectors are concerned about traffic noise and vandalism that might result from the centre. But it will always be supervised, no alcohol will be served and most of the children will be too young to drive motor bikes or cars. It is designed to take trouble-makers off the streets and give them something to do

1978 05 30
Bassingbourn air show, p3

1978 05 31
The News decided to celebrate its 90th birthday by doing something light-hearted and invited 90 members of the Mid-Anglia population to pose for a photograph that would show a cross-section of the diverse community it seeks to serve. People who might never meet in everyday life found themselves jumbled together on the Shire Hall lawns for a photograph. Boxer and bank manager, actress and agronomist, proctor and postman became neighbours in a marvellous mixture. There was even a dog and a rabbit to represent readers' fondness for household pets. Aqualung diver Bob Kirby was driven to taking ice from the champagne buckets in a desperate attempt to keep cool.

1978 05 31
A scheme which could save thousands of pounds a year is likely to be pigeon-holed because its implications are too radical for most Cambridgeshire county councillors. They run the largest smallholdings estates in the country but a report recommends it should be reduced by a third. If the land is sold the council would lose £340,000 a year in rents but would make a capital gain of £10 million. It is likely the old guard will opt for merging holdings and selling off surplus land, but perhaps in five years a different view might prevail.

June 1978 CEN

1978 06 01
Lives are at risk from rapid flooding because of the inadequacy of Cambridgeshire's archaic drainage system, a councillor claims. A key part of the system, Earith sluice gates, is governed by regulations made more than 150 years ago which prevent the operator from acting promptly to stop homes and fields being flooded. Recently farmers were so desperate they took the law into their own hands and cut through a flood bank to release millions of gallons of water which were threatening a village, farmland and cattle. The system was designed to cope with water that would soak through the land, but now things have changed with all the development along the A604 area 78 06 01

1978 06 01
Frank Bell has stood down as director of the Bell School of Languages in Cambridge and called for tighter controls over foreign language teaching. "There are some cowboys who simply open during the summer in any old hall they can", he said. When he started in 1953 most of the students were simply finishing off part of their private education. Now the majority have a professional interest in learning the language and are financed by their firms or governments. He envisages an even greater boom and the Bell School, at present attended by Princess Marie Astrid, seems certain to expand and adapt to a changing role.

1978 06 02
Prince Charles spent a few moments talking to some of the crowd of visitors waiting to greet him after he stepped out of his special train at the tiny Whittlesford station. He was escorted to the Mill House to open the Hamilton Kerr Institute where he was greeted by several hundred flag-waving children. Later, during the official part of the proceedings plain-clothed police had to chase away small children who tried to gate-crash by climbing over the garden wall.

1978 06 05
Most of the offices built on top of the City Council's Lion Yard complex in the centre of Cambridge are still unoccupied – nearly three years after completion of the development. Now councillors are concerned about the loss of rents and want more intensive steps taken to find tenants for the block, which is gathering dust. Only 5,750 feet has been let, to a subsidiary of Barclay's Bank but negotiations are now taking place with two organisations. If these fall through some councillors think they should let charity organisations use them

1978 06 06
Annie Norman moved back into the home she has lived in for 36 – but it was a different cottage to the one she left last October. The cottage at Church Street, Stapleford was one of two bought for £1 from Shelford Building Supplies by the Cambridgeshire Cottage Improvement Society. Now it has a bathroom and lavatory, new thatch, plaster and paint. "It's fantastic now, previously there was only a lavatory at the bottom of the garden", she said.

1978 06 07
Flooding, p13 78 06 07

1978 06 08
St Paul's school in Russell Street, Cambridge is one of the earliest elementary schools in Cambridge. It dates from 1845 and was designed by Ambrose Poynter, probably the only classical school building in England ever designed by him. Now it could be in danger of partial demolition since the school managers have decided rebuild on a site that cuts right through it. It unlikely demolition will occur because the old building is on one side of Russell Street and plans for the new building are on the other side of the road. Now the City Council has asked for the building to be listed. 78 06 08

1978 06 12
About 800 of the country's small rural schools have vanished in the past 10 years. Financially county councils claim there are not viable. But in Cambridgeshire four small villages have had a scheme approved which they hope will save their schools. Ashley, Cheveley, Wood Ditton and Kirtling have formed a Schools Federation, creating one school from four, but without the loss of any. Each will be maintained under one administration, rather than four, cutting costs and increasing the scope for improved facilities and a broader education. There will be one headmaster and six assistant teachers and a larger range of reading books which will float between the schools. 78 06 12

1978 06 13
Cambridgeshire skateboarders may soon have nearly 400 skate parks made available to them. The county education authority has decided to allow all suitable school premises to be used for skateboarding. Most schools have large concrete areas suitable for use outside school hours, but they must be adequately supervised and safety equipment used. The Road Safety Officer has welcomed the move to get children off the streets, where they are in obvious danger. Cambridge City Council is to build a skateboard park complex at Cheddar's Lane and a number of disused tennis courts are being converted into temporary skateboarding areas for beginners

1978 06 15
London thieves with 'shopping lists' of property they intend to steal will descend on Cambridge shops as soon as the M11 brings them within an hour of the city, police warned traders. It would become a fast and easy touch for gangs of London-based professional crooks. Now the traders are to discuss setting up a system to combat the menace. When the new roads are open it will be an easy 55-minute run from the East End of London where the better class thieves and receivers live and operate. They get orders for 50 suits of a particular kind and then come up here, police said.

1978 06 15
The 150-year-old Magdalene Bridge in Cambridge is in grave danger of collapsing, councillors were told. For the last 11 years there has been a three-ton vehicle restriction but sometimes the inter-continental 'juggernaut' lorries travelling through the city take a wrong turning and pass over the bridge. Now the abutments, which support the bridge at both ends, are moving apart and if this continues it could eventually break its back. Plans were made to rebuild the bridge but environmentalists objected and at a public inquiry it was decided the bridge should be strengthened, retaining its present appearance. But Government engineers came up against insuperable technical problems in the use of the cast-iron parapets and have suggested cast-steel instead.

1978 06 17
Cambridge City Council's new-style 'instant' lotteries could raise about £100,000 a year for the council. The first competition is a sell-out with the council making a £4,000 profit in less than a fortnight. The new-style lotteries have more than 3,000 prizes ranging from 50p to £500 which can be claimed at the time of purchase. These winning tickets then go forward to the final draw for the big prize of £1,000. The council made an average of well under £2,000 from each of its old-style lotteries run at six-weekly intervals during their first year of operation

1978 06 19
After three years trials a manager of one of Fenland's biggest farms – the 8,000-acre Hiams estate – is convinced that he has softened the impact of two of the worst hazards on the rich black peat – blowing and flooding. Keith Richardson believes that a German-made machine known as a cultipacker will provide better seed beds for root crops. The action of the machine in breaking clods and levelling without causing soil to compact too tightly, is the secret of its success and there is less flooding and blowing. The main problems have come when they hit bog oaks.

1978 06 21
Take 33 excited ten-year-olds, load them on to a riverboat, steam northwards for two and a half hours, deposit them in a wild fen with little more than a wooden shack for shelter, then keep them fed, clean and busy for three days. That was the job in hand for two teachers from The Grove Junior School on an environmental studies expedition to Wicken Fen. Long hours call for such diverse talents as an ability to catch insects, find mislaid wellington boots, cook a gallon of custard and handle a dormitory riot at midnight

1978 06 21
Some Cambridge colleges are threatening to ban visitors because this year's greatly increased numbers of tourists are causing problems. It is important to provide a permanent tourist coach park somewhere near the main tourist centre. A report says the best site would be on common and allotment land next to the News building on Newmarket Road. But some councillors think the ideal place would be in the vicinity of the Railway Station, at Saxon Street car park or on derelict land at the corner of Histon Road and Victoria Road.

1978 06 21
Cambridge University Library tower, the last great challenge to the student night climbing fraternity, has been scaled. Two men took just four hours and 15 minutes to climb to the base of the flagpole and attributed their success to the unsuccessful attempts of others during the past twelve months who left bolts attached to the brickwork for safety purposes. It is without doubt the most difficult and dangerous building to climb. On the ascent they caused damage to a small window on the top of the tower. "This was completely unintentional and very much regretted. We have already sent off money to pay for the damage", one student said.

A11, p11

1978 06 22
When Tony May of Stretham went blind earlier this year he thought he would go 'mad' just sitting about doing nothing. He started taking the Cambridge Talking News service for blind people but realised it contained little or new news about the Ely district. So he hit on the idea of a 'talking' newspaper called 'Fenprobe' to keep people abreast with local news. Once established he hopes to branch out to include music and requests and on-the-spot coverage of major local events. 78 06 22

Kite parking, p21

1978 06 23
The cost of providing a complete flood protection scheme for the Newnham and Riverside areas of Cambridge would be 'totally out of proportion to the benefits, however desirable', councillors have been told. Flooding occurred for two days on the Gough Way housing estate when the Bin Brook overflowed during heavy rain and the River Cam overflowed its banks at Riverside during the same period. But the emergencies arose from exceptionally heavy and intense rainfall for which it is not reasonable to provide capacity within the sewers, water courses or main rivers and relatively few residential properties were actually flooded.

1978 06 24
Cavendish vineyard, p5

1978 06 26
More than twice as many new homes were completed in the South Cambridgeshire district during 1977 than in the Cambridge city area. And nationwide statistics show that the private sector building is the reason behind the boom. For while 333 dwellings were built by the local authority in South Cambs, private builders completed 750 homes. In Huntingdon 772 out of 1,011 homes finished were built by the private sector. But in Cambridge only 110 homes were built privately, compared to 405 by the council.

1978 06 27
Those who frequent the lane which runs past Little St Mary's church in Cambridge will have noticed some strange comings and goings in the last few months. The quiet churchyard has been disturbed by workmen with scaffolding, planks and ornamental woodwork. Oddly-shaped crates have been delivered and strange-looking pieces of mechanism have been unloaded. The church has been getting a new organ which incorporates antique pipework rescued from a village church in Norfolk.

1978 06 28
Otter houndsmen are angry at a Government report which comes out strongly against hunting coypu, a large beaver-like rodent with a hearty appetite for farm crops. The pest is now invading the fringe of the fens after fanning out from its Broadland stronghold. The Eastern Counties Hounds, who this year celebrate their centenary, have been hunting coypu in greater numbers since otter hunting stopped eight years ago. Last year they killed more than 200 coypus and this helped hold down their population to about 8,000 in East Anglia

1978 06 29
A plant growing in the fens near Huntingdon could hold the key to a crisis being forecast with supplies of The Pill. Fenugreek produces a chemical which is a vital ingredient of the contraceptive pill. Now a small glasshouse of the plant has been produced together with a secret field which will boost seed stocks if the idea catches on. Much hinges on the attitude of the big chemical companies. At present they derive most of their supply from yams grown in Mexico, but there is now a ban on exporting so they have taken to producing it on the spot.

July 1978 CEN

1978 07 01
A campaign to improve safety along the A604 has been turned down because of Government red-tape. The County wants all lorries for Harwich to be routed around Newmarket and Bury bypasses to Colchester instead of passing through Cambridge city centre and out along narrow winding roads to Linton and Haverhill. But despite the opening this autumn of the Northern By-pass designed to take heavy lorry traffic away from Cambridge, the Department of Transport is insisting that traffic for Harwich is still routed through the city. The road has already claimed four victims this year in Cambridgeshire and another seven in Essex

1978 07 03
The Kite area of Cambridge plans to go the way of Rhodesia by declaring UDI – Unilateral Declaration of Independence - in a semi-serious but symbolic stand against the city council. On Independence Day the kite-shaped bounds of the area will be beaten and the rebel "government" will swing into operation. Arthur Sutton, the 76-year-old bugle-blowing campaigner will be elected Lord Mayor, the rubble-surrounded Little Kettle shop will be declared the town hall, the borders of the area will be marked and passports issued.

Bourn airfield caravans, p3

1978 07 04
The Huntingdon homes on the Oxmoor estate shattered by a jet crash which killed five people are to be rebuilt, more than a year after the accident. The long wait has been caused by sorting out details of compensation and insurance payments. Seven homes that were so badly damaged that they had to be demolished will be rebuilt. The announcement came as residents living opposite the site were about to begin a petition demanding action. One said: "It is horrible. We want to forget but we cannot because it is there all the time reminding us."

1978 07 10
Coleridge School, Cambridge, had more than its fair share of titled visitors when two queens and a baroness graced its summer fair. Baroness David of Romsey was amongst the guests and 14-year-old Deborah Clarke was chosen as the winner of the Miss Coleridge beauty contest. The retiring queen, Kathryn Turner, handed over the sash to her successor. About 1,000 people turned up for the event, which also included an "It's a Knockout" contest. The new headmaster, Mr Hugh Wood, made the draw for the raffle.

1978 07 07
Mr Bob Webster who has run the general stores at Station Road, Impington for 21 years has announced his retirement. The shop used to be a baker's, then a grocer's before he bought it & since then it has tripled in size. "I will miss everyone, my customers have been very loyal", he said. The new owner is Mr Graham Vialls.

Obesity, p21

1978 07 10
Hundreds of people on Jesus Green Cambridge saw stars of television, stage and the music world in the heats of the Thames Television Star Games contest. Broadcaster Cliff Michelmore suffered a calf muscle injury which will put him out of sporting action for four weeks and singer-song writer Jackie Trent was among the others who limped off after the finals. But though the stars are probably more used to flexing their artistic muscles rather than their mainly lily-white limbs, they came through the day with cheers and about £10,000 for charity. The crowds saw singer Joe Brown lead his team to victory; Dickie Henderson's team were second.

Coleridge queen, p1

1978 07 11
King's Hedges junior and infants' schools in Cambridge have closed because of a dysentery outbreak, three weeks after the first pupils went down with the disease. The number of children being kept at home has been rising daily – over 120 children and staff absent yesterday – and it is obvious they can no longer function normally. They may never know where the infection came from, with a changing number of children with the symptoms. If there is just one case in the school the very number of people using the building means it is likely to be passed on repeatedly

1978 07 11
Service came out of the blue for a Cambridgeshire farmer with combine harvester trouble. It dropped out of the sky in what is claimed to be the first regular air service for farm machinery in distress. A Fenstanton farmer, Mr A. Behagg, uses Ursus-Bizon machines, produced in Poland, and their East Anglian distributors have introduced the 'servicing by helicopter' scheme in a bid to consolidate their foothold in the valuable English market

1978 07 13
Sightseers flocked to the dysentery-hit King's Hedges schools in Cambridge during the three week outbreak; they sat outside in their cars with the windows closed and pointed at it as if to say 'That is the unclean school'. The school caretaker and ancillary staff were publicly shunned in shops and pubs during the epidemic which hit nearly 100 people and closed the school. Coun Janet Jones praised the teachers: "They have been absolutely superb, and so have a lot of parents who kept their children at the school. And so have the kids", she said.

1978 07 13
Huntingdon District Council staff have been called in to carry out emergency work to make safe the historic Chinese bridge at Godmanchester after claims that children could fall through holes & drown. For months the Council has been in dispute with the County Council over who should repair the bridge. Now they have started taking legal procedures which might end with them taking the County to court over the condition of the bridge, as they are the highways authority who should repair it.

Mole drains, p15

1978 07 14
The risk of flooding may become a more important consideration when councils decide where houses can be built. Steps are also being taken to identify areas where the risks are greatest so that a better warning system for householders can be introduced. A gauge has already been installed at Gough Way, Cambridge, where the Bin Brook overflowed and damaged 20 houses and Newnham Terrace and Riverside may be flood proofed. It was suggested that the height the floodwater reached should be marked on houses which were involved. People would then be aware of the threat and could take their own measures.

1978 07 17
A sophisticated version of rotten egg-throwing provided one of the highlights at Saturday's Tudor Fayre for those with certain views on the proposed Kite development plans. Artist Mr Peter Fluck of Maids Causeway was commissioned by the Kite Co-ordinating Council to draw an outsized head of Coun John Powley, the man spearheading plans to build a large shopping complex. The picture was then electrically wired up and served as a dartboard. Anyone hitting the 'brain cell' rang a bell. During the afternoon more than one Labour councillors was seen surreptitiously to aim a dart at the target

1978 07 20
Try to get National Health Service dentures in Cambridge and it may be difficult to find a dentist willing to undertake the work. A minority of dentists are now doing any NHS work that involves paying technicians' fees. For the patient this can mean the difference between finding the £20 statutory NHS charge for a full set of false teeth or paying £60 or more for private dentures.

Bottisham Village College land, p5

1978 07 21
Cambridge United Football Club's plans to extend the Abbey Stadium to cope with the big crowds expected for their debut into the Second Division were wrecked by a mix-up in a council debate which one councillor described as 'better than Monty Python'. They had been asked to lease a part of Coldham's Common so the club could provide extra crowd accommodation, toilets and car parking, as well as a money-raising skateboard park. But after a complicated procedural wrangle the scheme was turned down with councillors claiming they had misunderstood what was happening. Now an urgent round of talks with council lawyers is to try and salvage the plans

Kite UDI, p6

1978 07 22
Cambridgeshire County Council is 'giving away' a 138-year-old thatched school at Hemingford Abbots. The school, which catered for 25 pupils, has been closed as an economy measure and because it was set up under a trust the building now returns to the descendants of the persons who set it up, the Herbert family. It was a sad moment for headmaster Mr Gordon Chambers as he said goodbye to the pupils, who will now go to Hemingford Grey School. But the closure will give hours of pleasure to other children for the school swimming pool is to be dismantled and taken to the Wheatfields School in St Ives.

1978 07 24
The Kite, Cambridge's own infant breakaway state, gave a further demonstration of the 'freedom' when a colourful procession beat the bounds of the two-day-old 'city'. Led by the self-proclaimed 'Lord Mayor', Arthur Sutton, resplendent in red robes and riding in a carriage, some 80 citizens of the Kite, accompanied by a jazz combo, wound their way to Midsummer Common where a 'Freedom Kite' was symbolically flown. The demonstrators were ignored by their main opponents, the controlling Conservative group, who are proposing to re-develop the run-down area, demolishing parts in the process.

1978 07 26
Mother and test-tube baby are doing fine – thanks in part to the Cambridge physiologist, Dr Robert Edwards who has helped pioneer research into laboratory fertilisation. It was his work with a consultant gynaecologist, Mr Patrick Steptoe, which culminated in the world's first test-tube baby born to Mrs Lesley Brown in Oldham General Hospital. The birth, the result of 12 years scientific work and experiments, was hailed as a tremendous achievement and a wonderful breakthrough.

1978 07 26
Great Chishill's hopes of another best-kept-village prize were raised by the sale of the dilapidated village school. The picturesque village last took the competition title in 1970, the year before the Victorian school was closed and 22 children transferred to Fowlmere. Legal problems have delayed the sale and the building has deteriorated. Now it has been sold by auction for £19,000 to a family who intend converting it into a house

1978 07 27
The Turk's Head, one of the largest eating places in central Cambridge, has served its last meals and drinks. Many of the 30 staff hope to be given the first chance in the project to turn the Plough and Harrow public house in Madingley Road into a restaurant. The Turk's Head opened in the 1960s as a restaurant where a range of inexpensive meals could be had across a wide price band but it was too close to another Berni Steak Bar around the corner in Rose Crescent. Now there are plans to turn it into two smaller restaurants together with a 'mini Burlington Arcade' with some 11 shops aimed at tourists.

1978 07 28
The star that has shone over Cambridge Folk Festival of the past 14 years appears to be waning. There is increasing evidence among the mass of faces at this international event that the serious folkie is now staying away and that Cambridge – once the most prestigious event in the folk calendar – is slowly being taken over by an unfortunate yobby element who treat Cherry Hinton Hall like a Pontins holiday camp

1978 07 29
Laura Ashley, one of the fastest rising fashion and fabric business in the world is coming to Cambridge. They are taking over the ground floor of what was the Turk's Head restaurant. The rest will become separate eating areas. The Granary in the cellar will offer international cuisine, the first floor restaurant will be based on English cuisine and the Pasta Kitchen on the top floor will feature an a la carte menu. It will be one of the few English businesses to offer hot foods late at night in Cambridge.

1978
There are many sides to a new house at Great Gransden – eight in fact. Which has left villagers wondering why on earth anyone should want to pay money for an outsized threepenny bit. Murmurs of 'Monstrosity' and 'Shouldn't be allowed' were on the lips of environmentalists as the unusual house in West Street took shape. But the owner defends it: "I think it is in keeping, although it is in a conspicuous position amongst a lot of thatched and old-made tiled houses", he said.

1978 07 31
Folk Festival revue, p7
Skateboard opening, p8

August 1978 CEN

1978 08 01
The fate of one of Cambridge's best-known family firms hang in the balance with decision of Mr Horrie Mansfield to retire as senior partner of the Burwell and District Motor Service after more than 50 years at the wheel. He has tried to retire several times without success but now finds that running the company – and doing frequent driving stints himself – is becoming a strain. Burwell, begun by his father in 1921, has built up a reputation for reliability and efficiency. It started with a motor-cycle and sidecar, then secured a taxi and its first 20-seat bus van. Now it is a thriving company employing more than 20 people

1978 08 03
Ray Malmstrom, has just retired after teaching at Impington Village College for 32 years. He started as an assistant teacher with responsibility for the arts and within a fortnight had started a model aeroplane club, which is still going strong. He taught art and must have coached about 4,000 pupils, many of whom have gone on to art schools and training colleges and become teachers or have set up on their own as graphic designers.

1978 08 04
Renewed attempts will be made to have the annual Cambridge folk festival moved from its traditional home in Cherry Hinton Hall grounds to the more spacious surroundings of Coldham's Common. They have been reinforced by the state of the grounds after the heavy rain at this year's event which have been terribly churned up and it will take months for them to be reinstated. Last year councillors opposed such a move fearing that people living on the Whitehill housing estate would be subject to noise until late into the night.

1978 08 07
'Moonies' in Cambridge, p3

1978 08 08
Considering the amount of rain that has fallen during the past few months, the impossible has happened – Anglian Water Authority 'lost' part of the River Ouse near St Ives. About a mile of the water between sluice gates at Hemingford and Houghton simply drained away and left boats high and dry. There are two sets of sluice gates which open and close automatically to control the river flow and they were both open to cope with the increased flow caused by the rain. But a large tree became stuck under one of the gates, preventing it from closing so the water flowed away until there was nothing but a trickle on the river bed.

1978 08 08
A leading churchman gave warning on the aims of the Moonies sect, which have been operating from a terraced house in Norwich Street in Cambridge for the past six or seven years. The Regius Professor of Divinity said the movement demanded total commitment and obedience from the young people who joined & was not a Christian organisation as it claimed to be. A Unification Church spokesman said the church was far more representative of the living Christianity than many of the more traditional denominations

The ice-cream war is hotting up in Cambridge's Lion Yard and the competition is getting so cut-throat that even some of the salesmen feel there are too many stands – as many as 19 on one day. A few years ago there were only two or three stalls selling hot-dogs and ice creams, or roast chestnuts in the winter. But now the proliferation is bringing complaints from shops who say their trade is suffering and from tourists, who say they are being molested. In addition the mouldering strife is threatening to erupt in violence as the growing number of traders cut into each other's sales.

1978 08 09
A major aircraft building job is being given to Marshalls of Cambridge by the Ministry of Defence. It involves the stretching of the fuselages of 29 Hercules aircraft to allow it to carry extra cargo. The conversion will be fitted into the normal overhaul and serving work which the firm carries on. Sir Arthur Marshall said: "At the moment we are on various major contracts for the Hercules – replacement of wing centre sections and outer wings – as well as work on military and civil aircraft from all over the world".

Barrow boys, p3

1978 08 10 ES
Lt Thetford village feast revival a great success. 78 08 10ES

1978 08 11
A compromise has been reached on the route of the Soham by-pass which will soften the impact on the county's last surviving remnant of the manorial open field system of agriculture. It will help protect the 80-acre Soham Green Hill site which is scheduled as of special scientific interest. It is rich in flowers such as meadow saxifrage, milkwort and five species of orchid and there are valuable old hedgerows and small ponds

1978 08 11
A petrol tanker disaster was narrowly avoided when the vehicle, carrying a 6,000-gallon load, caught fire on the A1 near St Neots. The driver pulled into a lay-by near the Wait for the Wagon pub at Wyboston with a puncture and smouldering tyre and then the wheel burst into flames. One of the first people on the scene was 15-year-old Peter Thompson, son of the landlord: "It looked very dangerous.

The driver and his co-driver looked shocked and one of them ran across the A1 for help", he said. After the blaze was extinguished the men were given tea in the pub

1978 08 12
Mr Len Warren, the self-styled King of Reach, stepped quietly into retirement- but he went with a promise that eventually the village would have independence. "King Len", sporting regal shoulder-length hair left the University Faculty of Economics where he has been caretaker for 16 years. He claims that in a Charter of 1201 King John gave Reach – then a prosperous port – the status of kingdom for ever. Len claimed the right to rule when he learned that the ruler, Count Allen was murdered in 1349 and a successor never found. "Once it is recognised as an independent kingdom I will give it back to the Queen", he said.

1978
People who live in Park Street have made a startling proposal which could solve some of Cambridge's housing problems at a stroke. They want to turn multi-storey car parks into blocks of flats. They say there is a pressing need for more housing in their area which could be met by converting the "obnoxious monster". The campaigners suggest the bleak concrete façade of the building could be covered with climbing plants as part of the conversion. A City Council spokesman says it might be possible, but the amount of reinforced concrete in the building would cause condensation.

1978 08 14
The Black Horse at Dry Drayton has opened its doors again after a £30,000 facelift and a year spent empty and derelict. The pub was bought from the brewers, Whitbread, by 26-year old Paul Bowskill, who has installed a manager after spending eight months restoring the building. Now a free house the pub supplies Greene King real ale and hopes to get either Adnams or Ruddles in the future. By next week the pub should also be serving bar meals

Bridge Street shops, p5

1978 08 16
Doubts about restoring the semi-derelict Fulbourn windmill are likely to be settled by the setting up of a village trust to lease it from the new owner. The Windmill Society hopes the deal will make it possible to continue the restoration work, begun in 1974. Since then timber has been weatherproofed and the aim is to restore the mill to something like the condition of its heyday when it was used for grinding villagers' corn. The main task at present involves renewing the floors and three months have been earmarked for the work.

1978 08 17
Organising holidays is a highly skilled business so when the Cambridge Federation of Women's Institutes offered WI members from any part of the country the possibility of a holiday tour based around Cambridge they were taken aback by the big response. No sooner had the word been put around than 30 applications poured in and the numbers had to be limited to one coachload. Now after months of preparations the WI holidaymakers are swelling the throngs of tourists doing the sights. They are staying at St John's College and paying £55 for their five-day stay.

Parking meters, p4

1978 08 18
Jerry Bol, the popular Cambridge busker, was fined £2 as a result of the police crack-down on street vendors causing obstructions in the Lion Yard shopping precinct. Police said they counted a crowd of 67 people listening to his one-man-band. Mr Bol told the court he became a busker five years ago & since then had appeared in 25 TV programmes & films. "The children of Cambridge call me 'Mr Music Man' and I stand in Petty Cury for their safety. The Duke of Edinburgh and the Mayor of Heidelberg came to see me", he told the court, & would pay his fine with £3 given him by well-wishers since his arrest.

United debut game, p5
Queensway store, p15

1978 08 21
The Four Went Ways roundabout on the A11 was sealed off for more than 24 hours after a tanker carrying 18 tons of ammonia crashed and overturned. It was on its way to the ICI depot at Chedburgh, near Haverhill. A team of ICI specialists and fire crews worked through the night under floodlights to pump the load into another tanker. One said: "This is liquefied gas and can be explosive & toxic in larger doses. Fortunately there are few people living nearby". Morning rush-hour commuters met delays as they crowded the country lanes being used as diversions.

Issitt garden, p7

1978 08 22
Greyhound plan, p1, p5

1978 08 23
A leakage of thousands of gallons of aircraft fuel at the Mildenhall American Air Force base may mean water supplies to 40,000 homes in the surrounding area will have to be cut off. The fuel is trapped underground near a bore-hole serving homes in the Ely and Littleport area. The Water Authority was informed on August 4th although the leakage had been discovered on July 18th when it was a kilometre from the bore-hole. Since then it had moved 200 metres but it was not clear whether it would eventually end up in the water supply. The oil is trapped in porous rocks and holes are being drilled to locate it. The USAF then hopes to pump the fuel to the surface.

United match, p18

1978 08 24
Work is underway on the redecoration of the interior of Rampton church for the first time in living memory. It brings to an end the last stage of a programme of repair. Much of the trouble began in the dry summer of 1976 when shrinking clay left a three-inch crack in the chancel wall. It was in danger of collapse and had to be underpinned. Metal ties had to be inserted and the aisle roof reslated. The work is costing £7,000 and fund-raising for the 800-year-old church, one of the few thatched churches left in Britain, continues

1978 08 25
For those who live in St Neots returning from holiday is a hazardous business. No less than 10 local newspapers are now circulating in the town and, whether they like it or not, several are pushed through the letterbox every week jamming the door. A circulation battle is taking place between three rival newspaper groups - one claims to distribute 18,000 copies in an area which contains only 14,000 households. Beat that for saturation coverage! The humblest event gets very thorough coverage; at the carnival's bonny baby contest there were almost as many journalists as entrants and everywhere are reporters, photographers, ad reps and vans proclaiming the title of one of St Neots' many organs. 78 08 25

1978 08 25
Meals on Wheels in its early days was set alight by the WRVS in the 1940's, the idea of a hot homely two-course meal taken by hand to the old and lonely, kindled flames of compassion in the heart of many a housewife. Voluntary drivers gladly used their own carts to transport the meals from kitchen to waiting recipient, all set with his two warm plates and his knife, fork and spoon. Since Cambridgeshire County Council became responsible for the service the price rose. Inflation roared, devouring food costs and petrol money & volunteer drivers melted into part-time jobs. But the list of recipients grew 78 08 25

1978 08 30
Cambridge councillors are having second thoughts about the historic and ancient Reach Fair festivities. Times have changed a bit since the year 1201 when King John granted the village a charter to hold its own fair during Rogation Week, a moveable church festival. This year the 'proclamation' date coincided with the new, politically inspired, May Bank Holiday, which resulted in a bumper turn-out. Now Reach Parish Council has asked that this should always be the official opening date.

1978 08 30
Members of the church of St Andrew the Great in Cambridge are stepping up their campaign against its closure. The redundancy process has already started but people think it would be a great sin and plan to petition the Bishop of Ely for a rethink. Although there has been no resident vicar for about six years the congregation has been steadily growing and weekday services have also started. The group of parishioners have managed to keep the church open all day on Thursday and Saturday and hope to keep it open all week as time goes on.

A1-M1 link, p1

September 1978 CEN

1978 09 01
The Government has stopped Cambridge City Council's plan to rebuild the Kite area. They have refused to allow them to borrow the £2.3 million needed to buy the land for shopping development which means the 20-year saga of decay will continue indefinitely. The council's Conservative leader claimed it was a political decision, probably part of a General Election run-up. M.P. Robert Rhodes James said the blight in the Fitzroy Street area would be perpetuated and the general economic and physical decline of the area would continue remorselessly. But organisations which have been fighting the plans are delighted.

Kite quandary, p14

1978 09 02
Hostile public reaction to the doubled fines introduced for overdue books at Cambridgeshire libraries is forcing a rethink on the matter. Although the council is nearly £20,000 better off since the fine went up to 10p a week for each book, the library service has been hit badly. A lot of people have stopped using the libraries and staff are subjected to constant complaints from readers. Assistants have become embarrassed to ask for the large fines and staff morale has dropped. A new report now suggests the fine be cut to 5p for the first week.

1978 09 04
United plans, p8

1978 09 06
The "violent shrill of complaint" from the public over heavy fines for overdue library books has left some county councillors unmoved. The Leisure Committee decided against reducing fines of 10p a week per book which are embarrassing library staff and causing hardship. Chief Librarian Royston Brown says people are taking out fewer books and many children have stopped using the libraries

1978 09 06
The first new boat sailed into the new marina beside the River Ouse at Ely. Work on Banham Marina, which can hold 112 pleasure craft, started in May and for the past few days it has been gradually filled with water. It is now ready for use, although landscaping, paths and car parks still have to be completed. It was designed by Dennis Adams and Partners of Ely and finished just in time for boat owners to 'lay off' their craft for the winter months.

German bomber, p12

1978 09 08
Cambridge parking meter charges - up to 15p an hour in the city centre and already among the highest in the country - are expected to increase in the New Year. This is mainly to help to pay for the traffic wardens' latest wage rises of 9.4 per cent, which takes their starting rate to £2,566 a year. The city's 426 meters, which have been run at a handsome profit for some years, will show a big deficit this year.

Hemingford Abbots Best Kept Village, p9

1978 09 11
Cliff Squires and Briscoe Snelson were two of Cambridge's most talented amateur photographers, good friends who often photographed the same scene, though from their own distinctive viewpoints. Squires, founder of the Cambridge Camera Club died not long after his friend Snelson was widowed and in 1953 Mrs Kathleen Squires became Mrs Snelson. She remembers both husbands as simply, "lovely men". Now their widow has deposited a horde of their photographs with the enterprising Cambridgeshire Collection, who are planning to hold lunchtime lantern-slide shows this autumn.

1978 09 11
Independent schools don't get more independent than tiny Madingley infants' school, which started the first day of term in defiance of the education authorities. The County Council ordered the school to close at the end of July saying that, at £10,000 a year for 23 pupils, it was too expensive. But parents, teacher and pupils walked out and launched a co-operative to run their own school. They thought of hiring the village hall but have now decided to use the wooden cricket pavilion. The old school building goes up for auction next month and parents have launched a campaign to raise money to buy it.

1978 09 11
Bar Hill's newest resident, twins Rupert and Stuart Donovan just two weeks old, and the oldest, Mrs Edith Chance who has lived there for seven years, were among the people invited to the stone-laying of the new community centre by the chairman of the County Council, Mrs Margaret Shaw. Residents hope the centre, which will have a social club, changing rooms, youth activity and a permanent playgroup, will be finished in a year. The Parish Council's contribution to the event, a display by three light aircraft, had to be curtailed due to high winds.

1978 09 12
Park Street flats, p9

1978 09 13
The Cambridge Symphony Orchestra is set to rise 'like a phoenix from the ashes' of its collapse last year. It has financial backing by four local businessmen to guarantee their first three concerts and hopes to regain the goodwill of local people. The format continues as before with a nucleus of professional musicians aided by enthusiastic amateurs and music students, some of school age, who will all be good enough to make a professional sound, bringing a symphony orchestra to Cambridge at a price people can afford to pay.

1978 09 14
Coveney planning, p13

1978 09 15
Fire swept through the old railway station buildings at Pampisford, gutting a warehouse storing timber and badly damaging an office block owned by a firm called Solo Park. Firemen used breathing apparatus to get into the building and traffic on the A11 was slowed down as hose reels stretched across the road. "You could hear the windows cracking and then the roof crashed in", one eyewitness said. Fire also damaged a stage at Fulbourn Hospital where a grand piano and film screen was destroyed.

1978 09 18
The New Town area of Cambridge was developed in the 1820s with unpretentious terraces, many of which were ill-built. But at least they had unity. Today, largely demolished and patchily replaced, New Town strikes one as a sorry mess. Panton Street is a mixture of discreet, elegant houses with intrusive modern developments. The St Anthony's Walk almshouses are a discordant construction, their severe frontage characterised by jutting ventilatory contraptions: a battery-house for humans. Opposite begins the Russell Court complex of flats; as such developments go the quality is good and attempts have been made at a humanised appearance. Will its stark modern brick ever attain the serene texture of the houses over the way – Graham Chainey – 78 09 18

1978 09 19
Two years ago the ornamental iron gates at the entrance to the Memorial Playing Fields in Saffron Walden collapsed, and disappeared from public view. A few day ago they reappeared, welded and repainted and back in place, rekindling war-time memories. The gates were removed from Shortgrove Hall when it was used as a wartime hospital and in 1955 hung to form an imposing entrance to the Anglo-American memorial playing fields opened by Field Marshall Viscount Montgomery. In 1977 they were discovered laying flat in a bed of nettles, almost too far gone for repair, but the Saffron Walden Antiquarian Society arranged their restoration by local firm, Scott and Bow. 78 09 19

1978 09 20
They laugh a lot, paint exquisite pictures, write books, keep a menagerie in the back garden and in between times look after the health and welfare of half of Histon. They are doctors, Bob and Paddy Dwyer-Joyce, family doctors with the emphasis on family. In the surgery is a big sweet jar and soon it will be empty because they are both retiring from the NHS after 42 years. At the end of the month there will be a few private patients, that will be all. And the unknown numbers who will call anyway, and never be turned away

Madingley school, p18

1978 09 21
Some of the brightest artistic talents in Cambridge struggle along in two linked huts, sharing cramped premises with enthusiastic leisure groups. That they carry on with such professionalism is testimony to the spirit of the Cambridge Arts and Leisure Association (CALA). It was formed thirteen years ago to bring together under one roof in pleasant surroundings individuals and societies interested in all kinds of leisure activities and promote the enjoyment of Arts and Crafts. They are still campaigning from their base in Warkworth Street.

1978 09 22
The tools used in 44 years of farming near Milton went under the hammer when nearly 500 items ranging from heavy-duty tractors to ancient forks figured in a selling-up sale. The Downham Brothers, Richard and William, farmed about 70 acres of land from 1934. But William died last year and Richard decided to call it a day. A new road scheme has decimated the land, which will now go to other uses including the science park and light industry. An old tumbrel cart went for £40, tractors fetched £800 and £420 while some disc harrows were knocked down for £600 and a mower for £520.

1978 09 22
More reliable equipment to control the barriers of Cambridge car parks is being sought because the council is losing so much money through breakdowns. The dropping arms which control the entrances and exits are breaking down so often that councillors are becoming seriously concerned. People drive out through broken gates without paying. Now they will consider metal posts rising from small holes in the exits

1978 09 23
Two St Neots ambulance men made a one-mile mercy dash by bicycle to treat an injured man, because there was no ambulance. One had borrowed his wife's machine and the other used his own bicycle as they set off with first aid bags over their shoulders. But on arrival they were ridiculed by onlookers. They were laughed at, sworn at and generally made fun of for turning up on bikes. None of the station's ambulances were available. One 'emergency use' vehicle had broken down, two others were in use and two 'sitting case' vehicles were also unusable, one with exhaust trouble, the other with a puncture.

1978 09 25
Protestors against the proposed closure of Park Street School Cambridge stepped up their campaign by marching on the Guildhall. The television commentator and personality, Clive James, who is leading the fight said: "There will be no financial gain from closing the school. The main reason for shutting it seems to be the size of the playground which they say is insufficient for the kids to fulfil themselves". Park Street Residents Association has joined the campaign as they feel much of the community spirit of the area will be lost if the plans go ahead.

1978 09 26
David Patrick, paddled down the River Cam in a boat which is thought to be the last of its kind afloat on the river. He bought the Princess Jane when she was used as just a floating platform for an overhaul of Ely High Bridge. It was pock-marked by rust, her steam engines were removed and she was without a wheelhouse. Now he has restored the paddle tug to its former glory. But sadly when the new steam engines are fitted the boat will need deep moorings, of which there are few along the river.

1978 09 27
A wealth of historic architecture has been discovered in a cottage at Town Green Road Orwell which was thought to have been built in the 17th century but now has been dated at 1540. Two original fireplaces have been uncovered along with Tudor beams and windows. It was due to be demolished to make way for an old people's home but a campaign by Coun Peter King led to a change of heart and restoration is now under way. When complete there will be very little change from the outside but internally it will make a fine period home.

1978 09 28
A lot of the blame for flood damage was due to councils who allowed houses to be built with inadequate foundations, say Anglia Water Authority. They have largely ignored advice from drainage authorities who were sometimes not consulted when building in likely problem areas was given the go-ahead. Planning permission was recently given to new developments in the Cambridge area where flooding could be foreseen and no special arrangements were being made to ward off the threat

1978 09 28
Coypus, the large beaver-like rodents, could be eliminated more quickly and cheaply if farmers were paid on the numbers they shot, say the Anglian Water Authority. Trapping was an effective, if slow process demanding skill which many farmers did not have. There was difficulty in recruiting the right kind of conscientious man for trapping; it was an extremely lonely job and if he did it too well he did himself out of work. The Government should pay half of the cost because it was to blame for letting the pests into the countryside in the first place, 40 years ago.

1978 09 29
A graph in this month's parish magazine of St James' church, Cambridge, tells the story of David Ford's time in Cambridge. It shows the number of communicants has about doubled in the 12 years he has been vicar. Which is why for the second time in its 24 years the church is going to have to be enlarged. It is an unusual story for an age in which churches are supposed to be emptying and dying. The Gargoyles youth club he founded is more lively than ever and his success with young people has been recognised in his new appointment as vicar at Lewisham.

Bukovsky at Kings, p6

October 1978 CEN

1978 10 03
Cambridge' Drummer Street bus station may be extended on to the adjoining Christ's Pieces within the next few years as County Council traffic experts and the bus companies have agreed that expansion of the present site is the best way of bringing it up to date. The facilities such as booking office, news-stands & toilets are scattered, cramped and unsightly and there are no proper information displays. The city council has suggested the station should be moved into the Kite Area and Conservation interests prefer disused land near the railway station should be used. But the County rejects both locations

1978 10 03
Plans to reopen Kimbolton Sunday Market on a grander scale than ever before are going ahead, despite opposition from the parish council. A planning application has been submitted by a London firm of market operators, which envisages provision for 2,000 cars. They hope there will be about 150 stalls making it twice the size of the old market, which was shut down after pressure from the council who threatened injunctions under the Sunday trading laws. The firm is operating in co-operation with the owners of the site, Kimbolton Show Associates.

Domino inkjet, p11

1978 10 04
One way of improving the environment of the St Matthew's area of Cambridge would be to demolish many houses and widen the streets, says a City Council report. It contains 1,415 houses that are among the worst in Cambridge in terms of lack of amenities, structural repairs and the environment in which they stand. The problem is the long narrow streets where a small amount of through-traffic become an irritant and lorries cause congestion, noise and vibration. However well houses are renovated the area will not be greatly enhanced until substantial improvements are made to the environment.

1978 10 04
Milton parents and parish councillors are keeping an eagle eye on pupils crossing the two-mile Milton bypass which opened this week. Police say there had no problems with schoolchildren crossing the busy road between Impington Village College and Milton. But all are concerned at the speed of traffic on the new road which is expected to intensify when the northern by-pass opens just before Christmas. The Minister of Transport has refused to concede the need for a footbridge, pointing out that this could cost about £35,000.

1978 10 04
Some of the long-disused offices above Cambridge's Lion Yard shopping complex may soon be turned into restaurants. The plans have been warmly greeted by councillors who have complained for a long time about the empty space standing in one of the city's key commercial positions. The applicants want to rent the bulk of the ground floor and turn it into two restaurants, one catering for general medium price trade and the other as a high-class 'night life' restaurant. The three-storey office block which contains thousands of square feet of space has been standing empty since the development was completed three years ago.

1978 10 05
Fuel leak, p11

1978 10 09
The long-running dispute over responsibility for repairing the only bridge over the Old West River which gives access for thousands of visitors each year to the Stretham pumping station has been settled. The County Council and a local farming company have agreed to pay £1,000 each towards the cost of repairs. The dispute began two years ago when the county closed the bridge because some of the structure had collapsed and part of the roadway had fallen into the river. Now it will be rebuilt and a bus turning area constructed for visitors to the engine which is preserved as a museum attracting industrial archaeologists.

1978 10 10
The 600-ton Fenman express train, the fastest on the Cambridge run, smashed through the level crossing gates at Shelford. Luck meant that none of the hundreds of commuting motorists was on the spot and luck stopped the 11-coach train carrying about 400 passengers being derailed. Luck also saved crossing-keeper Fred Bond as the other gate wound itself round his line-side hut, splintering the woodwork, smashing every window – but leaving intact the horseshoe nailed above the door. It was the third time in nine years that a train had gone through the closed gates.

1978 10 11
British Rail seems rather attached to the traditional style level crossing gate. Each time one is smashed to pieces by a train at Great Shelford they replace it with a new one. The crossing is a traditional manned gate system – branded by a Government report in 1968 as a 'creaking anachronism'. Since then there have been level crossing accidents at Shelford in January 1969 and October 1971, Longstanton, Whittlesey, Prickwillow and Brinkley Road crossing near Newmarket. The sight of BR workmen installing yet another manned gate at Gt Shelford has done little to allay the public's fears of their safety.

1978 10 12
People wanting a council house in Cambridge now stand a much better chance of being allocated one than they would have done four years ago. Not only has the waiting list shortened it has been opened up to many more people. Single people living and working in the city can now go on to the list at 21 instead of waiting until they are twice that age, and pensioners whose only connection is that their children live in the city can also go on the list. Nowadays young people move away to work which means the social services have to help out with the parents when they get old. Allowing pensioners to move closer to their children will relieve pressure on the social services.

1978 10 12
Over the last four years Cambridge city council has completed many major housing schemes – estates like King's Hedges, Fulbourn Old Drift and Walpole Road. And the government's new schools, fire stations and other building also proved a boon to the casualties of the time – building contractors and architects. But there has now been a cut in new town development, and home building involving architects virtually ceased overnight. In the past year there has been an upturn in private house building, but it is nowhere near the boom of the 1960's.

1978 10 13
Pleas from villagers at Oakington for South Cambs District Council to get rid of 'slum' homes for problem council tenants have been turned down. The Housing Committee decided it needed the 30-year-old prefabricated bungalows at The Broadway as temporary accommodation for problem families or the homeless. But Coun Tom Flanagan said "It is very unfair to put so many problem cases into a small village like Oakington. There is often violence in the area and the problem could erupt at any time". Other residents complained that the area was a 'slum' with an 'unpleasant and dangerous environment'

1978 10 13
The Varsity Handbook's pub guide includes a bitter attack on several Cambridge pubs. At The Horse and Groom, King Street it claims "the beer is foul, the bar dirty and the landlord unpleasant". The Pickerel, Magdalene Street, fares little better: "Foul place, selling foul beer and swamped by inhabitants of a certain nearby college". Whitbread pubs in particular come in for a bad time: "Why does Whitbread charge so much money for their freezing cold fizzy beer", it asks. But it likes the Baker's Arms, East Road - "friendly and near a fish and chip shop" 78 10 13

Postcodes, p8

1978 10 14
Lottery plan, p6

1978 10 16
Spies, p13

1978 10 17
The jobs of Cambridge firemen are safe in spite of a major shake-up suggested in an official county council report aimed at improving the cost effectiveness of the Fire and Rescue Service. It hints that Parkside fire station is over-manned, particularly at night. A reduction in the number of full-time crews should be considered with a new fire station in the north of the city. Huntingdon fire station should be reduced to day manning on a seven-day basis and changes are also suggested at Ely. Proposals could involve the deployment of existing staff and they may need extra firemen when the new 42-hour week starts next month

1978 10 18
Caxton gibbet hound, p4

1978 10 19
A group of Madingley parents have won their battle to buy the tiny village school at an auction when they competed against one other buyer, a local property developer. He was greeted by jeers as he left the hall by parents who felt he had pushed the bidding up and wasted no time in telling him so. The building finally made £39,500. Parents are delighted but now face a major problem to find enough money to keep the school going as a co-operative. It will not be fee paying but gifts and grants will be sought.

Hole in heart, p1

1978 10 20
About 150 people have signed a petition protesting against District Council plans to spend up to £4,000 on a skateboard rink at the recreation ground in Newmarket Road, Royston. Campaigners fear that the proposal to use the area both as a skateboard rink and a car park could be hazardous to both children and motorists. They are also worried about more youngsters being attracted: "There is already a lot of vandalism, bullying and noisy larking about", they complain. Royston town council agrees than any money for skateboarding should be spent at the Meridian Centre where there is already a skateboarding park run by a youth worker.

1978 10 20
Cambridge sewage treatment works have been accused of turning the River Cam into one of the dirtiest, smelliest and most turgid stretches of water in the country. Now the works have been transformed into Anglian Water Authority's pride and joy – almost. It has been their top priority project but has generated fierce controversy with an eighteen-month sewage embargo prompting sharp criticism from local councils anxious to go ahead with development plans. At present the works cope for a population of 120,000, and there is scope for 165,000. But the river itself is already near the top of the Department of the Environment classification for chemical pollution.

1978 10 20
The level-crossing keeper at Great Chesterford described his day: "You learn the sleep through the trains, even though they rush right next door to the house and almost shake you out of bed. The gates are open to trains until 7 am, after that they're open to traffic. You don't often get woken up in the night – about once every two months a driver wants to get through; according to regulations you're allowed 20 minutes dressing time, but I don't bother. You have to put up with all sorts of things. People flushing the train loo over the crossing or impatient lorry drivers who use your garden as a lavatory if they're kept waiting. The other day the bell broke down and so I didn't open the gates. Next thing there was this darn great express sitting there, hooting at me" 78 10 20v

1978 10 23
Gay stall banned, p8

1978 10 24
Francis Pym, p7

1978 10 25
Dorothy Grainger's tiny cluttered cottage in Burwell is full of her pictures – not framed or in albums but stuffed into old boxes and wrinkled paper bags. She was that sort of photographer, nothing fancy or arty. Just plain, professional pictures that told the story she had been paid to tell. Now nearly 84 she rides a motorised wheelchair, but loves to relive the days when she roamed the Fens on a motorbike with her heavy wooden tripod and half-plate camera strapped on her back.

1978 10 26
Mill Road library, p5

1978 10 27
St Neots may become the first town to have a battery-operated bus. The idea arose when County Councillors gave the go-ahead for a battery-driven mobile library and considered where other such transport would be suitable. It needs a small town where frequent battery charges were possible and where there were many estate roads where people are not keen on large noisy, smelly motor buses. Battery buses should be almost maintenance-free and would carry 25 passengers. Such vehicles are not yet in production but councillors would approach development groups and expect to attract government money.

1978 10 27
Skateboard firms have been quietly going out of business over the summer. Few of the country's 84 skateparks have proved a success and a recent survey claimed that there were only 15,000 skaters left. This has spelled disaster to hundreds of would-be skateboard tycoons. In Cambridge there is still a hard core of skaters who show no sign of losing interest. You can find them most weekends up at the Cheddar's Lane skateboard park. "I wouldn't dream of giving up" said one 14-year-old. "I am at the height of it and I want to get more stuff". But stuff is not cheap; a reasonably sophisticated board and set of protective clothing can set you back as much as £65

1978 10 28
A leading Cambridge scientist and Nobel Prizewinner, Dr Frederick Sanger of the Laboratory of Molecular Biology has been presented with an American award for new advances in the chemistry of genetics. His work on the sequencing of DNA in a type of virus used by scientists to study genetics might well warrant the awarding of another Nobel Prize to add to the one he won in 1958 for his study of the structure of the hormone insulin. He has also received other leading scientific awards.

1978 10 28
The Cambridge rubbish tip at Coldham's Lane, which has been frequently criticised on windy days for its smells and the large amount of paper blown from it, is to close. But the tip which is now full up will be replaced by a massive hole in the ground just a few hundred yards away at the worked-out quarry by the side of the Norman Cement Works, where the city's refuse will continue to be dumped. In time there will be a special section for household waste like old furniture and garden waste not normally collected by dustmen. It is expected the new tip will last about five years after which rubbish will be carted to a new tip at Milton.

1978 10 29
Experimental mini-roundabouts at the Lensfield Road – Trumpington Road junction in Cambridge have been approved by the Government and will be made permanent. They replaced traffic lights which for years caused long delays and have speeded-up traffic at the once-notorious bottleneck. In addition a pelican crossing is to be built at Fen Causeway at the entrance to the Engineering Laboratories with another at Trumpington Road. There will also be one over Brooks Road when the new and controversial link with Newmarket Road is opened shortly.

1978 10 31
Newmarket fountain, p3

November 1978 CEN

1978 11 01
A few pounds of gelignite put paid to the 120-foot chimney of the old riverside hosiery mill at Huntingdon. It was blasted to rubble by explosives expert George Williams who divides his time between running the University Arms pub at Sawston and destroying chimneys. He had demolished more than 100 and claims a world record for bringing down 10 brickworks chimneys simultaneously near Peterborough. The Huntingdon mill is being renovated by a London-based international company for use as a hotel or leisure centre.

Swavesey restaurant, p11

1978 11 02
When parents succeeded in buying Madingley School in order to keep it open they knew the hard bit was yet to come. The national newspapers have gone now, leaving the 14 children and Mrs McKay, their head, to start the second half of term back in their old school buildings. Some educationalists will be looking to prove pet theories about small schools, politicians will be looking at balance sheets and parents in a similar plight will want to know if they could do the same. The immediate future presents no problems but the parents have been doing their sums and believe they will have to raise about £100,000 to be sure of the school's long term future. 78 11 02

1978 11 04
A wave of panic buying hit shops as housewives rushed to buy bread a full three days before a threatened national bakers' strike is due to start. Sainsbury's store in Coldham's Lane Cambridge has rationed people to just two loaves and How's bakery in Mill Road said that all stocks were sold out by lunchtime. A Tesco in Regent Street exceptionally heavy buying emptied the shop of bread by mid-morning. Anxious shoppers out to stock up their freezers with loaves were described as "greedy" by shopkeepers. The strike is not yet a certainty and independent bakeries are not involved.

1978 11 04
Within two years the Government intends to start demolishing its sprawling concrete and asbestos single-storey offices at Brookland's Avenue, Cambridge. The development began during the war years, rapidly mushroomed and became the city's largest office complex employing upwards of 2,000 people in seven major departments over the 30-acre site. New offices, laboratories and stores are being planned together with roads and parking. Any land that the Property Services Agency does not want would be offered to the city council for road widening schemes or to housing associations.

1978 11 04
Prince Charles parried questions on his success with women when he spoke at the Cambridge Union. "I often think my best way out is to announce my engagement to Gladys Thrumm. The wedding presents would arrive and then I would call it all off and then I could be free to go about and see all sorts of people", he said. He was presented with a bath plug mounted on a wooden shield which came from the rooms he occupied when a student at Trinity College. It was signed by Mrs Florence Moore who cleaned the rooms and was in the audience.

1978 11 07
Telephone Bill was at a loss to know who to phone up when he needed to recruit a new Smooth Operator. After two years of close comradeship touring together as professional musicians Nick Barraclough's band faced its first personnel change when Rob Appleton left. Then Nick heard Steve Reynolds singing at the Cambridge Folk Club; he had played alongside them locally on many occasions and was pleased to accept the invitation to join the group which soon begins an extensive nation-wide tour with Max Boyce. 78 11 07

Sinclair tv, p8

1978 11 08
Bourn Hall could soon be the world's first test tube baby clinic. Cambridge physiologist Dr Robert Edwards and gynaecologist Mr Patrick Steptoe, who pioneered the first test tube baby birth in Oldham, have been looked for a suitable based in the Cambridge area. Now an investment company has applied for consent to change the use of the Hall from residential into a private clinic. It has been the home for the past 20 years of Coun Peter King, a leading expert on the restoration of old buildings.

1978 11 10
Wilder Pinney, a dental repair man of Fitzroy Street, Cambridge told the News: "Some dentures I have to handle are horrible – all slimy and mucky. The smokers' are the worst, covered in tar they are. Black. You have to clean them before you can start work on them. People break their dentures in all sorts of ways. With schoolboys it's usually because they've been keeping them in their pockets. People are terribly embarrassed without their teeth. Some daren't leave the shop but sit hiding behind a magazine, others walk about with a hanky over their faces. Especially the ladies." 78 11 10

1978 11 13
Four armed men wearing theatrical masks – one an ape and another a clown – made a £30,000 raid on Newmarket post office. One was armed with a sawn-off double-barrelled shotgun, two had pickaxe handles and the other had an iron wrench. They tied up three sorters on duty and broke open registered mail. Extra police were drafted into the area and cars were stopped and checked on roads leading out of the town.

1978 11 14
Plant a tree, p9

1978 11 17
In some people's eyes Cambridge United manager Tommy Docherty is almost a nonentity, especially when comparisons are made with his predecessor, Ron Atkinson with his showman style, champagne, huge cigars and Jaguar car. Docherty drives a modest Datsun, dresses smartly but not flamboyantly and doesn't like the taste of champagne. While Atkinson was a motivator and inspirational manager, Docherty is a tactician and a pragmatist. Both share a belief that there is no limit as to what the club can achieve. But if United are playing at Anfield and Old Trafford next season the Doc will probably still be able to walk unrecognised past pressmen as they wait outside the changing room door.

Twenty-six men live in the county council-run White Ribbon Hostel in East Road, Cambridge with one bath between them. It is hardly worth bathing, the place is so damp and filthy. The rooms at the back are so rotten they are used just for storage. If you have a bedroom to yourself a week in the hostel will cost you £14.78, just £10 less than a room in the relative luxury of the YMCA. The problem is a practical one: the Hostel is scheduled to be demolished should the Kite redevelopment plans go ahead. The council is thus loath to spend much money on the creaking 19th-century structure. 78 11 17

Audley End park, p1

Salvation Army hostel hippy with guitar, p17

1978 11 21
One of Cambridge's most successful businessmen, Mr Douglas January has died. He built up an estate agent's enterprise from modest beginnings in 1937 to one of the largest in Cambridge, with branch offices in the main market towns in the area. He was also widely known in other community fields and was responsible for the successful fund-raising drive behind the launch of the Cambridge sports hall. He was President of the Cambridge Golf Union & Amateur Boxing Club and local sports clubs eagerly sought his patronage.

1978 11 21
If the slightest suspicion of smoke gets in your eyes you should travel with United Taxis where boss John Phillips has a strict rule forbidding his passengers and drivers from smoking: "We carry 300 hospital patients every day so its not healthy for them to have to breathe cigarette smoke, and besides it discolours the upholstery", he said. At the Guildhall, County Hall and Fisons workers can smoke freely and even health-conscious Cambridge United players are at liberty to clog their lungs up at work. CCAT students are free to smoke during classes, but only if a majority of them vote to do so at the beginning of a session; at Jesus College undergraduates voted to remove ash-trays from their library.

1978 11 22
City schools doomed, p1
County Council badge of office, p11

1978 11 23
Rex cinema, p10

1978 11 24
Ely sugar beet, p11
Fire memories, Chesterford Park explosion May 30th 1944 p23 – 78 11 24

1978 11 25
Orwell mulberry tree, p7

1978 11 28
Winter hit with a vengeance today, blanketing the region with up to three inches of snow and leaving a trail of chaos on roads into Cambridge. The worse spot was the A604 where the Bar Hill flyovers were so slippery that some motorists were forced to abandon their cars. There were long queues of traffic with many minor bumps and skids. This November has now become one of the coldest on record, yet only a week ago the opposite was true with mild weather providing one of the warmest autumns since the war.

Prof Sanger, p1
Coldham's Lane tip, p9

1978 11 29
Parking charges, p7
Lensfield Road roundabout, p11

December 1978 CEN

1978 12 01
Parts of the Newmarket-based Kerridge building group have been sold to Iranian businessmen, who have paid cash for three companies within the group. The deal includes Platonoff and Harris a shopfitting company based in Sturton Street and the former Jack Branch (Waterbeach) site. The jobs of the 600 employees of the principal part of the business, Kerridge Construction Ltd will be safe and the company has lots of work. The firm was set up in Cambridge in 1875 and moved its headquarters to Newmarket in the summer.

1978 12 02
Lensfield Road, p8

1978 12 04
Fitzroy Street fire, p1

1978 12 05
Supplying the needs of the massive Arbury housing estate is a daunting task but at Christmas the Arbury Court shopping precinct offers everything you could need. T. Sutton has Christmas trees while a good range of poultry is available from Dyers Meat and J. Whittaker. On a frosty morning the most tempting smell in the precinct is that of freshly-baked bread coming from Markillies Bakery who offer a wide range of cakes and pastries. Arbury Hardware has also taken on a festive appearance with a good selection of gifts from Timex watches to figurines.

1978 12 06
The increasing use of Cambridge colleges as conference centres may result in irreparable damage to life in the University, dons have warned. Studious undergraduates are unable to remain in residence over the vacation, opulent undergraduates are forced to remove objects from their shelves and dons and graduates find their work disturbed by riotous assemblies of exuberant conferees. But the real danger is that colleges may think of themselves as conference centres first and colleges second. This follows the installation at Trinity College of bed sitting rooms with integral bathrooms rather than communal facilities and the construction of a conference centre at New Hall.

1978 12 06
Newmarket has organised a really festive Christmas this year aimed at encouraging shoppers to discover the benefits of friendly, personal service and a wide variety of shops and services. Until a few years ago shoppers needed to be endowed with very quick reflexes to avoid the many heavy lorries that thundered through the town centre. But now after the opening of the bypass motorists can drive easily about and park in one of the many free car parks.

1978 12 11
Johnny Morris, p8

1978 12 12
The largest crane in Britain was manoeuvred carefully into position as part of the massive construction work to a motorway bridge spanning the main London railway line at Stump Cross. British Rail closed the track and under the glare of arc lights massive 85-ton parapet beams were trundled by rail from Whittlesford station yard to the site and the operation began to lift them to the bridge above. The operation which started at 3.30 am was completed by noon and was watched by many observers who braved the cold to see the motorway engineers at work.

1978 12 12
Royston Town Council planners approved an application to turn the north wing of The Rookery in Kneesworth Street into a restaurant with parking for 20 cars. “This is exactly what this town wants – a good restaurant”, said Coun. Duncan Ferguson. But the mayor, Coun Alison Nicholls had grave doubts about it. “I don’t want a restaurant there; if it is a nice one I won’t be able to afford it and if it isn’t a nice one I won’t like it”, she said.

1978 12 12
Rupert Brooke's association with the Grantchester is now immortalised in drink after The Rose and Crown changed its name to the Rupert Brooke public house. The pub has built up an association with Brooke over the years; it sells copies of his books, has his framed writings on the walls and is the owner of a portrait of the poet. The landlord said: "We are the only ones around here to keep the name going like this and the most permanent way is by changing the pub's name"

Comet advert, p2

1978 12 13
One of Cambridge's well-known characters, Mr William Trevor Hughes, has died at Addenbrooke's Hospital aged 66. It is believed he had suffered a heart attack, Trevor had appeared before magistrates on some 113 occasions, mainly on drinking charges and was usually found wearing a woolly hat and old overcoat in the city centre. On one occasion a solicitor paid his £3 fine because he had overlooked giving him a Christmas present. A native of St Helens and a former cricket coach Mr Hughes had a wide circle of friends in the University and commerce.

1978 12 13
Cambridge City Council issued a report on the Kite redevelopment proposals detailing its negotiations with Grosvenor Estates, the prospective developers. Grosvenor would finance the land acquisition in the Kite, which the council would endeavour to complete by the end of 1979, and then carry out the redevelopment scheme over the following three years. If it is not possible to acquire sufficient land the council would buy back from Grosvenor Estates whatever land had been bought, and this would be available for any future plans for the area. The City Council will have the right to approve all plans relating to the scheme's appearance

1978 12 14
The East Anglian Consultative Committee expressed concern over aspects of Government proposals for ending London overspill arrangements with local towns. They think arrangements for the scheme being terminated are inflexible and could have serious repercussions for some district councils. Local authorities have been very understanding in response to the difficulties being encountered by the Greater London Council but the town development schemes are legal and binding and they are not prepared to let their interests go by default.

1978 12 14
Cambridge Co-operative Society was fined for Sunday trading at the Beehive Shopping Centre. The Society, which has opened its garden centre every Sunday since spring said: "Our competitors will still be trading just outside the city; all we have done is over the same service other garden centres do, and other councils turn a blind eye." It had opened after consultations with planners who welcomed the prospect of a garden centre occupying this then derelict piece of land; if it was stopped a great deal of harmless leisure activity would be spoiled for thousands of people.

1978 12 14
Work has started on a £2.2 million by-pass for St Ives which will relieve one of the major bottlenecks in the county – the 15th century bridge which spans the River Ouse. A new 25-span viaduct will carry the road across the river and adjoining flood plain and should be open by October 1980. Then the present bridge, which now carried about 10,000 vehicles a day, will be restricted to pedestrians, cyclists and service vehicles only.

1978 12 15
The East Anglian Railway Development Society urges the restoration of passenger trains on the Cambridge to St Ives line. Large domestic and industrial developments have taken place along the route and the new housing on the Arbury Road Estate would make for increased usage at Histon and even warrant a new halt in the Kings Hedges area. A Parkway station should be built to serve the Sawston area and Meldreth become the boarding point for Kings Cross trains.

Mystery Kite purchase, p1
Andy's Records advert, p8
Crosvenor sheme approved, p16

1978 12 16
Mill Road Hospital closure, p1 & p5

1978 12 18
Kite plans, p6

1978 12 20
A disused Methodist chapel at Ashwell may be demolished. It had been hoped to use it for community purposes as by the end of the century people will have far more leisure. But in 25 years' time the cost of maintaining it would be prohibitive. It is 100 years old, and is unstable; being built of lime mortar the walls will not take any load. It will need listed building consent as it is in the conservation area and planners will have to be satisfied that what goes there will be suitable.

Overseas Students club, p8

1978 12 21
The northern bypass, described as a 'Christmas present to Cambridge' was officially opened at noon and then closed after police expressed reservations about the state of the nine-mile road and its interchanges. But as dusk was falling the barriers were pushed back and it was opened to the public. It includes one of the longest straight stretches of dual carriageway in the country and police asked drivers to get used to the road slowly. With the completion of the interchanges next year and the opening of the M11 Cambridge will have a road system surrounding it for which many other cities would give their eye-teeth

1978 12 22
A remarkable cross-section of the community gathered for the funeral service of a well-known Cambridge personality. There was a former Dean of Jesus College, a police superintendent, booksellers, shopkeepers, a solicitor, market traders and college staff. They heard an address and sang hymns. Then they exchanged reminiscences about the man whose service they were attending, paid tribute to his memory and went away. A regular occurrence in a town like Cambridge, perhaps. A distinguished academic or leading businessman had died, it might be thought. But this service was for a shabby old man with a beard of no fixed abode who had some 113 convictions mainly on drinking charges and who sat and drank in the city centre – Trevor Hughes.

Libraries editorial, p6
Bypass opens, p8

1978 12 23
The Secretary of State for the Environment has told Suffolk County Council that precedence will be given to the encouragement of new growth in Haverhill and that he will modify their strategic policy to encourage this. The council had also proposed to divide villages into three categories with different development control policies but he felt all should be helped to keep their identity and vitality and this was too restrictive. The first priority should be support for public transport, especially in the rural areas.

1978 12 28
The Golden Ball at Boxworth, a 13th-century free house, has been undergoing a period of improvements. There is a completely new bar carefully designed to blend in with the character of the building, which was originally a bakehouse; it uses sturdy oak beams from a barn roof at Wakering in Essex and involved the construction of areas of Tudor bricks traditional in herringbone style. Another team of craftsmen renewed the kitchen, cellar and toilet areas whilst keeping all three fully operational. The three donkeys who have established themselves firm favourites with the customers now have a specially designed stable with a thatched roof.

1978 12 30
Residents of Fishers Lane and High Street Orwell were surprised on Christmas Eve when each house received a bottle of sherry as a gift from a businessman from Dubai who moved into the village a few weeks before. He said: "It appears to be a genuine village with an established community and I need a quiet life here, away from business. Whatever this village needs I am prepared to help". His commercial interests include construction, property, hovercraft and broadcasting. He would like to build a country club like one he has in Dubai which would provide evening entertainment, Italian cuisine, a crèche and would be open in the afternoon for families.

Addenbrooke's Hospital closure, p1
Review year, p7

1978 12
Television reports of unidentified flying objects seen around the world, particularly over New Zealand, have led to many reports of UFOs in the Cambridge area. Sightings ranged from 'blue lights' in the sky to a 'trailing' cigar-shaped white plume. One sighting reported to the police turned out to be bright smoke from Barrington cement works chimney

1979 Cambridge Evening News

I have scanned pdf copies of any articles dated at end

January 1979 CEN

1979 01 02
Eldon Griffiths, the Conservative MP, has asked for East Anglia, and particularly Haverhill and Cambridge to be considered an area for building new 'silicon-chip' factories. It has a clean uncluttered environment with abundant 'greenfield' sites together with easy access via the modern ports of Ipswich and Felixstowe. There is a population with a high proportion of teenagers, especially in the 'overspill' towns, capable of being trained in the new techniques of the 'micro-chip' revolution. He cites an absence of obsolete buildings and embittered industrial relations that inhibit the introduction of modern machinery and a sturdy foundation for electronic-type development arising from companies such as Pye and world-famous university science departments.

1979 01 03
Cambridge University's most historic coffin covering in cloth of gold is to be moved back to Great St Mary's church. The sombre pall was paraded over an empty coffin nearly 500 years ago while dons offered prayers for the repose of the soul of King Henry VII. Following his death the hearse cloth continued to be used in requiems on the anniversary of his burial. It has been housed for many years in the Fitzwilliam Museum but will now be displayed under the same roof which Henry gave in 1505 when he ordered 100 oak trees to be felled at Chesterford to provide the wood.

1979 01 04
Kerridge liquidation, p1
Burwell Plough Monday, p9

1979 01 02 c
The renovation of Bridge House in Bridge Street, Cambridge has been commended by the Civic Trust. Judges say this skilful piece of restoration has conserved a valuable piece of Cambridge, where the scale of the existing buildings is a foil to the University buildings opposite. The County Council is praised for the extension to Sutton School with its rich brickwork, inventive windows in scale with child and adult alike and traditional compatible fenland materials. In Essex commendations go to Saffron Walden Library and Arts Centre and Thaxted Guildhall. But the new Evelyn Nursing Home in Trumpington Road, Cambridge has won the only full award in the region; the handsome building makes an immediate impact on the environment.

1979 01 06
Two more airlines have applied to develop European passenger and cargo services from Stansted airport. British Island Airways want to start scheduled passenger services to Paris, Frankfurt, Dublin and Zurich with cargo flights to Hanover and Milan. Air Anglia has also recently applied for new European routes and this would bring about a major development of Stansted from the charter and cargo field into passenger services. More than 21,000 passengers passed through the terminal in November

1979 01 08
Romsey Methodist Church in Mill Road, Cambridge will have its final service before closing down. The congregation will continue to worship in the nearby Diocesan Chapel in Romsey Terrace. After alterations it will reopen as a youth and community centre. The church buildings will become a gymnasium, the hall will remain a youth club and a coffee bar and social centre will be built onto the car park. It is also hoped to include a quiet room and tv den. The main users will be a playgroup, over-60s and youngsters. The scheme is being organised by five Cambridge churches.

1979 01 08
Cabinet Ministers have met to discuss how to handle the twin crises of the strikes by lorry and petrol tanker drivers which threaten to paralyse road traffic, halt industrial production and strip supermarket shelves of food. The fuel shortage is not yet affecting Eastern Counties bus services and British Sugar Corporation is continuing its sugar beet campaign at Ely which is not oil-fired. Farmers have expressed fears about feeding livestock after Cambridge lorry drivers voted to join the unofficial strike. The Transport and General Workers Union has been supporting the strike by provincial newspaper journalists by refusing to cross their picket lines with supplies of newsprint.

1979 01 08
After years of waiting Cambridge got its Northern By-pass at last a few days before Christmas. Four years ago, at the second public inquiry it was described as “urgently needed” and three years before that the council was saying that it was even then “already overdue”. It was needed to take traffic pressure off the congested city centre. Heavy goods lorries thundered through Cambridge day and night, destroying the environment and giving the drivers a difficult job. Then on December 21st in the twilight hours the barriers were pulled back and the road was officially, and then publicly opened. Already it has made life easier and quieter. – 79 01 08

1979 01 09
Crucial talks are being held to try to unravel Britain’s transport crisis. The immediate threat to fuel supplies has eased but there will be no evening bus services in Cambridge and Ely; Eastern Counties say this is the best way to conserve stocks so that most bus services could operate for as long as possible. Some supplies are still getting through to Ely sugar beet factor where farmers are taking their own crops in with tractors and trailers as road haulage drivers are not crossing picket lines.

1979 01 09
Charges at Cambridge car parks and parking meters are to rise. Prices will increase from 25p to 30p for an hour at Lion Yard and a day’s parking at Queen Anne Terrace will now cost 30p. Park Street will remain unchanged. Parking meter charges have not gone up since 1976 and will double to 10p, with the excess charge rising to £5. Increased use of the three central car parks is expected to bring an extra £15,000 next year but because of the rates forecast an extra £45,000 needs to be raised.

1979 01 11
Smart liquidation, p1

1979 01 12
James Street demolition, p1
Car park charges, p8

1979 01 13
The Government's East Anglian Emergency Committee, set up after the lorry drivers' strike became official has established a 'hot-line' telephone to give round-the-clock help to the public and industrialists. The drivers' union has agreed to give priority to the movement of livestock, solid fuel for schools and supplies to hospitals and old peoples' homes. Cambridge Co-op has appealed for customers to put out empty milk bottles for return because of difficulties of obtaining new ones. The dairy in Sleaford Street delivers about 100,000 bottles of milk daily.

1979 01 15
The first UK heart transplant operation outside London took place at Papworth Hospital. This is the fifth of its kind to be carried out in Britain. The operation lasted for seven hours and was conducted by a team of heart surgeons based at Papworth and Addenbrooke's led by Mr Terence English. Papworth hospital turned its attention to heart surgery in 1954 and more than 1,000 major heart operations have been carried out there in the last five years.

1979 01 16
Cambridge's northern by-pass is not a thing of beauty and has exposed the city's none-too-glorious backsides. Milton sewage works, the wrong end of the Arbury estate and a few dumping grounds that so far we have been able to conceal. For the local travelling along this stretch of dual carriageway is a new and rather bewildering experience. Coming at everything from an unfamiliar angle creates an impression that north Cambridgeshire as I knew it has been wiped off the map. The really beneficial effect was been the easing of the pressure on the Northampton Street / Castle Hill junction; five times I have passed through these usually overworked traffic lights with little delay. – 79 01 16

1979 01 16
The heart transplant operation at Papworth Hospital came within a month of the decision to close down its cardiac unit. The Regional Health Authority wants to start work on a new unit at Addenbrooke's Hospital because they say Papworth is inconveniently located and uneconomic in its running costs; a substantial range of improvements would be needed if it was to remain in use. The new cardiac unit at Hills Road would have 90 beds with operating theatres and support facilities. Work could begin in 1985

Rail strike, p1

1979 01 17
Lorry & schools strike, p1

1979 01 18
Cambridge dons gave over £10,000 last year to support student leisure activities. Thanks to their generosity undergraduates may soon be excelling in the art of throwing and catching the saucer-shaped Frisbee after the grant of £50 to launch a Cambridge University Frisbee Association. Other grants included £200 to the University Angling Society to enable the national student angling championships to be held near Cambridge. & £60 for the purchase of Hungarian dancing boots for the International Folk Dance Society

1979 01 18
Alan Biley, a free transfer from Luton less than four years ago, could now be worth a quarter of a million pounds to Cambridge United – and every goal sends his current transfer market value soaring still higher. United manager John Docherty this week dismissed a £175,000 bid from Norwich as ' ridiculous' after watching the 21-year-old striker finish a burst of seven goals in four games with his first hat-trick in the 5-0 hammering of Cardiff. Docherty has also turned down a £100,000 bid for 21-year-old newcomer, Derrick Christie who he bought from Northampton for £50,000 less than three months ago.

1979 01 19
Ambulance strike, p1
Monday strikes, p8

1979 01 20
Girton price rises, p7

1979 01 22
Thousands of schoolchildren got a surprise day off and others were without the regular meals service as the National Union of Public Employees strike bit hard throughout the county. All Newmarket schools were shut. Dustbins went unemptied and motorists were warned that no road gritting would be done. The striking council manual workers are demanding a shorter working week and a minimum £60-a-week wage.

Bus station plans, p6

1979 01 23
The railway line between Swavesey and Cambridge will be used for a passenger service on March 31st for the first time since its closure in 1971. Trains will call at Longstanton, Oakington and Histon – at least for one day. A special train is being organised by the Railway Development Society in conjunction with British Rail. It will leave Swavesey at 1pm and arrive at Cambridge an hour later, returning at 5.30 pm. The fare for adults will be about £1, children 75p and cycles free.

Strikes continue, p1

1979 01 24
Strikes, p1

1979 01 25
A Cambridge judge has hit out at the growing practice by people accused of minor drugs offences of opting for trial by jury. Cannabis possession was the kind of case that was dealt with only too frequently by magistrates and was not an issue that should be brought to higher courts. Judge David Wild was speaking after he sentenced a 17-year-old tailor who had been found guilty of possessing a tiny amount of cannabis in a tin during a police raid. He was fined £25 and ordered to pay £150 towards the costs of the prosecution. The case formed part of a campaign to establish certain technical defences to drugs charges.

1979 01 26
Two hundred people employed by Cambridge building firm R.H. Smart have lost their jobs. Work has ceased on the firm's major council housing jobs at King's Hedges, Arbury, where it contracted to build 214 houses and flats and employed 80 people. The firm began in 1960 as a plumbing business; it started on its first council housing contract in 1974 and took over Newmarket builders M. Carrick. Next year it had contracts worth £4 million to build 400 council houses

1979 01 26

Cambridge came to a halt early today in the worst traffic chaos for decades. Ungritted icy roads produced a nightmare tangle of cars and lorries which choked all man roads into the city for up to three hours. Dozens of car drivers abandoned their vehicles and walked into work and thousands of schoolchildren waited in vain for buses which failed to get further than the road outside the bus depot. The traffic only began to move again when council workers broke picket lines outside the Mill Road depot and brought gritting lorries back into action

1979 01 26
Attempts are being made by Cambridge's 'dirty jobs' strikers to close a number of city schools in support of their £60 a week minimum pay claim. Hundreds of workers are on strike. Householders are being urged to take their own refuse to the Coldham's Lane refuse tips as collections have been suspended indefinitely during the pay dispute. There were several minor accidents as drivers faced treacherous roads made worse by the overnight freeze and the supply of salt for roads is almost exhausted. Yesterday the Botanic Garden recorded 4½ inches of snow – the biggest fall since 1963.

1979 01 27
The doors of the Two Swans pub in Clarendon Street, Cambridge, may reopen – 67 years after they closed for the last time. 'Last orders' was called for good in 1912 and the pub was converted into a grocery and off-licence. Now Mr Percy Wing is hoping to change it back. The pub would keep its old name and be run as a free house. His wife said: "It would be something intimate, no music, no juke boxes, no darts – by doing this we can keep in touch with older as well as younger people who could come in for a cup of coffee. I think there are a lot of people who prefer coffee to a drink"

1979 01 29
Unemptied dustbins and plastic sacks full of refuse left on pavements outside Cambridge houses are becoming hazards to pedestrians. Some householders do not realise that the bins are not being collected because of the dustmen's strike and the City Surveyor has warned that technically it is an offence to leave the dustbins on the pavements. He is appealing to people to dump their rubbish either in the Coldham's Lane pits or on the 55 emergency dumping sites around the city.

Strike, p1

1979 01 31
The National Skating Association commemorated a hundred years of organised speed skating with a professional match at Bury Fen, Earith watched by 300 people. It was a Cambridge journalist, James Drake Digby, who set up the Association after he had covered the skating at Mepal during the great frost of 1878. He was so impressed by the achievements of the champion of the day, 'Fish' Smart of Welney that he determined to get rid of the cheating caused by heavy betting. He arranged a meeting in Cambridge Guildhall which led to the formation of the NSA with the Mayor as chairman and himself as secretary

1979 01 31
Smokers may be in line for another tax increase in this year's budget, but the Chancellor cannot touch 6,000 members of the Tilty Tobacco Curing Co-operative near Saffron Walden. Founded 30 years ago by a vicar raising funds for repairs in his church tower it is now run by his daughter from the Old Vicarage. More than 400 new members enrolled last year and applications are pouring in. While most smokers are paying around 60p for a packet of 20 – 50p of which goes in duty – the syndicate's members can produce fat cigars at 1p. each, 20 cigarettes for 7p and an ounce of taste pipe tobacco for less than 15p. There is no tax to pay as the group is non-profitmaking and all products are for members' own consumption

1979 01 31
"Commuter" criminals invading the countryside around Saffron Walden from the new motorway collected booty worth more than £500,000 last year. Almost every country house burglary can be blamed on carloads of London villains using the M11 to raid new territory say police. They come from the East End, Tottenham and over the borders into Kent and have often returned to their metropolitan dens before the crime has even been reported. Last year Cambridge police warned shops that London thieves with "shopping lists" of property they planned to steal would descend as soon as the M11 brought them within an hour of the city.

February 1979 CEN

1979 02 01
Cambridgeshire County Cricket Club reaches the end of an era with the retirement of Peter Taylor, who has served as player and administrator for 47 years. He made his Minor Counties debut in 1932 as a Downing College undergraduate and now, a retired Soham Grammar School master, he feels the time has come for a change. He read Geography and history at Cambridge University and played all three years against Oxford to win a Blue, but that was at soccer. But he played for Cambridgeshire as a batsman for a number of years before earning a reputation as a swing bowler – 79 02 01

1979 02 02
The old Rex Cinema and ballroom in Magrath Avenue Cambridge which has been a source of controversy among nearby residents is now owned by Cambridgeshire County Council who paid £33,000 for it at auction. The building has been almost derelict since the Abbey Sports and Social Club closed in October 1973. The exact future of the site has yet to be decided but it will extend the present facilities at the Shire Hall

Queens' charge, p1, p7
Floods, p1

1979 02 05
The best place to be during the current strike by members of the Public Services union is tucked up in bed in new Addenbrooke's Hospital. Those outside are at the mercy of a skeleton ambulance service, ever-growing waiting lists and a soon-to-be crippled out-patients service. Those inside simply have to put up with a reduced menu and eating off paper plates. At this time of the year it is normally at bursting-point with about 86 per cent occupancy but on Friday there were 150 beds at both new and old hospitals empty. The real suffering is in the homes of the 3,500 people waiting for operations. Waiting lists vary from about six months from gynaecological to 18 months for general surgery

1979 02 06
Expansion plans for Robert Sayle's shopping complex in the centre of Cambridge were supported by the City Council's controlling Conservatives who say the extensions will improve shopping facilities and bring much needed car parking space into the city centre. But Labour says the extra cars would cause traffic problems and in any case the centre of Cambridge should not be put up for sale. Sayle's want to extend their shop floor space facing Lion Yard and provide more than 100 public and private parking spaces. It would benefit city traders and motorists alike

1979 02 09
Kite derelict house, p12

1979 02 12
Two hundred Iranian students made Cambridge demonstration history when they knelt on Parker's Piece, preyed and recited from the Koran. In what is thought to be the first political demonstration starting with a mass prayer ritual on improvised prayer mats covering the wet turf, the Muslims called upon Allah to bless the efforts of the Ayatollah Khomeini to establish a republic in Iraq based on Koranic law. They then marched to the Market Square. No incidents were reported though some confusion existed among Saturday shoppers, knowing it was the first day of Rag Week. But the slogans "Death to the Shah" and "Long live Khomeini" soon dispelled their doubts. – 79 02 12

1979 02 12

Generations of courting couples in Fulbourn are mourning the loss of a stately elm known as 'The Bird Tree' which has succumbed to Dutch Elm Disease. It stood in a hedgerow on the Babraham side of the village near Doggett Lane & was a meeting point for hundreds of couples. But despite its role in the marriage game no one was admitting to its place as a secret witness to their romantic dreams. "Of course I know that tree well and so do hundreds of others, but I don't want to be named and I'm not splitting on my friends" said one elderly resident.

1979 02 12
Sometime during the night of July 17th last year a one-inch fuel pipe running under Mildenhall air base fractured. It was only a small leak but it is only now that the disturbing consequences have become apparent. The fuel threatened a water bore hole that served the whole of Ely and Littleport and an emergency water pipe had to be laid. Although the pipeline is on an American air base, the British taxpayers will pay the bill which is likely to be in the region of half a million pounds – 79 02 12

1979 02 13
Coypu, p9

1979 02 14
As Britain faced yet another day of icy chaos with more bitterly cold weather on the way, the Army was making plans to move in and clear snowbound roads, said the 'Snow Minister', Mr Denis Howell. In Cambridgeshire workmen battled to clear some of the worst snowfalls, 179 snowploughs and diggers are out but salt stocks are reaching a critical level. Seven weather-hit coach passengers were put up at Parkside police headquarters; they were given mattresses and bedded down in the gym. But there has been a sudden cut back in crime figures; even burglars and thieves are staying at home

1979 02 14
Cambridge' University's historic seat of government, the Senate House, has been closed to dons and sightseers after a lump of plaster dropped from the 200-year-old ceiling, regarded as the most ornate in the city. Although it only measured 18 inches by six there is no doubt that it would have given anyone a nasty clout, falling from that height. Building experts are worried because they can find no obvious cause for the fall and a minute inspection is to be undertaken for any fissures which might indicate damage elsewhere. One problem worrying dons is that certificates for the next official degree ceremony have already been printed stating they were conferred in the Senate House.

Midwives at breaking point, p9

1979 02 15
Two hundred workers at Pye Engineering Services will lose their jobs when the firm closes this summer. The company designs and manufactures press, tools, jigs, fixtures and special purpose machines and closure is blamed on the lack of demand due to changes in technology and product types. It started in 1946 as a small engineering shop with a dozen workers and at its peak employed 350 people. But large losses have been made annually and two years ago 130 workers were put on a three-day week because of a collapse in sales.

1979 02 16
Police computer, p10
Blizzard, p1, 14

1972 02 17
University degrees Gt St Mary's, p6

1979 02 19
Bus driver, p5

1979 02 20
Ashley is to lose the ducks which have made their home on the village pond for as long as anyone can remember. The wild mallards have to go because they are eating all the plants and silting up the pond with their droppings. The pond has between 18 to 30 ducks on it although the water area is only big enough to support about four. At the moment it looks very unhealthy and if something is not done soon it will begin to smell like a sewer, say the Parish Council. Now the Ashley Pond Preservation Society has decided to move the ducks to somewhere with more water.

1979 02 21
Willingham church paintings, p5

1979 02 22
As the rubbish collectors' strike continues it seems we are a tidy lot. Those now familiar piles of black shiny plastic have been kept in excellent order. A few 'hot tips' have burst into flames but as the strike goes on each dump begins to acquire a character of its own. At Arbury Court the residents' loyalty to the Beehive supermarket gives the tip a distinctive orange glow, but it is piled up against the side of the men's' lavatories, blocking the air vents. In Glebe Road loose potato peelings and carrot tops spoil a tidy dump but probably the worst is the one in Nuffield Road. – 79 02 22

1979 02 26
A group of Cambridge firemen left Parkside on board the old Rolls Royce-engined turntable ladder which is bowing out of service after 29 years to make way for an up-to-date replacement. They are making a round trip to Penrith, the factory where her engines were built, to raise money for charity. During her years of service she had been at the scene of major fires such as that at the Garden House Hotel and, more recently, the Talk of the Town.

1979 02 26
One of the longest-serving landlords in Cambridge is Noel Archdeacon and his wife Hannah Mae of the Cow and Calf public house on Pound Hill. They are particularly well-known to their Irish regulars, several of whom were customers at their two previous Cambridge pubs, both of which have disappeared. The Britannia in East Road was demolished years ago and The Swan in Norfolk Street is now a private house. Their present pub has belatedly had a complete internal facelift and now has one large lounge where there is plenty of room for the new pool table.

Tips cleared, p1

1979 02 27
The long-awaited scheme for adding a community centre complex to the Mill Road public library in Cambridge has been given the go-ahead. It aims to inject new life into the old building which had been in danger of closure. But this sparked a furious row and after intensive public pressure the county council relented and agreed the refurbishing and extension plan as a way of keeping the building open, reducing costs and keeping everybody happy. It will become a blue-print for other dual-use projects

1979 02 27
More than 120 people packed Haverhill Town Hall to overwhelmingly support a proposal to get a cinema for the town. The room was packed solid with people, at least half of them teenagers and many others left because they could not squeeze inside. Since the Playhouse cinema was taken over by a bingo hall seven years ago people have had to pay £1.30 for a return bus ticket to Cambridge and take a chance of catching it home if they watched until the end of the film. A cinema would help solve their problems with young people.

1979 02 27
Controversy surrounds plans to pull down seven large Victorian houses in Bateman Street and build a modern language school. The properties are 'bed-sit' houses used for student accommodation and too large to be used as family homes; they are not particularly distinguished houses and do not justify sentimentality. Residents have petitioned against the scheme but it is now more a barracks than a street, only 11 of the present residents lived there three years ago. The new school would give better facilities to foreign students planning to become bank clerks or hotel receptionists who pay fees of £19 a week – 79 02 27

1979 02 28
Soon nearly 5,000 people will spend a few hours in Cambridge drinking, eating and dancing their way through £100,000 at the May Balls. This year the tickets are going to be more expensive than ever. A double ticket with dinner at Magdalene will set you back £50.40, which is enough to burn a sizeable hole in any student grant. Queen's college, which charges 38 guineas with dinner, has become well known for its 'extras' – cabarets, helter skelters, fireworks and such like. It is a far cry from the 1948 ball – the first on record at the college - when the tickets were a mere seven guineas and entertainment was limited to Mr Geoffrey Howarth's band which played 'sweet and strict tempo' music with no attempt at 'hot swing'. – 79 02 28

March 1979 CEN

1979 03 01
Ely shops, p15

1979 03 02
Saffron Walden planners have proposed a series of controversial suggestions to tackle problems facing the centre of the town which is under attack from heavy traffic and commercial pressures for redevelopment. They include banning traffic from the market and King Street, a new one-way route, ripping out offending ugly buildings and wide-spread tree planting. Garages are offensive in the historic heart and must go, they say. Some of the ideas, like putting a bell tower on top of Hepworths to strengthen the King Street sky-line, take some swallowing. The report will provoke lively and heated debate

City library protest, p6
Stapleford hum, p17

1979 03 05
Frankie Vaughan, one of Britain's most durable superstars, has fans of all ages but most of those attending his concert in Cambridge Sports Hall seemed to be middle-aged. His costume was immaculate, with white dress shirt and trousers and a black jacket with white trimmings and his top hat and cane were a cue for him to sing his signature tune 'Give Me The Moonlight …' His middle-aged admirers swooned with delight and squealed with joy whenever he stabbed out one of those characteristic high kicks. He made it a special occasion for Mr & Mrs Philip Staines of Ely, who were celebrating their 24th wedding anniversary, by dedicating a song to them

1979 03 05
The closure of the Allied Bakeries' plant in Sleaford Street, Cambridge with the loss of 200 jobs means the end of bread making on a site which was poised to celebrate its golden anniversary. For a long time it was owned by the Cambridge Wholesale Society until it sold its interest in the sixties to F.W. French. In 1971 it became part of Spillers but last April they sold off this side of their business and Allied British Foods moved in. They gave a guarantee of a year's employment provided there were no disruptions but when the bakers went on strike the plant stood idle for many weeks. It has operated at a loss from then on.

1979 03 05
The Mayor of Cambridge, Coun Alec Molt, faced 300 chanting cyclists outside the Guildhall and signed their petition demanding better provision for cyclists. The demonstration began with a lecture on road safety and bike maintenance by the police, then led by a Panda car, they took at 15-minute tour of the city centre streets before returning to Peas Hill to hear councillors' views. Their priorities include cycle lanes on the Huntingdon & Madingley Roads and a contra-flow cycle lane in Downing Street.

1979 03 06
People needing to call the police automatically telephone their village station but it is economically impossible to staff them round the clock. Now police have installed answer-phones and are putting phones outside rural stations so personal callers can contact the divisional headquarters. They are also to spend nearly £400,000 on new equipment including 24 VHF hand-held radios at £400 each which increase transmission distances from the present half-mile radius to around four miles – useful for anything from standard radar speed checks to CIP special operations

1979 03 06
Ten years ago one household telephone and a bleeper machine represented the worldly goods of the Cambridge Medical Answering Service which handled about 80 calls a months. Today it has hardware worth around £100,000 and it takes eight nurses working in shifts to process the 120,000 calls a year. The service started because one family doctor at Bottisham, Neville Silverston, found that if he and his wife wanted to go out anywhere they needed not only a baby sitter but also a phone-sitter. "It was always the GP's wife who handled the calls when he was out. Now we have this wonderful harem who do this extraordinary job. We get messages more quickly and the patients get attention more quickly", he said. – 79 03 06

1979 03 07
A new double-decker bus station in the centre of Cambridge is being proposed by County traffic experts. Buses would wait only long enough to set down and take up passengers and long-distance buses would run from elsewhere in the city. This one of several options to sort out the chaos of Drummer Street. Others include expanding on to Christ's Pieces, re-siting it to the Kite area or adjacent to the railway station. For years the bus station has been the subject of intensive criticism because of its lack of facilities and poor conditions. Now councillors have made it a priority.

New pylons, p10

1979 03 09
At 8.30 am every morning of the week 70 drug users queue up in Cambridge to collect some of the most dangerous drugs available – heroin and methadone. The drugs are waiting for them in little white packets. They cart them off to the nearest public lavatory or to their flats or squats and shoot it up their arms. Not all go into their own arms. Preying on the registered addicts is a wider circle of drug users who will pay high prices for the stuff. They wait in the streets around the chemists. They call on the junkies at home. They drink in the same pubs, live in the same houses. Gradually they too become hooked. – 79 03 09

1979 03 09
In theory the Cambridge Drugs Clinic has a lot of control over its registered drug addicts. In practice it often has very little. Once registered with the clinic in Lensfield Road the only obligation on the junkie is that he turns up for regular consultation with one of the doctors. That amounts to a few minutes once a fortnight. The clinic's work is hampered by lack of money: it comes within the general budget of the psychiatric clinic it shares a building with. It serves a vast area, from Felixstowe to Bedford; apart from its head there are just three part-time doctors and twos social workers, which according to DHSS recommendations is only enough for 50 patients. – 79 03 09

1979 03 14
At the university's new music school in West Road you will hear a sound possibly unique in the history of music making. It is an orchestra of string instruments all made by one violinmaker and her apprentices. She is Juliet Barker, founder of the 'Cambridge School' of violin making and her apprentices are the doctors, vicars, housewives and students who have attended her evening classes at the Cambridge Tech since 1960. Between them they have turned out some 50 violins, 35 violas, 12 cellos and a violone. A violin takes the average student three years to make and when finished fetches around £750.

1979 03 14
The 600-plus parking meters in the centre of Cambridge may be scrapped as one of the options for helping to sort out traffic chaos. But if they continue the city council is backing a 67 per cent increase in all meter charges because they are facing a £12,000 loss due to increased pay for the traffic wardens. Councillors are also considering residents' parking schemes to meet mounting demand for this facility. They may also provide the city's first cycle lane along the Huntingdon Road from Girton College to Murkett's Corner.

1979 03 15
Girton could become the place for an experiment in rubbish collection – the first of its kind in the country. The idea for a trial run of a new system comes from a German firm with plans to open up the British market. So far only South Cambs District Council has shown any interest in the service which means plastic bins on wheels for householders and special lorries. Meanwhile they are to order three million plastic rubbish sacks after hearing that the cost may double by next year

1979
Cambridge councillors may scrap their plans for building a camping and touring caravan site at Impington. Because there is so much commercial competition they are being recommended to establish a small camp nearer the city centre for campers arriving without their own transport and carrying their packs on their backs, some of whom currently camp on the commons or along the Backs. Such a site need not be widely publicised but if known to the police, park custodians and the tourist office it would prevent possible nuisance or annoyance elsewhere

1979 03 15
The old court house at Bottisham, which until recently housed the county's unit for disruptive schoolchildren, will soon be up for sale. 'Whitebeams' was used as an out-of-school centre for children needing special supervision but the centre has now moved to Romsey. Now the County Council has been granted permission for change of use for it to be lived in again.

1979 03 15
It will be at least five years before the Central Electricity Generating Board makes up its mind on whether to build a new power station at Denver. Engineers have pointed out that any scheme which tunnelled water to the site from the coast could cost nearly twice the £45 million at present allowed for the project. Anglian Water Authority is worried about whether it will have enough water to meet the board's needs; using salt water could produce technical problems. The Denver site is suitable either for an oil, coal-fired or even a nuclear station, but is not being considered for the advanced reactor type. It is not likely to be started until the completion of Sizewell in Suffolk

ADC costs, p16

1979 03 16
Sir Harry Godwin, the University's Emeritus Professor of Botany who has spent his entire academic career in Cambridge, attended a special dedication of the new Godwin Laboratory on the New Museums Site. It is the base of the Department of Quartenary Research which he established in the 1940s, where experts in many fields are helping to build up a picture of the world's history. The information allows them to model climatic changes which help predict long-term modern weather trends.

Good food, p9
Bus station move, p10
Fen Link plea, p15

1979 03 20
Milford Docks Air Services Ltd has been operating an Executive aircraft charter service at Cambridge airport since 1977 offering rapid transport to their executives throughout the UK and Europe to the expanding industrial and technological business community locally. While charter flying will never be 'cheap', in many cases if four or five travel together, it is actually cheaper than scheduled airline fares and it is becoming increasingly common for secretaries to be included in a group at no extra cost, resulting in a far more successful business conference.

1979 03 21
Opposition to a bid by Pye of Cambridge to sell about six acres of land near their Cathodeon Crystals factory at Linton for 50 to 60 houses came to a head at a planning inquiry. The site is lying derelict and there was no prospect of it being developed as a factory extension because of difficulties in getting the right kind of skilled labour. It is surrounded by housing with schools and shopping conveniently near. A high proportion of their local employees came from the village but a lot had to be bussed in. Planners originally thought Pye might make the land available for council housing but their decision to redevelop has upset the Parish Council

1979 03 22
Two-thirds of the people who applied to Cambridge City Council for help stating they were homeless made false claims. Intensive investigations show that only 72 out of 222 qualified as homeless. Of them only 49 were the direct responsibility of the council and they were housed. The rest were mainly young single people – some with children. One thousand new council houses are needed by 1982 and 2,000 by 1988 and councillors decided that council house tenants can now only buy the house they have lived in after two years, instead of after 12 months as previously.

1979 03 28
The owner of a marina at Upware has complained to the Price Commission about new registration charges being introduced by the Anglian Water Authority. They have increased by more than 300 per cent for owners of larger boats and make boating once again a sport for the rich. Medium length boats will cost £24 instead of £10 every year. The charges have forced a St Neots pensioner to put his cruiser up for sale after more than 50 years. "I have worked out that I will have to pay 400 per cent more in boat registration charges. All I want is to be able to sit on it and do a bit of fishing", he said.

Wesley House, p10

1979 03 29
The heads of two Cambridge schools are picking up the pieces after a week of violence in which pupils were assaulted and rival gangs tore through playgrounds. Mr Oliver Gaggs head of the Manor and Mr Tony Newall head of Chesterton School feel that schools are being asked to assume and day-and-night responsibility of their pupils which they cannot achieve. Mr Newall said; "Raids between schools have always taken place. In a way it's nice to know that they identify with the school and there is an honour which they want to protect. It's a pity that the methods are so misguided."

1979 03 29
Lovers of good homecooked food can satisfy their appetite at a Cambridge museum, health food bar, coffee house or riverside pub according to the new Egon Ronay 'Just a Bite' guide. Accolades go to the Fitzwilliam Museum coffee room (home-made quiche and salad, 70p), the Fort St George pub (cottage pie 73p), Martha's Coffee House (steak and kidney pie and veg 85p) and Nettles (dish of the day 70p)

1979 03 29
Cambridge comes out poorly in the new 'Good Food Guide'; two entries are dropped leaving the city with just one restaurant, the 'unusually suave' Peking Chinese Restaurant in Burleigh Street, and one pub, the Fort St George. Out go the Strudel's Restaurant in Fitzroy Street and the Golden Palace

Chinese restaurant in Ely together with the Eagle in Bene't Street and the Plough at Coton. Old favourites which retain their rating include the Old Fire Engine House at Ely, the Old Bridge Hotel Huntingdon and the Hotel de la Poste, Swavesey. The Pink Geranium at Melbourn gets the humbler 'Pass' rating.

1979 03 31
Rail strike, p1

April 1979 CEN

1979 04 02
There isn't much left of Swavesey station. The station house and offices are all gone, leaving just a few broken seats and a creeper-covered shelter to accommodate the traveller. The railway line which goes through to St Ives was shut to passengers on 3rd October 1970. Now the only trains to use it carry freight and aggregates from Fen Drayton, and oranges to Chivers' factory at Histon. But on Saturday a 'special' was chartered from British Rail by the Cambridge Rail Action Group which wants to see passenger services restored. Every single ticket was sold within five days and nobody complained when the train was a little late arriving and Swavesey Brownies were busy brewing up coffee for any day-trippers

1979 04 02
The centre of Cambridge is well off for parking space. There are 600 spaces on the Lion Yard multi-decker, a slightly smaller number at Park Street and substantial parking at New Square. Then there are more than 500 meters dotted around. But during peak periods these are barely enough and queues build up at the park entrances. Motorists complain it is not easy to reach the city centre since King's Parade was severely restricted to through traffic. At first shopkeepers feared virtual bankruptcy but now even the most 'anti' tradesman is happy with the result – an increase in trade.

1979 04 03
A flash of lightning caused thousands of pounds worth of damage at Pidley; as it hit a tree the blast shattered dozens of windows in nine cottages and blew in a cottage door. A young man working near a dike was thrown into the water by the shock and children coming home from school had a narrow escape as the flash struck only yards from the bus shelter where their coach stopped seconds later. The Mad Cat public house was among the buildings damaged when most of the front windows were smashed.

1979 04 04
Cambridge United hope to double the size of their main grandstand, adding another 1,800 seats to the Abbey Stadium. Subject to planning permission work on the shell of the stand, extending the existing grandstand the length of the pitch, will start this summer. But whether they put in the seats will depend on the demand for season tickets. United have switched their attention to the main stand following the failure to obtain a Sports Council grant to extend the Hibbin stand into a sports complex

1979 04 05
Cambridge City Council's scheme of building houses for sale to its tenants or people on the housing list has proved a great success. More than 150 couples applied to buy the 24 two and three-bedroomed houses which the council are completing at Walpole Road and selling for £10 - £12,000. Nearly 300 people have asked to buy the 300 houses being built by a private company in a joint scheme next to the council's King's Hedges estate. These range from one-bedroom flats at around £10,000 to three-bedroomed detached houses at £25,000. During the past two years the council has sold nearly 300 of its houses to tenants.

1979 04 06
The human skeleton crisis which hit Cambridge medical students is now over and there are enough bones to go around. Most of the bones are imported from India and an export clamp-down led to shortages and rising prices. Students found the cost of half a skeleton prohibitive at £70. An Australian firm offered to supply skeletons but these turned out to be more expensive. Now the University Medical Society has bought up a consignment of 40 'old' skeletons from Bristol University. They came on the market because the Bristol school was replacing its bones with new ones and they have been able to supply 'second hand' skeletons to students at around £50 each.

1979 04 06
House building in South Cambridgeshire has already overtaken the forecasts. County planners are worried that present restrictions might give way under the increasing demand for new housing from commuters, especially with the plans to electrify the London rail link and the completion of the latest section of the M11. But although the number of applications for planning permission has increased sharply this is matched by a corresponding increase in the refusal rate. The biggest contribution to the housing total has been from people taking up old planning permissions before they expire

1979 04 07
Thousands of 'golden oldie' singles were destroyed in a fire that swept through the 'Remember Those Oldies' record shop in Cambridge – claimed to be the only one of its kind in East Anglia. In the four years since it opened a massive stock of records from the 1950s and 1960s had been built up and because they are specialist items there is little chance of replacing them

1979 04 09
Cambridge squatters protested as demolition men moved into James Street and started breaking up roofs and floors in some houses. This follows a court decision granting the council possession of seven houses where squatters claimed they had a licence to stay. The team of contractors arrived early in the morning and started on an empty house with pick axes; gas, water and electricity engineers also got to work. Police stood by as the confused squatters gathered in the street outside. Protestors say the council should never have acquired the houses in the first place. They were never used, allowed to stand empty for 20 years and became derelict. The squatters have actually tried to save them from demolition. Now Cambridge is to lose a Victorian street, probably unique in the country, with its small modest houses and shops.

1979 04 09
A fresh attempt is to be made to demolish the 17th century family home of Cambridgeshire M.P. Mr Francis Pym, at Hazells Hall, Sandy. The house dates from about 1640 but was extensively altered during the reign of George II and passed into the ownership of the Pym family in the 18th century. It was used by the RAF during the war to house to train secret agents flown out from nearby Tempsford Airfield and was a hospital annex until 1968. But it has been unoccupied and vandalised during the last 11 years and would cost at least £330,000 to restore. The plan is to knock down the main hall leaving the walls just above ground level, retaining the outline of the building for local historical record. The coach wing is to be converted into two cottages.

Conservation zones

1979 04 10
Sir David Renton retired from Parliament after nearly 34 years representing the interests of his constituents in Huntingdonshire, having been returned 10 times since 1945. It is as a backbencher that he feels he has done the most good rather than his three stints as a Junior Minister, first at the Ministry of Fuel and Power, then at the Home Office under R.A. Butler. He sees his greatest achievement as the Renton Report, which suggested ways of improving the drafting of bills. He is also proud of pioneering work on birth control and his last question in the House related to the provision of family planning on the National Health Service. Now he wants to concentrate on his role as a Treasurer of Lincoln's Inn and his work for handicapped children. – 79 04 10

1979 04 11
Caravan site, p4

Shopping, p5

1979 04 12
Great St Mary's Church in Cambridge renewed a 450-year Royal association when an intricately embroidered gold cloth was transferred from the Fitzwilliam Museum. It was used in commemoration services for Henry VII and had been given five years before his death to ensure requiems were to be said in his memory so he would be held in good favour when the Day of Judgement came. The last important appearance of the cloth was during a visit by Elizabeth I when it was carried over her head as a canopy. After 1790 it went missing for nearly 150 years before it was rediscovered in 1929. It took eight strong men to lift the huge display catafalque on to a removal lorry and trundle it down the street to its original home.

1979 04 12
A new building jutting into the Cambridge skyline from the top of Castle Hill has filled in the city's largest hole. The site was to have been used for the De Vere Hotel but after several planning applications were rejected the firm pulled out and the hole was left. Then came plans for a complex of shops, a petrol station, a bank, offices and maisonettes but each scheme failed. The site is now being developed as a 42,000 sq ft office building though the project has not gone without a hitch. The first Cambridge builders folded and the developers had to find another firm in a hurry. All they have to do now is to let the place -–and there are many who say that Cambridge is overstocked with offices already.

Rushbridger award, p1
Judge Stevenson, p21
Cambridge Arms loo, p23

1979 04 17
Extra drinking hours, p9

1979 04 18
The bells at Clavering parish church will not come crashing down after all. The six bronze bells, dating from 1830 could have been silenced forever because the four beams that supported them were rotten and decayed. They could have fallen at any time since last summer and have been silent while repair work was carried out. Now the parochial church council has decided that a £6,000 restoration should be started while fund-raising efforts are staged. Mr Allan Simpson, one of the team of eight bell ringers at the 14th century church said that if work had not started the bells would have been condemned.

1979 04 18
The past two years have been a bad time for thatch fires in North West Essex, and not all of them were arson. Now planners are worried at the fast rate at which thatched roofs are being replaced and are warning that they may be on the way to extinction. Owners face two heavy expenses: the cost of renewing thatch can cost up to £3,000 and the annual insurance premiums can be eight times that charged for a house with tiles or slates. In addition they fear for the safety of their families because of the fire risk.

1979 04 19
Behind the rather grim exterior of Haverhill with its rows of terraced houses and overspill estate there's a bright new shopping centre. The extra-large Sainsbury's in Jubilee Walk stocks everything from glasses to freezer food & means you can buy all the groceries without the hassle of traffic jams and queues that are all too common in Cambridge. And there are a number of other supermarkets so there's lots of opportunities to shop around for the best quality and price. Glasswell's £1 million shopping centre which opened last September gives the town its main furniture and carpet shop. During the week the town is fairly quiet – early closing is on Wednesday – but there is free car parking. The bus journey from Cambridge takes an hour and costs 65p for a single journey.

1979 04 20
Housing problem, p14

1979 04 21
Lottery, p6

1979 04 23
A new row has divided the villagers of Haslingfield. After the path that went nowhere, the pavilion which 'cost too much' and the rifle range which half the village didn't want, there's now the muddy meadow controversy. The Parish Council bought Well House Meadow in the centre of the village for £6,000 in 1976. The land, which contains a recently –renovated 17th-century well house, was intended as an additional play area but a large part has been fenced off and let as grazing land. Villagers claim the ground has been churned up and is useless as a play area. Now someone has erected barbed wire over the public entrance and the row has assumed the proportions of village guerrilla warfare

1979 04 25
The cutting of the first turf at Huntingdon's Stukely Meadows industrial estate heralds a major victory for supporters of commercial growth in the town. The first stage of building will be 12 'mini factories'. Many established firms have been in the town for a decade. At Specialised Mouldings the marketing manager said "Huntingdon offers a pleasant semi-rural environment and is an attractive place for employees and their families". Many of them moved with the firm from South London in 1967 and in 1969 the company doubled its factory space.". One of the biggest employers is the Silent Channel factory which provides jobs for about 400 people working on products such as car window channels and window seals. It was established in Huntingdon in 1936 and finds the location ideal, being close to places like Dagenham.

1979 04 26
Midas air taxis, p9

1979 04 27
The home of Henry 'Jock' Hall has always been easy to pick out by the sign above the front door reading 'University Chimney Sweep". Now it has been left in not-so-splendid isolation amongst the demolition rubble of what was once a row of terraced houses in James Street, Cambridge. The innards of neighbouring houses hang from the outside walls and the dust gets everywhere. Even a sweep and his wife, used to dealing with sooty grime, cannot help noticing it. The rest of the houses were occupied by squatters who were thrown out when the demolition workers moved in. – 79 04 27

1979 04 27
What is claimed to be the largest cycle shop in Cambridge, with a stock of thousands of new and used machines has opened on the corner of East Road and Norfolk Street. The new shop – 'Thakes – the Cycle King' – is the fourth in a rapidly-growing string owned by Nick Thake who calls himself 'the 27-year-old work maniac'. His other shops are in the London suburban and Southend areas. It will offer discounts of up to 50 per cent with a guarantee of rapid service and total satisfaction and also specialise in finding parts for very old cycles or obscure foreign makes.

Melbourn electronic diary, p11

1979 04 28
Cambridge Arms toilets, p7

1979 04 30
A modern five-bedroomed detached house at Whittlesford has become the regional headquarters of the Moonies, the cult sect said to brainwash teenagers while contributing to its leader's £7 million fortune. Hundreds of homes have received literature and many have had personal visits from members who claim they are a Christian organisation. Neighbours say they hold late-night meetings at which speeches by the Rev Myung Chung are played on tape recorders, complete with mass applause and that they are woken early each morning by the sound of chanting and clapping. The 'Rev' Sun Moon visited Cambridge last summer as part of a big conversion drive that included flying massed Moonie brass bands into the city. – 79 04 30

1979 04 30
The 1,800 villagers of Duxford have lost their tiny branch surgery, despite a petition calling for its retention. Now they have to go to Sawston. Doctors say that the old days when the doctor was a comforter and father figure handing out bottles of red medicine have passed and the higher standards of modern medicine depend on tests and examinations which cannot be carried out at a branch surgery. Other surgeries have closed recently in Barton and Barrington while a question mark hangs over those at Great Chesterford and Elmdon. At Soham Health Centre there are minibuses to bring patients in from neighbouring villages and this might be arranged for Duxford.

May 1979 CEN

1979 05 01
The garage, television and radio business run at Sawston by a former Battle of Britain pilot, Frank Vindis, is a high-flying concern. He first opened his small garage nearly 20 years ago and became an agent for Volkswagen and Audi cars, selling 400 new vehicles last year. The radio and television side of the business is booming as well. But space for further developments around his High Street premises is running out and he may reluctantly have to start looking in other villages to cope with the rapid expansion of trade.

1979 05 01
Cambridge University Radio has on the air after months of delay. Broadcasting from a studio at Churchill College started with news taken from London Independent Radio and was followed by local items prepared by students. At the controls - slotting in their own jingles between records and other programmes – was the radio enthusiasts' chairman, Mr Simon Cooper of Queens' College. At present reception is confirmed to the college but they hope to expand to Fitzwilliam and Jesus as soon as examinations are over. National radio DJs were amongst the guests at a celebration party.

1979 05 01
If you own a Ford Cortina, especially if it has a 'G' or 'H' registration, there is a better than even chance that a thief has his eye on it: police say it is the most commonly stolen car of all the hundreds of different models on the roads today. Cambridge with its multi-storey car parks and scattered off-street parking makes for rich pickings. It is nothing for half a dozen to go over any given weekend. They are easy to break into with their simple lever-lock mechanism and the 1968 and 1969 models are easiest of all. The car thief only has to carry five keys and at least one will fit.

1979 05 02
Bourn pub, p12

1979 05 03
Tesco's plans to expand their Bar Hill superstore have been turned down. The scheme to almost double the size of the two-year-old store was rejected after objections from the Parish Council and a residents' association. They say Bar Hill had been intended as a village and should not be made to house a massive structure which destroyed the environment. A hypermarket was normally put in the middle of nowhere so it could not disturb anyone

1979 05 08
Kite scheme, p1

1979 05 10
Cambridge United's close-season glamour tour to Fiji and New Zealand has been called off. Doubts started about the month-long tour when their Football Association backed out from having United. When club chairman, Mr David Ruston, telephoned the tour company he found the person he had been dealing with was on his way to New Zealand – with Norwich City. Tour operators have been desperately trying to find alternative games in Australia but have been unable to make definite arrangements. Players, who have put off holidays because of the trip, say it is a big letdown

1979 05 11
Cambridge scientists investigating light beam communication fear much of the new technology may be lost abroad. Some of the first major applications of fibre optics will be in the telephone networks and cable television. It will be possible to distribute newspapers and journals directly to the home with small printers, introduce electronic mail, receive television programmes, sports coverage and films by subscription: the scope is endless. But Mike Brookfield of Cambridge Consultants says that unless extra funding is provided the market will become completely dominated by Japan and the United States.

1979 05 12
It is costing the Pye Group £1.3 million to close two factories and meet redundancy payments for those thrown out of work. They are Pye Engineering Services in Cambridge, which closes next month with the loss of 200 jobs, and Pye Ether of Stevenage. It is also closing Pye TMC's factory at Livingstone, Scotland. The profits of Pye Telecom – the largest single earner – were hit by competition from major international suppliers but the Business Communications side had a good order book and Pye Unicam orders were 20 per cent up. Sales of the Labgear television Teletext adaptor were initially disappointing but are showing a marked improvement.

1979 05 14
Wartime memories came flooding back to the ex-servicemen who strolled across Witchford airfield. A giant hangar here, a derelict office there, and bits of crumbling runway everywhere: all helped them to remember the days when four-engined Lancaster bombers rumbled off the airfield on bombing runs to Germany. Other colleagues were at the nearby Shoulder of Mutton pub, supping pints & swapping yards. All were members of 115 squadron who had returned for reunion celebrations

1979 05 15
Princess Margaret made an unscheduled walk to one of Cambridge's oldest churches, St Peter's on Castle Hill. It followed her visit the University's Gallery of Modern Art at Kettle's Yard, which was opened by Prince Charles in his undergraduate days. She saw a model of the proposed extensions which if approved would double the exhibition space and provide refreshment facilities for the public. Later, at her own request, she saw a class of medical students at work in the University Department of Physiology.

1959 05 17
Don McKay, p15

1979 05 18
Niggling away in the minds of 1,500 people who work at the Cambridge Instrument Company and at Sinclair Radionics at St Ives is the question: "Will we still be here next week?" The two companies are part of the National Enterprise Board without whose contributions of public money both would certainly have gone to the wall in the last three years. Now Mrs Thatcher's new man for industry, Sir Keith Joseph is planning to restrict the NEB's activities. Sinclair's history has been one of total innovation. It was the first in the field with a pocket-sized electronic calculator, it made an all-new digital watch – plagued with technical problems - and the world's smallest television with a two-inch screen. But it made a £2 million loss last year. Both may disappear for good if the new Government pulls the financial rug out now.

1979 05 18
Farmers were weighting up the damage caused by the worst fen blow for several years. Fierce winds whipped up the light soil but they were highly localised. The worst affected areas were at Prickwillow, Stretham, Coveney & Chatteris where there were dust clouds all around but fortunately a cloudburst dampened the fields after an hour's blowing. Elsewhere orchards took a bad buffeting. A fallen tree blocked the Harlton to Haslingfield road for several hours and another fell at Cottenham. An invalid carriage was blown from the A14 at Papworth and two motor cycles collided in the strong winds.

1979 05 19
Forty per cent of Cambridge students are potential psychiatric cases, according to a report published by the Students' Union. There are a large number of reasons but whether Cambridge attracts people with a predisposition to mental illness or creates that illness once they arrive, the university has a responsibility to its students. The women in men's colleges are far more stressed than their counterparts in single-sex colleges and the male students about to be introduced into Girton, the oldest women's college, could end up suffering a corresponding weight of stress. The report is bound to spark off controversy among dons.

1979 05 19
One of the world's most powerful electron microscopes was officially unveiled – floating on a cushion of air in the city centre. It marked the competition of the Cambridge University 600kV High Resolution Electron Microscope, a £1 million project which has taken eight years. The microscope is 25 feet high and weighs more than seven tons. It occupies two floors at the old Cavendish Laboratory. There have been problems caused by vibration from nearby traffic so the instrument is surrounded by three massive arms on cushions of compressed air to avoid any distortion

1979 05 22
Ballet dancers arriving at the Big Top on Jesus Green, Cambridge found their 'blue boxes' which contain their make-up, practice clothes and spare shoes were standing in solitary state in an empty room. Heavy rains for two days meant that workmen were behind in assembling the pre-fabricated portable cabins which they were to use as dressing rooms. Some had no water, no glass in the windows and no heating. There were no trestle tables and chair, let alone bulbs, basins and bins. At 5.15 they decided for the first time in the company's seven seasons in the Big Top that there could be no performance that night.

1979 05 22
Hundreds of disappointed ballet enthusiasts had to be turned away from the Big Top on Jesus Green when the opening performance of the Sadler's Wells Royal Ballet was cancelled. City council entertainment staff headed by Mr John Wilkinson were standing by as ballet-goers trudged through the squelching grass only to be told the bad news. Most people took it in good part, though there were complaints from those who had driven from as far as Bishop's Stortford and Hatfield. They were not interested in refunds, they wanted another chance to see the ballet. But most of the 1,200 tickets have been sold and the company's schedule means that no replacement performance can be held.

1979 05 22
Nineteen adults and one baby defied the might of Cambridge City Council and the Home Office. Never mind that Reach Fair came and went two weeks ago the more traditional residents remain convinced that the charter of 1201 should be obeyed and that it should take place during Rogation Week. They dismissed the decision that for commercial reasons it would be held on the new May bank holiday instead. In a modest ceremony 'King' Len Warren proclaimed the charter to the modest crowd. Apart from the swings on the common there was no fair to speak of, so revellers made their way back into the Dykes End pub to continue their celebrations.

1979 05 22

Any attempt to put London's third airport in the Essex countryside will be bitterly resisted by the two villages near Saffron Walden that have been marked out as possible sites. The Government's study group has picked out Stansted and Langley for further examination. The latter would have a horrendous effect on Royston and south Cambridgeshire. It would overturn the peace, quality of life and happiness everyone is used to and be part of a huge conurbation where noise and money took the upper hand. The chairman of the parish council said: "I am horrified. We have fought it before under another name – Nuthampstead. Why are we being subjected to it again"

1979 05 22
Peace returned to the Big Top at the weekend and it was possible to enjoy two major artistic events without the accompaniment of heavy rain on canvas, whistling wind and a variety of off-stage rumblings. For the first time in a fortnight consecutive performances were staged without the artists and audience being drenched and deafened, though they had to be on their guard against damp patches on the walkways and duck-boards. It is a visit the Sadler's Wells Ballet Company is unlikely to forget. But the foul weather may trigger off a discussion on Cambridge's future as a regional artistic centre. There are few cities where such keen following can be found for top-rate entertainment and the large audiences deserve something better than a circus tent on a patch of churned-up grass.

1979 05 23
Lightning struck Willingham windmill and started a fire in straw round the base of the 150-year-old mill. It came during a sudden thunderstorm and one terrific thunderclap shook doors and windows all around the village. But it was not until two hours later than a passer-by noticed the charred and smouldering wood of the sail and raised the alarm. Mr Ray Cattell, aged 73, who owns the mill which has been in his family for generations managed to douse most of the fire at the base but it took firemen with a turntable ladder to tackle the still smouldering sail about 60 feet above the ground. They had to remove about a third of the sail because it had been weakened by the lightning.

1979 05 23
The Farmland Museum at Haddenham is to close – because it is too successful. It will shut after celebrating its tenth anniversary because the owners, the Delanoy family, say it is eating up too much time and money. It started when their son Craig, then four, collected a few items in a bedroom and invited relations to view them. Since then it has developed an international reputation and attracts thousands of visitors, raising money for charity. Last Saturday alone it had 640 visitors at the village open day and even with voluntary helpers lending a hand they cannot continue.

1979 05 24
Joy, nervous anticipation and occasionally disappointments are the exciting ingredients of the Cambridge Competitive Festival – highlight of the year for hundreds of schoolchildren. Aspiring actors, orators and dancers jostle for trophies but as each year passes more and more young musicians stay away. Teachers of music feel that the arts aren't helped by a sports day atmosphere. But for many parents and their children it is rewarding to see all those hours of painful practice being given some tangible recognition with a prize and the losers benefit from the expert adjudicators' constructive comments. – 79 05 24

1979 05 25
Quy boast just about the best facilities in village cricket. They have a magnificent pavilion and the finest wicket in the county. All they do not have is a cricket team. The club was forced to withdraw when officials discovered they could find only six players for their opening game against Bottisham. The basic problem is the lack of youngsters to replace retiring players said George Carter who is now 60 but only retired from playing a few seasons ago. One villager who has supported the club through thick and thin is Doug Rolph, the man responsible for the outstanding quality of the wickets. He will be playing for Lode this season but will be the first to return when Quy start up again.

1979 05 25

Some beer at this year's St Neots Beer Festival is going to cost 65p a pint and the organisers are worried that drinkers will feel 'ripped off' by the prices. Derek Giles of CAMRA said: "We have been costing out the various beers and find local beers will be about 34p a pint but with the cost of transport one or two will be more than 50p. Kingsdown, a very strong beer will be the most expensive

1979 05 25
Regulars at the Green Hill in Linton chucked scornfully about a dirty old pair of shoes found during renovation work on the pub's ancient fireplace. But the landlady, Pauline Adams was inclined to think there was something significant about the find, and she was right. Close inspection reveals that they are not actually a pair but are probably of 17th-century date and would have been placed there to ward off the evil eye of witches. Now they may help to attract customers; they are just the sort of historical oddity that drinkers like to come across in pubs – something to puzzle over with a pint. – 79 05 25

1979 05 26
Burwell House, p4

1979 05 29
Student grants, p7

June 1979 CEN

1979 06 01
A secret plan to knock down part of All Saints' Church in Cambridge has led to protests from preservationists. Ely Diocese, which closed the church in 1973, wants to use the land for an extension to Westcott House theological college and for diocesan offices. But the Victorian Society who are anxious to protect its William Morris murals and stained glass have accused them of 'wilfully neglecting' the building until it was past saving. They say it is the finest Victorian church in Cambridge and it seems extraordinary that it is being treated in this manner. Parts of the roof let in daylight and many of the murals have been ruined by mould and damp.

Pym demolition, p1

1979 06 02
The £10 million Kite area shopping and parking scheme scheduled for opening in 1982 may be scrapped if opposition against it throughout Cambridge is strong enough. An official of Grosvenor Estates, the development company, said "If the people of Cambridge do not want our product we shall not give it to them". But the present indications are that the public does want the Burleigh Street – Fitzroy Street area to be redeveloped as quickly as possible, despite the protests being voiced by pressure groups. The Kite Co-ordinating Council say the plans are 'hopelessly inappropriate' and it is a very cheap scheme: Cambridge deserves something much better than this.

1979 06 02
A huge blaze engulfed the RHM wheat silo at Great Shelford. Within minutes flames and dense black smoke was billowing high into the afternoon sky. The 50-year-old 60 feet tall building was entirely made of wood with just a corrugated iron shell & contained 1,000 tons of wheat. It took 30 firemen nearly an hour to bring it under control and prevent the fire spreading to the mill itself. Had it been of a metal construction it would have distorted and collapsed and it was the bulk of the timber which saved the building.

1979 06 04
Big top, p7

1979 06 05
Remember 'One potato, two potato, three potato, four …" Nearly all of us once learned these little rhymes and they lie pushed away to the back of the mind. Nobody actually teaches them but yet they are kept alive mysteriously from one generation to another as is clear from a collection of playground rhymes from the Romsey area of Cambridge. They have a local variation: "Ippy dippy dation, My operation, How many people, At the Station, No, So you are not IT". One mother recalled that every time an ambulance went by she said: "Touch my collar, Touch my nose, I will never go in one of those" and the finger had to stay on the nose until a black dog was spotted. – 79 06 05

Politicians EEC debate, p2

1979 06 06
Mystery rumble night, p8
Farmland Museum, p11

1979 06 07
The new owner of Saffron Walden's most unusual accommodation will need a 14-foot ladder as well as a front key to get in. The potential bed-sitter is a room with a view, perched above a 16th-century waggon arch in King Street. The only way in is a door high above the ground or a sash window at the front, overlooking the town centre. An estate agent said: "It could be reached fairly easily with a retractable ladder". The room, wedged between a record shop and a tailors was blocked up when the arch and the record shop came under separate ownership. It is expected to fetch about £2,000 if it can be sold.

1979 06 07
In 1921 the garage on the corner of Hills Road, Cambridge, broke all records by selling 25 Model 'T' Fords. Now the firm of Gilbert Rice which took over the premises aims for 100 times that turnover. There is a used car facility with space to display 75 cars and they have installed service and repair facilities. In the light of the impending fuel crisis smaller cars will be substituted for thirsty larger ones and there could be changes in the type of fuel used. The company is prepared to adapt and says the car dealer of the future will be running a very different type of business from today

1979 06 08
Cottenham history, p8

1979 06 09
A new town might be built on the Cambridgeshire-Essex- Hertfordshire borders within the next 15 years if the proposed third London airport is developed at Langley or Stansted. The only alternative would be expansion at Royston. The airport would handle 50 million passengers a year and employ up to 50,000 people but this would aggravate the present labour shortage of skilled workers. It would add to the influx of tourists to Cambridge, which is already at a very high level and cause a serious noise nuisance that would make life unpleasant for people in the Duxford area. But on the brighter side opportunities for business and holiday flying for residents should be greatly improved.

1979 06 12
Plans to demolish the old Cambridge electricity generating station and build homes and a walkway on its prime riverside site have been submitted by St John's College. It generated electricity for more than 70 years but in 1968 the Central Electricity Generating Board decided not to renew their lease. An earlier proposal to turn the building into a concert hall came to nothing and now the station and an adjoining Dutch house are derelict. The 31 residential units proposed would provide small flats and family accommodation and not be confined to members of the college. – 79 06 12

1979 06 12
A Venture centre has opened at the home of the Eden Centre of Dance in City Road, Cambridge. It houses a photographer and a potter and anyone is free to do anything in the other rooms. Now there are plans for a café in the basement to allow people from local streets to drop in and find out what is going on. It is an attractive three-storey building built in the 18890s as the Cambridge Friendly Society Institute and Working Men's Club which hired out its rooms to a number of smaller societies.

But as they grew so they acquired their own headquarters elsewhere. The Institute could not be wound up until the building was sold and that couldn't take place until the planning blight on the Kite was lifted. While it stood empty squatters got in and caused damage.

Bus station, p11

1979 06 13
Since Christmas a succession of tipplers have staggered along laden with old wine bottles to the Friends of the Earth bottle shop in Castle Row, Cambridge, only to find it shut. It closed because the companies which were taking the bottles refused to take any more but now the Glass Manufacturers Federation has started opening 'bottle banks'. Its just a skip in which people throw their empties which are then smashed up melted down to make new bottles. There is talk of one being set up in Cambridge but in the meantime bottles continue to pile up unwanted outside the Friends' door.

1979 06 14
An East Anglian family of four buying a three-bedroom semi on a 70 per cent mortgage with commitments including a 1100 cc car now needs an income of £6,878 a year to maintain its lifestyle. This is £303 more than in January but is still below the national average of £7,196, a new report suggests. A family renting a three-bedroom council semi and with fewer commitments needs £4,286 while at the top end a family buying a detached house with five or six bedrooms on a 60 per cent mortgage and with a matching lifestyle needs £37,619 a year compared with a national average of £42,135. The average council rent is £6.96 a week

1979 06 14
The battle to defeat plans for a third London airport near Cambridge has been backed by the County Council who have asked the Government not to build in anywhere in the southern part of the county. But if Whitehall turns down the plea and suggests it should be built at Langley near Royston or Stansted it could cost ratepayers a lot of money. Estimates for employing one range of specialist advisers – the noise experts – could cost £80,000 and this could be just the tip of the financial iceberg. It would lead to intolerable noise, massive congestion on the roads and cause vast housing problems that would ultimately lead to the need for a new large town. Coun Dennis Fuller said he could not think the Government was being serious in asking for a third airport at a time when the world's energy reserves were in a crisis.

1979 06 15
Thousands of young people have gone off to their GCE exams clutching calculators. Suddenly these little machines have become an integral part of the school scene. School funds cannot run to the provision of these instruments but many parents have already bought them for their children. A couple of years ago a sophisticated machine could well cost £25, particularly if they included a rechargeable battery. Now it is possible to get one for a little over £10 and the new liquid crystal visual panel takes very little power & is run off a 7½p battery

1979 06 16
Residents in Bateman Street, Cambridge fear it might be totally spoilt if a new language centre is built. The School did an excellent job but the destruction of the existing houses would mean a drastic change in the Victorian residential street. They could be refurbished and make pleasant and attractive homes. Not all were against the scheme for a modern language centre for 200 students. One was highly critical of the character of the street as it stood and said the opening of a new nightclub on Hills Road had a far bigger impact. If the scheme were not approved the site might be redeveloped as a hotel

1979 06 19
Milton people fear it will be turned into the 'dustbin of Cambridge' when large scale industrial and housing developments take place in the city area during the next 15 years. It will be used for everything the city council does not want in Cambridge. Residents are determined to maintain the character of their village. Nobody will want to go and live next door to the sewage works and the agricultural interests will make their views felt when development is suggested.

1979 06 20
Papermills, p4

1979 06 21
The price and availability of petrol has been in the news in the past few weeks. Petrol rationing in the United States and Sheikh Yamani's latest warnings on the oil crisis shake the most complacent, North Sea oil or no. Post-budget prices are well up and supplies fluctuate. Opening hours have been varied and a number of petrol stations are rationing customers to five gallons. Both Tesco (Gulf) and Sainsbury in Coldham's Lane were charging £1.04 for four star but Hallens (BP) at Victoria Road corner were 10p more. Holland's in Mill Road matched Marshall's price of £1.07, the Newmarket Road Service Station (Phoenix), where you are served as opposed to manning the pumps yourself, charged £1.08 and the Lolworth Service Station was £1.12.

1979 06 21
The Da Silva's puppet company is all set to move into a new home in St James' Church, Norwich. The Godmanchester-based company wanted to use All Saints' Church, Cambridge, as a permanent base and theatre. "It was a bit vast but we worked out ways to convert it" said Ray Da Silva. "But to put it frankly the city council didn't show much interest in supporting us. The attitude in Norwich is so different; they welcomed us warmly and local businesses have helped with the cost of conversion. Cambridge would have been nice to work in, but somehow things are more traditional and slower there than in Norwich"

1979 06 22
A few years ago the blacksmith's craft looked to be dying. But as the last of the old-timers retired a new generation of smiths discovered there is still plenty of business for a good craftsmen. Bill Sargent, Lode's village blacksmith for 60 years, is 81 and only keeps working to entertain himself, though he provides a valuable service to the farming community. He thinks the shortage of petrol could see farmers having to reintroduce shire horses to work the land. But 20-year-old blacksmith Vic Saunders from Cherry Hinton says his principal trade is in wrought-iron work such as balconies and gates. He likes the variety of work and would be happy to shoe horses but thinks this unlikely. When Bill Sargent finally hangs up his leather apron there will be no heir to follow him into the trade but it's quite possible another young blacksmith will buy the business and carry on where he leaves off. – 79 06 22

1979 06 26
Spillers, p11

1979 06 27
There have been two interesting developments of late at Newmarket. One has seen CI Caravans' announcement of a £2 million scheme to build a new factory. The largest manufacturer in its field it is the town's single largest employer with about 600 people. They have been through several difficult years and the prime aim is to secure the future rather than outright expansion. The other is that the Doric Cinema has been sold for use as an entertainment centre and nightclub. It is to be renamed the Newmarket Variety Club. Earlier plans had been for recreational use, a showroom, a warehouse and offices. There are no empty spaces in the town but warehouses and other industrial buildings are likely to be put up when there is demand.

City charm, p5

1979 06 28
A technological revolution is taking place in the electronics industry caused by microelectronics and the tiny devices placed on what has become known as the silicon chip. Cambridge is at the heart of this revolution and the University has reared many of the pioneers. It started in the 1950s when the Engineering Department started to put together the first scanning electron microscope. The transistor was superseding the bulky valve but it still had to be soldered into the circuit. As more and more components were added the miniaturisation began and new techniques were developed by researchers at Cambridge Instruments using the electron beam machines

Newmarket market, p4
Ice rink plans, p7

1979 06 29
The first three factories to be built in a town by the Council for Small Industries in Rural Areas have been opened in Wisbech. They will be followed by others at Littleport, Ramsey, Chatteris and March. The policy had been to build them in truly rural areas but they decided to give special help to small towns where job opportunities were very limited. MP Clement Freud said it is helping people with cottage industries to take a stride forward; they cannot afford the overheads of a modern and efficient factory but this offers them units at a very good rent and will help them grow.

July 1979 CEN

1979 07 02
Eltisley parish church may have to borrow to meet repair bills for its spire unless a government grant arrives soon. The total cost of the repair is £6,200 but the Department of the Environment is taking a long time to pay out its half of the bill. The Parochial Church Council has undertaken furious fund raising but the money would not last very long when they have to pay contractors expenses. Architects said the spire was in an appalling state in places and it was possible to put a hand between some of the stones.

1979 07 03
Milton bypass bridge, p3
Duxford church, p4

1979 07 04
Cambridgeshire County Council has decided to establish its permanent headquarters at the Shire Hall. The council set up it 'temporary' headquarters at Cambridge following local government reorganisation more than five years ago but decided to move eventually to the Hinchingbrooke estate at Huntingdon. Now they have changed their minds: Huntingdon is not scheduled as a major centre of the future while Cambridge is a regional centre of public administration and an internationally-known city. It is a natural magnet for staff and to move would have a seriously demoralising effect. The Shire Hall site is large enough for all their administrative needs and officers pointed out the high cost of building at a time when the council was already in financial difficulties. Now the land reserved for the new office complex is to be sold.

1979 07 06
Margaret Thatcher, Britain's scientist Prime Minister, came to Cambridge to see scientific industry at work and was promptly taken over by children from Bar Hill Primary School who had been given a morning off to see her. She talked to them for ten minutes then got on with the business of the day, meeting Mike Harrison, managing director of H.H. Electronics. The company employs more than 300 people designing and selling audio electronic sound equipment. Later Mrs Thatcher visited Laser-Scan, another company using chip technology

1979 07 07
Cambridge is a scientific and industrial gold mine where the brains and talents of those in the university can be harnessed and developed by industry so that new products can be made and new jobs created, said Margaret Thatcher. At Laser-Scan she saw techniques developed to digitise maps using laser beams and computers. She was delighted to be told that one system they used was called 'Maggie' for short. "So it should be if it's a scientific system", she said. But when told it was a dump file she quipped "Oh no, you can't do that to me – you'd better find another name for it"

1979 07 07
Cambridge's oldest taxi driver Ernie Zarattini has taken his final fare – aged 80. And he has disclosed some of the cheeky goings-on he has witness during 39 years as a cab driver. On one occasion he picked up a couple who wanted to go to Regent Street. "Suddenly I saw them misconducting themselves on the floor of the cab. I said 'Not for half-a-crown you don't' and flung them out", he said. Fares used to be eight pence – old money – for the first mile and tuppence-a-mile after that, but now customers have to pay 45p for the first three-quarters of a mile and 25p for every one-sixth of a mile after that.

1979 07 09
Melbourn clergy homes, p9

1979 07 10
Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother officially opened Wimpole Hall, the 17th-century mansion left to the National Trust three years ago. She paid tribute Mrs Elsie Bainbridge and her husband who had started restoration work when they acquired the house in 1936. Amongst the guests were Albert Mayo and his wife who worked on the estate for 62 years. "I did farm repairs and anything in the house and one of the hardest jobs was beeswaxing the floors. Mrs Bainbridge was very nice and if anything went wrong she always send for me", he said. He also recalled a visit by Queen Mary when she was Queen Mother.

1979 07 10
The present Landbeach post office will close when the village postmistress, Miss Doris Mitham, retires. The sub post office, which occupies a tiny room at the back of her large High Street home, has been in the family for 36 years. She took over the running of it from her mother seven years ago and before that was the village post woman, delivering letters twice daily. The new post office will be at Mrs Phyllis McFarlane's shop opposite a grocery store and Mr Peter Hall will become the new postmaster having been 'dragooned' into applying by villagers who saw the shop as the ideal spot.

Baha'i service, p7

1979 07 11
ECDC council houses, p11

1979 07 12
At Ely cattle market the fat pigs are sold at 10 am, then live poultry followed by dressed poultry and produce, furniture and dead stock and more furniture. Sale by auction is a curious business, a jolly bantering and time-consuming affair. The crowd are mainly old hands, but that doesn't guarantee rock-bottom prices. Quite often they went above prices in the nearby general market. On occasions this was loudly pointed out by a member of the audience who nevertheless appeared to be tolerated as an unavoidable part of the proceedings and often started the bidding, albeit well below the auctioneer's asking price. Bidding is usually done on the basis of the price per single cabbage or pound of strawberries and there is no obligation to take the lot. Most people take two or three items and bidding starts again for the rest. – 79 -7 12

Gas guzzlers, p5

1979 07 13
Cambridge's first punt restaurant is now in business serving tourists with lunches, strawberries and cream teas and cocktails by candlelight. The venture has been launched by the Cambridge undergraduate son of the Headmaster of Eton. For a mere £3 a head up to eight people can be accommodated for a full strawberry tea to the accompaniment of pre-war music from a pre-war wind-up gramophone. A wide-ranging lunch menu costs £6 and later on as the sun dips behind the University Library there is candlelight for a service of fruit cocktails and cheese. The restaurant comprises two punts lashed together.

1979 07 13
The dawn-to-dusk routine of working on a farm 60 years ago was recalled by a Harston man, Alfred Stittle. When he joined the Hays family farm it was a slower pace of life. "I started as a lad earning 6d a day and did thistling and harvesting. Then my wages went up to 29s 3d when I became responsible for looking after the horses. There was a lot of tiring, back-aching work and the hours were long. Now the machines have taken over and we don't have the hard physical side. We get a lot more money but there isn't the same friendliness or contentment", he said.

1979 07 16
The fate of the ancient waterways known as lodes in the Burwell area are hanging in the balance. Conservationists argue they are sanctuaries for wild life and a quiet beauty spot in the flat, arable landscape. They are important for anglers, boaters and ramblers. But water seeps through the banks and there is a danger of them collapsing completely, causing severe flooding. There was an outcry when Great Ouse River Division proposed to bulldoze them to make way for a ground drainage system. Now the Ministry of Agriculture may pay towards drainage if local councils can also fund it. But they say they have no money.

Hildersham watermill, p5
Pye & Dutch, p8

1979 07 17
A grocery salesman, Derek Thomson, went on his rounds in the heart of Cambridge by punt to try and beat the traffic problem. His firm supplies many of the colleges and he thinks the river is the quickest and cheapest way of servicing them. He set off from Silver Street and was met at Queens' by their chef, Mr Tony Tingey; then at King's Hugh McCann climbed down almost to water level to meet him. But, distracted by passing tourists Mr Thomson all but caught him a hefty blow to the head with his punt pole. He then glided on towards Clare, the Bridge of Sighs and Magdalene. "It is the obvious way to get around a lot of colleges quickly", he said. But the Queens' chef commented: "the way he's handling the pole he'd do better with a motor boat" – 79 07 17

1979 07 18
Not everyone in Cambridge sees Mount Pleasant House but to those who use Huntingdon Road this new office block bulks very large indeed. The initial scheme was described as "Excessively bulky, un-neighbourly, inconsiderate of adjoining owners and occupiers, out of scale with its surroundings and over-dominant in the local scene' by the Environment Minister but his decision to reject it was reversed at a subsequent inquiry. There will be 16 trees round the main building together with a number of shrubs but it will always look what it is – 50,000 square feet of office space. – 79 07 18

1979 07 18
A money-saving decision taken more than a year ago looks like paying off much more than anyone expected – and all because of the oil crisis. Councillors decided to invest in an electrically –driven mobile library, the first of its kind in the country, to serve parts of Cambridge which were affected when the old Shire Hall library was closed down for economy reasons. It cost £2,000 more than a petrol-driven version but will bring big savings in operating costs. If the experiment is a success more will be bought to replace the ageing and expensive petrol-driven fleet.

1979 07 19
Headmaster Ted Austin spent all last Saturday gardening at his Over home – the first Saturday this year he's had free from his voluntary work. He has been a member of the English Schools Football Association's ruling body for eight years and is now its Chairman. Headmaster at Stetchworth School for the past 12 years and a teacher since before the war, Austin knows he's in for a hectic 12 months.

He will have to preside over two Wembley internationals for the English Schools team matches in Holland and West Germany, two coaching courses and 10 international coaching weekends. "You'd better ask my wife how much time it takes up – it does involve a tremendous amount of work", he said.

Drugs, p11

1979 07 20
Lodes, p12

1979 07 23
It is the start of an intensive six-week season at the Arbury Adventure Playground. Between 150 and 300 children will daily pour into the enclosure off Wagstaff Close. It is laid out like an outpost of the US Cavalry after the Indians have been. There is a 10-foot-high perimeter stockade, big main gates and a high watch-tower in the middle. In one corner is the livestock, all snuffling, clucking and crowing. On another is 'Venus' an old landing craft looking rather washed up and nearer the middle a large battered playhut. It is not for the fastidious or tidy-minded but it is an excellent place to light fires, cook sausages and potatoes and melt down old cola cans into aluminium ingots.- 79 07 23

1979 07 24
Newport Hall, p9

1979 07 25
Cambridgeshire county council took a step towards the transport of the future when it brought into service the country's first electric mobile library. One of the largest electric road vehicles to go into commercial service, it was built by Hyrotechnick of Toft and is based on an electric travelling shop which has been successful in Holland. It is powered by four independent motor-drive systems on the rear wheels and has a speed of 12½ miles an hour, suitable for its task in the city. A second one on order will be faster with a speed of around 40 mph – 79 07 25

Hauxton mosquitos, p11

1979 07 26
Shocked parishioners at Tilty near Thaxted have been told they must come up with extra money if the church's 14th-century window is to be saved. An appeal was launched last year when it was discovered that the Tudor rose tracery on top of the Minster clear glass window was in danger of crashing down because the upright stone mullions were bending inwards. But the estimate for the work has almost doubled overnight after a close inspection revealed that the damage was worse than thought. The 420 parishioners are emotionally and financially exhausted but have just a week to raise an extra £10,000

1979 07 27
The great Cambridge greenfly plague is now so serious that a dramatic change in the weather is needed if it is to be held at bay. The ferocity of the invasion has turned shop fronts green with aphid slime. Motorists are battling hard as swarms of flies cause clouded windscreens while at home all doors and windows have to be firmly closed despite the heat. It is now getting difficult to hold conversations outside without swallowing mouthfuls of greenflies and all citizens are being advised to go to the nearest swimming pool, retire to the bar or simply stay indoors. Experts say that ladybirds, their natural foes, were decimated in the last harsh winter and there is no alternative other than a good downpour or cooler weather.

1979 07 27
Cambridge's most modern squash club on Histon Road already has 300 members but is looking for another 150 to bring it up to the target envisaged by the local businessmen who have made the £150,000 project a reality. There are four courts, one with a glass back wall for safe viewing, a bar and large clubroom where they intend to provide light refreshments and real ale. They also hope to provide a variety of social functions catering for all the family and to meet the needs of both 'town and gown' by providing excellent playing and social facilities.

Denny Abbey, p7
White Swan, p24

1979 07 31
Pubs in and around Cambridge have come in for bitter criticism in a new guide written by two undergraduates. The Rose in Rose Crescent is described as a 'seedy little place in a seedy little street. Gay Cambridge meets there, which says little for their taste'. The Maypole in Park Street is described as a 'grotty little dive hidden rightly under the car park', the Carpenters Arms in Victoria Road is 'without redeeming feature; extremely anti-student clientele who would have beaten us up if they hadn't been so drunk. Dark and spooky'. The Locomotive in Mill Road 'ought to be exorcised, its evil … the worst pub in Cambridge' while the Midland Tavern is, they say, 'the most notorious pub in town with a reputation for being a centre of vice'. One landlord replied: "It's about time the University made these little boys do some work for their degrees … they speak too much claptrap" – 79 07 31

1979 07 31
In June 1968 George Brown M.P. arrived to open the new building for Cambridge Consultants Ltd at Bar Hill. He didn't find anyone to receive him because CCL don't believe in receptionists. Instead he found a telephone which said 'Please ring 47 and ask for the person you wish to speak to'. He did so and created a mild panic among the company dignitaries whose job it was to receive him. But when Prince Charles arrives to open the latest building on the Science Park he will find receptionists in the regulation plate glass front office, surrounded by rubber plants and other foliage. – 79 07 31

Welding Institute supplement

August 1979 CEN

1979 08 02
Railway level crossing gates smashed, plan to introduce camera – 79 08 02

1979 08 03
BBC Television uncovered a wealth of local treasures when its 'Antiques Roadshow' visited Ely. There was a Ming vase, a rich vein of Oriental porcelain, a number of carvings from Africa and Indonesia as well as pieces of local interest. These included a 12ft punt gun, made in 1840, which was probably used in the fens. Strapped to a boat and loaded with 30lb of shot it was capable of killing up to 30 birds at one go.

1979 08 07
A slip by the headsman who decapitated the embalmed body of Oliver Cromwell may provide valuable clues in the identification of the Lord Protector's true remains. For in an unmarked 'grave' in the chapel of Sidney Sussex College Cambridge lies a preserved human head complete with hair, impaled upon an oaken and metal spike which for the past 20 years has been widely accepted as that of Cromwell. Now another head had turned up in Lincolnshire which its owners are trying to authenticate in the hope of selling it off. But Dr Raymond Smail says theirs was clearly taken from a body that was already embalmed and not preserved after severance.

1979 08 09
A major Cambridge store which put up new 'Thieves will be prosecuted' notices on its doors recently, had the lot stolen. Even the store detective had to smile. In Cambridge in summer the problem gets worse: school holidays and the influx of visitors contribute to the peak and magistrates have expressed concerns about this unacceptable face of tourism. Professionals come in teams for the day and wreak enough damage to seriously concern the Chamber of Commerce. Store detectives are in the front line in the fight, Joshua Taylor has recently reintroduced one and the Co-op are advertising for more

1979 08 09
It's not much fun for the long-suffering bus passenger when his bus does not turn up – especially if it happens time and again. But spare a thought for the equally long-suffering divers. In Cambridge there should be 150 drivers, but are only 120. The roads and cycling tourists are a nightmare and their wages are too low - £42 for 40-hour six-day week with Saturdays off a luxury. In London they can drive buses with automatic gearboxes and power steering and pick up £100; even conductors are being offered £90 in the capital.

1979 08 09
Tesco's plans for a superstore at Broad Street Ely have been agreed by planners, despite fears from the Council that the scheme will hit existing shops and complaints from Waterside residents about extra traffic. But the Ely Society and the Chamber of Commerce supported the idea. Development Manager Timothy Aldworth said he had never felt the area was an ideal centre for industry; parking pressures on Market Square would be eased and the Club Hotel properly renovated. Ely's shopping centre was in danger of losing out to Cambridge and Newmarket unless new life was injected into it.

1979 08 20
Britain's latest heart transplant patient, London builder Keith Castle, was sitting up in a chair at Papworth Hospital less than 48 hours after his major operation. Mr Terence English, the consultant surgeon who led the 12-strong heart transplant team said the 5½ hour operation went very smoothly and the new heart was functioning perfectly normally without assistance. Mr Castle received the heart of 21-year-old golf professional Duncan Prestt who died after a car crash in Ely. His wife said the first words her husband spoke after the operation were 'Have you remembered my Guinness'

1979 08 22
Four more heart transplants are in the pipeline at Papworth Hospital; two patients have already been accepted and are only waiting for donor hearts, two more have yet to be chosen. All will be financed by a grant from the National Heart Research Fund and performed by Mr Terence English. The probability that he would have to go outside the NHS for money to carry on his work was predicted by the News last year when the newspaper was the first to break the news that heart transplantation would be carried out in Cambridgeshire rather than London. Cambridgeshire Area Health Authority would let him use NHS facilities and equipment but would not pay for anything else and the DHSS would not finance such surgery without some kind of proof that it would be financially worthwhile.

1979 08 14
Tolly Cobbold, the brewer, is axing the Anchor pub at Bottisham to avoid spending money on improving its lavatories. They have got two pubs in the village with fairly deficient toilets and have decided to improve those at the White Swan where the business is better. The landlord, Jim Torpey says the Anchor's customers are very disappointed; it has a crib, pool and darts team and raises money for the Addenbrooke's cancer scanner appeal. The closure is expected next year

1979 08 10
Clive Sinclair, the 38-year-old former electronics 'whizz-kid' who founded Sinclair Radionics when he was 21 has set up a new company, Sinclair Research. He hopes to develop a television with an extra-large flat screen the size of a normal home cine screen which would hang on the wall like a picture. He has previously developed miniature radio sets, pocket-sized electronic calculators and a mini-television which he manufactured at a factory at St Ives.

1979 08 13
A Saffron Walden firm which specialises in security alarms has developed a unique early-warning system for pregnant cows. The calving system is a harness which is strapped around the cow and a plastic plate that fits under the tail. If the tail is held horizontally for more than a couple of minutes, indicating that calving contractions have started, it activates an alarm bell in the farmhouse. The results have been extremely encouraging: it cuts out a lot of wasted time and gives the cowman some sleep. The firm has also developed a way of detecting unwanted intruders in the milking shed.

1979 08 17
A Cambridge University scientist, Dr Ellis Cosslett has been awarded a medal by the Royal Society in recognition of his work on the design and development of the X-ray and scanning electron microscopes. He worked on the 25ft-high seven-ton high-resolution electron microscope that occupies two floors at the Old Cavendish Laboratory and is capable of magnifying an atom a million times so that it is as big as a full-stop. It was officially unveiled in May and is now part of a unit carrying out studies for university scientists and industry.

1979 08 17
Many of Cambridge's traffic problems may soon be solved by silicon chip technology. The chips would operate micro computers geared to all the city's traffic lights to ensure smooth traffic flows at all times. Such an elaborate computer system would originally have cost around £5 million but now County Council officials consider the new technology could reduce the cost to as low as £100,000. It could be connected with all the car parks giving motorists instant information through street corner signs and also tie in with temporary one-way workings and pedestrian crossings. - 79 08 17

1979 08 20
Keith Castle, Papworth's latest heart-transplant patient – 79 08 20

1979 08 22
At the back of the Shire Hall and behind the Sir Isaac Newton pub in Cambridge sits a small, portable office. It houses four dedicated workers who are preparing for nuclear war and other major disasters such as flooding, hurricanes and air crashes. Total nuclear war is a frightening prospect and the Government has taken steps to plan for such a holocaust. Now parish councillors are to be trained as the latest part of the contingency plans; they would act as 'community advisors', helping to bring life back to normal in highly disrupted areas. – 79 08 22

1979 08 25
Ickleton church arson, CID quiz suspect – 79 08 25

1979 08 28
Ickleton church could cost £100,000 to repair – 79 08 28

1979 08 29
Did deep to save the Lodes – eight miles face danger of destruction – 79 08 29

1979 08 30
Shoppers at Boots in Cambridge can now start using the store chain's own credit cards. They are the latest to leap on the 'plastic-money' bandwagon following in the wake of Woolworth, Marks and Spencer, Tesco and International. Most schemes require the cardholder to be over 18, have a bank account and pay by standing order. It needs care: the temptation is always there to overspend. Whether or not we all end up with wallets full of little plastic cards remains to be seen. In the long run it may all link up to a totally cashless shopping exercise with your goods and card going through an automatic till. – 70 08 30

September 1979 CEN

1979 09 01
Haverhill woman minister, p6

1979 09 03

Cambridge's newest bookshop has opened in Fitzroy Street, run by a six-member collective, two of whom are squatting on the premises. Grapevine Books is a non-profitmaking venture in the former Vacuum Cleaner Centre owned by the City Council. They are trying to provide an outlet for environment and other groups such as Gingerbread & Friends of the Earth who have difficulty in distributing their publications.

1979 09 04
Mr Tom Amey, Cambridge's first Labour mayor, has died at the aged of 78. He was one of a group of railwaymen who at one time formed the backbone of Labour councillors and represented Romsey for 29 years. He always took a close interest in education and having left school at the age of 15 he became head of the Education Committee in 1966. The curtain went down on his active council work during the 1974 reorganisation of local government and his long service was recognised when he was made an Honorary Freeman of the City in 1975

1979 09 04
Veteran saddler Edward Bowles, aged 94, is out of harness after running his own business in Cambridge for 65 years. His working life is probably one of the longest in the country. He started in Glisson Road in 1913. "I love my work but it's just getting a bit too much now", he said. "I thought it was time to stop because I'm 95 this month". Mr Bowles carried on alone after his son Cecil, who followed in his footsteps, died. – 79 -9 04

Exning cottage, p8

1979 09 05
When councillors turned down plans for a 71-house estate at The Doles, Over, the developer appealed to the Minister and was awarded costs. The problem is continual financial pressure to build new houses in the area. It makes sites too attractive for their owners to resist selling them; it makes housing too dear for ordinary people to contemplate buying. Future pressure will come from the new M11 motorway, the likely development of Stansted Airport and the electrification of the railway line to London. "We have reached the state when it will be difficult to resist complete urbanisation", one councillor said. "Over was one of the prettiest fen villages. Now I am afraid that other villages may be raped as is has been." – 79 09 05

Dutch take Pye, p8

1979 09 06
Strike

1979 09 07
The Savoy Jazzmen, one of Cambridge's three leading 'trad' bands, celebrated its 21st anniversary with a concert at the Man on the Moon public house in Norfolk Street. Founder member Barry Palser, the only 'original' still playing with the group is delighted to report that the band is still blowing strong. "I founded my first band in 1957; having taken over the Memphis Band we called ourselves the Fenland Footwarmers before reforming as the Savoy", he said. Humphrey Lyttleton has written the sleeve notes for their new album paying glowing tributes to each member individually saying. "This is a finely integrated band in which everyone is both star and sideman" – 79 09 07

Bourn Hall closure?, p1
Paddocks estate, p15

1979 09 10
Bar Hill village hall, p9

1979 09 11

Ronelles, a disco restaurant, will soon open above Lion Yard in the heart of Cambridge and one of the city's most interesting business gambles will be under way. It's a big bet. The lease is long but the odds are short that young Cambridge people will patronise a place which they have long insisted is overdue. The club will have a membership of 500 and be relatively expensive with a £100 a year membership fee. It will have an elevated restaurant, two bars, a dance floor, a waterfall and cabins. These together with palm trees and a native mask on the logo suggest the premises may have a Caribbean flavour. It will be a welcome solution to an embarrassing problem for the space, originally intended for offices, has stayed empty for years. – 79 09 11

1979 09 12
Mill Road Hospital, p1
Operation Julie, p8

1979 09 13
The Cambridge area may increasingly become a territory for commuters due to the combined effect of the M11 and railway electrification; estate agents say people should buy houses now, while they can afford them. Heydon is among the more sought-after villages but unfortunately opportunities to buy homes there are rare. One of the few is a four-bedroomed detached house situated in large grounds, including a shower room, carpets and kennels. It is priced at around £69,950

1979 09 14
Traffic jams would stretch across large parts of Cambridge every weekend if the £10 million Kite shopping development went ahead, a transport report commissioned by the Kite Co-ordinating Council claims. The new traffic may eventually block the Mill Road roundabout for several hours of the day. The number of car parking spaces would need to be doubled to meet demand and the cost would have to come from the ratepayers. Traffic is likely to increase anyway in the next ten years and the anticipated reduction through the opening of the Northern By-pass has not happened, they claim

1979 09 17
Eight miles of lodes in the Burwell district could collapse, causing massive flooding, unless £1 million is spent to consolidate them. Not everybody agrees they should be saved. Since fen drainage the peat has shrank leaving the banks 15-20 feet high above the surrounding land. If the trendy conservationist lobby is going for strict historical accuracy then it should support a project which reduces the banks, not raise them still further. But they are a vital amenity and one of the few havens of natural beauty in the region. If enough people feel strongly enough and are prepared to back starry-eyed ideas with cash then their conservation must be assured.

1979 09 17
There are three telephone operators on duty at Cambridge railway station; they can tell someone the train times between Madras and Bombay, but don't want to. Because Cambridge isn't on the main line most cross-country rail inquiries involve looking up train times and co-ordinating them on several different pages of the standard published timetables. So every year they compile their own timetables to take passengers to every station in the country. It takes two people a month's work but has proved so useful that travel agents are now buying copies from the station. They have also collected their own file of useful information such as how long it takes to walk from one Birmingham station to another. – 79 09 17

1979 09 17
The mobile library being used while Cambridge's Mill Road library is being repaired has received a parking ticket while operating outside the building. It has now moved to Great Eastern Street on the other side of the railway bridge. Now there are fears that its isolation and lack of electricity will force its closure, leaving thousands of Romsey residents without a library. The police action has angered Cambridge councillors; Coun Sweeney said: "I have asked the City Surveyor if he could get a pot of black paint and paint out the yellow lines so the library can remain there. It is no use moving to Great Eastern Street because that area too is earmarked for double yellow lines"

1979 09 17
Suggestions from the Vicar that Lode may become a dying village have brought a strong protest from a new resident. He says: "I am astonished by his implications that it can only be revived by increased building of family homes, by light industry and by attracting summer visitors. The numerous clubs and associations, the friendly greetings, the happy school and many signs indicate this must be one of the most vital villages in the area. But the vicar replies: "In the long term, unless people accept change and plan for it in a positive way, then villages like this will tend to become dormitories". Newcomers wanted the village to remain as it is, while people with roots there seek changes that will provide them with employment.

1979 09 18
Thousands of pounds worth of malting barley was destroyed when a huge blaze gutted a storehouse at Dullingham. The maltings next to the railway line are owned by Clark and Butcher, a firm of Soham corn merchants, and leased to a Newmarket firm who said that top quality malting barley had been destroyed that would have been used to make whisky. Firemen had to travel more than a mile to obtain water because a nearby hydrant had dried out but further disaster was averted when they prevented a 1,500-gallon tank full of diesel from exploding. Two pensioners were evacuated from their homes and police set up road blocks when Station Road became impassable.

Mill Road Hospital is cracking up; is twice as good as most, p7 & p13 – 79 09 18

1979 09 21
Three people died and seven were injured when two RAF jets crashed at Wisbech. One plane narrowly missed two schools and a college before plunging into Ramnoth Road, demolishing two houses and a bungalow. Hundreds of people, including the Mayor, frantically searched through the rubble for survivors. Police put a 'disaster plan' into immediate action and emergency services rushed to the area which was evacuated and cordoned off. The second plane crashed at New Drove, near the town's industrial area. The aircraft, single-seater Harrier jump jets, were based at RAF Wittering. – 79 09 21

1979 09 22
Stunned and exhausted the Mayor of Wisbech spoke of the appalling tragedy which rocked his town. Coun Bob Lake was one of the first on the scene of the disaster in which an RAF Harrier jump jet totally destroyed two houses and a bungalow following a mid-air collision. "I just ran for the smoke as fast as I could. When I arrived in Ramnoth Road my heart stopped", he said. "I was informed that there was a man and a child trapped so I started tearing at the rubble. The remains of the three buildings were on fire and gas filled the air. The three people who died were a former Mayor of Wisbech, a 40-year old man and his 2½-year-old son. There were stories of narrow escapes as the plane passed narrowly over two schools and an 800-pupil college. – 79 09 22

1979 09 24
Stranglers at Corn Exchange, p7
Milton dump, p8

1979 09 26
Rampton Parish Council took on the giant local authorities at the Structure Plan examination and demanded a better deal. The County Council aims to restrict development and Rampton is scheduled as an area where only in-filling should be allowed. But the Parish Councillors wanted the village to be allowed to develop rather more. Older people were getting no younger and the young people who had no houses to live in had to go to other villages. Reasonable development should be encouraged or 'our village would go', they told inspectors

1979 09 26

The Old Vicarage at Grantchester, immortalised by the poetry of Rupert Brooke, is up for sale. It is the first time since 1916 that the magnificent property has been on the market and offers between £120,000 and £150,000 are expected. Then Rupert Brooke's mother bought the house as a memorial to her son and gave it to the grandfather of the present owner saying she would like the garden kept as it was in her son's time. She also asked that interested visitors should on request be allowed to look around the garden. These wishes have always been complied with and it is hoped that a purchaser will again bear them in mind as far as practical, say the agents in the sale brochure.

1979 09 26
At the Stranglers performance in Cambridge Corn Exchange the punks were matched in numbers by a fair splattering of pseudo-intellectuals and Hawkwind types. They could remember the energy the band used to put into their shows, but now with their softer approach the maniacal crowd response was lacking. The pulverising brutality of 'Death and Night and Blood' still surges out but the Stranglers have now come of age and command respect. "We're trying a lot of new things, more complex, a bit of jazz. It went OK, at least Cambridge is always a good crowd", said Hugh Cornwell, recalling the Corn Exchange concert two years ago when bouncers took unkindly to being picked out by spotlights.

1979 09 26 c
Cambridge Councillors want British Rail to spend £500,000 on building a footbridge over the railway lines from Rustat Road to the railway station, and also want a footpath from Devonshire Road to the entrance. It would assist many people who currently have to travel long distances and now BR is about to begin electrification they want a commitment to them. But British Rail is opposed to both plans claiming they would bring security problems as well as affecting future land development potential. The high cost is caused by the length of the bridge and the difficulties building it over the mass of rail lines.

1979 09 27
The arrival of a sex shop at Mitcham's Corner, Cambridge has provoked protests over the deterioration of the area's shopping facilities. Where residents once enjoyed a varied range of shops catering for most day-to-day needs, they now find themselves with banks, building societies, a betting shop and winter sports stockist. A wine shop and take-away restaurant look set to follow. The major change came at the end of 1977 when Mitcham's department store succumbed to the economic pressures of shifting shopping styles.

1979 09 27
Prof Sir Peter Swinnerton-Dyer is the man chosen to lead Cambridge University into what could be one of the most difficult periods of its recent history. As Vice-Chancellor he feels the most serious and pressing problem is cash. "It is going to be a difficult time for all universities and there's no doubt it will be one hell of a winter", he said. The University has decided not to consider refilling any more posts until after Lent term as it was impossible to forecast how the University Grants Committee would allocate funding. While it might be possible to run on less money it was a very difficult process indeed to get down to the lower level of expenditure.

1979 09 28
They carry on the business of life and death at Mill Road Maternity Hospital in what is little better than a clinical slum. Yet when the question of replacing it comes up this week, those with the power to close it are committed to keeping it open for another 10 years. In that time all that stands between the death of a baby, the death of a mother, or both, is the determination of the highly-motivated people who work there. But it snows on the patients in the X-ray department and there is only one lavatory for a dozen pregnant women. The operating theatre needs creosoting – it's an ex-Army hut – and boxes, bottles and laundry-bags littler the tunnel they call corridors.

1979 09 28

The Cambridgeshire Area Health Authority has reaffirmed its decision to close the Grange Maternity Unit at Ely, despite protests. The closure of the ten-bed general practitioner unit has been under consideration for years but delays and disagreements have left its future in limbo. But there was little comment when the authority overwhelmingly decided to go ahead with the closure. It could be the first of many unpalatable decisions they have to take over the next two years.

Drummer Street, p1

October 1979 CEN

1979 10 01
Cambridge Consultants on the Science Park have spent nine years developing ink jet printing, opening up new frontiers. They have carried out trials on surfaces ranging from the petals of an orchid to the roughest grade of sandpaper and have developed systems able to produce 50,000 lines of text a minute on fast-moving surfaces up to two metres wide. Their work is attracting world-wide interest and has already been put to commercial use.

1979 10 02
Robinson College, the University's £17 million gift from the Newmarket millionaire, Mr David Robinson, was topped out. But the man who made it all possible was not there. He turned down the building contractor's invitation to the celebration and preserved his reputation as a shy, publicity-shunning benefactor. Professor Jack Lewis, warden of the college and Prof Charles Brink the chairman of trustees were presented with trade union cards before mounting the scaffolding. Then as an overhead skip delivered a load of wet concrete they smoothed down a part of the roof and planted a Union Jack. The work on site stopped whilst dons and workers joined together for pork pies and beers.

Hobson coffee bar, p8

1979
Cambridge councillors complained that many of the city's traffic and parking regulations were not being enforced. One traffic warden went round the market square issuing parking tickets to motorists who had parked on double yellow lines but a few minutes later had a long friendly chat with the driver of an ice-cream van parked on the same lines. The van was towing a trailer which did not have any numberplates or lights. But police say the traffic warden force was only half its proper strength of 36 officers, two of whom were in office jobs.

1979 10 04
So successful is a small Cambridge publishing concern that its latest title, 'The Small Publisher', tells people how to follow its own example. Husband-and-wife librarians Philip and Audrey Ward started the Oleander Press from their home in January 1975 and their 'secret' is sheer dedication. Both are prepared to work each day as long as necessary, often up to 80 or 90 hours a week. They have a list of 10 titles on Arabia and have published 28 books about Cambridge but realise this source of material must now be running out – 79 10 04

1979 10 05
This year, at the Royal Albert Hall, the Cambridge Band competes for the first time against the elite of the brass band world in the national championships. "Qualifying for the final is a tremendous achievement" said Philip Biggs. Their remarkable climb to the top began back in 1974 when David Read, one of the outstanding solo cornet players in the country, was appointed musical director. Since then it has regularly broadcast for the BBC, made its television debut and next month will record its first LP disc. – 79 10 05

A1-M1 link, p15

Sainsbury 6-day trading, p13

1979 10 06
Tesco's superstore at Bar Hill is to open on Mondays following a switch to six-day trading by Sainsbury's supermarkets. The store says that it was demand from customers living in the local community which had led to the move: "Since we have been here we have tried to blend in with the community", said their Public Relations Director. "We really owe it to everyone here to provide the service they want". Tesco's store in Regent Street Cambridge already opens on Mondays.

Jim Reynolds killed, p1

1979 10 09
Cambridge University Radio returns to the air this term, bent on beaming its jingles into more colleges. So far only members of Churchill College can tune in their transistors to university radio but now they need to expand the service. After months of delay the station started operating on May 1st with a wake-up programme of music and news. Now they want to get Fitzwilliam and Jesus College into the service this academic year. But their Home Office licence does not allow transmission beyond college confines which means using a large number of transmitters emitting low strength signals.

1979 10 10
Homosexuals, p11

1979 10 11
Nuclear build-up, p1

1979 10 12
A network of early five warning flood devices is expected to be ready for the danger period early in the New Year. They will measure water levels and automatically give an up-to-date picture of the possibility of floods. But it could costs £40,000 to carry out a major flood protection scheme at Stretham which was badly hit by floods in May that were caused by blockages in the drainage system. More money must be spent on the Bin Brook which was blamed for flooding in the Gough Way area of Cambridge but maintenance problems must be solved before the work goes ahead

Rock King inquest, p16

1979 10 13
Cambridge Corn Exchange may be turned into a civic restaurant. The old one in Petty Cury was demolish amid a public outcry nearly eight years ago to make way for the Lion Yard redevelopment. It was started during the Second World War under the Government's British Restaurant plans for providing cheap meals and was continued by the council. It became something of a social centre and meeting place for many old people with nowhere to go during the day.

1979 10 16
Time-travelling Dr Who and his companion Romana arrived in Cambridge to meet a university 'professor'. Tom Baker and Lalia Ward, who play the characters, acted out the meeting as part of the latest Dr Who adventures. A BBC film unit is recording location shots for the six-part story to be called 'Shada' which is being made for viewing next year. It opens with the Doctor punting along the Cam and encountering the villain, Skagra, played by 'Colditz' star Christopher Neame. The famous Tardis time-capsule is likely also to play a part. It was safely tied down in the back of a removal van in a Cambridge hotel car park.

1979 10 17
Chief Supt Jock Proctor who did the most to contain the drugs problem in Cambridge retires from the police in December. In 1966 he formed a Drugs Squad to combat what was then a new and growing problem. Other agencies joined to set up a proper containment procedure which has been copied elsewhere. It was unheard of in those days for police, social workers and psychiatrists to meet together with addicts, parents and the clergy but soon a basis of trust was established and worried parents would take their youngsters to a police station for advice, rather than prosecution. – 79 10 17

1979 10 17
Planning permission for Littleport's controversial Sunday market has been rejected. It has been held at Padnal Fen since April. Market traders erect between 100 and 150 stalls and about 3,500 people are attracted each Sunday with about 1,000 cars using the car park. But lavatories are 'atrociously bad'. The District Council is trying to regenerate industrial and economic growth in Littleport which is a 'dying village' and the market could be extremely destructive, one councillor claimed.

Jack Warren, p13

1979 10 18
The Government has stopped the County Council from closing Cambridge's Park Street Primary School because of its 'value to the community'. But plans to close Brunswick Primary School have been approved. This is a great disappointment for parents who campaigned vigorously to keep it open. Nearly £800,000 has been earmarked to convert the buildings into a further education centre. The County will accept the ruling but the number of children attending both schools had dropped and the problems will not go away. Now much harder decisions will have to be made that will affect schools throughout the city.

1979 10 19
In the past fifteen years the number of people aged 65 or over has risen by a million and a half. By 1986 there will be 24 per cent more over-75's than now. National policy has been to encourage old people to lead as independent an old age as they can with as much help as they need on hand. Back-up services must be provided. But the County Councils say that neither centre or local government should promise more than can be delivered and, faced with the need to prune their budgets, they have imposed restrictions on home help services and charges for meals-on-wheels and lunches at day centres.

1979 10 19
Long Road Sixth Form College in Cambridge is desperately short of places where students can study. At any time there are likely to be 70 or 80 students free for private study and many of them work in one of the college's corridors since the library can cope with only 40 at the most. It also has a large empty room below a new science laboratory. Now it is falling back on the time-honoured method of asking parents to help raise money to carpet and furnish it. But some say that if parents help to provide the money for essential services it will encourage the local education authority to shift the responsibility to them.

1979 10 22
Garden House expansion, p6

1979 10 23
Abington village society, p13

1979 10 24
Eighteen months ago you could buy a reasonable-sized plot of land outside Cambridge for about £5,000; now the figure is about £11,000. In the city a plot in the De Freville Road area has doubled to over £20,000 and an unbuilt site off Hills Road recently went for £23,000. Land is very scarce and plots generally go for auction. These prices reflect inflation and the present generation of people who are building their own houses is likely to be the last. Hereafter it will be an undertaking only for the very rich. The burden of loan interest at around 17 per cent adds to an anxious business and even after tax relief interest charges will be £6 a day.

1979 10 25
A Cambridge archaeologist has suggested spreading tin tacks on important sites to deter treasure hunters from using metal detectors. The argument has flared up because of a new book which lists hundreds of treasure hunting sites. One entry reads: "Traces of an ancient maze can be detected on what used to be the village green in the playground of a Cambridgeshire school". The book advises people to seek permission from the landowner before setting foot on a site, but the County Council has already banned metal detectors from their land.

1979 10 25
The painful birth of the Cambridge Symphony Orchestra, its troublesome and expensive babyhood and the attempt to revive it a year ago may not all have been in vain. A big rethink since the last series of concerts lost money has resulted in a new concept and structure. Promising but inexperienced musicians may find it more difficult to get a place in the revamped orchestra and players failing to live up to higher standards will be gradually replaced. The result may be East Anglia's first fully professional orchestra, backed by individuals and businesses from London to Hunstanton.

1979 10 26
Guilden Morden villagers have complained that the rubbish bags they are being issued with by dustmen were rubbish: as soon as you tie a knot in the top and lift them up it spills out everywhere. Now they have been asked to take part in a survey of other types of bags. They will receive samples of various rival makes and put them through rigorous testing to find a better bag.

Leach, inn painter, p20

1979 10 27
The Panos Restaurant in Hills Road, Cambridge, opened three weeks ago and provides an excellent cabaret - Panos Antoniou who is owner, cook and sometimes waiter. When not employed behind the counter, charcoal grilling the juicy, tender steaks for which this restaurant will soon become famous (mark my words), he spreads himself over a chair at a vacant table and puffs a cigar, keeping up relentless badinage with the diners. It is pricey – a bottle of house wine was £2.85 and Scotch steak au poivre vert, £5.95 with coffee at 45p for an inexhaustible potful – but considering the high quality the damage did not seem that unkind.

Skateboard park, p8

1979 10 29
Rolf Harris, the radio and television star, paid a visit to Little Downham to record a radio programme; he wandered about with his tape recorder chatting to people and getting material for 'Rolf's Walkabout'. In the evening the village hall was pack for the recording. A number of local people took part and organisers described is as "a great success with a tremendous community spirit about"

1979 10 29
The secluded village of Sewards End near Saffron Walden is home to two men, Reginald Woolley and Don Gemmell who have led hectic lives in the theatre for the past 40 years. Reg is still a director and designer at the Players' Theatre 'underneath the arches' in London while Don looks back on a distinguished career in stage, films and television. Since moving to the village they have shown a particular interest in the Walden Music Hall society: "There's so much talent, even on the operatic side of it. So many people have good voices and great talent", Reg said.

1979 10 30
Cambridge city council's main house waiting list is well on its way to doubling within one year. It is not a crisis: anyone now on the list might still be rehoused in 15 months' time if they are prepared to live in any part of the city. There are only two dozen council houses in the whole of Newnham and such is the pressure to win a house in favoured developments like Lichfield Road off Cherryhinton

Road that it might take an applicant five years to get there. Applicants must be married or, if single, over 21, be living or working in the city (but students are not eligible) and have a proven housing need. There is a special list for engaged couples, parents can join children already living here and retired people who want to come back to Cambridge can be catered for.

1979 10 30
The name of Pye has been around since 1896. To most people it conjures up a picture of radios, televisions, record players and even records. But none of the UK companies in the Pye of Cambridge group now makes any of these and since October 1st this year, legally speaking, Pye Holdings, the parent group, ceased to exist as a public company. About 12 years ago Philips made a successful bid for the Pye group and it has now become a fully-owned subsidiary. This will improve the future prospects of the companies and the long-term opportunities for employment within them, management claim.

1979 10 31
A US Air Force F111 fighter-bomber crashed at Harlton. Nearby houses were rocked and a great sheet of flame was sent up as the plane plummeted into a spinney. Trees were pushed downwards and branches torn off and only the tail section was visible embedded in the ground. First on-the-spot rescuers dashed around the meadows trying to find the crew, but they had parachuted down several fields away. The crash came after a series of low-level flying missions over the area. Only two weeks ago two RAF Harrier jump jets crashed at Wisbech # c.26.1

Kite, p19

November 1979
1979 11 02
County Council engineers have devised a new method to strengthen the 150-year-old Magdalene Bridge in Cambridge without altering its appearance. If Government finances permit work will start in July, more than 13 years after the bridge was closed to buses and other heavy traffic because of its unsound condition. The rebuilding has been surrounded by controversy since cracks were detected in the under-structure. A public inquiry in 1971 agreed that the new bridge should resemble the old one as far as possible but a long wrangle developed over the appearance and complex legal issues were involved because it is an ancient structure.

1979 11 03
Billiards, p10

1979 11 05
An American newspaper, the ‘Omaha World-Herald’ has reported that after a B-47 bomber crashed at Lakenheath RAF station in 1956 flaming fuel pouring from the ruptured tanks engulfed a building containing three nuclear bombs. If they had exploded radioactive material would have been showered over a large area. But a major accident was averted when the base Fire Chief ignored the burning bomber and its four-man crew and concentrated on dousing the flames surrounding the nuclear storage building. The incident was kept secret, as the British people had not been told that nuclear bombs were being kept in the U.K. – 79 11 05 # c.45.8 # c.26.1

Hawking man of the year, p10

1979 11 06
The temperature in some classrooms at the John Falkner primary school Sawston reaches the mid-70s at times. This is one of the reasons why the headmistress refuses to allow children to wear long trousers in the classroom. A dispute has flared up after one four-year-old boy was told to wear short trousers or go home; his mother is refusing to send him back unless he can wear long trousers. But the school says it is easier for small boys with short trousers to cope with the urinals. There is always bound to be some dampness on the floor and trouser legs may get wet and smelly.

Ely, Littleport & St Neots supplement

1979 11 09
School meals

1979 11 13
Pop star Elkie Brooks paid a surprise visit to workers at Neve Electronic's Melbourn factory where she toured the assembly plant to view the firm's new sound control system. The star of the show was a 54-channel console built using micro-processor technology which is used to record and re-mix sound into a 'commercially-presentable' commodity with less inconvenience to the artist. Elkie has already bought a different Neve model for use in her own private studio in the basement of her home. She said: "It has been a life-long ambition to have my own studio. It will make things a lot easier especially when I have my baby".

1979 11 13
Swynford Paddocks country-house hotel at Six Mile Bottom remains the best in Cambridgeshire according to a new Egon Ronay guide. The inspectors praised their 'huge baths, bubble bath and gigantic bath towels' as well as their 'international food with a homely touch'. The Old Bridge at Huntingdon, Bedford Lodge at Newmarket and Slepe Hall Hotel at St Ives also come in for praise. But restaurants fare worse, this year even the Hotel de la Poste at Swavesey has lost its single star and three have disappeared altogether – the Don Pasquale in Cambridge, Hunters Fen at Cottenham and The Chequers, Fowlmere

Sheltered housing, p17
Thompson housing, p19

1979 11 14
Boathouse, p21

1979 11 16
Anthony Blunt, the former don now exposed as the fourth man in the Cambridge-based Burgess-Philby-Maclean spy scandal, is unlikely to lose his place of honour at Trinity College. He has been an Honorary Fellow since 1947 but the Master said this was a reflection of his scholarship and it is most unlikely that the college would take any action. After Mrs Thatcher made her statement in the Commons a Labour M P says there are a mass of unanswered questions

Windmills, p16
Apostles, p18
Barrow races, p26

1979 11 19
Impington village sign, p9

1979 11 20
The Ely beet sugar factory might be closed if there is a big cut in the British sugar acreage. The British Sugar Corporation has always denied rumours that it may be axed but now the whole future of the beet industry is in doubt because of Common Market proposals. Eight of the smaller factories might have to be closed with redundancies amounting to 2,500 people (about 300 work at Ely). There had been no really good crop since Britain joined the community and problems of sugar supplies from the Commonwealth

Milton country park, p3

1979 11 21

Star Brewery, p11

1979 11 22
Why have The Damned reformed and brought out a new album? The poor relations of the punk explosion were always written off as the archetypal sick-joke of the movement, lacking either the sustained power of The Clash or the sheer nihilistic obscenity of the Pistols. The first punk band out of the starting blocks and into the recording studio, they became the first to split up in a welter of accusations over the alleged dominance of writer / guitarist Brian James. Three years and three albums later, the left-overs are making a comeback. 'Machine Gun Etiquette' has all the sophistication and subtlety of a battery of heavy artillery and as the band's gig in Cambridge will no doubt show, still has a willing audience.

Comprehensive schooling, p13

1979 11 23
In almost every celebrated spy scandal since the 1950s there has been a thread leading back to 1930's Cambridge. Then, gripped in the gloom of economic depression as the clouds gathered for another war, many thinking people were in ripe mood for questioning the values of capitalism. Fascism was gathering ground under the leadership of Oswald Moseley (who spoke in Cambridge), there were hunger marches and many young men took part in the Spanish Civil War. In such a climate the KGB homed in on Cambridge as a breeding ground for espionage. – 79 11 23

1979 11 23
Madingley residents have protested against a plan to store ex-German military vehicles in a field next to the American Cemetery. It is already being used for storing about 150 former NATO vehicles and now the owners have applied for planning permission to store the German vehicles temporarily for a friend. They are part of a consignment of 800 being sent out to Saudi Arabia but there is a hold-up at the docks.

1979 11 23
Ducks have returned to the village ponds at Over after an absence of several years, thanks to the Parish Council. And despite an initial setback when two of the ducks were killed by a prowling fox the council hope the remaining brown Muscovys on Duce's & Sandpit Ponds will take a liking to their new environment. The original duck population was decimated as they were run over by cars while crossing the main road to be fed by a resident on the other side. Often they would sit in the middle of the road and not budge. But the problem of starving ducks may return, as they will have to be fed, just like their predecessors.

Tolls, p24

1979 11 24
Anthony Blunt, Britain's latest self-confessed spy has sprung a surprise and saved his old Cambridge college from embarrassment. For while he publicly declared that deprivation of his Honorary Fellowship at Trinity College would upset him much, he privately offered his resignation to the college Master. Very few dons were privy to his offer to resign and had gone in to the meeting all set for a long discussion. And so without any acrimony and after only a short discussion the 15-man college council closed the book on one of their most eminent – now infamous – members. Without any need to research their records for ancient precedent they erased his name as from the time of the meeting.

1979 11 24
Fen Ditton residents are bringing pressure to close the Horningsea junction on the Cambridge Northern By-pass, opened less than a year ago. They claim their village is being destroyed by the great influx of traffic, much of it heavy lorries, using the narrow winding road as a short-cut to the by-pass. Residents of the Dudley and Howard Road areas also complained that vast numbers of cars flood through their estates. But councillors say that the point of the junction is to allow traffic to use the main road instead of going through the city streets.

1979 11 27
A group of Cambridge businessmen is prepared to pay the city council up to £1 million for the eight-acre cattle market site off Cherryhinton Road. They want to turn it into a new industrial estate. The site forms part of a large area of derelict land owned by the council and British Rail. Over the years the cattle market has shrunk and now occupies a small area near the main road. The council aims to provide accommodation for small industrial firms and keep close control over development, but some think the businessmen could do a better job and that the money would be 'very useful'

1979 11 27
An expectant mother enters Cambridge's Mill Road Maternity Hospital in one of two ways: through an archway of plastic urine bottles or under a boiler-house chimney stack. In the ante-natal clinic she will jostle for space with dozens of other mothers and give her personal details within earshot of whoever happens to be next to her. She may have to squeeze past other patients in the narrow corridor to take her urine sample to the little window. The corridors are bad enough for people of normal size to pass each other but pregnancy makes it nearly impossible. Should the birth prove difficult she may have to go to the theatre – an ex-Army hut wooden hut built for Dunkirk wounded during the war. The nurses find it a tough place to work, but they're proud of their record – they lose fewer babies than anywhere else in the country. – 79 11 27

1979 11 28
A bullock went on the rampage in Cambridge for several hours, terrifying pedestrians. The half-ton animal – destined for the slaughterhouse – nearly brought rush-hour traffic to a grinding halt. Armed police were called in and combed the city looking for it until a panda car driver spotted the animal running along the road in front of him. It charged in and out of the Eastern Counties bus station in Hills Road, knocked a pensioner off his bike and attacked two pedestrians in Station Road. Then with three police cars on its tail it was cornered in a garden at Highsett but escaped by leaping over a panda car and the chase started again. A wall was partly-demolished and three police cars damaged before it was finally herded into the cattle market pen.

1979 11 29
A further 15-mile stretch of the M11 between Bishop's Stortford and Stump Cross was opened yesterday. Saffron Walden's Town Clerk, Mr Malcolm White, said it must be good for the town and his only worry was that it could be used as an excuse to develop Stansted as London's third airport. He believed the new road, which in places has only two lanes, could not cope with the amount of traffic such an airport would bring. And police warned it could lead to more crime as robbers would come down from London, though they might stay on the M11 and attack towns to the north.

1979 11 29
A new mini-roundabout and one-way system designed to reduce traffic jams near Newmarket's clock tower junction has opened for a six-month experimental period. Traffic lights have been replaced and a new one-way system introduced in Exeter Road. "In Cambridge mini-roundabouts have worked extremely well and we hope they will work here" a council official said. At present a traffic warden or policeman is on duty at the junction in the mornings to keep traffic moving. But motorists must take care: there will be a lot of jockeying for positions and they must make clear signals

1979 11 30
Sawston council tenants are living in rusty steel houses – the result of a bulk buy 10 years ago by South Cambridgeshire District Council. The houses were built by Spicer's in the 1930s and bought by the council in the 1960s as a temporary accommodation. They are made of steel frames with steel plate infill panels riveted on but now many of the rivets have dropped out. In some places the steel plate has rusted so much that a fist can be put right through and tenants complain that they can hear everything going on the neighbouring houses. The only solution is to remove the houses completely or use them as 'sin bins' – interior homes for bad tenants

Robots, p25

December 1979 CEN

1979 12 03
Two moves to make the A45 Midlands-East Coast trunk road more attractive to lorry drivers have failed to win Government action. Councillors had asked the Minister of Transport to raise the lorry speed limit from the present 40 mph to 60 mph and remedy the present lack of services – fuel, food and lavatories. Although the road is dual carriageway from Cambridge to Ipswich the drivers find it unattractive and continue to use overburdened local roads such as the A604

1979 12 04
Cambridge councillors and top officials entered the Mayor's Guildhall office and retrieved documents he had impounded after a furious showdown earlier in the day. The documents relate to a bitter ten-year planning wrangle over plans for a house in Orchard Street. The seizure of the papers was described as an unprecedented step and now the Mayor has called for the Chief Executive and the City Secretary and Solicitor to be relieved of their duties until a full inquiry is held.

1979 12 05
Crucial meetings are to be held over plans for saving the Cambridgeshire sugar beet industry. Farmers are being asked to make ten percent cuts when they were already producing less than the present quota. The county has 63,000 acres of beet which is treated at factories like Ely before going on to processing outlets. It is a crop which confronts farmers with many uncertainties over prices for a highly mechanised crop which is expensive to harvest and vulnerable to weather and disease. But the biggest headache is the political wrangle now the Eurocrats of Brussels are casting their shadow over its future.

1979 12 05
The Downham Market by-pass, an important section of the multi-million pound A10 improvement plan has now opened. Together with the Denver-Southery improvements a full 10-miles of new road will be open by next spring, providing by-passes round all the important villages. Plans for a major improvement of the road between Brandon Creek and Littleport were however withdrawn in a review of roads policy last year

1979 12 05
The Duke of Edinburgh was cheered by more than 1,000 pupils when visited Sawston Village College to mark its 50th anniversary. But there to meet him were also some of the very first pupils of Britain's first village college which opened on 30th October 1930. They were Ron Brown who was number three on the register and is now a printing supervisor, Douglas Page now Marshall's chief pilot and Mrs Josephine Ling who has never really left and is now the school secretary. What started as a school with just 200 pupils now has 1,300 and is also attended by around 2,000 adults a week for evening classes, clubs and societies

1979 12 06
Villagers at Harston, Hauxton and Foxton were spellbound as they watched a swarm of unidentified flying objects dodging around the sky but the entertainment turned to fear when a massive UFO hovered low past the village pub where the regulars called in the police. People hid away indoors rather than face the brilliant flashing lights and others drove off the road to avoid being under the flight paths. Police say there was no local flying and an astronomer said that there had recently been a number of reports of unusual lights in the sky, though nothing like these – 79 12 06

1979 12 06

The bright lights of London have moved a step nearer for motorists with the opening of a new section of M11 motorway; around 10 miles of dual carriageway have also been built on the A10 since 1977 and there has been an extension to the A1 between Hatfield and Hendon. News reporters decided to put the alternative routes to the test with a drive from Cambridge to Marble Arch. The A1 road proved quickest at three hours six minutes, an average speed of 41 mph. The M11 took 43 minutes longer and the A10 was the slowest at an average speed of 29.5 mph

1979
The Ely-Littleport by-pass could be lost if there was too big a fight for last-minute changes, a councillor warned. The Ministry of Transport has omitted a link road between the by-pass and the A10 at Chettisham and because of this traffic bound for the north of Ely will have to enter along Downham Road and the narrow Egremont Street to get to most of the factory areas. But while a link road is desirable it is not essential and is economic. The council wants a lorry park at Chettisham which could form part of any future link road.

1979 12 08
Drummer Street, p1

1979 12 10
Corn Exchange, p3
UFO, p5
Cottenham, p10

1979 12 11
The landlord of the Star in Station Road Waterbeach did not want to put 'just another beer garden' behind his pub so he has installed a mini-menagerie. Already there are a range of pheasants, a couple of guinea fowl, two goats with a taste for beer, a dozen rabbits and a collection of fan-tail doves. Dave Halsey hopes to install a duck pond and a stable for a 17-hand white percheron horse. He has also become a hoarder of agricultural bygones and the pub is fitted out with various tack. People are always bringing him extra things to display on his walls.

1979 12 11
While Trinity, St John's and King's decide how to invest their multi-million incomes the all-women Lucy Cavendish College looks forward to the day when it can pay its staff their worth. Everyone is part time except the college bursar and the secretary. People are not paid anything like commercial rates and although bankruptcy isn't imminent they are not sure whether they will be a viable proposition in 50 years' time, says the new President, Lady Bowden.

1979 12 12
The old Doric Cinema at Newmarket has been transformed into a Variety Club. An evening's entertainment, including a four-course meal will cost about £10 per person for a really complete and enjoyable night. On New Years Eve there is a tribute to Elvis, featuring Claudette Newman and the New Jersey Express. Later attractions will include The Searchers, the Rockin' Berries and other bands that have performed all over Europe. Sunday evenings will be a mixture of country and western, jazz and rock and roll

1979 12 14
Still-born babies are being ferried by taxi from Cambridge's maternity hospital to the mortuary at Addenbrooke's Hospital because of inadequate facilities at Mill Road. Twice a week a hospital porter makes the grisly two-mile journey carrying an anonymous coffin – a small stone-coloured metal box. This morbid shuttle-service accounts for just a few of the two dozen emergency runs made each week by S & H Taxis, often with a police escort to beat the traffic jams.

'Wild West' drama, p5

1979 12 13
Weeks after the official opening of the latest section of the M11 motorway, traffic noise has driven the people of Wenden's Ambo to take action. Villagers noticed the noise as soon as the motorway opened; "It was such a quiet village before: now you cannot walk out of the door without hearing traffic roaring past, even at three in the morning", said Alan Lovett. They believe much of the noise comes from the concrete finish and want a quieter surface to be laid together with anti-noise fencing and double-glazing. Nor has it improved their connection with London: the nearest interchange is five miles away in the wrong direction.

Fulbourn bells, p11

1979 12 14
Still-born babies, p21

1979 12 15
Grantchester Meadows sale, p4

1979 12 17
Anger has mounted following the Government's announcement at Stansted Airport could be expanded to 15 million passengers a year. The fury is mingled with frustration because they intend to hold yet another public inquiry – despite two previous hearings having rejected large-scale growth. Essex county council want to know the precise limits, if any, the Government is proposing on eventual growth and the detailed proposals of the British Airports Authority for further development.

1979 12 17
A new report on the expansion of Stansted Airport says it would 'take in' the village of Molehill Green near Elsenham. 350 caravans would have to be removed and 170 houses destroyed. It also speaks of the 'loss' – whether through closure or demolition is not made clear – of two churches and 14 listed buildings. In all about 1,200 people might have to be displaced. The proposals do not involve re-aligning the runway. Road access to the M11 would take the form of a junction south of Bishop's Stortford and the road between Harlow and London would need to be widened to provide four lanes before the full 50 million passenger capacity was reached.

Salisbury Arms, p12-13

1979 12 18
Stansted plans, p5
Regent Street plans, p17

1979 12 19
Current proposals for expanding Stansted Airport do not mean the creation of a new town, planners say. It will require no more than 15,000 employees and these will be recruited from the ranks of those commuting to London. But another report says 15,000 new homes will be required resulting in an increase of 45,000 people when wives and children are taken into account. For the ultimate 50-million-passenger airport 70,000 homes would be needed for a population of 210,000.

1979 12 20
Thriplow grain plant, p4
Gipsy site, p10
Microfilm, p10

1979 12 22
Every Sunday morning the rector of Bartlow expects to see no more than half-a-dozen worshippers in the church. This does not bode well for the 14th-century church with its Norman round tower. Heating, lighting and insurance costs £6 a week. If it were made redundant a secular body would pour money into it but the closure would cause great sadness to Bob Harvey who has been churchwarden for 22 years. He takes care of the building despite crippling arthritis in his hands. Restoration work must be carried out to the stonework and roof and this will cost about £3,000; half will come from grants, but only if the village meets the rest.

1979 12 24
Christmas punters on the Cam were astonished when confronted by a Royal Navy submarine laying quietly at anchor near Queens' College. HMS Zander, one of the new shallow-draught killer submarines arrived under the cover of darkness ending an incredible 10-hour voyage from the coast. The appearance of the sub, armed with the latest American missiles, marked the successful conclusion of a naval exercise designed to test its ability to navigate hostile waters undetected. [An article from a 'Spoof' supplement to the News of 24th December 1979]

Cambridgeshire grant, p3
'Boat people', p11

1979 12 27
'Red' Rudi Dutschke, the German revolutionary who provided Cambridge undergraduates with a cause celebre which rocked the university, has died. He slipped into Britain in 1968 for medical treatment for a bullet wound received during a demonstration in Berlin. He was offered a place at Clare Hall so that he could continue his studies here and did not take part in active politics. But when Home Secretary Reginald Maudling refused to allow him to stay dons protested and the Cambridge Students' Union mounted its first-ever national march in London. It was to no avail and Rudi left in 1971. But when Mr Maudling agreed to meet his critics it took the biggest security operation ever in Cambridge to protect the meeting at The Leys School. – 79 12 27

Saffron Walden fire, p15

1979 12 28
Sales queue, p16
Sporting '70s, p29

1979 12 29
Optica plane, p7

1979 12 31
Jean Barker peerage, p5

1980 Cambridge Evening News

Most of these were copied by the digital camera
They have a code – 80 01 03 – 1980 Jan 03

January 1980 CEN

1980 01 02
Hardwick café

1980 01 03
Cambridge University is facing a bleak future. After the austerity and penny-pinching of the 1970s the 1980s are heralded by contraction, cutbacks in finance and a warning that they should prepare for a reduction in student intake. This is a setback of immense proportions. In addition Government-imposed fee rises for overseas students are certain to reduce their numbers. Dons point out that their resources are not endless and cuts in teaching and research mean that present levels of operation are guaranteed only for the present year. Even if fortunes changed overnight the university would take some time to recover lost ground.

1980 01 03
Girton College has one of the country's most unusual orchards. It boasts about 153 trees representing 83 varieties of rustic English apples. The oldest are some Blenheim Orange apples which date back 90 years. They have been the pride and joy of Bill Stringer who is retiring after 32 years on the college staff. But the survival of the orchard could depend on the continuing interest of his successor. Already picking has become a problem with the loss of casual labour and there is no desire to use the apples for college meals as instant cooking phases out demand for apple dumpling or charlottes. In addition the college has sold land for the Cambridge Northern by-pass which will put pressure on the remainder as the student intake grows.

St John founder, p3
Ely garage, p10

1980 01 04
One of the strangest new shapes in the sky has lifted off the runway with its Elsworth designer, John Edgley sitting next to a test pilot. His aircraft, the Optica, has been nicknamed the Bug Eye because of its odd looks. The cabin is a Perspex bubble and it is designed to have the low-speed capability of a helicopter but be as cheap and easy to fly as a conventional light aircraft, making it an economical observation plane. Its future roles could include powerline inspection, fire-watching, traffic patrol and pleasure flying

Edwards etchings, p22
Gwydir Street VE, p24

1980 01 07
It is quite possible that by 1990 the people of Cambridgeshire will review the previous decade and say to themselves: "Weren't we lucky". By then the area's trunk-road system should be complete, the London-Cambridge main railway line electrified and Stansted Airport established as a convenient centre for domestic and international traffic. Of course the people of 1990 may say no such thing. South Cambridgeshire may be complaining of too much noise, too much house-building and rocketing house prices whereas areas of the fens may still lack the new jobs they need

Farmers watch bank, p3

1980 01 08
Transplantation, p8

1980 01 09
Tissue rejection, p7

1980 01 10
Customers at Cherry's Stores in Norwich Street, Cambridge, have said goodbye to the couple who have run the shop for 34 years. Lionel Cherry and his wife Kathleen took over in 1946 and built up a business which, in days when petrol was cheaper, offered a free delivery service to Newnham and Arbury. The shop was the place where Robert Sayle started as a draper and has been a grocers for more than 100 years, owned in all that time by just three shopkeepers. It will be the end of a long family connection with the trade. Mr Cherry's uncle had a shop on the junction of Arbury and Milton Roads which became known as Cherry's Corner

1980 01 10
Cambridge United has agreed to sell record goalkeeper, Alan Biley to First Division Derby for £450,000. The 22-year-old striker was signed on a free transfer from Luton five years ago. United manager John Docherty said "With our resources we cannot afford to hang on to players like Alan. We do not have the money to sign Jimmy Calderwood after spending £140,000 on George Riley. We have spent more than £200,000 this year".

1980 01 11
Clare Town Hall is in danger of collapsing over people's heads. Around £4,500 is required immediately to fix the leaking tiled roof but this is just the tip of the problem. The Edwardian-built hall is cold, bare and dank and needs money to be spent on it to make it more attractive. It does not provide facilities for things like snooker, badminton, plays and concerts. The only alternative is a purpose-build centre which could cost £80,000 excluding the land.

1980 01 11
Reports of a UFO which held Harston villagers spellbound have been received from other parts of the world. A researcher who investigated the phenomenon says they appear to be genuine descriptions of an unknown technology. Other reports have been received locally. Desmond January, a Cambridge estate agent, said he watched a line of three white lights which he thought at first were helicopters, but there was no noise and one shot away at right angles up into the sky. Another resident of Hauxton reported something similar that evening while on New Year's Day a lady described seeing a dark cylindrical object pass over her home in Hills Road, Cambridge. The following day two teenagers at Girton told of a light 'burning like magnesium ribbon'

CRO guide, p26

1980 01 12
Dr Russell Wortley, one of the country's best-known folklorists, has died. He was out with the Cambridge Morris Men for their Plough Monday celebrations when he collapsed. He was behind the revival of the custom of Molly dancing on Plough Monday; it had disappeared long ago but he revived it in its Jubilee year. On the national scene he was bagman (secretary) of the Morris Ring for many years in the 1950s. A former editor of the English Folk Song and Dance Society Journal he was an expert on folk music, seeking out and recording many local songs and dances. He also played a variety of old instruments.

1980 01 15
Self-sufficient homes, p4

1980 01 18
Cambridge Corn Exchange could be converted into a £1.5 million concert hall and entertainment centre after councillors voted to seek specialist advice. The Common Market is to be asked for a grant and the Arts Council will be approached for help. Some of the money the council hopes to raise from the sale of surplus land and profits from the Lottery may also go towards it. There were several voices of dissent but Coun Maurice Garner said: "It is not an elaborate and grandiose scheme. The Corn Exchange is hardly fit for use today and we must take action

University Library friends, p16

1980 01 21
Skateboard – where did all the Cambridge wheelies go?, p7 – 80 01 21

1980 01 22
A man, described by the judge as a psychopath, was jailed for life for setting fire to St Mary Magdalene Church, Ickleton. He told the court he had decided to burgle Hinxton church but had panicked when he heard the organ being played and left, leaving behind his burglar's tools. He went to Ickleton and stole a set of handbells which he wrapped in a cassock before setting fire to the church using a candle. He was arrested while making his getaway. 80 01 22

1980 01 23
The Cambridge police Patrol Group was set up in 1977. It is allocated specific targets and is free to concentrate on them until the problems are solved. Following outbreaks of crime such as handbag snatching or stolen bicycles they will 'flood' an area in an intensive detection campaign. The results are impressive with 97 arrests in recent months and a drop of 400 in the number of crimes recorded last year coupled with an increase of 500 in the number of prisoners arrested. 80 01 23

1980 01 24
A shortage of water hampered firemen at Fulbourn when one of the biggest fires for many years caused about £100,000 damage to a garage workshop. The blaze left a trail of destruction including five cars that were little more than charred wrecks. It broke out in a converted Victorian railway goods store which once formed part of Fulbourn station. Only the shell survives now. Nearby was an industrial complex which included huge chemical and paint storage warehouses and a large agricultural engineering business. 80 01 24

1980 01 24
A cat-lover who has lived in a derelict pre-war bus for the last 10 years says she is being driven mad trying to find a proper home. She shares the converted double-decker with her cats at Button End, Harston. It has no electricity, no running water, no sanitation; the roof and sides are collapsing and water pours in when it rains. Because of the damp she is unable to live in the lower deck and the upper one is lit by oil lamps. For warmth and cooking she uses a small paraffin heater. She says her six cats have been persistently ill. Things were not so bad when she first bought the bus: "It was really quite sweet but then it suddenly started to go to pot after one rainy winter", she said. 80 01 24a

1980 01 24
Jim Borley is not the oldest working blacksmith in the area but at 80 he is defying old age with a daily stint at the Teversham forge where he still makes gates and pokers, quite apart from specialised fittings for a general engineering business carried on by his two sons. He still likes a pint – his thirst developed when his blacksmith's shop used to be opposite the local and he could see the landlord pulling pints as he sweated it out before the lunch break. The village did not let his birthday pass un-noticed and 120 guests crammed into a local hall for a knees-up with Jim setting them alight with some of his favourite Gilbert and Sullivan numbers and one or two saucier items. Jim works on. He will do so until he drops because he wants an interest, although he cannot shoe horses any more as bending is difficult. 80 01 24b

1980 01 25
An imaginative plan to breathe life into the redundant church of All Saints in Jesus Lane, Cambridge was unveiled by the Bishop of Ely. The diocese is seeking planning approval for an ambitious scheme to put most of the church back into regular use while retaining the architectural features that make it a distinctive Victorian building. If the scheme does not go through, the only future for the church, was closed in 1983, will be demolition or as an empty shell requiring £100,000 of immediate repairs. 80 01 25

St Neots signal box, p12

1980 01 26
Ely station has again been chosen as the Motorail terminal for the whole of East Anglia. It will offer a Thursday and Saturday overnight service to Stirling. The service was switched from Cambridge and has been so successful there is now a doubt whether it will ever return. This season's fares will mean a car and family of four travelling by sleeper at peak times will pay £156.50 for return tickets. 80 01 26

1980 01 29
The ZX80 personal computer was launched by Sinclair research of Cambridge. It can be used in the office, the factory and the home. The creator, Mr Clive Sinclair, says any child of 10 with normal arithmetical ability could use it. The new machine is smaller than anything of comparable performance and also four times as cheap. In kit form it costs £77.95 and a completely-built version will be available in March at £99.95. It can be plugged into an ordinary television set or standard computers. The 'software' can be operated through a standard tape cassette and it comes with a 130-page, step-by-step manual. 80 01 29

Sewage, p7

1980 01 30
The new magistrates' courts, perched above the Lion Yard car park have been built to last for the next 100 years at a cost of £1.7 million. Some wonder how Cambridge managed to acquire such an expensive addition to the skyline in these times of stringent public spending cuts, the answer seems to be that it won its case just in time. Today the verdict would be different. After years of less-than-satisfactory courtroom conditions we have something of a showpiece. Compared to the old courts the new carpeted building is luxury itself. "From boarding house to Hilton" was how one prison officer described it. In fact the only criticism is that some people will consider the edifice 'too good'
80 01 30

February 1980 CEN

1980 02 01
George Arnold is carrying on a family tradition. For the last 40 years he has been pindar of Landbeach, a post his father held before him. He is responsible for rounding up any stray farm animals and locking them in the parish pound next to the church. The job is unpaid but he can charge owners for releasing the animals and sell unclaimed beasts after a month and keep the cash. The last time he had any animals in the pound was two years ago when six cows escaped from a field but he didn't have the heart to fine the owner. In the old days pindars could charge 6d for every animal; that was worth half a day's pay. 80 02 01

Dead bodies, p11

1980 02 02
Caxton magistrates sat for the last time before moving to the new court building at Lion Yard, Cambridge. Some looked back through their old records going back to 1863 when courts were sometimes held in a magistrate's house or the local pub. Sentences were severe, particularly for theft. One man was jailed for 14 days with hard labour in 1864 for stealing potatoes and next year a 13-year old from Chesterton was sent to a reformatory for three years for stealing a concertina worth five shillings. Cambridge City Magistrates Court in the Guildhall also closed; it had been the starting point for many trials but working conditions were now very difficult. 80 02 02

Drinking, p1

1980 02 05
A Cambridge housewife is walking on air following news that her first novel has been accepted for publication. Mrs Linda Sole has been writing for five years but now Robert Hale has accepted her manuscript and 'The Witch Child', a historical romance should be in book shops shortly. Mrs Sole originally wanted to be a journalist, but people talked her out of it. She will write under the pseudonym of Lynn Granville 80 02 05

1980 02 07
Cambridge Airport is preparing for their biggest-ever summer season of flights to the Channel Islands. Jersey European Airways, successors to Intra Airways which has operated the service for the past eight years is planning a weekly total of 14 return flights from April. Most passengers will travel by 48-seater turbo-prop Herald aircraft though a flight to Guernsey will be by a 60-seater Viscount 700 aircraft. Fares have risen steeply since last year. A peak adult return fare has gone up from £46 to £72. Flight time is one hour 20 minutes 80 02 07

Papworth, p11
Bungalows, p12

1980 02 08
Nearly 50 squatters crammed into a tiny room in a derelict house at Fitzroy Street, Cambridge, to stop council workmen from demolishing the building. City councillors were on the scene of the biggest confrontation between squatters and squads of police who failed to persuade them to move. Both sides are preparing for a long-drawn out confrontation. The workmen intended to demolish a whole row of property between Christchurch Street and Napier Street to make way for the first phase of the controversial Kite shopping and parking scheme. Councillors opposing the demolition are trying to see what action can be taken to halt the work. 80 02 08

1980 02 08
Albert Gillett is fast gaining the reputation as 'The Bird Man of the Fens'. At his home at Black Horse Drove he has a collection of almost 200 British and foreign birds. The air is filled with clucks, coos, quacks, squawks and screams from birds of every size and description. At the back door visitors are met by the odd goose looking for a tasty morsel or a few bantams. Mr Gillett, who runs the post office, started his collection three years ago. Now all the cages, aviaries, pens and runs are filled with pigeons, ducks, doves, love birds and parakeets, to name but a few. But he is hoping to add larger varieties such as parrots. 80 02 08a

Milton bridge, p16

1980 02 09
A dark spectre with a high collar and spiky hair has been terrifying staff at the Oyster Tavern in Northampton Street, Cambridge. The ghost has been seen twice in three weeks in the pub's downstairs bar by the manager's wife and a barmaid. They saw the figure standing in the middle of the bar about midnight; it did not move and they could not see any details of its clothes. The bar is the oldest part of the building and used to be a grocer's shop. There has been a history of strange happenings at the pub but they are not planning to have the ghost exorcised as it seems quite friendly. 80 02 09

Haverhill pool, p5

1980 02 11
A silent protest against Dr Billy Graham went wrong in Cambridge when students missed their man. The protesting Students Against Mass Indoctrination had waited for an hour but then marched off to another church. Seconds later the Evangelist arrived at Great St Mary's Church with singer Cliff Richard and walked unnoticed into the church. Even the students who had been left behind did not realise they had missed their man. His address attracted a large crowd and many disappointed people had to be turned away at the door 80 02 11

1980 02 12
South Cambridgeshire District Councillors agreed an extension to their offices costing nearly £1½ m in spite of opposition which claimed the move was ill-timed in the light of Government cuts. At present their administration is divided between Great Eastern House, in Station Road and South Cambridgeshire Hall about a quarter of a mile away. The aim is to sell off this site for offices which would help offset costs of the new council chamber and car park. But some say there would be more advantages in developing a site outside Cambridge with a city office to deal with the public. 80 02 12

1980 02 13
Census, p13

1980 02 14
The old University hockey ground in Newnham hasn't been played on for years, but the pavilion was used as headquarters for various groups until 14 months ago. Since then it's stood idle and is now vandalised – a tragic misuse of facilities. The University sold the site to Granta Housing Society in order to raise money to buy more urgently needed land in the west of Cambridge and they now have planning permission for 53 homes with building scheduled to go ahead any day now. They have offered the University Hare and Hounds Society the use of the pavilion again but the cross-country club, who now meet at the bottom of a staircase in Queens' College say it needs too much work. 80 02 14

Taxis, p9

1980 02 15
Ciba-Geigy is planning a new railway link to their site at Duxford which would mean 13,000 fewer lorries passing through local villages. At present the plastics factory is served by two sidings, one in Great Chesterford and the other at Whittlesford. Loading and unloading is carried out by a fleet of lorries including a tanker for highly inflammable methanol. Their journeys lead through narrow winding streets. But if they obtain a rail freight facilities grant it would provide a spur line into the site; however they need permission for a railway crossing on the Hinxton road. Nearly everybody likes the idea. 80 02 15

1980 02 16
A major row over whether Papworth Hospital's heart unit should be moved to Cambridge has escalated. Consultants want it to be moved to Hills Road with all its specialist and support facilities but officials from two Area Health Authorities say the site is already overcrowded. There is an upper limit of 950 beds at New Addenbrooke's and already have to fit in a replacement for Mill Road Hospital and a psychiatric unit. They believe Papworth should be transferred to the new Hinchinbrook Hospital 80 02 16

1980 02 19
A butcher's run by the Griggs family for three generations is closing because of new more stringent health regulations, though there have been no complaints about hygiene standards. Ickleton, which one had a wide range of shops, will be reduced to a grocer's and a post office & the 500 villagers will have to travel to Sawston or Saffron Walden. The problem arises because the Council wanted an extension for lavatories and hand basins for the two men working in the shop who currently use the facilities in the owner's home. But the shop is not making enough profit to pay for it. 80 02 19

Barley pub, p9

1980 02 20
One of Cambridgeshire's few remaining traditional bakers, Mr John Edward Wright (known as Ted) has died. He built up the Copper Kettle firm & supplied bread to shops all over Cambridge. He moved to Haddenham at the end of the war and later opened a bakery and shop in Halifax Road, Cambridge as well as in Sutton & Cottenham. He also ran the Copper Kettle tea shop at one time. He always took great pride in the fact that his bread was always made the traditional way with no additives 80 02 20

1980 02 20
The owner of Ronelles disco restaurant in Lion Yard Cambridge is delighted with the response to the Caribbean / Polynesian theme used in the décor. He felt there was no point in providing first-class surroundings, a sophisticate atmosphere and good meals if they were to allow customers to come there in jeans and sweaters. So he warned that "scruffs" would be turned away. Would-be members are also vetted before being accepted. Admission varies from £2 to £3 and main courses in the restaurant vary from chargrilled chicken at £2.40 to duck a l'orange at under £5. Bar prices are only a few pence above the average 80 02 20a

1980 02 22
Cambridge Western by-pass has opened nearly five years after the tape was cut on the first section of the M11. It has been held up by public inquiries, redesigned and delayed for lack of cash. It has suffered strikes, torrents of rain and banks of snow. But the greatest single event in its history was the public inquiry which achieved notoriety as the longest-ever hearing in the British Isles. It took 72 days of hearings spread over six months to explore every nook, cranny and cubbyhole to the horizons of tedium and beyond. At the finish the Inspector remarked "I do hope I survive long enough to write my report. For all your sakes" 80 02 22a

1980 02 22
Everyone knows what the impact of the M11 will be. It will make most villages quieter, and Cambridge less congested; it will send up house prices and increase London commuting; it will encourage travel and assist local industry; it will attract more industry; and it will mean more crime. The big question in every case is 'to what extent'. And here no one knows the answer. More commuting will mean more new homes but these will be for first-time buyers who require the lowest-possible price housing which will lead to mean construction and tight estates. This will bring a hostile reaction from the established residents. And many will discover they have overestimated their ability to afford commuting and mortgage costs and are forced to move elsewhere. 80 02 22b

1980 02 26
Already the new Western Bypass is having the desired effect in the Castle Hill area of Cambridge. Thomas Whitelaw whose window overlooks the street said: "Normally the heavy traffic starts at about 7.30 am and you get convoys of 12 to 15 heavy lorries every few minutes sending vibrations right through the house. Now it is much quieter". But in Wendens Ambo villagers are demanding a new road surface, soundproof barriers and double glazing, saying the peace and quiet of their village has been ruined since the new section of the M11 opened nearby 80 02 26

1980 02 26
Squatters have become a way of life in parts of Cambridge. A bloke called Bleep started it all in 1975 when he somehow entered 13 James Street and called it home. Squatting in the Kite had begun. Numbers swelled, including students, doctors, nurses, research students and the unemployed. They came simply because they were homeless and the Kite had lots of empty houses which could stay empty for years until the time came for demolition. A lot of residents are sympathetic and appreciate having people squatting rather than an empty property next door to them. Some who have left the area have handed over their keys or deliberately left doors open 80 02 26a

1980 02 27
Senior dons at Girton are pursuing an astonishing plan to link their college with Cambridge by railway. They are proposing a mono-rail link which would run mainly at ground level on university and college-owned land to the Sidgwick Avenue arts site and University Library. The main difficulties are the high cost of the project, which would need to cross the Huntingdon and Madingley Roads and the delicate negotiations with other colleges. The college's undergraduates have to cycle two miles in all weathers to attend lectures and many have been injured in road accidents. But two recent changes may ensure it is never built: the opening of the Western By-pass has reduced the amount of traffic and there will soon be a cycle lane. 80 02 27

1980 02 28
Witcham wizardry, p12

1980 02 29
Agricultural land prices, p19

March 1980 CEN

1980 03 03
Despite Dick Emery's popularity on television his show at Cambridge Sports was a non-event. Here was an ageing gentleman telling hoary old jokes; his material was awful, he meandered off stage, down into the hall, like a lost soul searching for intimacy. Of course there were Emery fans in the house who laughed and applauded his patter and a couple of comic characterisations – an old man and a flashily-dressed gossiping woman. But the funniest moment saw the old girl lifting her dress to reveal Union Jack knickers. Any artist is likely to die the proverbial stage death when he comes up against an audience as receptive as last week's plum pudding and the Hall's acoustics didn't help. This was one occasion when a Cambridge audience belied its reputation for generosity. As for the supporting acts – well it's charitable to be brief 80 03 03

1980 03 04
Seat belts, p9

1980 03 06
No-one can accurately foresee what will happen in eight years from now – which is the time span said to be needed for Stansted Airport to expand to 15 million passengers a year. This means taking another 1500 acres of land to accommodate a new terminal and better access facilities. In addition the Government invites the Airports Authority to define another 2,500 acres to allow for a second runway capable of handling 25 m passengers and ultimately a stage three to handle 50 m passengers a year. In short they have put forward a plan to make Stansted a third major airport for London 80 03 06a

1980 03 07
Traffic scheme, p11

1980 03 10
A new pub has opened at Over; before last summer the building was just a tumbledown farm hand's cottage, now it is the Poplar Farm Inn. The whole place was gutted with new ceilings and furniture installed by the landlord and a couple of lads from the village. None had any experience in the building trade and learned as they went along. In the week it has been open the pub has been packed out every night and there are plans to introduce bar snacks and a restaurant. 80 03 10

1980 03 11
The University Arms Hotel, Cambridge, will be using some of the latest technology in solar heating to help provide hot water and cut fuel bills. Solar panels will be built on the roof. Water pumped through them is heated by the sun's radiation and stored in a 2,000 gallon tank. The oil bill for the hotel only drops by half in the summer even though no central heating is used, last year it was £27,000. Now they hope the new £25,000 scheme will become economic within a few years. They are also looking at heat exchangers to make use of wasted heat from the laundry. 80 03 11

1980 03 12
The Cambridgeshire Hunt's most distinguished member is Col. Geoffrey Hurrell. He has been High Sheriff, Lord Lieutenant, President of the East of England Agricultural Association and an organiser of the Horse of the Year Show. On the day before his 80th birthday he rode alongside fellow hunters at Abbotsley. He was presented with two bottles of vintage port by the chairman of the Hunt Supporters' Club as a token of thanks for his wholehearted support of the hunt. Col Hurrell said: "I would not have lived half so long if I had not been so well looked after and had so many friends. This hunting business keeps you young." 80 03 12

1980 03 13
More details have been released of the amazing project to run a mono-rail between Girton College and Cambridge. The Swiss system employs a steel rail carried on concrete pillars about 20 feet above the ground. Electrically-powered trains carrying 100 people in two 50-seater cars would run five journeys each way at rush hour at a speed of 30 mph. It would do the journey in five minutes. The train would not be obtrusive and would make less noise than a motorcar. The scheme would cost about £500,000 and need a private Act of Parliament. 80 03 13

1980 03 13
New plans for Drummer Street bus station have provoked widespread criticism from councillors. The two-storey building to accommodate offices and waiting facilities is a large transparent structure with a domed roof. But Coun Peter Wright said: "It looks like a large greenhouse; to see anything like that going up in the middle of a conservation area is absolutely unbelievable". Maurice Garner said: "I cannot say I like it – but nothing can be worse than what we have". It would be difficult for handicapped people to reach the upper floor waiting rooms. 80 03 13a

1980 03 13
Villagers do not often welcome the idea of urbanisation – but that is what Fowlmere did eight years ago when they approved plans to increase their population. County Planners put aside extra land for housing saying that with the completion of the M11 there would be increased demand from commuters wishing to live there. But the Hunting Gate project was rejected by SCDC, which did not believe the development was needed locally. Now a Government Inspector has approved it; some of the houses in the £33,000 price range have already been reserved. 80 03 13b

1980 03 14
It has been a remarkable 24 hours for Papworth Hospital; first came the surprise donation of £300,000 from David Robinson, the Newmarket multi-millionaire which assures their heart transplant programme until 1982 and then Government announced another £100,000 to be spent on the operating theatres and other improvements. This makes Papworth the country's only Government-funded heart transplant centre. The news delighted Mr Terence English and his transplant team. 80 03 14

1980 03 14
Multi-millionaire David Robinson gives away money, but little else. His donation to fund heart transplants at Papworth is his second gift to Cambridge after Robinson College. But there could have been a third gift of £3 million for a concert hall. The deal fell through after hard words in 1977. He also withdrew an offer to fund a swimming pool in Newmarket. Today having sold his jet, his Scottish estate and string of racehorses he lives in a modest bungalow. Being mentioned in newspapers dismays Mr Robinson but his sheer acts of generosity have brought him publicity and his name has been immortalised in the title of the college he founded. 80 03 14a

1980 03 14
Railwayman Charlie Langford is going to have a comfortable retirement thanks to the passengers who pass through Shepreth station. For at a surprise presentation in the Plough pub he was given his favourite office chair as a gift from the commuters who use the line. "I will use it instead of my armchair, it's much more comfortable' he said. He was also given a painting of the station and a first-day cover with British Rail commemorative stamps. 80 03 14c

1980 03 14
Waffles' waffles have been selling like hot cakes in Cambridge for seven years. Now the small Kite café has been mentioned in the Egon Ronay guide 'Just A Bite'. "Queues of hungry students form outside the door every evening at this most welcoming of little cafes", it writes. But Waffles' days at its present address are numbered because the little shop on the corner of Gold Street and Fitzroy Street is marked for demolition as part of the Kite redevelopment programme. Set in a devastated urban wasteland of rubble and decaying brick the café with its steamy windows, Edwardian interior and babbling conversation provides a friendly island of humanity. 80 03 14d

1980 03 17
More than 2,000 people marched through Cambridge on Saturday to protest at plans to site Cruise missiles in East Anglia. Shoppers watched the protestors, who included political and religious groups such as Quakers and Japanese Buddhist monks. They carried models of a missile and a nuclear submarine. It was the biggest demonstration for years and was followed by a debate between Defence Secretary Francis Pym and prominent peace campaigner Lord Soper. 80 03 17

1980 03 19
Ely has got its traffic problems neatly sorted out nowadays. On Thursdays it is more difficult to park because of the market which is a big attraction. But for the rest of the week the market square is available for free parking and it us quite easy to find a space. Day-trippers with the energy to spare might still prefer to park in the huge car park below the cathedral. One of the most interesting developments has been an important warehouse and industrial development close to the centre whose occupiers include Dorman Sprayers, Verl Vale Ltd and Powerstream Engineering. 80 03 19

1980 03 21
Villages either side of the A505 trunk road have been given a reprieve from plans which would have meant an enormous increase in traffic. The road which runs from Luton via Baldock and Royston, is already the most heavily used single-carriageway road in Cambridgeshire and was to have become part of a major trunk route from South Wales to the East Coast ferry ports. But now the Government says work is unlikely to go ahead because of cuts in the road-building programme. 80 03 21a

An 18th-century house in Abbotsley was destroyed in a £40,000 blaze. Caldecote Lodge, built mainly of timber, was burnt to the ground leaving just the brick chimney stacks standing. The house, a former hunting lodge, was empty at the time. Vic Roberts, landlord of the Plough Inn, said "It is tragic for the village because it was a beautiful old building" 80 03 21b

A row of medieval cottages in Silver Street Ely are to be given a new life in a programme of restoration by Cambridgeshire Cottage Improvement Society that will return them to the condition of 'desirable homes'. They were bought some years ago by the late H.C. Hughes, a Cambridge architect, who devoted much energy to the restoration of old buildings. When he died he bequeathed them to the Society in the hope they would carry out his original intention of seeing them restored. It has been a period of crisis for the Society because the market for old cottages has spiralled beyond their means and through the death of their tireless chairman, Geoffrey Wood. 80 03 21c

1980 03 24
Rail transport enthusiasts who want the Cambridge to St Ives branch line re-opened have hired a 10-coach Inter-City train. It will set off from Swavesey station and call at Longstanton, Oakington and Histon before running non-stop to Liverpool Street. The branch line closed to passengers in October 1970 but the track has been kept open by block freight trains carrying Spanish oranges and pulp to Cadburys at Histon and bringing out sand from Amey Roadstone. But the track has recently been lifted beyond Fen Drayton and the station site at St Ives has been obliterated by the new by-pass. 80 03 24

1980 03 26

Cambridge firemen have uncovered a word puzzle hidden under layers of paint on one of their fire engines. The Rolls Royce-powered Dennis was being restored for displays when what appears to be Arabic lettering was revealed on a locker door. Now the county fire authority wants to know how it got there. They bought the machine brand new in 1952 at a commercial vehicle show and think it might have been lettered on one side to attract wealthy Middle-Eastern buyers. 80 03 26a

1980 03 26
A new survey of four villages near Newmarket has revealed than none has a gas supply, a doctor's surgery, dispensing chemist, library or secondary school – facilities which city-dwellers take for granted. The trend towards less labour has resulted in many cottages and farm houses being sold or rented to non-farming people. Agricultural workers and the gathering of mums at the school gate have disappeared, accelerating the decay of village life. Public transport has been reduced restricting other employment prospects. Incentives are need to encourage private enterprise to invest in village life 80 03 26b

1980 03 27
When Saffron Walden town clerk Malcolm White got a phone call to say that the council owned an aeroplane he suspected the caller was pulling his leg. But he went to Cleales' old motor yard and found a dummy aeroplane that had been given by veterans of the USAF based at Debden during the war. It consisted of a fuselage made from an old bomber fuel tank with wings welded on. The plane is trapped in a 'nosedive' position because of a tree growing up and around it. The council has now to decide what to do with it. 80 03 27a

Easter eggs, p8

1980 03 28
Cambridge's new £1½ million magistrates' courts above the Lion Yard multi-storey car park were officially opened by Prince Philip. Although he claimed to have stopped being surprised at anything he was obviously amused that they had been built on top of a car park, but said that it was often the most eccentric ideas which were the best. He hoped they would be required as little as possible 80 03 28a

1980 03 28
Cambridge United's dramatic transformation from Fourth Division minnows to a respected Second Division club has brought them to heights undreamed of just a couple of years ago. But the shock resignation of two directors raises nagging doubts. They fear the club might be in danger of over-reaching itself financially. There have been examples of clubs sinking back to the lower reaches of the Football League with players' contracts acting like millstones around their necks. However if they had not taken risks they would not probably have been in the Football League today. 80 03 28b

Histon merger, p7
Fire engine, p14
Rosemary branch, p28

1980 03 29
A big security operation surrounded Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and the German Chancellor, Helmut Schmidt, when they flew into Cambridge to attend the 30th Anglo-German Conference which is being held in the city. Their two helicopters landed within minutes of each other on the lawns of Trinity College and the Queen's Flight fire service stood by in case of emergency. They were then whisked to the dinner in a heavily-guarded police convoy 80 03 29

Ronelles, p4

1980 03 31

A 250-strong cavalcade of motor cyclists rode through Cambridge in a protest against the helmet-wearing law. But police were lying in wait and the ride ground to a halt while a dozen riders were booked for not wearing helmets. The protest organised by the Motor Cycle Action Group continued with a police motor cycle escort who held up traffic so that they could all stay together. The Group plans to take their protest to the court of human rights in Strasbourg. 80 03 31

April 1980 CEN

1980 04 02
A1-m1 link, p1
Litlington school, p1

1980 04 03
With the Common Market haggling over the amount of sugar Britain should be allowed to grow more than 2,250 Cambridgeshire growers have been getting on with the job of drilling this year's crop. The British Sugar Corporation has the capacity to deal with 1.12 million tonnes of sugar from home-grown beet but the EEC want to reduce the total output, which could put smaller factories like Ely out of business. Some kind of compromise will probably be reached but the sugar mountain is getting nearly as bad as the butter and beef surpluses and farmers are nervous 80 04 03

Hot-cross buns, p11

1980 04 08
Plans for a community bus to serve the scattered villages to the west of Huntingdon have run into opposition from Whippet Coaches. The West Hunts Community Bus is the result of a County Council study to improve transport and would be operated by Keyston Coaches using a brand new coach. There will be seven main services with a set destination but each could follow a variable route to cater for local demand. Passengers will be able to book buses by telephone 80 04 08a

A march to the American base at Lakenheath by 400 people protesting at the proposed siting of nuclear Cruise missiles in East Anglia passed off peacefully. A letter of protest was handed to the base commander while the protestors listened to speeches. One note of discord among the banners proclaiming 'Uncle Sam, Take your Missiles and Scram' and 'American Roulette' was a group of young people displaying a banner with the words 'Yes to Missiles' 80 04 08b

1980 04 09
Hartford sign, p8

1980 04 10
Major alterations have been made to the Cambridge Arms in King Street ensuring the conservation of the old Cambridge Brewery building which has stood semi-derelict since brewing ceased in 1925. It was established by George Scales in 1866 and then supplied 13 public houses. The new Scales Bar extends beneath the old brewing floor and features brick arches which supports the heavy coppers and chimney on the upper level. Various items of brewing equipment that were removed for safe keeping have now been returned and are displayed. 80 04 10

Foxton church model, p5
St Neots library, p10

1980 04 14
Stoke-by-Clare is the home of the Lusitano Stud and Equestrian Centre, the only stables to offer dressage instruction using horses trained strictly along classical lines. Lord Henry Loch has built a range of stables and a huge Olympic size indoor school behind his Queen Anne farmhouse. People come to stay in the house and receive four hours intensive schooling each day. They receive luxury treatment including breakfast in bed and high-class cuisine; but this is expensive. The cost of a ten-day course for both horse and rider is £460. 80 04 14

1980 04 17
When the word first went out that a major feature film, 'Chariots of Fire' was seeking 150 undergraduates for a couple of day's filming in Cambridge the film-makers found themselves oversubscribed. But the response from other sections of the University was less enthusiastic. Gonville and Caius and Trinity College have refused to allow filming and several 'Cambridge' scenes are being shot at Eton 80 04 17

1980 04 19
Papworth Hospital will almost certainly be rehoused at New Addenbrooke's Hospital and not at Hinchinbrook Hospital. For months there has been a dispute over the relocation of the heart transplant hospital with the doctors preferring Cambridge and the administrators Huntingdon. But any re-siting won't be for the next 10 years at least as the Health Authority is to spend £1 million improving all aspects of Papworth. This will allow Mill Road Maternity Hospital and other departments to transfer to Addenbrooke's 80 04 19a

Mill Road Library, Cambridge, which faced closure three years ago, has been given a new lease of life with a £30,000 facelift. During the five-moth renovation work the library staff operated from temporary mobile quarters, which on one occasion collected a parking ticket. The library includes a new community meeting room in place of the old reading room. County councillor Jean Ganczarski who protested against the planned closure said; "It is very good to think the building has now got a new life" 80 04 19b

Nearly £330,000 would have to be spent to save the old railway station at Newmarket. It was built in 1848 and described as 'the most sumptuously baroque station of the early Victorian decades" but it has been empty for 18 years and parts of it are in a dangerous condition. Now a Construction Company wants to demolish it and build 25 houses and 27 flats on the site. A number of amenity groups want the station to be saved but the owner says it would be better to demolish it and preserve part of the façade in a museum. 80 04 19c

1980 04 21
An entirely new kind of telephone has been developed by Patcentre International of Melbourn. It uses a high-frequency radio link which would 'beam up' to a microwave receiver installed on an ordinary telephone poles or high buildings. A user wanting to make a call would simply stand under one, dial and speak. The cost of his call would automatically be added to his bill. The company think it has a real future but might take time to get accepted and production is years into the future. 80 04 21

Queen's awards, p3

1980 04 22
Owners of 23 houses near Stansted Airport are receiving an invitation to sell from the British Airports Authority. The houses would be bought at market prices and probably demolished; disturbance compensation would also be paid. The offer comes well in advance of detailed plans for the airport expansion which are expected in July. B.A.A. say that although a Government decisions is not expected for another three years they wanted to let local people know what was involved as soon as possible. 80 04 22a

East Anglia's railway branch lines, untouched since the Beeching axe, face a cutback this summer because of rapidly increasing running costs, deteriorating track and rolling stock and a cut in Government grants. Although Cambridge-based services will not be the first to go, there are signs that they could be affected. It is known that British Rail has been studying a scheme to close a section of the Ely-Norwich line which serves Shippea Hill, Lakenheath and Brandon stations. 80 04 22b

Hunstanton home, p10

May 1980 CEN

1980 05 13
The News and its sister newspapers are back in production after a seven-week national pay-and-hours dispute which resulted in the loss of 1.75 million copies. The dispute was over wages. The National Graphical Association wanted a flat £80 a week basic and a 37½ hour week. The employers' side offered £75 a week and a reduced working week by 1982. A union official welcomed the agreement and said he was pleased that at Cambridge they had had none of the agro of other newspapers around the country. 80 05 13b

Wallis' garage, which has been on the same site in Cambridge for 40 years, is to close in July. The managing director said the decision stemmed from adverse trading conditions and that he had already cut the price of second-hand cars on sale. The garage also sells new Lancias. The premises at Mitcham's Corner are up for sale. The garage has show-rooms, petrol pumps and an accessory shop together with a repair side which is thriving in spite of other problems with the car trade. 80 05 13a

A 90-year-old family tradition has been broken with the retirement of Wood Ditton landlord Mr Jack Holland. It was in the 1890s that his grandfather first took over the tenancy of the Three Blackbirds. He was succeeded by his daughter Edith and her husband Laurie Holland. Then in 1958, when his mother retired, Jack and his wife Alice took over. But now the brewery, Tolly Cobbold, has turned down his son Kenneth in favour of a different landlord. Ken, an electrician, is not too disappointed; he had simply wanted to keep the pub in the family. 80 05 13c

Landbeach church has received a £2,098 grant for repairing its medieval windows. The tracery lights of three south aisle windows are being cleaned and releaded and an east window, which has been attacked by lichen harmful to the glass, is to be treated with fungicide. Other contractors are continuing repairs to the rest of the building following the theft of lead from the roof last year. 80 05 13e

TUC day of action, p1
Shelford riot, p10

1980 05 14
Villagers in Histon have rallied round to save part of their heritage. Chivers-Hartley turned off their factory hooter after complaints about noise but this sparked a storm of protest from villagers who claimed it has acted as an alarm clock for more than 100 years apart from the last war when it was used as an air-raid siren. It sounds for 20 seconds, four times a day. Now after a petition in protest and a flood of letters the hooter has been re-instated 80 05 14a

The picturesque Houghton Mill youth hostel will close in 1983 unless more cash can be found. The 1,000-year-old timber-fronted building, which is owned by the National Trust, has proved too expensive to maintain. The Youth Hostel Association has been operating there since 1934; it is responsible for the repairs and maintenance and faces an enormous task to raise the necessary money. The relatively low fees – just £2 for an adult per night – have aggravated the cash problem. 80 05 14b

1980 05 15
The 'Viscountess Bury', best-known pleasure boat on the Cam is in danger of leaving the river – only eight years short of her centenary. Banham Marine have decided to advertise it for disposal on the Thames. It was launched as a battery-powered vessel at Chiswick in 1888 and was patronised by Edward VII. It was bought by H.C. Banham in 1910, fitted with a petrol engine and sailed up the North Sea to the Wash, narrowly escaping loss in a storm outside Wells. Since 1911 she has been regularly used for club outings and private festivities. 80 05 15a

The TUC Day of Action was ignored by thousands of trade unionists in the Cambridge area who turned up for work as normal. But this failed to dampen the spirits of those who organised the protest against Government policies. The highlight was a mass public meeting in Market Square, preceded by a march through the city by 250 trade unionists. It was the biggest turn out the organisers can remember in Cambridge; when May Day marches were held there were fewer on the march than attended a normal trades council meeting 80 05 15b

1980 05 17
Haddenham Farmland Museum has been saved from closure by the generosity of a local firm. Ideson's Garage, Stretham, in conjunction with Lada cars has stepped in and offered half the amount the museum needs to stay alive and extend its facilities and a number of large companies have offered the remaining sponsorship. It will enable the museum to expand to cater for larger groups, including school children 80 05 17

1980 05 20
The demolition of houses and shops in the Kite area of Cambridge and the eviction of squatters have been stopped by the city council's new Labour administration. Lawyers are examining the future of the controversial £15 million shopping and parking scheme. The Kite Co-ordinating Group which has been leading opposition to the scheme will publish an alternative development plan aimed at retaining the character of the area. Labour wants more housing and less shopping and parking in the area 80 05 20

1980 05 21
Cambridge customers who have missed their Mitcham's Corner branch of Barclays' Bank over the past two and a half years will be delighted to visit their brand new premises with its large car park. On the ground floor is the main banking hall housing 10 cashier positions and one Foreign till. There will be two receptionists to help customers with their enquiries, whilst two managers and two assistant managers have offices on the first floor. 80 05 21

1980 05 22
Cambridgeshire County Council may soon own the largest fleet of big electrically-powered library vehicles in the world. An experiment started a year ago has proved so successful that the Library Service now wants to dispose of its entire fleet of diesel and petrol-powered vehicles and go electric altogether. The new vehicles would be twice as fast as the present 17 mph vehicle which has proved to be at least £1,000 a year cheaper to run that the others and been free from breakdowns. 80 05 22a

When Margot and Derek Andrews gave up their teaching jobs to set up as potters at Prickwillow they didn't set out to make a fortune. But they have achieved their own independent world where they make a living by their craftwork. Now after five years they find that most of their orders come from people who look around the workshops; a number arrive on boating holidays and more come in groups in the evening. This is something they never originally envisaged and they now serve cups of coffee to visitors. 80 05 22b

1980 05 23
St Thomas' Hall, a new community centre in Ancaster Way, Cambridge was opened by the Mayor who said mistakes had been made in the past where facilities were not provided on big estates, but good intentions were one thing and money another. In 1975 a city council plan was dropped for lack of cash but St Martin's parish church came up with an offer to build it and much of the money came from gifts and donations. It was designed by Brian Hogg, a church elder and includes a hall seating 100. 80 05 23a

The unveiling of a village sign will clear up an argument which has raged for years. Ancient records show that the hamlet was named Pimore but over the years it had become either Pymore or Pymoor, according to fancy. Most local people spell it 'o-o-r' but the clerk of Lt Downham Parish Council says he uses 'o-r-e' and always will do. Two signs in the village both spell it differently. But now a new wooden sign has been carved, reading 'Pymoor'. It will be unveiled at Pymore Hill. The name means 'flies over a bog' 80 05 23b

Willingham school bell, p9

1980 05 24
There is little chance that Cambridge will have a new maternity hospital before 1988. Plans to resite it had been agreed in 1961 but constantly deferred because of lack of funds. The Government says there is no doubt the present buildings in Mill Road are dreadful and the facilities inadequate. Ways are being found to relieve some of the pressure; pregnancies would no longer be terminated there – giving more beds – and the closure of the Grange maternity unit at Ely means that more midwives were available so more mother could give birth at home. 80 05 24a

The controversial Kite redevelopment scheme has hit yet another stumbling block and work is unlikely to start at all this year. Cambridge's new Labour administration, which objects to the £15 million shopping and parking scheme now claims there could be very serious difficulties in the way of the development. But the developers, Grosvenor Estates, say it intends to press ahead with the project agreed by the previous Conservative council. 80 05 24b

1980 05 27
Time has been called on Jack and Ivy Wallwork who are retiring after 29 years at the Jolly Brewers pub in Haslingfield. The pub was dead when they first arrived and only took £15 in the first week. But over the years they have given it a welcoming homely appearance which has proved popular with customers. Jack hopes to continue providing the pubs shellfish speciality and Ivy will continue her darts – she plays in the ladies team and captains the men's 80 05 27

1980 05 28
Once over the railway bridge Cambridge's Mill Road takes on the atmosphere of a village. The roads and pavements widen and in spite of the busy traffic, the pace of life seems to slacken. It is a street where you can enjoy sauntering along, enjoying the many and varied shops. There is K.S. Neale which specialises in door handles and locks, David Neech's where you can buy an electric organ and Surefit the stretch cover specialists. Cornwell's is a fascinating shop to browse through looking for bargains, piled from floor to ceiling with new and second-hand furniture 80 05 28 & a

1980 05 29
Great Gransden may be left without petrol supplies for Esso is ending its supply contract with the only garage in the village, run by William Merrill, who is trying to organise an alternative supplier. They had been supplying the garage for more than 30 years but have decided it is no longer economic. At the moment petrol is £1.36 for four star but some of the smaller suppliers might charge 5p more. "I don't want to be charging that sort of price", Mr Merrill said. 80 05 29

1980 05 30
Mothers in the Ely area cannot have their babies at home despite assurances this would compensate for the closure of the Grange maternity unit. Parliament was told that most mothers would now be expected to use the RAF Hospital freeing midwives for home deliveries. But there are none capable of providing 24-hour cover and the RAF hospital is not staffed to provide a flying squad. The nearest cover is at Mill Road, Cambridge where there is one midwife working a 40-hour week and the other who backs her up has a 10-mile radius to cover. 80 05 30a

'Roundabout East Anglia', the BBC's early-morning programme was launched in 1974 as the local newspaper of the air. But now it has been axed leaving Cambridge without any local radio service.

The final programme included a nostalgia spot recalling the days when Chris Trace and Tony Scase worked there. Hundreds of listeners have written letters of condolence saying it was comforting to wake up with a familiar voice, some breezy story from the fens and a batch of other people's views on the region's social and economic climates. Now the Corporation has saved another fraction of a penny on the licence fee 80 05 30b

1980 05 31
The Carioca building on Newmarket Road, Cambridge has had a chequered history, from non-conformist chapel to furniture store and now night-club. When it first opened in March 1978 it did a roaring trade into the early hours but has been plainly feeling the impact of the opening of Ronelles' in Lion Yard. It offers a restaurant, disco and dance floor together with a games room with bar billiards and juke box for a membership charge of 10p a week. Drinks are cheaper than pub prices but the choice of draught beers – Tolly's Cobbold and Younger Tartan – is disappointing. 80 05 31

June 1980 CEN

1980 06 04
An estate of 13 flatlets for retired licensees was officially opened behind the Milton Arms Hotel, Cambridge. It has been named John Clarke Court after a former director of Greene King Brewery which gave the land. The homes were built by the publicans' charity, the Licensed Victuallers National Home. Most of the flats are already occupied by people from the local area. 80 06 04b

Pickerell fire, p3

1980 06 06
Girton College's imaginative plan to build a two-mile aerial roadway into Cambridge has been shelved. A driverless 100-seater train would have run 20 feet above ground taking students from the college to Grange Road. But they have had difficulty crossing land owned by other colleges and raising the money and there has been an improvement in traffic conditions since the opening of the Western by-pass 80 06 06a

Villagers at Six Mile Bottom have just created a village green complete with cricket ground and pavilion at a time when other clubs are disbanding. Alec Eist, licensee of the Green Man, has been the prime mover behind the project but says much of the credit must go to Lady Delamere who provided the land, a former football pitch. Locals have worked hard to build the pavilion and now they need to collect money for seats for spectators. 80 06 06b

1980 06 09
The opening of the M11 motorway & A45 Northern by-pass and the much-improved A604 main road to Huntingdon now brings Bar Hill within minutes driving time of the city. It has become an attractive place to live with relatively low house prices, good community facilities and thriving industries. But it is the shopping facilities, dominated by the Tesco supermarket and the easy parking which are making it the focus of attention for Cambridge housewives. There are also hairdressers, a bank, a carpet stores, wool shop, musical instruments and a fish-and-chip shop. 80 06 09b

Cambridge May Balls are four nights of student-organised revelry which will delight some and disturb the sleep of others. This year the cost of a double ticket has peaked at £52.50 and some feel they will be pricing themselves out of existence. But the same was being said ten years ago when Jesus and Trinity were charging eleven guineas. Some tickets do go to outsiders, with adverts often placed in London papers, but the majority of ball-goers are still students. 80 06 09a

1980 06 10
Singing star Diane Solomon's 400-year-old thatched cottage at Wickhambrook was destroyed by fire. She and her husband were having dinner when it broke out; he was overcome by smoke and had to be given oxygen by firemen. The fire is believed to have been started when a spark from the chimney landed on the roof. Fanned by a sharp breeze flames soared 30 feet into the air and could be seen over much of the village. Neighbours gave the alarm and tried to retrieve possessions 80 06 10a

Chanting demonstrators broke through a security cordon at Queens' College Cambridge to protest at a stag night being held by male undergraduates. They 'invaded' from punts and burst through padlocked college gates before marching around outside the dining hall where 150 people were watching two strippers. The entertainment which included a blue comedian and a dirty limerick competition was organised to mark the college's last days as an all-male preserve 80 06 10b

1980 06 11
The Isle of Ely Member of Parliament, Clement Freud, asked Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher whether she had plans to visit Grunty Fen where people were worried about the level of wage settlements. But she replied that the 97 residents were a very happy agricultural community with a low rate of unemployment and content under a Conservative Government. Dorothy Barker of Station Road, Grunty Fen, said: "It is nice of her to think of us" 80 06 11

1980 06 13
Britain's top maternity hospital is the one in Mill Road, Cambridge – and that's official. It handles the most difficult births and a fifth of all babies in the region are born there. Government figures show that it copes with 4,000 births annually, many referred from other hospitals for specialist care, but its only operating theatre is a wooden shed built for the Dunkirk wounded during the last War. 80 06 13

Owen Webb House, p8
Lords Bridge, p21

1980 06 14
The Camelot club at Great Stukeley offers a very satisfactory venue for locals but lacks the necessary pulling power to draw in the crowds from elsewhere. The club bar has a wide range of lagers and, unusually, Schlitz beer, presumably to cater for American servicemen in the area. There seemed to be a disproportionate number of women when we visited. American servicemen again? 80 06 14

1980 06 16
Little Thetford is to have its own riverside nightclub. Work is underway to convert the Fish and Duck pub and restaurant into a licensed discotheque and top music personalities have been booked for the opening weekend. They include Radio 1 disco jockey Dave Lee Travis and disco dancers Pan's People. The pub was closed nearly two years ago after the owner was hurt in a road accident, now it will become one of the top night spots in East Anglia. A brand new marine with over 200 moorings has yet to be opened. 80 06 16

1980 06 17
Cruise back, p1
Pembroke Street one-way, p8

1980 06 18
John Major, MP, says he regrets the Government's decision to base Cruise missiles at Molesworth, a disused RAF base used by the USAF. It has enough spare land to accommodate the buildings to store the missiles and is close to RAF Alconbury which can house the extra US servicemen. Cruise missiles are mobile weapons designed to be driven away from their bases in time of conflict. The closeness of the improved A604 and A1 was another decisive factor. 80 06 18a

Molesworth villagers have reacted to the news that Cruise missiles may be stationed at the RAF base. Seven years ago they won a battle to prevent the building of a nuclear power station there and feel they have been picked on because they are a rural area with a scattered population. The landlady of the Cross Keys said it could bring a lot of much-needed business but was annoying for private individuals who had moved there for peace and quiet. 80 06 18c

1980 06 20
Old Addenbrooke's Hospital will close for good in 1983 and the site put up for sale. But consultants who have been fighting to retain beds as a kind of overflow hospital, a mother-and-babies hospital, a centre for ear, nose and throat cases and eye and plastic surgery say it would be a mistake to assume this matter is closed. 80 06 20a

A group called 'Survival Shelters' from Willingham have designed their own nuclear shelter. It comes in kit form and is designed to give protection for six people from the effects of a 20 mega-ton bomb. The price of the plans and booklet is £9.50 but it would cost up to £15,000 to install. So far 300 have been sold but Cambridge City Council has not yet decided whether planning permission would be required. 80 06 20b

The war plan for Cambridgeshire which will detail the role of the county council is not yet finished. A regional commissioner would be introduced in the run-up to any attack and county controllers would go to their headquarters in the basements of the Shire hall. This is a small, rather cluttered room with little more than maps, telephones and teleprinters and no special protection other than the thickness of the walls. 80 06 20c

Mill Road Hospital, p1
Mill Road bridge, p7

1980 06 21
The new owner of the Old Vicarage at Grantchester is the best-selling author Jeffrey Archer. When the house was sold last year the new owner's name was kept secret but now he has applied to demolish part of the out-buildings. However when contacted by the News he said "This is absolute drivel, I am not making any changes to the Old Vicarage and would not dream of touching it. The plan relates to a shed were boots and shoes were kept, one wall is leaking and we want to replace it." 80 06 21

1980 06 24
Orchard Street, p9

1980 06 25
McKay, p8
Orwell cottage, p13

1980 06 26
Four people were taken to hospital after a car careered across a corner of Cambridge Market Square. It ploughed across the Barclays Bank edge of the market, striking a flower stall, scattering fruit and vegetables and hitting two shoppers before ending up four feet from the railings of Gt St Mary's church. A Girton lady working on the flower stall said: "I just saw the car out of the corner of my eye and ran for it. The stall just folded up with its legs in the air" 80 06 26

Lion Yard rents, p5

1980 06 27
According to an undergraduate there were more men living in Girton college before it officially went co-residential than there are now. A number of women have not exactly welcomed the admission of men with open arms. One scientist referred to "the horrible increase in the number of couples holding hands in the dinner queue". She felt the college had lost its character. "I don't see why anybody would bother to apply here. There is nothing really to attract people", she said. 80 06 27a

People busy borrowing books may not be aware that tomorrow will mark the 125th anniversary of the free public library service in Cambridge. In 1855 the job of librarian attracted a variety of applicants, amongst them a retired stage-coach driver but a 22-year-old booksellers' assistant, John Pink, was appointed librarian and held it until he died 51 years later. Responsibility for running the service passed from the city to the county council in 1974 and the present building in Lion Yard opened in 1975. 80 06 27c

Burwell & District, p19

1980 06 28
Two hundred children from St Andrew's Junior School, Chesterton watched the Bishop of Ely laid the foundation stone for their new school in Nuffield Road. What they did not see was that after the ceremony workmen knocked-down the specially-built wall and carried off the foundation stone for use another day. It will stay in store until somebody decides where in the school walls it should go. 80 06 28

1980 06 30
Frank Stoakley has retired from Heffers Bookshop which he joined in 1920. He is a walking encyclopaedia when it comes to sorting out problems and even after the firm installed a computer the staff still needed his expert knowledge. He spent 37 years managing the scientific books department and since 1965 has been sorting out the trickier requests for unusual or hard-to-come-by books 80 06 30a

Sea Cadets have discovered a hoard of sunken treasure worth thousands of pounds in the River Cam. Their boat's engine failed and it was found that a fur wrap had fouled the propeller. Whilst attempting to free it they discovered parts of a suitcase containing silver cups, candelabra and boxes of jewels. Police put a guard on the river until divers could carry out a full search. It is thought to be the proceeds of a major crime and is now locked away at Cambridge police station 80 06 30b

Nearly 2,000 people staged a big anti-missile rally at the disused airfield at Molesworth. It had been originally planned for Lakenheath USAF base but was switched following the announcement that Cruise missiles were to be based there. The news came as a shock to villagers who had fought for years to have the airfield returned to farming use. One is to write to President Carter asking for a £2,000 donation to the village hall fund by way of compensation. 80 06 30c

July 1980 CEN

1980 07 01
York Street, p5
Hereward Books, p11

1980 07 02
A former Burwell and District double-decker bus which was saved from the scrapyard near Lincoln has arrived back in the village. The Daimler Fleetline was driven the 120 miles by two former Burwell and District drivers, Jim Neale and Brian Camps. The bus ran faultlessly on the long journey home. Enthusiasts hope to restore it to its former glory so that it can be used for charity work. 80 07 02a

Cambridge is now left with only one regular nightly music spot following the closure of the Beaconfield and Alex Wood Halls and the Alma pub, mainly because of complaints of noise. But there are at least 40 bands desperate for somewhere to play and countless people who want to hear live music. The Carioca Club on Newmarket Road is willing to let bands play on Tuesday nights but at a total rental cost of £115 bands can't afford it while the Salisbury Conservative Club on Mill Road is almost fully booked until 1982. It leaves just the Great Northern Hotel. 80 07 02b

C.P. Snow, p1

1980 07 03

Lodes scheme, p13

1980 07 04
Don't miss the spectacular opening nights of East Anglia's news, biggest nightspot – the Fish and Duck, Little Thetford. We've got the place, DJs, lighting, music, groups, food. If you come you get an action-packed show you'll never forget: Radio 1 DJ Dave Lee Travis & Pans People. Groups Clone & Red Express. Free Bar-BQ included. 4,000 tickets at £4. – Advert 80 07 04

1980 07 08
More than 400 people held a peace picnic on Jesus Green organised by Cambridgeshire Council Against Missile Bases. It was opened by the leader of Cambridge City Council who said: It is ironic that there are cuts, left right and centre while we are spending money to kill people. It provided an opportunity to express opposition through peaceful means and included performances by singer Jancis Harvey and a troupe of Chilean refugee dancers. 80 07 07a

Pop festival, p7

1980 07 08
There have been a flood of complaints from people attending the opening of a new riverside disco at the Fish and Duck, Lt Thetford. They say they did not get value for money and just about everything was wrong: the barbecue was just one beefburger in a bread roll, toilets were filthy and without water, drinks were over-priced and glasses unavailable while many people turned up in old jeans when smart dress was expected. But this has been strongly denied by the managing director who asked: where can you get that kind of entertainment for £4? 80 07 08b

Cambridge City Council may refuse to make extra spending cuts because it wants to prevent staff sackings and reductions in public services. They may save money set aside for work on the Cattle Market site – which will not be ready this year anyway – and on modernising the Market Square lavatories. But they want to continue drawing up plans for the Kite area if the present scheme fails. 80 07 08c

Cambridge's Labour councillors want to take the city out of the Government's national civil defence organisation and ban all council officers from any wartime emergency planning. They say that Cambridge is in danger of becoming a nuclear dustbin & attack the plans to site Cruise missiles at Molesworth. But Conservatives say they are duty-bound to make arrangements to safeguard citizens in the event of a nuclear attack. 80 07 08e

Sinclair Research, the company founded by Mr Clive Sinclair who pioneered the world's first pocket calculators and micro-televisions wants to buy the church of St Andrew the Great and turn it into a laboratory. They are currently researching computers and electrically-powered vehicles and are looking for premises in central Cambridge. But the church say he is unlikely to get permission because schemes for offices, shops, a language school and a mosque had already been rejected. 80 07 08g

Villagers worried over the siting of Cruise missiles at Molesworth packed a meeting to fire questions at John Major M.P. He emphasised his support for the missiles and said they were definitely coming unless all countries agreed on disarmament. There would be 64 missiles housed in 16 separate bunkers which would be partly beneath ground. The mounds would be earth covered and grassed over. During exercises convoys of 20 vehicles would take to the road with the mobile missiles and remain away over-night. He doubted whether house prices would be affected. 80 07 08f

Owen Webb House, p1

1980 07 09
McBeth Wicken picture, p15

1980 07 10
The parishioners of Molesworth were too respectful to ask their M.P., John Major, rude questions about the siting of Cruise missiles. They asked about the by-pass, drainage, sewage and tenders for the bunkers. And one man, after asking about the rateable value of his house said he would like to go back to his children and the milking. Two who dared ask about the visual impact were told the missiles would be grassed over. Perhaps they may be thatched as well? 80 07 10

1980 07 11
Britain's first test-tube baby clinic at Bourn Hall will open its doors to patients at around £1,000 a time in the autumn. The Tudor mansion is now owned by Dr Bob Edwards and Mr Patrick Steptoe in partnership with a London financial expert who bought it from Associated Newspapers, owners of the 'Daily Mail'. The 50-roomed house will be the patients' living quarters and tests carried out in five luxury Portacabins. 80 07 11a

A 300-year-old dovecote at Bury Farm, Litlington, is to be demolished because of its poor structural state. It is owned by Cambridgeshire County Council who have been criticised for allowing the brick and clay slate listed building to deteriorate. Even some county councillors say it is disgraceful that an authority with responsibility for maintaining ancient buildings should have allowed one of its own properties to fall down. But it would be too costly for the hard-up council to restore 80 07 11b

A steer escaped from Garnham's meat wholesalers of Coldham's Lane Cambridge while it was on its way to be slaughtered. It jumped from a loading bay and got on to the railway line where it was nearly hit by one train before galloping at full speed towards another. Then it spotted a group of heifers on Stourbridge Common and jumped a four-foot high fence to get into the field. It was finally shot dead by a marksman after being surrounded by squads of police. 80 07 11c

Eltisley Cricket Club missed their centenary and only recently discovered their true age. But now they intend to celebrate in style when they meet Godmanchester in a return of a fixture first played 125 years ago. According to an ancient newspaper cutting Eltisley won then by an innings but they are taking no chances this time and are boosting their team by including former England wicket keeper Godfrey Evans in their side. 80 07 11d

An 11-year-old Fen Ditton girl, Lisa Colclough, has won a British women's title in roller-skating – the sport's youngest-ever national champion. She was also runner-up in figure skating. Roller-skating is run along parallel lines to ice skating – much too seriously for Lisa to take her skates out on the Fen Ditton primary school playground with her friends. They cost £200 a pair and the wheels would soon crack. 80 07 11e

1980 07 12
One of the biggest private houses & the last commercial farm in Cambridge is up for sale. Rectory Farm on Madingley Road, built 16 years ago, is regarded as an outstanding neo-Georgian design with five reception rooms, six bedrooms, two bathrooms and a swimming pool. It is set in three acres of mature gardens & could fetch around £250,000. 80 07 12

1980 07 17
A comparison of basic food items in different supermarkets show that baked beams continue to climb in price; a year ago a large tin of Sainsbury's own brand cost 12p, now they are 15p. The price for Heinz beans varied from 17p at Finefare to 21p at Budgen, Kelloggs' cornflakes from 42p up to 52p, Ariel washing powder was between 62p and 70p while Andrex toilet rolls were cheapest at Finefare at 34½p 80 07 17

1980 07 19
Girton bus, p6

1970 07 21

The name Kerridge is to appear again in the title of a Cambridge building firm. Mr Paul Kerridge, great-grandson of the man who started the group has taken a 75 per cent share in the company which operated for 100 years. It was sold to Matthews Holdings but when that group was taken over the Kerridge part was put up for sale and has since been in several hands. The business will be run from Sturton Street on the site of the original firm's small works department and in the shadow of its former headquarters 80 07 21

1980 08 24
Hobson's Conduit, p7

1980 07 25
Arthur Prior joined the staff of Trinity in 1935 as the youngest porter ever employed by a Cambridge college for the princely wage of £2.15s. a week in the days when porters expected tips for their services; today he retires after being Head Porter for 14 years having served five different Masters. He is philosophical about major changes such as the admission of women. "These youngsters think they invented sex, but we had women here when I first came. They used to stay all night even then, and we knew all about it", he said. 80 07 25

In 1974 patrons of the first ever Cambridge Beer Festival quaffed 12,000 pints of ale, last year supplies peaked around the 40,000-pint mark. Tourists and foreign students who stumble on the event appear baffled but a small band of punks was here for the beer. One said it was cheap at prices from 39p a pint for mild to 48p for the strongest bitters. One of CAMRA's staunchest supporters, Dora Miller, a sprightly advert for the merits of real beer at the age of 72 was serving behind one of the counters. 80 07 25a

1980 07 26
Foxton it has tripled in size during the 25 years that Thomas Edis has been a parish councillor. He led the successful fight to save the railway station from Dr Beeching's axe and now many London commuters have helped swell the population to about 1,200 people. But his greatest achievement was the installation of street lighting in the mid-1950s – which had been under discussion since before the First World War. 80 07 26

1980 07 28
Meldreth's ancient stocks, which stood on the village green, have been struck by a car, destroying the medieval punishment frame. Now it lies in pieces against a large tree and people are wondering whether it will be possible to repair. Villagers believe the stocks are at least 400 years old & were last used in 1856 when a villager became unruly and started shouting in church. 80 07 28

1980 07 29
Mill Road Hospital, p1

1980 07 31
Following the recent cut in petrol prices differences of 8p or more can be found by shopping around with Tesco at Bar Hill charging £1.32 for a gallon compared to £1.40 at Hallen's on Victoria Road corner. Four-star is the main contender in the fight for sales and a number of garages have dropped two-star altogether. Looking back a year ago when many garages were short of petrol and 'regulars only' signs littered the forecourts, the current surplus of supply seems barely credible. But it is most unlikely we will return to the days when they gave free gifts and trading stamps in a bid to attract business. 80 07 31

August 1980 CEN

1980 08 01
Cambridge Civic Society fears a scheme to convert St Andrew the Great Church into an electronics laboratory could open up the site for office building in the future. They believe it would be more logical for Sinclair Research to move to the city Science Park. The church has no access, is in a completely congested area and it would be an enormous job to convert. But the planning watchdogs are away on holiday and applications for some of our major planning disasters have gone through in August, they say. 80 08 01

Kite plans, p11

1980 08 02
Fordham School was scheduled to be demolished until the Council listed it, allowing only interior changes. It has now been turned into four homes. The headmaster's house and the original school of 1849 comprise two while the 1870 buildings housed two more. One which used to be the school hall and gym, last used seven years ago. The sitting room is dominated by the original 15-feet high windows; it is well-insulated though it might take a small fortune to change the curtaining. 80 08 02

1980 08 06
A Manea farmer has come up with a novel kind of horse-drawn vehicle which he is convinced it will double the speed of his five-year-old pony. It comprises a narrow vehicle set in motion by means of a walking platform connected to a gearing system that turns the wheels. But there is still a long way to go before the first horsecycle driver is booked for speeding. 80 08 06

Cambridge Buskers, p7

1980 08 07
Super sailor Shane Acton returned in triumph to Cambridge after his tiny 20-year-old wooden yacht, Super Shrimp, became the smallest boat ever to sail round the world. He set off down the Cam in August 1972 with a plastic sextant to help his find his way. He survived sharks and shipwrecks before ending up at the same spot from which he started. The little boats of the Cam turned out in force to welcome him home and there was a telegram of congratulations from Prince Philip 80 08 07

Peace tree, p11

1980 08 12
Villagers at Stow Longa have just received a cheque from Martha Drogin of Exeter, New Hampshire. Last year she visited the village to find out more about her ancestors and discovered they had received parish relief hand-out in the 1830s. This helped her trace more of her relations and she has written a book about the family. Now she has sent £10 to pay back the debt. 80 08 12

Peter Arthur has retired as Cambridge's county architect. He says two buildings that are likely to stand the test of time are the Wisbech Library and the county police headquarters at Hinchinbrook. New buildings have to be highly flexible: "I was looking at a primary school and wondering whether we could turn it into an old people's home". Dealing with the effects of the cuts had been difficult: they were grossly under-funded and the council would find that the longer repairs are left the more expensive they would be. 80 08 12a

BBC plans, p4

1980 08 13
A Stetchworth man renovating his house has found a hoard of gold coins worth at least £6,000. He discovered the 106 mint-condition sovereigns and half-sovereigns while digging up the floor of his cottage in Mill Lane to put in a damp course. They were in a pot buried in the earth and date from 1817 to 1825. The coins have been taken for examination while the coroner decides whether they are treasure trove 80 08 13

1980 08 14

Tennis star Virginia Wade's father is to be asked to chip in to help save Horningsea's medieval church. It needs £10,000 to repair the leaky roof and tower which is too unsafe to allow the church bells to be rung. Now Canon Eustace Wade who was vicar in the 1930's is one of the prominent people who will be approached as part of a money-raising appeal 80 08 14a

Working windmills may return to the East Anglian countryside – not the drain the fens or mill corn, but to generate electricity. Scientists at Cambridge University's Cavendish Laboratory have been working on wind turbine design with the Central Electricity Generating Board who will shortly begin looking for an inland site for the first large wind-powered generating machine. These could be sited in flat lands where their impact on the environment would be less that on exposed hilltops. They would be mounted on towers 150 feet high and when their 200-foot blades turned each machine should generate enough electricity to heat 100 single-bar electric fires. 80 08 14b

1980 08 15
The old ways have been bought back at New Farm, Tetworth where David Davenport is using a pre-war tractor and former horse-drawn combine, plus a 1907 steam engine to harvest a special crop of thatching straw. It is the first time he has planted long-stem wheat with an eye to cornering part of the thatching straw market and is using the old methods because a modern combine would damage the straw 80 08 15a

Trinity Foot Beagles review – 80 08 15

1980 08 18
Thrust car, p7

1980 08 20
A nationally-famous armchair hedge in Mill Road, Cambridge, has gone up in flames. Mr Thomas Conroy had carefully trimmed it over the past six years into the shape of an armchair as 'a bit of nonsense'. Countless tourists have taken snapshots of it. But now the house has changed hands and the hedge has been dug up and burned because its roots were threatening to cause problems to the foundations. 80 08 20

1980 08 21
Windmills, p7

1980 08 22
Tesco stores at Bar Hill has paid out £40 to recover stray shopping trolleys impounded by angry parish councillors. They had been dumped around the village and despite protests the store failed to recover them. So workmen were sent on a trolley round-up and recovered 40 from roads, play areas and ditches. They were locked in a barn and an invoice was sent to Tesco to cover the cost of the operation. The store says the price was 'fair under the circumstances' 80 08 22

Modern architecture, p15
Henlow Grange beauty farm, p21

1080 08 26
'Mandy Morton? Is she still around? – that reaction is one reason when the ex-Spriguns singer / songwriter is back in Cambridge after a long absence. In 1968 she formed a folk group to raise money for Cottenham Amateur Dramatic Society then started Spriguns as resident group at the Anchor. Decca records transformed their image with velvet shirts and fancy frocks and when the band broke up they were elegantly dressed but not very rich. She became extremely popular in Norway and has now returned to try her hand at the home market with a new album on Polydor out soon. 80 08 26

1980 08 28

Harmony is reigning supreme over Steeple Bumpstead where the village's female barber-shop chorus has soared to success after it was formed a year ago. Now the 'Countryline Chapter' has been admitted to the US-based 'Sweet Adeline' organisation. They comprise women of all ages and from all walks of life including one lass with polio who sings in her wheelchair. They get on well with the Saffron Walden men's barber-shop quartet and go to concerts together. 80 08 28

1980 08 29
The man who set fire to Ickleton church last year has written a letter of apology to the vicar of another church he destroyed at Yateley in Hampshire. He'd also tried set fire to Boughton church near Newark where a sparrow was shot during a BBC recording. But no one in Ickleton has received a letter. Repairs should be completed by the middle of next year but they are still waiting to see how much it was going to cost and what the insurance company would pay. 80 08 29

The Electricity Generating Board is looking around Eastern England for a suitable site for its first large wind-powered generating machine; it needs to be flat and an area where it would not have an adverse affect on the environment. The announcement was welcomed by the Astronomer Royal, Prof Sir Martin Ryle, who with other scientists at the University's Cavendish Laboratory have been undertaking extensive design work on wind turbines. 80 08 29a

September 1980 CEN

1980 09 01
Cambridge has one of the lowest unemployment rates in the country and is likely to come through the recession relative unscathed. Jobs are being lost but the service industries do better at such times and only 20 per cent of the work force are employed in manufacturing industries. The city's electronics and aerospace industries are enjoying a respite from the general economic gloom. If a local worker does lose his job he stands a good chance of finding another. 80 09 01

1980 09 02
Cambridge's railway electrification came a step nearer when contractors handed over the shell of the new power signal box near Hills Road Bridge. It will take another 18 months to install the mass of circuitry which will enable a couple of men to control every train, point and signal for miles around. The plan includes floodlit carriage sidings with automatic washing plant for carriages. It is expected to come into operation in May 1982 80 09 02a

'The Sun' newspaper claimed that Highpoint prison was more of a prisoners' paradise than a jail. They painted a picture of prisoners indulging in regular sex sessions, illicit drinking parties, lazing around in the sun, listening to music and being fed sumptuous meals by a Savoy-trained chef. But a News reporter who visited left feeling deeply depressed. The prisoners are low security risk. There are no murderers or psychopaths: the majority are young working-class Londoners in for a variety of offences such as burglaries, fraud and sex offences. 80 09 02b

Pike & Eel, p7

1980 09 03
Visitors to Cambridge will be confused if they use the latest Ordnance Survey map of the city. The Lion Yard shopping centre, completed more than five years ago, is not shown but marked as a collection of tiny streets. Christ's Lane, closed for the past 15 years and not even visible, is still shown as leading from Drummer Street to St Andrew's Street whilst the University Centre is an empty space. Even the Tourist Information Centre is shown as at the front of the Guildhall, rather than the back. The O.S. said it did not seem very satisfactory 80 09 03b

The first football excursion train to leave Cambridge station in almost three years set off for Wolverhampton packed with United fans hoping to cheer John Docherty's men to a place in the third round of the League Cup. The train was one of the first to use the no-alcohol regulation which British Rail hopes will reduce the incidence of vandalism. There was no problem. No matter who they were – schoolboys, skinheads, middle-aged mothers and fathers – no-one tried any surreptitious supping. 80 09 03a

1980 09 04
Anglers have declared war on the zander, a killer fish which they claim has destroyed their sport in the last 10 years. The problem started in 1963 when the Great Ouse River Board introduced them from Eastern Europe to try and broaden the variety in local waterways. But since then the zander with its voracious appetite and vicious killer instincts has practically taken over. 80 09 04a

England's future lies with small industries in towns like Littleport which are free of labour relations problems, said Euro MP Sir Fred Catherwood when he officially opened four new factories in the town. The ceremony fulfilled the dream of late Littleport councillor, Henry Crabb, who had campaigned for 30 years to revitalise the town's industry and now the road leading to the units built by the Council for Small Industries in Rural Areas has been named him 80 09 04b

1980 09 05
Cambridge University will now pay its clerical and administrative staff the same overtime rates as other universities and the working week will be reduced by an hour. They are outside the national pay structure but had agreed to be bound by the results of negotiations by the Central Arbitration Committee in London. NALGO members are now likely to accept a 13.5 per cent pay offer. 80 09 05a

A Cambridgeshire engineer is using his van with as a mobile test-bed to try out windmills made by his firm, Balance Engineering at New Wimpole. He has produced a small wind generator to charge batteries and pump the water in solar panels. But he does not have a wind tunnel to test his designs at different speeds – and that is where the van comes in. Spinning above the roof is a rotor with six blades bolted on to a special frame. He goes out early in the morning and drives at speeds of five to 30 mph to test its performance. 80 09 05b

Alan Ashpole OBE, who retired as county land agent last week, has attacked proposals to sell off large chunks of Cambridgeshire's 46,800-acre smallholdings estate. There are 1,270 tenants who farm plots of from two to 160 acres. It is very hard work but gives people the chance to be their own master. Some councillors believe the sale would raise much-needed cash but the land is inflation proof, it is like our North Sea oil, he says. 80 09 05c

Royston station, p15

1980 09 10
A move to put Cambridgeshire Libraries under the control of the education committee was blocked by County Councillors. The Hay Report had suggested the library service should join with community education. But the education bureaucracy was already too large and needed trimming. "We have one of the finest library services in the country and no-one with any common sense will see that destroyed", a Peterborough councillor said. 80 09 10

1980 09 12
When Radio Norfolk went on the air last night it gave a sneak preview of what the future could hold for Cambridgeshire. It will be exactly the same economy-style package – a small staff with highly sophisticated equipment broadcasting six hours each weekday and ten at weekends and Radio Two at other times. It will look for audience participation with phone-ins, sport and news. A manager for the Cambridgeshire station will probably be appointed in the autumn. 80 09 12b

A 'flying squad of archaeologists could help avert a crisis, say the Cambridge Antiquarian Society. Money for conservation and excavation has been drastically cut because of recession and much of our ancient heritage is being destroyed. Many historical buildings are also at risk and such a group could combine volunteers and professional archaeologists to protect what can be saved and record what cannot. 80 09 12

1980 09 15
The National Trust has launched an appeal to replant the grand avenue at Wimpole Hall, which was hit by Dutch elm disease. They have already replanted a mile of limes but more than half of the 2½ mile avenue is outside the grounds. Now they want to buy the land, dig up stumps and clear scrub and concrete from a wartime runway to restore the full length to its former glory. 80 09 15

1980 09 16
Cambridge United is poised to become the first club in Football League history to play a competitive match behind closed doors. The move to curb soccer hooliganism at the Abbey Stadium would involve next season's visit by Chelsea and its notorious fans – should the two teams still be in the Second Division. The move follows troubles at Saturday's match when Chelsea fans urinated in public causing some local supporters to leave in disgust. 80 09 16

1980 09 17
An undertaker sitting in his van on the outskirts of Barkway saw a saucer-shaped unidentified flying object cruise silently past at a height of 60 feet. "We were eating our lunch and this brilliant silver object went past us", he said. "It was travelling about 30 mph and looked like two dustbin lids stuck together; it was moving in a straight line, not going up or down". Police say the Army had troops on manoeuvres in the area but it was nothing to do with them. 80 09 17

1980 09 18
Jack the jackdaw has been amusing and confusing the villagers of Histon. The tame bird which has set up home on the green has befriended children at the nearby village school and is fast becoming a tourist attraction. But his constant cries of 'Jack' and 'Come on!' have kept one resident awake and been mistaken by another for the cries of cheeky children. The local policeman has been informed but no one has turned up to claim the bird. 80 09 18a

Anyone who has sat in a traffic queue tailing back into Downing Street from the Lion Yard car park will know the frustration of arriving in Cambridge at peak times. The tourist office says parking is atrocious and directs visitors to Saxon Street where you can stay all day for 30p. The County Structure Plan foresees a need for three new multi-storey car parks to cope with future demand. But rising petrol prices or decreasing oil supplies could mean fewer cars on the road in the future. 80 09 18b & c

Too many have accused Huntingdon of lacking facilities for shopping and leisure. Now work has started on an entertainment complex which will include a two-screen cinema and bingo hall together with more shops. The High Street can already boast some of the major chain stores and car parking is more than adequate. People dismiss the town's appearance because of the housing design and infamous ring road, but it is surrounded by beautiful countryside and it has the potential to succeed. 80 09 18d

1980 09 19
The Cambridgeshire-based MG owners club launched a campaign to save the cars when British Leyland decided to stop making them and closed the Abingdon factory. Now they plan to keep British sports cars in production by bringing out their own special limited edition of the MGB Roadster. They will have rubber or chrome bumpers, stainless steel sills and leather interiors and the price is likely to be around £6,000. 80 09 19a

Cambridge's top amateur gardener, Mr Ted Peacock, has died. He hit the headlines in the early '70s when he decided to open his Byron Square gardens so people could see the dahlias which were his pride and joy. It became an annual event and the wealthy turned up in their Rolls-Royces. He was an expert on many other flowers, fruit and vegetables and probably won more gardening show prizes than anyone else over a period of 40 years. 80 09 19b

Victoria Road home, p17

1980 09 20
The Round House, Little Thetford is thought to be a lookout post built at the end of the 15th century. It was lived in, divided up into two three-storey cottages, up until 1959 and then stood empty for some years. The roof was in danger of collapsing and the 'stairs' were virtual ladders. Now it has been turned into one dwelling with a small extension at the rear. The thick walls are solid brick throughout; built before the village it could well outlast it. 80 09 20

New crossing, p6

1980 09 22
Police are investigating a fire which badly damaged the former paper mill on Newmarket Road, Cambridge and spread into the roof of the adjoining Globe pub where customers were finishing their drinks. One who was using an outside lavatory spotted the blaze and alerted the landlord who evacuated the pub and called the fire brigade. The former mill, built in 1872, is owned by Norwich Brewers and has been empty for years. The roof has been badly burned and the walls damaged by smoke, heat and water. 80 09 22

A family has stepped forward to claim Jack the jackdaw who has been amusing the villagers at Histon with his cheeky repartee. "There was no mistaking that the bird was theirs", said Richard Spittle who first noticed Jack perched on a branch outside his house. "The little girl said something completely gobbledegook and the bird repeated it immediately. He came straight away as soon as she called him". They were very relieved to have him back. After he was featured in the News at least four other families turned up claiming to have lost a pet jackdaw. 80 09 22a

1980 09 23
The European Parliament's Committee on External Economic Relations has come to Cambridge for a meeting in the Senate House because it is homeless. Dissent between member countries has forced it to expensively tour the cities of the EEC like a travelling troupe of well-heeled actors looking for a theatre. As chairman, Sir Fred Catherwood is allowed to have one meeting a year in his own patch. But only 20 Cambridge citizens took up the opportunity to witness the world's most powerful trading bloc in action. 80 09 23a

Bus lane, p9

1980 09 24
The Rathmore Club was founded 63 years ago as Cherry Hinton Liberal Club but with the changing political climate became a social club about 20 years ago. Now the general financial situation, falling membership – they have only 350 members - and reduced bar sales means it may cease to operate at the end of the month. 80 09 24a

There are twice as many bicycles in Cambridge than in other towns, but there are three times as many bike shops. The proprietor of University Cycles of King Street says the overheads are high but with hard work it is possible to make a comfortable living. Second-hand bike sales peak at the start of a university term and winter is a good time for repairs as with ice and snow there are frequent breakages. But Cedar Cycles of Cottenham say people travel out to them because they are the cheapest in the area. 80 09 24b-c

Ambulance, p11

1980 09 29

It is fifteen years since Kempton's fashion shop started in Fore Hill, Ely. Now another has opened in the Rookery shopping development at Newmarket. Customers can be sure of good personal service by somebody who knows what the fashion business is about. It will stock the best range of coats in town and will keep up to date with new styles while keeping an eye open for the 'evergreen' popular clothes sought by the woman who remains conservative in her choice. 80 09 29a

1980 09 30
Microlite, p8

October 1980 CEN

1980 10 01
The county fire service will be ruined if planned cuts of £200,000 are implemented. At Cambridge the number of firemen will be cut by 20 and one of the three pumping appliances scrapped. There will be just one pump at Ramsey, March and Huntingdon and even then redundancies might still be needed. And if the firemen settle for a pay rise of more than 11 per cent there will have to be extra cuts. The news was greeted with horror by councillors who say it would put the county in peril. 80 10 01

The number of elderly people is rising so fast it is putting a strain on the health and social services. Many people who have recently settled in the area have brought their elderly relatives with them because of the rural and relatively peaceful setting. There should be a change in emphasis from residential to community care but the family must bear more of the responsibility. 80 10 01a

A bullock barged into the Saffron Walden branch of Boots the chemist. A woman snatched a toddler out of the way as it ran from one end of the store to the other. It then skirted the cash tills and ran up the other side towards the entrance – all without knocking a single item from the shelves. It was hustled back down the road towards the cattle auction in Market Street from where it had escaped as it was being loaded into a lorry. 80 10 01b

Bomb disposal experts were called in when a bag containing five shells was found in the Cam at Jesus Green lock. They were taken to the Army's headquarters at Colchester where one of them – a five-inch-long bullet shaped object – was discovered to be a highly-explosive anti-tank shell. The others were solid-shot shells used in the last war from an anti-tank gun. Lock-keeper Allan Brett had spotted a plastic bag in the water, hooked it in and found the shells inside. 80 10 01e

Council bikes, p3

1980 10 02
Fowlmere's new bus service to Royston received an amazing response. Organisers expected half a dozen people but instead there were 37 passengers. This is the kind of service the county's transport co-ordination department has been set up to promote. It fulfils a need without costing a fortune. Diverting the bus through the village only adds 10 minutes to the journey time. The fare from Fowlmere to Royston is 38p. single 80 10 02

Vicar brothers, p5
Bourn Hall opens, p7

1980 10 03
Councillors are horrified at the state of Bourn Hall, the Tudor mansion which is being converted into a test-tube baby clinic. Ugly metal cowls have been placed over chimneys, an old wall has been demolished and the grounds spoiled by ugly Portakabins. But these are not permanent fixtures and will only be used until renovations can be carried out on the hall when money is available. 80 10 03a

Cambridge Consultants are breaking new frontiers with technology which can print words in 22-carat gold on egg shells or in edible ink on biscuits. They are pioneering a process known as ink jet printing and have just opened a purpose-built laboratory to develop specialist inks. Commercial applications include textile printing, letters and labelling and a line printer can produce an incredible 10 miles of text an hour. 80 10 03b

The new High Speed Train accelerates quickly by railway standards (but not by those of a Mini). And it just keeps on accelerating. At around the 120 mph mark it felt fast. The railway men have padded armchairs but the ride at the guard's end is so bad that BR are contemplating putting the space over to parcels and putting the guards elsewhere. The drivers are dismissive of their skill: powerful engines, powerful brakes, an air-conditioned cab and unrestricted vision make it a bit of a doddle, they say, compared to driving a clapped-out diesel. 80 10 03c

Should you walk into the Three Blackbirds at Wood Ditton in the early hours of the evening you will be greeted not by the sounds of a juke box but by the strains of Bach, Beethoven and sometimes Elgar. For the landlord, Patrick Thompson, is learning to play the violin and has joined evening classes to create his own instrument 80 10 03d

Addenbrooke's Hospital, p17
Stretham Chronicle, p22

1980 10 04
School meals, p1

1980 10 06
A pensioner lost his home and possessions when a fire ripped through his 16th-century cottage at Thriplow. The entire roof and top floor – which had recently been rethatched – were destroyed and neighbours rallied round to save what they could. "There was a considerable amount of heroism – they even went into rooms that were on fire, and the efforts of the firemen were enormous: they managed to save the main structure of the house", said his son. 80 10 06

1980 10 07
One of the most dramatically effective road works, the St Ives by-pass which provides the first new crossing of the Great Ouse since the 15th-century, sweeps round the town partially using the track of the old St Ives to March railway line. It will carry virtually all the vehicles presently queuing to cross the medieval stone bridge which has been the worst bottleneck in the Cambridgeshire road system. Now it will be closed and the average flow of 11,000 vehicles a day will dwindle to around 500. 80 10 07a

Grantchester villagers gave a massive thumbs-down to County suggestions that their 114-year-old primary school should be closed. The number of children had dropped from 108 to 31 as parents were not satisfied with its new ethos. It had previously attracted the children of visiting academics. But the number of children in the village is dropping, the teacher-pupil ratio was 1:12 when other schools had 30 or more children for every teach, the cost was unacceptably high and there were places at Barton 80 10 07b

Babraham Hall experiments, p5

1980 10 08
Sir – I was distressed at the news of the fire at the Papermills on Newmarket Road which is believed to have been started deliberately. The house was listed in the 1970s as of historical interest and Norwich Brewery was ordered to put it in order. The only results are some scaffolding in the back yard. The hoist is of industrial archaeological interest as it was the second paper-mill in England, dating from around 1700. Perhaps the fire may result in repairs to what was once described as 'the most beautiful house in Cambridge' – Nan Youngman 80 10 08

1980 10 10

The Railway Development Society have hired British Rail's experimental railbus, a mustard-yellow Leyland Experimental Vehicle which looks like two buses bolted back to back for trips from Cambridge to Bury St Edmunds. It is an important step in the development of a new generation of cheap, light-weight railcars which could replace the present diesel multiple units. 80 10 10a

The Specials will remember their visit to the Supertent on Cambridge's Midsummer Common. They had to contend with the vast acoustics imbalances of a grotesquely inappropriate circus arena, the mindless inanities of their so-called followers and the inevitable trouble. The music was terrific but the tension for too pronounced. Lead singer Terry Hall tried to defuse the atmosphere but finally led the band off stage in mid-number to escape the volleys of beer cans and spit. 80 10 10b

1980 10 13
Police scrapbooks discovered – 80 10 13
Stretham windmill, p15

1980 10 15
Harston church is to get a new weather vane, six months after its old one collapsed. The new one, in the shape of a heron, is made of aluminium on a wrought-iron frame and will stand on the little turret of the church. It was designed by the vicar's wife, Marian Allen, a professional artist, and was made by a craftsman near Wimpole. There was no particular reason for choosing a heron other that there were several of them on the river. 80 10 15

1980 10 17
Emilie Lewis established the Mackenzie School of Music and Dramatic Art in Cambridge in 1923 and many students benefited from her training, winning prizes at local festivals. From it developed the Mackenzie Society with weekly concerts to give young students experience of performing to a live audience. Both organisations continue to flourish in the hands of her former students. Now a subscription had been started for a cup to be awarded at the Cambridge Festival reflecting the high standard Emilie herself set in her professional life. 80 10 17

Melbourn houses, p11

1980 10 21
Until recently the Star pub in Waterbeach was famous for its menagerie. Now the landlord has become caretaker at the village school and has taken some of his animals with him. A miniature compound has been built to cater for his Shetland pony, two goats, rabbits and a number of exotic birds. But he has yet to find room for a heavy horse and cart. The children are delighted, many haven't seen a goat close up before. 80 10 21

1980 10 23
A 600-year-old granary is being rebuilt at Wandlebury by the Cambridge Preservation Society. It formed part of the Tadlow Towers estate. The owner sought permission to demolish it when it fell into a dilapidated state but instead it was carefully dismantled timber by timber and put into store for eight years until the Society could afford to rebuild it. Experts believe it may date from the 14th century and is a unique survival in the area. 80 10 23

1980 10 27
There was an undignified scramble for seats on the coaches booked by Cambridge Against Missile Bases to take them to the massive CND rally at Hyde Park. A further 150 students left on the Cambridge Peace Action coaches. The decision to base cruise missiles at Molesworth had seen a resurgence of interest in nuclear arms control and several people from Needingworth marched under a 'Hunts Against the Missiles' banner. "It is unlikely to have much influence on the present government", said a member of Cambridge Peace Action, "but the Labour Party has adopted a disarmament policy and may do something when they're in power" 80 10 27

November 1980 CEN

1980 11 03
The Sunday morning, or should it be mourning, footballers of Cambridge club Springbox use a shiny black hearse as their club coach to matches. The driver dresses appropriately in a black top hat. The manager, Alan Doyle, refuses to climb aboard: "I only want one ride in a thing like that", he says. The club have not lost since he took charge last December and say they are out to bury the opposition 80 11 03

1980 11 04
Histon parish council opposed plans for an 18-hole pitch and putt golf course on land off Gunn's Lane approached by a bridleway. They fear it would not be used by village youngsters but attract outside golfers. But they did back a scheme for a day centre for the elderly to be run in the church hall and supported Lumacard, a bright-red card which elderly people can place in their windows to summon help in an emergency 80 11 04

1980 11 05
Laserprint, p4
East Cambs houses, p5

1980 11 06
Cambridge motorists are constantly knocking down bollards erected in Gwydir and Hooper Streets as part of a controversial one-way system. Their yo-yo lives mean that the City Council has had to spend a lot of money restoring them. Now they are to replace the plastic bollards with stronger ones and add some small gardens and shrubs. Incidents seem to arise as motorists have difficulty turning at the points where they have been built 80 11 06

1980 11 07
A Sunday market set up in a Cottenham field took residents, local traders and councillors completely by surprise. Now written warnings have been sent to the people involved because they broke Sunday trading and food hygiene regulations. There is nothing the council can do under planning regulations but it might be stopped on the grounds of misuse of land. 80 11 07a

County education cuts, p13
Cambridge's muffin man a man of many parts – 80 11 07b

1980 11 08
An exclusive university dining club may open its doors to the public. The Pitt Club is a miniature men-only London club where prospective members are vetted carefully and anyone without a public school education is likely to be black-balled. It also houses the Hawks Club for university sporting Blues. But it is no longer making money and is looking for tenants to share the former Turkish bath house in Jesus Lane. Strudels, one of the restaurants in the Kite facing eviction, is amongst a number to express an interest. 80 11 08

1980 11 11
Landbeach church organ may have been damaged by rain which seeped through the vestry roof. It does not sound as good as it once did. The rector says they have no idea what it might cost to repair but it would be beyond the church's resources to replace it. Restoration work to the roof is already costing £80,000 as woodworm had eaten into the timbers. 80 11 11a

The much-disputed future of the Kite area of Cambridge may be thrown back into the melting pot yet again. The city council's Labour administration is becoming increasingly convinced that the present development plan, which it has vigorously opposed from the outset, will not now go ahead because of the national economic situation. So they are to start looking at alternative developments. Their partners, Grosvenor Estates, have until the end of the year to find a taker for the major store and say that Debenhams is interested. 80 11 11b

1980 11 12
The siting of Cruise missiles at Molesworth has unexpectedly been put back years and it will now be 1988 before the four flights of missiles are deployed at the disused airfield. John Major, MP, said the priority was negotiating the need to have Cruise missiles at all. The Defence Secretary, Francis Pym, is aware that local people are keen to have as much of the land returned to farming but this depends on American training requirements 80 11 12a

Two Cambridge language schools are up for sale. The New School of English, founded by John Barnes in 1962, is being sold because of his imminent retirement and the Jarrett School, one of the city's oldest, is also seeking a purchaser. Neither say Iranian crisis which is severely restricting the number of students has been a contributory factor 80 11 12b

The village of Barley was the birthplace of the second mayor of New York, Andrew Willitt who lived near the old town house which was built in 1526. The villagers have been working hard to renovate the ground floor section, known as the Undercroft, to be used as a community centre. Now they have invited the present mayor to reopen it and think they could raise enough money to pay for his fare from America. 80 11 12c

Letting university rooms and facilities during the vacation has grown from a profitable sideline into a virtual necessity. Next year it will bring in £2 million to colleges such as Robinson which was designed with conferences in mind. Previously colleges would send their staff away to the coast during the vacations where they would work in hotels but now they keep them on to help with corporate catering. At prices averaging £16 a day there is a great demand for the 2,500 beds the colleges can muster either in the historic beauty of King's or the modern facilities of Churchill. 80 11 12d

The Newmarket Variety Club opened last December in a blaze of publicity promising a feast of top-class entertainment but closed five weeks later for extensive alterations and by the end of March was insolvent with debts of £170,000. It has now been sold by auction for £73,000. Also under the hammer was the town's old public library in Fitzroy Street. It was bought for £17,500 by a property developer who said he had never stepped inside it but thought it was cheap. 80 11 12e

1980 11 13
The Chilean Ambassador was forced to clamber to safety across the rooftops of St John's College after demonstrators burst into the locked room in which he was addressing a private meeting of the Monday Club, a right-wing undergraduate society. He was ushered along a narrow ledge and through another window into a don's room while other opponents of the Chilean regime chanted and jeered from the courtyard below. He was unable to leave the college until police arrived to escort him away. 80 11 13a

The effect of sand-blasting masonry is dramatic; a building which has faded into drab insignificance under decades of dirt reveals subtle details of a mason's art. Take the Whim in Trinity Street, Cambridge. Cleaning has revealed a beautiful mellow honey-coloured stone dressed decorative carving work and topped by a turret that wouldn't look amiss on a fairy-tale castle. It has been treated with a colourless silicone wash to make it water repellent while still allowing it to breathe. This makes it self-cleaning. 80 11 13b

1980 11 14
A painting by a Flemish artist in 1562 may be sold to provide cash for much-needed repairs at Landbeach church. A similar work of art made £14,000 but this one is not in good condition. 'The Adoration of the Shepherds' is painted on wooden panels which have split and the original surface is damaged. It can never be hung in the church as it would deteriorate in the damp conditions and could be vandalised so it is in storage at the Fitzwilliam Museum. 80 11 14a

Over 2,000 people are waiting for a council house in Cambridge with 900 applications this year. New legislation enabling tenants to buy their properties at discount has also caused problems as the Government has banned spending on new building. One way to house more is to reduce the time between a house being vacated and the new occupant being allowed in. But the council often has to call in specialists in dry rot or roofing. Unimproved terrace housing is very expensive costing twice that in Peterborough. 80 11 14b

Tadlow granary, p9
Newmarket Severals House, p21
The black sheep of Wood Ditton – Mark Jeffery transported to Australia in 1850s – 80 11 14

1980 11 15
Cambridge University radio doubled its potential audience when it went on the air in a second college. Now New Hall undergraduates have joined those of Churchill College in being able to listen to the amateur broadcasters. Home Office regulations mean they cannot transmit beyond college confines which requires low-strength transmitters and a forest of aerials over the city skyline – New Hall now has 12. 80 11 15a

Little Flo, a huge inflatable blue whale got a shock when she came to Cambridge. First she almost took off in the wind and then she was too big to go through the doorway of the Blue Boar Hotel where members of the International Whaling Commission were meeting. But Flo made an impact as she heaved and tugged at the guy ropes holding her down; she is a bit battle-scarred but will continue to demonstrate until whale hunting is banned completely. 80 11 15b

1980 11 18
More than 1,000 demonstrators massed in the centre of Cambridge in protest over plans to slash County Council spending. They chanted and jeered councillors arriving for a meeting. A macabre scaffold with a schoolboy hanging from it stood near Shire Hall as part of an attempt to halt cuts of £2 million which would serious damage services, particularly education. But Francis Pym, MP, said the world is in a very deep recession and they must make difficult decisions. 80 11 18

1980 11 19
The exclusive public school image of Magdalene College has come under attack from its own dons. The college, once regarded as a finishing school for Etonians, is suffering from a crisis in its academic performance and has decided to widen its intake and appeal to comprehensive schools and sixth-form colleges for future recruits. 80 11 19

1980 11 20
The Duxford Flyer is equally at home on road or rail. With the rail wheels down she can shunt up to 700 tons of railway wagons at the CIBA-Geigy plastics factory. Using her road wheels she can potter round at a stately six miles an hour. The four-tone Unilokomotive is part of a scheme to end their dependence on two sidings at Great Chesterford and Whittlesford. The new railway leads directly into the works from the main Cambridge-London railway line and relieves Duxford and Ickleton of lorry traffic. 80 11 20

Chunnel archives, p5

1980 11 21
Children at Newmarket Upper School now have two cafeterias with a wide menu which reads like a Wimpy bar. Gone are overcooked vegetables and stolid shepherd's pie. Now there is a choice of beefburgers, filled rolls, curry and rice, chips, baked potatoes and salads. And to follow there is jam and cream scones, chocolate crunch and fresh fruit. It has doubled the amount of children paying for school food, though some do fill their plates with chips. 80 11 21

1980 11 25
Village policemen will soon be back pounding the beat in a bid to stop rising crime and vandalism. A new scheme involves officers forsaking panda cars for bicycles or foot patrols. It means a return to the days before 1965 when village patrols were a normal part of police duties. Now they will get to know residents and work on crime prevention as well as detection. 80 11 25a

Viscountess Bury, p6

1980 11 26
A clampdown on the 600 motorists who every day defy traffic bans along King's Parade, Cambridge, will involve blocking off the road outside the Senate House to all traffic except cyclists and emergency vehicles. But it has angered taxi drivers who say it would make longer journeys. The move is part of a plan to improve city centre conditions for pedestrians and cyclists. 80 11 26

1980 11 28
The oldest known painting of St Etheldreda, the patron saint of Ely Cathedral, has been discovered on the wall of Willingham parish church. The 13th-century wall painting is one of a series of fine murals which are being restored. There are only two other known paintings of the saint and this predates them by at least a century. The key to its identification is an unsightly red rash below her face which represents a tumour she had on her neck. 80 11 28a

The crossing-keeper at Queen Adelaide works 85 hours a week for a wage of £80.78. He rents a three-bedroomed house from British Rail for £10 a week, pays for light and heating even when on duty and is not paid an unsocial hours allowance. The daytime relied crossing keeper is paid more than he is. At night he grabs a few hours' sleep on a couch between the 2.30 train and the next one two hours later. Then he heads out into the freezing cold to open and shut the gates. 80 11 28b-c

1980 11 29
Canon Duckworth, p8

December 1980 CEN

1980 12 01
Soham Comrades' Band is the new brass band champion of Cambridge, snatching the title from Littleport. Chatteris Town Band came third. Each had to play a march, a hymn and one other work. In the contest for small bands Waterbeach took the first prize, Wicken was second, followed by Cottenham, Haddenham and Burwell. Cottenham took the Cook trophy for the highest marks in the march with the Ernie Avery memorial trophy for the highest marks in the hymn going to Waterbeach. 80 12 01

1980 12 02
The proposed industrial development of the old Cambridge Cattle Market area is worrying local residents. The City Council intends letting the site to be turned into an industrial estate but locals fear that additional traffic would put a burden on the strained traffic situation and lead to the restriction of parking along Cherryhinton Road. This is something to be avoided at all costs. 80 12 02

1980 12 03
King's choir school, p11

1980 12 04
Some of the best-looking Christmas crackers are produced at the Waterbeach Work Experience Unit. Crackers have become an established part of the training given to 'non-academic' young people in their last year at school who may have special difficulties in finding a job and adapting to work. More than 1,500 boxes a year are produced. 80 12 04a

The age of the microchip has taken all of us by surprise but now sons and daughters crave for the latest computer game, digital watch or radio-controlled car. Since Tandy came to Cambridge five years ago they have found rapidly-increasing demand in the home electronics field and have now divided their Emmanuel Street operation into two shops. One will house a veritable treasure trove of hi-fis, tv games and intercoms appealing to the young. 80 12 04b

Cambridge's Mill Road is ideal for bargain-hunting. Inghams has one shop entirely devoted to carpets and another with furniture and bedding at the least possible price for top-quality merchandise. The Children's Shop, situated a few yards from the Maternity Hospital, caters for the important needs of premature babies. Easiglaze Windows can show how your new replacement windows could look in your home – no more choosing from brochures while W.F. Webb is one of the best-known in the area; they have been supplying customers since the very early days of radio. 80 12 04c

Robinson, p16

1980 12 05
The first 1½ -mile section of the dual-carriageway of the A604 between the Trinity Foot public house and Bar Hill has opened to traffic. It means less queuing for drivers who have been restricted to single-file traffic and restricted to 40 mph since work started in April 1979. A further two miles will be opened between Woolpack Cottage, Galley Hill and Godmanchester will open next week and there are hopes the whole contract will be completed before May. 80 12 05

Cambridge Scientific Instrument Co., p16
Harold Painter's Sutton history book – Petty – 80 12 05a

1980 10 06
Cambridge railway commuters said goodbye to their two most popular stewards with presents and champagne. British Rail is replacing the three buffet cars and replacing them with micro-buffets and stewards Colin Taylor and Robbie Davidson are resigning. Simon Spanswick of Newport, who fought to save the service, decorated the 20-year-old buffet car with black crepe and Ron Knowles of Horseheath produced a wreath in loving memory. The regulars gathered round the counter and got through quite a lot of drink. 80 12 06

1980 12 09
Cambridgeshire police will lose its cadet force and 35 extra officers it planned to cope with the increased population after £250,000 was cut from its budget. But this is half what had first been proposed. A 'frightening' number of police officers are leaving within two years of joining up; although it is a well-paid job young people today find the night duties and late turns upsetting. 80 12 09

1980 12 10
Anyone who can afford it can now 'pick the brains' of a central computer via Prestel, a specially adapted tv set connected to the telephone. A remote control keypad enables it to dial up the local computer and access material stored in its memory which travels down the ordinary telephone line. In the future one might use on-screen displays to teach children, transmit newspaper-type material with a domestic print-out facility, exchange letters and conversations by text displays and vote in general and local elections. 80 12 10a

George Seaman-Turner, p3
Lennon and cynical Cambridge – Beatles visit 1963 – 80 12 10

1980 12 11

The time taken to get through supermarket check-outs varies; at 6pm on a Thursday evening Tesco's Regent Street store, Cambridge was fairly busy and five out of the seven checkouts were in operation; it took nine minutes to get through. But at their Bar Hill store we queued for 21 minutes. At Bishop's, Arbury Court, paying by cheque meant the cashier had to get it approved by her colleague, which delayed the neighbouring queue. 80 12 11a & b

Plans to expand the village of Somersham have been resisted for many years. An attempt to build on the outskirts of the village was thwarted but it is designated as a "key village" and must grow. Now 'The Paddocks' development has gained an award as the best estate containing lower-price houses to be built in the last decade with an average selling price of £10,500. It was praised for the sensitive planning which managed to avoid destroying the character of the area. 80 12 11c

Burwell stable, p7

1980 12 12
Longstanton school head's views on education – 80 12 12

1980 12 15
Newmarket station can be demolished – 80 12 15

1980 12 16
Sussex Street shops – 80 12 16

1980 12 18
The headmaster at Longstanton School is finding that the academic needs of his pupils are outstripping their financial resources. He gets £10 per year for every child, which has to cover everything. Two-thirds of the children come from service families at the Oakington Barracks and because the Army moves a whole battalion at a time, the school's population changes literally overnight every two and a half years. This raises problems for the village children who are there all the time. 80 12 18

Kite plan, p1
Road link, p5

1980 12 19
Radio, p1

1980 12 20
One of the oldest pubs in Cambridge, the Rose in Rose Crescent, may soon be just a memory. The brewery, Whitbread, is to sell the premises and it is likely to be converted into student accommodation. Landlord Alf Barnett said it was a place where a man in gumboots and work clothes could stand alongside a businessman with brolly and bowler hat and get along together. Sons of the gentry, over late-night cups of coffee, would ask to borrow the phone to ring 'Mum' and he used to vet their girlfriends. 80 12 20

1980 12 23
Plans for two major developments in Ely have been approved. The Rex Cinema, which has been losing money, will be knocked down to make way for a new Boots store and additional space for Brands. The Club Hotel site will be altered to provide 17 mini shopping units, though there could be traffic problems. But a scheme to knock down a row of derelict cottages in Newnham Street to make way for seven shops, 21 flats and two office suites have been turned down. 80 12 23b

Radio Cambridgeshire – Hal Bethell plans – 80 12 23a
Kite plans, p3
Education department, p7

1980 12 24
Weird ghosts of Madingley Hall – 80 12 24 & a & c

1980 12 29
St Neots church

1980 12 30
Thomas Orbell, the owner of a garage in Milton Road Cambridge for almost 50 years has died. He was widely-known in motor-racing circles because of his son, David, who won the second round of the Clubmans Register Championship at Brands Hatch in April. He was still involved in engine development for his son's present venture in Formula Three racing. 80 12 30

1980 12 31
This has been a good year for Cambridge United who played Aston Villa, probably the most famous cup side in England, in the FA Cup. There was a mad scramble to tickets; 12,000 lucky fans were treated to a cup thriller and most were happy with a 1-1 draw though United were trimmed 4-1 in the replay. Then they met Wolves in the Football League Cup, beating them over two legs in a performance that brought praise from England manager Ron Greenwood. They went on to beat Aston Villa but then lost to Coventry. 80 12 31a

The highlight of the sporting year came in Gothenburg where Mike Lee became the youngest world speedway champion for 20 years; now he is the established top rider in the world and a member of the England team. The boxing highlight was the world title fight for Dave 'Boy' Green. He flew to America to take on Sugar Ray Leonard, only to be put on the seat of his pants. 80 12 31b

1981 Cambridge Evening News

I have digital copies of these articles

January 1981 CEN

1981 01 03
The landlord of the Crown and Pipes pub in Fenstanton is to ask Lester Piggott to donate 'something suitable' to turn his bar into a 'shrine to racing'. He has bought a print of Piggott's eight Derby winners together with others of Arkle, Brigadier Gerard and Mill Reef and hopes to acquire jockeys' silks. It has always been a racing-oriented pub since Joe and Manny Mercer used to pop in on their way to northern tracks in the 1950s. 81 01 03

1981 01 05
Militant anti-vivisectionists dubbed slogans and insults on the homes of Cambridge scientists, calling for an end to the use of animals in experiments. They were part of an orchestrated attack by the Animal Liberation Front. One scientist was awakened by a telephone call at 3am to be told there was 'a surprise' in his front garden; he found slogans over his garage door and coping stones knocked from a wall. But he no longer works in Cambridge. 81 01 05

1981 01 06
Primary schools at Pymoor and Witcham may close next July; the Pymoor children will go to Lt Downham and the 35 pupils from Witcham will attend Mepal school. But Fen Drayton school may be given a temporary reprieve while councillors consider educational provision in the Fenstanton and Hilton area. 81 01 06a

1981 01 07
A last-minute bid to lift the threat of closure from Grantchester Church of England school has failed; it will close in July 1982 and the pupils transferred to Barton. Villagers wanted it to be retained as a one-teacher school until there were more pupils. But rising house prices meant that people with young families could no longer afford to live there and it was a question of economics. 81 07 07a

Efforts to get permanent sites for gypsies in the Cambridge area are being hampered by meddling by Councils, claimed the representative of the Romany Guild. By circulating petitions demanding a site and threatening legal action they are delaying provision of a permanent site. Communications between different groups were never easy when the caravanners were constantly on the move. His attack follows the removal of 40 families from the Cambridge Cattle Market site and there are now 12 caravan near Milton bypass. 81 01 07b

Work has started on the electrification of the railway line through Huntingdon, St Neots and Sandy. The seven-month programme which involves auger-boring by the trackside and the making of concrete bases for the overhead cable masts is primarily to keep a specialist team of workers in existence. Electrification of the East Coast main line at present goes no further than Hitchin where the Great Northern electric line branches off to Royston. The extension to Peterborough has not yet been authorised. The Cambridge line remains the main priority. 81 01 07c

1981 01 08
Landbeach marina, p11

1981 01 09
The A1-M1 link road is officially ranked as a scheme of the highest importance. But there is total disagreement about the route. The Government wants it to run from the M6 junction but Cambridgeshire county council suggests a route between Northampton and Thrapston, past Wellingborough. They want the road between St Neots through Kimbolton to Highham Ferrars to be downgraded but this can only be done when an alternative through route is open. 81 01 09a

There is a tinge of sadness about the Plough Monday celebrations this year. Russell Wortley, who did so much to restore the custom and was instrumental in bringing back the Molly Dancers, died last January while Molly Dancing at Comberton. But he left a permanent record in notes and articles which have now been published by the Cambridge Morris Men. 81 01 09b

1981 01 12
A bomb blast ripped through the Waggon and Horse pub at Cottenham, shattering a window and sending glass and burning fragments of wood into the street. The device, described as a pipe bomb had been left on a window ledge and exploded at 4.45 in the morning. Fragments of the home-made device have been sent for forensic examination. Police have ruled out terrorist involvement but have no idea of the motive behind it. 81 01 12a

The redundant All Saints church in Cambridge may have had £50,000 in its coffers when it was closed down seven years ago. The discovery has re-opened the simmering row about the future of the Victorian church in Jesus Lane. Supporters claim it could have been used on badly-needed repairs to the fabric of the building and have accused the Diocese of letting it go to rack and ruin. But the archdeacon says money is no longer available for a church when it is made redundant and should be used for the benefit of the living church rather than the dead. 81 01 12b

1981 01 13
Fox Island is a nature reserve on the river Kym just before it joins the Great Ouse by St Neots Golf Club. It was originally a two-acre strip of sedge and nettles, the site of a tennis court attached to a bungalow built by an actor from London. It was bought by Dr Patterson who cut through the site to form an island. He then set about turning it into a sanctuary and it is now managed as a reserve. 81 01 14b

The 15-year old problem of finding a suitable site for a multi-storey car park in West Cambridge must be solved by the summer, city councillors have decided. The residents of Newnham are to be told that, whether they like it or not, something must be done. A major problem has been finding a suitable site but it can be built just as cheaply underground, perhaps adjacent to the junction of Queen's Road and Madingley Road. 81 01 13a

The News 'Motoring' column was started and first written by Brian Lister in 1955. He went off to make one of the very famous names in sports-racing cars, the Lister-Jaguar, which, driven by the late Archie Scott-Brown and tuned by Don Moore of Cambridge Place, dominated the racing scene. Rodney Tibbs took over the column in 1957. 81 01 13b

1981 01 14
More than 50 ex-Saffron Walden footballers returned to their former ground to celebrate the publication of Paul Daw's history of the club. William 'Tich' Barker, made his debut in 1930 when he was 16 but rejected claims that he was the 'star' of the side that did so well just before the war when they used to get crowds of up to 1,600 people. "Nowadays, the players make more noise than the crowd: we never went in for all the shouting which you see today; and we never got paid a penny either – players used to give up an hour's pay at work to catch the bus and turn out for Walden", he recalled. 81 01 14a

St Neots reserve, p6

1981 01 15
Newmarket training girls, p20

1981 01 16
Japanese POW article and pic of camp – 81 01 16a
Foxton station, p16

1981 01 17
The Perse School for Girls celebrated its 100th birthday with a mammoth birthday cake made by the school cooks. It was left to the youngest pupil, Amanda Higgins, to blow out the candles. Head girl, Rachel Bendall presided over the cutting while the headmistress, Miss Mary Rose Bateman, help with the serving to each of the 701 pupils and staff. Later there was of a film depicting its history and a thanksgiving service. 81 01 17

1981 01 19
New post for Cambs farmer – John Martin – 81 01 19

1981 01 20
Station bar, p3
Police door, p5

1981 01 21
Non-smokers, p9

1981 01 22
Motoring, p8

1981 01 23
The Look, p1
Rathmore club, p7
Car park plan, p17

1981 01 24
Dispute in University English faculty – 81 01 24a
Angell hairdressing, p10

1981 01 26
Microelectronics have caused some major shake-ups in the way we live and work; Cambridge's electronics wizard, Clive Sinclair brought us the first pocket calculator and pocket television and now launches Britain's first complete personal computer, the ZX-80. It plugs into the aerial socket of your television and is tuned in like a video-game. But then you have to type in a program from the 128-page instruction manual. The computer is not really all that bright and must be given a clear list of instructions before it can do even the simplest sums. 81 01 26a & b

1981 01 27
Living survey, p6
Magdalene Bridge, p8

1981 01 28
A Cambridge student has set up a computer dating service for lonely hearts in the university. For just 50p the unattached undergraduate is promised an introduction to the partner of his dreams. Confidential questionnaires drawn up by a student of experimental psychology were sent out and the results loaded on a computer. It matches them up to produce ideal partners and bliss ensures. It is hoped the first couples will be paired off by St Valentine's Day. 81 01 28

Viscountess Bury, p3

1981 01 29
The best thing that can happen to anybody who falls in the River Cam is to drown; the alternative is to catch all kinds of horrible diseases, a councillor said. Everything goes into the river, which is one big drain. They would like it to be made safe for bathing but it was impossible to stop chemicals and fertilisers being washed in and would mean higher water rates. 81 01 29

1981 01 30
Potton, p23

1981 01 31
The Viscountess Bury plopped into the Ouse with a new nose, a new right arm and a dud battery. The 93-year-old doyenne of pleasure boats was relaunched at Ely after a refit that included restoration of its figurehead, a well-upholstered Victorian lady. But she would not start and it took over an hour to get her under way. It should be available for hire by the end of April. 81 01 31

February 1981 CEN

1981 02 02
Cambridgeshire is the centre for illegal bare-knuckle fist-fights; they are straight knockabouts until one of the fighters drops and as much as £3,000 can change hands with single bets of around £50. A fight at Fen Road Chesterton involving two teenage boys from the gypsy fraternity and watched by a noisy crowd of more than 500 was abandoned when police moved in to break up the crowd, some of whom had travelled from all over the country. 81 02 02

St Neots Local History Society's first meeting was attended by double the number of people expected. About 120 turned up to see a slide show of old buildings in St Neots given by David Hufford with a commentary by the newly-elected secretary, Mrs Rosie Young. The society will have monthly meetings and survey the gravestones in local cemeteries. 81 02 02a

1981 02 03
Bare-knuckle fights – history – 81 02 03

1981 02 04

Airport chiefs stood firmly by their claim that enlargement of Stansted airport would mean no more than 6,000 new homes by 1991. They say airport workers are characteristically young, with many people in the 18-24 age group who tend to share houses and flats. But their assessment of the size of the workforce needed, the number of staff moving into the area and the number of homes needed are all much smaller than those of local authorities opposed to the scheme. 81 02 04

1981 02 05
Cambridge is one of the centres for a new electronic mail network launched by the Post Office. The pioneer Intelpost service means than information can be delivered in hours in a replica of its original form. Drawings and hand-written matter can be transmitted to 17 other post offices. The service is confidential and operating staff who see documents are under legal obligations not to reveal their contents. The rate is £2 for the first page and is backed up by a speedy hand-delivery system which costs £2.50. 81 02 05a

Cambridge City Football Club has crippling debts of about £65,000; this financial millstone is a legacy from earlier days when the club had been run without any administrative ability at all. A club, once the pride of Cambridge until United was elected to the Football League in 1969, has now sunk into a virtual backwater. They have gone 40 games without a win and attract about 200 spectators. But they have a ground with a capacity of 17,000 that is the envy of most non-league clubs. 81 02 05b & c

Weekly News 25 years – 81 02 05

1981 02 06
Prince Edward, p1
Ancher & Rugby club, p14
Clog dancing, p20

1981 02 09
The new King 511 call box installed in Emmanuel Street, Cambridge is made of transparent bronze acrylic attached to a strong central column. There is no door so that users simply walk into the open canopy. British Telecom says it will curb vandalism and is more attractive in a modern environment. 81 02 09a

Nuclear power can be produced more cheaply, safely and efficiently than conventional forms of energy, claimed a technical officer at Sizewell speaking at the Liberal Party conference in Cambridge. The media had created a 'lop-sided view' of safety and nuclear stations produced electricity at an average cost of 1.3p per unit compared with 1.6p for coal-fired and 1.9p for oil fired stations. He warned the party – whose conference voted against nuclear power – to be aware of the 'Luddite syndrome'. 81 02 09b

1981 02 11
The health service in Cambridge is sliding £2.5 into the red and there will have to be massive cuts in patient care as a result, with ward closures. It is overspent on nurses' salaries, drugs and increased fuel costs. But more money is to be spent on the Papworth heart transplant programme where a new consultant will be appointed. 81 02 11

1981 02 12
A 10-year plan for Milton will see space for another 1,300 houses and 60 acres set aside for industry. Milton was chosen because it has outstanding road links, the potential for rail freight, good public transport, the availability of building land because of the new roads and the proposed development of the country park. There may be a substantial supermarket and the council must be urged to provide a permanent branch library. When completed its population will have more than doubled. 81 02 12 & a

Jonas Webb, p5

1981 02 14
D-Day + 10, p5

1981 02 16
Comberton Youth Centre's disco team, winners of a national championship, will appear before Prince and Princes Michael of Kent at a televised awards ceremony. But the BBC has asked for their sexy routine to be toned down. The girls black stockings and cami-knickers will be substituted for something less revealing and the boy's hairy chest covered up. They will also change their name from 'Scandal' to 'The Bodywork Company'. 81 02 16 & a

Tommy Cooper is one of the funniest men in show business. Ostensibly a magician, his tricks go wrong, his impressions awful, and his gags as old as the hills: I went to the doctor. I said, 'I've got a bad foot, what shall I do?' He said, 'Limp.' They get worse as the act progresses yet he creased the audience at the Cambridge Sports Hall with laughter. Any comedian who can perform virtually the same act for more than three decades has to be admired. 81 12 16b

1981 02 18
Cambridge councillors have thrown out the idea of ever building a multi-storey car park anywhere near the Backs. They condemned as 'barbaric' suggestions from senior officials that such a park, either above or below ground, could be built on college gardens, playing fields or open spaces along Queen's Road. "It is even more ridiculous than the plan to put a major road cross Grantchester Meadows", said Councillor Rosenstiel. 81 02 18a

Percy Wing's shop has been in business in Clarendon Street, Cambridge, since 1912. A grocer's and off-licence, it sells all sorts of things from Chelsea buns and bundles of firewood to apricot wine and John Smith's beer. It's the sort of shop where customers can still hold weekly or monthly accounts and have their orders made up and delivered. One customer has had an account there since 1914. Young customers ask for advice and recipes, elderly customers come in for a quarter of a pound of butter or a couple of rashers of bacon. On occasions they have sold a single egg at a time. 81 02 18b

Cambridge electronics wizard, Clive Sinclair, has launched the world's first flat-screen television. Working with Timex he hopes to produce a million tubes in 1982. The first will be a 6 x 4 x 1-inch pocket television costing £50 able to pick up transmissions anywhere. It may eventually lead to a large screen which can be hung on a wall. 81 02 18c

1981 02 20
A spectre haunts the narrow streets of Ely and threatens to turn the cathedral city into a ghost town struggling to hold disaster at bay. The closure of the sugar beet factory is a mortal blow for it is the biggest single employer with 215 permanent jobs plus 130 casual workers during the four-month 'campaign'. The agricultural recession has already caused farmers to buy less machinery meaning the closure of the Dorman Sprayer Company and now Standens are shedding 34 jobs. 81 02 20

1981 02 23
The village post office is a cornerstone of many small rural communities, but lack of business is threatening their survival. Lolworth is one of the smallest, run since 1972 by Mrs Margaret Wenham, a jolly, red-haired lady who was born and bred in the village. For the first five years she ran it from a caravan but now it doubles as the only village shop stocking basic groceries and bits and pieces. It doesn't have a full range of counter services or provide a proper living on its own. But it is relied on by pensioners and mums drawing family allowances in a village with only one bus a week. 81 02 23

Cambridge bookseller George Porter was thanked in Latin for a lifetime's service to the university and city when he was awarded an honorary degree of Master of Arts in an historic ceremony in the Senate House. He started in 1933 in the firm which his father had founded at the turn of the century and became a specialist in antiquarian books. "I was completely thrilled; it came totally out of the blue but I consider it a great honour", he said. 81 02 23a

1981 02 24
Reginald Lambeth, Cambridgeshire's former rural industries organiser, has died. He covered an area of 600 villages and gave technical aid to small firms, including briar pipe and cricket bat makers, helping start three businesses which went on to produce an annual turnover of more than £1 million. He helped to launch the Cambridge Folk Museum and was its unpaid curator for 12 years before he was succeeded by Miss Enid Porter. 81 02 24

As John F. Kennedy was chauffeured into down-town Dallas a telephone call was made to the 'Cambridge News. The anonymous caller gave a reporter the cryptic message: "Call the American Embassy in London for some big news" and rang off, 25 minutes before the world's most powerful man was shot. At least that's what happened according to a text of a telegram attributed to the CIA, one of 25,000 items now released under America's Freedom of Information Act. But nobody at the News remembers it. 81 02 24a & b

1981 02 26
Grantchester's 116-year-old primary school, which is threatened with closure, could turn into a private school on similar lines to Madingley where a parents' co-operative has been running the school since the education authority withdrew support. There is strong backing for the school from the former headmasters of Eton and Winchester schools, two of its trustees. 81 02 26

March 1981 CEN

1981 03 02
There are at least 300 Citizen Band Radio enthusiasts in Cambridge; they range from The Womble who at seven years of age can exchange patter with the best of them on her dad's set to Silver Fox who is 85. But their rigs are illegal, smuggled in and sold for between £65 and £150. The Government says they interfere with television sets and emergency services but the enthusiasts operate a 'bust fund' to replace any set seized. 81 03 02a

Pymoor church, p5

1981 03 03
CB, p6

1981 03 04
The old St Paul's school, designed by Ambrose Poynter, a pupil of the Regency architect John Nash, is destined for demolition. It dates from 1845 and is Cambridge's earliest elementary school. Last year pupils moved into new buildings close by and now the Education Department is seeking to demolish it and use the site for a playground. Old stones showing the former name, the National School' and the boys' and girls' entrances will be put into the new building. 81 03 04

The famous autogyros produced by Ely-born aviation expert Wing-Cmdr Ken Wallis may soon go into production. They can carry out many of the roles of a helicopter but are much cheaper, costing around £17,000. A fighter version was used by James Bond in the film 'You Only Live Twice'. His father built his own an aircraft in the garden of a house in St Barnabas Road in 1908; it flew from a field near Fulbourn but was later destroyed in a storm. 81 03 04a

1981 03 05
CB & planes, p13

1981 03 06
Rail closures are back in news; British Rail wants to close the March-Spalding line in May 1982. It was constructed to carry coal; in the 1950s there were lines of coal trains waiting to get into March station yard but then clean air campaigns in London finished the traffic. The track is in good condition and the hard-up Eastern Region want to plunder it for rails and sleepers to use elsewhere. 81 03 06

Barrington stores stocks a wide variety of goods. Crusty bread comes in daily from Godfrey's Bakery of Swavesey, eggs come twice a week from Fowlmere and the fruit and veg from Royston. They sell cheese from the block, various cold meats and beers. But they also sell sandpaper, needles, clothes pegs and mousetraps. One lady asked for corset laces, but these were not in stock. 81 03 06a

Bottisham photographer, p20

1981 03 09
Cambridge University's award-winning History Faculty building needs £60,000 repairs. Thousands of tiles have to be removed before they fall down themselves. Several have already fallen. Despite opening a year late and being plagued with leaking windows ever since, it has attracted attention from architects and won a national award for its designer, James Stirling. 81 03 09

1981 03 11
People do not realise just how hard is concentrated mental study, hour after hour. A conscientious University student who is set on an academic career often works alone but can get bored with subjects they have studied for many years. Arts students tend to come to terms with loneliness sooner than the science students working in the laboratory and are more likely to suffer breakdowns. The University Counselling Service provides 90 hour-long psychotherapy sessions each week to help them cope. 81 03 11a

Camden cricket club, p14

1981 03 12
A basic funeral is likely to cost £300 with £58 for a cremation and service, not including an organist or any memorials. Burial can work out cheaper, because if a family buy a grave it can be used for two or three people. At Cambridge the charge for land is going up 50% to £75 and there is a fee of £40 for opening the grave and burial. Things are cheaper in the villages where local people have a right to be buried in the parish churchyard without buying the land, if there's space. 81 03 12

The first refuge for battered women opened in Cambridge three years ago; about 285 women and 450 children have been through its doors. At one stage 10 women and 20 children were sharing the three-storey five-bedroomed house. It can take six months before alternative accommodation can be found and some women, depressed by the long wait are driven into returning home. Now a second refuge has been provided to relieve some of the pressure. 81 03 12a

1981 03 13
Services on the Cambridge to St Ives railway line stopped in October 1970 and researchers want to assess the effects of the closure. But they had difficulty tracking down former users, because of the mobility of the Ouse valley towns. The line closed because the populations they served were small and used trains infrequently; in winter they carried only 10 to 20 passengers, most for non-food shopping or visiting families. Most switched to buses which took between 35-79 minutes for the journey, compared to 27 minutes by train. 81 03 13

1981 03 14
Police are trying to untangle the financial affairs of a Linton recluse who left a fortune when he died – possibly £100,000. The retired gardener lived the life of a miser and once told a friend he had to walk to work because he couldn't afford a new tyre for his bicycle. But all the time money was piling up in different bank and savings accounts. After his death police found bundles of money stored in tins and unopened wage packets lying in a trunk – but no will. 81 03 14

1981 03 16

CB wavelength jam, p1

1981 03 19
Stansted expansion, p5

1981 03 20
Tinned guavas, white peaches, maple syrup and home-cooked ham are not the kind of fare you expect to find in a village shop. But Millers' Stores in Orwell is a bit more special. They stock all the groceries and provisions, fresh fruit and vegetables, wines, bread and cakes from a nearby bakery and much more. The shop feels friendly as you are made to feel welcome. The village is in the fortunate position of having two stores but they are not in competition and each has its own different trade. 81 03 20

1981 03 21
Cambridge City Council may go into small-scale farming to try to raise extra money for the ratepayers, buying 20 Hereford store cattle for grazing on Lammas Land and Sheep's Green. The cost could be taken from money earmarked for maintaining the common lands where, under an old law, people can graze cattle, paying a nominal rent of £32 for the right to pasture nearly 200 animals. Most are not really farmers but come together to buy ten animals each and never go near them, taking advantage of rules which prevent the council charging an up-to-date rent. 81 03 21

1981 03 23
Paine's brewery of St Neots has been asked to supply some special beer for the wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer. Buckingham Palace has asked for a quality beer for discerning drinkers. They will produce 5,760 pints of probably the strongest beer they have ever made. Paine's have produced special brews for many royal occasions and this year celebrate their 150-year anniversary with another special beer. 81 03 23

1981 03 24
When the Corn Exchange re-opened earlier this year after a new roof had been fitted at a cost of £200,000 it was thought that the only major rock venue in Cambridge had been restored to the city's youngsters and an impressive line-up of bands were booked to appear. But just four concerts later the clamour of protest about noise has outmatched the decibels of the bands and put the whole future of the hall in doubt. Now the council may have to install soundproofing. 81 03 24

1981 03 25
Coopers, p15

1981 03 27
Cambridge Housing Society embarked on a purpose-built development to provide homes for the disabled. Now after five years beset by all sorts of difficulties George Pateman Court in Tenison Road is nearly complete. It has a prime site, close to shops and transport with flats, bungalows and bedsitters designed for the physically-handicapped. But there is a shortage of disabled people wanting to take up the accommodation. 81 03 27

1981 03 30
Six hundred young people took to the streets to demonstrate against the threat to live music in Cambridge. They marched from the Great Northern Pub in Station Road to the Corn Exchange – the two rock venues at the centre of a row over noise levels. The landlord of the pub has been in dispute with the city's environmental health department over the noise made by band playing there and the Corn Exchange also faces legal action if they do not act on the noise problem. 81 03 30

April 1981 CEN

1981 04 01

The Government has given the go-ahead for USAF TR1 spy planes to be stationed at RAF Alconbury by 1983 together with thousands of extra American airmen and their families. Their deployment will involve additional construction work estimated at £40 million and be the biggest boost for the Huntingdonshire economy for many years. This makes Alconbury – the future Command base for Cruise missiles at Molesworth – a vital part of NATO's defence strategy. 81 04 01

Pye Business Communications is marketing a revolutionary office intercom system, the M100S, which, literally, speaks for itself. A voice unit will verbally tell a caller if a particular extension is in a meeting or on holiday. It can also take a video screen which will flash up information such as a user transferring to another extension or an absence or holiday list. All the information is put into a microcomputer exchange by the keys or dials of the intercom and telephones. 81 04 01a

Gypsies want to build two permanent caravan sites themselves because they believe the county council is acting too slowly. Members of the Romany Guild, the organisation that represents traditional travelling folk, have submitted plans for sites at Grassy Corner, Chesterton Fen Road at Milton and Royston Road Duxford. This follows Government recommendations that gypsies should try and build their own sites to overcome delays facing local authority plans. But the council says both sites have already been the subject of enforcement action. 81 04 01b

1981 04 02
Rosie, p1

1981 04 03
Bottisham's picture-taker – Henry Howard, horsekeeper; not one house in village that didn't have a photo taken by him pre WWI – 81 03 06b

1981 04 06
An era has come to an end at Debden with the retirement of the village's 90-year-old postmistress, Mrs Lilian Peterson after 52 years. Over 40 villagers clustered round the tiny sub-post office to show their appreciation by presenting her with a cheque. She was not forgotten by her younger customers, eight-year-old Catherine Pearson presented a bouquet while Caroline Tyrrell and Melanie Bowles gave her a posy and letter written by all the children at the primary school. 81 04 06

1981 04 08
Cambridge City Football Club hopes to set up an ice rink at their Milton Road ground using synthetic ice. It would be housed in a semi-permanent aluminium and heavy-duty PVC structure which could also be used for five-a-side football, tennis and exhibitions. They hope it will be in place by June and prove a licence to print money. 81 04 08

1981 04 09
Running is the nation's new boom sport with the London marathon attracting huge numbers. But this cannot disguise the alarm over the future of Cambridge's young athletes. "There seems to be a general apathy in schools. Netherhall has always been very good and Manor used to be good but otherwise you are banging your head against a brick wall" says the secretary of the Cambridge and Coleridge athletes club. "Youngsters just seem to want and compete without putting the background work in". 81 04 09

1981 04 10
The hopes of many Cambridge scientists rest on a successful launch of the US space shuttle. One of the planned missions will be to put into orbit a space telescope which will be used along with Spacelab which the shuttle will be taking into orbit on its first operational mission. It will only be in orbit for a week but may lead to a permanent space station. University astronomers are using Starlink, a computer network which links the Cambridge institute with five other astronomy centres in Britain to process vast amounts of astronomical images. 81 04 10

You might suppose that the Cambridge Pianola Company is a dusty relic of the 19th century, but it was started less than five years ago. Pianolas are those 'magic' pianos that play all by themselves, the keys go up and down, prompted by machinery. They are in demand from pubs, clubs and hotels and the company stocks the world's largest range of pianola rolls. It also sells nickelodeons, player organs and pianocorders and helps people trying to restore their own pianolas with materials and spare parts. 81 04 10a & b

A young couple who bought Brookfield Cottage in Little Gransden in 1979 set about restoring it to its original state when they found a rolled-up ball of paper blocking a hole in the old plaster. It was a poem describing the story of 'young Taylor' who had been hanged for poaching. But poaching was not a hanging offence and they can find no mention of him at the Cambridge County Record Office. 81 04 10c

Drag hounds, p22

1981 04 14
Nuclear war, p14

1981 04 15
Delaporte, p8

1981 04 16
Haslingfield general stores stocks a bit of everything from fresh meat to greengrocery and hand-made chocolates to a selection of cheeses. A number of jars behind the counter contain herbs and spices sold loose and they also have cumin seeds and tinned lychees. Cardboard boxes hold everything from upholstery nails and cistern washers to hinges and screws. Dudley Harris, the shopkeeper, believes customers come in to be cheered up and he enjoys having a laugh with them. 81 04 16

Grantchester skateboard, p21

1981 04 16
Call for help to save Lt Thetford play area. 81 04 16

1981 04 18
Leaders of 5,000 Cambridge health service workers passed a vote of no confidence in the Area Health Authority's handling of its £1.5 million deficit. Earlier surgeons said they had lost confidence in the nursing administration and warned that only urgent cases would be admitted. Now County Council experts have offered to help sort out the accounts and untangle the administration. But it is difficult to control the budget when 'clinical freedom' was given to doctors to do what they felt was best for their patients. 81 04 18

Osier bed, p6

1981 04 21
Three valuable painting of Henry VI, Henry VII and Henry VIII have been stolen from King's College, Cambridge. All are contemporary works in oil on wood or panel. They were taken along with their frame from the college's main hall and people thought they had been removed for cleaning. 81 04 21a

1981 04 22
Cambridge University's is to ban tourists and foreign students from its historic degree day ceremony because too many casual observers have caused over-crowding in the public gallery. Several thousand students pass through the Senate House to receive their degrees but the building, which has a capacity of 440 people, must also cope with a similar flow of parents and friends. 81 04 22

1981 04 23
An era has ended at Cherry Hinton Hall with the closure of the nursery school that has flourished there since September 1949. Its head teacher for 30 years, Miss Norah Littlehales retired last August. The big-house-in-the-park, built over a century ago to house a noble family, now has its dilapidation problems and there are no immediate plans for its future use. 81 04 23

Ely beet factory, p11

1984 04 24
Fears that the future of the Arts Cinema might be jeopardy have been scotched by the new manager. He plans a programme of the world's best films, making them available to the widest-possible audience and using the facilities of the British Film Institute's archive material with a series of silent classics with piano accompaniment. Late-night films will also be shown on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. 81 04 24a

The county librarian has criticised a pamphlet entitled 'Where have all the new books gone?' which attacks councils for cutting back on library spending. A new report says Cambridgeshire has reduced library provision by 15% but Brendan Dwyer says spending has risen by 14% although the high increase in the price of books does make it difficult to provide as many as previously. 81 04 24b & c

More than 50 young people belonging to the 'Keep Cambridge Live' campaign, which wants to retain live music, crowded the public gallery of the Guildhall when they thought a plan to convert the Corn Exchange into a music complex was to be discussed. But it is due to be debated in July. After half an hour – during which time paper aeroplanes drifted down among councillors - they left shouting, "How can you sit there and listen to all this boring stuff". The mayor said: "I think we handled that very well". 81 04 24d

Sizewell, p5

1981 04 27
Torrential rain lashed Huntingdonshire over the weekend isolating villages and sealing off roads. Villagers at Alconbury were placed on a 'red alert' and told to move all valuable possessions up to the first floor of their homes. Police frogmen stood by to help people trapped by the water and ferry food to stranded homes. At Chatteris the wind brought down a derelict cottage in the High Street, scattering rubble across the road. 81 04 27a

Mental Hospitals are often seen as Gothic mansions glowering in some remote spot. But Risbridge Hospital at Kedington goes far to dispel the 'Bedlam' myth forever. It has removed the old high hedges, walls and railings and is now open and friendly without bolts and bars. Vic Germain, the administrator, has worked there since 1937: "When I came there was a custodial atmosphere and the doors were all locked. Now the wards are like homes, the patients have their own household things, even down to the teapot and live together like large families", he said. 81 04 27b

1981 04 28
There were problems in many parts of the Bedford Ouse catchment area after 45 millimetres of rain and six inches of snow prompted the issuing of a red flood warning. But now they have interrogatable machines fitted to rivers which link into the telephone lines. When dialled they give a series of codes which convey the level of river discharge and allow engineers to open sluices and lock gates. They can't stop flooding, just ensure that people are warned so they may take preventative action. 81 04 28a

Police computer, p3
Brampton flood, p13

1981 04 29

More than 8,000 old wells could be tapped if water supplies are threatened. But many have fallen into disuse, are capped or not officially recorded. The water could be quite usable since they are on underlying chalkland which acts as a great purifying agent but the Anglian Water Authority are concerned about the risk of pollution: it wouldn't do for them to distribute contaminated water. 81 04 29

Fulbourn garage, p16

1981 04 30
The least expensive part of a traditional wedding is the service. In an Anglican Church the basic charges for the ceremony without music add up to £25 plus an extra £3 for reading the banns. Extras such as an organist or choir cost £5 each. A Shire Hall register office ceremony costs £13. But a wedding dress averages £65, flowers £30 and wedding photographs at least £80. A Littleport firm now offers a video film for £85 but you need a video recorder to watch it afterwards. 81 04 30a

Flooding last week was on a par with conditions in 1947. A high level of rainfall combined with the snow melting has resulted in flood levels downstream from Huntingdon. "There is no doubt that we have a major disaster on our hands in some areas" said the chairman of the Drainage Committee who praised the workmen who spent between 48 and 72 hours working continuously to try and control the floods. 81 04 30b

May 1981 CEN

1981 05 01
It took £10,000, two 20-ton cranes and a good deal of ingenuity for Cambridge artist, Philip Martin, to realise a lifetime's ambitions. He has taken delivery of a 70-foot barge. The 15-ton monster had to be winched off its transporter and lowered into the Cam at Riverside before being pulled by hand a mile up river to its permanent base opposite Alpha Road. It will take some time to convert it into one of the few floating art galleries in the country. 81 05 01

1981 05 06
The Duchess of Kent formally opened Denis Wilson Court, a Royal British Legion housing development providing 28 bed-sitters and 24 double unites for ex-servicemen and women. It was named after the county president of the British Legion. Members of the band of the Queen's Division from Bassingbourn accompanied hymns in the dedication service. 81 05 06

Corn Exchange, p6

1981 05 07
Mainstop, a subsidiary of the giant British American Tobacco Industries, has its eye on the Cambridge Cattle Market site with an outline planning application for a £5 million scheme providing more than twice the space of Sainsbury's in Coldham's Lane. Mainstop already have a superstore in the new Orton 'township' being built outside Peterborough, an area quite different from the site in Cherryhinton Road which is currently scheduled for light industrial development. 81 05 07

1981 05 08
The Viscountess Bury, one of the oldest pleasure boats in the world, has made a come-back after a £10,000 restoration. The 93-year-old boat began the new season with a 16-mile round cruise along the Ouse north from Ely. She originally ran on electricity but is now diesel-powered and ready to ply the rivers, 24-hours a day, for many years to come. 81 05 08

Roman silver coins dating from the 4th century that were unearthed by a metal detector enthusiast have been declared treasure trove. They coins were discovered in a field beside the road to Freckenham. "I walked 20 yards and found one silver coin and then found another two as I slowly went up the slope", he said. In the end he found 211 which could be worth about £3,000. 81 05 08a

County election, p1

1981 05 11
Five years ago the problem of housing single people in Cambridge was desperate. But now 20 local housing associations like Granta and King Street have added hundreds of rooms. The Argyle Street Housing Co-operative is different: half the places are earmarked for CCAT students and the rest will go to single people. Members will run the properties themselves, doing some of the maintenance. Living near a railway line is not everyone's idea of heaven but it does have its advantages: the rents will be around £15 a week. 81 05 11

1981 05 12
Glue-sniffing first came to this country about 10 years ago and there have been isolated outbreaks since then, but the revival of the craze among a group of Cambridge youngsters has caused concern. Police say there are no more than a dozen involved and it is not a major problem yet. One 14-year-old punk, a veteran glue-sniffer of three months, admitted stealing pots of glue and said "My mother doesn't want me to do it but I just like it and don't care". 81 05 12

1981 05 13
Midsummer Fair may be called off if the Showmen's Guild and Cambridge City Council can't reach agreement over proposed rent increases or proposals for more attractions. It has been described as the second largest fair in Britain but this includes many market traders who take stalls; in terms of fairground rides there are many larger. "The fair is quite honestly not that good – it's large, but not well-attended" one showman said. 81 05 13

1981 05 14
Cambridge's unique 100-year-old spiky pillar box has been moved from the corner of Newmarket Road and Cheddar's Lane after local firms protested that its seven-inch aperture was too small for modern-day packages. It was built about 1880 and does not have the royal cipher or the words 'Post Office' on it. But nobody knows why it has spikes on the top. Some say it was to stop people climbing over the gas works wall, others that it was to frighten away a troublesome swan that used to perch on the top or provide an uncomfortable landing for a hapless German parachutist. 81 05 14a

Wartime correspondence between the Home Office and the man who would have run Cambridge in the event of a major disaster has been unearthed in the Public Record Office. Mr F.R. Scott would have assumed total control of the Eastern Counties and his letters give details of damage to Cherry Hinton Hall and private houses, including a small fire caused by an oil incendiary bomb falling on a house in Tenison Avenue. They were sent from St Regis, Montague Road, which served as the region's civil defence headquarters until 1945. Later Cambridge was again chosen as a Regional Seat of Government in 1959 to cope with the aftermath of a nuclear attack. 81 05 14b

Since 1962 the price of a semi in Perne Road Cambridge has risen from £3,000 to £30,000 and in De Freville it is much higher. The leap in prices in the early 1970s meant that first-time buyers they turned to the Mill Road area and prices rocketed. If you had bought a terraced house in Romsey Town in 1962 it would have cost £1,350. Now it is worth more than £20,000. 81 05 14c

The shop at Hadstock was once a chicken battery and pig sty. It was converted by Mr R.H. Wood and now sells almost everything including meat, coal and vegetables, offering a 'personal service' that the supermarket cannot give. They think nothing of selling a couple of rashers of bacon or a single tomato and there is a big range of sweets for the school children. 81 15 14d

1981 05 15
Cambridge ecologists say a bus which can run on railway lines is the solution to transport problems in local villages. They plan to borrow a prototype and run it from the city centre to Huntingdon, using British Rail's tracks. It would stop at Mill Road, Chesterton and North Arbury was well as the former stations en route to Swavesey. From this point the tracks have been removed but it would run along the trackbed to St Ives and the Hemingfords. 81 05 15a

Diggers are ripping up Molesworth airfield and soon there will be rows of grassy mounds like unmarked graves – resting-places for Cruise Missiles. Close to the spot is the road sign to Little Gidding and on it appears two lines from the T.S. Eliot poem of the same name: 'Dust in the air suspended Marks the place where a story ended'. In the unhappy event of East Anglia being reduced to so much dust the Regional Health Authority has drawn up a war-plan policy. It includes advice on herbal remedies and wearing plastic bags on your head against fall-out. 81 05 15b

Military target, p7

1981 05 16
A £5 million plan for a superstore with space for nearly 600 cars on the old Cambridge cattle market has been scrapped. City councillors who were not consulted in advance laughed at the idea saying it was against their policy of only small-scale industrial development on the site. It also provoked fierce criticism from residents who felt the massive traffic it would generate could make life intolerable. The London-based development company has now withdrawn its application. 81 05 16

1981 05 18
A full-scale anthrax alert was declared following the death of a cow at a farm near Tilbrook. A large part of the farm has been disinfected & Bedfordshire county council has erected notices warning people not to enter. It is ten years since the last serious outbreak at Abbotsley. The area escaped the severe national epidemic of 1977 when there were around 100 cases. 81 05 18 & 19

1981 05 20
University Press, p11

1981 05 21
Reservoir, p15

1981 05 22
The seven-ton electronic camera known to thousands of fund raisers as the cancer scanner has arrived at Addenbrooke's Hospital on the back of a lorry. It was made near Nuremberg and shipped to Gravesend before going to the Siemens works for checking. It takes three-dimensional pictures of the body in micro-thin slides which can be studied to reveal the site of deep-seated disease without the need for investigative surgery. After two years the organisers are now only £100,000 short of their £1 million target. 81 05 22

1981 05 23
Twenty years of uncertainty over the future of the Kite area have ended. Debenham, the major national chain store, is to move into a superstore planned for the £15 million shopping development. Labour councillors who have led opposition against the scheme have conceded defeat saying there is nothing they can now do to halt it. The Conservatives who initiated the scheme and have never flagged in their confidence that it would eventually get under way are delighted. 81 05 23

1981 05 26
Simplex, one of the world's leading makers of farm machinery, is to close its Sawston factory. It was started in 1936 by two cousins, the Bond-Smiths, marketing milking machinery from a building in Gwydir Street. In 1957 it became a subsidiary of GEC, the giant electrical firm, which has now agreed in principle to sell Simplex to Acrow, the engineering firm with a base in Saffron Walden. The firm says the deal makes industrial logic, given the state of the economy, and is designed to preserve the maximum number of jobs. The manufacturing plant will be transferred to Maldon and the Sawston works sold off. 81 05 26

1981 05 27
A Cambridge consortium which owns a shop in the centre of the planned £15 million Kite rebuilding scheme is steadfastly refusing to sell to make way for the giant new redevelopment. No.56 Fitzroy Street was bought in a bid to stop the scheme and their leader, a Cambridge don, says: "Under no circumstances are we going to budge – not even if they offered us £5 million. They can build all around us if they like – I am looking forward to our little shop becoming part of the shopping precinct with a large glass dome over the roof". 81 05 27

1981 05 28
This ought to be one of the most important days in the life of David Robinson, the multi-millionaire. His cheques are everywhere re-shaping Cambridge but the hand that signs them is never seen. Even on the eve of his crowning achievement no-one is certain that he will be there when the Queen officially opens the college he founded and which bears his name. He dislikes the limelight that has won him a private audience with the Queen. 81 05 28a b c

1981 05 29
Newmarket millionaire David Robinson today announced he had given an extra £1 million to the college he founded. The news came shortly before the Queen and Prince Philip arrived in Cambridge to formally open it. But Mr Robinson did not attend the ceremony as he did not feel up to it. He is very frail. But 2,500 employees of the Cambridge University Press took tea with the Queen after she opened their new Edinburgh Building. 81 05 29, 30

1981 05 30
Queen CUP, p6

June 1981 CEN

1981 06 01
Bitter personal arguments, the sound of falling masonry and a series of costly court actions have punctuated the 30-year-Kite saga. In 1950, the Holford Report suggested that the city's historic centre could not meet the shopping needs of future generations. "We regard Fitzroy Street as a valuable relief for pressure on the older centre", it said. Now with the news that Debenhams is to move into the new development and that work is due to start this summer, the saga may be nearing its end. 81 06 01

1981 06 02
Burwell pits, p3

1981 06 04
A Haverhill firm, Trio Tronics, has developed a small electronic reversing alarm for cars, caravans and commercial vehicles. It emits a warning tone as soon as reversing gear is engaged, alerting anyone around. It will also warn a driver if he has engaged reverse by mistake. The device is sealed in a weatherproof unit fitted to the rear bumper and has a switch so it can be turned off at night to comply with noise regulations. So far they have sold 3,000 of the units which cost £8.90 each. 81 06 04b

Cambridge Midsummer Fair may be reduced to a small handful of trade stalls because of a squabble between councillors and showmen. The showmen's guild has decided to boycott the fair because its members are refusing to pay a 25 per-cent rent increase. It would mean large machines like the 'jollity farm' would be charged £125 for the four-day period. Sideshows would have to pay about £4 more a day. But commercial traders still want to take space on the common and hope there will be 'some sort of fair'. 81 06 04a

The last original metal bridge of the old Colne Valley Railway is getting a facelift as sprayers move in to repaint it with the same paint which is used on North Sea rigs, supplied by Signpost Paint of Haverhill. Territorial Army soldiers moved the 44-feet structure, built in 1922, from Earls Colne. It will enable the preservation society to extend its track half a mile across the Rover Colne. 81 06 04c

Green belt plan, p13

1981 06 05
Cambridge was declared a nuclear-free zone by Labour councillors who asked officers to oppose and restrict the deployment of nuclear weapons and the transportation of radioactive material within the city boundaries. Work going on in university departments is beyond the scope of the new policy but any future planning applications for research facilities connected with nuclear weapons would be rejected. 81 06 05a

Police evacuated families when fire ripped through a furniture warehouse in Haddenham High Street, destroying stored furniture and people's belongings. Firemen managed to confine the blaze to the asbestos-built warehouse though they ran short of water and had to send for extra pumps. Crowds lined the street as a pall of smoke hung over the village and the noise of exploding asbestos echoed around the buildings. 81 06 05b

When an Ashley pensioner was told how much it would cost to restore her Tudor cottage, she decided to do the job herself. Now, despite having arthritis in all her joints, she is working to turn her 300-year-old ruin into a dream house. The cottage had been empty for eight years, the roof needed rethatching and she could see daylight through the walls. She has torn out ceilings, dug up floors with a garden fork and laid new foundations. One advantage of working on an old house is that it doesn't matter if the beams and plastering aren't perfectly straight, she said. 81 06 05c

Bicycle route, p30

1981 06 06
Move to save Midsummer Fair – 81 06 06

1981 06 08
Firemen saved a 300-year-old cottage at Great Chesterford from serious damage when sparks from a blazing barn set the thatch on fire. The barn, at the back of the Post Office, which had been converted into three garages was gutted, and a parked car parked was also destroyed. The premises of Swaine, Adney Briggs and Sons who make umbrellas for the Queen Mother and gloves for the Queen were undamaged, though a section of guttering melted in the heat. 81 06 08

1981 06 09
Hilton fire, p6

1981 06 10
Midsummer fair set to go ahead – 81 06 10
Burwell bus, p11
Shopping, p17

19881 06 11
William and Glyn's bank are offering the cheapest mortgages in Cambridge for loans of more than £15,000. Their rates are 13.5 per cent and they will lend 2½ times the principal salary. Banks are currently awash with money to lend while building societies have been hit by granny bonds and National Savings offers; they are lending only to investors and many are rationing them. 81 06 11a

Inferior copies of a shotgun made by Gallyon of Cambridge in the last century are flooding the markets. The guns carry the name 'Gallyon' on the lock but are made in Italy and are nowhere need British standards of workmanship. The firm does not know why their name is being copied. It is a muzzle-loading percussion cap, single barrel shotgun originally made between 1845 and 1872. 81 06 11b

VIPs, p1

1981 06 12
House prices, p9

1981 06 13
Sect takes over Wilbraham Baptist chapel – 81 06 13 & 81 06 15

1981 06 15
Wilbraham sect, p5

1981 06 16
A 'Cats Collective' operating from Sturton Street, Cambridge has more than 40 members. On learning of the disappearance of a cat they swing into action, erecting posters giving its description. They will also find somebody to feed and stroke cats while their owners are away. You do not have to have a full-time cat of your own to join the group. 81 06 16

A rare religious sect has staged a dramatic takeover of the Baptist Church in Wilbraham. The little-known Five-Fold Ministry seized control of the villages' chapel after converting the long-standing pastor and new converts have been drawn in from other villages. But now enraged Baptist stalwarts are fighting to oust the group and are turning up at services to protest at the newly-imposed teachings. 81 06 16

Housing report, p1

1981 06 17
Barrington ducks, p3
Greyhounds, p6

1981 06 18
Botttisham Village College band, p5
USA, p6
Printing press, p16

1981 06 19
The crack of blazing shotguns was head for the last time at Madingley as Gallyons closed their shooting ground after 70 years. Ernie Johnson has spent his entire working life there and so after 44 years of teaching, advising and correcting the technique of sporting gunmen from all walks of life he is facing his first change of job. The site is surrounded by roads and cannot expand to stage big shoots. 81 06 19

1981 06 20
Ely's new Paradise Swimming Pool was officially opened by Sharron Davis, the British Olympic swimmer. She spent some time in the water with 20 local children who dived in for the first official swim. The 25-metre facility replaces an outdoor pool at Angel Drove which was built in 1934 but had deteriorated badly. 81 06 20

1981 06 23
Wall paiintings, p14

1981 06 24

Ickleton's 900-year-old church was packed for a rededication service marking the completion of a £250,000 restoration programme after it was devastated by incendiarism. The fire destroyed the organ and choir vestry and damaged the roof over the aisles and chancel. The Bishop said that good things had come out of it – a close friendship with the local Methodist church and the revelation of some medieval paintings. 81 06 24a

Ely cathedral originally took centuries to build, but 2,500 children did the job in less than an hour. Dressed to represent walls windows and pillars they constructed a half-scale outline on the Palace Green as their way of marking the ninth centenary of the start of building work on the present cathedral. Important events in its history were re-enacted to the accompaniment of music from five bands. 81 06 24b

Scudamore's has decided to close its motor boat marina at Logan's Way, Chesterton – just four years after its controversial plans were given the go-ahead by the city council. The marina was only open for a month last summer and was no longer considered to be profitable. They ran the marina on council-owned land and negotiations are now taking place to work out what to do with the site. 81 06 24c

1981 96 25
Cambridge Glassmakers, p3
Fashionova, p24

1981 06 26
A car sales manager for Salisbury's in Cambridge, Terry Nightingale is swapping his 135 mph Dolomite Sprint for a Mini-Metro. But this will zip along at around 120 mph and should boost his chance of winning the British Saloon Car Championship. He is one of the most successful racing drivers in his class but only races as a hobby. It can cost about £2,000 to take part in one race meeting and he has to rebuild the engine and gearbox after two. 81 06 26

1981 06 29
When a world-wide audience watches the Royal Wedding next month they will see Prince Charles and Lady Diana standing before the altar canopy of St Paul's Cathedral and marvel at the skills that went into its making. But few will be aware that much of the work was done quite recently by Rattee and Kett. Mr W. Haslop, head of the carving department, was responsible for creating the canopy or baldachino first envisaged by Christopher Wren which was consecrated in 1958. 81 06 29

1981 06 30
Just over 70 years ago an enthusiastic CDN reporter wrote about a 'brand new flying machine of the monoplane variety' built by Horace and Percy Wallbro in their back garden in St Barnabas Road. With an astonishing eye for technical detail he described the world's first aircraft built from light steel tubing. Now, using his notes, their sons have built a replica and proved it really could have flown. 81 06 30a

A new World Refugee College is to be set up by the Cambridge-based International Extension College. Initially it will concentrate on Africa where public services would be stretched to breaking point if refugee communities sought traditional forms of education. They will experiment with unorthodox educational methods, based on work they have started in Zambia, Somalia and the Sudan. 81 06 30b

July 1981 CEN

1981 07 01
A startling report on Fulbourn Hospital talks of deplorable conditions for patients and staff in the geriatric unit's nine wards. They are generally dirty and sometimes smell of urine from carpets and furniture. The only place that a patient in Devon Ward can enjoy any privacy is in the toilet with the door shut. Staff fear the situation could worsen unless there is a drastic change of heart by those responsible for allocating funds. 81 07 01 & a

1981 07 03
The Environment Secretary, Michael Heseltine's impression that Cambridgeshire County Council is an 'overspender' is based on false figures. He has demanded cuts in spending or threatens to lop £7 million from central Government aid. His department claims they have 35 people for every 1,000 of the population, but it is really only 26. John Major, MP for Huntingdonshire, has written pointing out the error and hopes he will change his mind. 81 07 03

The wife of one of Britain's best-known writers – Mrs J.B. Priestley – has written to the Perse School for Girls confessing to a girlish prank in the 1920s. She concealed a camera under her desk and took candid shots of her teachers in full flight. Now the school is celebrating its centenary she has offered them her original negatives, providing invaluable pictures of staff and pupils. Had she been caught at the time she would have been severely punished, now they are rather pleased. 81 07 03a

1981 07 04
Linton strike, p2

1981 07 06
Longstanton history, p4

1981 07 08
Prince Charles was given a rapturous welcome when he arrived at Addenbrooke's Hospital to open the £1 million cancer scanner unit – including kisses from three pretty nurses. One lady holding a baby gave him a home-made congratulations card for his forthcoming marriage. He kept the official party waiting while he chatted with cleaners and kitchen staff. 81 07 08

Master showman, Stanley Thurston, who never missed a Midsummer Fair in his life, has died aged 83. He ran his travelling fair for many years before turning it over to his twin sons and daughter eight years ago. He was born in a caravan and later had one of the best vans ever built – solid mahogany throughout. He believed that British fairs were the best in the world and just as popular now as they ever were. 81 07 08a

Rates, p3

1981 07 09
Mr & Mrs Jack O'Dell, the first Cambridge council house tenants to buy their own homes were given a potted plant when handed the keys to their house in Carlton Way. With a 50 per cent discount the three-bedroomed house has cost them £9,375. More than 800 other tenants have asked to buy since the law was changed last October. 81 07 09

George Pateman Court was built by the Cambridge Housing Society to provide homes for the disabled because they were told the need was acute. But few have applied. The project on Tenison Road has a prime site close to shops and transport and is designed with wide doors for wheelchairs; there are raised gardens and places to charge up electric cars overnight. 81 07 09a

1981 07 10
Plans to hold a bumper party in Ross Street, Cambridge, to celebrate the marriage of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer are running into difficulties. The City council cannot supply tables or chairs, will not allow amplified music and do not have bunting or a marquee to lend out. Now residents will haul their own tables and chairs into the street to make sure the party goes ahead. 81 07 10a

The Royal Wedding guest list is broad and not just the nobs are being invited. Valerie Wright, daughter of a Bottisham farm labourer will be in St Paul's; she is nanny to the four-boy Van Cutsem family at Exning and will shepherd young master Edward and his fellow pages and bridegrooms at the wedding. Flo and Bernie Moore will also be there: she was bedder at Trinity College and cleaned for Prince Charles when he was a student. "He was so tidy: he folded everything and put it away. He never left anything", she recalled. 81 07 10b

Local historian Jack Ravensdale's curiosity was aroused by some lumps and bumps in an orchard at Swavesey which aerial photographs showed as a castle. Now a television teams is working in the village for a new series 'History on Your Doorstep' to be presented by Fred Housego of 'Mastermind' fame. 81 07 10c

1981 07 11
Another old Cambridge landmark – the former Little Kettle premises in Fitzroy Street – disappeared when it was demolished as part of the Kite re-development programme. Over the years the premises had various uses, but they are best remembered as the general hardware shop which had a small kettle hanging outside. 81 07 11

1981 07 14
Pollution, p1

1981 07 15
It is likely to take more than 10 years to restock a polluted stretch of the River Cam in which hundreds of thousands of fish died. Anglers say that fishing in the city has now been entirely wiped out. Around four tons have been removed from the river near Bait's Bite lock but many are still floating. It is feared that as well as causing a smell, the rotting fish could cause further pollution. It is suspected that raw sewage was washed into the river during heavy rain. 81 07 15a

Funeral of Stanley Thurston, fair proprietor. 81 07 15b

1981 07 16
Drummer Street lavatories are smelly, bits of string helped tie the lavatory chains and the pipes were lagged with sacking. At Park Street there was no paper in any of the cubicles, no soap and no towels. One seat was missing entirely. Valiant efforts are being made to keep the subterranean convenience on the market square clean – you have only to look at the gleaming brass handrail and inhale the disinfectant smell. But I wouldn't want to have to take a child in there, even in an emergency. 81 07 16

1981 07 17
The first privately-owned British company specialising in biotechnology has been formed by a consortium of leading scientists and businessmen. CLEAR – Cambridge Laboratories for Energy and Resources Ltd – will use genetically engineered organisms for processes ranging from obtaining energy from waste to combating Legionnaires Disease in hotels. It has leased laboratories from Cambridge University and will offer a full technical service to industry for the commercial applications of biotechnology. 81 07 17

1981 07 20
Mr Ben Sharpe, who drove the last Cambridge horse tram, has died aged 86. It was on 18th February 1914 that he took a single-decker tram on its last ceremonial journey from its East Road depot to King's Parade. Within the year public transport was motorised and most of the men who had manned the horse trams were in France with the British Expeditionary Force. Mr Sharp served with the Cambridgeshire Regiment and was both wounded and gassed. Afterwards he worked for the Ortona Omnibus Company and later Eastern National operating between Cambridge and Bedford. 81 07 20

1981 07 21
There have been many changes in the motor trade since Tony Sargeant took over Grantchester Motors 12 years ago. In that time he has progressed from a shed that could hardly house a couple of small cars to his recently completed new garage specialising in Skoda. His sales have trebled in the last three years; his customers keep coming back for more – and at prices from £2,340 on the road, who can blame them. 81 07 21

1981 07 22
About 40 anti-nuclear demonstrators lobbied Shire Hall as councillors considered whether to declare Cambridgeshire a nuclear-free zone and oppose the siting of Cruise missiles at Molesworth. It could lead to a Government re-think on defence policy and a review of its relationship with the USA. But they rejected the call. 81 07 22

The first new bell for 210 years was hung alongside the five others in Fenstanton church. It was paid for by a group of American descendants of the Pilgrim Fathers whose patriarch, John Howland was born in the village in the 16th century and members of the society will be invited from the United States to the dedication service. 81 07 22a

1981 07 23
Twice a week in a small shed in Sturton Street, among planks of wood and smell of sawdust, a little group of people put together wires and plugs, amps and speakers and practice hard in a bid for the big time. They call themselves Strontium. All over the country thousands of other kids are doing and hoping the same. The Work, a Saffron Walden band, have played quite a few gigs on the pub circuit while Tranzista, from Cambridge, have made it on to vinyl but have not yet received a recording contract. 81 07 23

1981 07 24
Lopokova funeral, p10
Grantchester school, p15
Quayside plans, p16

1981 07 27
Derek Buxton, p6
Jonas Webb, p9

1981 07 28
The former Laurie and McConnal store and a number of small adjoining shops in Fitzroy Street have been sold to Grosvenor Estates, who are redeveloping the Kite. It was one of the city's largest and longest-established department stores but has been empty since the firm closed down at the end of 1977. Now it will be refurbished and brought back into retail use. 81 07 28

Royal Wedding celebrations, p11
Ely industry, p18

1981 07 30
The Royal Wedding had millions glued to their television sets but in side streets and back gardens revellers found a variety of ways to toast Charles and Diana throughout the rest of the day. In De Freville Avenue residents sealed off two streets and several hundred tucked in to tea, at Impington children of Station Road held their 'street party' indoors – the village hall had been booked in case of bad weather. Tea at Home Close old people's home at Fulbourn was a very English affair with handbell ringers and croquet on the lawn. 81 07 30b

Cheerlady, p11
Bar Hill prices, p17

August 1981CEN

1981 01 01

Folk Festival, p7

1981 08 03
The saga of property dealing and controversy in the Kite redevelopment area of Cambridge has come to an end. The last remaining privately-owned shop at 56 Fitzroy Street has been sold to the city council and its partner, Grosvenor Estates for a price of around £30,000. This has given the owners, a consortium of university dons, a £5,000 profit which will be distributed to two charities. As part of the deal a number of small traders will be allowed to stay in their shops for up to three months. 81 08 03c

Folk Festival, p5
Royston hospital, p6

1981 08 04
Sir – as squatters in the old 'Strudels' building in Fitzroy Street we had come to an amicable arrangement with the council to move out to make way for the Kite redevelopment. We spent the night packing but were aroused by the front door being broken down at 8 am, other demolition men began smashing the plate-glass windows of the shop adjacent scattering glass over the road where our removal vehicles needed to park. We were lucky no serious damage was done to our possessions – H. Williams & others. 81 08 04

Student pub guide, p5
Heathcote windmill, p6

1981 08 05
Mill Road may be made one-way heading out of the city if new plans by residents go ahead. But the scheme has already run into opposition. One councillor said: 'We think the idea is daft'. Mill Road has a worse accident record for pedestrians and cyclists than any other in Cambridge but it is one thing to stop up some side streets to prevent rat-runs by motorists and quite another to cut a major city road. 81 08 05

1981 08 07
Mid Anglia is counting the cost of the worst storms to hit in more than ten years. At least five homes in Cambridge were damaged by lightning, together with two at Abington. More than 20 houses had to be pumped dry after flooding with water eight inches deep in houses in Eaton Socon. Amateur weatherman, Percy Ashman says the last 24 hours were the wettest since September 1968. 81 08 07b

The disused barracks at Duxford airfield could become a whole new village if the Ministry of Defence gets the go-ahead for expansion plans. The site, which already has 110 houses, would be expanded with more housing, a hotel, community centre and shopping. Such development would take the pressure off Milton which has been designated for the bulk of new housing under the Structure Plan. 81 08 07a

Grass track racing is the cheapest form of motor sport. You can take a car from a scrap yard and by putting a wire grill in the place of a windscreen, pulling out all but the driver's seat and adding an anti-roll bar you are ready to go. It's a family sport with kids following their fathers into it and a friendly atmosphere in the pits where drivers and mechanics help each other out – but on the track nobody does you any favours. 81 08 07c

1981 08 08
Johnsons, the menswear shop in Sidney Street has closed down after 150 years' trading in Cambridge. It started on its present site in the 1830s; the founder Octavius Johnson handed the business to his son and it passed down the family until Alfred Mole bought it. Cecil Mole who took over in 1930, said the shop's three employees had all found other work. 81 08 08

A new butcher's shop has opened in the tiny village of Helions Bumpstead by Sue Coutts who owns a wholefood shop. It sells 'real' meat from animals which have not been fed on chemical foods or injected with concentrates. It tastes better, is more healthy and only a penny or two more expensive than High Street butchers. Much of it will be raised on their own land. 81 08 08a

Four-term year, p1

1981 08 10
Upper Staploe, near Eaton Socon, has no pubs or shops, no school and not even a telephone box to share among its population of six people. But this bijou mini-hamlet has eight newspapers and is covered by three local tv and six local radio stations. In nearby St Neots the rough and tumble of keen competition becomes more noticeable. Three years ago there were nine local weekly publications, as well as the News, and at the bonny baby contest in 1978 the infants were outnumbered by journalists. 81 08 10

1981 08 11
Austictic home, p10

1981 08 12
Eastern Counties is in the international travel business, advertising trips to France or Sweden. But they have no brochure so people have to queue to ask a clerk. This means the staff are so busy that they do not have time to answer the telephone: it can take hours to get through to find times of local buses. 81 08 12

King's Parade barriers, p6

1981 08 14
Nuclear shelter, p6

1981 08 17
Rail bus, p3
Doreen Garner, p6

1981 08 18
Labgear, p8

1981 08 21
Jonas Webb, p6

1981 08 24
Wilbraham sect, p3
Arkesden on tv, p9

1981 08 27
Cost-conscious parents are now looking to the chain stores for school uniforms. Marks and Spencer charges £3.99 for polyester/cotton shirts and £6.99 for a skirt for 9-11 year olds while Woolworth's are £2.99 and £4.49. Boys' blazers at the Co-op start at £12.99, Eaden Lilley's charge £23.10 and a Gloverall duffel coat costs £32.25. 81 08 27

1981 08 28
The wired radio system at Old Addenbrooke's Hospital in Trumpington was installed in 1952 after a public appeal organised by the News. Originally it provided the BBC Home and Light programme. The name Radio Addenbrooke's was coined in 1954 when Toc H. started football commentaries which were recorded on tape and late related to patients. Then in 1956 Don Hale started a record request programme. When the new hospital opened a studio was also provided by public subscription. 81 08 28

September 1981 CEN

1981 09 01
Landbeach fire, p10
1981 09 02
One of Newmarket's landmarks is to be pulled down. The 100-feet-high chimney at the old refuse incinerator plant, believed to be at least 50 years old, has deteriorated rapidly and the brickwork would become dangerous if left unattended. The cost of repairs would be £2,470 and demolition £3,000. The rubble from the chimney, which has not been used since about 1950, may be used to build a lorry park nearby. 81 09 02

1981 09 02
Pensioner protests, p6

1981 09 03
Marks and Spencer's newly-extended Cambridge store includes a roof garden for staff. A three-course lunch in the staff canteen (with flowers on the table), costs 10p. A shampoo and set is £1.25 and a visit to the chiropodist costs 50p. There is a staff medical room and a dentist calls every six months to check teeth. Wages are not high – though the £64.50 a week gross pay for a full-time sales assistant is above the average - but there is a pension and profit-sharing scheme. 81 09 03

1981 09 04
As a midwife, Phyllis Baker has brought 2,001 babies into the world. She started at Mill Road Hospital in 1940 when the maternity ward was full of pregnant evacuees and most local people had their babies at home - only going into hospital if there was something wrong or her housing conditions were particularly bad. She has made numerous friends: "I walked into Sainsbury's and somebody said 'Hello, Nurse Barker, this is one of yours' pointing to her child". 81 09 04

1981 09 05
Fire ripped through the Old Manor House at Linton, destroying most of the roof and part of one wing. The house, which dates back to the 17th century and stands on the old market green site in Green Lane, has been undergoing restoration. It has historical associations. One former owner, a tanner named Mallyon, reached home in the nick of time after reputedly being chased by Dick Turpin. 81 09 05

1981 09 05
The traditional job of a telephone operator, to connect calls, has virtually disappeared now people can dial most numbers direct with STD. They take 999 calls, intercept calls when numbers have changed and deal with faults. Directory Enquiries is one of the busiest sides of the work. This is easier now they use screens to look up the numbers on microfilm instead of going through 'phone books. They are allowed about a minute a call so if an inquiry takes a long time, others may pile up. Calls are taken in sequence: if a caller hangs up and dials again they go to the back of the queue. 81 09 05a # c.27.75

1981 09 08
Amid much music and good cheer, the Ancient Druids closed – the last of nine pubs in Fitzroy Street. Soon the 200-year-old rafters will collapse under the developer's sledge-hammers to make way for the multi-million pound Kite shopping development. But last night they rang to the rollicking rhythm of Irish ceilidh music from Ted Stacey's melodeon, accompanied by guitars, penny whistles, banjo and drums. The wake ended when it ran out of beer. The brewers, Charles Wells, are building another when the development is completed. 81 09 08

1981 09 09

The Cambridge Alternatives scheme aims to prevent youngsters from drifting into crime or being taken into care. It relies on volunteers working with small groups of 11-17 year olds. The aim is to make constructive use of their leisure time, ranging from maintaining motor cycles to writing letters and finding jobs. It might sound very 'cushy' but is effective and sixty per cent of those taking part have not reoffended. 81 09 09a

Workmen restoring the steeple of St Mary's church, Newmarket, have discovered a note lodged near the top which was left last time major repairs were carried out – 87 years ago. It is signed by one of the workmen who repaired the steeple in 1894 and has the names of the churchwarden and rector. The present work includes replacing the oak cladding to the 700-year-old steeple with new cedar panels. 81 09 09b

1981 09 10
A Sandy company, Videogen, is offering to put people's last will and testament on tape for £12 an hour. They will set up the equipment, including footlights and then leave the client to record it himself. Relatives can later play back the video cassette to see what they have been left. No one could ever contest the will as anybody could see the deceased was of sound mind and body when he made it. They will also produce videos of the funeral. 81 09 10
Percy Ashman, p8

1981 09 10
Percy Ashman has been keeping an eye on the weather since 1935 with the aid of several instruments. His latest is a storm bottle device that dates back to the last century and was used in the mills of the north country as weaving and dyeing were dependent on the weather. It uses an old wooden bobbin taken from a Yorkshire mill attached to a glass phial containing a secret amber liquid which rises when rain is on the way. Percy's predictions can be relied on and his telephone is always busy with people calling for a quick forecast 81 09 10 # c.12

1981 09 11
A 100-year-old tradition came to an end when cattle and pigs were auctioned at the last live-stock market held in Ely. During the past few years the market had had less business as more farmers switched from animals to arable farming, so the auctioneers who ran the market Cheffins, Grain & Chalk have decided to call it a day. It was a particularly sad day for the auctioneer, Mr John Grain, who first started work at the market exactly 48 years ago to the day. Before business started, Mr Grain, the third generation of his family to be involved in the market, said: "It's a sad day for me". He said the market was founded by his grandfather, Mr Arthur Trett Grain and continued under his father's guidance until he took over. At 10.45am Mr Grain rang the bell for the last time to summon farmers, dealers and onlookers to the final cattle sale. This time there was only one animal to be sold – a black Hereford brought along by Mr Sidney King, a Littleport farmer. It tipped the scales at 680kg and was bought by King Brothers of Holbeach, Lincolnshire for 100p a kilo. Then 78-year-old Mr Lee of Ely – a market hand for 63 years until he was forced to retire – was called to ring the bell to herald the start of the final pig sale. The bidding was brisk for the 50 pigs on offer, the last one being sold by Mr William Darby of Haddenham. Entering into the spirit of the occasion the bidders pushed the price up to 290p per kg, when it was bought by Mr Sidney King junior, of Littleport. 81 09 11

Cambridgeshire schools will have no help or guidance in the field of computer studies, even though it is the fastest growing subject on their timetables. 86 09 11a

1981 09 12
Tattersalls, Europe's leading bloodstock auctioneers will unveil a new £500,000 development at their Newmarket headquarters. In keeping with the Georgian architecture of the Orangery restaurant they have added exact replica buildings housing a large room for bar and buffet together with offices for transport companies and their own sales staff. This month's ales offer some good quality yearlings though the record price of 625,000 guineas is unlikely to be beaten. 81 09 12

1981 09 15
A park-and-ride bus service linking shops in the Burleigh Street area with the car park in Cherryhinton Road has started disastrously. Nobody used the service for several hours. It is being funded with £400 from city lottery profits with Kite traders adding another £100. But councillors say the money should have been earmarked for charity. 81 09 15a

With most of the fields in Cambridgeshire recovering from the annual scorched earth policy it is a revelation to discover a handful of farmers trying to find other ways of getting rid of unwanted straw. Straw is an embarrassment for farmers: it costs the earth to transport, takes time and money to bale and delays the turn round of crops. The virtual disappearance of livestock coupled with the intensification of cereal cropping means there is a vast surplus of it. Farmers would need to be compensated for any ban on burning. 81 09 15b

1981 09 16
With the official opening of a new £450,000 operating theatre at the Evelyn Nursing Home, private medicine in Cambridge takes a decisive step forward. Most of the operations are of a routine kind for which patients can wait a long time on the National Health Service. With the growth of private health insurance an employee can have now his operation at minimum inconvenience to his firm or himself. 81 09 16

Thirty-three flats for the elderly were opened at Brampton. They were built by the Hanover Housing Association, a non-profit-making organisation which provides rented accommodation for pensioners who are capable of looking after themselves. Each flat is self-contained and there is also a guest room, laundry and common room within the scheme. The complex is the first of its type in the Huntingdon district. 81 09 16b

A nuclear shelter is being installed in its designer's home at Ashwell. It provides emergency accommodation for up to seven people and will protect against nuclear blast, radiation, heat, chemical and biological attack with a decontamination chamber, lavatory and space for cooking. You could seal yourself in, live there for the duration and come out when the going is good again. It costs £9,658 but an air filter is extra. 81 09 16, c

1981 09 17
Netherhall School is to take a leap into the computer age with a £35,000 development programme. Their involvement in micro-processors began long before the current upsurge of interest shown by schools in computers. Two years ago staff began working out how they would like to see computer studies develop in the school. An extra teacher will be provided at Government expense and a programmer employed. They expect the delivery of 15 micro-computers soon. 81 09 17a

A young walrus has swum into the Earith-St Ives area. The saga began when keepers from Skegness zoo helped return the stranded creature to the sea. It was next seen in the Wash by bargemen at King's Lynn but attempts by a conservancy vessel to head off its trip into the fens proved unsuccessful. It has eluded an air-sea rescue helicopter on the River Ouse and the RSPCA is still trying to locate it. It is believed to be the first report of a walrus in Britain since 1954. 81 09 17b, 81 09 18a

1981 09 18
The much-heralded fleet of electrically-powered mobile libraries with which Cambridgeshire County Council had hoped to save a small fortune in energy costs has been scrapped. The first vehicle was banned from public roads because of braking defects, the second has been returned to the manufacturers after unsuccessful attempts at improving range and speed. Now the remaining eight vehicles have been cancelled and a diesel-powered mobile library will be bought instead. 81 09 18b

Poltergeist manifestations, Arbury – Tony Cornell interviewed – 81 09 18c

1981 09 21

Makers of mobile libraries hit back over faults – 81 09 21

1981 09 21
'Thirty Three' is a new walk-in centre for young people funded by Save The Children. Based in Clarendon Street the confidential service has voluntary counsellors who will listen to youngsters' fears on any aspect of life including difficulties with parents or boy friends, anorexia or abortion. They will offer no criticism and never pass judgement but instead offer positive help. College students have their own counselling services, but there is nothing comparable for other 81 09 21a # c.37.9

1981 09 22
Most of the trees on Parker's Piece are about 150 years old. But they are under threat: the limes are deteriorating and Dutch Elm disease is making such insidious progress that there will probably be no elms left in five years. Now young trees are being planted but it will be the end of the century before they make their full impact. Elsewhere getting trees established has been difficult with maintenance through watering and staking almost forgotten once the burst of enthusiasm for planting has abated. 81 09 22 # c.18

Great Wratting cottage fire – 86 09 22a

Jack Carter, the Portugal Place outfitters which has been hiring gowns, tails and dinner suits since 1937 is to close. The shop's lease, owned by Jesus College, has run out and the rent has been trebled. The business has been hit in other ways: last year they sold just six gowns because colleges now buy their own supplies and there are not as many formal functions as previously. The remaining stock will be sold off at the start of the new university term. 81 09 22b # c.67

1981 09 23
The much-heralded fleet of electrically powered mobile libraries, with which the County Council had hoped to save a small fortune in energy costs, has been scrapped. One vehicle has been banned from public roads because of braking defects, a second returned to the manufacturers for unsuccessful attempts at improving range and speed. The remaining order for eight vehicles has been cancelled and now the county council and manufacturers are locked in a legal battle. New diesel-powered libraries will be bought to keep the service running. 86 09 18 manufacturers blame council indecision – 86 09 21. councillors hear report – 86 09 23a # c.77.4

Description of travel by coach to London – 81 09 23

1981 09 24
The name of Larkinson has been associated with reclamation and scrap for over a century. In the early days the name could be seen on horse-drawn vehicles collecting rabbit skins, old hessian sacks, scrap iron and metals. Then they switched to Foden steam vehicles; today they use purpose-built containers and articulated lorries. They have various machines and their Cottenham works can process a complete car in four minutes. 81 09 24

1981 09 24
Cuts in funding for higher education will be worse than expected. Bursars estimate colleges will suffer a drop in income of 15 per cent over the next three years. Fees paid by local education authorities have been cut, the government has imposed restrictions on the number of students and there are pressures from students to reduce the cost of rooms, meals and cleaning services. What is at stake is a unique way of life in a collegiate system whose virtues of personal contact in small, flexible institutions, have been prized for generations. 81 09 24 # c.36.9
Self-build, p10

1981 09 25

A deepening cash crisis is hitting glasshouse men. Unless there is a dramatic improvement in prices for lettuce and tomatoes more than half of the growers on the Land Settlement estate at Fen Drayton will go out of business. At one time the estate was successful and people worked hard to build up a successful livelihood, but poor management and cheap imports have hit trade. They get little more than one penny for lettuces that sell for around 14p, but each costs about two pence to grow. 81 09 25

It has taken British Rail 37 years to honour two heroes of an ammunition train explosion at Soham, but now two inter-city locomotives are to be named after Ben Gimbert and Jimmy Nightall. Relations and railway officials will gather at March railway station for the ceremony. Violet Gimbert, Ben's widow, said 'Why didn't they do this when he was alive?' 81 09 25a & b 81 09 29

1981 09 26
An era came to an end when the self-styled 'Lord Mayor of the Kite', Mr Arthur Sutton, moved out of his house in Christchurch Street. It occupies an important position in the £15 million development scheme but he refused to budge until the developers came up with somewhere nearby for him to live. Now they are to build him a detached three-bedroomed house a few doors away. 81 09 26

1981 09 28
Miss Annie Carnegie-Brown has died at the age of 90. She was Cambridge's first policewoman in 1923 at a salary of £3 a week. Slightly built, she was stabbed with a carving knife while arresting a well-built Ely woman. A doctor clipped her wound and she returned to duty next day. During the war, as a fluent German speaker, she was involved in the interrogation of spies and retired as a sergeant in 1947. Until the end she was a clear-thinking determined old lady who enjoyed fishing but never talked about the past 81 09 28 # c.34.7

1981 09 29
Dame Rosemary Murray, retiring President of New Hall and the first Woman Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge University, has often been mistaken for the college gardener. As handyman, tutor and administrator she has been responsible for shaping the character of the college almost single-handedly. It opened in 1954 with 16 women undergraduates and has now built up to 300 students. But though none of the undergraduates can be men, some of their teaching Fellows are: the Sex Discrimination Act works against them 86 09 29a

Locomotives, p3

1981 09 30
The only Whitbread pub in the Ely area – the Royal Oak at Stretham – is closing down as licensees Bill and Joyce Burgess are retiring after 22 years at the riverside pub. The brewery says it is in an isolated position and needs a great deal of money spending to bring it up to modern standards. It has a great deal of potential with a caravan site next door, but they feel money could be better spent elsewhere. 81 09 30

St Ives dairy, p10

October 1981 CEN

1981 10 01
'Kojak' – screen tough guy Telly Savalas - breezed into Newmarket intent on buying a horse. But the lollipop-sucking star left Tattersalls empty-handed. Before he was whisked away for his first taste of racing at the Rowley Mill course he said 'We were looking for a rockbottom horse, but the sky's the limit on quality'. 81 10 01

Tattersalls, p10

1981 10 02

The veteran Histon seedsman, Mr Charles Unwin has completed 70 years in the business started by his father at the turn of the century. He joined the firm at the age of 14 and made his reputation breeding sweet peas as well as being a prolific writer and lecturer. Now a booklet has been issued which shows him on the cover, pipe firmly clenched in his teeth in a pose familiar to his friends. But the pipe did not endear itself to local firemen who were several times called out on false alarms when regulations on fire safety were introduced ten years ago. 81 10 02c

Forty firemen tacked a blaze which caused thousands of pounds worth of damage to the 300-year-old country mansion, Shudy Camps Park. It is divided into six maisonettes, normally occupied by eight or ten people. The owner of the house, who lives in the grounds, said one flat has been completely destroyed and others damaged by water. It would be a big loss to the village as two large rooms on the ground floor were used as the village hall. 81 10 02b

The village of Quendon is on the verge of losing its one and only free bus service. It runs the length of the steep, one-and-a-half-mile drive from the former A11 main road to the buildings at Quendon Hall and is intended to convey members of the public to the deliberations of the Stansted Airport public inquiry being held there. But nobody wants to use it. 81 10 02a

1981 10 05
Football hooligans left a trail of destruction after Cambridge United's match against Chelsea. Mobs of youths rampaged through streets hurling bricks, stones and other missiles at police. Windows were smashed in about 30 homes which line the route to the railway station. Now the city council will be urged to provide buses to take supporters to and from the match. 81 10 05a

The veil of secrecy hanging over the Apostles, one of the world's most exclusive societies was lifted when they held their annual meeting at Christ's College. Members have included the spies Anthony Blunt and Guy Burgess and it was thought the society might have collapsed following their unmasking. But weekly meetings have continued and last 'as long as they are interesting'. 81 10 05b

Ploughing, p9

1981 10 06
W. Eaden Lilley's department store, now under one roof in Market Street, is Cambridge's oldest business. The shop front, built in 1930, was in the form of a deep arcade but in 1971 the store reduced it by half and used the space to increase the sales floor. They also have a warehouse in Mill Lane housing the funeral department with its private chapel while their vans are garaged and maintained in Glisson Road. 81 10 06a & b

The United States Air Force at Lakenheath unveiled its new bombing system. Called Pave Tack it is 'an electro-optical target designator system'. You get the target in the centre of a cross on a television screen and watch a 'smart' bomb automatically fly there and destroy it from an aircraft travelling a supersonic speed, probably in the middle of the night. It makes the 'super-sophisticated' F-111F aircraft one of the most deadly strike forces in the world. 81 10 06c

The Cambridge Co-operative Band took the brass band repertoire into a new era at Ely Cathedral when it performed the world premiere of a symphonic suite called 'The Fenlands'. Composed by Dr Arthur Wills, the director of music at the Cathedral, it is the first major work scored for brass band and organ. It was recorded by the BBC for transmission later in the month. 81 10 06d

1981 10 07
When fire raged through Island Hall in Post Street Godmanchester four years ago it seemed like a final blow of fate to a dignified old building that had already suffered more than its fair share. Had it not been listed as a grade-two building it would probably have been demolished there and then and it was feared it would simply fall down before anyone with cash took it on. But now it is being restored and may open to the public next spring. 81 10 07

1981 10 08
Orwell wall, p4 robot, p4

1981 10 09
Restoration of the 18th-centure windmill at Dalham has ground to a halt. Although the wooden body and cap to the smock mill have been rebuild, work on the machinery and the replacement of the sails will remain unfinished as the owner and Suffolk County Council cannot agree which contractor should complete the job. 81 10 09a

Netherhall School has won a £35,000 computer development grant for its pioneering use of new technology in education. The funding is coming from the Department of Industry, Cambridge colleges and Acorn Computers who will supply 16 of their new BBC Microcomputers. They will now develop computer programmes to teach science, geography, economics and history in schools around the country. 81 10 09b

Excavation work on a new marina at Annesdale, Ely is unearthing remains of The Nancy, a steam-driven cargo barge which plied the River Ouse until she was laid up in 1914. It was then towed near the railway bridge to be cut up for scrap but the work proved too expensive and it was left to rot until the 1940's when the Ouse was widened. It was then in the way so Ted Appleyard dug a hole on the Babylon site, dragged it out of the water and dumped her in it. 81 10 09c

Wards have been in Cambridge for more than 70 years, originally making and selling cycles. By the 1930s they were involved in electronics, making their own wireless receiver, the Wards Three Valve. In the 1950s they expanded into communications, selling televisions and other electronic equipment, moving from East Road to a new shop in Burleigh Street in 1965 with another in Bradwell's Court. At its peak in the 1970s they won contracts with Iraq and the Defence Ministry. Now it will close for the last time. 81 10 09d

The closure of Wards, means another long-established name will disappear from the streets of Cambridge. Recently Jack Carter, the outfitters in Portugal Place announced it was to close, before that Johnsons menswear shop in Sidney Street decided to end 150 years of trading and last year Walker Wallpapers, a family firm for nearly 60 years also called it a day. Reasons vary from rising rates and rent bills to increased competition or simply that the old family has run out of members. 81 10 09e

Babylon barge, p14
Shops, p18
Stacey's Braces, p31

1981 10 14
Shops selling CB equipment have mushroomed in the last year and now the legalising of new FM frequencies has given it a boost. Electroshop at Cambridge Cattle Market have orders for 40 legal rigs and Cycle City Breakers Club say the majority of their members will move over to them, though 150 hard-core members will keep their AM rigs. The problem is children who use bad language on air. 81 10 14

1981 10 15
The cellar of a rambling Victorian building in Newmarket, used to provide shelter for homeless families, has been converted into an emergency centre to cope with nuclear attack where a team of officials will direct survival operations if war breaks out. But spending cuts mean it has no sophisticated air filtration and drainage systems and is only lined with plasterboard. It was chosen because the council officers were too close to USAF bases at Mildenhall and Lakenheath. 81 10 15

Fred Unwin, p8

1981 10 16
The Duchess of York officially opened Arthur Rank House for the care of cancer patients in the grounds of Brookfields Hospital, Cambridge and spoke to each patient. Retired Cottenham farmer, Horace Simpkins, a life-long fan of the Royal Family, had never met Royalty before and spent five minutes chatting to her and was delighted when she gave him a flower from her posy. 81 10 16

1981 10 20
The news that Littleport could lose its Village College dropped like a bombshell on pupils, parents, teachers and school governors alike. Older pupils would transfer to Ely and the building turned into a primary school. But the loss of the 549-pupil college would turn Littleport into a 'ghost town' and protest petitions are being circulated. 81 10 20a

Neutron bomb, p3
Magdalene Bridge, p8

1981 10 21
Littleport primary school is bursting at the seams. Eleven of its 14 classrooms are temporary huts dotted around its tiny site and pupils have to run the gauntlet of fen weather to get to their toilets, to lunch and to lessons. Now the County Council is considering shutting the village college and using the redundant buildings for a new primary school. But the Head says it would not be suitable. 81 10 21

1981 10 23
The video boom is taking over lecture halls and laboratories in Cambridge University as more and more students are being taught with the help of home-made films. Medical students watch in close-up how to cut up a body, vets are shown outside broadcasts of animal behaviour and trainee priests film sermons to learn about preaching techniques. Thousands of other students have learned how to use a computer as a result of a training film made by the University Audio-Visual Aids unit. 81 10 23

1981 10 27
Delfics, p6

1981 10 28
The Taboo disco club, one of Cambridge's longest-running nightspots, is to close. It was originally the Kashmir restaurant, started up in the mid-1960s; it then became the Harlequin Club and eventually the Taboo. Now the owners, Downing College have won a High Court judgement to regain the building so they can go ahead with the redevelopment of the area. 81 10 28

1981 10 29
The Shadows returned to Cambridge after too long an absence – 15 years or more – to find that their audience had multiplied. There is no nonsense about Hank Marvin, Bruce Welch, Alan Jones, Brian Bennett and Cliff Hall and they played nearly 30 numbers including 'Apache', their first hit, 'Wonderful Land' and 'Frightened City' as well as Chuck Berry and Sam Cooke numbers to prolonged applause. 81 10 29

1981 10 30
St Andrew the Great, p5

November 1981 CEN

1981 11 02
The death of a top Cambridgeshire policeman whose car left the road which runs beside Ramsey Forty-Foot drain has prompted calls for immediate road improvements. The five-mile stretch from Leonard Childs Bridge has been condemned as a 'death trap'. During the past 50 years at least 100 vehicles have gone in and during the war eight Army vehicles followed each other into the river. It should be shut down, but barriers would be an improvement. 81 11 02b

City strike hits milk deliveries – Unigate – 81 11 02a

1981 11 03
Councillors have been astonished at a bill of £34,000 for furnishing County Education headquarters at a time when children and teachers have been asked to bear savage cutbacks. Most of the money has gone on the former Pye building on the Shire Hall site. It has wall-to-wall carpeting and an impressive range of modern office furniture with £400 spent on waste paper bins alone. Some equipment should have been transferred from the old offices. 81 11 03a

Cambridge Glassmakers is a small firm producing hand-made glassware from premises in Auckland Road. It moved here from Berkshire because 'the image of Cambridge was very much the image they wanted to get into the glass', said Christopher Irons, who runs the firm. His brother Jeremy, the actor who is hitting the headlines in 'The French Lieutenant's Woman' also has an interest in the business. 81 11 03b

1981 11 04
Shock new proposals to change the face of education in the Ely area have emerged in a secret report. It suggests closure of five more schools at Little Ouse, Stuntney, Prickwillow, Black Horse Drove and St Audrey's, Ely together with Bedford House further education centre. At Littleport the Village College buildings would become a new county primary school. 81 11 04

1981 11 05
Highfield School for handicapped children at Ely should be closed down and the pupils sent to Wisbech or Cambridge for special education, a report recommends. Facilities are inadequate and the number of pupils low. But the headmistress says it is well-equipped with special aids for youngsters with standing and balance difficulties and has an active parent group. 81 11 05

Shocked traders at Cambridge's Beaumont Centre in East Road have been given notice to quit, just weeks before Christmas. The indoor market, which was gutted by fire six years ago and reopened after a £100,000 facelift, is to be closed down and demolished. Now they are desperately searching for new premises to try and keep their businesses going. 81 11 05a

Newmarket Cabaret Club has found the right recipe for success. People pay an inclusive charge which entitles them to a three-course meal including gammon, chicken or scampi for around £10 for the whole evening. There is a resident band and compere and a top-of-the-bill show with stars such as The Tremeloes, Diane Solomon, Danny Williams, Cannon and Ball and The Searchers. 81 11 05b

Beaumont Centre, p12

1981 11 06
Ely schools closure – reactions – Stuntney, Prickwillow, Littleport – 81 11 06

1981 11 11
Prickwillow urged to stay calm over schools – 81 11 11a
Prof Austin Gresham pathologist – biography – 81 11 11

1981 11 12
It was a sad day when Strudels – one of Cambridge's most unusual restaurants – was forced to abandon their premises in the Kite Area. But now they have reopened as a high-class restaurant in the famous Pitt Club in Jesus Lane. The old favourites are still on the menu though they have an eye for the really unusual such as stuffed acorn squash. House wine is £4 a bottle. 81 11 12

1981 11 13
A quiet country pub at Heydon became a 'gin palace' when it was taken over and renovated. Locals who once enjoyed popping into the King William IV for a drink no longer felt welcome in the plush new surroundings. However it became so popular that up to 70 cars swamped local roads. The landlord put in plans for a new pub car park, but residents objected. 81 11 13

Skirting the roadworks and dodging the demolition rubble, the visitor finds the Kite area of Cambridge hardly the easiest or most picturesque place to shop. Almost one side of Fitzroy Street is empty. The top end, which once included a Post Office, sweet shop, denture repairer and café called the Toby Jug, has been flattened. The Co-op department store in Burleigh Street have axed the traditional ceremonial arrival of Father Christmas as it would aggravate traffic problems. Add the lack of parking space and it is not surprising that traders fear for their Christmas profits. 81 11 13a

The storm over a £5 million development plan for the Chivers jam factory at Histon came to a head when a packed meeting was warned it could be moved elsewhere. They wanted to sell off land at the front of the factory for housing and light industry to help pay for new developments to secure about 700 jobs. In the end the scheme got the thumbs up from the 500 people, mostly villagers and employees, who crowded into the factory canteen. 81 11 13b

1981 11 17
Meldreth village hall is the unlikely venue for a clutch of international jazz stars playing one of only two concerts in this country. The 'Songs of the South' show is headed by two New Orleans jazzmen, James 'Sing' Miller and Frank Fields, both members of the famous Preservation Hall Band with Britain's leading clarinettist, Sammy Rimmington. Meanwhile Humphrey Lyttleton turned up at Meldreth Manor School for handicapped children with his own brand of swing. 81 11 17

1981 11 18
Four groups have declared an interest in the franchise for the new Cambridge and Newmarket commercial radio station. Granta Radio, Cambridge and Newmarket Radio, Eastern England Television and Cambridge Newspapers will probably be joined by Anglia television and Hereward Radio. We have seen it all before. Back in the heady days of the Heath Government every town was predicted to have the next commercial station. 81 11 18

1981 11 19
Granary Court used to be a set of buildings belonging to Home Farm, Madingley, but because of modern-day farming they ceased to be used in 1975. As they were an interesting group of 18th century timbered buildings it was decided to retain as much of them as possible by conversion to houses. But only two of the barns were found to be structurally capable of conversion and incorporated into the new courtyard development. 81 11 19

1981 11 20
Driving through Cambridge it seems a particularly malicious gremlin has got loose, armed with a pick-axe, and is busy making holes in any old bit of road he can find. For a start there is the Kite redevelopment which has reduced the amount of parking and led to major roadworks, then sewers have collapsed in Emmanuel Road, there is resurfacing in Coldham's Lane and Eastern Gas has moved into Tennis Court Road. There are temporary traffic lights in Silver Street and the continuing work on Magdalene Bridge adds to the disruption. 81 11 20b

Jason Caesar – two guilty – 81 11 20a

1981 11 24
A whirlwind on the Oxmoor Estate, Huntingdon lasted just a few seconds but flattened garages, sheds and fences and tore tiles from dozens of roofs in the Nene Road and Sapley Square area. A third of the flat roof at the St Ivo Recreation Centre was also blown away but although people were using the pool at the time, no-one was hurt. 81 11 24

1981 11 25
A startling £3.5 million plan to tunnel under The Backs has been prepared secretly by county road engineers. It would be 20 feet wide and run under Queen's Road from the Madingley junction right up to Silver Street. Meter controlled parking would then be allowed up to Garret Hostel Lane and the area to West Road would be grassed over to give an uninterrupted view of King's College chapel. The plan is certain to raise a violent storm of controversy. 81 11 25 & 26b

1981 11 26
The new owner of the Croxton Estate is anxious to see the whole village rejuvenated and the Old Manor House converted to a pub. He also hopes to attract caravan and traction engine rallies to raise money to preserve the Hall which has been in his family for more than 160 years. It needs major repairs: many of the rooms have a problem with damp and recently part of the ceiling in the dining room collapsed. 81 11 26a

The early electronic portable games were big, bright, brash boxes for children that made silly noises. Now they include the internationally best-selling Electronic Master Mind. Many of the TV games use cassettes providing some striking and original computer graphics as well as taxing adversary games. The silicon chip will bring about a still greater revolution. One expert says that in the future children will be communicating around the world through computer games. 81 11 26c

Backs tunnel, p13

1981 11 27
The first Cambridge tunnels dug under Peas Hill were used as wine vaults and one is blocked off by a wall of wine bottles cemented together. During the war they were wired for electricity and fitted out as air raid shelters for 400 people and later dossers used them as overnight hostels. In 1963 came proposals for an underground road starting at Maids Causeway and running down Jesus Lane and Emmanuel Road. There was also to be a three-storey underground car park. But the scheme was rejected. 81 11 27

December 1981 CEN

1981 12 01
Cambridge could be a busy coastal town in 50 years' time due to a 23 feet rise in sea level caused by the melting of the south polar caps, scientists at the British Antarctic Survey say. The increasing amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere means the earth cannot cool itself as efficiently as previously. This is popularly known as the 'greenhouse effect'. 81 12 01

1981 12 02
Cambridge Computer Store was established by Claude Cowan in the spring of 1978 at the very start of the microcomputer boom. The first computer they offered was a Tandy TRS-80 which proved popular and is still going strong. Computers now span the full gamut of power, size and cost – all the way from about £70 to £5,000 - and the customers have widened dramatically covering everybody from schoolchildren studying computer science to experienced professionals in industry or the laboratory. 81 12 02

1981 12 03
Spending on Cambridgeshire libraries will be cut next year, despite a warning from the County Librarian that much of the stock is poor in both physical condition and subject coverage and the number of books available to the public has already been reduced. But the replacement for St Neots library was a clear priority as the present one was inadequate for a growing town and to postpone the scheme would be 'bad business'. 81 12 03

198112 04
Hazells Hall, the 250-year-old Bedfordshire family mansion of Cabinet Minister and local MP, Francis Pym, has been sold for a 'nominal sum' of £5,000. Planning permission for its restoration and conversion into 12 houses and two flats was granted last week. At one time Mr Pym was threatened with a compulsory purchase order and his plans for demolition two years ago were blocked by a Cabinet colleague, Environment Secretary, Michael Heseltine, after a public inquiry. 81 12 04

The Oak in Lensfield Road had a world-wide reputation as a centre for good Irish music. Before modernisation it was a wonderful place. Playing sessions would start up automatically on Friday nights, Saturday lunchtimes and Sundays too. But now venues for Irish music are fast disappearing in Cambridge. The demise of the Ancient Druids was another blow and the Cow and Calf on Pound Hill is virtually the only one remaining. 81 12 04b

Queen's Road tunnel 'bordering on the obscene' – 81 12 04a

1981 12 07
All Saints Church in Jesus Lane, Cambridge, is to be preserved and taken over by the Redundant Churches Fund. A masterpiece of Victorian architecture, it was designed by George Bodley in the Gothic style and contains windows and wall stencils designed by William Morris. Now £100,000 will be spent on urgent repairs to the roof. 81 12 07

Thousands of motorists may soon be asked to leave their cars on the outskirts of Cambridge and cycle into the city to solve the parking problem. They would park in west Cambridge or near Stourbridge Common and make their way by hired bikes through the Backs or along the river. The park and cycle scheme is being suggested as an alternative to the park and ride bus scheme by road engineers who are also planning a tunnel under Queens Road. 81 12 07a

'Die-in', p3

1981 12 08
Newmarket history went under the hammer when the contents of one of the town's gentlemen's club were auctioned. The 200-year-old Subscription Rooms Club closed because of falling membership and the Jockey Club received the contents in lieu of payment for deterioration. The premises are now likely to become the home of a national racing museum. 81 12 08

Diners dressed in smocks will consume bowls of celery and potato soup, followed by gammon and spinach with fluffy herb dumplings, potatoes and Fen carrots and ginger pumpkin pie. They will finish with frummety, a traditional Swavesey feast week recipe, wheat with raisings, currants and sultanas. The dulcimer playing of Jenny Mallindine will aid their digestion. The meal is in aid of the Cambridge Folk Museum which is faced with ever-increasing costs. 81 12 08a

Burwell Museum, p5

1981 12 09
Saffron Walden cattle market will close for the last time after its 121st Christmas Fat Stock Show and Sale. It had been held for several centuries but recently has been dealing with only 40 cattle a week because farmers were switching from livestock to more profitable arable farming. In future they will take their livestock to the Cambridge cattle market. 81 12 09

1981 12 10
There has been a massive response to the first children's Christmas science lectures in Cambridge. Pupils from Coton school were so determined to attend that they walked a mile to the Cavendish Laboratory. Other schools organised coaches and cars so their children could attend the demonstrations on 'Light and Colour', showing that science is an exciting subject worthy of pursuit. 81 12 10

Cambridge greyhound track has obtained a contract with the Bookmakers' Afternoon Greyhound Service to relay its meetings to bookmaking shops on Tuesdays for 13 weeks. They have installed more security with an anti-doping chromatography unit and veterinary surgeons at each meeting. They also plan to become the only dog track offering a bookmaker service for horse race meetings the same afternoon. 81 12 10a

1981 12 14
Motorists faced a nightmare journey to work with several main roads blocked by heavy snow. Saffron Walden was snowed in & Royston and Haverhill were cut off as was Cottenham, Waterbeach, Fulbourn and Sutton. Cambridge police rescued 130 people trapped in their cars and about half the county schools were closed as teachers could not get to work. 81 12 14

Just over a year ago a family moved into a rambling four-bedroomed house at Fowlmere. It was set back from the road with a cellar, spacious kitchen and large garden. But it had only a chemical lavatory, no heating except a solitary open fire and a bathroom which would be mistaken for a coal bunker. It is a 'sin bin' designed to act as a deterrent to council tenants who fall behind with their rents. 81 12 14a

1981 12 15
Gritters – 81 12 15

1981 12 16
Many of the 500 hard core of youngsters at present on the dole in the Cambridge area will probably never have jobs, a Careers Officer says. "We are writing off a generation; at one school three out of 100 wanted to go to work, the rest were going into further education". Youth Opportunities courses in electronic and mechanical engineering have only four applicants for 22 places as youngsters don't want to do them. They prefer outdoor work, such as building labouring. 81 12 16

1981 12 17
Schools officer jokes about pianos being only half tuned – 81 12 17

1981 12 18
Austin Sennitt from Stretham is £1,000 richer after winning the beef championship at Cambridge Christmas fatstock show. His 500 kg animal went to a Cambridge butcher, John Farrow. His family have been farming in the area for about 100 years and the cattle are raised on barley grown on the farm. For the first time the championship was closed to anybody who hasn't used the market regularly, which nearly doubled the normal entry list. 81 12 18

1981 12 21
The television is at the centre of a major boom in consumer electronics, with everything from home computers to video recorders, video discs, Teletext and Prestel information services, games and, probably within the next few years, programmes beamed from satellites. But many TV addicts are prepared to watch a picture of bad quality. Now Labgear which has factories at Abbey Walk and Ely have produced plug-in amplifiers to increase the strength of television signals. 81 12 21

Haverhill club, p21

1981 12 23
Swans, p7

1981 12 29
A women's peace camp has been set up in freezing conditions near RAF Molesworth by anti-Cruise missile campaigners. Dozens of protestors gathered at the tiny village of Clopton near the base where the missiles are expected to be deployed in 1983. Three women and their two dogs intend to live

'indefinitely' in two old caravans on the base perimeter. A similar vigil is being kept at Greenham Common in Berkshire. 81 12 29

1981 12 30
The Pentagon has denied reports that it is considering stockpiling nerve gas bombs at the USAF base at Lakenheath. President Reagan will decide whether the US should resume production of the gas, which was stopped 13 years ago following an accident in Utah when 6,000 sheep were killed. If deployed the weapons would be carried by F1-11 bombers based at Lakenheath and Upper Heyford in the late 1980s. The chairman of Lakenheath parish council said, "If our Government and the Americans and NATO want to base these weapons here then I don't suppose there is much we can do about it". 81 12 30

Balsham alone maintains Plough Monday tradition – 81 12 30a

1981 12 31
Cuts offer Cambridge schools the prospect of an unhappy new year. Never before has the future looked so bleak. The effects of recent economies are biting deeply into the fabric of the education service and there is the threat of worse to come. Some 240 teaching jobs could be axed to save £2.6 million and plans to turn community education over to private enterprise are being considered. 81 12 31

Simons House, the Histon Road sheltered housing for the elderly, and the nearby Rackham Close bungalows have won a major Housing Design Award. The scheme was judged to provide 'most agreeable homes for elderly people' and many of the residents agree. Mrs Bertha Kent described it 'as a lovely little place', Daisy Woodcock says it's very friendly and John Manning thinks 'it's really ideal'. 81 12 31a

1982 Cambridge Evening News

I have copies of these articles

January 1982 CEN

1982 01 04
Campaigners against Cruise missiles were singing in the rain at the Molesworth peace camp on Saturday. The soggy conditions didn't deter about 20 supporters from making a vocal protest outside the American air base. Several tents have been set up where they will try to live a non-violent life. Villagers have been sympathetic and one farmer sold them some stuff cheaply to build a shelter with. 82 01 04

Tachograph, p3

1982 01 05
Secret wartime experiments involving the production of deadly anthrax serum were conducted at the Institute of Animal Pathology on Milton Road. Now doubts remain about the safety of a piece of land where the carcasses of 12 horses were buried. Details have emerged as the university has applied for planning permission for housing on land close to the Dunn Nutritional Laboratory. The risk of infection is minimal and they plan to cover the immediate area with a concrete slab. 82 01 05 & 05a

1982 01 06
The mayor of Cambridge, Coun Percy Reed, manned a mechanical digger to begin work on a £2 million industrial development on the old Cattle Market site off Cherryhinton Road. It is an important step in the Labour-controlled city council's priority programme of job creation with units available by the middle of the year. 82 01 06

Ely indoor bowls club pioneered a scheme to take bowls into the teeny-bopper market when they staged the country's first promoted under-16 tournament. Nearly 90 youngsters competed with 14-year-old Roger Evans, Jonathan Mayes (12) and Robert Harley (11) winning the triples medals. "We have achieved a lot at Ely but I don't think anything has been better than this", said David Cornwell, the club secretary. 82 01 06a

CB vicar, p1
Anthrax, p3

1982 01 07
The Government has refused to pay any compensation for the massive pollution of water supplies which occurred after aircraft fuel leaked from tanks on the Mildenhall air base three years ago. One of the most productive water sources at Beck Row is still out of action and special pipelines have been laid to continue supplies. Now other toxic materials are threatening the underground reservoirs. It could cost hundreds of thousands of pounds to put right. 82 01 07

This is make-or-break year for Mrs Thatcher and her MPs. John Major represents the one local success story. Although one of the new boys in the Commons he has become Parliamentary Private Secretary to two Home Office Ministers, enabled Huntingdon and St Neots to establish their own health districts and masterminded a behind-the-scenes fights against Michael Heseltine's proposals to penalise Cambridgeshire for 'over-spending'. Given time and luck he must stand a very good chance of advancing to ministerial office. 82 01 07a

A rape crisis centre is to open in Cambridge following the initiative of a group of women, mostly university students. They will provide sympathy but also give information on where to get VD and pregnancy tests and accompany victims to the police station. Most of the cash to set up the telephone advice line has come from the university. There has been no hostile reaction, but they have been surprised that many of the women who phone up were raped years ago. 82 01 07b

1982 01 08
Bill Sargent was Lode's village blacksmith for more than 60 years. His training began aged 14 when he was apprenticed at Teversham and he was a popular character working his forge in the centre of the village until a month ago. Nearly everybody stopped for a chat and even children called in to see him; he will be sadly missed. 82 01 08

Swavesey will feature in the first of a new television series called 'History on Your Doorstep'. Local historian Jack Ravensdale will show Fred Housego the remains of a castle and mediaeval dock system. The BBC were inundated with letters after its Family History programmes and fears that the pressure on libraries and archivists could be excessive, so they have issued guidelines and Jack has written a book to accompany the series. 82 01 08a

Chesterford railway, p5

1982 01 11
Oakington raid, p1

1982 01 12
Anthrax experiments – details – 82 01 12

1982 01 13
Beer trade, p13

1982 01 14
The Horatio Myer bed company is expanding its site in Windover Road, Huntingdon creating 100 new jobs. The factory, which opened in 1963, is more up to date then their 106 year-old London building, which is being closed. Huntingdon Jobcentre says it is marvellous news as there are currently over 2,000 people unemployed and looking for work. 82 01 14

Fenland drug taking – review – 82 01 14a
Toft bus, p1

1982 01 15
Community nurses along with home helps and the meals-on-wheels service form the basic support for many old people. They treat burnt legs – quite common in cold weather as the elderly tend to sit very close to fires and fall asleep. Many ladies cling stubbornly to the homes in which they have lived for half a century or more, often without central heating, indoor lavatories and in some cases electricity or hot water. Two or three elderly people in Romsey have only gaslight while others insist on using candles. 82 01 15

1982 01 16
Ten thousand copies of the Cambridge student newspaper "Stop Press" have rolled off the presses of the News, the first time it has been printed in the city. With the introduction of direct-image camera and laser printmakers student journalists hope it will save them £150 an issue and enable it to be distributed earlier than before. "Stop Press", a 12-page tabloid-style paper was set up by Cambridge Students Union in the mid-1960s as a radical campaigning alternative to the established student paper, "Varsity", which subsequently folded. 82 01 16

1982 01 18
Motor car service bays are often working at half capacity due to rising costs and the growing army of garage mechanics who take their tools homes at the weekend to work on customers' cars. Service times have been cut. The Mark IV Ford Cortina required 3.6 hours for a full service, now the Mark V needs only 1.2 hours. But the cost has climbed. A Morris Ital costs £60 for a 12,000-mile service. 82 01 18

The Cambridge area had 17 royal visits last year; people get so many chances to see royalty that they become quite blasé. Prince Philip went to the Central Library in Lion Yard after he'd opened the new magistrates' courts. It was about four o'clock in the afternoon and the library was full of people peering at books, but nobody took any notice of him. Prince Philip liked that: he could see the library functioning as it normally functions. 82 01 18a

1982 01 19
Cambridge City Council did not know about the burial of anthrax carcasses on university-owned land until 1977, when a member of the public phoned a council official. But that was more than 30 years after secret wartime research was conducted. Twelve horses used for experiments on an ant-anthrax vaccine were buried on the site which may now be sold for housing. 82 01 19 #

1982 01 20
Film fans need have no fears that Cambridge cinemas may be converted into Bingo halls. EMI, which owns the two-screen Victoria say they have plans to convert it into a triple. It is the largest in town and attracts an average audience of about 600 people. Seats are now £2.10 for adults but the manager rejects the idea it is too expensive. One of the long-term threats is the home video market. 82 01 20

Ten local bands will appear at the Graduate Centre in a presentation of the history of Cambridge rock music. They are Telephone Bill and the Smooth Operators, Milestones, Duke Duke and the Dukes, The Lonely, Weak at the Knees, High and Lonesome, Nick Nick and the Nickettes, Floating Unit, Drink 'N' Jive Band and The Light Blues Band. Sindy and the Action Men will promote their debut single on a new label, Wimp Records, based in Kingston. 82 01 20a

1982 01 22
British Rail engineers are to dismantle the arch of the rail bridge between Dullingham and Stetchworth, leaving a gaping hole in the road. A replacement is urgently needed but the bridge sits in fine rolling landscape and a concrete structure would detract from the beauty of the countryside. For the men who work on the Hall Farm, part of the Stetchworth Estate, it means a five-mile journey by tractor just to get to their fields down the road. 82 01 22

1982 01 23
Rock chart, p6

1982 01 25
Peterhouse clock, p8

1982 01 27
The local retail market has survived the recession so far. Ekins have disposed of four shops on the St Neots Market Square which were formerly occupied by Boots, R & E Cadge, Presslands and Falford Books. Developments by St Ives Free Church at Market Hill and at Club Mews Ely have provided 20 shop units, all of which have been let. But in Cambridge increased rents have led to a number changing hands. 82 01 27

1982 01 28
The 670 telephone subscribers at Arrington have become part of a significant step in providing a more reliable telephone network in Britain. For their exchange and the one in Cambridge, both System X, have been directly interconnected – the first such pairing by digital means. Arrington customers will notice faster dialling on the computer-controlled electronic exchange of the future. 82 01 28

Bourn Hall, p1

1982 01 29
Clive Sinclair, managing director of Sinclair Research Ltd of Cambridge has been chosen as Personality of the Year in a new series of awards for achievements in technical innovation. It follows the success of his ZX 81 personal computer of which some 40,000 are now being sold every month in this country. Production of the model, which has been a major force in bringing computers into everyday use, is now greater than any other computer in the world. 82 01 29

When the Queen Mother opened St Paul's Church of England Primary School, Cambridge, she went from class to class, looking over the shoulders of the children as they continued their work. Three infant classes showed her their Captain Cook project, their dressing-up clothes, demonstrated how a canon works and gave an impromptu music lesson. Some were too busy to talk; one hurried busily up to the teacher with a problem: "I have to do his braces for the loo", she told the Queen Mother. "Oh that's much more important", she replied. 82 01 29a

Anthrax, p1

February 1982 CEN

1982 02 03
A racehorse trainer has been told to repair his nine historic buildings in the Upper King Street, Royston. They are a very important part of the town centre; some date back to the 17th century but have fallen into a very neglected, dilapidated state. Vandals are constantly breaking in, smashing windows and doors. Now they will be boarded up by the council. 82 02 03a

Andy Gray decided 13 years ago to move his collection of 500 second-hand singles from Bury market to serve the more discerning musical tastes of Cambridge. He can still be found in the market square today, though now he has eight shops in the region. He puts his success down to undercutting the traditional record retailers as well as offering the obscure stuff you just couldn't buy elsewhere. Rather like John Peel he has kept abreast of changes, opening 'The Beat Goes On' to cater for new trends. 82 02 03b

Next week Lady Trumpington will rise in the House of Lords to promote the second reading of her Private Member's Bill on Sunday trading. A former Cambridge Mayor and wife of the previous headmaster of the Leys School, she says Sundays is the only day they can go shopping together. The last local prosecution for breaching trading rules was in 1980 when the Co-op Beehive Garden Centre was given an absolute discharge. 82 02 03c

1982 02 04
Mr Johnnie Fison of Park Farm, Quy, has died. He and his brother Sam farmed more than 1,000 acres at Lode, Quy and Gt Wilbraham. A bachelor, he was secretary of the choral society, a keen villager cricketer and footballer but was best-known as a lively raconteur with a fund of rich and salty stories about local life in the old days. 82 02 04

1982 02 05
Gardeners' Question Time visited Foxton village hall with Bill Sowerbutts, Professor Alan Gemmell and Geoffrey Smith. It has been an occasion of high excitement to members of the Foxton Gardens Association who approached the BBC ten years ago. Villagers will be glued to their seats to hear whether Melville Gregory's question about composting rhubarb leaves, Jack Cox's concern with yellowing sprout leaves or Maude Ochs's query on plumbago will be aired. 82 02 05

Gas pipe, p5

1982 02 06
A second burial site thought to contain anthrax-infected carcasses is a stone's throw away from a school for severely-handicapped children says a man who worked at the Milton Road Institute of Animal Pathology during the war. He remembers tight securing precautions after heifers from Newmarket were found to have the disease and buried by council workmen. 82 02 06

1982 02 08
The Bishop of Huntingdon, the Rt Rev Gordon Roe conducted the opening service at the new community centre at St Andrew's Church. Cherry Hinton. Much of the money has been raised by the Vicar, Rev Chris Barber, his son John and parishioners including a 30-hour sponsored croquet marathon by the church youth club. 82 02 08

At Herringswell Manor on the Cambridgeshire – Suffolk border was bought by 70 disciples of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh wear red or orange clothes and a mala pendant – a string of 108 beads representing gurus and prophets with a picture of Bhagwan in the middle. It has a Healing Centre offering acupuncture and orthodox medicine with a sauna cabin and isolation tank. This has ten inches of water at blood heat containing 350 kilos of Epson Salts, ensuring everyone floats. They offer newcomers a one-year residential course in Rajneesh Therapy which costs £3,500 including vegetarian food and accommodation. 82 02 08a

1982 02 10
One of Cambridge's greatest characters, Albert Jaggard, the former head porter of Corpus Christi College, has died. Undergraduates believed he was the model for the irascible 'Scullion' in 'Porterhouse Blue'. He was extremely knowledgeable about the college and had a phenomenal knowledge about its old members. He was ground manager at the University Rugby Club responsible for the announcements, but his voice was such that they never really needed a microphone. 82 02 10

The Centre for Management Development, Cambridge operates from a private house but is the headquarters of a money-spinning operation that draws hundreds of students from the top echelon of life in the Third World to Cambridge. The founder-chairman is an American who claims to have a doctorate from Harvard – though they have no knowledge of him. He invited influential African civil servants to courses, got the best brains to teach them and charged them for the privilege. Now it is subject of a court case. 82 02 10a & b

1982 02 11
Dennis Gould, p16

1982 02 12
Mac Cuthbert is to retire as a chef at the Leys School bringing to an end a father-and-son partnership. During the war he set up military and civilian schools and cookery in Egypt and Malta before becoming chef at the Cambridge Union Society when it was a gentleman's club and members wore evening dress for eating and debating. He was looking for a job when his son Michael who was already working in the kitchens suggested he apply, even though it meant he would only be a junior assistant. 82 02 12

1982 02 13
Baldry's soft drinks firm has shut down. It was founded by Jack Baldry in 1928 in the face of stiff competition from 32 other soft drinks firms in Cambridge. They moved to Sawston from premises in Harvest Way in 1979 because it needed more storage space. Two firms are interested in buying the assets and maintaining the Baldry name. 82 02 13

Champion runner Mike Newton came to Folk Museum Cambridge in search of a legend. There he was able to wear a belt won 100 years ago by Charlie Rowell, the 'Long Distance Champion of the World. He first won it at Madison Square Garden, New York in 1879 and went on to gain it outright with three six-day wins in succession the following year. Charlie's record of running 258 miles in 48 hours has remained unbeaten for over 100 years. 82 02 13a

1982 02 15

Land Settlement Estates at Fen Drayton and Abington are under threat. Fen Drayton recently lost 10 of its 50 tenants who were forced to close because of bad debts or because they decided to move away. Abington is slightly more secure: its horticultural output is worth £600,000 a year. The LSA was established in the 1930s at a period of depression to provide jobs for unemployed people. Two sons of the original tenants survive at Abington. 82 02 15

1982 02 16
St Neots Working Men's Club in Hardwick Road is to close after Mann's Breweries recalled the loan it made to help them build their premises. When opened in 1974 it was set a sales target of 1,500 barrels of beer a year. But recession has hit the pockets of members. After the last pint has been pulled the clubhouse will be auctioned with any balance going towards setting up a new one. 82 02 16

Brunswick School started as a British School in Eden Walk; it moved to Auckland Road about 1900 but had to move again to Walnut Tree Avenue when the buildings began sliding gently down to the river. Now falling rolls and cash cutbacks means it will close and the site used for Further Education premises. Teacher Miss Marjorie Battersbee attended as a girl and has taught there her entire career. Many of the 92 children will go to St Matthew's. 82 02 16a

1982 02 18
University Library, p7

1982 02 19
Alkit, the Cambridge menswear shop in Regent Terrace is shutting after 35 years as the lease has run out. Staff who have been given two weeks' notice say trade has fallen off recently. The Citizens' Advice Bureau offices and a flat used by University Arms Hotel staff may also be affected because they are sublet from Alkit. 82 02 19

The people who are campaigning for peace at Molesworth get very little quiet. Lorries grind through the dirt track a few yards from the People's Peace Camp, one every four minutes on average. The wagons stop at 5pm but some of the men start work again at 4.30 next morning. Currently the camp is occupied by six people; they get a huge post every day and at weekends people arrive with food parcels. 82 02 19a

1982 02 23
When Harbour Marine decided it could no longer afford to build houseboats and riverboats at its Earith yard they offered to rent the works to three of their employees. The trio took up the challenge & set up their own firm, Steelcraft Earith. Now three months later they have just delivered their fourth narrow beam boat. They will build anything from private houseboats to commercial barges. 82 02 23

1982 02 24
Shepreth school, p5

1982 02 25
Cambridge newsagent Bob Truelove has an easier working day now his newspaper delivery boys and girls have been computerised. Once he had to get up with the lark to start marking up the morning newspapers for his delivery team. Now the computer delivers a daily print-out for each of the rounds showing which papers have to be delivered to each house. It is the same story in the evening when the News arrives. The Cifer computer, which was installed by Bob Dear of Glisson Road, has been specially programmed so no technical skills are needed to operate it. 82 02 25

Darwin Instrument, p1

1982 02 26
The revolutionary government of Iran tried to buy spare parts for military aircraft from Marshall of Cambridge, despite the Western arms embargo. The order was hidden in a web of false documentation but Marshall had immediate doubts as only a limited number of countries could need spares for the giant C-130 Hercules. They discovered the parts were to be shipped to Libya after arriving in Italy and contact the anti-terrorist squad. 82 02 26

Rag Queen, p22

1982 01 27
Cottenham tv, p8

March 1982 CEN

1982 03 01
Hundreds of police, many armed, were rushed to Stansted when a hijacked Boeing 737 landed. Roadblocks were set up on all roads as the plane, beating the Air Tanzania markings was diverted to a remote corner of the airfield. Negotiations immediately began to save the lives of more than 90 hostages and crew. 82 03 01

Eden Street chapel, p8

1982 03 03
Jason Caesar, p10

1982 03 04
Queens' tunnel, p6

1982 03 05
The increasing problems and expense involved in going into Cambridge city centre is good news for businesses which are out of reach of the traffic wardens and car park queues. Jon Marc's hairdressing salon at Bar Hill is enjoying great success with prices starting at £4.85 for a cut and blow dry, re-styling at £6 and permanent waving for £11.50. On Thursdays there are training sessions where juniors April and Geraldine do shampoo and sets for 50p. 82 03 05

Cherry Hinton barrier, p13

1982 03 08
Newmarket 'country' singer, Pete Sayers, has just finishing filming a new BBC 2 series while his first will be repeated on BBC 1. He has also recently released a new album which shows his versatility as a multi-instrumentalist. Pete has introduced a number of 'characters' to his act including a rhinestone cowboy 'The Phoenix Phantom', and a Suffolk 'yokel', Dennis, who has taken many an audience by surprise by his earthy humour. 82 03 08

Many smaller country roads have been badly hit by this year's cold weather. Typical is Malton Lane, Orwell, where the hard frost broke up the road surface allowing moisture to get down to the chalk underneath. When there were more severe frosts the chalk almost exploded and came bursting through the surface of the road like rice pudding. The byroad from West Wratting to Six Mile Bottom has been closed as it is dangerous with six-inch deep ruts. 82 03 08a

1982 03 09
Lord 'Rab' Butler, the former Master of Trinity College and MP for Saffron Walden for 36 years, has died aged 79. He reached the highest position in British politics without becoming Prime Minister and was always associated with the 1944 Education Act. He was responsible for Prince Charles' studies when he came up to Cambridge in 1967. Among undergraduates he gained the reputation of being Cambridge's friendly college Master and was frequently seen in the Union debating chamber. 82 03 09 & a 1933 03 10

Cheffins, p14

1982 03 11
Fulbourn parents fighting the possible closure of the village infants' school say that if cuts are to be made then it is Great Wilbraham School which should be axed. Meanwhile Liberal MP Clement Freud has urged the Government to drop plans to close Witcham School; it has increased its roll from 27 to 30 in the happy, integrated and expanding village. It could be kept open with just one teacher, he claims. 82 03 11

1982 03 12
The Headmaster of Cambridge Manor School was forced to close his school at lunchtime after pupils went on the rampage. Children set fire to rubbish at the back of a building, smashed a door and set off a fire alarm. The trouble came on the first day of a teachers' work-to-rule which cut mealtime supervision to a minimum leaving the head with only four elderly dinner ladies for help. 82 03 12

Two of Cambridge's best-known taxi firms are now under the same ownership. The Harris family, which owns the Camtax car-hire firm, has bought control of United Taxis from its owner, John Phillips for a 'considerable' sum. The deal, one of the best-kept Cambridge business secrets for years, came as a surprise to other operators in the competitive taxi and car-hire business. 82 03 12a

When Gogs clanked and flashed – telegraph – 82 03 12b

The gallows from the old Cambridge prison behind the assize courts on Castle Hill have been restored in a quiet suburban back garden in Nottingham. The last hanging took place in November 1913. Hundreds of people queued to inspect the gaol in June 1930 before it was demolished. They included Doris Melbourne; she visited the prison three times with her father, William Wale, who took photographs of the gallows in situ. 82 03 12c

Maurice Stevenson is Cambridge's longest-serving projectionist; he recently retired from the Victoria Cinema after showing films for 54 years. He started aged 14 at the old Tivoli Cinema in Chesterton Road, moved to the Central, then the Playhouse where he was chief projectionist at the age of 18. Later he was at the Regal. He has seen it all from the 'silent' days to the coming of 'talkies', then colour; from the advent of 3D and wide screen to stereophonic sound, from traditional projection methods to highly-developed technology. 82 03 12d

Market fountain, p7

1982 03 15
Vulcan Duxford, p3

1982 03 17
In the heady days of 1981 Cambridge Social Democratic Party won a city council seat in Romsey, routing Labour after 60 years. But those heady days are over. Nationally opinion polls are showing a decline in support. Locally they are still haggling with the Liberals over who should field the Alliance parliamentary candidate – not a good image for a party who stand for an end to gladiatorial politics. There are about 500 paid-up SDP members in the city, against 450 Liberals, 1,000 Labour party members and 3,500 Conservatives. 82 03 17

1982 03 18
Cambridge City Council have just sold 191 council houses at an average price of £11,500, with another 550 sales in the pipeline. Anyone who has been a council tenant for three years is entitled to a 30 per cent discount on his house valuation if he decides to buy. It can be a good investment as houses in Cambridge are at such a premium that everything sells, provided the price is right. 82 03 18

Tests are being carried out to try and date Great Gransden windmill. In 1950 Huntingdonshire County Council spent £2,000 strengthening and propping it up with iron stays. Now it is being restored and may be opened to the public. But the machinery will not be assembled because the money allowed for the job does not include its return to working order. 82 03 18a

1982 03 19
Anthrax, p11

1982 03 21
Haverhill distributor road needed – 82 03 21a

1982 03 23
Traders are deserting Magdalene Street in the face of rent rises up to four times the present level, imposed by their college landlords. Several shops already have whitewashed windows and locked doors. Within a year, less than one-third of the original row could remain. Magdalene College says they want to keep it a specialist shopping area but have to get the market rent. 82 03 23 & 23a

Anthrax site, p4

1982 03 26
The Tansley Typewriter Company started as the British Rebuilt Typewriter Company in Gloucester Street in 1922. It was bought by David Mutch in 1974. He acquired a van, the trade name, some contracts and a few spare parts. Now the arrival of the electric typewriter has meant taking on new skills which will be adapted as it moves into word processors, memory banks and the sophisticated paraphernalia of the modern office. 82 03 26

1982 03 30
The film 'Chariots of Fire', partly shot in Cambridge, was the toast of Hollywood after winning the Oscar for the best picture of 1981. The film ran into trouble with college authorities during production with various 'Cambridge' scenes being shot at Eton public school. King's Parade was returned to the 1920s and some 150 students were employed as extras. 82 03 30

Telephone Bill and the Smooth Operators have decided to work less. After too many years on the road accompanying Max Boyce and Jasper Carrott this five-man Cambridge group are now playing for the fun of it. But Nick Barraclough has already been booked to host the Cambridge Folk Festival in a BBC2 series and is to introduce three programmes a week on Radio Cambridgeshire which starts broadcasting in May. 82 03 30b

1982 03 31
The former Stetchworth Heath School, which closed last summer, is up for auction. The building, which stands adjacent to the Devil's Dyke overlooking the July Racecourse dates from about 1928. It comprises the original schoolroom, changing rooms and mobile classroom and has permission for conversion into residential use. 82 03 31

Horseheath byoass, p10

April 1982 CEN

1982 04 01
Spectators at the Cambridgeshire FA Challenge Cup Final had plenty to read with a new match programme packed with detailed information about the players. The initial print-run of 200 copies sold out. The match was decided in the first half when skipper Trevor Norton – 'likes to win' says the prog – shot favourites Springbox into the lead. He added a second from the penalty spot after a foul by BSC keeper Robert Fretwell – 'original member of the team' - and Nacer Relizani got another before Gary Grogan pulled one back for the Ely side. 82 04 01

1982 04 02
The massive US Air Force bases at Lakenheath, Mildenhall and Alconbury spent £146 million with local businesses last year. It went on building work, equipment and services for the bases and housing for the 26,000 servicemen and their families – about half attached to Lakenheath. Many local people rent houses to Americans who spent £5.8 million eating out and visiting nearby places of interest last year 82 04 02

'Uncle Clive' Sinclair is close to becoming part of the legend of the microchip. He brought to the word innovative calculators, digital watches and pocket-sized televisions. Then in 1976 he formed Sinclair Research to conceive new projects in the consumer electronics field, including an electric car. He started with a little computer then produced a ZX81 version priced at just under £70. Now he has moved into the flat-screen television tube and mini-tv set. 82 04 02c

Acorn computers has hardly had time to catch its breath since it won an agreement with the BBC to supply microcomputers suitable for use alongside a television series. But the broadcasts to schools began with only 200 of the 500 schools which wanted to take part having received their computers and programmes for the general public were postponed. Now 6,000 have been despatched with an order for 15,000 from Western Australia. 82 04 02d

Welch's Garage at Stapleford has an excellent reputation but since they negotiated the Mazda dealership they have been looking for premises to expand. Now they have a completely new garage and showroom at Foxton which will specialise in Ford cars. It started with a wooden shed but now customers will find a purpose built showroom plus the usual service station facilities. They are very optimistic about the future and have had particular success with Fiat Magirusdeuts commercial vehicles. 82 04 02e

1982 04 04
Richard Digance, a Cockney who lives at Debden, got his big break at the Cambridge Folk Festival seven years ago. He is grateful to Ken Woollard who booked him and the audiences that shot him to much wider popularity. Afterwards he played to every folk club in the country and toured with Steeleye Span. He now prefers to be known as a 'modern music hall entertainer' with his own show on Capitol Radio and has published books of verse. 82 04 04

1982 04 05
Royston's image as a congested carbon dioxide bottleneck is to change. No longer will it be a place to avoid on holiday weekends with spluttering nose-to-tail traffic and irritable kids screaming from the back seat. Even the Queen has been trapped in traffic. Now with the opening of the four-mile bypass, finished four months ahead of schedule, the town can breathe again. 82 04 05

1982 04 06
Mrs Thatcher will face the full fury of the Labour Opposition over the Government's handling of the Falklands Island crisis. Her new Foreign Secretary, Francis Pym faces a fiery introduction to the job as he attends his first Cabinet meeting in his new post. But he was the toast of fellow Anglian MPs in the Commons; Robert Rhodes James (Cambridge) said he was 'superbly equipped by intellect and experience to be a very distinguished Foreign Secretary'. 82 04 06

Pye TVT of Cambridge may lose a £100,000 order for television transmitters from Argentina because of the Falkland Islands crisis but Pye Telecom are still working on a £4,000 order for a communications system for the Falklands Islands. Stansted Airport's three giant Belfast military planes may be drafted into military use to ferry bulk loads nearer the scene of the action. Although they can land on medium-sized runways like Cambridge it could not land on the airstrip at Port Stanley. 82 04 06a

In recent years the building industry has suffered as a result of the recession causing a number of companies to cease trading. The Cambridge area has followed the national trend and the number of new homes has been considerably reduced. However the Moss group has completed a range of projects from studio apartments at £16,950, starter homes at £18,000 through to luxury properties at £85,000. As house prices are anticipated to rise by 20 per cent this is the best time to purchase one. 82 04 06c & d

1982 04 07
Years of misery experienced by Royston residents ended when a 77-year-old veteran car led a cavalcade along the town's new bypass. The 1905 Argyll was driven by Dr Derek Nicholls, marking the triumphal end of years of campaigning. The by-pass, opened four months ahead of schedule, had an immediate effect. At 10 am heavy vehicles were ploughing through the town's main road, by noon they had gone. 82 04 07

1982 04 08
Two of the most familiar faces on Cambridge market have called it a day. Kitty Davis has had a stall for more than 50 years; for much of that time she and her husband Joe have traded in fabrics, buttons and bows. Generations of doll owners have bought the frilly, lacy dresses she made. Racks of them hang beside her sewing machine at home; now she will sell them for charity. Previously she had a shop, 'Kathleens', in Burleigh Street selling ladies' underwear, hosiery and fashions. 82 04 08

Lode watermill, p20

1982 04 13
Newnham Croft, p6

1982 04 14
Falkland, p1

1982 04 15
A Saffron Walden bakery is expanding to cope with the increased demand for Christmas puddings made from a grandmother's secret recipe. Chris and Tim Cole turned out 15,000 last year and have now won a contract from the largest departmental store in the United States – Sax in New York. This year they expect to produce about 40,000 puddings. 82 04 15

The disorganisation following the reorganisation of the health service in the Cambridge area means that even now – two years later – many staff are still waiting to hear if they are to be fired, re-hired or moved. The idea was to streamline the service and turn the money 'saved' in management costs to patient care – which few believe will be achieved in practice. It has seen the axing of the Area Health Authority and its replacement by three separate management teams. 82 04 15a

1982 04 17
Cambridge-based British Antarctic Survey has had official Foreign Office confirmation that their missing 13 scientists have arrived in Buenos Aires & are all safe and well. They were captured on South Georgia soon after the Argentinean invasion of the Falkland Islands. 82 04 17

1982 04 19
Huntingdon flu, p4

1982 04 20
Plans to bring American tourists to Landbeach to help pay for repairs to the village church have fallen through. Villagers would have put up 15 visiting couples in their homes, raising £6,000 for All Saints' Church, but there has been little response from the United States. This has been their first real setback in fundraising – last year a painting fetched £21,000 at Sotheby's. 82 04 20

A former school and warehouse buildings in Eden Street have been turned into eight studio flats for sale at about £28,000. Each comprises a living-dining room, fitted kitchen, bathroom and bedroom with low maintenance and running costs. Eden Court blends in with the surrounding cottages in an area well-served with corner shops and pubs which gives it an atmosphere unique to Cambridge. 82 04 20a

Newmarket Library is the first in the area to run a video lending library with 200 cassettes on offer at £1.95 per night. But Andrew McCulloch of Arbury Court who rents 1,000 films says although people have now got a video, or a thinking of getting, one business is not booming. An advertiser in the News offers 'adult' films for sale at £30, sent out in plain cardboard boxes. 82 04 20b

1982 04 21
South Cambridgeshire District Council was one of the first to adopt the plastic rubbish sack system that was pioneered by the old Chesterton R.D.C. in the 1960s. Each household gets 60 bags a year. The council is highly conscious that bags left by the kerbside for longer than a day are unsightly and can quickly become damaged and messy, reducing the quality of the service on which they pride themselves. So they have to ensure they collect on the same day each week. 82 04 21

1982 04 23
Cambridge probably boasts more books per head of population that any other city and people know how to look after them. Now Clarissa Hinsley, a bookbinder in Bridge Street, has started to make paper using seaweed, chestnut leaves, bamboo and other plants which are used as endpapers in sketch books or photograph albums. 82 04 23

Snooker has gained a new respectability, operating from high-class, exclusive clubs. Now the Dodgers Snooker and Billiard Club has opened in the old historic Newnham Watermill. It has five new tables of the finest Brazilian mahogany and an antique match table which has been restored to its original condition. With each table weighing over a ton, the floors have been reinforced. Members are issued with a computer-controlled access card with video cameras acting as a double check against gate crashers. 82 04 23a

Burwell museum, p8
Bottle banks, p11

1982 04 24
Cambridge electronics wizard Clive Sinclair shook the computer world by announcing a new powerful machine at a fraction of the price of its rivals. The Sinclair ZX Spectrum costs £125 with a 16k memory, capable of high-resolution colour graphics. A mini floppy disc-drive memory device will shortly be available at the staggeringly low price of £50. 82 04 24

Anthrax site, p2

1982 04 26
Sir - Independence for Cherry Hinton should be an election issue. Residents never wanted to be swallowed up by an expanding Cambridge and wish to be separate village. It is detached from the city by a 'green belt' including Netherhall playing fields, Coldham's Lane rubbish tips and Marshall's airfield where it is unlikely that any new development will take place. It has all the amenities such as a library, post office, shops and schools. Candidates should realise the importance of maintaining a community spirit – Cherry Hinton Liberation Front spokesman. 82 04 26

Quenby Price started in 1835 from premises at Kempton, then just before the last war a mill was purchased at Kimbolton which became the site where cereal seed was produced. It launched its Cambridgeshire operation in 1968 at Station Yard, Histon and throughout the 1970s business expanded in the trading of agrochemicals, feedstuffs, fertilisers, seed corn and the buying and selling of grain and oilseed rape. Now a new store enables them to store fungicides and weedkillers from major manufacturers, providing a complete service for arable farmers. 82 04 26a & b

A phenomenal epidemic of wheat bulb fly in the 1950s was responsible for nearly one third of the Fenland winter cereal acreage having to be redrilled. The devastation provided the impetus for the development of a whole range of counter-measures by Frank Maskell, an entomologist whose name has become virtually synonymous with the conquest of the cereal menace. He has just retired for the Agricultural Development and Advisory Service, Brooklands Avenue. 82 04 26c

1982 04 28
Radioactive rats that had been used in experiments by biochemists were buried on the anthrax site on Milton Road, Cambridge, 25 years ago. Council officials who inspected the land with Geiger counters have found no more radiation than elsewhere. But they had to rely on the memory of a university employee who helped bury them to identify the spot. Samples of soil were sent to Porton Down, the Government's chemical research centre for analysis. They show the site is safe for housing. 82 04 28

1982 04 29
Radio Cambridgeshire, launched today, will broadcast six hours a day. Not long enough, says Hal Bethell, the manager, but all the BBC can afford at present. It will be a 'talk' station, rather than putting out music that aims to provide a new dimension in reflecting the local scene. He has a team of 25, three in Peterborough, and a shifting body of freelances who have been building up the widest range of background knowledge and contacts. 82 04 29

Hunters Fen, p6

1982 04 30
Great Eversden residents are calling their own annual meeting because the parish council have broken the law by not holding one since 1978. The chairman said they were discontinued because nobody ever bothered to turn up. Now nine parishioners have arranged one in the home of a senior civil servant who lives in the village. 82 04 30

Marshall's engineers have provided the Falkland Islands task force with a vital new component in their armoury – a transport aircraft that can be refuelled in mid-air. They have carried out conversion work on a prototype Hercules 130, the RAF's workhorse, in record time. The giant transporter had its first test-flight from Cambridge this week when the system worked without problems. The Marshalls men are jubilant that they got it right first time and so quickly. 82 04 30a

Developments at Duxford Mill could have important repercussions for households in the future. For the entire heating comes from a device in the millrace which sucks heat out of the cool water of the stream and the speed of the water passing through a turbine provides the energy to drive the pumps and machinery. Twentieth-century science has returned to the basic principles of the 18th century but added its own brand of technology. 82 04 30b

May 1982 CEN

1982 05 01
Radio Cambridgeshire goes on air – 82 05 01

1982 05 04
Cambridge has nurtured many stars of the pop world. Pink Floyd, Yes, 10 cc, Roxy Music, Foreigner, Procol Harum, Small Faces, Quiver, Elvis Costello's Attractions, The Clash, The Foundations … all have had links with Cambridge bands. Now Graeme Mackenzie has published a family tree of rock groups since 1964. It has proved unbelievably complicated due to the musicians appalling memory for names and dates. 82 05 04 & a Forensic labs, p6

1982 05 05
Percy Todd, founder of Todd's scales retires – 82 05 05
Frith photographs being sold by Cottenham firm – 82 05 05a
Haverhill factory. P4

1982 05 06
The Travellers Rest, the 100th Beefeater Steak House, has opened at Girton. Weathered bricks and dark wood have come from an old mill in Lancashire to give the former Whitbread pub a warmth and intimacy. Hundreds of plants with an unusual water feature add both colour and life but the over-riding ingredient for success is value for money with no extra costs hidden within the menu. 82 05 06

Somewhere between Mars and Jupiter is a tiny lost planet which an astronomer has just officially named 'Tomeileen' after his late Cambridge parents, Thomas Marsden, a maths master at the Cambridgeshire High School for Boys, and his wife. The couple's heavenly memorial, which had been lost for 100 years amid an asteroid belt, was accidentally rediscovered and christened by Dr Brian Marsden at an observatory in Arizona. 82 05 06 a & b

One of the few things to have gone down in price in the last two years is estate agents' fees. Some have reduced by as much as £100 on the sale of a £30,000 house. It has been a difficult time for selling houses but the top end of the market has done well – the really expensive houses around £90,000. It is a good time to buy a flat with prices down on two years ago. At Mayflower House you can get a roof over your head for between £13 and £14,000. 82 05 06c & d

1982 05 07
A small sprig of yew to help ward away evil spirits was placed in the concrete during the ceremonial topping out of a futuristic new building at Cambridge Science Park. It will become Napp Laboratories central research and medical centre bringing facilities from four other bases. Around 200 people will work at the new complex which stands in a landscaped site with the main access provided by way of a plaza and a bridge across a canal. 82 05 07

Planners fear that the traditional Cambridge landlady is an endangered species, as more and more colleges press to change their family lodging houses into student hostels or 'outside staircases'. But Mrs Winifred Phillips who runs a lodging house for 24 undergraduates says students think they can cope, but they can't. They come here to study and want to enjoy themselves in what time they have to spare, not worry about the domestic side of life. Her grandmother ran a lodging house, as did two aunts; and her father, husband and son have all been college porters. 82 05 07a & b

Widdington, p13

1982 05 10
CEN 20 years, p10

1982 05 12
House prices in Cambridgeshire dropped by more than three per cent last year – and in some areas plummeted below 1979 levels. The biggest drop was in fenland where prices fell by nine percent, to £20,270 though the average price throughout the county was £28,035. In Cambridge prices fell to £31,855 but South Cambridgeshire is the most expensive place to live at £36,015. 82 05 12

South Cambs councillors may pull down the temporary prefabricated building known as South Cambridgeshire Hall and build a four-storey office block in its place. They would then dispose of Great Eastern House near the railway station and centralise all its staff on the Hills Road site. Whether they will actually be prepared to spend a lot of money on the scheme has yet to be seen. In the past councillors have brought up the idea on numerous occasions but decided against it on cost grounds. 82 05 12a

County rates, p7

1982 05 14
South Georgian scientists home from Falklands – 82 05 14

1982 05 17
There are up to a million cockroaches loose in the roof of St Ivo School. It has been keeping the American cockroaches along with its many other reptiles, amphibians and mammals for the past 25 years. Some escaped into the roof of the tropical room and their numbers have steadily increased. Henry Berman, head of biology, says there are advantages: they catch them and use them to feed the other animals. 82 05 17

Football referee's last match – 82 05 17a

1982 05 19
Prince Philip flew into Cambridge and made what is believed to be the first helicopter landing on Parker's Piece. It made quite a stir among people making their way to work. It may also have made them late because police cordoned off the Piece for the landing, special permission for which had been obtained from the City Council. 82 05 19

Waterbeach filth, p7

1982 05 20
The North Arbury Chapel in Cameron Road started in 1971 with weekly children's services in a building contractor's site hut. The numbers soon grew to 100 and they moved to the Grove Primary School, then swelled to 200 so they used a mobile prefabricated building. Now the first permanent building will be opened by Sir Fred Catherwood. 82 05 20

Being manager of Bishop's store at Arbury Court is not an easy job. This week he had to cope with the aftermath of an armed robbery in which £3,000 was snatched. Then there are customer complaints. He does not mind his staff taking time to talk to customers but they should not argue with them – management should find out what the matter is. 82 05 20a

1982 05 24
Slate Hall farm, housed in a neat group of buildings set back from the A604 near Bar Hill is a familiar landmark. When William and Roy Cowell bought it 23 years ago they grew sugar beet and potatoes on the manageable land, mustard on the heavy soil and wheat and barley after both. But now they focus on cereals, oilseed rape, winter beans and peas as break crops. Economically it had to come. Recently they have lost land to the new road. 82 05 24

1984 02 25
Jane Barrett, the joint managing director of the Cambridge china and glass specialists, has become the first woman in the world to have a Royal Doulton crinoline lady named after her. 'Jane', a portrait of an Edwardian lady holding a parasol, has been created exclusively to celebrate Barretts bi-centenary this year and will only be sold at their shop in St Mary's Passage. 82 05 25 & a

Many villages have old houses which are little more than unsightly ruins because owners are unwilling to carry out vital repairs. Now South Cambridgeshire District Council has set up a fund to enable it to compulsorily buy buildings which might otherwise be destroyed. About 50 properties, including barns and dovecotes have been identified with a row of five cottages at Pampisford, a derelict farmhouse at Haslingfield and a school house at West Wratting being top priorities. 82 05 25b & c & d

One of Cambridge's first self-service grocery stores, Traylen's of Newmarket Road, is to concentrate on the butchery side of its business. Before the War the shop had its own slaughterhouse on the premises and cattle were driven along the streets from the market. But the opening of Elizabeth Way, increasing traffic and parking restrictions mean customers have found it hard to get to the store. 82 05 27

It is the ending of an historic era as the belongings of the Huddleston family are auctioned off at the family seat, Sawston Hall. Treasures include a bed in which Mary Tudor is said to have slept. It was death duties imposed on the estate in 1970 which finally led to them abandoning the 16th-century hall, which has been their home for 15 generations. It is destined to become a language centre. 82 05 27a & b

1985 02 28
Darth Vader, the villain from the 'Star Wars' films and the children's television favourites, the Smurfs, will help celebrate the opening of Townsends new enlarged toy and cycle shop in Burleigh Street. The business started about 1895 in Norfolk Street, making cycles to order under their own trademark, 'Light Blues'. After the war they did up War Department stock and resold them, moving into toys in the late 1950's. 82 05 28 & a & b

Air base spill, p12

June 1982 CEN

1982 06 01
The lights went up for the last time on the ABC Minors Matinee at the Victoria Cinema, Cambridge. The final credits brought to an end an institution which has won a place in the hearts of thousands of children. No more will Keith Kendall and his part-time cleaner colleagues sneak into the lavatories to catch some 12-year-olds having a crafty cigarette. Sid Perkiss, who has manned the box office, remembers when two or three hundred children packed the cinema. Now it has been killed by the one-eyed villain, television. 82 06 01

England football manager Ron Greenwood and 13 of his World Cup squad were at the Abbey Stadium to watch the London Symphony Orchestra's first outdoor performance of Classic Rock in England. They were joined by more than 3,500 fans for rock music's version of the Last Night of the Proms with people clapping and cheering through the last few numbers. Tony Butcher, the new rock of England's defence, said "Tremendous – we heard the Rolling Stones last week and this was a contrast". The United Manager John Docherty said the event was "unbelievably successful" and had broken even. 82 06 01a

Dumbletons, p12

1982 06 02
King's pinnacles, p10

1982 06 03
The Great Northern Hotel on the corner of Station Road had a wide reputation as a 'jazz pub'. In the 1970s it was converted into a hostel for Technical College students with rooms directly above the stage and Raffles nightclub in the basement. Despite music on two levels there were no complaints until a new landlord introduced rock bands. Now its licence has been withdrawn and Cambridge has lost one of its last live music venues. 82 06 03

1982 06 04
Ely's old High Bridge is being knocked down as the new £350,000 bridge alongside is now finished and in use. It is part of the £25 million Fen Link Road which includes the Soham by-pass and is designed to boost the economy of the fens. 82 06 04

1982 06 09

That rascal of Ambridge, Eddie Grundy and his wife Carrie called at the Fish Bar and Café in Market Place Ely. They were recording an episode of 'The Archers' in which their car breaks down during a trip to Great Yarmouth and they seek help at the chip shop. Owner Keith Smithson was delighted to provide the authentic frying sounds. 82 06 09

Jockey Wilson completely outclassed 17 of the best darts players in Cambridgeshire last night – but lost to his only woman opponent. The world professional champion, an amiable bullfrog of a man, swept aside the hopeful amateurs in his exhibition series at the St Ivo recreation centre. But he was still trying for his double out when Anne Haynes, who plays for the Black Bull pub at St Ives, sent game shot flashing across the electronic scoreboard. However Jockey had given her 300 start while he attempted to get down from 1,001 scoring only with bulls and 25's! 82 06 09a

1982 06 10
Newmarket millionaire David Robinson has given church authorities just seven weeks to come up with plans to convert Cambridge's St Andrew's Church into an old people's centre, or risk losing a £1/2 million windfall. The future of the church, threatened with redundancy for the past 10 years because of falling congregations, has long been the subject of debate. Previous plans have included conversion into an electronics laboratory, language school or a mosque. 82 06 10

The landlords of the Twenty Pence Inn near Cottenham invited the Queen and the Prime Minister to a party to celebrate the introduction of the new 20p coin. But they both had other engagements. A special Twenty Pence Ale – brewed for the occasion – was on sale but could only be bought with a 20 pence coin. A display of old brewing equipment was loaned from Haddenham Farmland Museum and music supplied by Cottenham Brass Band and the Steve Anthony Duo. 82 06 10a

1982 06 11
Pembroke College has bowed to the trend and decided to admit women students for the first time in its 635-year history. But the first arrivals are not expected until October 1984. Now only two colleges will be left as male-only preserves. Peterhouse has voted not to admit women in the foreseeable future and Magdalene has not even debated the issue. The Leys School is also to open its doors to girls with 50 admitted into the sixth-form in 1982. 82 06 11

Three Cambridge restaurants have been recommended in a new guide to vegetarian cooking. But Renwick's Restaurant in Magdalene Street closed in March. Hobbs Pavilion comes in for the highest praise for its chilled cucumber soup while Nettles in St Edward's Passage serves a bulgar wheat pie that looks unappetising but tastes remarkable. 82 06 11a

The new flying craze, sport and business of microlights has arrived in Cambridgeshire. Taurus Aviation has been set up at Haddenham and with the co-operation of farmers they now have a choice of fields from which they can take off and land. Meanwhile a Haverhill Company is selling an American-made microlight for £3,000 including five hour's free instruction. It can be assembled in half-an-hour and carried on a car roof-rack. 82 06 11 b&c

1982 06 12
When the Duchess of Gloucester officially opened St Andrew's Community Junior School at Chesterton she picked eight-year-old Wendy Braybrook to help her pull the cord to unveil a plaque. Then she was presented with a posy from Lorraine Clark and a book of pupils' work by Brian Hall before being escorted round the building by headmaster Derek Nightingale. Pye provided video equipment to record the visit that was watched by people on close circuit television. 82 06 12

1982 06 14
Jim Davidson at Cambridge Sports Hall – 82 06 14

1982 06 16

'Fenland Suite', the first work ever specially composed for organ solo and brass band, was recorded by the Cambridge Co-op Band with its composer, Dr Arthur Wills on the Ely Cathedral organ. Enthusiasm for the piece and the occasion was obvious, "I like that bit, even though I wrote it myself", said Dr Wills during the play-back of the 'Wicken Fen' movement. 82 06 16

Pollution, p14

1982 06 18
A landmine that fell off an Army lorry on the A45 bypass near Cambridge caused it to be sealed off between Quy interchange and the A11 near Newmarket. Diversions were lifted after an hour-and-a-half when bomb disposal experts declared it safe. It was a dummy. A second mine was found near Milton roundabout. It had fallen from the same lorry. 82 06 18

1982 06 19
Cambridge was today stunned by a fire which gutted most of the Grove Infants' School, Arbury, and destroyed the staff block at the Manor School. Hundreds of people were woken in the early hours by the sound of the buildings being ripped apart by flames and small explosions. They went out on the streets and watched as firemen fought to control the blaze. Many wept openly. 82 06 19 & a

A plush, ultra-modern custom-built stable being constructed in Newmarket for Middle Eastern millionaire Mahmoud Foustok will consist of 40 boxes plus a riding school and staff housing. It represents the third arm of an empire that stretches from Chantilly north of Paris to Kentucky USA. 82 06 19b

1982 06 22
Joseph Needham profile – 82 06 22a
Duke of Edinburgh a grandad, p1

1982 06 23
Prince Philip was greeted with cries of "Hello grandad" by shoppers as he walked down King's Parade today. Other bystanders clapped and cheered. Meanwhile the most talked-about baby in the world was settling into his nursery at Kensington Palace. Prince Charles has refused to give any clue as to his name – George is the favourite - but a street off King George Avenue in Exning will be named after the royal baby when it is known. 82 06 23

'Militant', p12

1982 06 25
Dr William Mortlock Palmer – profile – 82 06 25

1982 06 29
RAF Brampton, headquarters of Support Command had the job of ensuring that every item needed for the Falklands war arrived where they should. They were charged with recovering refuelling probes from scrapped Vulcans around the country, baffling onlookers when a lorry-load of engineers came screaming up to a plane on public display, leapt out, disconnect the probe and drove off with it. They were then sent to Marshall of Cambridge who have been converting Hercules C130s for in-flight refuelling. 82 06 29 & 29a

1982 06 30
Renovation work on St Matthew's Primary School has transformed the area. The original school dates from 1835 but part was demolished in the 1960s. Now it has been refurbished with open plan classrooms with internal courtyards built on the original playground. Before rebuilding it catered for 180 children, now there are 370. 82 06 30

July 1982 CEN

1982 07 01
A crop-spraying plane sliced through power cables at Landbeach, narrowly missed crashing near houses and flew off, leaving 2,500 homes without electricity. The pilot had been skimming a field, flying under the 11,000-volt cables which are just 20 feet above the ground, when a wing clipped the wire. This is the seventh accident involving a crop-spraying aircraft in the past five years. In 1977 a pilot was killed when his machine plunged to the ground at March. Others occurred at Earith, Keyston and Abbots Ripton. 82 07 01

Bertie Harding and his wife Gladys are retiring after 22 years as keepers at Bottisham lock and river users must now operate it for themselves. The most boats they have put through in one day was 97 on one August Bank Holiday. There have been nasty moments with people falling into the water or injuring themselves jumping from boats. Broken legs have been the most common injury. 82 07 01a

1982 07 05
One of the worst outbreaks of potato blight for many years is threatening a bumper Fenland crop. The Ministry of Agriculture says the disease is rampant on the East Cambridgeshire and West Suffolk border and could wipe out crops if left untreated. Farmers desperately try to counter it with spray. 82 07 05

Cambridge College of Further Education is undergoing rapid expansion on its new Brunswick site. This year more than 1,000 school-levers have applied for places. Under the Government's new training initiative it will offer courses in community care and basic engineering, clerical and science skills with hairdressing and catering to follow. 82 07 05a

1982 07 06
Plans for the conversion of St Andrew the Great church into an old people's day centre have angered parishioners. They include ripping out the old organ, replacing the present altar and covering up the memorial plaques which line the walls and floor of the church, although the memorial to Captain Cook would remain. 'God is being put in the back room with his back to a couple of loos' one worshipper complains. 82 07 06

1982 07 07
A scheme to clean up Bourn Brook could be harmful and a waste of money, claims Barton farmer, Robin Page. It will also upset a conservation scheme to restore trees to the brook bank, introduce orchids to meadowland and bring in speckled-wood butterflies. But Anglian Water says they will ensure its character is retained. 82 07 07

1982 07 08
The recent dull summer weather has cast the nation's ice-cream makers into gloom. But some of the price variations can come as a shock. In Cambridge city centre you can get a range of flavours from 20p a cone but Tesco sell its own label one-litre brick for 39p. There was a time when Neapolitan offered the most exciting flavours around. Now Marks and Spencer offers chocolate chip ice-cream and toffee & almond at £1.89. 82 07 08

Chaotic Drummer Street is a nightmare for passengers and bus drivers during the busy rush hours. Nobody knows where their buses are and if you go to the information offices the queues are so long that by the time you get to the desk the bus will have gone anyway. Premier Travel driver Hedley Hammond said he was five minutes late already and couldn't get round to his bay. Dismal and dilapidated the worn-out bus station just can't cope with the traffic of the 1980s. 82 07 08a & b

1982 07 09
Farmers who pressed for a drainage board to be set up in the Swavesey area have fallen out over the level of rates they should pay for the work. An elaborate drainage scheme was approved which it was claimed would reduce flooding from twice a year to once every decade and pay for itself with increased yields. But farmers on higher land did not want to pay as much as those lower down and the failure to levy rates means the work has been taken over by the Great Ouse River Board. 82 07 09

Another £264,000 is to be spent on improving the banks of Burwell and Reach Lodes as part of a 20-year scheme to prevent flooding. The work was implemented after a long protest campaign to ensure the present system of lodes was preserved. About two miles of bank are involved and a road is being extended to make full use of the clay available nearby. 82 07 09

1982 07 12
The long-awaited footbridge over the Milton bypass has opened to the public. One of the first people to try it out was Ken Humphries, the village's district councillor who has led the campaign. Parents petitioned for the bridge following the death of a boy in 1979 but work was delayed after somebody stole the £10,000 aluminium handrails. 82 07 12

1982 07 16
An Aladdin's cave of curious dusty lots comes under the hammer as former stage props are auctioned off at the old Festival Theatre in Newmarket Road, Cambridge. There's a glorious throne, the prow of a sailing ship and a pair of giant Corinthian columns, most of which have appeared at the Arts Theatre, which owns the building. It is said the Festival has a ghost – an old woman who was brought in to die after being run down by a horse and cart which bolted when delivering scenery. Dame Flora Robson wrote of meeting her. 82 07 16

Ely is wrestling with the problems of the recession which has seen 750 people lose their jobs. The city's economy has been rocked by the shutdown of four of its biggest firms – Borden UK, Lytton Boat Building, Dorman Sprayer and the British Sugar Corporation. It had been hoped that the new Club Mews shopping precinct would be a boon to small traders but they are finding the annual £400 rates too much. However a new Tesco supermarket in Broad Street and a Boots store on the site of the Rex Cinema will bring 100 new jobs. 82 07 16a & b & c

1982 07 19
Work is continuing on the Clifton industrial estate, a joint development between the City Council and Dencora Securities on the site of the former of the Cattle Market. There will be 31 units providing 225 jobs in light industry and warehousing with the first opening shortly. Much emphasis is being placed on a good quality of construction and landscaping to ensure a good working environment. 82 07 19

1982 07 20
Gallyons, a maker and seller of guns and a specialist in fishing tackle, is severing its links with Cambridge after nearly 200 years. They started in Green Street in 1784, moving to Bridge Street in 1865. They are the last firm in East Anglia to make guns and will now have just one shop in Norwich. 82 07 20

The Alma Brewery in Russell Court is reopening as a free house under the control of CAMRA. The pub, which dates back to 1835, was one of the first buildings to be erected in the former Balls Folly Field. It took its name from the Battle of the Alma in the Crimean War. Brewing stopped in 1909 but it continued to be run as a pub until it closed in March. 82 07 20a

1982 07 21
One of the most unusual removal jobs has started in Cambridge. A specialist team from Leeds has been brought in to transport hundreds of plaster casts of statues from Ancient Greece and Rome ranging from a giant statue of Hercules to replicas of the Elgin marbles. They are the pride and joy of the University's Museum of Classical Archaeology which is moving from its old home in Little St Mary's Lane to a purpose-built gallery in the new Classics faculty on the Sidgwick site. 82 07 21
1982 07 22

A survey of egg and tomato sandwiches found that those from Marks and Spencer (55p) had the edge for moisture and taste with Donks of Regent Street top for value at 32p. Cornucopia ran them a close second while Thornhills were biggest value for money, although the bread was too dry. But Travellers Fare from the station buffet were the dearest and least inspiring. They could not rise to an egg and tomato sandwich and it came in a wrapping that was fiddly to open. 82 07 22

Percy North rose at 6.30, made his bed then baked a batch of bread as he started his 100th year. His home is a mini-museum ranging from old lemonade bottles to antique furniture. Hardly a day goes by when he does not sit down with his tape recorder to record some of his memories for the Cambridgeshire Collection. One cassette is of street tradesmen's cries – he can remember 20 of them. 82 07 22a

1982 07 23
Kite tunnel, p12

1982 07 27
Marshalls, p11

1982 07 28
Muck-spreading on fields near Barton has infuriated villagers who say the stench is putting them off their food and making them ill. The treated sewage sludge was delivered during the winter but when workers started spreading it people began complaining. The farmer said it was perfectly safe and there would have been no problem if the wind had not blown towards the village. But the smell is obnoxious and he would not use the material again unless AWA found a way of removing it. 82 07 28

More than 100 years of bookbinding comes to an end when the old established firm of John P. Gray closes down its Green Street premises. The firm was begun in 1847; it established a high reputation for the restoration and repair of ancient books and carried out special commissions for the leading private collectors. Planning permission has been obtained to turn the site into a restaurant and wine bar. 82 07 28a

1982 07 29
The Cambridge Blind Shop in Regent Street is to close, ending a tradition that goes back 50 years. Its original purpose was to provide an outlet for the work of local blind people who relied on basket-making, chair-caning or knitting for an income. Today the same necessity does not really exist and the number of local craftsmen has dwindled, making the shop no longer viable. 82 07 29

1982 07 30
A renewed upsurge of Dutch elm disease is leaving a trail of devastation with Jesus Green suffering most. Other trees on Parker's Piece and Petersfield are showing the yellowing leaves and premature loss of foliage typical of the disease It has been rampant in the past few weeks and it looks as if there will be hardly any elms surviving in Cambridge in two years' time. But a five-year tree-planting scheme is expected to make good the losses. 82 07 30

Whitehall has agreed that the wedges of green open land between Cambridge and Milton should stay open. The Department of the Environment has thrown out plans to build warehouse units between the Northern Bypass and the main interchange of the Cambridge-Ely road. It would be wrong to allow such dense industrial or commercial development. Milton and Cambridge should remain physically separated. 82 07 30a

August 1982 CEN

1982 08 02
They used to call Joan Baez the 'Queen of Folk' and there was something regal about her much-publicised appearance at the Cambridge Folk Festival. Her set included a tribute to Lech Walensa as well as the old favourite – Dylan's "Hard Rain", "Amazing Grace", "Imagine" and "Let It Be", all of them hymns of an almost forgotten generation. 82 08 02

1982 08 05
According to legend St Ives was named after St Ivo, a Persian missionary bishop whose remains were found in 1,000. Doubts have been cast on the authenticity of the relics and deepened when Roman remains were found on the ancient site near Priory House. But now a new excavation has revealed bits of plaster which could only have been used in a villa. So it seems he was simply the owner of a Roman house. 82 08 05

New firms have been springing up in rural Cambridgeshire at an astonishing rate. Napp Laboratories searched for two years before bringing all their British-based operations under one roof in a futuristic £8 million building on Cambridge Science Park. Harcostar picked Huntingdon to make industrial plastics as it was a London overspill centre with housing. In East Cambridgeshire more than 40 per cent of all manufacturing firms are new, employing just over 20 per cent of manufacturing workers. But now industrialists are taking a gloomy view of the area's prospects. 82 08 05a & b

1982 08 06
Keen gardeners at Hildersham are keeping a nightly vigil at their allotments since some of their prize vegetables went missing. While one villager hides among his runner beans another peers from his shed. So far the culprits, who have taken choice onions, potatoes, cauliflowers and carrots, have not been spotted. 82 08 06

Cambridge now houses an extraordinary number of musical instrument makers. In addition to Mark Stevenson and Trevor Beckerleg, makers of harpsichords, and William Johnson, maker of chamber organs, there are many lesser-known names. Charles Hall is another organ builder, Daniel Bangham specialises in clarinets while John Isaacs and Ian Harwood from Ely are making lutes based on original designs from Bologna and Venice. 82 08 06a

1982 08 09
Cambridge planners say no more permanent language schools or secretarial and tutorial colleges should be permitted unless they are specifically for city residents. In the last ten years the number has trebled from 19 to 57 and the number of students has doubled to 15,000. Although they bring in about £13 million each year, are a major industry and create jobs they frequently irritate city residents. 82 08 09

The Cripps Court at Queens' College has received a commendation from the Royal Institute of British Architects. The first part, including 150 study-bedrooms was completed in 1974, new kitchens were added in 1979 and a third phase will include lecture theatre and squash courts. A lot of thought had gone in to the design to ensure it blended in with other buildings dating back to the college's foundation in 1448. 82 08 09a

1982 08 10
Traffic through the centre of Cambridge was brought to a standstill for nearly an hour when an articulated car transporter loaded with two new Cortinas was unable to turn the corner of Jesus Lane into Bridge Street. Despite several attempts at reversing the driver became completely stuck until police removed a traffic sign. The lorry had to reverse over the stump of the sign and crush it in order to get free. 82 08 10

1982 08 11
Cambridge attracts more than its fair share of royals, diplomats and ministers which presents security problems for the police special branch. It would take just a split second for somebody to jump out and seriously injure a member of the royal family so every eventuality needs to be covered. When the wife of one visiting VIP got out of the car – and then jumped back inside, the security men rushed forward thinking something was wrong. But they soon realised she had 'fallen foul of a broken piece of elastic'. 82 08 11

1982 08 13
Paine's Brewery at St Neots, established in 1831, has been bought by a consortium of businessmen. The new company will be known as James Paine Brewery and be responsible for 20 tied houses. Paine plc which deals mainly in milling and malt extract, retains the ownership of the Cross Keys at St Neots, the Caxton Gibbet pub and the Brampton Motel. 82 08 13

Saffron Walden swimming pool has been closed for good because of fears that it could cave in. The 1910 baths were built over the 200-year-old Slade culvert which runs underneath the town centre from Abbey Lane to Hill Street. There is not much material between the bottom of the pool and the top of the culvert which has been flattened by the pressure above and is on the verge of collapse. It is unfortunate that closure has come during high summer, but the council cannot take any risks. 82 08 13a

1982 08 16
Greens of Soham new giant cold stores – 82 08 16

1982 08 18
Government plans for the route of the A1-M1 link road still show the entire Cambridgeshire section as a single carriageway. The news has horrified councillors who have been fighting for the road to be dual throughout. It has been designated as a Euro-route and will be the only single carriageway in the whole 400 miles between Birmingham and Dusseldorf. But the existing A604 will be widened with special by-passes at Ellington and Bythorn. 82 08 18

For the past 10 years the future of the church of St Andrew the Great has been in doubt. The small congregation have fought plans to turn it into shops or a laboratory. Newmarket millionaire David Robinson had established a trust so it could be turned into a day centre, but he withdrew his offer in July. Now the Diocese has started the process of declaring it redundant. 82 08 18a

After 75 years Tressilian Nicholas is as much a monument at Trinity College as the stone figures over the gothic gate. He first came up in 1907 and apart from the rude interruptions of the first world war he has been there ever since. As a senior fellow he often has to take the head of the table in hall and say the Latin grace and only then does his slight deafness become a bother. Now the man who once controlled the great wealth of Trinity celebrated his 94th birthday with a small dinner party in his rooms. 82 08 18b

1982 08 19
School uniforms are a major expense for most families. Tesco offers a set of school clothes for a boy for £13.12, at Eaden Lilley it costs £14.99. But you still need to buy a Snorkel coat for £10.99 or a girl's 'duvet' cost for £14.00. However a Perse School blazer made especially by a local tailor is £39.50 and with a pullover, shirt, trousers and scarf from Joshua Taylor the cost comes to £68.40. Add a duffle coat and sports equipment and the total would be over £117. 82 08 19 & a

1982 08 20
A Willingham company, MPC Electronics, has hit the jackpot with a new concept in drumming. The drummer taps out the sound with his fingers on touch-sensitive pads giving a limitless range of rhythms. They took it to the world's largest fair in Atlanta, Georgia and have now captured orders worth £250,000 world-wide. 82 08 20

1982 08 21
British Rail's controversial plans to install automatic half-barriers at Cherry Hinton level crossing have been rejected. It marks a victory for the large numbers of protestors who considered they would be dangerous so close to two primary schools. Had they been put in residents were prepared to stand on the lines and stop trains. 82 08 21

1982 08 24
W. Thompson and Son, the Fitzroy Street furniture firm, is closing after 150 years' trading in Cambridge. It started as a cabinet makers in Willow Place in 1832 and a fully-fledged furniture makers and sellers had been established by 1881. They had an undertakers' business for years, as well as selling china wholesale. But Peter Thompson says their style of business was becoming outdated: customers were now more conscious of price than quality with big warehouses changing the way furniture is sold. 82 08 24

1982 08 25
The final phase of the Coral Park development in Coldham's Lane is now complete. Work began in December 1973 with the demolition of a 160-ft high chimney which had been part of the Cambridge landscape for more than a century. The first warehouse was let to E. Laxton, a national cash and carry operation, and other tenants include W.H. Smith (Wholesale), Pye Telecommunications and Linfood. 82 08 25

1982 08 26
Preservationists have won a long fight to stop the old St Paul's School buildings in Russell Street from being demolished. They are the oldest primary school buildings in Cambridge, designed by Ambrose Poynter, a pupil of the great Regency architect, John Nash. They have not been used since the new school was opened a year ago. 82 08 26

Clare, p5

1982 08 27
City councillors want a full-scale transport complex to give quick interchange for rail and bus passengers on long distance and local services to be sited at the railway station. There is plenty of parking with toilet and refreshment facilities already on hand. The County Council's controversial plans to spend £400,000 on rebuilding Drummer Street bus station would still leave it a cramped site with poor access. 82 08 27

George and Joyce Smalley are retiring from the village bakers at Chippenham after more than 40 years. The business has been in their family for nearly 100 years. The brick-built oven behind the shop was constructed for Mr Smalley's father. As well as bread and cakes cooked in the traditional way they have a thriving trade supplying rolls to cafes and pubs and passing lorry drivers often call in. But their shop and baking methods will be carried on under new owners and the name retained. 82 08 27a

Snuff, p7

1982 08 31
Cambridge heaved a sigh of relief at the weekend as the 4,000-strong 'invasion' by Chelsea football fans passed off in relative peace. There were 51 arrests and one man needed 27 stitches for a stab wound. But as the last 'soccer special' pulled out of the railway station police were congratulating themselves at preventing a repeat of the violence that flared after the club's previous clash at the Abbey Stadium when fans went on the rampage. Chelsea won 1-0. 82 08 31 & 31aa

Mepal welcome a group of 200 airmen who flew bombers for the 75th (New Zealand) Squadron when they packed into the village for three days of reminiscence. A reunion dance was held in a marquee on the playing field where the New Zealand High Commissioner gave a fluent address in Maori. Clement Freud, MP, had a stuffed kiwi above the front door of his house, the RAF Memorial Flight flew in and there was a display of parachuting. 82 08 31b

September 1982 CEN

1982 09 01
A St Neots firm's publicity gimmick in the shape of a giant silver balloon did its job too well – it became a UFO soaring over three counties. The runaway 12ft balloon broke free from its moorings at the Hi-Sell Direct furniture warehouse at Gamlingay and floated about 10 foot above the ground until it was caught by a farmer and tied to the roof of a police car. 82 09 01

The Fenland Country Fair held at Swaffham Prior for the first time was so successful that it may become an annual event. It was the brainchild of Malcolm Hall and raised £2,000 to help pay for the building of a new youth centre. About 3,000 people watched lurcher racing, 120 local crackshots took part in a clayshoot, there was a sheep shearing demonstration and 50 ferrets ran in and out of drainpipes in a special tent. 82 09 01

Duxford church, p5

1982 09 02
If you want to buy a microlight aircraft in Cambridgeshire there is only one place you should go – Taurus Aviation of Haddenham. They are agents for Puma aircraft with prices ranging from £2,317 for a single-seater to £3,230 for a two-seater model. A trial flight, just to see if you like the sensation, will cost £11.50 and dual instruction is £23 an hour. It seems a lot of money, but middle-aged people find it thrilling. 82 09 02

1982 09 03
About 100 Prickwillow villagers waving banners and singing protest songs marched on the village primary school as the latest stage in the campaign to save it from being closed. The march was organised to mark the first day back at school for the village children – who during the long summer holidays learned Cambridgeshire County Council had started the formal consultation process for closing down the school. Pupils would have to travel to schools in Ely. Protesters marched from Old Bank to the school gates led by a tractor and trailer carrying a replica of the 120-year-old school.
In the playground one of the protest organisers, Mr Derek Andrews, read letters from Isle of Ely MP, Mr Clement Freud and local county councillor, Mr Dennis Pye. The chairman of the school governors, Canon Neil Munt, said the parochial church council had unanimously passed a resolution deploring the closure plan. "We stand shoulder to shoulder with you all in our determination to stop the closure of the school", he said. The parents are unhappy about letting children of four or five years old go four miles to Ely, which would make their school day longer. One of the most determined people on the march was one of the oldest, 84-year-old Mrs Lily Norman of Kingdon Avenue, who first went to the village school when she was nine. She said firmly: "We are not going to let it close". 82 09 03

1982 09 08
A whooping cough epidemic is raging in Cambridgeshire with reported cases trebling in recent weeks. In the first six months there were 270 cases – last year it was only 47. The sudden surge was most notable in July when 66 were reported. Mothers are being urged to check with their family doctors for immunisation. 82 09 08

Frank Holland Motors was formed 25 years ago with the franchise for Hillman and Sunbeam cars, then in 1966 they obtained the distributorship for Simca on their present site at Mill Road. Four years later Frank Holland took over a second garage in Coldham's Lane trading as F.H. Motors and selling Datsuns. They have now introduced the Holland Hyperwash – a new-style car wash centre which can handle 60 cars an hour. 82 09 08a

1982 09 09
An ancient landmark is to disappear at Grantchester now that a diseased oak in the corner of the churchyard is to be felled. But few tears will be shed: it spoils the view of the church, its leaves have blocked gutters and the roots have undermined the wall. The church also needs to repair the tower and spire and complete the restoration of the medieval windows. 82 09 09

1982 09 13
The new University of the Third Age held its first enrolment day. Orderly queues of senior citizens studied the long list of courses from gardening to desert island aesthetics, medieval history or elementary French. The chairman, Dr Peter Laslett was delighted: "It shows that retired people still want to learn and take an active part in life". 82 09 13

The Old Palace in Kneesworth Street, Royston, once part of a Hunting Lodge for King James I, is a grade one listed building. It belongs to the Leete Charity which is unable to meet £100,000 repair costs. Now it has applied for permission for change of use from residential to offices and may sell the property to people who can restore and maintain it. 82 09 13a

1982 09 14
Some say it's a puma, others a panther and possibly even a cheetah – but whatever it is, a big cat has been causing quite a stir around Cottenham. The cat, bigger than a Labrador, has been seen three times, most recently by Mrs Veronica Bailey who looked up from the sugar beet field where she was working to see it staring at her from ten yards away. Robert Norman of Turk's Head Farm, Smithy Fen saw one run into a field of cattle – it was sandy colour with great big paws - and Reginald and Dora Savidge saw one in their car headlights. 82 09 14

1982 09 15
A pub, a row of shops and six acres of office buildings in Castle Hill and Gloucester Street may be sold by Cambridgeshire County Council. They want reduce the sprawling Shire Hall site and abandon the ramshackle array of offices at the rear of the main complex. They are expensive to maintain and unpopular with staff who work in them. Discussions with developers will take place soon. 82 09 15

The 1,500 acre Babraham estate, owned by the family of the late Sir Robert Adeane, has been sold for well over £3 million. It includes farmland, 11 cottages and a 137-acre shoot. But there was no main residence – Babraham Hall and 400 acres were sold to the Agricultural Research Council in 1948. 82 09 15

1982 09 16
Cambridge isn't an easy place for a couple to buy a house for the first time. The average purchase price is around £22,000 which means finding a deposit of £2,500 and with mortgage interest rates of 12 per cent over 25 years would cost £148.82 a month after tax relief. Currently a modernised Victorian house in Newmarket Road is on sale for £22,250 and a two-bedroomed, centrally-heated house in Stanley Road costs £21,500. 82 09 16 & a

1982 09 18
Two redundant chapels are presently on the market. The Old Chapel on Barrington green has been converted into a modern open-plan home featuring an interior garden with fishpond and is priced at £90,000. By contrast St Nicholas at Barway costs £45,000. It dates back to the 14th century and retains many original features: the font stands in the hallway with the wooden pulpit in the lounge. 82 09 18a

The six-acre county council temporary office site off Castle Street and Gloucester Street may become a city council housing and industrial estate. Council officials will meet to see if a deal between the two authorities is possible. Housing and job creation have been given top priority by the City, but the county want the best financial deal they can get. 82 09 18

1982 09 22
Millions of trade unionists took part in the TUC's Day of Action in support of the health workers' pay claim. In Cambridge about 1,000 people joined a march through the city centre with representatives from health workers, uniformed firemen, NALGO, Trades Union and the city Labour Party. It was the biggest demonstration seen in the city for years. 82 09 22

1982 09 24
More than 100 people attended a party given by the estate agents, Gray Cook and Partners, to celebrate the 50th anniversary of Mr Percy Charles ('Bill') Gray with the firm founded by his father. He has been instrumental in innumerable other Cambridge property deals and was the man who actually bought the site of Churchill College. 82 09 24

Military manoeuvres 1912, airships – feature – 82 09 24a # c.45.4
Chettisham, p11

1982 09 28
Jack Lowe, the Cambridge man who founded a chain of do-it-yourself shops, has died. He learned his trade as a plumber with the building firm of William Saint which collapsed in the Great Depression and set up his own plumbing business in 1936. He opened a tool shop in Mill Road in the late 1940s and eventually established one of the first D-I-Y shops in the city. 82 09 28

Thomas Hawksley built gas works in Cambridge – feature – 82 09 28a

1982 09 30
A row has blown up over South Cambridgeshire District Council's 'foolhardy' scheme to spend £2.6 million on new offices in Cambridge. Histon Labour Party says there can be no justification for office building while the council skimps on essential public services. Councillor Robin Page has also described the plans as 'the silliest scheme I have ever heard of'. But South Cambs' Chairman says it would increase efficiency by having their staff on one site in Hills Road. 82 09 30

Milton Hall, near Cambridge, is up for sale with a price of about £500,000. Built in 1772 it was used as a temporary home for Basque children during the Spanish Civil War; later troops were billeted there before it was bought by Eastern Electricity in 1948 as their headquarters. Planners want to see it used as hotel, school, private hospital or offices. 82 09 30a

The chapel bell at St John's College has been tolled by hand since the 17th century. But now the college porters will no longer have to climb the 30 steps in the gatehouse at six o'clock every day, and twice on Sundays, to summon the congregation to prayer. Engineers have installed an electronic control unit so the bells can ring out at the touch of a switch. Bob Fuller, the head porter, said "I have just celebrated 30 years of working at the college and this is the best present." 82 09 30b

October 1982 CEN

1982 10 01
Fifty years ago a trip to London by coach did not take much longer that it does today. Gordon Carter, aged 72, who used to drive for Varsity coaches, remembers that it took about two and a half hours. It was a journey he did three times a day: "We would just have time for a cup of tea and then start off again". It cost seven shillings (35p) day return until a customer battle with the opposition, Browns based in Occupation Road, drove the fare down to half-a-crown (12p). 82 10 01

1982 10 02
Electronics wizard Clive Sinclair unveiled his new Cambridge headquarters. The building is based on a soft-drinks works with a futuristic new wing added. Sunlight coming through the glass roof of the new wing and water from a spring under the original building will be used to control air temperatures. Telephone and security systems will be heavily computerised. The reception area includes the largest polished bronze sculpture in the work by Elaine Blumenfeld who lives in Grantchester. 82 10 02

1982 10 04

More than 70 members of the Gorsuch family travelled to Wilburton to trace their routes. They were particularly interested in Dr John Gorsuch who died in mysterious circumstances and was buried in the village. He was Rector of Walkern, near Stevenage, but was a Royalist and fled at the outbreak of the Civil War. Nobody knows how he got to Wilburton where he was suffocated to death in a haystack in 1648. 82 10 04

Children from St Matthew's Primary School joined a raincoated march protesting against the proposed East Road dual carriageway which would take part of their playground. They stopped outside the Grafton Information Centre, which has supported the County Council's plans, for some orchestrated slogan shouting. About 250 marchers gathered at Parker's Piece expressing concern about increased noise, lead pollution and the danger to children posed by the 'road to nowhere'. 82 10 04a

1982 10 05
Eaton Socon cricket pavilion was burnt to the ground when a mystery blaze ripped through the wooden building, causing thousands of pounds worth of damage. Bar, tables and the lavatories and showers which had just been completed were destroyed. The club secretary said "We've lost everything – the only thing left is a cricket bat we are raffling at the annual dinner". 82 10 05

Newly-modernised almshouses in King Street were re-opened by Baroness David. They were built in 1880 to replace the original houses dating back to 1647 which had decayed beyond repair. The new houses for single retired women have modern kitchens, bathrooms and central heating. Already they have six tenants. 82 10 05a

1982 10 07
There are several types of student seeking landladies. If you are prepared to cook an evening meal for a language student – and all meals at weekend – then the Davis School would pay £38 a week. CCAT students who just want a room pay £17 a week, without heating. The greatest shortage is in independent provision for postgraduates. The ideal is a terraced house housing three and with shared kitchen. They would pay about £18 rent each and meet their own heating and hot water bills. 82 10 07

1982 10 08
Widnall negatives, p8

1982 10 09
The curator of Saffron Walden Museum, Len Pole, who has supervised the town's £300,000 collection of treasures since 1974, has been elected a Fellow of the Museums Association for service beyond the workaday duties of a curator. It boosts the status of the museum which was founded in 1834. 82 10 09

1982 10 11
More land in southern Cambridgeshire is being turned over to cereals as farmers cut back on sugar beet and potatoes and go for the latest boom crop, oilseed rape. Winter wheat remains the most widely-grown cereal but farmers are using various varieties to reduce the impact of disease. More are also getting rid of surplus straw by burning, a survey shows. 82 10 11

1982 10 12
Spike Milligan's show at the Arts Theatre started slowly but he soon won people over with his magnetic personality and humour. There was goonish fun and clowning, though some of the material was frankly old. Dressed in green cords and a waterproof parka he held centre stage along with a life-sized India-rubber model of Mrs Thatcher on which he occasionally vented his indignation. Aged 64 he can draw a large audience – many of them young – to an entertainment that was infectious, happy and fun. 82 10 12

Carters, the little shoe shop with a big reputation, has been in Botolph Lane since it was opened in 1935 as 'Speedy Show Repairs' with Mr G.R. Carter working in the shop window. It still retains a repair business but now the accent is very much on personal service with shoes from small manufacturers and a unique size and fitting service. 82 10 12a

1982 10 14
The Papworth Hospital transplant programme, which was due to run out of cash by the end of the year, has been rescued by a special Government grant. This, given at a time of severe cash cuts in the health service, reflects the importance attached to the programme by DHSS officials. Since January it has been paid for by a £300,000 gift from Newmarket millionaire, David Robinson. 82 10 14

One of Cambridge's most successful rebuilding schemes, Bridge House in Bridge Street, has received a top conservation award. The project involved rebuilding and refurbishing 16th century buildings which had fallen into a sad state of decay by 1970 – Tudor houses no longer fit to live in and derelict workshops. It was judged to be an outstanding piece of restoration work: the frontage was preserved and behind it was built a new office-block which can hardly be seen from the street. 82 10 14a

1982 10 15
In the basement of Shire Hall is an 'emergency planning room' packed with maps, telephones and radio sets. It has windows, thickish walls and a large conference table but would offer virtually no protection from a direct nuclear hit. It is designed to act as a communications network liaising with the emergency services, the water authority, railways and so on during any emergency from floods in Wisbech to the sudden cutting of the county's gas supplies. 82 10 15 & a

1982 10 18
1980s dangerous epoch, Foot tells city rally – 82 10 18

1982 10 19
Saffron Walden faith healing – House of Spirits – 82 10 19

1982 10 20
Cambridge has the distinction of being the home of more Nobel prizewinners than any other city in the world. They include Prof Sir James Meade, who won his prize in 1977 for economics, Dr Frederick Sanger, Anthony Hewish, Professor of Radio Astronomy and the Astronomer Royal, Sir Martin Ryle who won in 1984. Prof Brian Josephson was one of the youngest-ever winners; he was just 33 when he won the 1973 Prize for physics. 82 10 20

1982 10 23
Council considers demolition of defective homes – Airey houses, East Cambs – 82 10 23

1982 10 25
Eaton Socon strong demand for industrial units – 82 10 25 & a

1982 10 26
Prince Charles visits USAF Mildenhall – 82 10 26

1982 10 27
Wine, p12

1982 10 28
The 100-year-old Beaconsfield Club was closed following complaints of loud music and rowdiness by members leaving the premises in Gwydir Street and problems with skinheads. Neighbours claimed there was disorderly behaviour, vomit in the streets and fighting. The management said there had been a purge and it was now run in a proper manner. Local residents had changed over the years from working class to professional people who were trying to force the club to close. 82 10 28

Race against floods, Rampton – Cottenham lode – 82 10 28a

1982 10 30
West Wratting school converted to house – 82 10 30 & a

November 1982 CEN

1982 11 03
Cambridge United beat Wolves – 82 11 03

1982 11 04
Newnham is a unique and quite exceptional area of Cambridge, and planners intend to keep it that way. Its 'up-market' aspect is reflected in property prices. A 10-bedroomed house at 5 Cranmer Road recently sold for £145,000 while £38,000 buys a three-bedroomed house in Owlstone Road. Properties in Gough Way fetch about £65,000, Grange Road £59,000 and Hardwick Street £39,500. A flat at Cherwell Court, Barton Road is £38,000 for a 99-year lease while one in Westberry Court is £60,000 82 11 04

1982 11 08
Godmanchester pill box destroyed in explosion – 82 11 08
Zena opens her kitchen – of Black Bull, Balsham – 82 11 08a

1982 11 10
"Honey for Tea" album: compilation of 12 different bands with Cambridge connections – The Rapiers, Hondo, Sindy and the Action Men, Su Lyn Band, the Amyl Dukes, The Lonely, The Great Divide, Your Dinner, Pure Thought, The Agents, Seven Fifty-Four and The Innocent Bystanders – 82 11 10

1982 11 11
Dullingham school nature trail – 82 11 11
Alconbury House, Georgian building, for sale – 82 11 11a
Jim'll fix it, p11

1982 11 12
Armistice – Great War veterans Tiny Joyce & Chrles Chalkey, p9

1982 11 13
Barway church converted into home, p10

1982 11 13
St Ives industry, p8

1982 11 16
Unicorn, Cherry Hinton reopened after redecoration, p10
Torch computers research and development centre, Abberley House, Gt Shelford, p16

1982 11 17
School dinner at Bottisham Village College, p10

1982 11 18
Trumpington houses, p9
Bluntisham House, home of Dorothy L. Sayers, for sale, p23

1982 11 19

Gordon Beck, p7
Coton dovecote derelict, p 12

1982 11 24
A1-M1 Link road proposed route, p9
Riverside Jazz Band founded 1957, history, p15
Papworth, p14

1982 11 25
March-spalding rail last day of operation, p8
Unicorn, Trumpington – anger over plans to turn local into 'flashy restaurant' , p10
Ridgeons, p16

1982 11 26
Haverhill church bans videos of wedding cremonies, p1
Architecture awards, p12
Bus condustress Gladys Hughes retires after 41 years, p13

1982 11 27
Larkinson, p2
Hemingford Abbbots old school house, p12

1982 11 29
At the Tickell Arms, Whittlesford, customers wearing T-shirts are liable to be asked to leave and anyone with untidy hair told to comb it or go. The owner, Mr Joseph Hollick de la Taste Tickell, who is also Lord of the Manor, generates a vivid style and atmosphere which makes it a memorable pub, crowded with Cambridge University people. But if they park their cars wrongly they can expect a dressing-down from the landlord. 82 11 29

1982 11 30
Cambridge innovator Clive Sinclair is using well water to help heat his new headquarters building in Willis Road. Instead of cold tap water, the boiler uses water from a deep borehole which has already been pre-warmed, free of charge, with the heat from the centre of the earth. It is the first installation of its type in the country. Looking after the system is a Sinclair ZX81 computer. 82 11 30

December 1982

1982 12 01
Elsworth is an appealing blend of white thatched cottages and limited modern development. It has a school, two shops, a garage, church and two public houses. Now Elsworth Manor has been converted into four self-contained wings priced between £49,500 and £59,000. Lordship Cottage, an attractive six-bedroomed thatched building, recently modernised, is on the market for £115,000 as is Browns Farmhouse (£69,950) and a modern detached house, 46 Boxworth Road for £68,000. 82 12 01

1982 12 03
Free Press, p23

1982 12 04
A converted dovecote at Guilden Morden is on the market for £40,000. They were once used by the Lord of the Manor to provide a winter meat supply but began to fall out of use in the 19th century when farmers started keeping animals alive during winter. Those built after 1810 were for decoration or simply status symbols. One of the main features was the lantern area at the top which used to provide access for the birds. Here it has been retained and glazed in to help with ventilation in summer. 82 12 04

1982 12 06
The Youth Hostels' Association has closed down its operations at Houghton Mill after 42 years. They had hoped to renovate the 12th-century structure and provide a museum. The YHA have already invested £50,000 in buying the adjoining Miller's House for the National Trust, but the Trust has refused to support the project. Now it is feared the building may become derelict. 82 12 06

1982 12 07
Cambridge is not a very sexy city and fears that it could suffer from the epidemic of sexually-transmitted disease that is sweeping the other parts of the country have little foundation in reality, says a Doctor who runs the genito-urinary clinic at Addenbrooke's. Traditional sex diseases like syphilis and gonorrhoea are now rare and most patients now have a 'new' disease called herpes for which there is at present no cure. But a new drug is being tested. 82 12 07

1982 12 08
Romany gypsy – Imbert – 82 12 08

1982 12 09
Accommodation for computer-based companies in Cambridge is at a premium. Several firms are run from private houses with others based around King's Parade and Jesus Lane, where buildings are available and rents favourable. Now a technology square is planned for land at the rear of Shire Hall similar to Trinity College's Science Park but at smaller rents. There might be dual-purpose buildings for start-up companies providing both a home and an office to work in. 82 12 09

1982 12 10
Scientists at the University Microcircuit Engineering Laboratory, set-up among the high-tech industries on the Science Park, are building intricate electronic components which are so small that even microscopes are hard-pushed to reveal their structure – 200 of them could be placed along a human hair. Such shrinking chips reduce power consumption, increase performance and dramatically cut costs. They have already found commercial use in industry. 82 12 10

1982 12 11
The peace people at Lakenheath are celebrating the arrival of the camp's first baby. She was born to 26-year-old Louise 'Fab', one of the anti-nuclear protestors who have been staging a vigil near the American base since May. They all use the surname 'Fab', sort for Families Against the Bomb. While fighter bombers screamed overhead her husband Ted delivered the baby in their cramped caravan on an isolated rubbish tip. By the time the midwife arrived it was all over. Louise already has three other children at the camp. 82 12 11

1982 12 16
A gentle coffee-coloured steer made it a happy day for Dick Underwood of Godmanchester at the Cambridge Christmas livestock show at the Cattle Market. The pig championship went to Mr F. Ketteridge of Ashdon, with the reserve title going to Littleton House School, Girton. In the sheep section T. Wakefield of Caxton beat the Boxworth Farming Company for the title. 82 12 16

Shepreth County Primary School has joined the growing list of those which have been hit by falling rolls and forced to close. When terms ends so will 130 years of primary education with the 26 pupils being transferred to Barrington and Meldreth. It was an old school and needed modernisation so it was better to send them to more modern, better-equipped schools, the County said. But parents claim it is just to save money. Eight other schools have closed since last December. 82 12 16a

Grantchester School closed last July and the buildings were handed over to the diocese. Now they are to be sold by auction together with the recreation area and sports field which goes with it and the swimming pool which parents helped to finance and build. The new owners will inherit the girls and boys toilets and two enormous classrooms. The master's house nearby will also be sold. 82 12 16b

1982 12 20
Helions Bumpstead church bells have been re-dedicated by the Bishop. They all needed new fittings and retuning but one of the six, dating from 1641, was cracked. Mr & Mrs Ramsey of Board Barn Farm offered to replace it and also donated two new treble bells. Now they chime out sweetly. 82 12 20

David Roberts was an architect who contributed to the actual fabric of Cambridge. He has left the city crammed with his unobtrusive and modern buildings. Hundreds of undergraduates sleep, eat and study in the bedsit blocks, refectories and libraries he designed. He also converted St Michael's Court at Caius into sleek, street-level shops. His commissions included the X-ray department at old Addenbrooke's Hospital, an old people's centre, St Bede's School and three pubs. 82 12 20a

Prince Regent, Lt Shelford, reopened – 82 12 20b

1982 12 21
Horseheath villagers will have their quietest Christmas for many years, thanks to the new by-pass. It will divert thousands of cars and heavy lorries which previously thundered along the narrow, winding main street. "It's so quiet now especially at night that it's almost as though it's snowing. It's also nice to walk through the village without getting splattered with mud", said Mrs Nell Clarke, who has been campaigning for the road for years. 82 12 21

The troubled, state-owned Land Settlement Association, set up 50 years ago to provide rural smallholdings for out-of-work miners and other industrial workers is to be axed from next April. The estates at Chawston near St Neots, Potton, Fen Drayton and Abington will go out of business. The office staff will be made redundant and tenant growers will have to fend for themselves. 82 12 22 & a

1982 12 23
Whenever retired railwayman Bill Last gives a talk on the great love of his life he calls it 'Steam in my Blood'. In 1932 he was employed as an apprentice fitter at Cambridge railway station; it was the beginning of a career which saw the end of steam, the coming of diesel and finally the much-heralded onset of electrification. Now a new book, "55 years of East Anglian Steam", has been dedicated to him. 82 12 22b

1982 12 29
A leading trade union official, Andrew Murden, was killed in the early hours of Christmas Day while cycling near his home at Conington. A stalwart member of the Labour Party, he worked very hard for the benefit of his fellow union members. City Councillor Peter Wright praised him as a very shrewd negotiator and a fair person who could always see the other person's side. 82 12 29a

Radwinter Licensee Mrs Do Hinchcliffe came a cropper when she competed in the bed race which has been run from the Village Tavern for the past 16 years. Her bed crashed and fell apart, but the team went complete the course with just the mattress and headboard. The race was won by the youth club team of Micky Baxter, Andrew Coote, Mark Halls and Julie Mercer. Their names will be the first to be inscribed on a shield which will be kept in the pub. 82 12 29

Frederick Molyneux is retiring from Trinity College after 45 years, the last seven as Head Chef. Things have changed a lot since he started; most students are now on grants and the catering has to suit all pockets whereas before the war most of them came from wealthier backgrounds. Attitudes have changed too: Fellows of the college would hardly speak to the catering staff at one time, but now the atmosphere is much friendlier. 82 12 29b

Lion Yard, p8

1982 12 30
Premier Travel, p12

1982 12 31
Cambridge United, Joe Bugner and Mildenhall speedway all face tough tests in 1983. At the Abbey Stadium United are struggling to protect their Second Division status with the lowest home attendance and the worst away record in the Football League. Joe Bugner left St Ives in a failed attempt to swap his boxing gloves for the greasepaint in Hollywood. Now the big man is back with a couple of knockout victories. Meanwhile the Fen Tigers have built a stadium, won the championship and now want to bring world stars to West Row. 82 12 31

Please make what use of this you may. Kindly remember where it came from – www.mikepetty.org.uk

1983 Cambridge Evening News

I have copies of these articles

January 1983 CEN

1983 01 04
The New Year came in with a blaze of light in Burwell and Saffron Walden where 20 ft beacons were lit to mark the start of the Boys' Brigade centenary year. They were part of a chain of 150 throughout the country. At Walden there was a torchlight procession to the beacon built on the Anglo-American playing field while 70 people joined in celebrations on land at Swaffham Road, Burwell. 83 01 04a

The BBC has been criticised for charging almost £2,000 for recordings of two "It's a Knockout" programmes showing Ely winning the European championships 10 years ago. The team wanted tapes to be kept in the city as a permanent memorial, but they are too expensive. The only other hope is that someone might have had the equipment to record the programmes though video recorders were few and far between in those days. 83 01 04

Boys Brigade centenary year celebrations – 83 01 04a

1983 01 06
Scouts and Guides at Histon and Impington have a new headquarters in the grounds of Impington Hall thanks to a hard-working band of volunteers. In just three days they managed to erect their new building. A former storage hut at Addenbrooke's Hospital, it had been dismantled and stored until the go-ahead was given for its erection. Scout leader Ian Ross and foreman Peter Collins celebrated with a beer. 83 01 06

When Bessie Thurbon was born at the house in Sturton Street that is still her home, there was no electricity, bathroom or hot running water. And 76 years later, there still isn't. She is one of a handful of people in Cambridge whose homes are still lit by gas – but only in her sitting and living rooms plus one bedroom upstairs. The other rooms in the house are totally unlit. When they first started installing electricity in houses before the war her mother didn't want it. And Bessie has never got around to it. 83 01 06a

1983 01 07
A major disaster was averted on the front doorsteps of cottages at Stretham when a gas tanker loaded with propane was involved in a head-on collision with a sugar-beet lorry. Firemen, police, ambulancemen and the flying doctor service mounted a large-scale emergency operation to rescue the driver who was trapped in his cab. There have been several accidents at this bend on the Wicken Road. 83 01 07

1983 01 08
It could be two years before admission are back to normal at Addenbrooke's Hospital after the dramatic increase in the waiting list during the health workers' dispute. They were involved in 60 days of industrial action before a pay settlement was reached. The hospital has also been hit by a high level of illness among the nursing staff with a number of wards closed over the Christmas period. 83 01 08

Planners rejected a development of 35 houses and 42 flats on part of Magdalene College playing fields at the rear of houses along Arbury Road. A bungalow would have been demolished to make an entrance. But this was the narrowest point of the road where there was already a problem. It would be criminal to put any more traffic down there and create extra danger for children walking to Manor school. It would also overload the sewers. 83 01 08a

1983 01 10
A terraced house in Bateson Street was destroyed following a massive gas explosion in a kitchen at the back of the house which blew out walls and windows. The occupier fled with his back in flames. Neighbours said they had smelled gas and a service pipe to the meter inside the premises was found to have been cut through. Council workmen demolished part of the house to make it safe. 83 01 10

1983 01 12
Midsummer Fair, p7

1983 01 13
Cambridge was the first place to provide a science park. Now the County Council propose to establish a technology village on the Shire Hall redevelopment site. The novel scheme would provide both houses and workshops in an attempt to create a 21st-century high technology community. It would have offices, shops, a pub and recreational facilities. Secretaries and photocopiers could be shared. 83 01 13

When Januarys, the Cambridge estate agent, described Croft Cottage at Boxworth Road, Swavesey as 'the worst-maintained house in Cambridge' you can be sure it must be bad. Damp and dry rot are but minor problems in this detached Victorian house which has stood empty for three years. There is no kitchen or bathroom, the living room floor has been removed and the lavatory is down the garden. But potential buyers have been flocking to buy it for around £10,000. 83 01 13a

1983 01 14
British Rail has decided to drop its Ely-based East Anglian motorail service which allows holidaymakers to travel to Scotland or the West Country with their cars and avoid a long slog by motorway. The service has run from Ely since1979 with two or three trains each way per week. But last year it dwindled to a single train to Stirling on Tuesdays. 83 01 14

1983 01 15
Strethall, near Saffron Walden, is the tiniest parish in England with less than two dozen residents. It has no through road, pub or shop but can boast several listed buildings and a fine 14th-century church. But nearly everybody on the electoral toll attends the parish meeting and oppose plans to incorporate it into the larger parish of Littlebury. 83 01 15

1983 01 18
Prince Edward is coming to Cambridge University to study archaeology and anthropology. The 18-year-old will be a student at Jesus College but will not be getting any red carpet treatment. The news has brought protests from students: 100 signed a petition complaining that his A-Level GCE grades were not good enough to get him a place. 83 01 18

1983 01 19
A former baby wear factory tucked out of sight behind the Great Northern Hotel is to be the home of an ambitious new project to help women break into the new technology jobs market. The Cambridge Women's Resources Centre will start computer courses taught by women with crèche and child-care facilities. Eventually they want to offer lessons n carpentry, trade unions and the law. 83 01 19

1983 01 21
Railway stations at Cambridge, Ely, Newmarket, Audley End, Stansted and Royston could be closed if a Government plan is accepted. Even the electrified Hitchin to Royston line would be abandoned, leaving only the London to Norwich line in East Anglia. Bus services would be provided instead. By cutting BR to the prime Inter-City routes it would be possible to produce an annual profit of £34 million for a 'commercially viable railway'. 83 01 20

A bonfire night prank by three Huntingdon teenagers misfired when their home-made bomb blew up a wartime pill box. They used their classroom knowledge to build the bomb using household ingredients, a gas lighter and a watch as a timing device. They thought it would illuminate the inside of the pill box for a pretty bonfire night display. Instead it ripped apart the 12ft-square brick and concrete structure with walls two feet thick. 83 01 20a

Texas Homecare finds that Sunday is its second busiest day of the week and the Co-op's Beehive Garden Centre does 40% of its business that day. But all they can legally sell are cut flowers, not the pots they are in. Cambridge Council enforces the Sunday Trading law but South Cambs has indicated it will not act against the Garden Centres just outside the city boundary. Now customers have been canvassed with 682 in favour of opening and just 50 against. 83 01 20b

Sunday Trading laws survey – 83 01 21c

1983 01 22
Barrington, p10

1983 01 24
A small spinney in Little Eversden which was contaminated with lethal gas at the end of the Second World War is now for sale. Marsh Spinney was used as a mustard gas munitions store but when it was being removed in 1949 it was discovered there had been some leakage from a container. The ground was treated with a special bleach to kill the gas. Although the MoD is confident there is no danger it has written a special proviso into the deeds saying that if any purchaser wanted to excavate deeper than nine feet the ministry must be consulted. 83 01 24

1983 01 25
'Cinderella services' – the old, mentally handicapped and mentally ill - are to be boosted following a major change in health care priorities. Wards and clinics at Fulbourn and Ida Darwin Hospitals are to be given a face-lift and the new Hinchingbrooke Hospital reorganised to cope with increased numbers of elderly mentally-ill patients. Chesterton, Brookfields and Ely Tower Hospital will also benefit and Newmarket will get new sanitary facilities. 83 01 25

A huddle of converted school buildings off Pound Hill has just fetched the highest price ever paid for residential land in Cambridge. The quarter-acre site, previously used by Unigate as a dairy distribution centre, has been sold for £140,000 – which is £560,000 per acre. It demonstrates the potential for this area which is close to the Cam and the centre of town. 83 01 25a

The 'News' has pioneered a number of new technologies in the newspaper industry. A few years ago its composing rooms looked like a factory, dealing with molten lead, burning gas and tons of heavy metal. Now it resembles a carpeted office with two products of the modern age, lasers and computers, at the heart of the process. More technology could be employed but with several editions to produce every day there is no time to stop to introduce it. 83 01 25b

1983 01 26
Cambridgeshire is a humming world of typing pools and smooth administration. Contrary to its rural image it is a manufacturing and commercial county with a vast majority of its workforce far removed from farming. Agriculture is second from bottom, next only to the water and energy industry. In Cambridge there are more couples with no children than there are couples with children of school age and a high percentage of people now live alone, says the latest Census report. 83 01 26

1983 01 27
Lady Nicol of Newnham, the former Cambridge councillor, took her seat in the House of Lords. Lady Nicol, who was the first woman president of the Cambridge Co-op, was sponsored by Lady David, a former Labour Cambridgeshire County Councillor. She does not know when she will make her maiden speech but it will probably be on the environment in which she has a special interest. 83 01 27

It was an event without parallel in the rich and tradition-bound history of Cambridge University when an honorary doctorate was awarded to Sir Less Patterson for his 'services to Australian culture' in a simple and moving ceremony. Within an hour his megastar compatriot, Dame Edna Everage, made her own entrance into the Union Society Chamber amidst a chorus of cheers, dressed in a tasteful yellow and green koala bear outfit. 83 01 27a

1983 02 28
Shotgrove, p17

1983 01 31
George Webb was one of Cambridge's best-known personalities. He introduced all-in-wrestling, indoor roller skating, 3-D movies and cups of tea during the intervals at the cinema. In his later years he built up one of the largest heavy haulage and public works contracting businesses in East Anglia. His bald head, the huge cigars which he chain-smoked and the large American cars he loved to drive became his accepted 'trade-marks' during his colourful business career. 83 01 31

February 1983 CEN

1983 02 02
Sandy Heath television transmitter is on the blink again affecting thousands of viewers. It is an embarrassment to the IBA which runs it. News photographer Eddie Collinson was sent to climb 750 feet up the mast to see what the problem was, only to be told that the 48 mph wind was too strong to allow him to venture up. 83 02 02

1983 02 03
Mildenhall Museum has started to convert two cottages on the Corner of King Street. They need extensive work – it seemed only the wallpaper was holding the property together - but will provide the basis for a museum for generations to come, said Dr Colin Dring, chairman of the trustees. 83 02 03

Cars, p15

1983 03 04
More than 100 homes at Stretham had to rely on standpipes after a main burst. Some residents had to travel half a mile to the pipes in the High Street and Newmarket Road. But even that source dried up when severe overnight frost froze the pipes solid. A tanker was sent to deal with the emergency and ensure that the elderly and housebound get sufficient water. It is the biggest single problem facing Anglian Water which has 129 manual workers on strike. 83 02 04

To shop or not to shop on Sunday – that is the question facing MPs. The strongest supporters of the change are Isle of Ely Liberal MP, Mr Clement Freud, who is a sponsor of the bill, and Saffron Walden MP, Alan Haselhurst. Robert Rhodes James (Cambridge) thinks it goes too far but Francis Pym (Cambridgeshire), John Major (Huntingdonshire) and Royston MP Ian Stewart are open to persuasion. 83 02 04a

1983 02 05
The landlady of the Fox and Hounds at Barley has installed her own brewery at the historic pub which dates back to the14th century. Her venture is believed to be unique in mid-Anglia. She produces 600 pints a week of 'Nathaniel's Special' which sells at 55p and 'Nog' which is three pence dearer. A third beer, 'Old Pharaoh' is also planned. 83 02 05

1983 02 07
Impington windmill appeal – 83 02 07

1983 02 10

Up to 20,000 people are expected to visit the first-ever two-day book sale being held in Cambridge's central library at Lion Yard. Thousands of books are going on sale at prices ranging from 10p to £25. They are either out of date or no longer suitable for the rough and tumble of public library use. Previous sales have raised thousands of pounds. 83 02 10

The Three Blackbirds in Broad Street, Ely, is on the market £70,000. It is sad in appearance and needs major work to turn it into three homes. It could lend itself to a variety of treatments but would require sensitive treatment as it is a listed building. Ely Preservation Trust believes it dates back to at least the 14th century. It has a former open hall with smoke blackened beams and a brick doorway probably inserted in the 15th century. 83 02 10a

1983 02 11
The Aga Khan can relax: his kidnapped wonder horse Shergar is safe and well in an abbey in County Galway. He was 'found' by two Cambridge clairvoyants who came across his hideaway during an experiment using a pendulum suspended over two maps of southern Ireland taped together at their home in Netherhall Way. It was the first time they had conducted a psychic detection experiment and they admit there is a 'cocktail of doubt' about the result. 83 02 11

1983 02 12
C & A, one of the biggest family outfitters, will be opening a large shop in Cambridge's new Grafton Centre. Also coming are Habitat, the household group, and Key Markets, one of the country's largest food supermarket chains who will be employing 200 staff. They will complement Debenhams who are taking a major slice of space in the centre along with Heffers, Currys, Savory and Moore and Stead and Simpson. 83 02 12

Plans to move the Cambridge War Memorial from the Hills Road – Station Road junction have been scrapped. Instead of making way for a new system of computer-controlled traffic lights, the memorial will remain as an island. Originally the County Council wanted to relocate it to a small shady spot under the trees in the Botanic Garden, but the City refused to co-operate. 83 02 12a

1983 02 14
American TR1 spyplane for Alconbury – 83 02 14

1983 02 15
Percy North, the first man in Cambridge to wear the Red Cross uniform and the oldest member of the Boy's Brigade, has died five months short of his 100th birthday. A former physiotherapist and chiropodist, Percy was a keen historian who had been busy recording tapes about Victorian Cambridge for the Cambridgeshire Collection. "He was a marvellous old man and will be greatly missed by all in the Red Cross", said Ruth Newbury, the organiser. 83 02 15

Children and neighbours formed a human chain to save valuable antiques and silverware as fire swept through a 16th century manor house at Balsham. Virtually the whole roof collapsed as the fire raged through the upper part of the building which is one of the largest and best-known houses in the village, standing in its own extensive grounds. The owners had just finished eight years work in redecoration. 83 02 15a

1983 02 16
Cambridge is rapidly becoming one of the country's leading computer centres. The latest to enter the fray is Herald Computers of East Road. They are convinced there is a gap in the market for tailor-made systems designed to help small businesses choose the right computer and programmes for their particular purposes and so their activities will be outside the range of the man-in-the-street. 83 02 16

1983 02 17
A 130-ton TriStar airliner, the largest ever to land at Marshall's, marks the start of a six-plane conversion programme that will keep the firm's 800-strong aero-engineering staff in work for the next four years. The £50 million contract is to convert four into 37,500-gallon tankers for flight refuelling duties and the others to freighters with big cargo doors. 83 02 17

Shudy Camps Hall, an imposing elegant home, is for sale. The main part of the house has 15 bedrooms, with five more in the south wing and eight in the Tudor wing. The drawback is that it was badly damaged by fire and needs substantial repairs, including the replacement of large parts of the roof. It also needs modernising. But at £55,000 it makes a very interesting investment. 83 02 17a

The Bird in Hand motel at Beck Row, Mildenhall, has been completely transformed with more oak panelling, double the floorspace and extra toilets to create a real English pub atmosphere. Not that it was doing badly before since it is on the fringe of the largest concentration of American servicemen in the country. They like experimenting and soon get a taste for English beef and Yorkshire pudding and Shepherd's Pie. 83 02 17b

1983 02 20
There can be no doubt about the popularity of film libraries; they range from cinema classics to soft porn. Some shops have the cassettes on shelves behind the counter leaving the hirer to choose from catalogues, others kept the cases on open display. It costs about £1.50 to hire a film for 24 hours with a deposit of £30. It is usual to leave a signed cheque which is exchanged for the return of the film. But tapes only have a limited life; constant use results in 'stretching' and tape 'slap' caused by poor rewinding. 83 02 20

Boys Brigade, p7

1983 02 22
After 40 years baking his own special brand of bread for the residents of Newnham, Basil Sargeant has retired to start a new life in Norfolk as a smallholder. In appreciation, customers presented him with a painting of his shop in Derby Road, the work of Cambridge painter Philip Martin. The new owner, Mike North, will be sticking to Basil's recipe and methods. 83 02 22

Coronation Street used to be a real community with two breweries, three pubs, a general store, hard-ware shop, tailors' and a greengrocer's. Small houses with pretty cottage gardens lined the street and the inhabitants knew each other's business in the nicest possible way. Change came when the council pulled down a line of old homes and rehoused many streeters in nearby flatblocks. More work bulldozed the Victorian streetscape and now it is one of the most modern-looking in Cambridge, clean and possibly rather sterile. 83 02 22a

1983 02 24
The old blacksmith's shop in Burwell is to have a new lease of life. The forge, made mainly of clunch, has two hearths and dates back to 1710. The last blacksmiths to work there were brothers Jim and Tom Lawrence. But now it has been rebuilt as a craft workshop and hopes to run blacksmith's courses in conjunction with nearby Burwell House. The main problem is finding skilled people to work there. 83 02 24

The tea lady is a dying breed. One in five were forced to pack their tea bags last year because of the recession. Now a trolley on a Cambridge office floor is almost as rare as a Cambridge United away win. But at the Guildhall two tea ladies still deliver beverages and bonhomie plus the day's canteen menu and snacks. They were found to be cheaper than vending machines. 83 02 24a

1983 02 26
East Road, p15

1983 02 28
Most pumping plant in the fens has been renewed with automatically controlled electric motors but some boards fear they are too dependent on mains electric and have made arrangements for farmers' tractors to operate pumps in time of emergency. 'Conservation' is another area of potential conflict: water-courses must be kept clear of aquatic vegetation, which proves unpopular. Progress is not helped by extremists who delight in ignoring all views other than their own. 83 02 28 & a and 83 02 28b & c

Agriculture, p10

March 1983 CEN

1983 03 01
Trinity College matron Mrs Dorothy Marshall has retired after 11 of the happiest years of her working life. Her retirement marks the end of an era at the college which will no longer have a matron. From now on the post will be called college housekeeper. She was in charge of the room cleaners – known as bedders. But students got her mixed up with the college sister, whereas she had nothing to do with nursing. 83 03 01

Grantchester plans, p10

1983 03 02
Huntingdon plans, p4
Water quality fears, p5

1983 03 03
Builders had a narrow escape when a 150 year old cottage they were renovating in Church Street Haslingfield collapsed. The original structure was made of clay bats – a mixture of heavy white gault clay, straw and stones moulded into large chunks - which now crumble at a touch. Planners are deciding what best can be done with the pile of rubble as the cottage was in the centre of a conservation area. 83 03 03

Midsummer Fair history, p11

1983 03 04
Well-known Cambridge character and critic of some of the modern city architecture, Dr Hugh Plommer, has died while giving a lecture in London. He was a prolific writer – in a recent letter to the News he described newly-designed buildings in Regent Street as looking "as if they came out of an erratic computer and probably did". He described the new University Centre as "a converted multi-storey car park and Churchill College as "if it stood some siege by Cromwell's New Model Army". 83 03 04 p16

Linton houses, p17

1983 03 05
Wiggons Farm, Steeple Bumpstead, p10

1983 03 07
Another of Ely's big furniture stores is to close down – the third in 12 months. Pettit's based in Lynn Road for the past 12 years will cease trading on April 12th. Last spring the Newday Company closed in the High Street followed soon afterwards by Rickwoods which had two large stores in Newnham Street. On a brighter note Readwell, the newsagents, will be expanding into the former Boots store in the High Street.

1983 03 08
Whim, p1
Linton mill, p7

1983 03 09
Blundells to close, p5

1983 03 10
Ian Masters, p5

1983 03 11
Probus, p11

1983 03 15
Peterhouse, the oldest of Cambridge's 25 colleges, is to open its doors to women undergraduates from October 1985. The college, which is renowned for its traditionalism, had always opposed the admission of women until last year, when a surprise bid to reverse its policy was only narrowly defeated at a governing body meeting. Now only one Cambridge college – Magdalene – is remaining men-only. 83 03 15 p6

The Central EMI Bingo and Social Club offers cash prizes all the way up to £1,000 on Saturday night. But winning comes second: its social function is undeniable. It is raucous but never resigned. "You get all classes here", said the highly-popular afternoon caller. Maggie Bennett. "A few are a bit rough and are playing with the family allowance. In the evening you get much younger people". Basic costs are an admission fee – pensioners pay only 23 pence – and the buying of books of cards for each session. Two books cost £1.70. 83 03 15 p10

News literary dinner, p11

1983 03 17
Cambridge Working Men's' Club's 100-year old existence is in doubt because the city and county councils cannot agree on its resiting. Grosvenor Developments who built the Grafton Centre, offered to pay £500,000 for it to be resited on ground a few yards away owned by the city council. But they will not sell because if it moves it will leave the way clear for the county council to go ahead with the widening of East Road which the Labour city council opposes. Now Grosvenor may withdraw its offer and leave ratepayers to foot the entire bill. 83 03 17 p20

Ghandi visit, p20

1983 03 19
The traitor Donald Maclean continued to do some of his shopping in Cambridge long after he defected to Moscow 32 years ago. Maclean, who died in Moscow last week, regularly bought books from Bowes and Bowes, the Cambridge bookseller. Another former Cambridge student and fellow traitor, Kim Philby, also bought many books from the same source. Frank Reeve, the former manager said he hesitated over the first order and checked with the Foreign Office to see whether it was permissible to trade with a traitor 83 03 19 p1 & 9

1983 03 22
King's film deal, p1
Impington mill, p7

1983 03 23
An Ely garage has launched a new scheme to help pensioners fight the ever-increasing cost of motoring. Mr Don Vincent is selling them cheaper petrol, cutting the pump price by 2p a gallon. Any elderly motorist who called at his garage at Chettisham would get the discount on showing a pension book or similar form of identity. "What we don't want is little Tommy coming in saying he has brought granddad's car for a fill-up. They must be genuine pensioners", he said. 83 03 23 p12

1983 03 24

Saffron Walden Angling Club is to lose the lease of a pool at Newport which they have fished since 1960. They took it over when it was a gravel pit and had it cleaned out and stocked with fish from club funds. It was designed to help Junior members who did not have transport to take them elsewhere. The owners claim vandals have caused havoc but the club denies this and says a private syndicate has put in a higher bid. 83 03 24 p8

Clive Sinclair went to London in January to learn he was worth £129 million on the Stock Exchange. Now the head of Sinclair Research told a Guardian 'Young Businessman of the Year' award that he has created 2,000 new jobs. The firm was founded in 1979 and launched the world's first under £100 personal computer in 1980, followed by improved models including the colour ZX Spectrum. 83 03 24 p20

1983 03 25
Swavesey Youth Club swept the board, winning all four prizes at a junior disco-dancing competition. Four teams were entered and took the first four places. The winner was Iskaborio who are Kirsty Lewis, Racheal Howard, Lisa Huggett, Anita Collis, June Sales and Sharon Richards. They were trained by Mrs Mary Brighton and her daughter Abi who teach disco dancing at Swavesey Youth Club. 83 03 25 p11 pix

Typhoid, p1
House prices, p20

1983 03 26
It is 30 years since Charles Antoni took over the Varsity Restaurant in St Andrew's Street. His philosophy is to provide a warm and pleasant atmosphere coupled with good food and service at a price which did not leave you with a full stomach and light wallet. The menu offers Greek, French, Cypriot and English dishes. Starters cost between 40p and £1.05 and apart from a range of charcoal-grilled steaks and a couple of kebab dishes, none of the main courses cost more than £2.70. Sweets are priced between 60 and 80p. 83 03 26 p10

1983 03 29
Jack Overhill, a venerable 80-year-old grandfather, is an all-round bather who has taken a dip in the river at Sheep's Green nearly every day for the last 60 years. All that stops him are ice too thick to break, floods and the even-increasing number of occasions when the river is polluted by oil. Jack was a young shoemaker when he learned typewriting and shorthand to get a job as a clerk and later gained an external degree from London University. He has taught economics at the Tech, been a bookmaker, author and broadcaster and founded the Granta Swimming Club. 83 03 29 p12

Warwick Hutton, p12

1983 03 30
400 fans packed into Newmarket Cabaret Club for the final of the News Search for a Star competition. Ambitious showband 'CID' won first place with a spectacular set that amounted to a miniature concert. Second place went to 'Robonic', three teenagers from USAF bases at Lakenheath and Mildenhall and in third came Freddie Robinson whose zany act, combining singing and acrobatic dancing, plus a little juggling on the side, delighted the audience. 83 03 20 p9

April 1983 CEN

1983 04 01
Mary Nichol, p10

1983 04 05
Mystery surrounds the cause of a plane crash at Lt Downham in which three men lost their lives. The Musketeer plane had taken off from Marshall's airport. It was seen to emerge from clouds with its right wing missing. It then broke up in mid-air before nose-diving to the ground on a farm owned by Ron Gillett. Wreckage was spread over four fields with parts buried six feet into the ground. 83 04 05 p1

1983 04 06
Colonel Guennadi Primakov, one of three Russians ordered out of Britain for spying, openly used the Cambridge Lion Yard Library for part of his intelligence-gathering work. He travelled from the soviet embassy in London in 1980 to consult civil defence files gathered by librarians at the Cambridge Central Library . "We were suspicious quite honestly", said the Cambridgeshire Collection Librarian, Mike Petty. "But we try to provide an impartial public service. We will often be working with people who are opposed to county or city policy for example". The hefty file consulted by Colonel Primakov contains hundreds of reports taken from many newspapers and magazines published in the region, principally the Cambridge News. It is one of 800 files on topics kept by the library. When he arrived in August 1980 the file for that year already presented a turbulent picture of the civil defence and military scene in East Anglia. Then Defence Secretary, Francis Pym had announced the decision to site cruise missiles of Molesworth and more than 2,000 opponents had marched through the city in protest. A massive exercise involving all the armed forces based in the region had recently been staged to simulate the military response to the outbreak of a new war in Europe. About the same time the Ecology Party published a booklet entitled "How to survive in a nuclear war" which claimed that Cambridge had twice been named as a Regional Centre of Government in the event of the collapse of the central government during a national disaster. These events and many more have been thoroughly reported in the News where coverage culminated in a major defence briefing based on dozens of official sources. This was probably the most detailed public attempt to describe the military strength of East Anglia and its role. Mr Petty was so impressed by Colonel Primakov that he made a special note in the library diary he was keeping with the view to eventual publication. The entry for August 23rd 1980 reads "Civil Defence file consulted by 'Russian spy'. He said he used the term 'Russian spy' almost as a joke. Aa longer note made later in the day said "A reader consulting and photocopying items from the Civil Defence cutting files gives his address is 16 Kensington Palace Gardens, London, the home of the Soviet Military Attache. After the visit is Mr Petty reported to the Assistant County Library who called local police, but they said it was a matter for Scotland Yard. Colonel Primakov and the two other Russians ordered out of Britain left Heathrow airport today for Moscow 83 04 06

1983 04 07
Cambridge is close to the top of the house prices league with prices for terraced house comparable to those in parts of Greater London. A three-bed roomed post war terrace in a very desirable area can be as high as £45,000 compared to £21,000 in Ipswich, £31,500 in Brighton or £30,000 in Oxford. 83 04 07 p13

Isleham locals had seen it all before – the television cameras and crowds for a sporting even on the recreation ground. 1975 was the year that the village gained national fame as their cricket team charged all the way to the heady heights of Lords in the Village Championship final. But this week attention was focussed on the village's under-12 football team who had lost all their games, conceding 271 goals in the process. They were the worst team in Cambridgeshire. But not any more. In an epic battle they defeated a Peterborough side to lose the title of the worst team in Cambridgeshire, 83 04 07 p18

1983 04 08
Ashdon's 300-year-old Bonnett pub which closed without warning last week, may soon reopen. Its owner says he decided to close as he needed a holiday. He bought the former Greene King house five years ago at an auction for £40,000 and invested the 10,000 in renovation work on the pub which has a cocktail lounge and 40-seat restaurant. The Bonnett, which has one and a half acres of ground, was the setting for Steeple Bumpstead author Spike Mayes' best-selling rural tale, Rubin's Corner. 83 04 08 p12

Spaldwick's long-awaited by-pass was opened. A small crowd turned out to see the opening ceremony and cheer as the first lorries veered away from the village to the new road. The infamous village bends are no longer part of the A604 and have been replaced by a long stretch of straight road – the result of nearly 20 years campaigning. It is the first stretch of the A1/M1 link to be opened and would bring safety and peace to the village and especially to 80-year-old Violet Goodwin whose house has been hit 17 times by cars and lorries negotiating bends in the village. 83 04 08 p17

Duxford RAF homes, p9

1983 04 13
The long hours of boredom for kidney patients on dialysis machines will be lightened from now on thanks to big-hearted Cambridge CB enthusiasts. The 'breakers' have provide the Douglas House kidney unit with a complete CB unit so patients can keep in touch with the outside world. A home-based Fidelity 3000 radio with headphones has been handed over to Sister Hazel Chambers. 83 04 13 p8

1983 04 15
The new 'Five Miles from Anywhere' pub at Upware is on the market for £500,000. Built by Colin Hodgson, it opened in 1980 and a marina complex offering berthing for 100 boats has just been completed. There is also outline planning permission for a 23-bedroomed hotel. The former pub burnt down in the 1950s. 83 04 15 p20

KGB and Cambridgeshire Collection, p16

1983 04 15
Upware pub, p20

1983 04 16
A row over plans for a by-pass at Mepal has led to six of the seven parish councillors refusing to stand for re-election. They are annoyed that the County Council has decided to press ahead with a western bypass against the wishes of villagers who claim Mepal will be turned into a cul-de-sac. An eastern route would be cheaper and help to promote industry on the nearby airfield. 83 04 16 p6

Milton villagers watched nervously as a bulldozer moved into the churchyard to begin stripping away topsoil. Any discovered burials will be moved to a new grave. The digging, which started with prayers from Vicar Fred Kilner, launched plans to build a church extension and meeting hall alongside the northern aisle rebuilt by the Victorians. It will act as a church extension for the village's growing population and a meeting hall for the elderly and youngsters. 83 04 16

1983 04 18
Duxford houses, p6
Milton church, p10

1983 04 19
Regional health chiefs delivered a massive snub to both Cambridge City and the University by placing the Mill Road maternity unit and the old Addenbrooke's Hospital sites on the open market. They will go to the highest bidder which rules out the chance of the city buying Mill Road for an old peoples' sheltered housing scheme. They have also disregarded a gentleman's agreement with the University to give them first refusal on the Addenbrooke's site which is worth between £1 and £2 million. 83 04 19 p12

Trumpington housing, p11

1983 04 20

The Government should pay for building a long-distance lorry park near Cambridge particularly as it becomes more of a stopping-off point now the M11 and A45 Northern Bypass are established. Lorries are using waste land in the Garlic Row – Oyster Row area which was originally earmarked for drivers who live in Cambridge. Each evening it is crammed with long-distance vehicles. People complain of noise and inconvenience, saying drivers use their gardens as lavatories. 83 04 20 p12

Mepal Outdoor Centre which was bought by the county 12 years ago and has been used by schools, youth and community organisations to teach the basics of sailing and canoeing, has reopened under new management. It has been saved from the axe by a consortium of district councils who have installed a new management team. But it will not survive unless it gets support. It is hoped to increase the range of activities and run residential courses. 83 04 20 p13

Lt Downham bells, p13
Dodgers snooker club, p19

1983 04 23
Cambridge doctors are grappling with a mystery illness which has affected local children and may be connected with a worldwide epidemic which killed 500,000 people between 1917 and 1928. The disease, called encephalitis lethargica, produces depression and behavioural problems following flu-like virus disorders. Ten children have been seen by specialists, one is still in hospital after a year. Doctors do not know the cause or the cure. But they do not want to cause undue alarm. 83 04 23 p1

Newport's medieval leper stone was used by lepers who left orders for food on it and put the money in its water-filled hollow to cleanse it. The leper hospital was demolished in the 16th century and materials used to build Hospital Farm. This was pulled down in 1907 when bricks from the hospital's chapel were used to build a wall. Now the Conservation Society fears this may be demolished to allow the building of five houses. 83 04 23 p6

Les Neal is retiring after half-a-century of dedicated, devoted and skilful service as a gentleman's hairdresser. Apprenticed at the age of 14 in 1932 to Walter George Ambrose, he served with the Przyborsky business in Round Church Street before moving to Watson's in Mill Road. He is a dedicated supporter and leader of the Scout movement and an enthusiastic and expert player of the bagpipes. – Frank Matthews. 83 04 23

Ely indoor market, p6

1983 04 25
Hallens of Cambridge is celebrating its golden jubilee. It was founded in 1933 as a used motor cycle dealership soon moved to premises in Chapel Street, Chesterton which it shared with a haulage business, fish and chip shop and furniture removal firm. Today these premises still house the motor cycle service and parts centre. It then moved into a former dance hall in Union Lane which became the first car workshop and stores. During the war it was requisitioned with a new workshop and an air raid shelter underneath. 83 04 25 supp p10

Mepal outdoor centre, p3

1983 04 26
The County Council has been urging Cambridge councillors to provide more city centre parking space. They say 1,000 extra parking spaces are needed. Now they have suggested six sites: a 250-space extension to the present Lion Yard multi-deck, land behind Telephone House in Regent Street-Park Terrace (220 spaces on a four-deck park), the old Addenbrooke's Hospital site (250 spaces), land behind Shire Hall (450 spaces on a three-deck park), Saxon Street (480) and Adam and Eve Street (460 spaces). 83 04 26 p5

Haddenham sign, p6

1983 04 29
A much-heralded district heating scheme which was installed in 234 council houses and flats at Lichfield Road and Neville Road is being scrapped after only 10 years. The pipes which are buried deep underground leak. There were claims it would be much cheaper but tenants said their homes were unnecessarily hot, giving 70 degrees in living rooms and 65 in bedrooms when temperatures outside were freezing. It will be replaced by individual central heating units in each property. 83 04 29 p9

1983 04 30
Thousands of people crowded into Newmarket high street when the Queen opened the new National Horseracing Museum. Police tried in vain to hold them back as they surged round her Rover saloon and security men cleared a path for her to the entrance of the former Subscription Rooms Club. Afterwards she drove to the racecourse to watch the 2,000 Guineas meeting. 83 04 30 p1

May 1983 CEN

1983 05 03
It was the Depression of 1933 which led to Sid Bishop setting up a cycle repair business with a gross of spokes and a dozen batteries. He bought a cottage in Station Road, Histon where he traded until moving into a purpose built shop next door in 1955. By then bicycles had almost taken over his home. Now the Raleigh agency is the mainstay of his trade which also includes ironmongery, hardware, do-it-yourself materials and house-hold goods. 83 05 03 supp

1983 05 05
Kent Industrial Measurements is to end its century-old Cambridge link with the closure of its works in Rosemary Lane. The firm, which makes gas monitoring equipment, is transferring production as part of a restructuring plan. Most of the 82 staff are being offered jobs at other Kent sites at Eaton Socon and Stonehouse in Gloucestershire. Originally it was part of Cambridge Instruments but have been totally separate for many years. 83 05 05 p6

1983 05 06
Election, p24

1983 05 09
Cambridge people know their cheese but have been hard-pressed to find some of the more unusual varieties. Now Cheesevale has just opened in Bradwell's Court. It stocks more than 200 different kinds with many British farmhouse cheeses that have matured for up to three years. They include a combination of Red Windsor and Stilton, one flavoured with beer and garlic and a Gormandise cheese with port. 83 05 09 p8

Cambridge Co-operative Band have recorded a powerful piece composed specially for them. The music by Dr Arthur Wills, the organist of Ely cathedral, is the four movement 'Fenland Suite' – the first for brass band and solo organ. 83 05 09 p10

1983 05 10
Cambridge University is planning to build a £6 million sports complex in the Grange Road area with a new eight-lane athletics track, swimming pool and sports hall. They have long argued that the Kelsey Kerridge sports hall and Milton Road athletics track are too far away from the centre of undergraduate activities. They hope to sell the Milton Road site for housing. 83 05 10 p5

1983 05 11
The new Home Office forensic laboratories at Huntingdon is a world of X-ray fluorescent spectrometers and scanning electron microscopes. Much of the equipment has been manufactured by Cambridge firms. But a simple wallpaper steam roller is one of the most useful gadgets. It is covered with sticky tape and used to pick up any fibres from the clothes of victims. 83 05 11 p12, 83 05 14 p7

1983 05 12
Some of the country's top entertainers, including comedian Max Boyce and Jasper Carrott, have snubbed Cambridge's Kelsey Kerridge Sports Hall as a concert hall, saying the facilities aren't good enough. A few years ago it attracted top names such as Tony Bennett, Bill Haley and The Supremes. It's not just the artists – audiences are reluctant to pay £8 to sit on a plastic seat. 83 05 12 p3

Huntingdon Hosiery Mill which has stood empty for three years since its £150,000 renovation, may be turned into flats. The mill, which was built in the 1850s on the banks of the Ouse has been bought by a Cottenham developer. Some 80 units are being planned ranging from studio flats to two-bedroomed apartments with prices from £15-£30,000. 83 05 12 p9

1983 05 13
Yet another village primary school is facing the axe – the fifth this year. The thatched Lode school, which was built in the 1930s by Lord Fairhaven, is the latest victim of county council proposals and could be shut by July 1985. Only 33 pupils attend the school, which has a capacity of 50. They will transfer to Bottisham, one and a half miles away. 83 05 13 p1

Planners have blocked proposals to demolish Upwood Methodist Church. The congregation has dwindled so much that it was hoped to pull down the church and sell the land to a developer. But planners say it is in a conservation area and demolishing it would ruin the look of the street. Now it will be converted into a home. 83 05 13 p10

1983 05 14
Haddenham Mill House has been restored and made into a comfortable home. But the adjacent windmill is a major restoration project. The mill was built in 1803 and stopped working in 1945. The top was off and it stood open to the weather until recently, adding to its deterioration. Now the two properties are on the market for £52,000. Any purchaser will have a comfortable house to live in while he contemplates what to do about it. 83 05 14 p12

Crime labs, p7

1983 05 17
A railway worker was killed in a bizarre crash. He was unable to escape flying wreckage as two large engines – coupled together – collided with a railway crane used for laying track on the Cambridge – Ipswich line where it passes near Great Wilbraham. Wagon wheels were smashed off axles and heavy railway sleepers broken like matchsticks as the wreckage bounced along the track. The two locomotives were travelling out from Cambridge to shunt the tracklayer up a hill. 83 05 17 p1

1983 05 18
Smoking, p12

1983 05 19
Cambridgeshire police are being equipped with new crew buses fitted out with bullet-proof glass and protective grilles for riot control. The police version of the armoured personnel carrier can carry 17 men to the scene of a disturbance. Built on a Ford Transit chassis, they were converted at a Cambridge garage. Petrol tanks are shrouded in carbon fibre for protection against bomb attacks and vulnerable points reinforced. The windows are toughened against bricks and bullets. 83 05 19 p1

Winston House in Cambridge, the country's first halfway house, has helped hundreds of people to get back into the community, some after more than 20 years in mental hospitals. Much of the impetus came from Dr David Clark, then psychiatric chief at Fulbourn Hospital. After the last war Cambridge streets were full of destitute youngsters, many from homes broken up in the wartime upheaval. Cambridge Rotary Club approached the SOS Society to see whether the help they were giving to London's bombed-out homeless could be extended and between them they opened Winston House. In 1958 it changed for helping youngsters to assisting the mentally ill. 83 05 19 p9

The only predictable thing about the weather is that it is unpredictable. Last month was the wettest April since 1975, but the April before that was the driest in 50 years. In January 1978 there was a tornado at Newmarket, in June 1970 3.26 inches of rain fell in two hours and ten days later terrific hailstones damaged market gardens. But 26th June 1976 registered a scorching 98 degrees F. 83 05 19 p20

1983 05 21
Villages around Cambridge are reeling from flooding – more than a foot deep in places – which swept through their homes after torrential rain smashed down onto already waterlogged ground. Houses were under water over a massive area, including the villages of Croxton and Over. Swavesey baker, Roger Godfrey, was watching the cup final when he realised water was coming in under his front door, with four inches covering his floor at one stage. 83 05 21 p1

1983 05 23
Flood chaos, p1
Newnham house, p5

1983 05 25
East Cambs planning chief slammed the 'hysterical local opposition' each time they put forward plans for a permanent gypsy site. Already Wilburton, Mepal and Little Thetford are no-go areas because of the local opposition. It means the job of solving the problem becomes progressively more difficult. The only alternative was to abandon the whole thing. Councillors agreed no action would be taken to prosecute longstanding residents on unauthorised sites until more suitable alternative plots were available. 83 05 25 p7

1983 05 26
A little middle-aged lady walked quietly up to Labour leader Michael Foot in the staff canteen at Addenbrooke's Hospital and asked for his autograph. After he'd obliged she looked at it and said "I was hoping you might write 'love and kisses' on it". Out came the pen again and it was duly added. And that epitomised Mr Foot's short visit to Cambridge: he was out to please and served up the fare his supporters were seeking. 75 05 26 p21

1983 05 27
About 40 academic posts – including one professorship – are to be scrapped by Cambridge University in response to Government cash cuts. But these are outnumbered by the number of vacancies which have resulted from the success of their early retirement scheme. More than 120 dons – including 25 eminent professors – accepted, at a cost of hundreds of thousands of pounds after the University was ordered to cut its costs by 5%. 83 05 27 p12

Memories of the famous Crystal Palace exhibition of 1851 have been revived with the opening of Scotsdale Garden Centre's new premises at Shelford. It has much in common with spectacular Victorian conservatories, creating an illusion of gracious living. Bulldozers moved in just over a year ago to knock down greenhouses put up 60 years ago. Now it houses a complete range of garden equipment with palms and house plants offering the convenience of supermarket shopping. 83 05 27 p30

Tesco, p19
Civil disaster plan, p28

1983 05 28

Saxon Street water tower is in process of being turned into a home. The metal tank which once housed millions of gallons of water has been insulated and equipped with a series of windows giving the master bedroom staggering views across the surrounding countryside. There is also a suspended platform built into the roof timbers approached by a steel ladder. It could house a bed – if one didn't mind the risk of rolling right off the platform. Although not totally complete it is on the market for £69,950. 83 05 28 p13

Grantchester author, Jeffrey Archer, plans to give £50,000 to Polish writers who have lost their jobs through membership of the free trade union, Solidarity. will donate all the royalties from his books sold in Poland. "Kane and Abel is a story of Poles and is selling very well in Poland. The Polish regime won't transfer the money out. I can only have the Zlotys if I actually go there and spend them. But Poland is not very high up on my list of places to holiday so I decided to give it to Solidarity", he said. 83 05 28 p1

1983 05 31
Armed raiders who held up staff and customers at Barclays Bank in Linton escaped with several hundred pounds. A shotgun was fired during the raid but nobody was injured. The two robbers escaped in a blue Ford Cortina estate car. Police swooped on the village and set up checks as soon as the alarm was raised. 83 05 31 p1

June 1983 CEN

1983 06 01
The Roger Ascham School for handicapped children in Cambridge, which the County Council threatened to close down, is likely to remain open after all. Massive opposition was mounted by parents. A report recommends that a unit for physically handicapped primary age children should be constructed. But they remain convinced that in the long term special units for handicapped children should be attached to other schools in a bid to integrate them with the others. 83 06 01 p10

Storn chaos, p1

1983 06 02
The award-winning Landbeach marina has been sold for about ½ million pounds to a millionaire who runs three other marinas in the country. It has five lakes, children's play areas, cafes, bars, games rooms and a restaurant and provides facilities for caravanning, camping and water sports. It was formerly a sand and gravel works. It is an asset to the district and praised as a highly organised and well laid out holiday centre. 83 06 02 p5

1983 06 03
A major transformation of Haverhill town centre has been given the go ahead, Three shops and offices are to be built in the main shopping area at Jubilee Walk near Sainsbury's supermarket. It will consist of a two-storey building. Another more ambitious development for a shopping mall on the other side of the High Street is also in the offing. 83 06 03 p12

It will be the end of an era at Six Mile Bottom when automatic barriers take over at the level crossing. It will also mark the end of the career of signalman Albert Morley for it will be the last time the signal box serves any useful function. His career started in 1927 and he remembers when luxurious Pullman coaches used to arrive on special trains for the Newmarket races carrying wealthy passengers from London. 83 06 03 p15

1873 06 04
School cleaners

1983 06 06

The arrival of more than 200,000 visitors at Stansted Airport caused traffic chaos. They had come to see landing of the Space Shuttle Enterprise which arrived piggy-back on a jumbo jet. It had flown over London where Westminster Bridge was packed with people taking photographs. The Enterprise has never been on a space mission but had been used in handling tests and was the first Shuttle ever built. NASA says that by 2000 hundreds of people will have travelled in space. 83 06 06 p5

1983 06 07
Boxworth Golden Ball, p5

1983 06 09
No-one is likely to support a local post office out of charity. Business has been falling off in recent years, not helped by Government encouragement to pay many social security benefits monthly instead of weekly and to pay direct into a bank account. Some sub-postmasters have given up because their income has dropped by £1,000 a year but so far somebody else has been persuaded to take on the business. Now a 'rationalisation' programme is being carried out. First to be hit is the King Street post office which is likely to close, just as the street has a new lease of life with new shops and flats. 83 06 09 p11

St John's College School, p7
Chishill vote, p30

1983 06 10
Maggie Thatcher has promised a 'new look' cabinet after he overwhelming General Election. Locally Labour took a pounding and in Cambridge Janet Jones was beaten into third place. Former city council leader John Powley has been elected the Conservative MP for Norwich South. He was a key figure in the dispute over the Kite redevelopment which resulted in him being ousted from his Cambridge council seat. Francis Pym won SE Cambs with a landslide majority but Clement Freud won the NE Cambs seat for the Liberals. 83 06 10 p1-3

Comberton Communbity College, p21

1983 06 11
Royston windmill, p13

1983 06 13
Cambridgeshire MP and former Foreign Secretary, Francis Pym, has been ousted from Mrs Thatcher's cabinet. "I had no intimation of any kind that she wished to make and change. It came completely out of the blue", he told the News. Now he will go to the back benches. 83 06 13 p1

A boat owner saw two years of hard work slipping slowly beneath the waters of the Cam after his 20 foot cabin cruiser was holed by a rowing eight taking part in the last day of the Bumps. The Pembroke College boat had been bumped and this had sent it careering across the river near his home in Green End, Fen Ditton. Its narrow finely pointed hull ripped straight through the side of his boat like an Exocet missile. 83 06 13 –5

1983 06 14
All Saints church in Jesus Lane, which was threatened with demolition despite being described as one of the finest examples of Victorian architecture, will open to the public for the first time in ten years. About £40,000 has been spent by the Redundant Churches Fund to make it watertight after years of rain leaking through the roof. The next project will be to clean up the interior and in particular the wall paintings 83 06 14 p10

1983 06 15
Powley, p14

1983 06 16
Cambridgeshire Motors, Hardwick, p18

1983 06 17
Fenland weaver Mrs Ida Allen is setting up her looms to weave tweed cloth for a firm in Japan to make ladies' coats and skirts. Her tiny workshop in Witchford High Street is far from the traditional woollen industry in Yorkshire. There is nothing she cannot tackle since her husband, Frank, built her loom; she has made college scarves, curtains and material for monks' habits and although 75 years old has no intention of retiring. 83 06 17 p20

The giant Fleam Dyke steam engines that supplied Cambridge's water for more than 50 years are slowly disappearing. The twin 180-horse-power horizontal engines, named Anderson and Lilley, stopped working back in 1976 and are now being dismantled for scrap. They were a showpiece for parties of visiting schoolchildren until a massive piece of machinery flew off. Now parts will be going to steam engine centres or sold to private buyers. They are just too big and expensive to move. 83 06 17 p24

1983 06 20
Cambridge computer wizard Clive Sinclair may buy the factory of the failed Northern Ireland sports car company De Lorean to manufacture his electric car. His Sinclair Vehicle Project is developing what is hoped to be the first mass-produced electric vehicle for some years. Intended for city travellers it is due for release in 1985. The technology was developed by the Norfolk based Lotus Company, which Sir Clive has also shown an interest in buying. 86 06 20 p3

1983 06 21
Secretary of State for Defence, Michael Heseltine, paid tribute when a memorial to over 100 Polish parachutists was unveiled at Audley End House. During the war it was used as the headquarters of the Special Operations Executive where scores of Polish men and women were trained before being parachuted into their home country, 108 lost their lives. 83 06 21 p11

1983 06 23
Peter King is probably best known for his 36 controversial years as a local councillor and for the sale of his home, Bourn Hall, for use as a test tube baby clinic. But his toughest fight began when it was discovered that he had cancer. 'Old King' comes from the background of generations of small, highly independent family builders in Caxton. When he told his 97-year-old aunt that he was suffering from the disease she told him "We'll you'll just have to pull yourself together". Her reaction, and the fact that he laughs whenever he retells the story, gives some idea of the spirit in which his battle against the disease has been conducted. 83 06 23 p22

Toy collector, p22

1983 06 24
A new plant – which cost more than £10 million – has opened at the Johnson Matthey site at Royston. It will refine metals like platinum and gold and is their biggest capital investment since they came to the town in 1956. When in full operation it will employ an additional 50 people. 83 06 24 p11

1983 06 29
Plans for a new main bus station with a 'floating roof' and a circular office block standing alongside, in the centre of Cambridge, have come in for fierce criticisms. The County Council is adamant that the new bus station should go on the present small and restricted site in Drummer Street but the Labour- controlled City Council want it moved to the railway station. The rebuilding will see the removal of the small island with its office and large trees from the centre of the road. But the City is refusing to sell the island site or to remove the trees as part of its opposition. 83 06 29 p15

1983 06 29

Charles Wells, the Bedford brewers, are planning to set up a micro-brewery as part of the Ancient Druids public house which is due to open in Napier Street on the edge of the Grafton Centre in 1984. The brewery will be quite small and will brew beer for consumption in the house. It will mean the return of brewing to Cambridge which once had numerous breweries including five or six on Newmarket Road. 83 06 29 p3

1983 06 30
A scheme to develop seven acres of land behind Shire Hall for offices and a high technology centre will save the Isaac Newton pub and other buildings in Castle Street which had been under threat of demolition. It will include 520 basement car parking spaces together with twelve terrace houses on Magrath Avenue. At present the site is covered by a ramshackled array of ancient council office buildings which are difficult and expensive to maintain and unpopular with the staff working in them. 83 06 30 p7

The facilities and setting offered by boarding kennels are very different and price is not a guide to quality. Jason Farm Kennels at Caldecote, is priced at £2.50 a day for dogs of all sizes. Some charge extra for heating on cold days though Country Kennels at Dry Drayton (£2.25) don't usually heat kennels except in a very severe winter while Bridgefoot Farm Kennels at Flint Cross has a sizable grassy area for exercise but were most expensive at £3.31 plus 30p for heating,

July 1983 CEN

1983 07 01
The County Hall office block in Hobson Street which houses a major section of the county council's social services department may be sold to Christ's College for £1.25 million and converted into student accommodation. It would be one of the biggest property deals in the much sought-after city centre location for years. Scores of council officials would be moved into the new offices planned at the back of Shire Hall. 83 07 01 p1

A visit to Waffles on Castle Hill is like stepping back in time to the heyday of the unique Kite café which was such a popular venue until the bulldozers moved in. The highly successful venture was built up by Mrs Virginia Le Charite over nine years until its closure in 1981. The familiar tables and chairs, the ornate cash register, the dresser and clock are all there and it is still producing those scrumptious and filling savoury and sweet batter rolls with a variety of toppings at prices from 90p. 83 07 01 p24

Roman Cambridge , p22

1983 07 02
Sinclair Research has bought the 18th-century Milton Hall as its centre for research into revolutionary and high-risk ideas called Metalab. Milton Hall which was built in 1772 was bought by Eastern Electricity in 1950 as a regional office and research centre. Two large modern wings were added. The cost of the purchase is around £500,000. 83 07 02 p5, 83 07 07 p15

1983 07 04
The new Post House Hotel at Impington has elegance and style yet relies for its distinctive appearance on traditional materials of brick, tile and timber. Visitors are immediately struck by the atmosphere of classical, gracious country living; its style stops just short of opulence. The restaurant welcomes children with its Munch Bunch and Hungry Bear menus featuring baked beans and fish fingers. Yet this rural vista is near the centre of Cambridge. 83 07 04 p10

Sunday opening, p7

1983 07 06

Petrol prices caused chaos and confusion amongst motorists as charges ranged between £1.75 and £1.86 a gallon. Frustrated garage owners cursed their suppliers as they took down the new prices they had been asked to put up last night. Frank Holland of Mill Road said that yesterday prices started at £1.77, later he was told to raise them to £1.86.9 from midnight, then in the morning told to bring them down to £1.85.7. Meanwhile motorists used up petrol as they searched for the best bargains. The cheapest price in Cambridge is at Sainsbury's which has kept its prices at 1.75p a gallon. 83 07 06 p6

Gordon Cave is not averse to striking a hard bargain at his premises on the Fen Road, Chesterton. But he was not at all keen when a funeral service sent him a hearse for disposal. And when he heard voices just after midnight he made up his mind he would let the hearse and 7-seater Austin Princess limousine go for the proverbial song. Charlie Holliday, one of Cambridge's few genuine gypsies, agrees and neither will go near it. So if anyone wants a bargain car with an engine which purrs like a kitten, he will be happy to see you. There's always room for one more in the back. 83 07 06 p12

The closure of Stockbridge's 113-year-old antique shop in Bridge Street follows closely on that of another shop bearing the same name. C.P. Stockbridge of Histon set up two years ago when the other branch of the family left its prime site on King's Parade. The main reason for closure is that the antique trade is depressed and the new shop never took off. 83 07 06 p5

1983 07 07
Cambridge pianist Doris Waterson began her career playing for silent films at the old Playhouse in Mill Road. She played ballet and modern dance music for the Perse Girls and the old County Schools but was best known as pianist with Josephine's Gypsy Orchestra. It was formed about 1934 and played for 26 years at venues such as Christ's Pieces bandstand. Doris also had her own band called the Keynotes and worked during the war with Alice Reynolds who organised concert parties for troops. 83 07 07 p16

Milton Hall, p15

1983 07 08
Eastern Counties Leather, p17

1983 07 11
Pym support, p10

1983 07 12
Two Cambridgeshire policemen, Gil Boyd and Bob Reynolds, set a world record with a sponsored parachute 'flight' under ten London bridges over the Thames. Pc Boyd said there were a few hair-raising moments – when he dived head-first into the water at the start and when his parachute tapped the roofs of three bridges. Bob said he felt a bit air-sick but did very well for somebody who'd only been parachuting three weeks. They hope to raise £5,000 for Great Ormond Street Hospital. 83 07 12 p7

Princess Anne visited Haverhill Meat Products to mark the company's silver jubilee. The factory, one of the largest and most modern in Europe, produces 700 tons of pigmeat products, including 400,000 sausages, a week. When a Land Rover carrying senior officials reversed into a senior HMP manager's car it caused a roar of approval almost as loud as when the Princess herself appeared. 83 07 12 p11

1983 07 13
Hundreds of Cambridge residents have lost their long battle to save the sub-post office in King Street from closure. Despite massive protests the Head Postmaster has decided it must shut when the owners retire. Now the council may consider buying the building in the hope they can keep it open. Mr & Mrs Mansfield have given a first class personal service for 30 years which would be difficult to match even if the post office were to remain. 83 07 13 p7

Mill Road supplement, p12

1983 07 14
Strethall, p7

1983 07 15
A 600-year old barn at Priors Hall Farm, Widdington, given to the nation by farmer Jeremy Robinson, has now been fully-restored by the Linford Building Group. Over half the original timbers had to be replaced and the roof was rebuilt. Now it is the best-preserved barn of its type in the county. 83 07 15 p11

1983 07 16
The occupants of Island Hall, Godmanchester, used to have a punt in the cellars so when the river at the bottom of the garden flooded, the footman could punt his way around the wine bins to make the daily selection. It was just about derelict when Simon Heritage bought it in 1979 for £23,000 and £200,000 has been spent on its restoration. Today it is quite breathtaking and it is on the market for £250,000. 83 07 16 p12

1983 07 18
The Sinclair Cambridge Festival half-marathon was on the point of being called off and the future of the race is now in doubt. Fears for the safety of the 2,000 runners in heat wave conditions forced the organisers to bring forward the start to 7.30 am. With the high humidity there was a danger of heatstroke but fewer than half a dozen were taken to Addenbrooke's Hospital. As the stragglers were coming home other athletes were arriving at Parker's Piece, unaware of the change in the start time. 83 07 18 p12

1983 07 19
Many old age pensioners in Cambridge are finding it difficult to struggle to the main Post Office and harder still to stand, often in a long queue, to collect their pensions. The News deserves full credit for highlighting the plight of many frail, elderly residents. The lack of hospital beds for long stay patients means than more than 80 former residents are now separated. There is also a chronic shortage of accommodation in old peoples' homes and a shortage of warden-supervised sheltered housing – Chairman, City Housing Committee. 83 07 19 p6

1983 07 20
Roger Ascham School, p1
Bed for war hero. P6

1983 07 21
The fate of the old Laurie and McConnal store - which has been lying empty since it closed five years ago – has been decided at last. Habitat, a national chain of home furnishing shops, is to move in to the store on the fringe of the new Grafton Centre. Debenhams has taken the main store on the site, the supermarket booked by Keymarkets will probably open as a branch of Gateway and the biggest 'variety' store is being taken by C&A. But letting arrangements have still to be concluded on 30 of the 45 medium-sized shops. 83 07 21 p1

An emergency water tanker has been drafted in to Strethall, the village which 'dries up' every afternoon because of greater demand during hot weather. Residents have to carry pails of water from the tanker to their homes. The situation has been recurring for the past 10 years. "Its medieval to walk along carrying buckets of water – all you need is a water yoke" said Patricia Melford, whose husband is chairman of the parish meeting. The Water Company says the problem will be solved when improvements were carried out to the Wendons Ambo pumping station next summer. 83 07 21 p5

1983 07 22

As Addenbrooke's Hospital prepares to close more than 100 of its beds for the summer holidays, 7,000 people are waiting for operations. Some have been waiting up to four years and waiting lists in some specialities have increased 340 per cent since 1977. Until September 1st the hospital will be on an official red alert – emergency and urgent cases only. But medical staff believe it is not far off that status without any summer closures. "It is a ghastly situation and it gets worse, week by week", said a senior surgeon. 83 07 22 p1

1983 07 25
The Maid's Head, 16th century pub at Wicken, was badly damaged when fire tore through its thatched roof. The landlord, Alan Goldson, was three-quarters of the way through a renovation project with a new cellar and kitchen due to be completed this week. It is believed to have been started by a flame torch being used by a builder putting tarmac on the roof of the new cellar. 83 07 25 p1

1983 07 29
The innermost secrets of the 600-year-old Cock Inn at Thaxted came to light when workmen exposed the building's original timber frame. It is further proof that it was once a jettied building jutting out over the street. It must have been an inn for most of that time as records in the county archives record that the builders of Thaxted church had been there for their beer in 1400. The landlord, John Lankaster, has kept a close eye on the work: he has been camping in the house while it has been stripped to the bone, renovated and extended. 83 07 29 p12

August 1983 CEN

1983 08 03
Fenstanton stamp, p10

1983 08 04
Car parking facilities in Cambridge have been slammed as inadequate and too expensive. Three hours is the minimum needed for shopping and to have to pay 90p at the Lion Yard car park is ridiculous, motorists say. It only costs 40p in Bedford. It is now 20 years since a plan was floated for a large car park under Parker's Piece. There was a controversy and it was rejected by a majority of two votes. If it had gone ahead the problem would be much easier. 83 08 04 p12

Seventeen flats and maisonettes being built as part of the Grafton Centre are now on the market. The flats in Fitzroy Street have a bedroom, living room, kitchen, bathroom & private rooftop terraced areas and sell for £29,500. The maisonettes are on two floors and have two bedrooms, they sell for £42,000. The scheme also includes 22 one-bedroomed flats in Christchurch Street which will be available on a share-ownership basis through the King Street Housing Society. Most have been allocated already. 83 08 04 p12

Traffic lights, p6
Stilton pub, p12
St Paul's School, p13

1983 08 05
Harding and Sons of Duxford, a family firm of builders, has shut down after more than 140 years. Brothers Gilbert, Leslie and Victor Harding are now in their 70s and 80s. It was sad to close the business which was started by their great-grandfather and employs 11 people, many of whom have worked for more than 30 years, but it was better to stop now in a solvent state, and hold their heads up high. 83 08 05 p11

Privatisation is the watch-word for councils in the 1980's. The argument runs that local government has become a haven for work-shy council-employed direct labour organisations and that putting contracts for cleaning or refuse collection will raise council efficiency. Now Cambridgeshire County Council has taken a lead by contracting out school cleaning to private firms. But many of the cleaners are union members and the TGWU and NUPE expect more to join. 83 08 05 p21

School closing, p20
Hinxton watermill, p22

1983 08 06
Jobless Cambridge school-leavers could be stuck without training courses because of a rumpus in upper-crust Grantchester. Villagers are objecting to plans to put mobile classrooms at their former village school, saying they would be an eyesore. It goes against planning policy and is a panic measure by the County Council who have not fully considered the implications. But without them there would be no prospect of running the courses. 83 08 06 p1

Thriplow rebuild, p10

1983 08 09
The truck trade has gone through a traumatic shake-up in recent years. Firms have been merged or disappeared as their struggle for survival intensified in an atmosphere of intense competition. It speaks much for the tenacity and durability of Ouse Valley Motors of St Ives that they are emerging as a power to be reckoned with in the business. The firm has a history going back 60 years and a staff of more than 80 people, many with more than 25 years' service. They pride themselves on being a local firm and are expecting to see trade increase. 83 08 09 suppl p2

1983 08 11
Cambridge United has signed the biggest sponsorship deal in their history with brewery company Ind Coope Benskins. They will be backing the second-division club with a three-year package worth more than £30,000. The Club has also retained a £5,000 per year backing of Norwich Breweries, which holds the franchise for the supports club, and fixed up a new kit sponsorship worth several thousand pounds with Yorkshire sportswear company, Mileta. 83 08 11 p1

It's not just Sunday mornings which are reserved for washing the car for residents in St Bede's Crescent, Cherry Hinton: they have to whip their sponges and leathers into action every day to clean off dust from the nearby Norman Cement Works. They have complained to the company who say they are cautious about any emissions & there are several sources of dust such as a rubbish disposal tip to which lorries are constantly driving. But they gave them a bottle of diluted hydrochloric acid for cleaning the windows. 83 08 11 p8

1983 08 12
Ben the Bus, the friend of shoppers in the Royston area for 15 years, has become the latest victim of the economic climate. The single-decker Leyland, operated by Ben Martin of Litlington Post Office, will no longer be selling groceries because the piston of the engine is broken. It was in February 1968 he started delivering to local villages, later concentrating on Royston housing estates. His trade has also been hit by a new shop in Burns Road and the cost of keeping the 52-seater on the road. 83 08 12 p14

Robinson College, which was opened by the Queen in 1981, has won one of the country's top architectural awards from the Royal Institute of British Architects. It says a complex and demanding brief had been met with vigour and imagination and a building produced which may well grow in stature with the passage of time. Prime Minister, Margaret Thatcher, also praised it as "just perfect – an absolutely lovely college which manages to be original, elegant, beautiful and functional". 83 08 12 p22

1983 08 15
Cambridge University freshman, Prince Edward, will be surrounded by drunken vomiting 'boaties' and trendy left-wingers when he arrives at Jesus College in October, claims the new 'Varsity

Handbook'. The prestigious guide to student life says the undergraduates 'spend their time bellowing in the college bar, letting off fire extinguishers and molesting female students'. The Master, Sir Alan Cottrell, who is a great friend of Prince Philip, the university's Chancellor, has voiced his astonishment at the book's cutting remarks. 83 08 15 p1

1983 08 17
George Reilly, Cambridge United's £140,000 record signing, has been sold to First Division Watford for 100,000. The fee is £40,000 less than United paid Northampton for him four years ago, but that reflects the state of the transfer market. The giant Scottish centre forward, who was the club's top scorer last year, has not been at the Abbey since he had pay talks with Manager John Docherty. He had a year of his contract to run and a review of his pay was due in summer. 83 08 17 p1 & 83 08 24

1983 08 18
The first guests will soon be booking into Haverhill's first motel which is being built next to the Woodlands Club, opposite the Golf Course. Work is nearly complete on the first phase of four chalets and if successful six more will be added. Nicky and Albert Young hope to attract businessmen and other travellers as there are few hotels or other places to stay between Haverhill and Colchester. 83 08 18 p6

Polish housing, p7

1873 08 19
Army houses, p10

1093 08 20
Dozens of Cambridge residents gathered outside King Street Post Office to protest against its closure. It was the last day of business for the owners, Tom and Ivy Mansfield who are retiring after 30 happy years. The decision to close was taken despite vigorous opposition from the city council. "They haven't given a thought to the inconvenience it will cause people", say protestors, but the Head Postmaster says there are too many post offices in Cambridge. 83 08 20 p3

1983 08 22
One of the last letters to be postmarked by the King Street Post Office, which closed despite public protest, has been kept as a memento. The registered letter was sent to the News by John Mellanby, a city tourist guide, as a souvenir of the closure. He recorded the dates the post office opened and closed, 1898-1983 and blames MP Robert Rhodes James for not supporting the fight. 83 08 22 p7

1983 08 24
The Royal Oak is the last of seven pubs once in Barrington and many of the locals are drawn from the cement works which dominate the village – Barrington would be a perfect haven without it but then it could be dying for lack of jobs. There is a broad choice of bar menus and restaurant meals. We had trout and scampi with salad and were well content with the overall bill of £7.36 which included three glasses of wine and coffee. 83 08 24 p20

1983 08 25
Harston village hall celebrates its 60th anniversary in the knowledge that it is the best-kept hall in Cambridgeshire. More than 100 were judged on outside appearance, condition of car parks, signposts and the fabric of the buildings. Credit was given to the Cambridgeshire Community Action Project whose members had repainted it. 83 08 25 p5

Mellanby with Richard III grup, p12

1983 08 26
Many foreign language students do not respect road safety, says a Cambridge Cycle Hire operator. It is a free-for all aboard and they are not going to change here, any amount of teaching and talking is a waste of time. But Swedes were very safety-conscious and had complained about the bad state of driving in England; locals ought to put their own house in order before they criticised foreign cyclists. 83 08 26 p13

1983 08 27
Furious council house tenants in New Road Sawston have hit back at villagers who have dubbed their temporary homes 'sin bins' and are threatening to withhold their rates. Irate tenants say the homes are not being used to punish people who have not paid their rents, just temporary accommodation for homeless families. They reject complaints of noise, careless parking and their animals fouling nearby gardens. But they do agree the rusting steel-clad homes are an eyesore and want SCDC to improve them. 83 08 27 p8

1983 08 30
Four major car parks on the outskirts of Cambridge linked to the city centre by a frequent park-and-ride bus service are suggested in a new report aimed a sorting out the city's traffic tangles. They are on fields at Barton Road, a small piece of disused land between the bypass interchange at Histon Road, allotment land near Newmarket Road cemetery and the old Cattle Market site at Cherryhinton Road. It also proposes extensive residents-only parking schemes with a tightening-up of long-term parking in the city centre. 83 08 30 p1

1983 08 31
The Cambridge computer industry has suffered its first casualty. Grundy Business Systems, based on the Science Park, launched its NewBrain microcomputer in May last year, based on a design by Sir Clive Sinclair. It became one of the best-selling in the UK but an unexpected decline in sales and a failure to meet deadlines led to cash difficulties. 83 08 31 p1

The so-called 'radio-active anthrax site' off Milton Road has been officially declared safe and not a health risk, Scientists say there is no reason why it cannot be developed for housing. But the areas where animal carcases said to have been infected with anthrax were buried 40 years ago should be concreted over and made into car-parking areas or garages. 83 08 31 p1

Caravans International has launched its first new range since it was revived in February. Two new models, the Esprit and the Cosmos have been added to the existing Sprite, Eccles and Europe range. CI was holding nearly a third of the British market at the end of the 1970s but collapsed because of the recession in caravan sakes. The firm employs more than 200 people at Newmarket. 83 08 31 p5

September 1983 CEN

1983 09 01
Two of Cambridgeshire's oldest boathouses were destroyed in a spectacular blaze; one was owned by the '99 Rowing Club, the other by the CRA. Crowds lined the banks and boat club members who had been drinking in a nearby pub risked their lives trying to save their valuable boats, flinging them into the river. By midnight only charred shells remained of the two historic landmarks. 83 09 01 p1

The Mayor of Cambridge slammed plans to twin with a Communist country and publicise the city's anti-nuclear policies by putting anti-nuclear emblems on dustcarts and lorries. Since Labour wrested control of the city council from the Conservatives four years ago, anti-nuclear policies have been given top priority with plans to paint doves of peace on the walls of the entrance to the Guildhall. 83 09 01 p9

1983 09 05
County councillors have ordered a big clean-up of the car park off Magrath Avenue – once the site of the Rex Cinema. Since the cinema was demolished two years ago it has been used as a public car park by residents. But it has also become a dumping ground for abandoned cars and garden rubbish. It forms park of the eight-acre site at the rear and sides of Shire Hall which is to be extensively redeveloped early next year. 83 09 05 p12

1983 09 06
Land Settlement Association growers are throwing away thousands of lettuces which have been ruined by smuts from stubble burning. The dry weather and high winds have blown more smuts into the air and wreaked havoc for glasshouse growers who cannot keep them out unless they turn off their vital ventilation systems. Other crops are also affected: one grower has been forced to patiently blow her chrysanthemums with a hair dryer before packing them. 83 09 06 p11

1983 09 07
Haverhill's voluntary community action group, the Town Development Council, which was founded four years ago, is to be closed down because of lack of public interest. At one time it had several hundred members and led a long but eventually unsuccessful campaign for a cinema. But now there are only three members and will be disbanded. It could prove an attractive windfall for other organisations as it has assets of about £800 and cinema equipment which will be distributed. 83 09 07 p5

1983 09 08
The controversial plan for building a major car park under the 'sacred turf' of Parker's Piece may get the official go-ahead after all – 20 years after city councillors threw it out by two votes. This amazing about-turn – which sets a new record even by Cambridge standards for taking time to solve the city's parking problems – stems from the growing insistence by senior county councillors to sort out the city's daily traffic tangles. 83 09 08 p1

1983 09 09
Hunts County Bats, tucked away down an alley in Huntingdon High Street, is fast becoming internationally known for the bats it makes for some of the world's top cricketers including them Pakistan Captain, Imran Khan. Orders have come rolling in since the company was set up six months ago following the closure of County Sports of Little Paxton. At present the two craftsmen, Tony Cook and Bob Hook can make 60 bats a week and wince at the prospect of a large order book. 83 09 09 p25

1983 09 10
Test-tube baby pioneers Dr Bob Edwards and Mr Patrick Steptoe have joined the movement to ban stubble burning since airborne smuts forced them to stop work. Papworth Hospital has also been affected as smoke has penetrated operating theatres and laboratories, covering instruments and sterile bottles with an oily film. It causes problems for the elderly and people with respiratory problems and no amount of special pleading by farmers can explain away or justify the mass pollution caused by their activities. 83 09 10 p1

1983 09 13
Assistant Chief Constable Bernard Hotson is leaving the force after 37 years. He became internationally known as the man who led the hunt for the Cambridge rapist and also played an important part in the conviction of the Buckden murderer in 1968. He joined the Metropolitan Police in 1946, transferring to Ely three years later. He became head of the southern section of the CID based in Cambridge. He has had a very distinguished career and his knowledge of the county is second to none. 83 09 12 p13

1983 09 15
A cut-price housing scheme at Lode has been so successful that ECDC has approved phase two. The development involved constructing houses and bungalows at Fairhaven Close in a partnership deal with builders McInerney Homes. The council let the firm have surplus land for the price it originally paid, provided the saving was passed on to first-time buyers in the form of cheaper homes. Now it will sanction a further phase on the remaining one-and-a-half acres of land. 83 09 15 p5

1983 09 16
The railways could be on the brink of another Beeching. Under the British Rail five year plan they want to introduce single-line track in places along the Ely-King's Lynn system, reduce the East Coast main line from four to three tracks between Huntingdon and Peterborough and make the Cambridge to Newmarket line a single track. They also hope to extend the electrification of the Royston line. 83 09 16 p1

Military bases should have to pay realistic rates to local authorities, say Forest Heath District Council which includes the massive American bases at Lakenheath and Mildenhall. The council has a low rateable value because Crown Properties which also includes Government-owned buildings are exempt and pay a contribution instead of rates. But this is one-third of what would have been raised in the normal way. 83 09 16 p15

1983 09 17
Women will be able to give birth as naturally as possible - without drugs in a relaxed no-rules atmosphere – at the new maternity unit at Huntingdon's Hinchingbrooke Hospital. When labour pains start, they will not take to their beds but move round right up to the time of the birth. They will also be able to lie in water to counteract the pain of the first stage of labour, says John Hare, the consultant who has studied natural childbirth. 83 09 17 p10

1983 09 19
Mentally handicapped children are the latest casualties of the NHS cash crisis in Cambridge which has already closed the head injuries unit at Addenbrooke's Hospital. Beds at the Ida Darwin Hospital at Fulbourn will be withdrawn when nurses fall sick and vacancies will be unfilled because of cash cuts. The crisis at the 238-bd hospital is made worse because even with a shortage of nurses, the nursing budget is overspent so no new nurses can be taken on. 83 09 19 p1

1983 09 20
A tractor trailer loaded with straw smashed three first floor windows when it passed by the Bell Inn in High Street, Linton. Landlord John Pearman was sitting watching television when the steel side supports holding the straw hit the 400-year-old pub. Identical leaded windows will have to be used in repairs because the building is listed. The cost of the damage is unknown. 83 09 19 p3

Drummer Street, p11

1983 09 21
Tesco is to close its Cambridge Regent Street supermarket. The store, which opened in 1964, has been left behind by developments in supermarket design. Managers now consider it too small – it is 11,000 square feet as compared to 30,000 at Bar Hill – and there is no provision for car parking. It would need a major refit to bring it up to modern standards and this could not be justified. 83 09 21 p16 83 09 22 p5

Chettisham sewage, p3

1983 09 22
A shock decision not to finance the building of a country park at Milton could see the end of the scheme. It is in the Structure Plan and has received backing from South Cambs and Cambridge city councils. But the county have decided it cannot finance the project. They say the site is already being used for recreation and there was no need to develop a country park. Ken Humphries says the decision was a great disappointment: villagers saw the park as one of the advantages to massive expansion of the village. 83 09 22 p3

1983 09 23
Rosie blow, p1

1983 09 24
Parents and teachers are angry at the host of problems that have plagued school cleaning since private contractors took over the job from the county council. They are worried about the health hazard of inadequately cleaned lavatories and claim contractors are understaffed and promises not being kept. One city school was not cleaned at all for the first week of term. The county admits there have been 'teething problems'. 83 09 24 p1

The landlord of the Wheatsheaf at Harston is doing a roaring trade selling what he says are 'magic mushrooms' – not knowing that if they are genuine they contain a mind-bending drug similar to LSD. He got them from a farmhand and says they are selling like hot cakes. After a News article his business mushroomed – but it appears they may just be the ordinary kind after all. 83 09 24 p1 83 09 26 p3

1983 09 26
The Carioca Club in Newmarket Road is today a burnt-out shell after fire was started in three different parts of the building. The entire contents were destroyed and walls and floors wrecked. Police say an 'inflammable liquid' was poured over materials in the building to start the blaze. 'Racks' night club which has 450 members is now looking for a temporary venue. The Carioca was originally a chapel and was used as a furniture depot before it became a night-club in 1978. 83 09 26 p1

1983 09 27
The arson attack on the Carioca Club has removed a bright nightspot from the already bleak picture of Cambridge entertainment. It leaves Ronelles, the up-market disco restaurant in the city centre, Route 66 and the Last Resort. Complaints about noise spelt the end of Silks in Hills Road. The City Council is thinking of building a special factory-type unit on the old cattle market industrial site off Cherryhinton Road to house an 'alternative venue centre'. 83 09 27 p13

1983 09 28
Grange Road is being lit up as Cambridge University take delivery of a £20,000 present – a complete set of floodlights. The lights, which are the final stage of a campaign to turn Grange Road into one of the best-equipped rugby grounds in the country, have been given to the Light Blues by a firm of London merchant bankers. 83 09 28 p30

Ely archaeology, p15
Boathouse site, p16
Coffee houses, p19

1983 09 29
Gray's the bookbinders of Green Street has been sold, the latest of a long line of small Cambridge specialist shops which are rapidly disappearing. Victims in recent years have included Bacon Brothers cigar merchants, S.P. Ora tobacconists, Gallyon the gun and fishing tackle dealers, F.O. Sennitt, fish, game and poultry merchants and Jack Carter, University robes. They are forced out by the three R's – rent, rates and recession. As the family shops close with them goes part of Cambridge's inheritance, atmosphere and charm. 83 09 29 p16

The Cambridge Civic Society, which fights planning applications around Cambridge, is being wound up and its members urged to join the Cambridge Preservation Society – the group from which it split off in 1961. Projects in which they have been involved include the Kite area, Stansted airport, the M11 Inquiry and Robinson College. At present they are concerned about the proposed large office development on the Shire Hall site, preferring to see it as a community area. 83 09 29 p19

1983 09 30
If you are accustomed to awaking to the dulcet tones of Julia Booth, Radio Cambridgeshire's early morning presenter, you are in for a shock. Station manager, Ian Masters' new line-up sees John Richards where Julia used to be, Nick Barraclough takes over his old slot and Anne Bristowe winds up weekdays. There is now no room for long wedges of worthy and dull speech; the news and information has to be presented brightly and accurately. When it opened 18 months ago it was an all-speech station but music is now an integral part of their output. 83 09 30 p22

McCulloch, p1

October 1983 CEN

1983 10 01
Mike Petty article on Stourbridge Fair, p10

1983 10 03
Fleet Street's royalty watchers were out in force as Prince Edward started his studies at Cambridge University. Television crews, reporters and cameramen from almost every national newspaper were permitted inside the grounds of Jesus College for the Prince's arrival. Amongst them was the Sun photographer Arthur Edwards who outraged the Palace with his 'bikini pictures' of the Princess of Wales before the birth of Prince William. 83 10 03 p10

Melbourn Science Park, p5

1983 10 04
Coleridge soccer club who earned a place in the Guinness Book of Records by going 28 years since their formation in 1954 without a booking have hit trouble with a referee. In the reserve team match with Romsey they lost their record of good behaviour. Twice over. Two players were cautioned. But they may retain their place in the Book as nobody is aware of any other club with such a long record. 83 10 04 p1

Britain's oldest pub, Ye Olde Ferry Boat Inn at Holywell, has closed for the first time in its 1,000 year history. Improvements costing over £100,000 have forced the owner to call 'time' for six weeks. Church records show ale was served as early as 968 when it was a port and it is listed in the Guinness Book of Records. It has twice undergone major improvements in the past – during the 17th century and about 20 years ago. But on both occasions they were able to carry on serving. 83 10 04 p10

1983 10 05
Rosie arrival, p1
LSA sold, p9

1983 10 07
About half the giant elms trees which have lined Parker's Piece for the last 150 years have been cut down – the latest victims of the deadly Dutch elm disease. Twelve elms along Gonville Place have already gone and the famous park looks totally unfamiliar without its border of towering trees. The council plans to have lime trees and London planes, some have been planted and already reached 18 feet in height. 83 10 07 p14

1983 10 08
Bourn Methodist chapel is to close after 150 years following the loss of its only village member, Miss Ada Clarke, who was cleaner, caretaker and organist until her death aged 86. Now the congregation which has already small has since dwindled further with only two or three attending the monthly services. A final service will be held at the end of the month, after which the building will be sold. 83 10 08 p6

1983 10 11
The new Grafton Centre, the biggest shake-up in Cambridge retailing for a century, is only medium sized in terms of city centre redevelopments but is enough to upset the balance of trade in Cambridge.

"No one would pretend that it is linked to the existing shopping centre to the extent that people can use both on the same day", said the man in charge of the project for Grosvenor Estates. The next six moth's trading will be keenly watched by shops in the historic centre. The attractiveness of the Grafton Centre will depend on easy access and whether it offers value for money and diversity. They have accepted lower rents in order to get shopkeepers which cannot afford big overheads. 83 10 11 p11

Trick'n'treat, p1

1983 10 14
The tiny village school at Kennett has been saved. The County Council planned to close it at the end of December, in spite of fierce opposition from parents, governors and teachers. But the Education Secretary, Sir Keith Joseph has thrown out the plan. The chairman of the action group, Tina Davies, said: "There is great celebration and we are practically leaping about with joy". 83 10 14 p15

1983 10 17
Cambridge has an abundance of shoe shops run by big multiples so it is heartening to learn that a long-established family firm, Carters of Botolph Lane, have established a second shop just around the corner. The business was founded in 1935 and prides itself on offering a personal service meeting specialist needs. 83 10 17 p14

1983 10 18
When Sara Payne walked up Castle Street, notebook in hand, for the first of a series of articles in the Cambridge Weekly News, she was launching a marathon series which is still going strong, two years later. She has produced articles on more than 100 streets with much of her research being carried out at the Cambridgeshire Collection. Now a sample of the articles on Central Cambridge has been published in a new book "Down Your Street", the first of at least five volumes. 83 10 18 p3, 83.10 20 p20

Sara Payne's volume of her 'Down Your Street' series deals with central Cambridge. It combines documentary records, street directories college archives, photographs and memories of the residents of both Town and Gown, much of which was not previously recorded. In the past two years Sara has produced more than 100 articles for the Cambridge Weekly News which gives scope for more volumes in the future. Publication coincides with the opening of the new Grafton Centre. 83 10 18 & 20

1983 10 19
The new Grafton Centre has a variety of stores, a large supermarket and 50 shop units in addition to the new Debenhams. Construction of the 11-acre centre is a milestone in the annals of Cambridge with the bulk of the building work being completed in just 2½ years. This in stark contrast to the time spent thinking about it, but hopefully the Byzantine manoeuvres accompanying its birth may in the end prove well justified. 83 10 19 p4

Cambridge's new shopping precinct will be simple enough to get to with its masses of parking and good road and rail links. But a question mark may hang over the traffic congestion likely to develop on the approaches and its power to sustain a day out for the family travelling from far afield expecting to see the sights as well as having a profitable foray into the stores. Whether it can muster the same pulling power as Milton Keynes, Peterborough or Norwich in attracting shoppers long distances remains uncertain. 88 10 19 09

Businessmen and shopkeepers in the Fitzroy-Burleigh Street area are hoping that trade which has been depressed in recent years by the area's lack of glitter and by the large-scale building works, will now come bounding back. Traders such as the Cambridge Co-op, now in the throes of a re-development plan which will see the conversion of its second floor to a suite of offices for letting, should do well. 83 10 19 p14

1983 10 20
Shopkeepers in Burleigh Street feel they will be crippled by the opening of the Grafton Centre. Trade has been disastrous since the road was dug up five weeks ago and left with piles of sand, rubble and deep, wide holes. Now some are refusing to pay their rates bills. They feel developers want to make the area look like a tip so customers would stay in the Grafton Centre. But the City Surveyor says the road is going to be pedestrianised and will be completed on time. 83 10 20 p16

1983 10 20
A quarter of a century of planning wrangles ended today when the £27 million Grafton shopping centre development opened. Part is still unfinished but there was a general sense of relief that the Kite at last had its new prestigious shopping development. It looks slightly bare as many of the shop units were still unfilled however shoppers seemed happy as they walked through the new arcade of the main concourse. 83 10 20 p1

1983 10 22
The Rosie, Cambridge's much-awaited maternity hospital, is Liz Earl's baby. The top midwife in the area, she has been involved in its planning right from the outset. No sooner had it opened than Miss Earl had the satisfaction of delivering a baby herself, the new hospital's second arrival. The Rosie has all the 'high-tech' that could be needed – two operating theatres, an improved monitoring room and new equipment - but the general atmosphere is as comfortable and homely as it can be with bright curtains and attractive play areas for older children. 83 10 22 p12

1983 10 25
"Three tumbledown cottages, an old barn and a couple of new houses". That was the description of Papworth St Agnes six years ago. Since then a complete transformation has taken place, an extraordinary upsurge in the fortunes of a village which appeared to have been decaying for 40 years. Now there are 20 occupied dwellings in the village and for the first time it has a community centre – the church which was made redundant and once doomed to be pulled down now provides accommodation for secular activities; table tennis in the aisles is due to start on Sunday. 83 10 25 p12

1983 10 27
The controversial plan to finish the widening of East Road is to go ahead despite growing opposition. The County Council leader says nothing is going to stop them from completing the work. The City council claim the road is a waste of money and would have a serious and harmful effect on St Matthew's primary school. They have placed a tree preservation order on saplings growing in the school forecourt to prevent the county from starting to widen the road. But the County claim this is illegal and challenged it in the High Court. 83 10 27 p11

1983 10 28
Garden rubbish, p32

1983 10 29
Customers had a dramatic escape when a lorry ploughed into a newsagents on the corner of Market Street and River Lane, Fordham. The vehicle that became firmly embedded in the front of the building was carrying a load of wheat feed from Soham back to Coton. The crash has renewed calls for a by-pass to alleviate the heavy traffic going through the village. 83 10 29 p1

1983 10 31
The Manor comprehensive school on Arbury Road – one of the city's biggest with more than 800 pupils – has been earmarked for closure within three years. The County says the children will be dispersed to other comprehensives and the building handed over to the rapidly-expanding Cambridgeshire College of Further Education. The Manor Boys and Girls schools opened in 1959 to serve the rapidly-growing estate. They merged in 1970 and became a comprehensive five years later.

But numbers started to fall. It is a central focus in Arbury and its loss would do immeasurable damage to the community. 83 10 31 p1

November 1983 CEN

1983 11 01
Corn Exchange, p1

1983 11 02
Things looked grim for Orwell, which 25 years ago sported 12 pubs, when the last was closed by Whitbreads on the retirement of the landlord. But Derek and Rose Kimsey bought the 17th century building, restored it and got the whole community involved: 300 people packed the pub on the opening night at the end of September. Now it is a friendly comfortable local serving good food and with 13 pumps. 83 11 02 p19

Bus cuts, p10
Station Road sign, p10

1983 11 03
Two Milton companies, Collins Communications and CS Devices, have designed electronic devises to stop CB radio buffs fiddling petrol pumps. Garages have been worried that fraudsters used powerful amplifiers – known as burners – to slow down the pumps adding machines and so get more petrol than they paid for. But the new gadgets sound an alarm to warn the forecourt attendant if anyone tries to use a burner. It can also be used with other electronic adding machines at supermarket checkouts and bank cash dispensers. 83 11 03 p11

Haverhill anti-nuclear campaigners who intend setting up a peace camp outside what they claim is a store for nuclear weapons machinery are in for a peaceful time. The 'store' is an old aircraft hangar. One of the doors is open and inside there is only a miscellaneous rubbish and mounds of bird droppings. Despite this members of Haverhill Anti-Nuclear group will camp outside the hangar near Ridgewell for 24 hours as part of a national day of support for the Greenham Common women. 83 11 03 p17

1983 11 04
Bus takes strain, p14
Cheason book, p33

1983 11 05
Littleport rats, p6

1983 11 07
Jesus College could be turned into a fortress to stop reporters pestering Prince Edward and his fellow students. One student found a reporter sitting on her bed when she returned to her room and two undergraduates have been asked to pass on information. One photographer has been caught with a long-range lens on the fourth floor of a carpark. He had been trying to spy on the rooms of Edward's fellow undergraduate who will be playing the leading lady opposite the Prince in 'The Crucible'. 83 11 07 p5

1983 11 08
The oldest crossing keeper in British Rail's eastern region is to retire because automation is taking over her job. Mrs Minnie Towson, 74, has worked at Trees Crossing, Wendens Ambo for nearly 20 years. Between 15 and 20 motorists use the crossing but the numbers shoot up when flooding made Duck Street impassable. "On one day 198 cars went through", she recalled. "No sooner had one gone over than another was waiting, and the only rest I got was when the train came through. I was up all night. But they widened and dredged the river several years ago". 83 11 08 p6

Jesus Green mess room, p7

1983 11 09
The Cross Keys pub at St Neots – a landmark for more than 800 years – is to close. The old coaching inn is owned by Paines PLC but nobody has come forward to take over the lease after Hamilton Taverns pulls out. The manager said: It will be a shame. This inn has been here since goodness knows when. It's got great character and is part of the town. 83 11 09 p9

The new Presto supermarket in the Grafton Centre caters for a wide range of customers with its instore bakery, fresh meat, wet fish and delicatessen counters offering an up-market choice alongside a wide range of Red Dot bargain lines and specially-packaged basics. What its competitors want to know is what kind of shoppers it will attract, and how many. It will offer a cheque-cashing service where customers can withdraw £50 at a time. 83 11 09 p5

1983 11 10
Morning in the city centre: one of the drunks in Lion Yard had been sick and no-one knew what to do about the mess. In the end help came from three youths with spiky black and red hair wearing leather jackets strung together with chains. The punks are not doing community service, nor are they fond of the drunks who share their benches in the shopping centre. The punks, the drunks and the glue-sniffers all inhabit the same territory. None of them want to buy anything. They just want shelter, warmth and somewhere to watch the world go by. 83 11 10 p20

Josh Scott, one of the last marsh shepherds, has hung up his gun and binoculars and said goodbye to the life-style that has supported his family for more than 100 years. It was Josh who first introduced the practice of rounding up cattle on a scrambler motor cycle and jumping the ditches in the fen area around Welney. In 1967 his life changed dramatically when instead of shooting for a living he joined forces with Sir Peter Scott and set up the Wild Fowl Trust Refuge in Welney where he has been warden. 83 11 10 p21

Stansted house, p9

1983 11 15
Cambridge could soon have a new underground car park, an extensive range of new shops and a luxury hotel at the edge of the Lion Yard car park. The land, which is let as a private car park, was originally scheduled for a large hotel, then the John Lewis organisation became interested. But now the City Council is considering extending the Lion Yard car park, probably underground, and selling the land for shopping. It might fetch as much as £5 million. 83 11 15 p1

1983 11 16
Mowbray's, the King's Parade bookshop, is celebrating the 150th anniversary of its foundation in Oxford. It had its origins in the Catholic revival in the Church of England but institutional and sectarian differences have been submerged in the ecumenical considerations that are now paramount in religious thinking. The Cambridge shop, which opened in 1950, is the baby of the business. It sells books, cards and smokeless, drip-free candles. 83 11 16 p22

1983 11 17
A scheme to alter the layout of Cottenham parish church threatens to split the congregation. The vicar says moving the font and several lines of pews and establishing a children's corner, would encourage young people into the church and secure its future. But others claim it would destroy a part of its heritage and create two factions. 83 11 17 p3

Sir - Life in Burnt Fen is not very rich these days. There is no work in the area. The nearest shop is 4½ miles away at Prickwillow and the school is due to close with the children bussed to Littleport. To get to the doctor's surgery people have to take the train from Shippea Hill station to Ely. There is no village hall, no church, chapel, nor even a post office. It hasn't a pub anymore and there are no clubs. Is it any wonder that half the people living in the council houses want to change homes – Harry Bye. 83 11 17 p16

1983 11 18
John Carter, p28

1983 11 19
A big new housing estate with more than 200 houses, bungalows and flats is being planned for a site off Prickwillow Road, Ely. The developers, Barretts, say it will consist of a range of homes from first-time buyer to four-bedroomed houses with two bathrooms and take three years to complete. If approved it will be the biggest in Ely for years – larger than the Kingfield's at Lynn Road where J.F. Bennett from Lakenheath is building 200 houses as part of a phased development which started a couple of years ago. 83 11 19 p7

Richard Spendlove is best known in Cambridge as the announcer at the railway station. But he is also a journalist, TV presenter and historian whose lifetime association with railways is sealed by the fact that he lives in Brickyard Cottage Coldham's Lane, hard up against the railway line. He is also an authority on weapons whose discovery of a Colt Navy percussion revolver is to be the subject of a television documentary. 83 11 19 p9

Ely Cromwell Road barn, p14

1983 11 22
There just aren't enough ballroom dances to meet all the demand in Cambridgeshire. Already a resurgence in the dancing of 30 years ago is causing overflows and tea dances are catching on. A dance at the Long Road Sixth Form College attracted 230, too many for dancing, so numbers are now restricted. The local big band, Sound Idea, under Bob Kidman, averages three bookings a fortnight. Now a new one has made its debut: the Umbrella Big Band, a few survivors from the defunct Impington Dance Orchestra. 83 11 22 p13

Enterprise, individuality and a friendly atmosphere are among the attractive features of shopping at Histon where a good range of stores serves a lively and expanding community. The only snag is the lack of adequate parking space. They include Holmes of Histon which has displays of Wentworth kitchen furniture, the Silver Candle for Casio and Timex watches, Anglia Fireplaces for fenders, fire dogs and coal buckets, and Phillips and Few which has the new Luxor TV finished in teak or rosewood effect with optional remote control hand-set and teletext modules. 83 11 22 p15

1983 11 24
East Hatley church could soon have a fox in the crypt and bats in the belfry together with barn owls and butterflies under SCDC plans to designate the redundant church and churchyard as a local nature reserve. They have stopped the Church Commissioners demolishing the redundant church of St Denys and hope to persuade the diocese to make the building safe before handing it over for a nominal rent. Now they need a group prepared to maintain and accept responsibility for the reserve. 83 11 24 p9

1983 11 25
Old folk get a shock when it comes to paying a funeral bill. They expect it to cost around £100 and are horrified to find it is more than three times that amount, despite East Anglia being amongst the lowest places in the country. It costs an average of £236 here as compared to £517 in Leicester. The cheapest way of doing it is to buy the coffin for around £50 and make your own funeral arrangements for about £150. 83 11 25 p15

1983 11 26
The Horse and Gate at Witcham Toll is the epitome of an autonomous house. Every energy-conserving idea has been used, including a hay store. The former Victorian pub features a wind-powered electricity generator in the back garden to supplement the mains supply. It also has a massive conservatory which grows enough tomatoes to feed the whole village together with a potting shed and goldfish pond. The five-bedroomed property is now on the market for £55,000. 83 11 26 p12

December 1983 CEN

1983 12 01
Sir, Burnt Fen is not a community 'dying on its feet': the Women's Institute still flourishes at the village hall and landlord Mr Shackcloth welcomes people to the Railway Tavern. But that is all there is for entertainment. There is still farm work done by local people but now in this estate there are now two connected with agriculture, where there have been as many as 30. Not all tenants want to leave here. But I have now retired and am looking forward to a move when suitable accommodation is found in Ely – Harry Bye, Council Houses, Redmere, Burnt Fen. 83 12 01 p23

Burwell gipsies, p18

1983 12 02
Householders at St Ives have risked turning their homes into bombs by not heeding gas engineer's warnings. Gas Board staff mounted a massive operation last night, visiting thousands of homes telling people to switch off their supplies because of a fault. But despite this some people still used gas, endangering their own lives and those of their neighbours. Cooking rings and fan heaters have been handed out and a WVS soup kitchen set up in the Corn Exchange. 83 12 02 p1

Houses which look like a two-up and two-down off Mill Road are being sold for more than £60,000. But the going price for most standard houses there is only half this figure. For more than 10 years unfashionable backstreets such as Gwydir Street have been gradually taken over by young couples and modernised. Since the Kite has been finaly settled dozens of little houses on the perimeter are undergoing vast changes. 83 12 02 p13

Wimpole avenue, p23

1983 12 03
A cottage that paid for itself is for sale again. In 1977 a young couple were drawn to the tumbledown Yew Tree Cottage at Birdbrook. They had hardly started work when in a dividing wall they unearthed a tin containing 99 brown coins which when rubbed developed a golden glow. They were sold for £14,000, which paid off their debts. 83 12 03 p15

1983 12 05
A fire at the Victoria 1 cinema on Market Hill completely destroyed the screen and part of the stage, causing damage estimated at £50,000. There appears to have been a forced entry and it is being treated as arson. The cinema was showing 'War Games'. It is hoped to open the 139-seater Victoria 2 today. 83 12 05 p1

1983 12 08
Beer at 1930s prices attracted drinkers when the Burleigh Arms, Newmarket Road, re-opened. It had been closed for six months while the front wall was rebuilt and the two bars redecorated. It now has a 1930s theme deliberately chosen in an attempt to go up-market and attract shoppers from the new Grafton Centre. The Zebra and the Bird in Hand have also been revamped. 83 12 08 p6

A scheme to alter the interior of Cottenham church has been scrapped because of objections from some of the congregation. The PCC has abandoned its plan to move the choir vestry and font and establish a children's corner. They had hoped the new look would attract young people into the church and secure its future. But parishioners felt it would change the character and destroy a vital part of Cottenham's heritage. 83 12 08 p20

1983 12 09
The Royal coat of arms on the old Drill Hall, East Road, is a work of art and may be saved when the building is demolished thanks to a change meeting 50 years ago. At that time Gordon Higgins was chatting to an elderly villager in Newton, Albert Prime, the man who made it. He had been a copper worker and raised the sign from a plate of copper 50 years earlier. He was taken to a yellow-painted hut – it was a Rip Van Winkie workshop; all the tools and templets were piled as if they had been there for 100 years. Now it will be preserved. 83 12 09 p16

Soldiers home, p26

1983 12 10
At Anglia Photo works in Devonshire Road they know the party season is in full swing. There was a time when you could guarantee there would be hardly any photographs to process after September, said Tom Johnson, but the emergence of d cameras with built-in flash has changed all that". The average number of prints processed per film is now 22, much higher than it used to be. Now picture after picture flows from the processing machines and every one is personally scrutinised and inspected. 83 12 10 p14

1983 12 12
Burleigh Arms, p12

1983 12 13
Cambridge United have sacked manager John Docherty, ending his reign at the Abbey Stadium as the longest-serving soccer boss in the Second Division. His dismissal comes after 10 weeks in which United have not won a match and have slumped deep into the relegation zone. He came to Cambridge as part-time coach in September 1976 and steered them though the Third Division campaign of 1977-78 after Ron Atkinson left. But unlike his extrovert predecessor his low key style failed to capture the imagination of fans who have been clamouring for his dismissal for at least 18 months. 83 12 13 p1

An old Cambridge family business which closed 20 years ago is being 'revived'. Matthew and Son was once a prosperous department store founded in the 1830s in Trinity Street with its own tea rooms and restaurant. It closed in 1963 because of high rents but now the great-great-nephew of the founder, Michael Matthew, has started up the tea and coffee business again in much humbler surroundings of a market stall. 83 12 13 p12

1983 12 15
Vandal estate, p8

1983 12 16
Regular customers of the Fort St George in England pub on Midsummer Common were issued badges. It was landlord Alan Winfield-Chislett's way of sorting out some familiar faces at a reunion party to celebrate his 21st anniversary in this, his first pub. It doesn't make him the longest-serving landlord in Cambridge but the fact that people were arriving from all over the British Isles and beyond indicated that he must be one of the best known. The Savoy Jazz Band played late into the night, Down by the Riverside. 83 12 16 p30

1983 12 19
Vogue, one of Cambridge's most distinctive fashion shops is closing but for them a closing-down sale does not mean a wild scrimmage as customers fight over coats and dresses. Instead a locked door keeps the bargain-hunters out on the pavement while staff deal with two or three clients at a time. Vogue first opened in 1934 when Mark Harris set out to build a high-class trade which today means dresses of up to £500 in price. They are the top fashion house in East Anglia but soon the old shop and its garden will disappear. His father opened Modiste in a former public house further down St Andrews Street in the 1920s and all of his six brothers and sister were in business in Cambridge. 83 12 19 p5

A Histon girl and her boyfriend had a terrifying two-hour ordeal searching for each other in the carnage and rubble of the bomb-blast that devastated Harrods. While five others lay dead and 91 were injured, their reunion was pictured around the country in national newspapers and television. The couple had split up to buy each other's Christmas present when there was a big bang and the building shook. Both escaped injury but spent two hours wandering round the streets before they fell into each other's arms. 83 12 19 p1

1983 12 22
The Manor Comprehensive School in Cambridge – threatened with closure – has now been offered a reprieve. Conservative councillors have bowed to intense public pressure and thought of a new plan to keep the school open. It is to reduce the number of new entrants to 120 pupils and year and hand over the remaining buildings to the Cambridge College of Further Education. When plans to close the school because of falling numbers were announced by the News, a massive protest from parents and politicians swept Cambridge. But the problem of falling secondary pupil numbers will not go away and must be solved somehow. 83 12 22 p1

1983 12 24
If you find a BMX bike in your stocking you will be looking for somewhere to ride it. Cambridge has not had a proper track but now a Shelford businessman and a publican have joined together and a track at Stapleford is a distinct possibility. They are keen to hear from youngsters who will back the proposals and join a proper BMX club. 83 12 24 p7

1983 12 28
A seventeenth-century thatch-roofed cottage at Wickhambrook has been destroyed by fire. The owners had spent thousands of pounds renovating the interior but were not living there. Most of the furniture had been removed and oak beams from the inside were stored in a nearby garage. Now all that is left is a burned-out shell. 83 12 28 p6

1983 12 29
More than £1 million has been collected from Cambridge parking meters since they were first introduced in 1964. Motorists have put £1,065,574 in the meters but the operating costs have been £849,480 leaving a profit of £216,094. This goes towards helping the councils provide more off-street car parks. 83 12 29 p8

Britain has about 75,000 pubs but experts say the number will have dropped by 10,000 by the end of the century. Six Cambridge pubs have closed in the last ten years and most were knocked down and redeveloped. The Rose in Rose Crescent is the only one still standing with its basement now housing Flambards wine bar. The Bun Shop went after years spent in splendid isolation as the Lion Yard was built, The King William IV in Newmarket was flattened as was the Prince Albert in Chesterton. The Ancient Druids and Old English Gentleman were demolished as part of the Kite clearance. 83 12 29 p12

1983 12 30
Ratepayers could be more than £40,000 worse off because a much-heralded 'money-saving' scheme has collapsed. Three years ago the council decided to buy a fleet of 12 electrically-powered mobile libraries to serve outlying rural areas. But from the start things went wrong. Faults developed and the council became involved in a long legal battle with the suppliers who have since ceased trading. Now councillors are trying to dispose of three electric vehicles.83 12 30 p5

Please make what use of this you may. Kindly remember where it came from – www.mikepetty.org.uk

1984 Cambridge Evening News

I have copies of these articles – see reference at end of each article

January 1984 CEN
1984 01 03
Controversy surrounded the result of the first game of foot-the-ball played since 1946: it was either a 13-all draw or 13-14 to the Ditton Players. More than 400 people turned up on Parker's Piece to watch the contest between the Players, in Edwardian dress and the Ditton Irregulars. Amongst them was the son of the game's inventor, the late Prof Bill Howell who organised the first match between the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. The match is played like football except that it has three balls and 15 players to a side. 84 01 05

1984 01 04
Grosvenor Estates, landlords of the Grafton Centre are turning away potential tenants for the remaining shops. At present seven of the major units are unlet plus two smaller ones, with another six in the smaller Eden Hall and four in Fitzroy Street. Very few new traders have appeared since the summer and a number are still waiting to open, including Gerrards the greengrocers, Studio (Harry Fenton) menswear, Zales jewellers and Our Price records. But Grosvenor say they are doing better than they anticipated. 84 01 04

Behind barred windows in Cambridge city police station there is an office that contains files on people of interest to the police and other branches of the security service. They are profiles of people who may have not committed a criminal act in their lives and are listed without their knowledge or consent. They include peace campaigners, trades union activists, journalists and civil rights organisers. Every foreigner coming to Cambridge must register at what is officially called 'The Aliens Office'. Its other name is the Special Branch Office, because that's what it is: all the information is made available to MI5. 84 01 04 p13

Heart swaps, p1

1984 01 05
A new village industry is booming in Cambridgeshire – compiling village chronicles. It is the result of a major project at the Cambridgeshire Collection which has indexed the village news appearing in the Cambridge Chronicle newspaper between 1770 and 1899. Now these stories are being transcribed and published in a series of village 'Chronicles'. The first was compiled for Stretham and others have followed for Littleport, Barrington and Swavesey with more in the pipeline. 84 01 05 p14

1984 01 06
When Kitty Wilson, former Mayor of Saffron Walden sets out to do something it has to be the biggest and best. At her wedding there were 2,000 people, during her life she has played mother to 250 foster children and for her 80th birthday she took over the Town Hall. All day long friends, family and well-wishers flocked to the building where the main hall was festooned with flowers, presents and cards. "She's the most wonderful woman I have ever met. She will go out of her way for rich or poor. She's given her life to people", said one friend. 84 01 06 p21

1984 01 07
Quayside plan, p1

1984 01 10
To the sound of bells, drums, accordion and the heavy clump of clogs more than 40 musicians from St Neots, Whittlesey, Downham Market and Stevenage brought Plough Monday to life in Fenstanton. Dances featured milk maids and ploughboys and songs were about good old ale and hearty dishes of parsnips. And if anybody noticed the modern paraphernalia of cars, flash guns and the searchlights of a television camera crew they were too polite to mention it. Dancing also took place at Balsham where they took a plough into each of the village's three inns. 84 01 10 p11

Computer, p1

1984 01 11
Nearly half the footpaths in South Cambridgeshire are virtually or completely unusable according to a survey by the Ramblers Association. Complaints have been made to the County Council about 530 paths, only 25 of which have been improved. It is clear they need to devote more staff and resources – the cost would be infinitesimal compared to the amount spent on controversial road improvements. 84 01 11 p12

1984 01 12
Gangs of teenagers are scaring villagers in Histon. They have barricaded people in telephone boxes, destroyed telephone directories, torn down Christmas lights and daubed a wall with paint. Elderly people walking at night have been intimidated. The village policeman says it is worse at the moment because there are no youth clubs. A councillor said if they lost the telephone box it would cause a great deal of inconvenience. But it will have to be removed unless the trouble ends or the youths are dispersed. 84 01 12 p8

An unemployed teenager pocked thousands of pounds from church offertory boxes after 400 raids on churches. On one occasion he sat in St Edward's church, Cambridge and watched an old woman put an envelope containing £70 into a church box then fished it out for himself. Amongst his targets were the Round Church – 52 thefts, Little St Mary's (46). Burwell church (42) and Swaffham Prior (26). He was finally caught after the Vicar of Oakington heard him inside the church opening drawers. He was sent to a detention centre for four months. 84 01 12 p16

1984 01 13
Thousands of homes were without electricity when overnight storms brought down power lines all over Cambridgeshire. Eighteen villagers were hit by power cuts and two – Shepreth and Coton – were cut off completely. On the roads cyclists were blown over, cars and lorries swept on to verges and on the A10 at Waterbeach one lorry was blown on to its side. Hundreds of commuters were late for work when felled trees blocked roads. A house at Chapman Way, Over, was wrecked when a 60 foot ash tree crashed through the roof. 84 01 13 p1

Kath Skin, p28

1984 01 16
Phantom jets screamed overhead as the Bishop of Huntingdon blessed the newest peace camp opposite USAF Alconbury. Provocatively placed almost opposite the American air base main gates, its launch became a centre for a storm of political and theological controversy. Cloaked against the cold with a guitar at his feet, Dr Gordon Roe preached his sermon to about 150 peace campaigners shivering on the grass verge. "Happy are those who work for peace. God will call them his children", he quoted from the Bible. But his 'forward' position has been attacked by Huntingdon's MP, Mr John Major, who did not attend the ceremony. The campaigners claim that Alconbury, not Molesworth – will become the home of Cruise missiles. 84 01 16 p10

1984 01 17
Electrification, p1

1984 01 18
Cambridge is a pace-setter in academic and scientific circles. But it is also the front runner in the price of parking your car. A five-hour stay in the Lion Yard car park costs a massive £4.50 whilst Peterborough's Queensgate centre charges £1.50 for eight hours. But councillors claim that office workers would fill the multi-storey parks if there was no financial penalty and demand did not change, whatever the price. 84 01 18 p12

Enid Porter ran the Cambridge Folk Museum single-handed from 1947 for 30 years and the impressive collection now it now houses museum was largely as a result of her endeavour. She took the entrance money, arranged exhibitions and cleaned the museum. In 1968 she had not had a pay rise for 15 years; her wages were £8 a week at a time when comparable jobs were paying £1,500 a year. Richard Wilson, the current curator said "She was a marvellous lively woman who gave her life to the museum". 84 01 19 p6

Car park p1

1984 01 19
John Orton, Britain's oldest man, celebrated his 108th birthday on January 19th but died following a fall. He was born in 1876 and was the longest-married man in Britain until his wife, Harriet, died aged 103. Cambridgeshire is a good place to live: other elderly residents have included Mrs Alice Empleton who died at Sawston aged 110 when she was the second oldest person in Britain, Mrs Clara Blunt was born in Willingham 106 years ago and a Witchford woman, Etheldreda Thompson died just short of her 107th birthday. 84 01 19 p16 & 84 01 31 p10

St Neots discos, p9

1984 01 20
Cambridge United have appointed former Norwich City and Luton player, John Ryan, as their new manager. He takes over immediately at the struggling Second Division club. John Cozens, caretaker manager since the sacking of John Docherty will remain for the time being. Ryan takes over a United team who are 10 points adrift at the bottom of the Second Division and looking doomed to relegation after going 20 games without a win. 84 01 20 p1

Milton Country Park, p21

1984 01 21
Plants department, p9

1984 01 24
The old maternity hospital at Mill Road will be bought by Cambridge City Council. Now it has won its battle against commercial rivals it will develop the site as a multi-million pound housing complex for young and old people. At an estimated price of £750,000 it is the city's most expensive residential land deal and to help recoup some of the money the council is considering renting some of the old buildings to the Cambridgeshire College of Arts and Technology. 84 01 24 p5

1984 01 26
Going underground has been a common solution for Cambridge's parking problems. The Parker's Piece plan resurfaced last year, 20 years on from its first airing. The latest proposal involves the Butt Green area of Midsummer Common. The council planned a surface car park for the green in 1959 but hurriedly retreated amid the wrath of those pledged to keep the five acres involved as common land. Five years later came a plan to put it underground but it collapsed because of cost. Now they are trying again. 84 01 26 p16

1984 01 27
Rights officer, p15

1984 01 28
Shepherd, p5

1984 01 30
Furious traders in Mill Road are drawing battle lines for a fight with the city council over traffic congestion. They claim trade has slumped and traffic conditions deteriorated since the council installed traffic lights at Mill Road bridge. Shopkeepers are fed up with constant jams and complaints from the customers who say it can take half an hour to drive from the old Maternity Hospital to their shops in Romsey town. 84 01 30 p6

Lady Nichol, p11

1984 01 31
Stourbridge Grove homes were built 54 years ago and modernised 18 months ago. Now it has taken on a new look – thanks to 38 flowering crap and whitebeam trees planted by the City Council as part of its plan to modernise and improve the old estates in Cambridge. 84 01 31 p9

Sir – the quality of village life is determined by its people. This was never more so than when Dr John York Moore was part of Whittlesford life until his retirement to Cornwall. He was not only doctor but church organist and friend, taking part in the many activities of village society. Whittlesford possesses a purpose-built surgery and pharmacy, always crowded with villagers in the time that he was among us. Now we are told it be closed and people will have to visit Sawston Health Centre. We would dearly love a doctor to be part of our village life again – Beryl Bonner. 84 01 31 p9

February 1984 CEN

1984 02 01
Planning permission has been given for a £10 million redevelopment scheme for Cambridge City Football Club's ground at Milton Road. The present pitch, greyhound track and stands will be demolished and be replaced by a three-storey block of research and development buildings with an underground car park. The development will guarantee the future of the club. 84 02 01 p1

Manor School, p14

1984 02 03
Cambridge has a huge shortage of construction workers, from carpenters to scaffolders and plumbers, just months after the finish of big building projects at Addenbrooke's Hospital and the Grafton Centre. The worst shortage is of brickies: there were 80 working on the Grafton but now the Jobcentre cannot trace any of them and have 23 vacancies. 84 02 03 p11

A £1 million scheme is being planned for 100 Cambridge council houses in the Akeman Street and Darwin Drive areas because a 'modernisation' project carried out 20 years ago has gone wrong. Prefabricated units, constructed mainly of wood and plastic were installed as a quick way of bringing the houses up to standard, but they have deteriorated badly. Now ten houses in Darwin Drive maybe pulled down to make space for flats suitable for old people or those in need of sheltered accommodation. 84 02 03 p15

Cleaners of telephone kiosks have defended their work in keeping them spick and span. One man cleans 50 kiosks a day, washing the inside with disinfectant, cleaning the handsets, wiping the parcel shelf and light fittings. He also has to sweep up cigarette ends, apple cores, sweet papers and other bits. It can take a gallon of disinfectant to clean up after it has been used as a lavatory. On one occasion someone tried to commit suicide by slashing his wrists on the glass panel and the cleaners had to mop up the blood. Kiosks are also a target for vandals with every pane of glass broken and even the door missing. 84 02 03 p25

The Turks Head sign swings once more in Trinity Street. Its unique charm lies in the eccentric architecture and ancient beams with rich red carpeting and soft lighting. The Tudor grill room can cater for 200 and with so many nooks and crannies they can usually find room for diners. The new charcoal grill will do delicious things to steaks and chops and there is an extensive table d'hote menu offered at £3.95 for three courses with wine at £3.95 a bottle. 84 02 03 p29

1984 02 04
Arts Theatre, p9-10

1984 02 08
Cambridge's Victoria cinema reopened after the disastrous fire and is now one of the best-equipped in the country with new equipment, new seats and much-improved lavatories. It has six-track stereo, a new screen and the new 70mm projector is seen at full benefit in films like 'Ghandi' and 'The Star Wars' trilogy which will be brought back by popular demand. When the seven-hour programme was tried out last year it attracted a full house with people in fancy costume. 84 02 08 p14

1984 02 09
A six-year old Whittlesford schoolboy settled at the controls of a Volvo loader, then at the count of three pulled a lever which demolished a 40 foot chimney at Duxford. It had been used for animal waste businesses for 100 years and had long upset the villagers with its smells. Then smiling all the while and undeterred by Press photographers, Nicholas Haworth strained to lift a dusty brick in the air. It was probably the most exciting day in his life. 84 02 09 p6

Cambridgeshire has won its fight to have the A1-M1 link road made dual-carriageway throughout. The Government wanted the 21 mile section between Kettering and Brampton to be single carriageway. The decision is a victory for Coun Emily Blatch, leader of the county council, and a resident of Spaldwick, one of the villages on the route. The road will provide a fast and safe motor route between the West Midlands and the East Coast ports and will form part of a European route, the E28 from Düsseldorf to Birmingham. But the opening is still five years off. 84 02 09 p6

1984 02 11
Motorists are set to cash in on the latest petrol-cuttings war, and could be paying as little as £1.73 a gallon as the oil companies slash prices to win custom. Some of the cheapest prices are to be found in Hypermarkets but along Newmarket Road, where there is a heavy concentration of filling stations, prices have already taken a knock. At Marshall's four pence has come off the price at the pumps and Jet's prices have fallen to £1.78 for 4-star. 84 02 11 p1

1984 02 13
A police operation on a military scale was necessary to deal with the threat to Cambridge posed by Saturday's match against Chelsea who have some of Britain's most notorious football fans. But most of the trouble came from Cambridge supporters. In a rampage of violence a man's throat was slashed, another was stabbed, two policemen were attacked and 92 people were arrested. Police held at bay a mob of fans who tried to stop them arresting a streaker on the United pitch. Parts of the city were left vulnerable to crime because of police commitments to the match. 84 02 13 p11

1984 02 15
Thieves have stolen two 'priceless' military helmets from St Mary's church at Fowlmere. They were put on either side of the church altar by the Mitchell family who were lords of the manor in the late 1700's. It is the second theft in the space of two months – two candlesticks were stolen just before Christmas. But there are no plans to shut the church: "It would spoil the whole conception of a church. It is meant to be a sanctuary and it would be wrong to lock it", said the parish clerk. 84 02 15 p9

1984 02 16
The USAF base at Alconbury is to become a Cruise missile assembly site. The missiles will be flown to Alconbury for assembly and transferred to four permanent bunkers at Molesworth. RAF Waterbeach, RAF Feltwell and RAF Upwood are to house 500-bed nuclear war hospital centres. They will renovate existing buildings then mothball them until needed for military casualties of war in Europe. 84 02 16 p1

350 geese clacked and waddled their way down Clare High Street during the shooting of the new comedy film "Laughterhouse". It tells of a modern-day farmer struggling with an overdraft and an impossible marriage, who finds the solution to his problems by marching his geese from his Norfolk farm to Smithfield Market. Villagers, whose houses are featuring in the film, clapped and cheered the geese on their way. The geese won a reprieve from the Christmas dinner table and now the film company is advertising to find homes for them. 84 02 16 p16

1984 02 21
Shepreth animal shelter which on its first year of opening attracted 10,000 visitors is up for sale – lock, stock and llama. Mr & Mrs Terry Willers have built up the menagerie at their Shepreth trout farm over the last five years. It started with their own pet dogs, cats and horses but now includes Shetland ponies, sheep, goats, chipmunks, chinchillas, grass snakes and a llama which is bring trained to give rides to children. If a buyer is not found they will continue with the sanctuary and the children who found such delight in playing with the dwarf rabbits and guinea pigs will continue to do so. 84 02 21 p13

1984 02 24
Fleam Dyke stretches across the open corridor of chalk downland between what were dense forests above Newmarket and the swampy fens at Fulbourn. Now it is a rich habitat for chalk-loving plants like the pasque flower orchids. Its maintenance was the work of the rabbit but when myxomatosis became established there was nothing to stop the advance of shrub. The footpath became covered with thorns and brambles. Cambridgeshire and Isle of Ely Naturalists Trust has put in working parties to carry on where the rabbits left off and the Ramblers Association participate as part of their programme of footpath preservation. 84 02 24 p24

1984 02 27
The traffic lights at Mill Road Bridge could be turned off for good. It is a move which would delight thousands of Cambridge road users and please traders who claim their businesses have suffered. The lights were installed in June at the request of the city council traffic management team who were concerned about the rising accident rate. They thought many vehicles were using it only as a short cut. But accidents have risen faster since they were put in and road users started an immediate outcry, complaining about long, frustrating delays. 84 02 27 p12

1984 02 28
The tiny community of Lode has suffered yet another setback – it is to lose its vicar. This follows the closure of its only shop. Meanwhile villagers are anxiously waiting a decision on the proposed closure of the village school. A petition signed by all but 12 villagers will be handed in to the county council who want to send the 35 pupils to Bottisham instead. This would mark the death knell for the village, councillors have warned. 84 02 28 p10

Old people pay the heaviest price when they lose their local post office. The Station Road sub-post office in Ely is the latest to be axed following the retirement of Mr George Leonard. Pleas to keep the sub-post office in Debden Road, Saffron Walden open led to one in Cromwell Road closing, meaning families on the new Fairview Estate have to make a one-and-a-half mile trek. After paying bus fares they have very little left from their child benefit. Age Concern has set up a mobile club to visit villages without shops or post offices to enable old people to meet each other, otherwise they would not leave their homes. 84 02 28 p13

1984 02 29
A family from Therfield, near Royston, have won a break-through victory in a stubble burning compensation battle. Their claim £48.50 for cleaning up their home after they were smoked out by fumes from stubble burning has been paid by an insurance company. They were able to identify the farmer concerned, successfully charged for their own work in cleaning and their claim involved domestic property. Their win may open the flood gates for farmers to be swamped with claims for thousands of pounds. 84 02 29 p1

Manor comprehensive school has been saved from threatened closure, though it will in future take only 120 youngsters a year and the county council will keep a close watch on its numbers. But councillors decided by just two votes to close Lode school and transfer the children to Bottisham, even though that school did not want them. The infants' school at Fulbourn will also be shut down and the buildings put to good use – perhaps as a teachers' centre. 84 02 29 p3

Mill Road lights, p7

March 1984 CEN

1984 03 01
New flats in Anstey Way, Trumpington, are selling like hot cakes even though the show flat is not yet open. Six were released as an initial step and were sold immediately. They appeal to older people wanting to put an end to the problem of maintaining a big house and garden and most of the ground floor flats have gone to senior citizens. Prices range from £28,450 to £29,450. 84 03 01

Mike Petty article on Sardinia, p9

1984 03 03
Seaman-Turner, p10
Mill Road lights, p14

1984 03 04
Astonished shoppers saw Prince Edward sipping champagne in King's Parade and shouting at young people dancing on the roof of a taxi. It was his off-beat way of letting people know about the charity show he is producing for the University Rag Week. But his elaborate publicity stunt almost flopped when he failed to find the old London taxi he needed. So he asked the News for help and as a result Londoner Maurice Hamilton made a special trip to Cambridge with his cab. 84 03 03

1984 03 05
Rag Queen, p10

1984 03 07
George Webb Haulage, which started over 40 years ago, are willing to move anything. Now they have moved themselves from Willingham to new offices in Longstanton. Two years ago Marshall's of Cambridge rang to ask why they did not use British trucks. When they heard the Webbs' specialist needs were not catered for they arranged a meeting with the manager of Leyland trucks. The resulting vehicle is now in production at the Scammell factory. 84 03 07

1984 03 09
Patrick Stephens, p1

1984 03 10
Croxton Park and its entire estate including 14 houses and cottages together with 2,590 acres of farm and woodland have been sold for nearly £10 million. The Georgian mansion now belongs to Christopher Curry or Acorn Computers. Speculation about a sale began when preservation orders on buildings and trees were prepared following suggestions that the estate was to be sold piece by piece. 84 03 10

1984 02 12

Cambridge punks were let down when two out of three acts did not appear at a Fisher Hall concert. Fans believed that top 'new wave' group Conflict and local band Slap Kat were both to play along with TKA, but two other unknown bands played instead. The lead sing of Slap Kat said they had told the promoters they could not appear and they had plenty of time to change the publicity. 84 03 12

Despite rain and a wicked wind Cambridge University undergraduates astonished bystanders with their Rag Day activities. Prince Edward started a sponsored crawl to Grantchester, there were parachute jumps, exhibitions of motorbike skills and a tug of war. Some students with distinguished careers ahead of them leapt from Silver Street Bridge into the Cam wearing whiskers, tails and picnic plates for ears in an attempt to fly across the river. Two perplexed French visitors summed it up: "If they are so clever, how can they be so stupid?" 84 03 12 p7

1984 03 15
A security man delivering wages to the Cambridge News offices in Newmarket Road was confronted by two armed men wearing balaclavas as he stepped out of a lift on the second floor of the building. They pressed a chloroform-soaked rag on his face before taking a black security bag containing wages of over £8,000. The men, who were wearing boiler suits, then walked calmly down the stairs and out of the front door. 84 03 15 p1

1984 03 17
On Saturdays 3,000 books arrive and depart from the lending department of the central library in Lion Yard. But there is more to the library than that including 100,000 reference books and a stock of 850 paintings and pictures which borrowers can take home. There are 19 staff in the lending, music and children's department with another dozen in the various reference services. When things are tight the last thing to go is service to the public, said Andrew Armour, the Librarian. Library use continues to increase, funds remain tight, staff levels stay level but new technology skills should enable them to both maintain and improve the service. 84 03 17

1984 03 20
Elderly people need extra care and reassurance as they get older. Often this is provided by families but in Haslingfield parish councillors have started a warden scheme paid for out of the parish rates. The warden talks to chats to residents in their own homes, sews on buttons, brings in the coal or collects their prescriptions. There is even a team of volunteers who help out when she is unwell. It means people can stay independent longer. 84 03 20 p10

1984 03 21
A back garden in Perne Road has become a makeshift aircraft factory. Two plane enthusiasts, Peter Fabish and Andy Crumphorn have been chiselling, sawing and shaping the sheet metal, struts and spars which will eventually become a Soneral light racing plane capable of looping the loop and acrobatic flying. They intend to find a farmer's field from which to fly it. 84 03 21 p7

1984 03 22
Twenty per cent of the Cambridgeshire police force is now away from the county helping control pickets at the Midlands coalfields. Five extra units, 110 men, leave today for Nottinghamshire, bringing to 200 the total number of county men involved in the operation. Four more are in Derbyshire helping to deal with the hundreds of miners protesting at pit closures. But Chief Supt Hardingham has no worries about local policing in their absence and can deal with all the situations which may arise. 84 03 22 p1

The row of railway cottages by Mill Road Bridge were once attractive homes. Now the windows are bricked up, the garden is a wilderness of weeds and the walls show only the attention of local spray paint artists. Inside the story is worse, Candles light the damp rooms and empty bottles and baked beans congesting in half-opened cans are the remains of countless unappetising suppers. But a judge has refused to evict the squatters immediately so that the city council can sell them to the Cambridge Housing Society who want to turn them into a home for the homeless. 84 03 22 p7

Churches, as the centre of worship and comfort in times of need were once held in high esteem. Today as religion increasingly takes a back seat their fate hangs in the balance. In Cambridgeshire alone there are 21 redundant churches. St Mary's in Benwick and St Mary Magdalene in March have been demolished while churches in Little Raveley, Little Ouse and Barway have been sold as homes and St Margaret's in Wyton is used as a games and recreation room. 84 03 22 p19

1984 03 23
The vexed question of whether Cambridge's traffic problems are real or illusory will be a recurring theme of future discussions as a result of the decision to scrap Mill Road traffic lights. The faces of traders lit up at the news that the lights on the bridge were – finally – going out. Traffic mandarins have persisted in introducing more and more lights throughout Cambridge. The Station Road lights are another example where traffic management has gone awry yet there is no sign these will be removed. 84 03 23 p20

1984 03 24
Bedmakers travelling to work in colleges as early as 6.30 am are part of the traditional Cambridge scene. In the old days they waited on the students, taking coal up to their rooms, even emptying their chamber pots. Today they 'top to bottom' sheets in student's rooms once a week, otherwise students have to make their own beds. And the 47 bedmakers in Emmanuel, all working three hours each morning, are responsible for all the cleaning of college buildings. 84 03 24 p11

1984 03 27
West's, the motor dealers, celebrates a special 25th anniversary of their association with Renault cars. Having developed their one acre site on Newmarket Road into a glittering glass-walled showroom they have stayed true to the French company and are looking forward to the next 25 years with them. The business began with Sidney and Ethel West operating a small vehicle tuning workshop in Gloucester Street 55 years ago. They now employ 64 people. 84 03 27

1984 03 28
Sidney Archer, head chef at Emmanuel College started his career at 14 in the Pitt Club in Jesus Lane, then worked at the University Arms Hotel and the Red Lion in Petty Cury before going to Emmanuel where worked for 40 years. He specialised in sauces and fish dishes and was scheduled to cook lunch for the Queen when she visits in May as part of the college's 400th celebrations. 84 03 28 p4

1984 03 29
The new headquarters of the Saffron Walden and Essex Building Society was opened by the Duke of Norfolk. News photographer Chris Morton also got involved in the ceremony for after he had taken a photograph of the Duke unveiling a commemorative plaque the Duke reversed the roles, borrowed Chris' camera and took a photograph of him. 84 03 29 p4

1984 03 30
It is exactly 50 years since Marks and Spencer moved into Cambridge at a time when there were major alterations in the narrow Sidney Street which attracted several major stores. It quickly established itself, extending to 10,000 feet in 1937 and doubling its space in 1966. There was further development four years ago when a third floor was added. In 1965 the firm established a warehouse in a former garage in Occupation Road previously owned by Progressive Coaches. Now they are appealing for memories from previous members of staff for a special display. 84 03 30 p24

1984 03 31
It was Mrs Thatcher herself who sliced through swathes of Whitehall red tape to allow Cambridge's new maternity hospital to be built in record time. Her role in the crucial discussions was disclosed by the chairman of the Regional Health Authority, Sir Arthur South, at the official opening of the Rosie Maternity Hospital. Mr David Robinson had agreed to give £2.9 million towards the cost but only on condition that it was completed by the end of 1983. But he wanted to appoint his own architect and builder. Government contracts usually took a long time to plan but this hospital was built probably faster than any other in the country. 84 03 31 p1

Royston has been described as 'down market' by villagers and companies in Melbourn who say it does not have the same glamour that Cambridge has, particularly for the growing number of computer companies wanting to attract an American market. They want their postal address changed to Cambridgeshire. But the town's mayor, Mrs Judy Cresswell is not insulted by the down-market tag and admits that when she is abroad she says she comes from Cambridge because it is known all over the world. 84 03 31 p3

Education Secretary, Sir Keith Joseph, chatted with pupils in their classrooms when he visited Comberton Village College on hush-hush trip. No advance publicity had been given to avoid demonstrators turning up. Sir Keith started his visit by having mince and vegetables for lunch. He sat next to 12-year-old Hartley Kemp, who is chairman of the school's council and chatted about homework. 84 03 31 p8

April 1984 CEN

1984 04 02
The pharmaceutical industry is not a large employer with just 75,000 people in the UK. In mid-1983 Napp employed 225 which will have risen to 265 by the end of 1984. It opened its Cambridge office in June 1980 when 70 employees relocated from its locations in Aberdeen, Watford and West Drayton and moved into the Science Park last June. The modern air conditioned environment is unique; the atmosphere is hard working but informal with widespread use of Christian names. 84 04 02

A family bakers which has been in Fenstanton since 1860 closes its doors with the retirement of Charles and Vera Hunt. They have been at the bakery since 1954 when they moved from St Albans but it has been in Charles' family for four generations. Since it moved to the High Street in 1907 they have been using the same oil-burning brick oven. Their distinctive bread has been mentioned in guides to good food shops and customers are broken-hearted they are closing. 84 04 02 p11

1984 04 03
Royston's new museum has won a Civic Award for the renovation of its new home, a former United Reformed Church schoolroom in Kneesworth Street. It has been rescued from near dereliction and the interior refurbished. But the new Gateway Supermarket in the town centre was criticized for its haphazard layout and its 'mass of tarmacadam'. 84 04 03 p8

1984 04 05
Cambridge's Old Contemptible, Tiny Joyce, received all the honours befitting the war hero he was. The Last Post sounded, flags were lowered and 40 heads bowed paying their last respects. Gathered at the Cambridge Crematorium, medals shining in the April sun, were old soldiers of the Royal British Legion and Burma Star Association together with fellow Contemptible, 90-year old Arthur Brown. Tiny outlived his wife and children and lived alone in his home in Vinery Road until a week before his death. 84 04 05 p16

A 300-year-old cottage in Exning is being dismantled so that it can be taken to a new site and reassembled in more picturesque settings at Dalham. Rose Cottage had not been lived in for 25 years and was virtually derelict. Now it will be renovated with cavity wall insulation and up-to-date fittings. But it will retain its period appearance and be given a new thatched roof. The clunch brick chimney and the oak fame will be saved together with beams which seem to be more typical of a larger house. 84 04 05

1984 04 06
Pampisford villagers are incensed about a row of Tudor cottages which have become an eyesore. They are covered with multi-coloured corrugated iron sheets, the windows are boarded up and there is a large heap of rubbish in one of the gardens. An application for the erection of four houses in the back gardens of the cottages was turned down by SCDC this week. Now the new owner will repair the thatch, windows and doors. 84 04 06 p9

The problem of alcoholics monopolising and sometimes abusing public facilities in Lion Yard has been puzzling councillors for a year. It is warm and dry in winter and in the summer they move elsewhere. They need somewhere to congregate out of public gaze. Some say the Guildhall would be suitable or a centre established in one of the five local churches. Another solution could be to rent a shop and provide drop-in facilities. But this would be costly. 84 04 06

1984 04 07
Hardwicke, p9
Railings – Finches, p13

1984 04 12
Thirty years ago Royston was a quiet market town of barely 4,000 people. Today the population has nearly trebled and is still on the increase. There have been growing pains as its facilities strain to keep pace with the booming population but a new library, police station, museum and old peoples' homes are on the way. Run-down properties in the town centre need a new lease of life and there is need for the electrification of the railway line to Cambridge. 84 04 12

1984 04 13
People who work in the new shops at the Grafton centre are to be offered cheap parking in a bid to make the under-used car parks profitable. They will be allowed all-day Monday to Friday parking for £35 for three months. As well as filling the near-empty car parks it will stop staff from parking their cars in nearby side streets. 84 04 13

Pet crematorium, p15

1984 04 14
Twenty-five years ago the Old Mill, Stetchworth was just a shell. There were holes in the roof and the building was being used by a wheelwright at a rent of a shilling a year. Today it is an appealing house with a string of people wanting to buy it for £60,000. The 16th-century red-brick property has an acre garden enclosed by an ancient wall with a large pond, lawns and herb garden. 84 04 14 p12

1984 04 18
Firemen battled for several hours to control and blaze which swept through the Johnson Matthey chemical works in Royston. Explosions broke out as they used foam to prevent the fire spreading and people were warned to stay indoors as the thick black smoke filling the sky might be toxic. "It looked like a bomb had hit it" a senior fire chief said. A year ago one man died and 26 others were injured in another major fire at the plant. 84 04 18 p1

An amazing subterranean secret could lie below the surface of Royston town centre. The historic and mysterious Royston cave has two duplicates close by, according to an underground researcher. Using new secret techniques he made his discovery while his wife was on a shopping trip. He reckons there are bones inside the new caves, which could be supported by central pillars. Archaeologists have called for diggers to be called in but there must be geological tests first to assess if they are really there. 84 04 18 p6

1984 04 21
Wick Alsop, president of the Cambridge '99 Rowing Club, laid the foundation stone of their new boathouse on the banks of the River Cam. It will replace one of two destroyed in a spectacular fire last September. The other boathouse was owned by the Cambridgeshire Rowing Association. Work on the £134,000 building started in February, is scheduled to be completed by August and will include a ground floor weights room and a gym on the first floor. 84 04 21 p8

1984 04 24
Lack of trade and high interest rates have forced the closure of the prestigious Five Miles from Anywhere pub at Upware. In 1980 the landlord bought seven acres of land and started to construct a new version of the old inn which had burnt down in October 1956. But it struggled during the recession of 1982 which hit sales. He built the pub for £235,000, it is now worth £370,000 and could be sold to pay his debts. 84 04 24 p7

Christians and anti-nuclear protestors from all over the country swarmed around the American air base at Lakenheath for a peace march and rally. About 1,000 'pilgrims' joined peace campers who had occupied heathland near the Mildenhall base since Palm Sunday. They included the General Secretary of CND, Monsignor Bruce Kent. 84 04 24 p12

1974 04 25
Harry Stonebridge died, as he wished, 'with his hat on'. He spent most of the last six years at a Cyrenian house in Gonville Place and his 'beat' took him to Newnham where kind-hearted residents gave him tea and toast. He didn't mind working but his penchant for cutting down bushes and trees soon convinced people that it was not a good idea to let him loose in their gardens. If he didn't like somebody he would resort to the same piece of one-upmanship. "Have you been to China", he would ask. And if they said 'no' he would say 'Daft B----'and ignore them. 84 04 25 p17

1984 04 26
A plan by Lord Fairhaven for a large country house to be built onto the historic Kirtling Towers will need permission from the Department of the Environment before it can go ahead. It involves demolishing the existing Victorian wing and replacing it with a six-bedroom house. But the wing is a grade-two building and the Towers a grade one, councillors were told. 84 04 26

1984 04 27
Houghton Mill, which has lain idle for 50 years, is to get a new lease of life. The National Trust will restore the milling machinery in the 400-year building, using electric power to enable the huge stones to grind flour. Other restoration plans will convert part of the listed building into four self-catering holiday flats. One thing that won't be returning is the water mill. The cost of moving the water sluice built for flood control is prohibitive. 84 04 27 p23

Council prefabs in The Broadway, Oakington were in a 'diabolical' state; they would need substantial repairs and had been a target for vandals. They should be demolished with the site redeveloped and the road renamed, some councillors felt. They decided include temporary housing – provided for the homeless and bad tenants – in their normal repairs policy though some were concerned that the homes would be improved to the point when they were no longer a deterrent 84 04 27 p9

The No.1 First Eastern General Hospital was formed from local people just before war was declared in 1939. The commanding officer was a Cambridge doctor who became Col C.H. Budd, the matron was Miss A.M. Woolerton. Their headquarters was a large house on Parkside, the parade ground was Parkers Piece and their first posting was Kimbolton Castle. 84 04 27 p25

1984 04 30
The city councils new 'Enterprise Plots' were opened in Cheddars Lane. Each is ringed with a seven-foot high fence and provides essential services for people needing low cost open storage or land for cheap light-weight buildings like garden sheds. They are intended for small businesses which have not been welcomed in residential areas. One new tenant is setting up a solo car-repair business. 84 04 30 p5

May 1984 CEN

1984 05 01
The annual summer influx of foreign students into Cambridge is only just beginning. More than 15,000 came in 1981, outnumbering University students by almost 3,000. They had an estimated expenditure of £13 million and families offering lodgings benefited most from student revenue. But there were problems of overcrowding of public amenities and traffic congestion. Foreign students think England is a pit socially. The young people have nothing to do in the evenings. Many are too shy to go into pubs or strike up conversations with strangers. International clubs leave much to be desired: people sat round making boring conversations about the weather. 84 05 01 p13

Drummer Street island, p7

1984 05 02
A sad hulk of a building stands empty and overgrown on the edge of Litlington. A few faded pictures on the wall provide the reminder that this used to be the village school. With the windows and doors broken the wind whistles through. Since it closed in 1981 the children have been bussed to Steeple Morden. The closure has left an open wound in the village and the whole story is a sorry saga of bureaucratic bungling. It began in 1950 when the school moved from its old home in the centre of the village to 'temporary' accommodation in former war-time Air Force huts while the old building was repaired. For reasons nobody really knows they never moved back. 84 05 02 p16

University poll, p9

1984 05 03
Haverhill roads, p13
War memorial, p18

1984 05 04
Shotgrave Hall near Saffron Walden, which burned down in the 1960s, once rivalled the splendour of nearby Audley End House. Planners had reluctantly given permission to demolish the remaining ruins on condition that it be replaced by a mansion of imposing appearance. But now a mock-Georgian house may be built. 84 05 04 p15

Swim through Cambridge, p34

1984 05 05
Burwell North Street, p14

1984 05 08
Hooligans turned on gas rings and lit tea towels in an attempt to blow up St Mary's Primary School at Royston. But the lethal mixture failed to explode and head teacher Sister Veronica discovered the damage on the way back from church. She found broken windows, smelled the gas and then phoned the police. "It was a wicked thing to do because there could have been such an explosion she said. 84 05 08 p1

1984 05 10
Gerry Cottle's new circus without animals opened its canvas doors on Midsummer Common. Why make animals suffer when you can be as cruel as you please to human beings? You can hurl knives at them, string them up by their hair, jump on them and even force them to run flaming sticks along their arms and chest. Many of the performers are students of the first British Circus School which has brought young people from outside the close-knit circus community and trained them to be professional circus artists in the company of older hands. 84 05 10 p7

The remote Parsonage Farm at Wimbish with its great Elizabethan aisled barn and stockyard has scarcely been touched by the 20th century and oozes character. The moat is the habitat of ducks and is spanned by an old brick and flint bridge. It really is a time capsule, says the auctioneers. 84 05 10 suppl 2

Fossett circus, p5

1984 05 11
Millie Howes of Houghton will be reliving fond memories when she settles down to watch her television. She worked in the Portholme aircraft factory at Huntingdon during the First World War helping build Camel fighters. A film made in about 1917 is to be shown on the programme showing Millie working in the factory. "When we first started we were given carpentry lessons, then put on fuselages and had to put the struts in and wire them up, I supposed where worked on two planes a day", she remembers. We earned £2 a week, which was good money, but it wasn't very warm and we had no canteen", she says 84 05 11 p13

Netherhall School, p24

1984 05 14
Work on rebuilding the Cambridge Co-op store in Burleigh Street has reached the half-way mark. It will transform the historic building, bringing in new kinds of goods, a hairdressing salon and a coffee shop. For the first time it will have departments for self-assembly furniture and lighting as well as counters for the Burleigh Street post office and the Co-op Bank. A three-storey atrium at the Fitzroy Street end of the building will provide an airy display centre for shoes and furniture. 84 05 14 p5

A Huntingdon family escaped unhurt as their country house was wrecked, Fire struck thee six-bedroomed home in Abbots Ripton Road, Sapley and forty firemen spent ten hours fighting a ferocious blaze. The other recent thatched roof fires were all at pubs, at Covington near Kimbolton and Marholm and Elton near Peterborough. 84 05 14 p1

Fulbourn windmill, p7

1984 05 15
A telephone in one's car must represent one-upmanship. Pye Telecom has just introduced its new radiophone. Electricians are using them, so are plumbers. Not only is it a boon, it is also the most infuriating device ever invented by man. It costs around £2,350 to buy and a further £100 to have it fitted. Then there is a maintenance contract and British Telecom fees of £105 a quarter. For this it is theoretically possible to send and receive ordinary telephone calls to and from your car. In practice they are patchy in the Cambridge area. 84 05 15 p16

Park and ride, p5

1984 05 16
The Queen gave her royal seal of approval to Cambridge's multi-million pound Grafton Centre when she unveiled a plaque to marks its official opening. Cheering crowds queued for hours to glimpse her. A fanfare performed by the 20-piece orchestra from the Manor School greeted the royal party. After the opening the queen spoke to many of the children and shop staff. Earlier hundreds were outside the station for the arrival of her train, pulled by a locomotive named after Mr Jim Nightall, the brave footplateman who saved Soham from disaster by unhitching a blazing bomb-laden train during the war. 84 05 16 p12

The last bus in Cambridge to carry a conductor has been saved from the scrapheap. The Cambridge Bus Preservation Society stepped in to rescue the D registration FLF Lodekka which was the last of its type to be used in Eastern England. Now they need sponsorship to keep the 'Fuff' on the road. It will be returned to tip-top condition and used for carrying private groups on outings. 84 05 16 p11

1984 05 17

Hundreds of people turned out to greet the Queen when she unveiled a plaque at the opening of the multi-million pound Grafton Centre. Earlier she met youngsters at the ITek technology centre and made blind teenager Maria Freeman's day by stopping to chat with her as she typed on a special machine invented by the manager, David Battison. Both Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh planted trees at Emmanuel College to mark its 400th anniversary, though Philip quipped "I'm the kiss of death as far as tree planting is concerned" 84 05 17 p9

1984 05 18
Stansted US flight, p17
Duxford Lodge Motel, p19

1984 05 19
Postal strike, p1
Ely cat to ward off spirits, p12

1984 05 21
A mysterious killer beast has struck again, slaughtering half a dozen chickens at Oakington. Big paw prints found in the chicken run give a fresh boost to claims that a puma is at large in the area. It is the latest in a series of terror attacks on animals: in March a cat was mauled in Histon and rabbits killed when their hutch was ripped open, while at Landbeach a pet duck was carried off by a large animal. 84 05 21 p3

The British Percheron Horse Society held its annual show on Midsummer Common. Visitors saw the heavy horses put through their paces in different classes and there were plenty of other events to keep the family amused. Wisbech breeders A.S. Johnson and Son regained the challenge cup for best stallion in show. 84 05 21 p10

US military hospitals, p10
Locks up supplement

1984 05 22
One of the landmarks of Cambridge's skyline has gone. Cambridge City football club's floodlights were pulled down as demolition men clear the ground in preparation for the construction of a science park. West Ham played at Milton Road to mark the erection of the lights when City entered the Southern League in 1958. Work has also started on pulling down the two stands as the club moves its ground to an area at the far end. 84 05 22 p34

1984 05 23
Two faded photographs in the smart office suite at Ivor Searle's Soham premises keep alive the memory of the founder of the firm and the little wooden-fronted workshop at Wicken where it all began just after the war. After starting an engine servicing business Ivor died in 1956, leaving his wife and two small sons. Their mother managed to keep the firm idling gently until the boys were old enough to take over. Now they have moved to new workshops and are among the top 20 engine reconditioners in East Anglia. 84 05 23 p20

Gamlingay fire, p7
Stamps, p16

1984 05 24
Stetchworth has its own grocery shop in the new village community centre. It has been set up by a group of local women who have clubbed together to buy the stock and are running it as a co-operative. The Ellesmere Centre, which will serve seven small villages, is not due to open until June but the shop had an immediate influx of customers. As well as the usual selection of groceries it also sells home-made cakes and jams with cups of tea and coffee for shoppers. They hope people will use it for their weekly shopping. 84 05 24 p21

Red-clad followers of the Rajneesh cult rubbed shoulders with farm workers and land owners when a packed meeting in the tiny village of Herringswell near Mildenhall, voted in favour of having a parish council. The population has been virtually doubled by an influx of Rajneeshees, criticised for their 'free love' beliefs. Villagers fear that they are so different they cannot represent the views of the village but the director, Mr Anand Poonam assured the meeting they had no plan to dominate the parish council. 84 05 24 p13

1984 05 25
Herringswell council, p13
University Arms 150th, p26

1984 04 26
The only food shop in Takeley, near Saffron Walden, could be forced to close after roadworks caused a drop in takings. When new owners took over in 1974 they overhauled and modernised the shop but problems mounted in 1980 when roadworks split the village in two. There had been roadworks each year since then. But the valuation officer said the disruption was not bad enough to justify a reduction in their rates. 84 05 26 p6

1984 05 30
Huntingdon's former county hospital, which closed after the new one in Hinchingbrooke Park opened in 1983, has been put on the market. The main building with its classical style dates from 1854 when it opened following a public subscription. The removal of post-war additions to the front would restore the building to its original well-proportioned splendour, estate agents say. Possible uses include offices, a nursing home or an educational establishment. 84 05 30 p17

D&H into receivership, p1

1984 05 31
MRC lab closure, p1
D&H collapse talk, p16

June 1984 CEN

1984 06 01
Falling numbers of pupils have forced the Shrubbery School to close its doors to senior pupils. However juniors up to 11 years old will still be able to attend the private school which charges £250 a term. The Shrubbery opened its doors in Hills Road before moving to Barton Road 37 years ago and has been run by Alfred Wainwright and his wife since 1962. 84 06 01 p9

1984 06 02
Young Cambridge tennis starlet, Ginny Humphreys-Davies has become a British champion for a second time. The 12-year-old St Mary's Convent pupil overcame an attack of nerves to win the Prudential hard-court championships in Edinburgh. Cambridge now has two British junior tennis champions following Teresa Catlin's victory in the under-14 age group last year. 84 06 02 p1

1984 06 06
Cambridge Science Park's Napp building has won a top award from the Concrete Society. The futuristic-looking white structure with glass infill has already attracted a great deal of interest and architects, surveyors and local schools have been around the building which was designed by Canadian architect, Arthur Erickson. 84 06 06 p8

1984 06 09

An Elizabethan Manor house with moat, dovecote and a 400-year-old loo seat is on the market at Papworth St Agnes. It is soundly built, has a new roof and the walls are two-foot six inches thick. But heating could be expensive as most ceilings are about ten feet high and the smallest of the reception rooms is nearly 22 feet by 16. In a garderobe of the main bedroom is a thick plank with a hole - it really is a sixteenth-century loo which discharged down a shoot to the outside of the building. The agents invite offers of around £150,000. 84 06 09 p12

1984 06 12
Cambridge Students' Union has finally won official recognition from the University's dons. The move brings to an end a long and sometimes bitter struggle over the union's status which started more than 14 years ago when CSU was formed. But the dons have voted against formal recognition on four separate occasions since then. Now students are hoping the recognition will lead to financial support from the University. 84 06 12 p7

The widow of Soham railway hero Benjamin Gimbert is putting up his medals – including his George Cross – for auction. Mr Gimbert's bravery prevented Soham from being blown sky-high by a blazing ammunition train during the Second World War when he and Jimmy Nightall uncoupled one truck from 50 before it exploded. Sotheby's say the George Cross might fetch £4,500 which Violet needs to buy a flat. 84 06 12 p12

1984 06 13
A move to combine the parishes of Histon and Impington has been rejected by the Environment Secretary. Other moves to move Comberton Village College from Thriplow parish, to move Little Thriplow into Fowlmere and change boundaries between Over/Swavesey have also been turned down. But a small piece of farmland on the Little Abington and Babraham border has been agreed. 84 06 13 p18

1984 06 14
St Neots oast house, one of the town's main landmarks, is to be sold for a substantial sum and converted into a snooker hall. Huntingdon District Council's estates officer had said the council would accept £1 if the building were put to the right use. The listed building is in a poor condition and badly in need of renovation but a Government inspector refused to allow the council to demolish it. Now it means another amenity for the town and is a good use for the old place. 84 06 14 p7

The works of Cambridge novelist, Dr Alice Dwyer-Joyce, are to be preserved in a special archive set up by Boston University, USA. The recognition reflects the popularity of her novels among US readers. For more than 40 years she and her husband were family doctors in Histon and she drew from her experiences to produce more than 30 books. The archive will also contain her manuscripts, correspondence and personal effects. 84 06 14 p16

1984 06 15
For the past five years Tom Doig has been undertaking a massive survey of surnames in the villages of Barkway and Reed between 1500 and 1900. He has just published his first findings – an index of 3,000 names, identifying 20,000 people. But his work ploughing through endless apprenticeship lists, census returns and old newspapers is by no means complete. It is valuable for genealogists but does turn up embarrassing moments when ancestors of living families appear regularly in magistrates' courts records. 84 06 15 p17 – pic 33178438

Dobblers Inn, p5

1984 06 16
The view from the top flats of The Maltings, off Newmarket Road, is splendid. The new building, on the site of the old Star Brewery, overlooks Midsummer Common and the River Cam. But it is costing buyers £68,500 - £6,000 more than others in the development. All of the 50 units have been sold in eight months. It is one of the better Cambridge housing developments with communal gardens, cycle stand and 'car lodges'. 84 06 16 p12

1984 06 19
Cambridge University's award-winning History Faculty building – which is plagued with defects – may be demolished only 16 years after it opened. Another option is to correct all the structural and heating problems as well as the leaks – but this could cost over £1 million. The building was heralded in a blaze of glory when it won a Royal Institute of British Architects national award for its designer so they do not want to demolish it. 84 06 19 p6

1984 06 21
Flash floods brought chaos as heavy rain turned roads into rivers and swamped houses. In Fenstanton parents battled through the night to bail out the village school and in Kedington a centuries-old barn was swept into the river. Flooding was severe in Whitton Close, Swavesey where the evening's events were described as 'pandemonium'. 84 06 21 p1

A Victorian atmosphere will be the theme for the Dobblers Inn, Sturton Street, the former City Arms. Older residents can just remember a colourful and eccentric character called Dobbler, who kept a large yard renowned for the unusual items which could be obtained there. Now a whole range of bric-a-brac from stone jars to old prints and plants will enhance the period flavour. 8i4 06 21 p18 # c.27.4

St Mary's Convent School is to drop the word convent but it will not become any less Catholic in character. The nuns of the order of the Blessed Virgin Mary, which founded the school, will now draw salaries but the money will go to the convent on the same site. Sister Christina, the school's present headmistress, will remain in post at the 600-pupil school, which has always welcomed girls from other Christian denominations. 84 06 21 p20

The 15th-century Snowre Hall at Hilgay, in which Charles I held a council of war, is up for sale for £190,000. It has some Jacobean and 18th-century additions and is reputed to be one of the oldest brick houses in the country. Its wealth of architectural features include gargoyles, oriel windows and brick architraves and is enhanced by sweeping lawns and 13 acres of grounds. 84 06 21 supp

1984 06 22
Depden church, near Haverhill, part of which dates from Norman times, has been badly damaged by fire. The central portion of the building is gutted, the nave roof completely gone. Fortunately the sanctuary is still intact and the altar not damaged. It may have been started by a bolt of lightning hitting the roof of the isolated building. Rebuilding work may take a year but they hope to hold services in the undamaged part of the building during the summer. 84 06 22 p10, 84 06 23 p7 84 06 25 p7

1984 06 23
The image of brass bands has changed: no longer do they consist of a couple of dozen old gentlemen and two lads blowing away at favourite marches for an hour on Sunday mornings. Now they are for younger people. Epitomising this trend is Waterbeach Brass Band; of their 33 players more than half are under 35 and most of their soloists are youngsters. It was formed six years ago when members of the Few and Neville families who played with the Haddenham band decided to form their own. Now the bandmaster is John Few, his wife is a percussionist and his four children also play. 84 06 23 p9

Charles Unwin, son of the founder of Unwin's seeds of Histon still goes to work every day – 73 years after he started. "Mr Charles" is 89, as bright as a button and an acknowledged international authority on sweet peas. His role is now more of a consultant but in his years as boss he saw the number of staff increase from three to around 140. He has won hundreds of awards which hang in the canteen but has some vices – he smokes a pipe. 84 06 23 p25

1984 06 26

Horningsea village sign was unveiled by Radio Cambridgeshire's Ian Masters. It was designed and painted by local resident, Peter Halford and made by a class of boys from Bottisham Village College. A time capsule containing information and items from the village has been built into it. 84 06 26 p13

1984 06 27
Swavesey residents celebrated the centenary of the Greenwich Meridian, which passes through the village. The market square had a festive atmosphere as they sipped Meridian Cocktails, the concoction of the landlord of the White Horse, Cyril Leaver. The sub-postmaster, Jim Milne, reported roaring sales of a special Swavesey cover of the commemorative stamps which went on sale for the first time. Seven-year-old Philip Harding made a telephone call to Ouagadougou, the capital of Upper Volta in Africa which also has the Meridian line running through it. 84 06 27 p12

1984 06 29
Members of Cambridge Animal Aid are aiming to establish night-time patrols in an attempt to neuter all stray cats in the city to help combat the spread of diseases and infections. It is part of an 'Animals Charter' which would impose tighter rules on keeping pets in schools and the use of dissection in classrooms. 84 06 29 p26

Gimbert medals sale, p11

July 1984 CEN

1984 07 02
Children at Hoker's Pre-Preparatory School in Comberton are being given an early introduction to the computer age. They are being taught the whole range of computer skills from the age of four to help them deal with the demands of the next century. Ann Hoker, the principal says "Small children are not inhibited on a computer – they are going to be the first adults of the 21st century and computers will be to them what ballpoints are to us". 84 07 02

1984 07 03
Cattell's mill in Willingham closed down in 1967 and although the machinery is in tip-top condition, the same cannot be said of the wooden exterior. Now 79-year-old former millwright, Ray Cattell plans to restore it with the help of Graham Wilson from Over. His father ran the flour milling business until the First World War, when he switched to milling grain for livestock. The mill needs four new sails – one was destroyed after lightning struck it five years ago. 84 07 03

1984 07 05
Swaffham Prior School has come up with a novel way of keeping its kitchens open. They hope to start a weekly lunch club with pensioners taking their meal alongside the children. There are a lot of pensioners who live on their own and don't see anyone from one day to a next – perhaps they could become adopted grannies, said school secretary, Barbara Marshall. 84 07 05

1984 07 06
Computerised control of traffic in Cambridge by means of traffic lights has been in operation along two major routes since March. Chaos has not ensued and the county council's traffic management scheme claims it has knocked several minutes off journey times in peak periods. 'Scoot' operates in Hills Road and Queen's Road by marshalling traffic into 'platoons' of vehicles and then pilots them through as many sets of lights as possible. 84 07 06

1984 07 07
"No one is buying hand-made harpsichords today", says Trevor Beckerleg, the Cambridge harpsichord maker, so he is selling his Gwydir Street home. The house has many odd features, not least the downstairs walls and ceilings which are smothered with graffiti in green ink: it is his notebook, representing his thoughts over the past couple of years. It contains his last two instruments including the world's only submarine pintable harpsichord with a keyboard at either end. 84 07 07

Mike Petty artice on Bowd

1984 07 10
A fleet of ambulances was called to evacuate 104 patients from Old Addenbrooke's Hospital after a water main burst in a ground floor room. The 240-year-old building, which is due to close in three months, has Victorian plumbing and no means could be found to deal with the burst without turning off the complete water supply. But water engineers managed to repair it. 84 07 10

1984 07 11
Anglian Water is to replace an old-fashioned pumping station at Soham Lode and hopes to give away the 44-year-old engine to a preservation trust. It was built by Ruston and Hornsby of Lincoln and has to be hand-started and hand-lubricated when running. Diesel fuel is delivered by barge because access is difficult and spares are hard to get hold of. 84 07 11

Haddenham has started twinning links with a remote community in Somalia. Instead of getting involved in the usual round of civic pomp the villagers are being more practical and raising money to help improve conditions for starving people in the community of Fiqi Fuliye. Virtually every club is involved in the project organised by Dr Margaret Spufford after she and her husband started giving talks on Third World problems. 84 07 11

1984 07 12
More than 20 members of the Cambridge Symphony Orchestra have been fired following a decision to make it eligible for funding from the Arts Council which insists that all musicians should be wholly professional. But some see it as unfair: they have all helped establish the orchestra and although they did not earn the majority of their earnings from live performances, they all played to a professional standard. 84 07 12

1984 07 13
The Rock in Cherryhinton Road has been shaken to its foundations and put back together as a bright inviting pub offering real ale, good food and music. The bars have been reconstructed and the snug has made way for spacious through bars with split level floors and a swirling glass faceted container which sends rainbow beams over customers. Saturday night sing-alongs to suit all age groups will return and modern jazz may be featured. The new kitchens will offer dishes like chilli con carne and spare ribs. 84 07 13

1984 07 17
Histon parish councillors discussed complaints of ‘arrogant, noisy’ Italian language school students in the village. But one reminded his colleagues about the behaviour of English football fans abroad. The Language School said they had organised events for their students but these had been thwarted by local lads on BMX bikes who snatched their tennis balls and frightened the young girls. They agreed the number of students in the village was too big but defended their exuberance as their national characteristic. 84 07 17

Blidworth and Rainworth are two small Nottinghamshire mining communities locked in a bitter struggle for survival as the miners’ strike enters its 18th week. But in Cambridge the Trades Council has set up a Support Group and residents have raised nearly £4,000 for the families opposed to pit closure and the inevitable loss of jobs. On Saturday three local women arrived in the villages bearing gifts and hope. They are seeking homes in Cambridge which would be willing to take in a miner’s family for a while to give them a holiday. 84 07 17 p13

1987 07 18
The Leys School is admitting girls to its sixth form for the first time this autumn. Amongst the first will be Julia Fairey from Linton and Helen Sherwood who is head girl at Soham Village College. Not all the boys are enthusiastic about their arrival and others are jealous of the shiny newness of their accommodation in a special boarding house with attractive study bedrooms. The girls will live in a semi-protected environment without the freedom of a sixth form college but in a more liberal atmosphere than the usual girls' boarding school. They will not be allowed out on weekday evenings without special permission. 84 07 18

1984 07 19
A coachload of miners and their wives arrived from the Nottinghamshire villages of Blidworth and Rainsworth to say thank-you to the people of Cambridge. The villages, caught in the middle of the miners' strike have been 'adopted' by the city's Miners Support Group who have raised thousands of pounds. The group of 50 people were joined on the rally from Parkers Piece to Christ's Pieces by about 350 local residents who marched to show support for the strike. 84 07 19 p9

1984 07 20
Kenning Tyre Services offer a new drive-in exhaust-fitting facility at its new premises opposite the Beehive supermarket in Coldham's Lane. The complex of new offices and renovated buildings is on the site of the former Goodyear Tyre depot where their Car Hire business 50 vehicles from a Ford Fiesta to a Jaguar 4.2 automatic. 84 07 20

Grantchester school, p32

1984 07 21
Top-selling author Jeffrey Archer opened Royston's new Platignum factory which already makes almost a million pens a week. More than 200 people are employed at the new plant which moved from Stevenage to the Orchard Road industrial estate. The factory is just in Cambridgeshire and that was one of its major attractions: it means a lower rate bill. 84 07 21 p1

1984 07 23
Cambridge MP Robert Rhodes James has asked the Government to intervene in the miners' strike which he describes as unreasonable, undemocratic and un-British. "What we have seen has been a systematic and cynical disruption of the coal industry, accompanied by violence, intimidation and cruelty. In the interests of all – and especially those miners bullied out of their livelihood – Scargill must not succeed", he told the Conservative Association. 84 07 23 p7

1984 07 25
Cambridge's office space is going fast. Mount Pleasant House on Castle Hill is now fully let as is the former Heffers printing works in Hills Road whose Betjeman House is used by two computer software firms, Acornsoft and Logica. Citibank has taken the first floor of Hunting Gate's Carlyle House while Standard Life's development on the corner of Glisson Road was let prior to the completion of the building. 84 07 25

1984 07 26
Home buyers should be given more information about the property they are about to purchase. The Anglia Building Society has called for the introduction of a 'log book' system with information on the construction of the house, any renovation or improvement work as well as advice on its use and maintenance. First-time buyers are making their biggest financial decisions on the basis of less evidence than they would get when buying a washing machine. All consumer purchases come with full operating instructions, technical details and performance figures – except houses, they say.

County Councillors were stunned to learn that luncheons and tea parties were held for businessmen at the ratepayers' expense as part of the council's welfare fund-raising efforts. Professional fund-raisers had spent £6,500 from the rates to raise just £225 for a scheme to provide facilities for a wide number of charitable, welfare and voluntary organisations. 84 07 26

1984 07 27
Mildenhall plans, p11

1984 07 26
Woburn treasure, p1
Gayness Hall, p12

1984 07 30
Willingham mill, p16

August 1984 CEN

1984 08 01
Acorn Computers has been presented with the Queen's Award for Technological Achievement for the innovating design of the BBC Microcomputer system. It was presented to Chris Curry, joint managing director at their offices in Fulbourn Road. He praised the company's research team who have produced a computer of such elegance of design that three years after its introduction it still knocks spots off the competition. The ceremony comes three weeks after Acorn won a four-year renewal of its important BBC contract. 84 08 01 p3

1984 08 02
Government changes on the rules as to how much local councils can spend of the cash raised through the sale of council houses will hit South Cambs RDC. It faces cutting projects worth more than £3million. Similar cutbacks could be made in Huntingdon where the construction of a car park in Prince's Street and pedestrian plans for the town centre could be under threat. But East Cambs could escape unscathed. 84 08 02 p10

1984 08 03
Prof Neville Willmer. Cambridge's Emeritus Professor of Histology, is a dab hand at sketching. The 81-year-old Fellow of Clare moved to Grantchester 15 years ago and his sketches of old buildings have been turned into postcards while his illustrations for 'The Old Vicarage' by Rupert Brooke have helped it sell numerous copies. 84 08 03 p26

1984 08 04
South Cambridgeshire District Council is to ignore the Government's latest pleas for spending cuts. The demands have infuriated the usually obedient council, which in recent years has been a model housekeeper, keeping strictly within the Government's ever-tightening spending limits. But now they are to press ahead with priority schemes before the moratorium is enforced. 84 08 04 p1

Edward Frost, p14

1984 08 07
Cambridge sub-postmasters have decided not to oppose the closure of three of the city's 26 post offices. Their salaries have dropped substantially during the past year because of changes in Post Office administration and they feel the business must be spread around the remaining offices to make them viable. The sub-post offices at Arbury Road, Gwydir Street and Richmond Road are due to close by the end of the year. 84 08 07 p7

1984 08 08
A Cambridge designer will be the first bride ever to marry in the 800-year-old Leper Chapel at Barnwell Bridge. Sarah Thornhill has always set her heart on marrying at the church next to her family home and applied for a special licence from the Archbishop of Canterbury. Now she is busy cleaning the floor, laying a red carpet and moving the altar back to make more room for the congregation. 84 08 07

Cambridge Albion Angling Club has decided not to allow eels to be weighed in for their club and open matches. This is the first move of its kind in the area and follows two months of angling when ells have played a major part in the all matches. It follows complaints that an angler could work hard for a net of small fish only to be beaten by three or four eels which do not take such skill to catch. 84 08 08 p23

1984 08 10
Cherry Hinton could get its long-awaited bypass if the controversial 86-acre housing development goes ahead on the outskirts of Cambridge. The new road would run from Airport Way to meet Fulbourn Road near the hospital. Originally a bypass was planned to run from Quy interchange to the foot of the Gogs Hill to link up with the A604 but the route ran into objections from conservationists and was dropped as an economy measure. 84 08 10 p13

1984 08 11
Ted Appleyard of Ely is the seventh generation of watermen, the first three were bargees, the others boatbuilders. He can recall the huge horse and cart ferries which crossed the Ouse and Cam. They were great platforms with an apron at each end which was let down to allow the horse and cart to get back on to land and then hoisted up again. They were essential as there were no bridges for miles. The largest was at Southery and was 40ft by 14ft. 84 08 11 p9

A hotch-potch of buildings, some falling down, all built of a mixture of brick, flint, weatherboard and stone at Home Farm, High Ditch Road, Fen Ditton are taking on a new lease of life. Out of them are being created a complex of five dwellings, each costing more than £75,000. Tithe Developments have tried hard to preserve the feel of the farm buildings which are only a few feet away from the calving unit, housing a dozen of the farm's most likeable animals. 84 08 11 p14

1984 08 14
Chivers, famous for its livestock breeding, has put its dairy cows under the hammer and marked the end of an era. The sale was prompted by the Common Market decision to reduce farmers' milk quotas. Mr John Chivers said the decision to sell off the cattle was a difficult one but they had to make the most of every acre and it was more profitable to grow corn. It was the saddest day of his life for head cowman, Mick Pledger when the farm's entire pedigree Jersey herd – established in 1931 – were sold. 84 08 14 p10

1984 08 15
Visit many villages mid-morning and a still silence hangs over an empty street. But Sawston is lively, selling everything from computers to floral arrangements. Within the last few months new businesses have included an expanding DIY retailer next to the Chinese takeaway, and an opticians. There are two bakers, three greengrocers, a beauty specialist and an old-established store selling every from fishing tackle to baby ware. There are also eight pubs – once there were 13 one of which now houses a travel agency. 84 08 15

1984 08 17
Chris Dennis, one of the founder-members of Pink Floyd – Cambridge's main claim to pop fame – has opened a studio in Chatteris to cater for young and not very rich bands. Chris, who was in the original line-up before they started making records and becoming famous, runs Metronome Music which is designed for local bands who want to record demo tapes professionally. He supplies all the equipment required, helps with the production and charges £3 an hour. 84 08 17 p9

1984 08 18
Tudor's circus, p14

1984 08 20
Back in the 1920s Sidney Banks started his business career rearing pigs. But an opportunity to make a profit on the resale of some feed barley prompted the thought that grain trading might be more profitable. As a farmer's son he established contact with the farming community between Arrington and Wrestlingworth. They have just celebrated their 10th year as a public limited company employing more than 220 people at their site in St Neots Road, Sandy. 84 08 20 supp p12

Grain stores supplement

1984 08 23
Pubs, p16

1984 08 24
Pampisford, which has been chosen as the best-kept village in South Cambridgeshire was bottom in the contest only two years ago. Now the 400 residents keep their village spick and span. There are lovely little thatched cottages with colourful front gardens and the churchyard has been tidied up. But the overall winner is Kimbolton where Jim Mumford looks after the war memorial with a flowering sequence to ensure a show throughout the summer months. 84 08 24

1984 08 25
Traffic experts say there is now no way in which traffic flow down Mill Road can be reduced but they can reduce accidents by switching their sights to the side roads. The new plans would inconvenience residents and local workers by banning cars from certain streets and putting in 'sleeping policemen' in Vinery Road. With a number of turning bans into Mill Road, traffic along Tenison Road will be increased dramatically but new traffic lights will improve the flow. 84 08 25 p1

The Backs, p8

1984 08 28
Furious shopkeepers in Chesterton Road are banding together to fight plans to turn a derelict house into a hostel for the homeless. They claim it will be a home for drunks who will make life unbearable for people living in the area. The sub-postmaster says drug addicts and drunks are already a problem – on Thursday afternoons half the customers are drunk when they come in for their Giros. But the King Street Housing Association says it will be a refuge for the homeless with full supervision and not a place for alcoholics. 84 08 28 p5

More than 2,500 campaigners joined the peace camp at the proposed missile base at Molesworth. The travelling roadshow of peace campaigners and environmentalists – collectively known as The Greens – has become firmly established at the base. Diggers were brought in to construct toilets, standpipes were erected for water supplies and milk deliveries were arranged. A squad of workers were also erecting a peace chapel near the entrance to the base. 84 08 28 p10

City Limits fire, p1

1984 08 29
The Cambridge audience who expected to the astonished and delighted by Danny La Rue ended up by astonishing and delighting the sequin-spangled star themselves. "Something strange happened", he said. "The Arts Theatre is the hottest I've ever played in and when I'm dressed as Dolly Parton … well the sweat just pours off me. But I noticed that most of the audience had brought little fans. I looked out and there they were, just fluttering away. When I came back for the second half I said 'Will you all wave your fans at me – and they did". 84 08 29 p15

College bomb, p1
Vandals hit church, p7

1984 08 30
Experts say Cambridge has as many as 350 drug addicts, a bigger proportion than in London and five times the official number. But it has fewer facilities and no proper advice centre for anyone to turn to. Last year there was a 44 per cent increase in arrests for dealing and 577 for drugs offences generally. In addition there is the massive and hidden drugs world serviced quite legally by family doctors who supply prescriptions for tranquilisers and sleeping pills to a quarter of a million patients, mainly housewives and pressurised businessmen. 84 08 30

1984 08 31
Cambridge, considered one of the most beautiful cities in England, gets a hammering in 'Holiday Which'. It is criticised for poor restaurants, exasperating parking difficulties and shortage of good accommodation. There are several tea shops but those which aren't sleazy or overpriced tend to get hopelessly overcrowded at peak times. It is a relaxed place to visit and punting is the best way to see the scenery but take away the colleges and there is nothing left, it says. 84 08 31

Jewellers Guild supplement

September 1984 CEN

1984 09 01
Ely Three Blackbirds, p12

1984 09 03
Twenty-eight Cambridgeshire schools use corporal punishment. At Burwell Village College the cane is used by the warden on very rare occasions, at Cottenham only in extreme cases such as continual bullying and Manor School carry out caning in rare and severe cases. Netherhall School says it is rarely and reluctantly resorted to by the headmaster or his deputies and St Bede's school has a similar policy 83 09 03

Nearly 30 years of digging, planting and cultivating have produced one of the finest council house gardens in South Cambridgeshire for retired boilerman Robert Harrowing. His garden in Queens Close, Harston, has been his pride and joy since he moved there in 1956. He produces dozens of varieties if flowers, fruit and vegetable which so impressed the judges they voted his plot "best-kept small garden" this year. 84 09 03

1984 09 05
The tiny village of Great Staughton near St Neots beat more than 100 others from five counties for a place in the regional sports final. There is barely a person in the village, with its electorate of 680, who is not involved with the inter-village sports in one way or another. From the local milkman who chipped in £10 towards expenses to the competitor nearing retirement – all are determined it will have the chance of winning. "But it is also good fun and everyone enjoys it" said parish councillor Bob Jewell, one of the organisers. 84 09 05

Cambridge City Football Club's expanding Thursday market moved to its new base in Cowley Road. Started as part of the club's solvency drive it has developed to become a popular city attraction that has survived the sale of its old site – part of the club's ground in Milton Road. The 70 market traders are hoping to take their regular big crowd to the new site. There will be special buses run by the club from various points in the city. Since it began three years the quality of merchandise has steadily improved. 84 09 05

Jobs loss, p1

1984 09 06
A blaze swept through the ABC cinema in St Andrew's Street, gutting the central part of the 730-seat auditorium. The recently-renewed screen melted with the heat and the rest was damaged. The Polyurethane seat and floor coverings caused a lot of smoke which penetrated the upstairs ABC2 cinema. It is believed to have been started by a cigarette end left smouldering by a cinema-goer. Last year the Victoria cinema was damaged by an arson attack. 84 09 06

1984 09 07

The County Council chairman condemned councillors for their 'pathetic attempts' to sort out the Cambridge traffic problem. "There is no doubt whatever that what we do in Cambridge is pathetic compared to what is done elsewhere. We really do not know what we are doing in this city", he said, adding that the county must keep up pressure on the city council to provide more parking facilities in Cambridge. 84 09 07

"The colonel" was one of Cambridge's best-known characters in the 50s and 60s, John Ingersol Turpin was the oldest of the brothers who ran a timber yard in Mill Road. It started in 1929 selling timber from Sweden, Russia and Canada but supplies stopped in 1939 so he started attending household sales. He became as well-known for his second-hand goods shop as his timber-selling; people often spoke of the wonderful bargains they bought for a few shillings, his daughter Margaret Lusher recalled 84 09 07 # c.23

Fires, p26

1984 09 10
Controversial Cambridge theologian, the Rev Don Cupitt, sparked off a major row with his statement 'There is no God'. Speaking on the TV programme 'The Sea of Faith' the Dean of Emmanuel said categorically there was no God, no life after death and that people were turning away from prayer to meditation. This has drawn fire from churchmen, one of whom described Mr Cupitt as a 'fallen angel'. Others say he is a man of great integrity and great scholarship. 84 09 10

A big publicity campaign has been launched to get Essex children to use their school cafeterias. At Stansted Mountfichet secondary school several hundred children pick up their 70p meals. Every day 50lbs of chips are served as well as countless beef burgers, beans and beverages. But 15-year-old Mark Boulter says 'They're not very nice – sometimes the meals are cold" and Vivian Holden says that there is no choice at all if you get in late. Bryony McIntyre says the dinners are 'horrible' and prefers her sandwiches. 84 09 10

1984 09 12
There is not much of John Mellanby yet you could never lose him in a crowd. With his black stockings, knee breeches and a leather bag slung round his neck he is the most senior of Cambridge's tourist guides. He enjoys scandal: the Guildhall had gas lighting installed in 1830 and the Mayor at that time was a dealer in fisher with a shop on the other side of the street. In 1930 they discovered the fish shop had been getting gas free for 100 years by a special pipe laid from the Guildhall, he tells visitors. 84 09 12

Campaigners have lost their battle to save two Cambridge post offices in Arbury Road and Gywidr Street. They will close within a few months, but the threatened Richmond Road sub post office will remain open in view of the weight of public opinion. Coun Andrew Duff, one of the Liberal members fighting to keep the Richmond Road office going says he is delighted at the change of heart 84 09 12 # c.27.7

1984 09 14
Grantchester school sale, p13

1984 09 17
A fund-raising auction at Lolworth which has raised £2,300 will go down in village history as the biggest money-spinning event ever. It was held to boost funds for the church tower repair fund. Now after years of anxiety the tower has emerged from its scaffolding and again becomes a beacon for passing drivers. The church does not inspire worshippers with soaring arches and glittering glass. But it is a loved and lovely jumble and parishioners have laboured long hours with buckets and barrows, concrete and crowbars to save its dilapidated fabric. 84 09 10

1984 09 19
The Freestone bakery and grocery store founded 90 years ago has closed, the victim of progress and superstores. They are selling of the equipment which has provided bread for three generations of Great Shelford villagers. In one room a Victorian pine trough in which the founder, George Freestone, mixed his dough nestles next to an electric mixer bought in 1942. The original brick oven now houses its electric counterpart besides its predecessor, an oil-fired over that went out of use decades ago. At one time they delivered two to three loaves of bread a day to village homes, now it's just one small one. They can't compete with Sainsbury's and Tesco's. 84 09 19

A loyal staff and hard-working builders have enabled Wrights of Haddenham to get baking again, just seven weeks after a fire swept through their High Street premises. The blaze started in the roof which crashed down wreaking devastation. Big supermarket customers, the mainstay of the business, had to find alternative suppliers while the firm brought bread and cakes to stock their retail shops at Haddenham and Cottenham. Now the ovens are baking once more so the University student who has missed his Danish pastry or curry puff from the corner shop can enjoy them once more. 84 09 19

1984 09 20
Months ago a dowdy, dumpy, 67-year old widow sent a snap to the News with a scribbled note challenging us to make her beautiful. Today Phyllis Lambert emerges transformed and looking every inch an aristocrat. Small wonder her workmates at HH Electronics call her the Duchess of Willingham. Some of the world's best fashion advisers, hairdressers and make-up artists have spent weeks working the miracle. The beautification culminated in a celebrity champagne reception at a top London hotel. 84 09 20

1984 09 22
Pembroke Street is to close to start 'absolutely essential' work in a collapsed Victorian sewer and will be a dead road for 13 weeks. The sewers are blocked in at least three places, probably by fallen brick rubble, and television cameras have been lowered into them. The answer is to replace them with new plastic pipe but this would be a long and expensive business and the city council does not have the money. Pembroke College and other people in the area are having to use restricted toilet facilities and Carter's Shoes, Pembroke Gifts, Alf Droy sports and Henry's tea and coffee shop are up in arms. 84 09 22

An American Chevrolet rescue tender is the most recent addition to Cambridge Fire Brigade's fleet. It carries no water and is just used for getting rescue equipment to accident scenes. It is fitted with the latest cutting equipment, lights, generators and decontamination gear and has been specially chosen for its speed with its big 6.2 litre engine. 84 09 22

1984 09 25
Cambridge traffic and parking scheme have come and gone like the tide. Each has aroused opposition, usually vociferous. Sometimes it has been strong enough to stop the thing completely. Constant bickering between the City and County Councils has done nothing to solve the traffic problems which stems from a division of responsibility between the two authorities. Some hope of sorting out the tangles arose with the introduction of the city Traffic Management Team. Now a tough new traffic control system comes into operation. 84 09 25

1984 09 27
A bar 'unique to Cambridge' is the claim made for J. Millars on Newnham Road. It is not a wine bar or a cocktail bar. When the Chinese beer ran out they tracked down an alternative in Brighton. Apart from tsing tsio they have beers from Germany, Czechoslovakia and Holland and claim to offer the widest range of import beers, liquers and spirits outside London. They offer all-day faculties for business conferences and hold wedding receptions. 84 09 27 # c.27.4

1984 09 28

A Cambridge pensioner is hoping for dry days ahead after weeks of rain pouring through her bedroom ceiling. Every downpour has seen the 82-year-old crippled widow setting out basins and old chamber pots to catch the flow through the roof of her house in Eden Street. Landlords Jesus College sent builders round but weeks later the roof was even worse. She is also without a bathroom and the toilet is outside at the bottom of the garden. She hates going out and it is terrible in winter when there is snow around. The college is holding discussions with the city council about modernising such properties. 84 09 28

The first phase of Ely's new road network – designed to take heavy traffic from the centre of the city – has been completed several weeks ahead of schedule. The section between the A142 Witchford Road and the A10 Cambridge Road together with the link road to the station will immediately ease traffic problems along the winding Barton Road – Back Hill area. It will also open up Angel Drove for industrial development. 84 09 28

Girls of Impington Village College are demure school misses by day and dazzling disco princesses by night. The 10 girls make up two teams, Mekanism and Africano, and are heading for Hammersmith Palais for the British National Association of Youth Club's Junior Team Disco championships. They are tutored by physical education and dance teacher Mrs Stephanie Franklin and spend five hours a week perfecting their hip-swivelling, high-kicking routines. 84 09 28

Cambridge's oldest greengrocer's business, Naylors of Mill Road which been trading since January 1900 has closed. It was founded by William Thomas Naylor who moved from his family's farm at Duck End, Guilden Morden. Before long he had opened a second shop, now a delicatessen and a greengrocer's in Norfolk Street. The Mill Road shop had a better clientele in those days. Many of the houses were owned by fairly wealthy families. Now they are let as bed-sitters and most of the custom has been from students. Doctors and maternity hospital staff were good customers but the hospital has now closed. Courgettes, kiwi fruit and aubergines have joined traditional English products in recent years. 84 09 28

October 1984 CEN

1984 10 01
British Rail has bowed to public opinion and re-introduced famous name, The Fenman, for its 8.43 am train from Cambridge to London. The name was introduced by the LNER in the 1930s for its premier train on the London – Cambridge – King's Lynn line. It lost its headboards over 20 years ago when electrification came and BR feared drivers might be injured taking them on and off. But everyone went on calling it The Fenman.

The Cambridge-based Marshall Group celebrated its 75th birthday as early examples of motorised transport of all kinds were on show at the Motoring Milestones Pageant at the East of England Showground. They included cars from the humblest Austin Chummy to the most magnificent Rolls-Royce, lorries, buses, vans a motor-cycles. There was also a display of the latest vehicles sold by the group. Sir Arthur and Lady Marshall cut an anniversary cake. 84 10 01 p13

Ninety years ago a shrewd and enterprising woman was born, Mrs Catherine Holland. Her first husband died young and she needed to make a living by supplying yeast which was much in demand among the many local bakers. Although vital it was only used in minute amounts so Mr Holland was able to cycle around making his deliveries. The yeast was supplied in huge sacks and the secret was to keep it fresh by selling it in small amounts at regular intervals. For a long time the business was continued in the family home in Sedgwick Street but during the First World War they got the sole agency for a major brand and moved to Mill Road. After that the business prospered. 84 10 01 p15

Haslingfield sign, p5

1984 10 02
Cambridge is a city of fear because many police officers are being sent to the Midlands on miners' picket duties. At times there has been only one constable on patrol duty over the whole southern half of the city. Petty crime and vandalism is rising, councillors claim. Meanwhile Mrs Thatcher's arch critic Francis Pym made a bitter attack on the Government's handling of the strike at a News Literary Lunch. 84 10 02 p1

1984 10 03
Darwin Instruments, the Cambridge educational supply company which two years ago won a £37 million Mexican export order, has opened its new headquarters. It has completely refurbished the Old Paper Mills on the corner of Newmarket Road and Ditton Walk which two years ago was completely derelict. 84 10 03 p13

1984 10 04
Pym's salvo, p1

1984 10 05
Cambridge Place snooker, p26

1984 10 06
A postmistress is fighting for her life after being gunned down in a pool of blood on the floor of her tiny Thriplow shop whilst counting the day's takings. The violent robbery has left residents stunned and many are locking their doors and windows before they go to bed. The usual friendly, personal mood of the village is reflected on the village green where fresh vegetables and flowers are placed for sale and you pay through an honesty box. 84 10 06 p1, 84 10 08 p1, 84 10 09 p1, 15, 84 10 24 p16

Fortrey Hall, p9

1984 10 08
Pigott's, the Cambridge hardware chain has closed its central branch in Sussex Street. They have been in the street since the 1930s and always did a good trade but had increasingly severe problems with parking and with wholesalers getting to the shop. Then a rent review was the final thing, the manager said. 84 10 08 p7

1984 10 10
Old Addenbrooke's Hospital has provided care and cure for ordinary people for more than 220 years. This month it is to close and when the last patients vacate the gynaecology, plastic surgery and ear, noses and throat wards it will be sold. 84 10 10 p26

1984 10 11
Miner's leader Arthur Scargill has followed in the unlikely footsteps of Kaiser Bill in having his effigy strung up at Caxton Gibbet. The gibbet was last used for a real hanging in 1750 for a mail-coach robber from Royston but in 1919 someone used it to string up 'the Mad Dog of Europe'. Now they are in use again with an effigy of Mr Scargill which appeared overnight bearing the words 'Scargill, Scum of the Earth. No one has claimed responsibility and Caxton villagers are staying silent. 84 10 11 p5

1984 10 16
Nobel prizewinners, p12
Willow Wholesale, p14

1984 10 17

Kimberley Road, a quiet residential side street in the Chesterton area, may soon be renamed Nelson Mandela Avenue to commemorate the South African anti-apartheid freedom fighter. Residents are to be asked their views and if there is a hostile reaction councillors may turn their attention to Natal Road instead. It had been suggested that Mr Mandela be granted the Freedom of Cambridge but this is not possible under the council's laws. 84 10 17 p1

Fire ripped through Foxton Hall after a massive explosion. Eye-witnessed reported seeing a ball of flame, believed to have been caused by an acetylene gas cylinder exploding. The Hall, which is more than 100 years old, was empty but being worked on as developers want to turn it into a hotel-cum-country club. Reports that children had been playing in a workman's hut where the fire started are being explored by police. 84 10 17 p6

RAF Mildenhall had been officially open for just four days when, 50 years ago, it was used as the starting-point for an air race from England to Australia. It had no windsock, over-enthusiastic spectators damaged the aircraft and there was no accommodation for competitors or ground-crew, which led to pilots sleeping in the draughty hangars. Now two light aircraft will take off to retrace the flight path of the competitors. 84 10 17 p18

1984 10 19
Ken Wallis, the aviator who invented James Bond's "Little Nellie", has notched up two world records at RAY Wyton. Following a measured course along the 16ft drain at Chatteris he attained a speed of 117.8 mph – beating the previous record held by an American by almost 10 mph. He now holds 15 of the 16 world records associated with an autogyro. The Wallis family are no strangers to Cambridge. In 1910 his father took their Wallbro monoplane to a field near Fulbourn for a maiden flight. But after a couple of hops and a bump they called it a day. Now Ken hopes to arrange a commemoration to mark his father's efforts. 84 10 19 p18

Histon Science Park plans, p1

1984 10 20
A new scheme to revolutionise Royston's rubbish collection has run into opposition. Thousands of homes have been given new bins on wheels but people object to having to push them through their houses, over carpets and up and down steps as well as moving the furniture out of the way. The environmental health director says he appreciates the difficulties and will provide people with sacks. 84 10 20 p5

1984 10 23
The former Hunter's Fen at Cottenham has reopened as a free house. It now serves real ale as well as food, with a restaurant specialising in pheasant and jugged hare and Barnsley chops. It was originally built as The Jolly Waterman around 100 years ago had had been a restaurant for 14 years. Now it is a traditional English style pub with dark beams and open fireplaces. 84 10 23 p16

1984 10 24
Thousands of people living in the Mill Road area are being asked for their views on the new proposals for controlling traffic and reducing accidents in Romsey. Past attempts to reduce the high accident rate have failed and the controversial traffic lights at the railway bridge were scrapped after widespread protests and gigantic traffic delays. The new proposals involve road closures and traffic lights at the junction with Tenison Road together with parking restrictions. 84 10 24 p9

Rapide aircraft, p22

1984 10 25
Sheikh Mohammed Al Maktoum, a member of the ruling Royal family of Dubai, has bought the Rutland stud, 300 acres of farmland, 10 houses and the local playing fields in the tiny village of Saxon Street. He also owns Dalham Hall stud where he is having a large residence built so is unlikely to live in the "squire's" house. But he will be entitled to hold the unofficial title by which Mr Edgar Cooper-Bland was known locally. However he is would like it known that the occupants of the 10 houses he has acquired can remain there undisturbed. 84 10 25 p1

Oxford & Cambridge club, p16

1984 10 26
The symbol of Cambridge City Football Club's rebuilding programme has risen from the ground at Milton Road. The new pitch is down, the lights are up but there won't be soccer action there until the turn of the year. Then there will be the prospect of real comfort for the 400 or so who will be able to watch from the new stand. In addition to changing and other rooms there will be a social club and café and even a glass-fronted viewing room for directors and guests. 84 10 26 p44

The Fish and Duck pub and marina at Little Thetford failed to reach its reserve price of £150,000 when put up for auction. The complex on a 23 acre site at the confluence of the Great Ouse and Cam was put up for sale by its present owner, Nowinvest Ltd but the top bid fell a little short of what was required. 84 10 26 p 6

Cheero to Reg Holmes, p16

1984 10 27
An old chapel at 75 Tenison Road has been transformed into a modern luxurious home. It had been a public analyst's laboratory, a police base for testing suspected drunken drivers and a language school. Now it is a highly comfortable bachelor pad with a large sunken bath and sauna and is on the market for £75,000. 84 10 27

1984 10 29
Teacher Michael Bowyer always hoped that when he retired all his ex-pupils would come back and fill the school playground. Now Morley Memorial School, where he has taught for 31 years, is trying to contact as many as possible of the 1,100 for a special farewell. Michael did not set out to be a schoolmaster. He loved anything that flies but an illness left his eyesight damaged and he was unable to join the RAF. Now he will concentrate on a book about German wartime raids on East Anglia. 84 10 29 p13

1984 10 31
Gaynes Hall, an 18th-century mansion at West Perry which until recently was a borstal, is to become headquarters of AIM Cambridge, the St Ives high-technology consulting firm. AIM, which was formed as part of the Tek group in 1974, is currently recruiting new staff and hopes to have more than 100 by the end of 1987. They hired a coach to show its St Ives staff the new headquarters and the response was overwhelming. People are very enthusiastic about the move. 84 10 31

November 1984 CEN

1984 11 01
The former Huntingdon County Hospital could be turned into a 'retirement village'. A Norfolk firm plan to transform the Mill Common site into a complex of 87 one and two-bedroomed flats. The listed Georgian building, which closed to patients a year ago, is to be the nucleus of the new development which will have recreational facilities, a library and a communal laundry. 84 11 01 p7

MILL Road objectors, p5

1984 11 02
Royal stage star Prince Edward put on a command performance for a group of astounded pensioners in Willingham church hall. Then the fun-loving prince turned waiter and served tea to the old folk.

Willingham Community Group had been ready for a top-rate show from Cambridge University Light Entertainment Society but were amazed when Edward, an undergraduate at Jesus College, bounded on stage to give a rousing rendition of 'The Gasman Cometh'. 84 11 02 p1

Own Roe, the St Andrew's Street antiques dealer, is the latest in a line of specialist private shops owners to be driven out of the centre of Cambridge by massive rent rises. His great-grandfather started in business at the corner of Christ's Lane in 1822 but that shop was pulled down to make way for Bradwell's Court in the 1960s. Recently E.J. Pigott (tools) left Sussex Street after nearly 50 years and now the Granta Wool Shop is concerned about a rent review. Model Mania in King Street has also moved. 84 11 02 p8

1984 11 03
Bansall Club 1930s – history – Snelson - 84 11 03

1984 11 07
Cambridge diet, p14
Co-op supplement

1984 11 09
A scheme to provide badly-needed homes for the elderly is nearing completion at Littleport. Axion Housing Association hopes its development in Parson Lane will be finished in February so tenants can move into the 64 purpose-built flats. Each has central heating, fitted kitchen and toilet with electric cooker, fridge and alarm system. Rents will be between £28 and £38 a week. 84 11 09 p21

Cambridge discos are awful: Ronelles is all right for up to 18s but you feel out of it when you're in your 20's. And it's not just the youngsters who are complaining: their mums and grannies have their own gripes. They miss the dance halls from the Rex and Embassy, which enjoyed their heyday during the Rock and Roll boom to, the more sedate Dorothy. The Corn Exchange, formerly home of all kinds of entertainment, closed two years ago and the Kelsey Kerridge Sports hall is not ideal for stage events. So people turn to the nightclubs at Peterborough. 84 11 09 p27

William Sindall, the construction group founded in 1881, has moved from Cherryhnton Road to new premises at Sawston. In 1936 Harold Ridgeon and his brother Frank merged it with their housing activities based in Gloucester Street. They expanded into airfield construction during WWII and went public in 1965. 84 11 09 p34

1984 11 12
Dazzling dancers, Mekanism, from Impington Village College have won the junior championships in the National Association of Youth Clubs disco dance championship. Another pupil, Penny Latin, came second in the disco dance design competition with her flame-patterned circular skirt and bare midriff outfit. The PE teacher, Stephanie Franklin took the school's senior dance teams, Rhythmic Revolution and Terpischorean Rage, to the top of the championship in the last two years. 84 11 12 p1

1984 11 14
Sir - This is the 50th anniversary of a great act of kindness to the dogs of Cambridgeshire by a distinguished foreign visitor. In 1934 HRH Prince Chula of Siam erected a memorial to his dog Tony in the form of a fountain at the correct height so that dogs could slake their thirst in hot weather. It still stands outside the Chesterton branch of Lloyd's Bank but is in a sorry condition. Can it not be cleaned up and maintained? - Paul Garside, Science Park. 84 11 14 p16

1984 11 14
The redevelopment of the huge Co-op site in Burleigh Street has been beset with problems ever since the first report on Cambridge shopping in the fifties. Now it has transformed its flagship store inside and out, demonstrating its faith in the twin shopping centre concept. It says much for the Co-op's business acumen that it has kept pace with the latest trends, adapting to the needs of the times and retaining a hard core of loyal support from its members. 84 11 14 suppl6

1984 11 15
A medieval barn is to open as a restaurant. The 500-years-old barn at Tower Farm, Little Downham, which was built as kitchens at the Bishop of Ely's summer palace, had been used for storing straw before a blaze ripped through it. Now it has been restored to its original condition with leaded windows and timber beams. It will become a carvery restaurant and used for conferences, wedding receptions and parties. 84 11 15 p7

Community Magazines carry a wealth of local information. The 'Whither Whittlesford', 'Bar Hill News' and 'Voice of Arbury' publications were prize-winners in the Community News Contest. Now representatives will attend the annual dinner of the East Anglian Association of Industrial Editors at Newnham College to receive their awards. The Arbury team will use the money to buy a Polaroid camera to improve the topicality of their illustrations. 84 11 15 p20

1984 11 16
The first of a new series of discos being run by the City Council as part of their 'younger look' entertainments programme is expected to make a splash. It's being held in the Parkside indoor swimming pool. The youngsters will be able to swim in time to the music or dance in their bathing costumes in the restaurant and promenade areas. A Rock and pop music concert is being held in the Guildhall when the star attraction will be the group Dr Feelgood. 84 11 16 p15

Tourist Centre, p25

1984 11 19
The newly opened Larkfield centre for the mentally handicapped in Ely includes classrooms, workshops, art room and activity area together with a special care unit to cater for the needs of the severely handicapped. The outside has been set aside for recreation and horticultural work. It means people will no longer have to make the journey to Cambridge or March for specialist care. 84 11 19 p5

Brass bands, p12

1984 11 20
Cambridge's Hills Road bus depot is to be moved to the outskirts of the city in a multi-million pound swap deal between Cambus and the Stetchworth-based Unex property group. Cambus will exchange its one-acre site for a much larger section of the former D & H Contractor's site in Cowley Road. In return Unex will get control of the bus depot virtually next door to the former Heffer's printing works site which they successfully redeveloped as Botanic House, headquarters of Cambridge Electronic Industries, BBC Radio Cambridgeshire and Betjeman House which was subsequently sold for more than £4 million. 84 11 20 p1

St Andrew the Great, p3

1984 11 22
About 1,000 students protesting at Government proposals on student grants marched from the Senate House to Lady Mitchell Hall where they staged an 18-hour sit-in. Students from CCAT also staged an overnight 'work-in' in their college library. Next day they demonstrated on the steps of Shire Hall where they met Councillors and officials. They are disturbed at proposals that parents should start paying for part of their tuition fees. Nigel Lawson's plans are an attack on the principle of a free education for all who are able to benefit from it, they claim. It was the biggest show of student protest in Cambridge for 10 years. 84 11 22

Cambridge's Savoy Jazzmen, who are celebrating 25 years of rip-roaring music, have announced they are to quit. The group's leader and only remaining original member, Barry Palser, has promised they will get together for special gigs. The Jazzmen have performed throughout Europe and have a single due for release in Germany. They got together to play for their own enjoyment in 1959 but were then invited to play for parties. They have become part of Cambridge music heritage, playing in parades, jazz clubs and Festivals. Barry remembers when Kenny Ball and Acker Bilk called into the Rose pub in Rose Crescent and joined in a couple of sessions. 84 11 22b

South Cambs DC anger over Whitehall cash strictures – 84 11 22a

1984 11 22
Gift to Collection: BBC Radio Cambridgeshire presents tapes of 'Cambridgeshire at War' progammes of WWI memories; photo with veterans 84 11 22 & a # c.45.5

1984 11 23
Bowls, once the pensioners' preserve, is now attracting teenagers. Seventeen-year-old Roger Evans from Royston is their senior three-wood singles champion as well as Chesterton indoor club's under-18 champion. Greg Harlow, 16, from Ely who is a keen rugby, squash and soccer player also rates bowls as his top sport. "There are getting to be as many youngsters as old men in the game now", he observes. David Cornwell, who was barred from Ely's bowls greens and had to play at Littleport when he was 12, is now recognised as one of the country's brightest bowls innovators and has been asked to prepare a scheme for a national under-21 championship. 84 11 23

1984 11 24
Fulbourn garage fire – 84 11 24
Home computers put hi-tech game sales under fire – 84 11 24a

1984 11 26
An eccentric middle-aged bachelor is refusing to budge from his derelict run-down council cottage in Little Wilbraham even though it is deemed unfit for human habitation. There is no bathroom, has only a cold tap and the whole house leaks so much that electricity has become a danger. He lives, sleeps and eats in just one room but does not want to move away, preferring to live in a caravan in the garden. The council had treated him cruelly by taking rent for such a house, he complains. 84 11 26

1984 11 27
Arthur Deeks started work as an errand boy at Ince's tailors in Clare High Street in 1915 at the age of 13 but they soon had him behind the counter, keeping his position when it was bought by the present owner, Geoffrey Peddar. Arthur had one break of four years when he served with the RAF during the war but when he reached 65 retirement did not cross his mind: he was happy, strong and healthy. More than 100 old customers attended a party in his honour at the Bell Hotel. 84 11 27

1984 11 29
PC Bob Reynolds dies – 84 11 29 & a

1984 11 30
The Champion of the Thames pub in King Street has just been completely refurbished with an Edwardian atmosphere featuring reinstated oak panelling matched up with new boarding bars, ceilings and floors. The familiar 'Champion' emblem of a sculler has been superbly etched on the new glass but the Landlord would like to know something more about him so that he can add to a selection of old rowing and sculling prints which now adorn the walls. He thinks the name may have come from either a lodger or resident who was a Thames sculling champion. 84 11 30c

Cambridge could have a new radio station. Churchill College has a custom-built system for piping radio into everyone's rooms from a studio in the basement. Much of the equipment has been soldered together by engineering students, but it works. They run news bulletins and features on discount travel as well as art reviews and general student gossip. Now students have applied for a community radio licence and hope to transmit their 12 hours of music and chat from Girton to Homerton. 84 11 30a & b

Doorstep milkmen here to stay – 84 11 30

December 1984 CEN

1984 12 03
The church of St Andrew the Great officially became redundant on St Andrew's Day. Sunday services would have ceased immediately but the Greek Orthodox congregation, who use the church, protested that they couldn't find anywhere else at such short notice. Now diocesan authorities will allow both Greek and Anglican services to continue until January. Under the terms of the closure the parish will merge with neighbouring Holy Trinity. 84 12 03

1984 12 05
KP Professional Sales started in 1968 when its position on King's Parade was ideal for building up business with university departments. But it outgrew its space in the KP Camera Shop, moving to Sussex Street and then Quayside before opening new premises in Clifton Road. It supplies Government departments, the armed forces and a host of professional photographers who need a vital piece of equipment at the last minute. There is a lot of new electronic equipment but as far as taking pictures is concerned Ian Bedson, the managing director, doesn't envisage any major innovation. 84 12 05 & a

1984 12 06
Youngsters at Earith school will have a computer at their fingertips, thanks to a 280-year-old will drafted to help education in the village, The money left by Thomas Skeeles brought writing slates in the 1700's but will now supply computer and monitor equipment that will be a big boost for the 175-pupil school. 84 12 06

Jobless teenagers have helped restore the 140-year-old brick cowling covering an ancient spring at Holywell. It dates back to pre-Christian times and its waters had a wide reputation for their healing powers. They have also landscaped the area, planting 700 bulbs which will look marvellous in springtime. The village Horticultural Society dresses the well with flower mosaics consisting of thousands of petals in a ceremony which draws hundreds of visitors. 84 12 06a

1984 12 07
Police are investigating the mystery disappearance of a Littleport woman. She walked out of her home above Cox's butchers shop in Station Road in July 1972, four years after her husband moved to American to be with their daughter after her USAF pilot husband died. William Cox had started up a butcher's shop in Main Street just after the First World War and also ran cafes in Wisbech, Downham Market and King's Lynn. He had since died and the search has been launched so that his will can be carried out. 84 12 07a & b

1984 12 08
The very new Ancient Druids pub has opened its doors for the first time – but not without a slight delay. The pub brews their own ale on the premises but when Cambridge's mayor pulled the pump for the first pint all he got was an eggful of the new Charles Wells brew, Kite Bitter, and a lot of home-brewed air. However, after a rapid change of pump, a glass was drawn to be sampled by Ale Conner Alfie Howard from Lambeth, who revives the centuries-old tradition of testing the beer before a pub can start serving. Dressed in his 17th-century costume he passed it as fit and hoisted aloft an ale garland signifying the new brew was ready for drinking. The old Ancient Druids, remembered as an old-fashioned boozer with its own particular charm, was one of nine to go under the developers' bulldozer. 84 12 08

Stretham windmills, p9

1984 12 10
After losing its boathouse in a spectacular fire 15 months ago, the Cambridge '99 Rowing Club is now celebrating the completion of its attractive replacement. Fortunately none of the club's eights were in the boathouse at the time of the fire. The club takes its name from the year it was founded and Banhams, the then well-known boat builders supplied the first clinker eight in 1949 to mark their golden jubilee. At the same time they were the first local club to buy a new eight. This has just been refurbished and is returning to the river looking nearly as handsome as it did in its heyday. 84 12 10

Wick Alsop has long been one of Cambridge's most colourful characters, always recognisable by his carnation buttonhole. He is the 'grand old man of Cambridge rowing' having joined the 99 Rowing Club in 1921 and been secretary and President. Now over 90 he still takes part in their many social activities, including balls, garden parties and a golf society. Wick spent a lifetime in banking and was financial adviser to Pye of Cambridge. During the war he formed a Red Cross choir and toured villages raising more than £3,500. 84 12 10a

1984 12 13
The University History Faculty Building opened in 1968 and won an award from the Royal Institute of British Architects. Its designer, James Stirling, received the Royal Gold Medal for Architecture in 1980. But it has suffered problems of water penetration, heat gain in summer and heat loss in winter through the huge fan-shaped glazed roof to the library. It will cost nearly as much to repair as it would to demolish and rebuild completely and now academics must decide its fate. 84 12 13

The Cambridge Working Men's Club was inaugurated in 1863 when a hall was erected where members would be provided with coffee, books, newspapers and 'quiet and proper amusements'. The original building was demolished to make way for the Grafton Centre but the newly-opened replacement is a great improvement with a dance floor, pool and billiard rooms. It holds regular monthly socials with bingo on Fridays and Saturdays and a children's Christmas party in January. 84 12 13a

1984 12 14
Salisbury's newly-restyled store in Petty Cury is just what Cambridge needs. It is one of their latest generation, combining fashion, function and fun. For many years the Salisbury name stood for leather handbags but perhaps mother and grandmother didn't carry so much around as girls today – maybe she didn't go out to work, read so much, do aerobics, jog, drive or make herself up as frequently! Now there are casual bags, executive cases and travel bags as well as umbrellas, hats and knitwear. From the moment the doors opened customers have been pouring in. 84 12 14a & b

Foreign competition is forcing Grays to stop volume production of wooden squash racquets early next year due to the difference between the cost of labour and overheads in Cambridge and Taiwan. But production of a limited range of top-quality specialist racquets will continue as will its cricket bat and ball factories in Sussex and Kent. The129-year-old company, which has its headquarters at the Playfair Works in Benson Street and a sports shop in Sidney Street, employs around 110 people locally. 84 12 14

1984 12 17
The Chequers public house by the war memorial at Cottenham is one of nine pubs and clubs in the village. Many original features of the 370-year-old building survive and upper floors tilt at quaint angles but now it has a brand new sports room and comfortable dining area. Open log fires blaze in the huge fireplace and visitors can relax in comfortable leather Chesterfield sofas while scanning a menu which features home cooking. 84 12 17

1984 12 19
Devi Agarwala was penniless when he first moved to England in 1950 but became one of Cambridge's best-known business men. He opened the city's first Indian restaurant, the Kismet in Northampton Street, and the Harlequin club and casino in Regent Street as well as an International Centre and language school. He was a member of the Pentacle Magic Club and organised a three-day All-India Magic Conference which had to be cancelled due to the murder of India's Prime Minister, Mrs Indira Ghandi. 84 12 19

1984 12 21
A Heritage Centre is to be set up in Cambridge with a £500 grant from the city's public lottery. The money will be spent on an architectural feasibility study on building to house the new centre and help pay for some of its initial running costs. Some time ago a Cambridge Heritage Workshop Forum was set up to get it off the ground. Once established it will provide information for visitors, a starting point for tours and education for children. 84 12 21

1984 12 24
Ridgeon's timber store in Cavendish Road went up in flames, in Cambridge's biggest blaze for years. Appliances from all over the county were rushed to the site and more than 100 men were involved in containing the fire which destroyed more than 800 tons of stacked timber. People in nearby Cromwell Road were evacuated from their homes because of the risk of gas canisters exploding. 84 12 24

1984 12 28
St John's College is to go ahead with plans to develop its 22-acre science park site in North Cambridge, even though part of it has been rejected by planners. The college has owned the land since 1530 but it has been semi-derelict since 1945. The site, sometimes known as 'the teardrop' lies between the new and old A10 roads at Milton and has been split by the building of the Northern by-pass with its raised interception. The Government says part lies in the Green Belt and should remain undeveloped. 84 12 28

Bill Milstein, the man who pioneered heart surgery at Papworth joined the Hospital in 1958 with 10 year's heart surgery experience already under his belt, just as it was emerging from being a tuberculosis sanatorium. Although the hospital had done some lung surgery its experience in cardiac work was very limited. Mr Milstein assembled a team around him and on 30th September 1958 did his first open heart operation. The patient was immersed in cold water with ice floating on it which slowed the metabolism down. They pioneered with the bath system until 1960 when heart and lung machines were brought in. Although he never carried out a human heart transplant it was his preparatory work that helped make it possible. 84 12 28a

FHS Engineering, the Sawston firm which began over 12 years ago in a rented wooden shed in Brookfield Road, has moved into new factory premises on Babraham Road Industrial Estate. They now employ 14 people making equipment used by a wide variety of operators from chemical firms to instrument companies. Their customers include Cecil Instruments, Cambridge Research Biochemicals and various divisions of Pye. They called themselves FHS after the places where the partners lived at the time, Fulbourn, Haverhill and Sawston. 84 12 28b & c

1984 12 29
The Festival Theatre in Newmarket Road, which dates back to 1808, is one of the oldest in the country. It still has many original fittings including what is probably the oldest revolving stage in the country. In 1878 it became an evangelistic mission with religious texts painted on the stalls. Some still survive and may be part of a new permanent display which will feature other memorabilia including a scrapbook of cuttings when it was rebuilt by Terence Gray in 1926. During WWII the building was used for storage by the RAF and is currently the Arts Theatre wardrobe and scenery workshop. 84 12 29

1984 12 31
Multi-millionaire David Robinson, who snubbed the Queen when she opened Robinson College – founded with a £17 million donation - has been awarded a knighthood in the New Years Honours List. It is in recognition of his charitable work over the years. Now he is expected to come out of hiding to attended his investiture and receive his award personally from the Queen. The only question is whether the elderly and infirm recluse is well enough to leave his Newmarket bungalow to attend the royal occasion. 84 12 31

Greek church, p3
Review of the year, p10

1985 Cambridge Evening News

I have copies of these articles – see reference at end of summary

January 1985 CEN

1985 01 03
Mr Douglas Winton-Smith who headed the Cambridge sausage and pie-making firm of Winton-Smith Ltd, has died aged 72. The company was set up by his father and taken over by a London businessman in the 1960s. Production continue at Winton Smith (Foods) Ltd until the Cambridge works closed 11 years ago and moved to Cheshire 85 01 03 # c.27.2

1985 01 05
A bid to bypass the miners' strike has rebounded expensively on Fulbourn Hospital chiefs. After their usual coal supplies appeared to be dwindling they imported £20,000-worth of coal from Poland. But maintenance work has shown it cannot be burnt in the newly-refurbished boilers as it produces too much heavy ash. At the moment the 600-bed psychiatric hospital is being heated with conventional coal brought in by private haulage contractors. 85 01 05

Mr Fothergill's Seeds at Kentford has moved into the big-time mail order business with its first full-colour catalogue. Jeffrey Fothergill and his colleague Brian Carey have been working up the business and now have their seed displays in most garden centres. From their premises opposite Regal Lodge, the former home of royal courtesan Lily Langtry, they have conducted a campaign for seeds which never traditionally featured in gardening catalogues. This year have been giving away packets of a little-known pea called Daisy as part of their 'Campaign for Real Peas' 85 01 05a

1985 01 07
Cutlack, the Ely-based hardware merchants, are to close their shop in Burleigh Street, Cambridge. It follows a period of poor trading for shops in the street. They planned the business around the creation of the Grafton Centre but pedestrianisation has not helped in any way and their Newmarket shop does two-and-a-half times more business than the Cambridge one. The site will now be redeveloped with extra shop frontage and improved access to the three floors of office space on the site 85 01 07a

The concept of a Green Belt around Cambridge was first put forward in the issued in 1949. Since it was last reviewed pressure has grown for certain parts to be declassified. One area is the Histon Road allotments site: some has been developed with council housing and now the County Council wants the rest removed from the Green Belt so it can be considered as suitable for redevelopment in the years ahead. A piece of the extensive acreage of Clay Farm, Trumpington, is also suitable for declassification say the planners. But 500 organisation have objected to the proposals. 85 01 07b & c

Greeks plan shutdown over Gt St Andrews church – 85 01 07

1985 01 10
The Christmas holiday lectures for youngsters have been held at the University Engineering Department for the last 20 years, with experts speaking on a wide variety of unusual subjects. But this year's attendance was disappointing, attracting only 1,600 to the series of eight presentations. The organiser, Mrs K. Joice Taylor, feels schools have not been advertising them to pupils. Eight years ago grants from the education authority were stopped and unless she can attract sponsorship they may have to cease. 85 01 10

Sir Clive Sinclair's new electric car is quite unlike anything else on the road. It is shaped like a plastic torpedo and equipped with handlebars beneath the driver's knee and a set of large bicycle pedals. Top speed is around 15mph on the level and the range on a single battery is around 20 miles. It can be recharged in eight hours and has a space for a reserve battery. The price is right: at just under £400 on the road it represents another highly-successful gamble on the part of the Cambridge-based millionaire 85 01 10a & b & c

Experts at Voice Input, a small company at St Ives have become one of the world leaders in voice control computer programming. It can direct a computer to turn the TV on and off, dial telephone numbers, print letters, speak foreign languages or just open and close the curtains. The firm hope to have a table-top micro-processor with inbuilt microphone and voice recognition equipment ready by April and forecast a mini office revolution with a semi-automatic typewriter which will type a letter as it is spoken. 85 01 10d

1985 01 11
Dinosaur Publications was formed at Over 14 years ago by Miss Althea Braithwaite. It has gone from strength to strength, producing children's books. Her most popular creation was Desmond the Dinosaur and books about him won export orders to America and Holland. Now one of Cambridge's most successful publishing companies, it is being bought by the publishing giant, Collins. 85 01 11 & a

1985 01 15
The USAF 48th Tactical Fighter Wing has completed 25 years at its base at Lakenheath. It flies about 80 F-111 swing-wing jets which are capable of carrying nuclear weapons and use a sophisticated laser guidance system to ensure their bombs hit the target in all weathers. Lakenheath has been an American base since 1948 when B-29 Superfortress bombers arrived as part of the 'Cold War' build up. Now it is the biggest in Britain with nearly 6,000 American servicemen, women and civilians working there. 85 01 15

1985 01 16
Scores of new jobs could be on offer in the work-starved Ely area if the thousands of pounds of ratepayers' money being invested in a new business park at Angel Drove is successful. East Cambs District Council has turned developer as part of its policy to diversify the area's industry, which has always leaned heavily on farming. Since the late 1970's hundreds of jobs have been lost with the closure of the Beet factory and Dorman Sprayers but the council hopes to bring high-tech, wealth-creating firms into the district which has a wide range of cheap housing, good health facilities and a host of sport and recreation facilities. 85 01 16a & b

Americans benefit by fall in sterling – 85 01 16

1985 01 17
Jack Harding was well-known as a local entertainer. A keen amateur comedian he was twice-winner of the Cambridge Senior Citizen competition when he brought the house down with his jokes and old songs. Jack was a hardware salesman working from home who took over his father's business. He was well-known in Waterbeach for his cheery personality and for his kindness in visiting the sick and people in need of help. He was also a lay reader at the village church for over 40 years. 85 01 17

Ted Hubbard from Newmarket is one of a team erecting crash barriers along the central reservation of the A604 from Bar Hill to the M11. The current sub-zero temperatures are playing havoc with an £8,000 'hammer' which drives wooden posts into the hardened grounds. Nut and bolts are frozen together and everything is covered with ice and snow. Lorries roar past sending a shower of icy sludge over the men as they battle gamely against the elements. But he has been doing the job for 14 years and is used to these sort of conditions. The work is expected to be completed within a month 85 01 17b

Stephen Hawking review book – 85 01 17a

1985 01 21

An old playschool bus has been fitted out with bench seats and facilities to make hot drinks and sandwiches with an informal meeting area upstairs. It will stand on waste land next to the Lion Yard car park as a drop-in centre to provide a warm, sheltered meeting place for the homeless, unemployed and disadvantaged people of Cambridge. There will be two basic rules – no drink and no violence. It is run by the Cyrenians who will offer advice on problems with the DHSS, housing and drinking. But there has been a lot of public hostility 85 01 21 # c.32.9

Skilled technicians, computer programmers and systems analysts are now at a premium in Cambridge and are being bought and sold like footballers between firms who pay transfer fees to get the staff they want. The Itec centre in Hooper Street is making a small dent in the problem by taking youngsters with no formal qualifications and training them on technical subjects. Of 28 taken on so far, all but one have got good jobs. 85 01 21a # c.27.1

1985 01 23
Pye has been in consumer electrical goods since 1922 when W.G. Pye and Co began selling wireless kits. Now from its headquarters in St Andrew's Road, Chesterton it sells a wide range of televisions and radios under the Pye brand name though they are not made in Cambridge and have Philips internals. People have a very strong loyalty to the name 'Pye', so now they are moving back into areas which have been abandoned to the Japanese. Video cassette recorders have been selling since July and hi-fi music-centres will be launched this year. 85 01 23a # c.27.1 : Pye

Hundreds of farmers and traders flocked to Milton Road sale ground for the biggest traction auction in the country. Yilmaz Alademir had come all the way from Farmagusta, Cyprus looking for a tractor he could ship home as they were much cheaper in England. A more typical buyer was Gavin Hamilton of Manor Farm, Great Chesterford. He was looking for wheels and rollers among the dozens of machines and implements at the back of the saleground. The sale was started in the early 1940s by Mr Henry Grain & Cambridge auctioneers Cheffins, Grain and Chalk have been pulling the crowds ever since 85 01 23b # c.27.3

Acorn route into future – 85 01 23 # c.27.1

1985 01 24
Cambridge Rag organisers hope to recapture the spirit of the Sixties when Town and Gown united to raise money for the needy. In those days it was a flamboyant affair when students organised processions, consumed a ton of porridge at porridge parties and arranged sponsored trampolining outside King's College. In 1966 a nurse called Jennie was raffled as a 'date' for an evening but the men of are too gentlemanly to get up to that sort of prank. 85 01 24 & a

1985 01 26
A blaze ripped through a Cambridge dance studio in the former Eaden Lilley warehouse in Glisson Road just a week before it was due to open. The Bodywork Studio is owned by former Sixties pop stars and dancers Patrick and Theresa Kerr who taught Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon to dance, along with celebrities like Peter Sellers and Ringo Starr. Mr Kerr was also a singer in the Ivy League pop group 85 01 26

1985 01 29
Salvage of Hurricane which collided Wellington May 1941 Isleham – 85 01 29 & a # c.45.7

1985 01 30
Liver transplant Government hand-out – 85 01 30
Saffron Walden traffic problem – 85 01 30a

1985 01 31
The Government's decision to allow the widening of East Road has been called 'a disaster for Cambridge' by City Councillors who oppose the plan. They feel widening would harm the environment and represent a health hazard for children at St Matthew's School, part of whose playing fields would be dug up. But County Council road engineers claim the plan to dual the final 400-yard stretch from Norfolk Street to Mill Road corner is an essential part of the city's traffic pattern and will be completed as soon as possible. 85 01 31

St Ives Pakistani community fight for Mosque – 85 01 31a

Barbara Duff has been Cambridgeshire's stray dogs' greatest friend for twenty years. She has devoted all her energy, time and money to saving thousands from death. Her work started when she visited the council's dog pound near the Milton sewage works. There was a row of pathetic dogs each tied up in a large room, spotlessly clean but unexercised and fed only dog biscuits. She put some in her car and took them to her friends. If they did not want them, she took them to her home. Some she kept in kennels, which can be very expensive and she sold her own antique furniture to raise money. 85 01 31b # c.19

February 1985 CEN

1985 02 01
Orwell church has completed its set of six bells after a wait of 54. There has been a space in the tower since the other five were rehung in 1931: it had been such a big job that there was not enough money then. Now they have been given a bell from the disused church at Benwick. It has been recast at the Whitechapel foundry in London, rehung under the direction of an expert from Meldreth, John Gibson, and dedicated by the Bishop of Ely 85 02 01

The closing down a Scurfield's shop must bring a sense of loss to anyone who has brought up a family in Cambridge. It catered for all the basic essential of kitchen life – a little brown teapot, storage jars and black casseroles like benign witches' cauldrons. Then there were the mugs from the earthy pottery mugs to the bold primary colours of 1984. Another joy were the cookery books from the original George Scurfield's basic primer on the baking of bread to the classics of today – Ken Lo and Madhur Jaffrey 85 02 01a # c.27.2

The rambling photographic premises in Post Office Terrace are best known as Ramsey and Muspratt's studios. It was in 1931 that Lettice Ramsey and Helen Muspratt took over the business previously run by Palmer Clarke. They built up the portraiture side of the work, photographing most of the university students in the 1930s and carefully filing their negatives. In 1978 the business was taken over by Nicholas Lee and then Peter Lofts but has now closed. All the glass negatives of previously photographers at the studio, dating back to the 1860s, are now in the Cambridgeshire Collection. 85 02 01b & c # c.65.5

Rate rise, p1

1985 02 04
Two miners have been busily beavering away under one of Saffron Walden's main streets installing a water drainage system. The muffled rumble of traffic overhead can be heard above the noise of their machinery as they tunnel from the old pig market site across Hill Street to join the Slade, a 200-year-old brick-lined watercourse. Rats abound but luckily the noise of mining machinery keeps them at bay as miner Mick Clark is scared stiff of them 85 02 04

1985 02 06
The Molesworth peace camp was smashed in a massive combined military and police operation masterminded by Defence Secretary Michael Heseltine. They swooped in the dead of night catching almost 200 anti-Cruise missile protesters by surprise while 1,500 soldiers set about erecting a seven-and-a-half-mile fence around the base. Amongst those living at 'Rainbow Fields' were about 25 babies and a woman about to give birth. Police provided fuel to allow some of their vehicles to leave and emergency arrangements were made to provide shelter for women and children who needed it. 85 02 06 # c.45.8

The smashing of the peace camp at Molesworth was met with delight by members of the Ratepayers Against Molesworth Settlement. Its leader hailed it as a triumph for law and order and a Union Flag was flying from the pub at Clopton on the edge of the base. But Cambridgeshire's Liberal Group condemned the action as counter-productive fearing that protestors may get under the skin of locals now they have no place to camp away from the village. A member of Christian CND says plans for a massive peace rally of up to 50,000 campaigners will now have to be revised 85 02 06a

1985 02 07
The Old Addenbrooke's Hospital site in Trumpington Street has been bought by Cambridge University for a record £5.75 million – double the expected price. This reflects nationwide interest in what is the last major site likely to become available in the central area. There had been a gentleman's agreement to give the university first refusal when the old hospital closed, but East Anglian Regional Health Authority decided to go out to tender. It will now be used for expanding university teaching, research and laboratory departments. 85 02 07 # c.21.4 # c.36.9

First-time buyers who are not deterred by soaring interest rates have another problem – the shortage of low-priced properties in Cambridge. One city estate agent only has five or six houses a week on his books in the £25-£30,000 price range with ten couples interested in every house even though a two-bedroomed terrace home costs about £32,000 while a similar property in Huddersfield sells for £6,000. Many people end up buying in Newmarket. One hopeful buyer with £20,000 to spend on a country cottage that needs modernising has visited 115 properties in the last year without success. 85 02 07a

1985 03 08
An aircraft carrying the Princess of Wales made a dramatic touchdown in Cambridge in a blinding snowstorm. Diana, wearing a red coat, stepped from the plane to a freshly-cleared patch of runway. Then her driver battled through traffic-clogged city streets to get the snow Princess to Peterhouse where she was met by flag-waving students who braved the appalling weather and saw a demonstration of research work into cot deaths. 85 02 08 # c.02

1985 02 11
More than 5,000 Sinclair C5 electric vehicles have been sold during the first four weeks of production. At the moment it is sold by mail order but they are already talking to a number of High Street retailers who would sell the £400 machine direct to the public. Interest has come from as far away as the Outer Hebrides and Cornwell and from both teenagers and old age pensioners. In Cambridge the Eastern Electricity showrooms on Market Hill report continued interest in the machine they have on display and have distributed over 2,000 order forms 85 02 11 # c.27.1 : Sinclair # c.26.48

1985 02 12
While the villages of North Hertfordshire are kept pretty, their life is draining away. Residents want more homes, more jobs and more life. They complain of lack of shops and public transport but above all it is conservation policies that get the blame for the drift of youngsters to the towns. Tight planning controls prevent the growth of local industry, even in redundant farm buildings which are left to collapse, and the lack of housing and development means no suitable small-scale homes for the young or elderly. Villagers feel like an oppressed minority, always outvoted by town-dwellers on district and county councils, a survey reveals. 85 02 12

When Tom and Audrey Chipper arrived to take over the running of the Baptist church in the quiet fenland village of Isleham in 1972 they had no idea of the dramatic changes that lay ahead. They became Born Again Christians and since then the church has grown beyond recognition: the Sunday congregation is now around 350 and has formed a daughter church in Newmarket with a membership of 100. The church practices healing with praying, laying on of hands and anointing with oil. Four people have gone abroad to take up missionary work in Uganda, Nigeria and Pakistan. 85 02 12a

1985 02 13
Ditton Fields, p14

1985 02 14
The bug-eyed Optica plane designed in Cambridgeshire has won its certificate of airworthiness. It can loiter at under 60 miles an hour, carries three people and is intended for observation work, aerial photography and sight-seeing. It was invented by John Edgley of Elsworth who planned to build it locally. But because of difficulties in finding a suitable site the firm has moved to Wiltshire. 85 02 14a # c.26.1

Ken Wallis sets off for another record – 85 02 14 # c.26.1

1985 02 18
A dolls' hospital has opened at the back of a shop in Jesus Terrace where Gwendoline Beavan carefully restores them to their former glory. Most of the work is replacing the elastic which holds their head, body and limbs together and becomes slack over the years. Hands feet and wigs can be bought from a dolls' supplier. The trickiest job is replacing the eye balls which involves pouring plaster into the sockets from inside the head. Most of the dolls she sells were made after 1880 but even 1950s' dolls are now becoming collectable, selling for around £10. 85 02 18

1985 02 20
This year for the first time in living memory Cottenham people can stand in their gardens off the High Street and see across to the Oakington Road. It was once a mass of orchards. Today there are only one or two left scattered amidst seas of arable land. The acreage of fruit in Cottenham has slumped from 900 at the end of the war to well under 300 in recent years. One of the last orchards to disappear was worked by Frank Peacock and comprised 65 acres of mainly Cox apples, Conference pears and pollinators. But it became uneconomic and the Government gives grants towards grubbing them up 85 02 20 & a

1985 02 21
Having to stay overnight in London midweek is an occupational hazard for most MPs. Late-night sittings at the Commons that frequently go on into the early hours mean it is impossible to return home afterwards. MP's should be reimbursed for extra expenses just like any business executive - at present this is £6,518 a year. But a recent announcement has extended these claims to include interest incurred on any mortgage which means they can acquire a personal asset at the public's expense. Liberal MP for the Isle of Ely, Clement Freud, says it is 'absolutely disgraceful' and Cambridge MP, Robert Rhodes James, who rents a London flat, says he could never afford a second mortgage and the new arrangements would not affect him. 85 02 21a

Acorn's future following the Olivetti rescue – 85 02 21 # c.27.1 : Acorn

1985 02 25
Artistic roller skating was demonstrated at the Kelsey Kerridge Sports Hall. Most of the skaters started when the Bury St Edmunds Rollerbury opened three years ago and since then several groups have been formed in village halls. Gail Jolley of Soham took up artistic skating with her daughter Laura and has already passed three exams. Eventually it is hoped it will become recognised as an Olympic Sport 85 02 25 # c.38 : roller skating

Tattoos are back in fashion – even blue blooded aristocrats and well-to-do businessmen are going in for discreet designs painted indelibly on their bodies. Master artist 'Tattoo Jack' of Haverhill says that 70 per cent of his customers are men from 18 to their late 20s but tattooed ladies, long the butt of many a joke, are also making a come-back. He has tattooed various intimate parts of the body but the strangest request was from a man who wanted pound note signs tattooed on his eyelids. 85 02 25a

1985 02 26
Cambridge United Manager John Ryan was sacked last night by David Ruston, the club chairman who himself reportedly resigned earlier in the day. His 403-day reign has seen United win only seven out of 50 matches. Hopes had been high when he was appointed as the natural successor to the former boss Ron Atkinson. He balanced the books and cut the wage bill. But a patchwork team of youngsters aided by a few old heads continued to slide to the bottom of the Third Division, disillusionment set in on the terraces and the drift away sabotaged the gate figures leaving the Directors little choice 85 02 26 & a # c.38 : football

1985 02 27
While much of the country is wracked by unemployment, Cambridgeshire is suffering from a chronic shortage of skilled labour such as laboratory workers and electronics test engineers. The problem is such a threat to the area's development and continued prosperity that the Chamber of Commerce is launching a major new initiative. A Jobs Fair will be held at Huntingdon Technical College and the Government's Employment Secretary is being asked to open it. 85 02 27

Caning will be abolished in all Cambridgeshire secondary schools, even though the chairman of the Education Committee said he favoured corporal punishment if properly administered and not carried out sadistically. Now county officials will talk to teachers, school governors and parent associations to discuss alternative methods of punishment to maintain school discipline. Proposed legislation would have allowed teachers to only administer corporal punishment to children if their parents agreed 85 02 27a

March 1985 CEN

1985 03 01
The medieval church at Wrestlingworth is in desperate need of restoration work. The villagers have raised £5,000 in only five months, but they still face a mammoth task. Some £18,500 needs to be spent immediately to make the tower safe but the roof is leaking in eight places and the walls are damp. The church does not have proper drainage and the bottled gas central heating is causing condensation. "There are only 700 people in the community and raising money to maintain this very fine historic church is a great burden", the Rev Gordon Briscoe said 85 03 01

Sir Clive Sinclair is taking a £3 million high-tech centre as part of a major expansion of his Cambridge-based research company. The present headquarters at Willis Road is bursting at the seams so he is moving to the Camtec Centre off Rustat Road. Other high-tech companies in the area include Cambridge Electronic Industries, Acornsoft and Logica. Sinclair this week launched a big advertising campaign for its £100 pocket TV and hopes to sell 200,000 units of their QL computers in . 85 03 01a # c.27.1 : Sinclair

1985 03 02
Great Wilbraham has changed greatly since 1925. Things were primitive in those days: there was no electricity, indoor sanitation or tap water and the majority of people rented their homes from the village squire, Captain Reginald Hicks. Now Alec Sadler has constructed a scale model of it at that time. Great care has been taken to ensure its authenticity right down to the colour of the roofs and bricks. Being born in the village he has drawn on his own recollections together with those of older residents and has visited libraries and record offices in his research. 85 03 02

1985 03 06
The Government research axe, which has already cut a swathe through Cambridge science laboratories, may fall on the Culture Centre for Algae and Protozoa in Storey's Way which could be closed down and its internationally-renowned research work distributed among other centres around the country. Cuts first hit a year ago when the Neurochemical Pharmacology Unit, the Biostatics Unit, the Cot Death unit and even the 'jewel-in-the-crown' Molecular Biology unit, which carries more Nobel prize-winners than any other, were affected. Only the cot death unit was completely saved – by massive injections of public money. 85 03 06 # c.36.9

A pay award to farmworkers could force redundancies, farmers warn. It will bring wages to just under £90 a week and the craftsman's rate to over £100. This will hit labour-intensive sectors like livestock and horticulture and force fruit-growers out of business. Farmers are already struggling with milk quotas, cheap imports and poor potato prices. "We all wish to see the farmworkers with pay as high as possible, but the industry must be earning enough to pay for it first", one said. But the men's chief negotiator described it as "a small struggle in the right direction" 85 03 06a

Cambridge's Sunday trading row could flare up again following a decision by the Co-op to resume opening at its Beehive Garden Centre. Two of its main competitors – Scotsdale at Shelford and Ansells at Horningsea - are in South Cambridgeshire where the district council had not so far taken action against them. The City council's policy is to respond to complains about Sunday trading some of which come from shop unions like Usdaw which fears that members could be exploited. However the Beehive staff get premium rates for their Sunday stint and the following day off. 85 03 06b

1985 03 07
Eastern Counties Farmers was set up 80 years ago when seven farmers got together to form a cooperative to trade their produce. Now ECF as a membership of over 7,000 with its own feed mills, seed processing plants, a pork processing manufactory and massive fuel storage. It stretches from the Thames to the Wash with 22,000 agricultural holdings producing a large proportion of the nation's output. They can negotiate with suppliers and buyers to obtain the best deal for their members. 85 03 07 & a

The amazing adventures of Len Baynes over three and a half years in Japanese prison camps have been detailed in his book "Kept – the other side of Tenko". Now they are to be the subject of a BBC Radio Cambridgeshire documentary called "Death Camp Diary". After the broadcast the tapes will be kept in the archives of the Imperial War Museum in London. His recollections are based on a diary he kept, scrawled on torn-up pieces of toilet paper and smudged so no-one could read it. It tells how he lived a charmed life among the stench, squalor and violence of the camps. 85 03 07b

1985 03 08
Grantchester church clock stopped 85 03 08

1985 03 11
A major shake-up to cope with the forecast massive increase in Cambridge traffic has been unveiled by the County Council. It suggests an underground car park at the Butts Green end of Midsummer Common and a new road following the main railway line with a new bridge over the Cam. There could be reconstruction of a number of major road junctions including East Road - Newmarket Road and at Hyde Park Corner with widening of dual carriageways and new cycleways. A park-and-ride system of new car parks linked to the centre by frequent buses is also proposed 85 03 11 # c.49.62

A furious political row has erupted over the sudden and unexpected publication by the Labour-controlled City Council of its new roads and traffic plan just before the County Council issued their proposals. It envisages a park and ride system, converting long-term city centre parking spaces to short-term shoppers' parks, an extension of Lion Yard car park, road closures, pedestrian areas and a special coach-bus interchange near the railway station. The Liberals describe it as a waste of paper. It has been produced without any councillors or officials being told about it before its release to the press 85 03 11a # c.49.62

Cambridge's student prince, Prince Edward, has helped to make this year's Rag Week a record-breaker. His appearance in the Rag Revue made the show a sell-out and he is guest-of-honour at the first Charity Ball where the raffle winner will lead off the first waltz with the fair-haired prince. Other rag events included mud wrestling, birdmen leaping from Silver Street Bridge and silly sports such as a tug-of-war across the river and an egg-throwing competition. It ended with punt-jousting and a mixed three-legged rugby match. 85 03 11b # c.02 # c.36.9

King's Court, four research and development blocks on the site of Solus Electronics in Kirkwood Road, is a further step in the creation of a silicon belt near Trinity College's Science Park. Others are St John's Innovation Centre and a 20-acre Cambridge Business Park. Plans which have failed to gain permission are for a 60-acre Cambridge Technology Centre off Kings Hedges Road and St John's 'teardrop' site on Milton Road. There is a tremendous demand for high-tech property with half the new development under offer before it has been advertised. 85 03 11d # c.27.1

1985 03 12
Millionaire recluse Sir David Robinson was his normal elusive self when he went to Buckingham Palace to be knighted by the Queen. The former television rental tycoon, now 80 and confined to a wheelchair, received the Queen's permission to leave quietly by the visitor's door only moments after having a brief chat with her. Sir David, who has given away more than £26 million, has avoided the limelight in recent years. He even failed to arrive when the Queen opened Robinson College which he funded. 85 03 12

There's bad news for commuters to London. The Fenman, the fastest train on the line is now going to stop at Audley End and Stansted, pushing the journey time up from 62 to 69 minutes. BR's Manager says "Running non-stop trains is fine if you have got the market for them. But generally the Fenman has been running underused". Cambridge line trains have frequently been held up by slower electric trains running late in front of them but this will now change. The new schedules mark the last major revision before electrification, due to start operating between Cambridge and Liverpool Street in May 1987 85 03 12a

Cambridge is paying a high price for becoming the country's high-tech 'boom town'. Its roads are becoming congested and frequently traffic chaos reigns. By the turn of the century there will be almost half as much again traffic on the city's roads as there is now. But a County Council report says it is unrealistic to expect absolutely unrestrained use of motor vehicles in the city. There will always be peak hour congestion and there is still not enough parking provision which means that many would-be trippers are put off 85 03 12b

1985 03 13
Vandals have smashed part of a priceless 16th-century stained glass window at King's College chapel. Ten sections high up in the huge window on the south side which depicts scenes from the Old Testament were damaged, leaving a series of holes. It can be patched up though one whole panel will have to be taken out for the repair. Other windows were damaged in 1981 and in 1974 the chapel's priceless Reubens painting, the Adoration of the Magi, was slashed with a knife by someone who carved the initials IRA in the picture. 85 03 13

1985 03 15
United appoint John Ryan from Chelsea 85 03 15
Pye TVT profits 85 03 15a

1985 03 16
Cambridge Eurocentre a £2 million purpose built language school in Bateman Street was designed by local architect David Thurlow and can accommodate up to 225 pupils in octagonal classrooms. It is one of six English language schools run by the Swiss-based foundation for European languages in Britain and has young people from 17 nations. At its official opening Sir John Butterfield, vice-chancellor of the University, hailed it as "a foundation for peace in the future" 85 03 16

1985 03 18
Queen & Margaret see Edward in rag revue 85 03 18
Gwydir St playground named Hector Petersen 85 03 18a

1985 03 19
Stoke-by-Clare school may close 85 03 19

1985 03 20
The Government has cut one of Cambridge's quaint links with the past. The Treasury are not amused by the annual chore of sending a cheque for £97.42 covering sundry payments which have been in operation since the 16th century including £10 for perpetual commemoration of King Henry VII. So they have made a once-and-for-all payment of £970 to the University. Their treasurer, Basil Shone said it did not "err on the side of generosity". The University would need to achieve 10 per cent annual interest on the payment if they are not to lose income – a very tall order. 85 03 20a

Foxton village offered free hall 85 03 20

1985 03 21
Ben Hardwick, liver patient, dies – 85 03 23 # c.21.1

Cambridge University's proposed new telephone system has met with an angry response from dons. The scheme was 'buying a racehorse to harness a milk float' and members in scientific departments had already suffered enough with sophisticated equipment that became obsolete in five years. A central switchboard is no substitute for the personal service offered by receptionists in individual departments who had detailed knowledge of staff habits. Departments also object to having to collect the cost of private calls rather than just logging them through the local operator. 85 03 21a # c.27.7

Pipe smokers and cigar lovers will welcome a specialist shop which will fill the gap left by the closure of Bacons in 1983. Harrison and Simmonds, which was founded in Bedford in 1928, is taking the shop at 17 St John's Street, Cambridge. The fixtures and fittings have the traditional look offering a standard of service that matches the timeless quality such a store should have. Customers will be able to try tobacco from all over the world labelled with Dickensian names such as Barnaby Rudge and Pickwick and the shop offers hand-blending to give the pipe smoker optimum choice and also stock a wide range of fine pens. 85 03 21b # c.27.2

Charles Unwin 90 85 03 21

1985 03 22
The Salvation Army celebrates its centenary in Cambridge with a programme of events at their Tenison Road citadel. The Norwich Citadel Band was pelted with mud and many of them knocked over as they heralded the arrival of the corps in 1885. In Burleigh Street a crowd knocked their hats off and smashed both ends of the drum. Police had to use hosepipes to clear the protestors. Businessmen involved with the drinks trader and drinkers both violently objected to the Army's tee-total ideas. Churches objected to the brass bands crusading tactics which they thought lowered the tenor of Christianity. 85 03 22a # c.83

Heydon church bombed photos 85 03 22
Mepal outdoor centre 85 03 22c
Cheddars Lane museum restoration 85 03 22d c.03

1985 03 26
Clive Sinclair offered four-acre site for 'superchip' plant – 85 03 26 # c.27.1

St Andrew the Great, the city centre church now declared redundant, could soon be turned into visitors centre. One part would be an architectural workshop, the second the tourist bureau and the third a 'heritage centre' linking the past with the future. The money would come from a public appeal and a grant from the English Tourist board. The closure of the church met with bitter opposition and later another controversy flared when the Greek Orthodox Church took over the building for their services. 85 03 26b

The Kinema is no more. Like the Central Cinema it became a bingo hall. But at least it has not been pulled down to make room for a supermarket, like the Playhouse, nor turned into a warehouse like the Tivoli, nor demolished to become a car park like the Rex. Leslie Halliwell who was manager at the Kinema and Rex is now regarded as the country's leading cinema bluff. And in his new book 'Seats in All Parts' he has plenty to say about the way cinemas used to be run in Cambridge. 85 03 26c # c.76.9

East Road widening, p1

1985 03 27
Hollywood came to Ely as international actors, dozens of cameramen, sound recordists, lighting technicians and make-up girls took over Dean's Meadow, a stone's throw from the Cathedral and transformed it into America at the time of the War of Independence. Replica guns, weapons and tents were brought in together with dozens of extras as the director Hugh Hudson filmed location shots for 'Revolution' 85 03 27

Back in the 1950s when Freddie Kingdon announced plans to take a party of Coleridge Boys to the Lake District on their first ever school trip, his colleagues thought he was mad. They stayed in wooden huts and took bales of straw with them in the bus to make pillows or straw mattresses to sleep on. Each day boys walked miles over the Fells, sometimes being left to find their way to destinations using their survival skills. "We were so well equipped that we could have spent the night out in the snow, and my biggest regret is that we never did", he said. After his retirement in 1966 Mr Kingdon continued taking parties there for another five years. 85 03 27a

1985 03 28
David Urwin relaxes as potter – 85 03 28

1985 03 29
Burwell alarmed at nuclear waste dump – 85 03 29
Sinclair production C5 suspended – 85 03 29a # c.27.1

April 1985 CEN

1985 04 01
Work has started on draining 600 acres of water meadow at Swavesey, described as an extremely valuable wildlife refuge. Cambridge Friends of the Earth say farmers' plans to plough up the meadows to grow grain – when Britain has a massive surplus – are financial madness. Every bit of this increasingly rare type of habitat is precious and they are threatening physical action to save the Cow and Mare Fen. But the Internal Drainage Board say people are worrying unnecessarily. 85 04 01

Huntingdon forensic police laboratories – 84 04 01a

1985 04 03
Lady Trumpington, who as Jean Barker, was one of Cambridge's best-remembered majors and most colourful figures, has been appointed a junior minister in the Department of Health and Social Security. She arrived in Cambridge as the wife of the headmaster of the Leys School and thrown herself into a host of voluntary activities. As Mayor she was prepared to five into the swimming pool but large bath towels were on hand both at the beginning and end of the swim so that all was not revealed. She was made a life peeress in 1980 85 04 03

East Road protest, p1

1985 04 04
The villagers at Molesworth view the next four days with a mixture of feat and resignation. For this Easter weekend an estimated 20,000 peace protestors will be converging on this tiny dot in the East Anglian landscape. They see Molesworth and the 64 American cruise missiles it promises by 1988 and fear death. It is not the legitimate CND campaigners dislike so much. It is the hangers-on, the rent-a-mob crowd that residents distrust. 85 04 04a & b, 85 04 06

1985 04 09
Alarmed hotel and catering chiefs are launching a major campaign to fill hundreds of job vacancies before the start of the tourist season. There are around 300 jobs on offer every week but hoteliers are having acute difficulties in filling the posts which are for everything from highly-skilled chefs to waiters and chambermaids. Wages range from £1.84 per hour for a catering assistant up to £20,000 for a top hotel manager. Chefs can earn from £5-£10,000 85 04 09

1985 04 10
Cambridge Mortgage Centre has opened in Regent Street. The idea of Cambridge Insurance, a firm of brokers who offer pensions, investment and life policies, it will help people find a mortgage and advise which payment suits the applicant best. The staff will make sure clients pay the lowest rate possible: it is possible for someone with a £30,000 mortgage to be paying around 15 per cent or even less 85 04 10 # c.32.8 # c.32.4

1985 04 11
Choppen's links with Saffron Walden go back to the 19th century when the family moved their engineering business to the town from Great Chesterford. John Choppen, the founder, was also a local fireman and drove the horse-drawn fire engine. His son Frank, under whose control the business prospered, died in 1962. They established a branch in Fitzroy Street Cambridge in 1964 with a purpose-built garden machinery centre in Barnwell road opening in 1980. Now expansion continues with a new headquarters with offices, workshops and showrooms in Thaxted Road, Walden. 85 04 11 # c.18

1985 03 12
A nursery owner had to dash for his life when a giant greenhouse collapses as gales wreaked havoc. Mr Vincent Di Paola, who has been running the nursery in Fulbourn for 15 years, had to watch as guttering started to collapse and 8,000 panes of glass smashed to the ground. He supplies the London market with lettuces all year round and 16,000 plants were lost. Elsewhere a woman had a lucky escape when a tree crashed her car between Little Thetford and Stretham 85 04 12

Ten huge munitions dumps are planned for the USAF at Lakenheath. The igloos will cost about 2.4 million dollars to build and will store only conventional munitions. 'New Scientist' claims that Lakenheath will have nerve gas bombs deployed if Congress votes to release the money have been dismissed as 'complete balderdash' who say there are no plans to deploy binary chemical weapons in Britain. 85 04 12a

Woodman sawyer Albert Mayo's father came to Wimpole Hall Farm in 1897 and Albert was born at The Woodyard where he has lived all his life. The family was one of the last to work there before it was handed over to the National Trust. Now the Trust have created a family of dolls representing them. Albert was chuffed at his new-found recognition. His doll wears a white smock and a brown hat like he used to wear in the early seventies to keep himself clean when he worked with cattle. 85 04 12b

1985 04 13

The Barn at Swaffham Prior is at present a shell of clunch stone. But soon it may be converted into a home. If plans are passed most of the ground floor area will be taken up by the kitchen and dining area, there will be inglenook fireplaces on both floors with an extension almost as big as the barn itself giving good views over the countryside. The clunch exterior will be preserved, the roof raised and old tiles replaced. Working out the probable cost is the main headache. 85 04 13

1985 04 15
Waresley Park Garden Centre is one of the top nurseries in the country as recommended by 'Gardening Which'. Jack Baker's grandfather was the village blacksmith but the premises became a poultry farm with chickens having free range. After fowl pest wiped them out 15 years ago Jack decided to try a nursery. He started out with one polythene tunnel, a domestic greenhouse and an old wooden chicken shed which was converted into a shop. Now almost all the 30-acre site is in use. 85 04 15

1985 04 16
Saffron Walden's grand old man of politics, Mr Stanley Wilson, gave a lifetime of public service. Born in the town, he was educated at the Boys British School and was mentioned in despatches during the Great War. He enjoyed an unbroken run on the Borough Council from 1929 to 1951, stood as a parliamentary candidate in opposition to R.A. Butler three times and recorded the highest ever Labour vote for the constituency. Although he and his wife Kitty had no children of their own they fostered about 170 youngsters over the year and many of them will be at his funeral service. 85 04 17aa

1985 04 17
Frank Bacon has lived at 100f Eastfields since 1934. It was the first house to be built on the Chesterton estate by the Hundred Houses Society for letting at reasonable rents to young married couples who could not get a council house. Frank and his wife only had one child and chose it because it was a semi-detached. All the other five people who moved in at that time are still there and a great community spirit has developed over the years. 85 04 17

1985 04 18
The new high-tech development on Castle Hill will include full secretarial back-up facilities, a gymnasium, squash courts, restaurant and overnight accommodation. Conference rooms and access to an underground car park will also be available to those who rent rooms. The 'village' will be self-contained and will appeal to people like university lecturers who might also be a consultant and needs his own space. Rents will be 25 percent less than average in central Cambridge 85 04 18

1985 04 20
South Cambridgeshire ratepayers can be assured there are no frills or trimmings in the new £2 million council headquarters on Hills Road. The new base is an energy-saving building which will be workmanlike and maintenance-free. There is an air-conditioned council chamber with video facilities that may be rented out for conferences. Bullet-proof glass will increase security. The idea of moving out into a village was rejected as Cambridge was felt to be a central point. But car parking is likely to be a problem with 105 spaces for the 200 staff many of whom will have to park in the streets when councillors are meeting 85 04 20

1985 04 22
A repairs blitz is being launched on thousands of miles of potholed roads around Haverhill and Newmarket following many complaints and claims for compensation for damage from motorists and cyclists. A 'truly formidable' number of potholes have been identified and 'flying squads' of workers will repair the worse of the damage within six weeks before they become any worse. 85 04 22

1985 04 24
Horseheath appears to be a village in decline. In the past year the tiny primary school closed despite a long campaign to save it by the parish council. The 25 children were transferred to Castle Camps. Now the Red Lion pub and the Chequers at nearby Streetly End have shut up because people could not afford to stay out drinking all evening. But Horseheath is hitting back. Last month residents completed the purchase of the school building for use as a village hall, showing their strength of commitment to the community 85 04 24

1985 04 25
A major jobs bonanza is being predicted for Cambridge following a decision to give the green light to a new high-tech development on the outskirts of the city. Up to 750 new jobs may be created at the massive development in Cowley Road where a mixture of high-tech units and warehouses are to be built on the eight-acre site formerly occupied by d & H Contractors. Part of the site will be occupied by Cambus who will move from its Hills Road depot 85 04 25

William Garfitt, Harlton artist – 85 04 25a

1985 04 26
The centrepiece of the new £1million Wyboston Lake complex near St Neots has been opened. The luxury clubhouse is at the centre of 320 acres of lakes and greenhouses which features a wide range of sports activities including golf, windsurfing and water skiing. There is also fishing and a nature trail. A motel and caravan park will open shortly and one lake will be converted into a marina for 100 moorings during 1986. 85 04 26

Laurence Broderick, Waresley sculptor - 85 04 27

1985 04 30
Sprightly Ely pensioner Ted Appleyard, who started driving in the days of the 'Tin Lizzie' Ford, has bought himself a Sinclair C5 as an 82nd birthday treat. Ted, a former boat builder of Annesdale who took delivery of his first Ford in 1912, has given away his Morris Oxford and opted for the trike, complete with extras. He is really pleased with it, although it hasn't got enough steam to get up Fore Hill. 85 04 30

May 1985 CEN

1985 05 01
Herringswell Manot, p5

1985 05 02
The future of Herringswell Parish Council could be in the balance if the Medina Rajneesh sect sells its British headquarters and pulls out of the village. It was the influx of more than 100 members of the controversial sect to the Manor which prompted the setting-up of the council. But now the Edwardian house and surrounding parkland has been put up for sale at £550,000. If the 140 children and 80 adults presently in the Rajneeshi school leave, the size of the electorate would shrink overnight 85 05 02

1985 05 07
The new-look Cambridgeshire County Council may descend into political chaos unless a compromise over who works with whom can be worked out. The Liberal SDP Alliance with 26 seats is seeking a three-way administration with the Conservatives (29 seats) or the Labour with 21. But Labour has turned down the Alliance Plan and the Conservatives will agree to power sharing only if the new council accepts their financial policies. Controversial plans to widen East Road have been scrapped as has a railway-road plan which would have destroyed large housing and commercial areas of Cambridge. 85 05 07 # c.35.1

Councillors considered proposals for a floating restaurant and waterbus on the River Cam. Two electrically-powered boats would run from Jesus Green through the Backs. One would be used as a quality restaurant and the other provide visitors with a running commentary in various languages. But they would destroy the beauty and serenity of the river; it is not a commercial waterway and there is already a lot of disturbance from punts. 85 05 07a # c.46.5

1985 05 09
Cambridge may get a park-and-ride system to beat the traffic tangles this year thanks to the £1 million saving made by scrapping the controversial East Road widening scheme on which £300,000 has already been spent. Labour city councillors are urging the county to use the money to establish a number of large car parks on the outskirts linked to the centre with a frequent and cheap bus service. There might also be a public garden and children's play area next to St Matthew's School. 85 05 09

Huntingdon and Newport Stations took joint first prize in the Best Kept Railway Station competition with Ely coming joint third. At Huntingdon the 11 staff ensure extra care is taken with disabled passengers, posters and leaflets are kept tidy, brasses and windows cleaned and polished and customers kept informed of breakdowns or delays. There are even six hanging baskets. At Newport senior railwayman Jack Wright and his partner Percy Turner also take a pride in their work while at Ely staff often bring in flowers from their own gardens to brighten up the platforms. 85 05 09a

Every parish is south Cambridgeshire could have its own nature reserve. A start has been made with the church at East Hatley which is kept locked though nesting boxes for birds and bats have been installed and damaged windows allow entry to many winged colonisers. Outside the graveyard has a wide range of chalkland flowers and its rich with butterflies. Other sites include Caxton stone pit, Litlington chalk pit and the former sewage works at Comberton now known as Watts' Wood. None has plants or wildlife of great rarity but they are oases in the desert of arable farming and the last surviving habitats for animals which were once very common. 85 05 09b

1985 05 10
Messrs Richard Larkinson Ltd has warehouses and sidings equipped with modern lifting equipment at Station Works, Hills Road to load non-ferrous metal direct on rail wagons. The family originated in Biggleswade dealing in rabbit skins then diversified into household rags using imported labour from the London area. Richard Larkinson started his business in Baldock in 1958, establishing a branch at Cottenham in 1972. Today they purchase and process all grades of scrap and export to Germany in their own company vehicles, returning with wine for their associated company, Fen Vinters Ltd. 85 05 10 # c.21.15

Cygnus Studios, the Cambridge theatre workshop, is closing and the magic props and gadgets painstakingly made by Philip Bond for productions throughout the country and abroad are to be auctioned off. It will mark the end of another chapter in the mixed fortunes of the Festival Theatre on Newmarket Road which closed its doors to productions in 1938 and was bought by Cambridge's Arts Theatre. Now an axe and block, complete with severed head, a stuffed stoat and a thunder sheet to rival the Gods will go under the auctioneer's hammer 85 05 10a

Ask Ted Taylor how many times the siren went in Cambridge during the war and he will answer straight away – 269. He was an air-raid warden and would trot off to his post at the end of the street each time they sounded. He covered the Roseford Road area with seven other wardens, making sure there was a total blackout. One memory is of the German prisoners-of-war who built concrete roads outside prefabs which later made way for Molewood Close and Birdwood Close. Ted has given away his steel helmet and mislaid his gasmask, but he still has the stirrup pump with which he was issued. 85 05 10b

1985 05 11
The war-time mustard gas dump at Lord's Bridge is to be investigated by MoD officials for contamination as part of a national investigation of possible hazards on chemical weapons sites. It was one of six sites used as mustard gas dumps and was a forward filling depot for Risely Airfield in Bedfordshire. Two 250 tonne underground tanks containing lethal mustard gas were sunk on the site in 1944. They were emptied in the 1950s, their contents either burned or dumped at sea, and filled with decontaminant. It is now part of the University's Mullard radioscope observatory and fenced off. 85 05 11

1985 05 13
East Road widening plans scrapped after £1 million spent – 85 05 13

1985 05 15
Audrey Rothwell from Clare is a Captain of the First Aid Nursing Yeomanry – the famous FANY girls. She was recruited by the Special Operations Executive to train as a wireless operator during the war and spent much of her time in Algiers where she was in regular contact with the famous war-time French courier, Odette. She is one of about 100 remaining active members still available for mobilisation during national emergencies. 85 05 15

Five Miles from Anywhere Upware to reopen - 85 05 15a

1985 05 16
The history of Wills and Thompson Ltd runs parallel with the history of the motor car since it was founded 50 years ago. It was bought by William Skeels in 1958 whose his son Tom now runs the family business and their mechanics, Gerry Flack and Nick Wright, service any make or car or light commercial vehicles. When the firm start there were very few cars on the road, now their premises in George IV Street are packed and parking is a nightmare. But the site is right where people need the services of a garage 85 05 16

1985 05 17
Firemen fighting a blaze at the centuries-old Chequers pub in Streetly End near Horseheath had a narrow escape when burning timbers and thatch crashed through a ceiling. The fire raged through the night and left the building a smouldering shell. The pub, which had been a favourite drinking place for motor cyclists, closed about 18 months ago and was being renovated 85 05 17

A fascinating glimpse into Barton's past is one of the highlights of the village festival to commemorate the restoration of the church 100 years ago. 'The Cross and the Plough' is a play written by Tony Brown and the entire cast is drawn from Barton Drama Group. It is based on historical events ranging from the Normans to the effects of enclosure and as well as being informative has some lighter, humorous moments. 85 05 17a

1985 05 18
Fulbourn may get a football pitch for young soccer players thanks to Ronald Jellings who has left £7,000 to the Parish Council. And if that's not possible the former Sergeant Major, who died in February in the Royal Star and Garter Home in Richmond, wants a tennis court, bus shelter and two memorial sets. He also provided for an annual prize for the best academic achievement by a boy and girl at the Junior School and the parish church received £3,000 from his will.. The parish council chairman, Maurice Liles says "It's marvellous that someone who spent time in the village has such pleasant memories of it!" 85 05 18

1985 05 20
Saffron Walden choirboys raised their voices in protest outside their parish church during Sunday's service. While the congregation sang inside, the choir sang in the pouring rain. They were protested against a decision to suspend the choir which has been in existence as long as the 800-year-old church. The row has blown up since church services were changed, allowing them no time to practice before the congregation arrived. Some of the congregation find the choir 'a hindrance to their worship' while others say it makes services more beautiful. 85 05 20

1985 05 21
Mildenhall could become the starting point for a river trip to London, the Inland Waterways Association says. With comparatively minor dredging the River Lark could be reopened to boats, giving the town a valuable tourist attraction and linking it to the country's network of rivers and canals. Craft once used to be able to travel from Ely to Bury St Edmunds but for the past 50 years the limit of navigation has been Judes Ferry at West Row. Since then the stretch upstream to Mildenhall has deteriorated. 85 05 21

Eric Curwain broadcast news of German invasion of Poland – 85 95 21a # c.45.7

Visitors to Cambridge Festival Theatre's workshop were treated to a dazzling display of pyrotechnics and wizardry when the props and gadgets of Cygnus Studios went under the hammer. A vast severed head – complete with axe and block – swung like a macabre pendulum above the customers. An electric chair burst into life sending a thrill through the audience and Philip Bond, the head of the studios, made sure that the theatre's ghost had a star turn. Then as the auctioneer brought his hammer down for the last time it exploded into a thousand tiny fragments marking the end of another chapter in the Theatre's 250-year history 85 05 21b # c.76

1985 05 22
Autogyro pioneer Ken Wallis has just notched up his 16th world record. Flying from Waterbeach, Ken completed his remarkable record-breaking flight to mark the 75th anniversary of the first public viewing of a monoplane built in Cambridge by his father and uncle. "It seemed that the anniversary should be marked in some way, so I made an attempt upon the one work record not held by my autogyro aircraft", he said. 85 05 22a & b # c.26.1

Cambridge has a big drug abuse problems with as many as 800-1,000 young people thought to be dependent on hard drugs. Twenty years ago the 'News' went on the city streets and found drug abusers when the agencies claimed there was no problem. As a result of the publicity Cambridge police set up a drugs squad which lead to an Association for the Prevention of Drug Addiction. Now an advice centre, 'The Bridge Project' will be opened in Mill Road. 85 05 22 # c.34.6

1985 05 24
Elsenham stud to be restored – 85 05 24

The Landlord of the Eagle in Bene't Street is in favour of all-day opening: the pub is often still packed when drinking-up time is called in the afternoons and many people try to get a drink between 3pm and 6pm. Later hours would be attractive to tourists who don't have to get up for work next day. But the landlord of the Robin Hood and Little John, Cherry Hinton, says it would have little effect on out-of-town pubs and the Queen's Head at Newton say prices would have to go up to pay for staff wages 85 05 24a

Bomb on Jesus Lane 1942 – 85 05 24b # c.45.7

1985 05 28
Cambridge computer company Sinclair Research needs to raise up to £15 million and is also looking for a new chief executive officer. – 85 05 28 # c.27.1

Lonnie Donegan at Newmarket – 85 05 28a

1985 05 29
The Castle Project, which provides work experience for people who have mental health problems, has two workshops in Gwydir Street which are used for furniture repair, printing and painting. There are 20 craftworkers using the facilities and manufacturing toys, small furniture and plastic signs. Cambridge's Mayor, Jim Johnson, and local councillors inspected the facilities to see work which people in need of rehabilitation can do. The Project has been disappointed not to receive any Urban Aid grant but hope the city council could assist with finances. 85 05 29 # c.21.5

Millers Yard, is a £3million courtyard office and shop development on the site of the former Eaden Lilley furniture depository in Mill Lane. It retains the façade of the original premises which were probably built around 1830 but the rest has been totally reconstructed in an imaginative new development consisting of a wine bar and restaurant, seven ground-floor shops and two floors of offices. 85 05 29a

Castle Park, the £10 million high-tech development on County Council land next to Shire Hall has been inaugurated. It offers 'thinking space' to scientists and academics involved in research and development of high-technology ideas. The project will be fully self-contained with its own conference facilities, restaurant, gymnasium, squash courts and overnight accommodation as well as centrally available office equipment and secretarial support. A key attribute is its location in the heart of the city close to many of the University's colleges. 85 05 29b # c.27.1

1985 05 30
Cambridge Capital, a new merchant banking venture has been launched in Green Street. It is another step in the growing complexity of Cambridge's financial community. Merchant bankers Singer and Friedlander are already here and two more big-league accountants, Arthur Andersen and Robson Rhodes are getting established this summer. All this is in addition to the existing structure of bankers, accountants and financial advisers and means Cambridge could be a professional and financial centre of really some significance 85 05 30 # c.32.8

Swaffham Bulbeck villagers are fighting to save a historic water mill from the bulldozers. There has been a mill on the site since the 1640s and it only needs someone with imagination to restore it to its original glory, one of the campaigners says. But the owner claims villagers opposed an earlier plan to renovate the mill. He was forced to alter his corn merchants business with less emphasis on grain trading when planning permission to expand the site was turned down by the council. Now a potential buyer wants to demolish it 85 05 30a

June 1985 CEN

1985 06 01
Cambridge radio amateurs worked as wartime spies monitoring enemy messages – 85 06 01 # c.45.7

1985 06 03
American football came to Cambridge with all the razzmatazz and fun which makes it a real family affair across the Atlantic. The air was filled with the smell of quarter-pounders, the sun blazed down Californian-style and even the lady selling fan club paraphernalia was saying 'Have a nice day' as Cambridge Cats made their home debut against Basingstoke Cavaliers at the Cambridge City Stadium in Milton Road. No-one had thought to provide any popcorn and there were no Budweisers but the 600 spectators enjoyed the game. 85 06 03 # c.38

1985 06 05
The young men of Cambridge University who admit to being 'Young Fogeys' are rather proud of the title. They saunter out of the Pitt Club on Jesus Lane planning another cocktail party and pretending the 'Orrible Eighties' have simply not arrived. Forget computers, aluminium briefcases, digital watches and body-building. These young men would swap the whole lot for a good wine, a Betjeman poem and a bank manager who called them 'Sir' and did not try to distribute cash-dispenser cards. 85 06 05 & a # c.36.9

Nancy Wilkinson, 'Mastermind' champion – 85 06 05b

1985 06 06
Coleridge Community College art students are being commissioned to brighten up the concrete and metalwork of Mill Road railway bridge. They will paint a mural depicting a night-and-day changing scene of Cambridge and Romsey featuring some of the better-known buildings of the area. The City Council hopes it will make people respect the environment more and reduce vandalism. The mural will be coated with special anti-graffiti paint. 85 06 06

Stansted airport will be the third biggest in the UK by 1990, handling 7-8 million passengers a year with the potential for three times that amount. There will be a new rail connection with London, a new £2 million road scheme and the creation of 18,000 new jobs. The Transport Secretary's statement also indicates that the airport might one day expand to a capacity of 25 million passengers per year. But he promises there will be no second runway 85 06 06a

Protestors who have battled for 20 years against the expansion of Stansted bitterly condemned the Government decision to make it London's third airport. It will be a mega-white elephant and people will not travel from the other two major airports to use it, they claim. Excellent farming land would be destroyed and it will open the way for the development of a concrete urban sprawl with thousands of acres of factories, offices and houses, they warn. 85 06 06b & c

1985 06 08
The Government's decision to expand Stansted would put tremendous pressure on the Cambridge and there should be a conference every two years with academic papers on preserving the city's ancient and historic environment. But the Labour leader says Cambridge already has more experts per square inch than any other city in the world and does not need to call in more 85 06 08 # c.49.4

The Prime Minister of China, Mr Zhao Ziyang, came on a whistle stop tour of Cambridge – but found it so tiring he had to leave after lunch. It began with a formal welcome at the University Senate House where Chinese students gathered to meet him and he was presented with a book by the Vice-Chancellor. He then went to the School of Oriental Studies where he met Prof Joseph Needham, a world authority on China, and presented the department with 3,000 valuable volumes. But he decided to miss a visit to the Science Park. 85 06 08a # c.02

Tracked hovercraft – the rise and fall – 85 06 08b

1985 06 10
Car floating on Cam after May Ball – 85 06 10 # c.46.5
'Haunted' hearse catches fire – 85 06 10a

1985 06 13
Prince Philip visits Lucy Cavendish College – 85 06 13
Ridgeon move could release 13-acres building land, Tenison Road – 85 06 13a
Pampisford WI members embroider tablecloth – 85 06 13b

1985 06 14
The controversial 'railway-route' road plan for Cambridge has been killed off for the second time in 10 years. It was intended to relieve traffic & would have run around the southern and eastern outskirts of the city, following the main railway line. Ten years ago Conservative county councillors discovered it would have cost millions of pounds to build and destroy at least 100 houses. Their revival of the plan earlier this year caused a furious outcry: they were swept from control at the recent elections and admit it was one of the main factors in their downfall 85 06 14 # c.49.62

Bourn windmill renovated – 85 06 14a
Princess Anne, Prince Edward and Prince Philip all together at Jesus College – 85 06 14b & c # c.02

1985 06 15
'Revolution' filmed at Ely – 85 06 15 # c.65.6

1985 06 18
Cambridge Medical Answer Service to install computer link for elderly - 85 06 18 & a

Abbeyfield Society homes for frail elderly – 85 06 18b

1985 06 20
Balsham was virtually cut off as a freak midsummer storm brought traffic chaos and flooding. Water poured into village homes and roads became impassable as rain lashed down. A team of 20 firemen worked for nine hours pumping out homes in the High Street. One house in Fulbourn Road began to subside and firemen knocked a hole in the wall of a well to drain away some of the water 85 06 20

Harry Moden cartoonist – 85 06 20a # c.64

1985 06 21
Cambridgeshire County Council is to buy Mare Fen at Swavesey to conserve it as a breeding ground for rare birds, stopping a drainage scheme which threatened to destroy the nationally-famous wet grazing meadows. The controversy started five years ago when the Anglian Water Authority announced a scheme to prevent frequent flooding in Swavesey, Over and Willingham. This would have involved ploughing Mare Fen up for cereal growing. Now it will be left out of the scheme without affecting the rest. 85 06 21

Cambridge University is considering employing a Press and Public Relations officer following Government announcements that future funding will be based on excellence and on good reports of research. A Press officer would ensure news of the university's achievements reaches a wide audience. But they have to weigh up the benefits of employing someone to publicise the university's research as against the benefits of employing people to actually do that research. 85 06 21a # c.36.9

19845 06 24
Derek Harris makes models of windmills – 85 06 24

1985 06 26
Cambridge Midsummer Fair passed off without incident. Councillors are pleased with their £20,000 security operation which involved blocking the entrances to all council-owned land in the city and hiring strong security patrols to roam the streets and protect commons against unwanted caravan dwelling itinerants. For years previously they had cut a swathe of trouble and destruction during their visit. But it is likely to take at least a month, given good weather, to get the churned-up parts of Midsummer Common back to its former lush state following the week-long deluge that soaked the grass 85 06 26 # c.27.3

The Addenbrooke's Hospital cleaning row has now rumbled on for nine months. It started when some 150 health workers refused to work with a private cleaning firm which beat an in-house tender for the contract. Since then nurses and doctors have joined the picket line claiming cleaning standards have fallen below acceptable levels and operations have had to be delayed because of filthy conditions. But the firm insist they are doing a good job and that newspaper reports were biased. 85 06 26a # c.21.4

For 50 years the name of F.H. Fry has been associated with scales and scale-making in Cambridge. It was started by Frederic Fry in East Road in 1935 and moved to Perowne Street in 1962. Now they have branched out to include cash registers, gravity-feed slicers and sausage fillers. Modern scales are so clever they can not only weigh and automatically calculate the price but they also check themselves to see they are in working order. Yet despite all this progress a brass weight is used to check they are accurate. 85 06 26b # c.27

1985 06 28
Worried villages have called a public meeting over plans to open a psychiatric hospital at Kneesworth House, Bassingbourn. They fear it may result in dangerous or disturbed patients walking the streets. A last-minute deal by an American medical firm has changed overnight a nursing home into a mental hospital but they say that although there may be disturbed or suicidal patients, they will not be violent.

There would be no locked wards or padded cells and villagers could visit to use the sports facilities. 85 06 28

Amateur radio operators listened for enemy messages during the war – 85 06 28a # c.45.7

Harry Moden cartoonist, family fills gaps – 85 06 28b # c.64

1985 06 29
Cambridge Castle Mound is being seriously damaged by the feet of thousands of visitors every year and the playful attentions of hundreds of children who have created two impromptu 'slides' down the steep slopes. Now archaeologists are to close the footpath and carry out much-needed repairs. Many other monuments are also in need of repair, including Burwell castle, Booth's Hill at Ramsey and the Devil's Dyke 85 06 29

July 1985 CEN

1985 07 02
Children from Duxford Primary School have prepared a time capsule depicting life in 1985 which will be sealed in the chimney breast of the Duxford Lodge Hotel. They chose a painting by Susan Mills of Hinxton, an issue of the 'Chatterbox' community magazine, a clockwork wristwatch, pen, rubber and a one-pound note. A copy of 'The Times' and the CEN will also be included 85 07 02.

Thirty former Land Army girls travelled from all parts of the country for a unique get-together at Swaffham Prior House where they stayed during the Second World War. Joan Thomas remembered her attic room in the early 17th-century house while Betty Canham of Wicken recalled getting up at six in the morning. The reunion was sparked by a list of Land Army rules which were pasted to one of the attic rooms and discovered by the Marshall family when they moved there two years ago. The organiser Joan Bradley said she was overwhelmed to see everybody after all that time. 85 07 02a

1985 07 03
Retired shepherd Bill Grubb has nowhere to drink now the Fox and Hounds in Weston Colville has closed. Greene King is selling the building, possibly as a private house. Bill, 79, who used the pub for the past 25 years, does not drive and says it is too far to cycle to West Wratting for a pint. But he adds "Nobody ever goes there, so I won't miss seeing anyone. I only go for a break". He has made other arrangements to slake his thirst: he brews his own wine and his wife will bring him a couple of pints of Guinness when she goes to Haverhill. 85 07 03

1985 07 04
Greek congregation from St Andrew the Great to worship in St Clements – 85 07 04

Villagers in West Wratting have been warned to use their local pub – or lose it. The landlord of the Chestnut Tree says the bowling club always visit the pub when it has a home match but when the Women's Institute go out, they go elsewhere. "They say it is because we don't have food, but we will do food for anyone who arranges it", he complains. In recent years the Chequers at Streetly End, the Horseheath Red Lion, the Princess of Wales in Linton and the Lamb and Crown in West Wratting have all shut. 85 07 04a

1985 07 05
Police are investigating a massive fire which ripped through the Perse School for Girls in the early hours of the morning. Two laboratories were gutted and the rest of the building was severely smoke damaged. Today the school was closed. Many of the 540 pupils arriving for classes were unaware of the fire and were sent home. Headmistress Miss Mary Bateman said it was a serious nuisance but not a tragedy and hopefully the school would reopen on Monday 85 07 05 # c.36.5

The centuries-old Chequers pub in Streetly End which was gutted by fire earlier this year is to be sold as a private house. It had been closed before the blaze which ripped through its thatched roof. Brewers Greene King say there are too few people in the area and the White Horse at nearby West Wickham had just reopened after a long closure. But there was nothing against somebody running it as a pub if they wished. The Fox and Hounds at Weston Colville which closed last week is also to be sold with a licence. 85 07 05a

Lester Piggott, at the age of 50, has decided to call it a day after a career spanning 38 years and take up training. He built Eve Lodge stables next to his luxury bungalow in Hamilton Road Newmarket 13 years ago. It has 130 boxes, many of which will be filled by horses belonging to some of racing's richest owners. The racing world will never be quite the same without the man who, since booting home his first winner at Haydock in 1948 at the age of 12, has gone on to dominate the Classic scene. 85 07 05b

1985 07 06
Lion Yard car park extension plan – 85 07 06

1985 07 11
A crowd assembled at Eltisley as the new Village Sign was handed over to the Parish Council by the Women's Institute in a special ceremony. It depicts the church with some thunder and lightning representing a storm which, legend has it, wreaked havoc on the village. It was the WI project for 1984 and the council supplied a plinth of York stone. At the same time the Best Kept Village Award given to Eltisley by the Cambridge Evening News in 1983 was erected nearby 85 07 11

1985 07 12
One of the houses at the centre of the Ely Cathedral controversy is starting to collapse. The summer's wet weather, followed by the recent dry spell, has caused a gaping hole to appear in the roof of the Black Hostelry within the medieval precincts. Hasty arrangements are being made to get it covered with a tarpaulin and erect a safety cage to stop tiles crashing to the ground. When the Dean and Chapter announced they wanted to build 60 retirement homes in the nearby Paddock to pay for repairs to their homes, they warned it would happen sooner or later. Now clergymen are wrestling with the biggest dilemma ever to face the Cathedral. 85 07 12

Huntingdon Methodist Church has launched a £200,000 restoration appeal for repairs to the 100-year-old High Street building – 85 07 12a

The Liberal-SDP Alliance is still living in unity within Cambridgeshire County Council – 85 07 12b

Commuting into Cambridge must be given the hard sell by local companies desperate to recruit skilled labour if they are to solve the area's chronic shortage of the right workers. Firms say that even when they find the right person premium house prices put many properties out of their reach. A few years ago the idea of living a long way out would have been impractical but it takes only forty-minutes to travel in from Peterborough which is not hassle of the kind that faces London commuters 85 07 12c

1985 07 15
Pupils at Grove School in Arbury have celebrated the opening of their primary school – just days before the summer holidays start. Two classrooms and other buildings lost in a blaze on the site two years ago have been replaced. The school now has a bigger hall, new changing rooms, kitchen, library and administration and staff rooms. One of the new classrooms will be used as a unit for visually impaired children. A second stage in the rebuilding work will see the erection of a unit for physically handicapped children. 85 07 15a

Undley drainage rate protest 85 07 15

1985 07 18
Lettice Ramsey, a member of the Bloomsbury Group and Cambridge photographer extraordinary, has died at the age of 86. Born in Ireland, she was educated at Newnham College and married Frank Ramsey a brilliant King's philosopher who tragically died three years later. Left with two daughters she studied briefly at Regent Street Polytechnic and set up in business as a photographer in Post Office Terrace with Helen Muspratt. She was instantly successful and rapidly became fashionable, photographing the influential and up-and-coming throughout the 1930s including Anthony Blunt and Virginia Woolf. She retired in 1978 85 07 18

1985 07 19
Reuben Heffer death – 85 07 19

1985 07 23
The Little Rose in Trumpington Street, believed to be one of the oldest pubs in Cambridge dating back to 14th century has been totally refurbished. The Brewhouse has been converted into an open-sided loggia with climbing roses and the oldest room has an inglenook fireplace with nooks and crannies giving a convivial atmosphere. Worthington best bitter and Charrington IPA will be served together with a range of pub grub including jacket potatoes and a choice of cheeses 85 07 23

1985 07 24
Lewis Todd was resident cartoonist of the CDN 30 years ago, following in the footsteps of Ronald Searle and Sid Moon who went on to Fleet Street. He is best-remembered for his composite drawings of cricket and football teams. He enjoyed a long career as an artist with the Ministry of Agriculture but now has an exhibition of his oil paintings of Cambridge scenes including a view of the Roman Catholic Church which makes it look like a Van Gogh structure. 85 07 24a

The Blue Boar Hotel in Trinity Street may be demolished and replaced by student accommodation, a lecture theatre and new shops. The façade would be saved with a new restaurant and wine bar on the ground floor. Trust House Forte are not a bit worried about its closure as the former 'showbiz hotel' was falling behind present standards. It was difficult to stop outside the entrance, parking was non-existent, few of the bedrooms had private bathrooms and many had a poor view. 85 07 24

It was on 23rd June 1895 that David Munsey set up in business as a watch and clockmaker in Cambridge. At one time he had a workshop in the alleyway next to W.H. Smith the bookseller, which was then known as Munsey's Passage. The firm was later bought by Northern Goldsmiths who have made many changes to the layout of the shop. They still sell all kinds of sports trophies and also supply the medals for the Oxford & Cambridge boat race. 85 07 24b

1985 07 25
Andy Gray can be seen early in the morning on Market Hill unloading four tons of records. It was as an 18-year-old straight out of school that he bought second-hand juke box records and sold them from market stalls. He took £80 on his first day at Cambridge – more money that he had seen in his life before – and opened his first shop in Mill Road. Now Andy's Records is the biggest chain of record shops in the region with a multi-million pound turnover. But he stills serves behind the counter whenever he can. 85 07 25 & 85 07 30

Quayside will be transformed with new shops, office buildings, a restaurant and a café with tables spilling outside into the square. Magdalene College's planned development will change the face of one of the city's most important riverside sites. Punting and public rights of way will be retained as will the newly-created cantilevered walkway linking Bridge Street with Jesus Green. The design by Hughes and Bicknell and will be built in narrow two-inch red bricks to match those of the college. 85 07 25a

1985 07 31

Cambridge United played Manchester United in testimonial match for Steve Spriggs and Steve Fallon organised by Ron Atkinson. It was a dream first night for Cambridge's new striker, Steve Massey, against the team he has supported since boyhood. But he missed a chance to score against his idols who won by the odd goal in five. The much-heralded match passed off without serious incident in a friendly atmosphere. A carefully-planned operation involving more that 100 police paid off and an almost carnival-like mood spread through the Abbey stadium. 85 07 31 & a

The History Faculty building on the Sidgwick Avenue site has been saved. After nine months of reports and meetings the university has decided to carry out extensive repairs rather than knock it down and rebuild. Each option would cost about £2million but the repairs could be spread over a number of years. Now work will start on weather-proofing it to stop rain penetrating through the façade and terraces. The building received an architectural award in 1970 and its designer, Mr James Stirling, was awarded a Gold Medal for Architecture in 1980. 85 07 31c # c.36.9

August 1985 CEN

1985 08 01
Crumbling plaster inside Hardwick church has led to the discovery of a rare 15th century mural. The wall painting depicting St Cyriac holding a sword and riding a lion once stretched for 30 feet along the south wall of the church. Older parishioners recall seeing faded colours but this is the first time the figures have been fully uncovered this century. It was painted over in 1856 as the rector then did not like it. Now an expert is scraping away other parts of the surface to see how far it extends 85 08 01

1985 08 02
Cambridge ratepayers received a cheque for £2million from one of the country's largest housing developers. It was accompanied by a legally binding promise from McLean Homes to build the much-needed Cherry Hinton bypass road for free. They may also give a plot of land for a new primary school. This is the council's profit on the largest land deal in Cambridge local government history. The housing development company has bought 51 acres of prime housing land owned by the council and others. Another 50 acres are to be sold shortly 85 08 02

Universal Recording Company of Burleigh Place made special gramophone records in 1950s – 85 08 02a

1985 08 03
Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother is 85 today. It was more than 60 years ago that her familiar royal wave first caught the county's imagination when she visited Papworth Village Settlement and since then she has returned amore than 40 times. These days it is Princess Diana who attracts the fashion comments but throughout her life the Queen Mother has shown a chic style of her own. When she reached her 80th birthday town, gown and countryside celebrated with parties, tree plantings and bell ringings. We look forward to her next visit. 85 08 03

One hundred years ago 14 women students enrolled in a new pioneering college set up in two houses in Merton Street, Newnham. Its aim was to train women to teach in secondary schools. Over the century that college has changed character and direction several times and under its present name of Hughes Hall it has just been awarded Approved Foundation status within Cambridge University. Despite the financial problems of the present day it is planning new buildings at its site in Wollaston Road. 85 08 03a # c.44.5 # c.36.72

1985 08 05
Death of Edward Stanley, one of original directors of Pye of Cambridge 85 08 05

The Rev Peter Phenna, outspoken vicar of St Martin's church for 16 years, has accepted a post with the Church Pastoral Aid Society. 85 08 05a

Langley Cricket Club's centenary cricket match in Victorian costume against Chrishall was called off. They were all dressed in straw boaters and striped blazers up but had to sit in the marquee as rain poured down. It was supposed to have been an important occasion for settling old scores. For when Langley's first recorded match took place in 1884, before the club was officially formed, it resulted in a low-scoring defeat. But they were still able to enjoy a traditional tea. 85 08 05b

1985 08 06
A peace garden dedicated to the Japanese people who died in the atomic bomb blasts at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was officially opened on Christ's Pieces. But the joint council-CND ceremony, set up as part of a week of peace programme to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the nuclear raids, was interrupted by protestors and boycotted by Conservative city councillors 85 08 06 # c.45.8

1985 08 07
The New Chesterton Institute was founded 100 years ago to promote the moral, mental and physical well-being of its members. Today with 1,100 members the NCI Sports and Social Club is still going strong. Meetings were originally held in the Coffee House, Searle Street until the present building was erected in 1891. In the early days it was famous as a debating society. Now it is known more for its sporting achievements and even has a crib team. 85 08 07a # c.37

A Nene-Ouse navigation link from Stanground to Salter's Lode would allow through passage from Bedford, Cambridge and Ely to the major waterway network of the country, via the Grand Union Canal. At present about 650 craft annually use locks at either end of the proposed link, a figure that could treble. The Middle| Level would be improved encouraging craft to stop at March and Whittlesey, boosting tourism and leading to additional industries such as craft workshops and camping sites. 85 08 07

1985 08 08
Cambridge could soon get a third new superstore competing with Tesco at Bar Hill, Sainsburys in Coldham's Lane and the Beehive complex off Newmarket Road. Asda plans to build a huge new complex on Milton Road opposite the Arbury and King's Hedges housing estates. It would take up almost half of the Cambridge Business Park and include a 750-space car park 85 08 08 # c.49.65

1985 08 09
A pilot and navigator scrambled away unscathed when their Canberra jet on take-off and caught fire at RAF Alconbury. The photo-reconnaissance plane had switched to the airfield while improvements are carried out at Wyton. Twenty-nine people have died in military manoeuvres over East Anglia in the last nine years. A Canberra practicing a simulated engine failure crashed near a row of houses on the Oxmore Estate, Huntingdon in May 1977. Then in December an American F1-11 narrowly missed a school when it plunged into a housing estate at Newmarket. 85 08 09

1985 08 13
Swavesey villagers are outraged at plans to shut their library and replace it with a van. The library is the centre of the community with a turnover of at least 2,500 books a week; old people's clubs arrange meetings when it is open so that elderly members can call in. Even people from the surrounding villages use it. The protests started when it was discovered that village college governors had decided that the library would have to move out of rented rooms there because of a desperate shortage of classrooms. If the public library were to go the school could have more accommodation at no extra expense. But campaigners say "We won't let this happen. We have got to keep our library in the village". 85 08 13

1985 08 15
Protest letters against plans for a 'hi-tech-village' near the junction with Hills Road and Brooklands Avenue are flooding into the planning department. Unex Property Group want to build 23 office-research units grouped around a central courtyard with shrubbery and trees together with 169 parking spaces. It means the displacement of E. Pordage, the vegetable wholesalers and the steel staircase company, Crescent of Cambridge. Unex say offices would be better than the existing warehouse and scrapyard. 85 08 15a

Trinity College defended its plans to build student rooms and shops on the site of the old Blue Boar, a hotel which had no parking space and where guests could not be set down and picked up easily. Trinity need extra accommodation for students and it would be a sad day when their success in attracting tourists to Cambridge was allowed to interfere with their primary education purpose. But Councillor Rosensteil attacked the plans as a selfish encroachment on facilities and accused colleges of treating the city as if it were their own. 85 08 15

1985 08 17
Sawston villagers are mourning the passing of their ancient right to pick two acres of parish peas. In 1554 John Huntingdon willed that the 'town peas' should be sown for the poor of the village and that if the tradition was broken the land would revert to the church wardens. But now everybody in the village – not just the poor – picks them. This year they have not been sown 85 08 17

1985 08 20
The village of Sawston has a faded charm. It seems to occupy a little world of its own and since inhabitants became cut off from through traffic with the building of a bypass it has withdrawn into itself. Now visitors and villagers have the luxury of shopping in a street almost devoid of parked cars. It is pleasant to saunter along, dallying to look at the astonishing variety of shops selling everything from a chop to a chain saw. The architecture runs from medieval to the old-people's home on the London Road, a shining white herald of the 20th-century, 85 08 20

1985 08 21
One of Cambridge's oldest family butcher's is closing. Derek Traylen's grandfather opened the first shop in Newmarket Road 113 years ago. They had their own slaughterhouse until 1937 and ran three butcher's vans that toured the villages. Derek started in 1938 and is one of the few people in the business who can rear animals, slaughter them, dress them, cut and prepare them, advise people about them and cook them. But people now buy pre-packed meat in supermarkets 85 08 21 # c.27.2

1985 08 22
One of Cambridge's least-known grand houses has come on the market. The eight-bedroom mansion stands in more than three-quarters of an acre of ground and is approached by a long drive and carriage sweep. It has a fine entrance hall, large drawing and dining rooms, butler's pantry and a boiler house. It all sounds like the Newnham home of a Victorian worthy. The actual address is 242 Mill Road. The house is the former vicarage of St Philip's Church and there is planning consent for 17 sheltered homes to be built on the site. 85 08 22 # c.61

1985 08 28
Faced with their day-to-day accounts going into the red this year, the Dean and Chapter of Ely Cathedral have appointed a 'business manager'. His brief is to try and increase income from an estimated 200,000 tourists who visit each year but hand over an average of 27 pence a head. It costs £900 a day to maintain the cathedral and £5 million is needed for restoration over the next ten years. The Cathedral has already upset conservationists by planning to build more than 60 homes in The Paddock, a stone's throw from the building. 85 08 28

1985 08 29
Two men working down a disused ice store at Madingley Hall had an amazing escape when they were caught up in a terrifying fireball of exploding gas. Paul King was excavating soil twenty feet below the surface when gas leaked from a lamp and ignited on the mantle. There was a real risk of the cracked dome of the store caving in and entombing him but he clambered to the narrow entrance and was hauled out by a colleague, John Fredericks, who had been knocked back four feet by the blast. 85 08 29 & a

Quick action by neighbours helped save the oldest house in Hundon after its thatch caught fire. The blaze at The Croft in Church Street started while the owners were working on their allotment. Someone on the road noticed smoke and raised the alarm. Neighbours quickly played their hoses on the roof until the brigade arrived. They stripped the burning thatch but the structure of building, which is believed to date back to 1450, was not damaged. 85 08 29b

Quy Mill Hotel, an impressive-looking farmhouse-like building reached by a narrow country lane just off the Quy roundabout, has great charm. Now work has started on the dilapidated mill next to the main hotel which will house a restaurant and extra 21 bedrooms. There are plans for a conference room for business meetings and to put trout in the lake for fishing enthusiasts. But all that is in the future for new owners Ingrid and Derek Fisher. "We will chat and talk to customers for as long as they want – till three o'clock in the morning if necessary", they say 85 08 29c

Hundon fire, p7

1985 08 30
Now that the dust has settled after the upheaval of building the Grafton Centre, Burleigh Street and Fitzroy Street have emerged as pleasant shopping promenades. Very few shops remain unlet with Andy's Records and Lancashire Mills about to open. Fitzroy Street will become more interesting in October when Habitat finally open at the old Laurie & McConnal shop while Burleigh Street will get a similar boost when the House of Holland opens in the old Marcade centre. 85 08 30

1985 08 31
Manea has finally put itself on the map. After years of obscurity the rambling little village in the heart of the fens has beaten more than 200 others to win the Best Kept Village award. Judges described it as 'exquisite', 'a gem' and 'a real eye catcher'. Locals have been beavering away for months and have been helped by a poor summer. All the rain has meant that their grass stayed green. Head teacher David Wilson described Manea as 'a tight-knit place where people take interest and pride in their village' and butcher Jim Bent says it was community spirit that won the award. 85 08 31

September 1985 CEN

1985 09 01
A family of six fled for their lives when fire ripped through their pub home. Publican Ted Bazelak was woken by the sound of breaking glass and went downstairs to find the public bar of the Red Lion at Kneesworth a sea of flames. He evacuated his family, phoned the brigade and put a hose through the broken window in a bid to douse the flames. A cigarette left smouldering in the bar for several hours is believed to have caused the outbreak. 85 09 01

Ian Purdy has probably done more than anybody else in modern times to shape the Cambridge we know today. He is the man who fought and won the battle to lift the years-long planning ban on Cambridge expansion, thus opening the doors to industrial development. He played the major part in approving the controversial Lion Yard redevelopment which changed the face of the city centre forever. But he did not design it – that was done by private architects - and doubts if such a scheme would have been approved even 18 months after it was given the go-ahead. "People had so much concrete redevelopment thrust on them after the war and called a halt to it", he says. 85 09 01b & c # c.49.4

At the sound of a high-pitched squeal from a paging device 12 Burwell men leave their workbenches, desks or beds and go off to face fire, flood, fumes or any one of a range of disasters. They are officially known as retained fire-fighters and are on call 365 days a year. Other areas such as Swaffham Bulbeck, Linton, Papworth and Kimbolton find it difficult to make up the minimum of a four-person crew and more recruits are needed. The annual retainer starts at £789 and there is a 'turn-out' fee of £5.83 for riding on the fire engine to an emergency call. 85 09 01a

1985 09 03
Mrs Thatcher has called on Grantchester's millionaire best-selling author Jeffrey Archer to present the Conservative Party's case to the country in the run-up to the next General Election. Mr Archer was named as deputy to the new party chairman, Mr Norman Tebbit, who said he would bring "a touch of dash and style" to the organisation. Mrs Thatcher's radical reshuffle has also made Huntingdon MP John Major a minister for the first time. 85 09 03

1985 09 04
Swavesey library closure opposed – 85 09 04

Cambridge Labour councillors are to work out the cost of giving free bus travel throughout the city to all elderly and handicapped people. They will also investigate ways of increasing the off-peak use of buses. The present concessionary bus fare scheme is organised by the County Council but Alliance and Conservative councillors have combined to throw out proposals for free travel by Christmas 85 09 04a

1985 09 06
The bricks which housed Cambridge Labour Party for nearly 60 years are now taking a new shape. Above the builders' board which surround the site of the old Alex Wood Hall in Norfolk Street is rising a brand new hall, faced with the bricks of the old structure. In exchange for their new premises, the party has given part of the site to builders who will use it for housing. The new hall should be ready by March 1986. 85 09 06 # c.33

1985 09 07
Harston enclosure riots 1797 – 85 09 07

1985 09 09
Take one skinned mouse, fry it and feed it to your child. The result is an instant cure for whooping cough. This remedy is included in one of a series of six pamphlets about Pampisford compiled by Olive Mayo after months of research. Other volumes cover natural history and a transcription of articles from the Cambridge Chronicle. Olive became engrossed after collecting together more than 300 slides of local scenes. Now she hopes her work will inspire other people to carry on where she left off. 85 09 09

1985 09 10
The redundant church of St Andrew the Great could end up as a row of shops following the Ely Diocesan Board of Finance decision to sell it as a "most valuable central property". The church stands opposite Christ's College at the entrance to the Lion Yard shopping centre. It already has permission to be used for educational purposes, as a restaurant or for community use but planners have indicated they would consider shops in the body of the church. However the structure would have to be maintained together with its famous memorial to Captain Cook and access to the tower of six bells which are frequently rung. 85 09 10

1985 09 11
A massive £2 million shops, offices and leisure complex has been thrown out by Cambridge planners – by just one vote. Magdalene College wanted to develop the riverside area of Quayside, Bridge Street and Thompson's Lane with a three-storey building and a development that would include shops, offices, restaurant, café, residential accommodation and a research and development base. Café tables would have spilled out into a square fronting the river. But residents objected, fearing extra traffic and councillors thought it too 'heavily massed' 85 09 11

1985 09 12
Householders in Newmarket and Exning will keep the new wheeled dustbins they have been trying as part of a six-month experiment. The bins were issued to 5,000 homes on a free trial paid for by the manufacturer. Now the bins will be introduced throughout the Forest Heath District to replace a 'back door' rubbish collection using plastic sacks. Fewer dustmen will be needed and the system will save money. 85 09 12

1985 09 13
A dark blue double-decker bus opened its doors seven months ago to the drunks who pestered shoppers in Lion Yard. It is run by the Cyrenians and is also taking glue sniffers and drug addicts; they have 25-35 callers a day. Tea, coffee, soup and sandwiches can be bought, second-hand clothes handed out and there is a television. A couple of hard drinkers have given up the bottle and former heroin addicts seek the support of the voluntary helpers 85 09 13

Jane Barrett opened her fine china store at The Mall in Bar Hill in November 1983 but soon moved to larger premises. She has transformed a large warehouse and stocks a wide selection from leading English manufacturers of china and glass. Some of the designs have been named after her including a Royal Doulton crinoline lady which was created to celebrate Barretts of Cambridge bi-centenary year and an all-purpose wine glass 85 09 13b

1985 09 17
Cambridge motorists heading for Heathrow and the West Country will find their journey much easier now the last length of the new M25 motorway around London is opened. They have the choice taking the traditional route down through Hatfield and then to the top of the completed M25 at Watford or to take the M11 south and turn west. Both routes have their problems but at rush hours the amount of traffic at South Mimms can be daunting. The new section will make it much easier to join the M40, M4 and M3 and will cut out frustrating delays in the Slough, Uxbridge area 85 09 17

The Green Belt around Cambridge was designed to protect the area from development and to preserve large areas of open space between villages. Now County planners want to release land to make way for the city to breathe including 70 acres at Trumpington, Histon Road allotments and the University Farm in Huntingdon Road. They say this would not mean developers' lorries moving in. Nearly 500 organisations objected at an Inquiry but the County are pleased with the result which backs most of their proposals. 85 09 17 a b c # c.49.4

1985 09 18
The Vicar of Elmdon has a colony of breeding Pipistrelle bats in his church. They are a nuisance: they make a mess, drop on the pews during the service to the distress of the congregation and defecate over the altar during Holy Communion. But the law won't allow him to evict them. Recently a parishioner reported that smoke bombs were being let off in the church to destroy the colony. This was not so, although two had been let off to arrest an infestation of furniture beetles in the roof timbers. 85 09 18

1985 09 19
Cambridgeshire education spending is condemned in a shock report by county secondary school heads. One school spends just a halfpenny a pupil for each geography lesson and another spent just £2.55 per child for maths tuition in a year. Some children have to share history books. Heads are worried about under-funding and morale amongst teachers is at an all-time low with many voting to strike in support of a pay claim. 85 09 19

1985 09 20
Sinclair Research is selling its award-winning headquarters at Willis Road, Cambridge. The class and stainless-steel conversion of a Victorian bottling plant has been in use since 1982. Now the company's activities are to be concentrated at Milton Hall where their advanced research centre, Metalab is already operating. It is part of a restructuring programme to slim the company in the face of an estimated £15 million debt. 85 09 20 # c.27.1 : Sinclair

1985 09 23
Swavesey library has been saved thanks to outraged villagers who lobbied Cambridgeshire County Council to prevent its closure. The protest started when governors at the school wanted to move it out because of a shortage of space. 230 people attended a public meeting objecting to any attempt to shut the library which lends at least 2,500 books a week. Now councillors have backed them by 14 votes to two. Campaigners are overjoyed and others in a similar situation will realise that if you try, you can win, they say 85 09 23

More than 40 couples married during the past ten years returned to the scene of their weddings at Cottenham parish church for a special reunion. They included two couples who have just celebrated their tenth anniversary as well as another pair who have just returned from their honeymoon. The Rev Robert Cave, who is celebrating his tenth anniversary as Rector, conducted the service which was followed by a reception with a cake and a group photograph. 85 09 23a

1985 09 24
Cambridgeshire Secondary Schools need £10 million spent on essential building work to stop children being taught in 'appalling conditions". Hinchingbrooke Lower School was particularly bad with leaking roofs and rotting window frames. Many of their 14 mobile classrooms were over 20 years old and totally dilapidated. Work is also needed at Bottisham and Swavesey Village Colleges but the current Government will not allow the work to be carried out in a single year. "The Conservatives have left us with a massive problem" said an Alliance county councillor 85 09 24

1985 09 26
Spillers' new flour packing factory in Station Road is a model of modern efficiency. Combined with the existing Homepride mill it will be capable of producing 20 million packets of flour annually, making it their main processing plant in Britain and enabling cost increases to be kept to a minimum. It is part of a major centralisation plan by Spillers Homepride which is moving its headquarters into Cambridge. 85 09 26 # c.27

History of the Apostles – 85 09 26a # c.36.9

1985 09 27
Cambridge Cattle Market opened 100 years ago. Before 1885 it was held at Castle End but the stalls were inadequate for the number of beasts. Then Jesus College provided land near the railway station. Cattle docks from all four railways were within two minutes' walk and there were direct railway links to Scotland and Ireland. There are still weekly sales of stock, with horse sales every five weeks, but the area nearby that was used for grazing is now the Clifton Industrial Estate. It is filled with large corrugated boxes housing a wide variety of light industry and a 'Park and Ride' site 85 09 27 c.27.3

1984 09 30
Queens' College tv documentary – 85 09 30 # c.27.8 # c.44.5

October 1985 CEN

1985 10 01
When pub tenants Brian and Jean Smith moved not only did they pack their furniture but they took the darts team with them. The unusual move came when the Greene King brewery announced that it was to close the 400-year-old Coach and Horses in Harston, which Brian and Jean had run for the last two-and-a-half years. But they were offered the tenancy of the Three Horse Shoes on the other side of the road. So after serving their last pint at the Coach, they reopened just opposite. And as the Horse Shoes didn't have a darts or quiz team they followed them across 85 10 01

A triple gun salute and the haunting notes of the soldier's requiem 'The Last Post' sounded out across a sunlit Cambridge cemetery after the coffin carrying the body of an 18-year-old private was laid in the ground. Martin Patten had been gunned down by the IRA only three months after starting active service with his beloved Royal Anglian Regiment. Amongst dozens of mourners were soldiers from all three of the Regiment's battalions and members of the Burma Star Association 85 10 01a # c.45.8

1985 10 02
Bodger's, one of Cambridge's oldest-established university menswear shops which has been on the corner of Green Street and Sidney Street since 1922, is up for sale as a going concern. It is a very prosperous business employing ten full-time staff but the most valuable part of the concern is the freehold of the shop. It includes sales areas on two floors, a cutting room and canteen together with an attached doctor's surgery with a separate entrance and is valued at £800,000. 85 10 02 # c.27.2

1985 10 03
Patients are having to bring their own bed linen to Addenbrooke's Hospital because a new laundry cannot cope. Some patients are lying on paper sheets and some doctors are doing their own laundry at home. One nurse said she had not seen any clean bed linen for three weeks. One man walked a mile home to bring his wife a proper pillow case. The centralised laundry at Fulbourn handles all the soiled linen; it does such massive amounts that get stuck in the system when the machines break down, an administrator said 85 10 03 # c.21.4

"Full Metal Jacket", a Stanley Kubrick film about the Vietnam war is being made at Bassingbourn Barracks. A massive set portrays an American base camp in the heart of the jungle. Metal huts have been built and 39 palm trees imported from Spain. Workers come in regularly to water the 40-foot palms, although overnight high winds claimed on of them. Plenty of noise is expected once the camp comes under attack but few will notice as the base already has a shooting range with artillery exercises going on regularly 85 10 03a

1985 10 04
Duxford Lodge Hotel opened to its first guests to reveal comfortable three-star accommodation and a restaurant which should prove popular with travellers taking a break from the M11. The former Highfield House Hotel has been transformed to create a country house atmosphere. During the war it was an RAF HQ and amongst officers billeted there was Group Captain Douglas Bader whose bedroom has now been incorporated into the new coffee lounge. Winter weekend breaks are offered at £60 per person for two nights including breakfast and dinner. 85 10 04 & a

1985 10 05
The new Amstrad PCW 8256 is a complete word processing package of no less than 256K for £399 plus VAT. The Cambridge Computer Store sold eight inside two hours. It is a system designed to be attractive to anyone who uses a typewriter with a full-size keyboard, green monitor, built-in disc driver and printer. It comes with a Locomotive word processing software kit which is said to be self-explanatory and particularly easy to use. "Start using the machine and then, if you're stuck, refer to the handbook", they advise the user 85 10 05

1985 10 07
Bertram Dyer played the organ as usual for the family service at Elmdon parish church. But the service was special because it commemorated his 50th anniversary as church organist. He has also been organist at Strethall church, said to be the smallest parish in England, and was at one time organist at Littlebury Green. But the organ at Elmdon is his first love, even more now that it has been restored in time for the Harvest Festival. It now features a brass plaque commemorating his years of service. 85 10 07

1985 10 08
A controversial water-ski-ing trial at Graffham Water has proved inclusive. Strong winds meant it was impossible to judge the effect on other users of the reservoir which has been set aside for quiet use – sailing, fishing and wild life. Water-ski enthusiasts need additional water as clubs are full but anglers feel it is not compatible with their sport and RSPB officials say it would impact on the birds. 85 10 08

1985 10 09
Cherished memories of boyhood holidays have prompted world-famous author, Graham Greene, to help with Harston village church appeal fund. The celebrated novelist, who often used to visit his uncle at Harston House in the school holidays and has written about the village in his short stories, donated a prized first edition of one of his books inscribed with a personal tribute. The 15th-century church needs repairs to the roof and walls which will cost £108,000. 85 10 09

1985 10 10
Chesterton Community College is celebrating its Golden Jubilee with a book of anecdotes. Old boy Chris Morton remembers headmaster R.C. Brown. "We used to call him 'The Major'. He used to have this habit of picking you up by the ear. He was a real gentleman. He would give you the cane and you used to feel he was being military about it". Rex Freeman was one of the favourite teachers and could bring the best out of anyone. He taught English and history, later music and remedial classes 85 10 10 & a # c.36.5

Wrights Ski Chalet shop opens King Street – 85 10 10b & c

1985 10 14
The waiting lists for St Paul's School in Coronation Street and St Matthew's in Norfolk Street have become so full that there is a queue for every place. Pregnant mothers are wanting to sign in their as yet unborn babies. But there are no plans to expand the schools from their present roll and children who cannot be admitted will have to be taken to other schools across the city. The problem is due to the changing face of Cambridge: once the local streets were full of lodging houses and bedsitters. Now professional people have moved in and renovated the houses 85 10 15

Longstanton traction engine museum – 85 10 14a

1985 10 15
Hinxton watermill has been in a sad state of repair since the 1920s. But now Cambridge Preservation Society has embarked on a project to restore it to its former glory. They bought the mill and its adjoining cottage in 1984 and work should be completed by May. Peg tiles will replace the corrugated iron roof on the mill and the cottage will be rethatched. It will be one of the largest projects they have undertaken 85 10 15

Pigott's, the family ironmongers which has traded in Cambridge for more than a century, is up for sale. It was in 1863 that John Pigott, son of a Landbeach farmer, opened an ironmongers shop in Sidney Street and a chain of shops were set up in Market Hill, Mill Road, Norfolk Street, Bridge Street and Hills Road. The Sussex Street branch, an established feature of the street since the late 1930s, shut down last September. The business, now in Victoria Road, includes two shops, a warehouse, stores and office. 85 10 15a # c.27

1985 10 16
RAF Newmarket & Snailwell – history 85 10 16 & a # c.45.7

1985 10 17
It was standing room only in Queens' College as undergraduates and dons crowded in to watch the first part of a BBC documentary about their college. Even the bar was quiet as hundreds of college members jostled for the best positions around television sets. There were cheers of recognition for college personalities and hoots of derisions as candidates attending interviews for admission flunked the questions. The Senior Tutor has always supported the project because he believes Queens' has nothing to hide but does not want students to get too excited about the media attention. 85 10 17 # c.27.8 # c.44.5

Eight years after Laurie's doors closed forever, the tiers of galleries round the central well which gave the old store such a distinctive character will be alive with shoppers once again. On the official opening a band will once again occupy the bandstand on top of the building in Fitzroy Street. Traders are hoping that the arrival of Habitat will bring an influx of new shoppers to boost the whole area.

Sofas are their best-selling furniture line in a range which includes lighting, self-assembly kitchens and fabrics. 85 10 23 # c.27.2

1985 10 18
Iron foundries on Quayside side – history 85 10 18 # c.27

1985 10 21
The old Otto Wehrle public clock is to be returned to its former position after a decade's absence. The 102-year-old clock was removed from the Cambridge Market Square façade when the Wehrle jewellers business closed after 125 years. Now it has been discovered in Lincolnshire by a Saffron Walden dealer in ancient artefacts, Stephen McDermott. It is being restored by Rodney Firmin of Magdalene Street before being unveiled once more next spring 85 10 21

1985 10 22
The Government has given the green light for the controversial £500,000 plan for rebuilding Cambridge bus station. They have given the County permission to buy a small 'island' of land in the centre of Drummer Street owned by the city council. It was the only thing standing in the way of the proposed rebuilding plans. But the scheme is unlikely ever to go ahead. The new County council administration wants to build a long-distance coach terminal at the railway station instead, saying it would ease city centre bus congestion. 85 10 22

The new park-and-ride service from Cowley Road to the heart of Cambridge has met a slow response. The experimental service which also runs to the Grafton Centre has been laid on in time for the build-up to Christmas with buses every ten minutes and a return fare of 35p. The first day was very quiet but Cambus expect it will get a great deal busier with about 20 passengers per bus. They are also improving the regular service between the cattle market & the city centre. 85 10 22a

1985 10 23
Edgley Aircraft, producers of Optica which was first flown 1979 goes into liquidation – 85 10 23 # c.26.1

Planners are trying to discover who owns a large piece of land which has been derelict for as long as anyone can remember. Running along the back gardens in Stanley Road and Garlic Row it is in the middle of a new Stourbridge general improvement area and is ripe for improvement. But nothing can be done to tidy up it up or remove rusting car hulks until they track down a mysterious 'Mr Brown' who probably died many years ago. 85 10 23b

1985 10 24
Fire ripped through the nerve centre of the RAF's UK Support Command at Brampton in Cambridgeshire's biggest blaze for years. More than 100 firemen fought for over two hours to bring the flames under control but the building may have to be demolished. There are fears that vital documents may have been destroyed though they will not affect the running of the Air Force. There is no reason to suspect arson. Around 400 people, both military and civilian personnel, work in the headquarters. 85 10 24

Pye director John Stanley dies – 85 10 24a

Squatters who are being turned out of the derelict Thakes Cycle Shop on East Road are angry that the building will lie empty. It was bought by the County Council under a compulsory purchase order and was to have been demolished to make way for the controversial road widening scheme which has now been scrapped. It could still be pulled down to improve the road junction with Norfolk Street. The squatters had dreams of turning it into a social centre with a vegetarian café and crèche 85 10 24b

Reg Badcock of Lode repairs cracked and broken church bells. He has made almost all the special equipment he needs from pieces of metal debris which fill every corner of his workshops. A few bells were experimentally repaired by the British Welding Institute at Abington, where he had worked for 25 years. But they were not prepared to carry on the task, so Reg took over. He has worked on bells from Abbotsley and Foxton. Each has its own character and markings but he clears away one his cluttered benches and solves the problem. The importance of his work is recognised nationally: amongst the jobs waiting for him is a bell from a church near Stratford-on-Avon. 85 10 24c & d # c.69.6

1985 10 28
For almost 200 years every gentleman of Cambridge popped in to the little King's Parade shop of Bays and Sons, the hatters. It was started in 1787 and the present shop was built in 1825. It was a traditional firm and never followed fashions. Each time the demand for hats dropped they added another line and eventually sold more blazers, trousers and boaters than gowns and hats. But rents tripled and the premises were taken over by New and Lingwood, shirtmakers. Now with the retirement of Jimmy Bays, the family link has been broken. 85 10 28 # c.27.2

1985 10 30
Thirty years ago Jack Frost of Hauxton started a motor business in a cowshed. Now he keeps the handicapped mobile. His garage has been the official supply and repair centre for invalid cars for some years with a number of standby vehicles that can be exchanged for broken down vehicles. The familiar blue plastic three-wheelers have automatic transmission and are powered by a two-cylinder Steyr-Puch engine. The firm also looks after wheelchairs and three-wheel bikes of all descriptions. 85 10 30

The Old Rectory at Fulbourn was originally built in 1886 for a rector whose family included 17 children. Consequently it boasts a large amount of space with 1,250 square feet of outbuildings set in almost an acre of garden. This has now become the headquarters of Sibley Robinson who specialise in designs for civil, structural, mechanical and building engineering. They have worked on Harston Mill Research Centre for Cambridge Interactive Systems 85 10 30a & b

1985 10 31
Beeswax polish cottage industry destroyed by fire – 85 10 31

November 1985 CEN

1985 11 01
The Nancy was a fine steam tug, one of the largest to be used on the River Cam. She was about 70 feet long with a capacity of about 70 tons and was owned by the Eastern Counties' Navigation Company carrying coal, bricks and timber. The boat was laid up in 1914 because of the war and rotted at her moorings near the railway bridge at Ely until the river was widened in 1947. Then the rusting boat was buried on the Babylon marina site. Four years ago the remains were unearthed and now the stern has been given a permanent home at the Cambridge Museum of Technology in Cheddar Lane 85 11 01 # c.26.3

1985 11 02
People of Little Shelford and Harston have spent £3,000 to repair a magnificent obelisk which presides over open fields near Harston. However the man it commemorates appears to have left no mark in history. Gregory Wale died in 1739. He was a Justice of the Peace, Deputy Lieutenant, county treasurer and Conservator of the River Cam. The memorial says he lived an advocate for liberty, was an agreeable companion, faithful friend and a useful member of society. But it remains a mystery why such a splendid monument should be erected to so unremarkable a man 85 11 02

1985 11 04
Dr Robert Dwyer-Joyce was the physician and friend of generations of Histon villagers. He and his wife, Dr Alice Dwyer-Joyce, were family doctors in the village that was their home for the past 42 years. Despite running a busy general practice he found time to paint and write poetry whilst his wife wrote around 30 books. When they retired in 1978 villagers threw a farewell party in the village hall where they were showered with gifts. The parish council named a street after them in recognition of their service. 85 11 04

1985 11 05
Pamela Sue Martin – who played Fallon in 'Dynasty' – along with veteran actor Dick Van Dyke and Ben Cross, star of 'Chariots of Fire', were part of a glittering galaxy of Hollywood stars who have been smuggled in and out of Cambridge during the last couple of days for the filming of a multi-million dollar TV mini-series called 'Strong Medicine'. Shooting began in King's Parade with heart-throb Sam Neil and then shifted to the university's chemistry department in Lensfield Road. Two local schoolboys James Stevenson and Dan Nashaat gave a hand fetching and carrying. They met the stars and were paid £3 for their work. 85 11 05 # c.65.6

1985 11 06
Pupils and staff at the Manor Community College have been working hard on a school yearbook – the first publication of its kind in the eastern counties. Wrapped in a bold cover designed by former pupil Paul Stevens it attempts to capture the life of the school in pictures and captions. Teacher and librarian Jim Brown has been assisted by pupils Tim Judges, Rebecca Newman, Ben Levitt, Marc Abraham and Philip Jaggard who took photographs of community activities. 85 11 06

1985 11 07
Dr Clive Sinclair is one of the few British industrialists to challenge the Japanese and American dominance in electronics. Although his C5 vehicle venture went into liquidation this week he is still afloat, still only 45 and has enormous resources. So it is a very good time for Rodney Dale, a literate man who knows Cambridge science well, to have produced his biography giving an invaluable glimpse of a significant period in Cambridge's electronic history. 85 11 07

Staff at the Central Library in Lion Yard say goodbye to Leslie 'Wally' Collins – 85 11 07a

Cambridge planners have thrown out three major proposals that would have created 1,500 new jobs for the city. Out went a scheme to build an Asda superstore in the new Cambridge Business Park in Milton Road and out went plans for a big new shopping centre between Kings Hedges Road and the northern bypass. Also rejected was a Unex scheme for a giant complex for high-tech research on the site of a disused vegetable warehouse site between Hills Road and Brooklands Avenue. Planners say it left no room for landscaping and minimal room for parking. Appeals will be made against all the decisions. 85 11 07c

1985 11 08
Fenstanton riot 1789 – 85 11 08
Maters' wives, p28

1985 11 12
The Cambridgeshire College of Arts and Technology needs polytechnic status. It would boost cash levels, encourage more students and do a lot for its prestige. College principal Roy Helmore says Cambridge is an extremely attractive city for students; if you compare it with Chelmsford, which is another college making a bid, it is culturally and socially a desirable place to stay. But staff would have to be relocated and paperwork would increase. He is retiring after nine years and says it is a right time for somebody new, younger and vigorous to take on the challenge. 85 11 12 # c.36.7

Waterbeach primary school is displaying a dolls house which was built 50 years ago as a school project in which every pupil took part. The girls wove the carpets and curtains while the boys made the furniture and produced wallpaper out of potato prints. Billy Sabberton remembers it was his job to fit the chimney pot. But he made the hole in the roof too big and was relieved to be given the job of fitting some tiles so he could cover up the gap without the teacher, Miss Hilda Hatley, spotting the mistake. 85 11 12a

1985 11 13
The £5-million park-and-ride system planned for Cambridge could be scrapped. Behind-the-scene moves are under way at Shire Hall to replace it with an equally controversial parking area for 2,000 cars under Midsummer Common. The Labour-controlled city council is backing the idea of a ring of major ground-level car parks linked to the centre with a cheap bus service. But they need the support of the Conservative-led County Council which questions who is to pay the set-up charge and the estimated £1-million a year running costs. 85 11 13

1985 11 14
Underground car park proposals history – 85 11 14

Palace House Mansion Newmarket was established by Charles II in the 17th century with – reputedly – a secret tunnel linking it with Nell Gwyn's house in Palace Street. It was subsequently used by George IV and royal dukes but in 1850 the stable was sold on the instructions of Queen Victoria and demolished apart from the Outer Yard. The Mansion, which faces its stables and training yards across Palace Street, was acquired by the Rothschild family around 1876. It has now been put on the market for over £1m. 85 11 14a

1985 11 15
Almost 100 years of school history is about to bite the dust as the last remaining building of the former St Phillip's School in Thoday Street is demolished. It will be replaced with 30 self-contained flats for elderly people. The children moved to new premises in Vinery Road last year. 85 11 15

Properties in Silverley Way, Ashley are being demolished because they are claimed to be unsafe. But despite repeated efforts workmen have been unable to remove one of the controversial concrete and steel 'Airey Houses'. They attached a cable to the back wall and tried to pull it down with a digger, but the wheels just spun. After a day pulling and shovelling all they achieved was to shake loose a few tiles and smash a couple of windows. The council says there are various faults in the design and they would need extensive repairs 85 11 15a

Cambridge's experimental Neighbourhood Watch scheme involves some 500 houses in Chesterton and is aimed at giving the police back-up in their fight against crime. If residents spot something suspicious they get in touch with the street co-ordinator who notifies the Home Beat Officer. The area is going up market and the major problems are the annual influx of fair people and visitors to the 'Bumps' whose inconsiderate parking causes anger. 85 11 15b # c.34.7

Mowbrays bookshop reopens after alterations – 85 11 15c

1985 11 16
Marshalls retains contract on Hercules transport aircraft – 85 11 16
Thriplow postmistress' funeral, more than a year after she shot – 85 11 16a

1985 11 18
Cambridge Darkroom exhibition of Fen photographs – 85 11 18 # c.65.5

1985 11 20
Brooklyn Body Shop Fen Road – 85 11 20

1985 11 21
Schmidt of Sutton demonstrate new road sweeper - 85 11 21

1985 11 22
The Carioca Club on Newmarket Road is finally being demolished after years of doubt about its future. It was built in the 1870s as a Methodist Chapel but with falling attendances it was a financial embarrassment and as early as 1909 there was talk of selling it. In 1941 it became a furniture storage depot and was turned into a nightclub and disco in 1976 with a take-away kebab shop. But it was gutted by fire in 1983 and never reopened. 85 11 22 # c.83

Sally Ann's, Cambridge Salvation Army's highly successful charity shop set up five years ago, is now open for business at its new home on the site of the former Fine Fare supermarket in Mill Road, having moved from the Tesco shop in Regent Street. It sells everything from bric-a-brac to books but also has second-hand furniture such as wardrobes, dressers, beds and three-piece suites. These can be used to assist 'distress cases' where a family urgently needs furniture. About 100 volunteers price the items, launder and iron the clothes and operate a delivery service but more are desperately needed to keep up with all the jobs that need doing. 85 11 22b # c.27.2

ADC history – 85 11 22a # c.76

1985 02 21
Isleham pancake winners presented with prizes by Mike Petty: photo 85 02 21 NJ

1985 11 25
Stanton House residents celebrated its silver jubilee with a ploughman's lunch and old-time music hall. It has 28 bedsits with shared bathrooms, giving elderly people their independence while under the watchful eye of a warden who lives on the premises. It was the first sheltered housing scheme to open in Cambridge and has proved very popular. But the fact that residents are made so comfortable means they live longer and more and more homes of this kind are needed. Now Mill Road maternity hospital and St Philip's School in Thoday Street are to be converted. 85 11 25 # c.32.9

1985 11 26
Landbeach Lake may be sold as nature reserve – 85 11 26
Tiddlywinks world championship held at Churchill college – 85 11 26a & b # c.38 : tiddlywinks

1985 11 27
When the St Neots quads, Ernest, Ann, Paul and Michael Miles were born 50 years ago they made national headlines as Britain's first quadruplets to survive. Even in those days they had obvious commercial potential and Cow and Gate Baby Foods wasted no time in signing them up. The last time they were really in the news was for their 21st birthday and since then they have been allowed to leave normal lives. Three of them returned to St Neots for a small party but the youngest lives in South Africa and could not join in. 85 11 27

1985 11 29
Pye TVT, the Cambridge television equipment company is to close its studio systems plant which employs 230 people – 85 11 29 # c.27.1 : Pye

Houghton Poultry Research Station's pioneering research in poultry diseases has saved the industry millions of pounds over the past 25 years and kept chickens and eggs as a cheap food source. But now Government cuts means it must shut down its laboratories and chicken houses as it halves the size of the 80-acre complex. However some outside funding has been obtained and they are opposing moves to transfer operations to Berkshire. 85 11 29a

Hundreds of Muslims in Cambridge regularly make their way to the mosque, tucked discreetly away near bustling Mill Road. Leading the gathering was the Imam, an Egyptian PhD student in chemistry at Cambridge University. He spoke in Arabic and English, stressing the importance of unity among Muslims. Many of the congregation were of Middle-Eastern origin but there were also several Orientals and English people. They were predominately in the 25 to 40 age range and listened intently. Upstairs a woman followed the service alone, out of sight. After 40 minutes the meeting ended, as it had begun, with a reading from the Koran. 85 11 29b # c.83

December 1985 CEN

1985 12 02
Cambridge is counting the cost of a night of violence. Three policemen were injured and 13 police vehicles damaged during a three-hour confrontation with up to 300 youths in East Road. Tempers flared and scuffles broke out as would-be revellers tried to enter the former Thakes cycle shop for a party with a disco and a band. The building had been purchased by the County Council and was due to be flattened to make way for a new dual carriageway, but the scheme was scrapped. Now it may be demolished as soon as possible 85 12 02 # c.34.6

A plan devised by Grosvenor Estates could add a third to the size of the Grafton Centre. The extension would be built around a central mall at right angles to the present one using the site of the present bus interchange and the land now occupied by the yard of Coulsons, the building contractors. It would have a two-storey roof park for 350 cars with a number reserved for shop staff. Coupled with the opening of Habitat in Fitzroy Street it would strengthen the appeal of the area against that of Cambridge's traditional city centre. 85 12 02a # c.49.66

After more than a century of almost unremitting dreariness the Methodist Tabernacle in Newmarket Road is being pulled down. The hideous old bulk of a chapel wore sunlight like a shroud. The foundation stone was laid in 1876 but within 14 years the congregation shrank and in 1909 there was talk of selling it. It struggled on and in 1941 was given over to the storage of furniture. Later it became the Carioca nightclub and its face daubed with appalling blue and orange paint. Worse was to come: the lower part was turned into a take-away kebab joint. Fire gutted the old pile in 1983 and its doors finally closed for ever 85 12 02b # c.83

The Andrew Murden Centre for the Unemployed and Unwaged is not just for the bored and depressed. Its main aims are to give advice on welfare rights and organise activities to stop people going stale in body and mind. But too few of Cambridge's 4,000 jobless are aware of it. The Centre would like more women to make use of the crèche and to expand their work with schools and youth groups. But there is not significant youth unemployment and the few out of work often join Government training schemes. 85 12 02c # c.32.1

1985 12 05
An old blacksmith's smithy in Trumpington is to be demolished to make way for new offices. It was not a listed building and the scruffy corner would inevitably be developed at some time. But protestors say a two-storey office development would take away the character of the corner of Church Street and High Street in what was essentially a village-type area and be at the expense of a piece of village history. 85 12 05

1985 12 10
Morley Memorial Primary School has been waiting for improvements since the beginning of the Second World War. It suffers from leaking roofs and a totally inadequate school hall. Now parents fear that the County Council plans to sell property at 100 Blinco Grove for building development. It is densely populated area with virtually no playing space and the school uses the grounds for infants' sports, nature trails and other functions. Parents hope to form an action committee to oppose the suggestion. 85 12 10 # c.36.5

Council chiefs are setting up an 'action squad' to in a bid to defuse mounting mob tension on the streets of Cambridge following a violent clash outside the former Thakes cycle shop on East Road. At a noisy meeting in the Guildhall more than 100 youngsters spelled out a simple desperate plea – give us somewhere to meet. Now the councillors will try to find a disused warehouse for them to convert into a late-night venue or set up an 'open house' building which they could use during the day. The unemployed workers' centre could also be put to more intensive use. 85 12 10a # c.69

More than 200 young people entered the Rob Roy pub in Chesterton Road to hold a late-night disco. Sixty-five police prevented any more entering as toilet rolls, a chair and other pieces of furniture rained down. As there were no lights on, except for the disco light and with a crowd in excess of 200 police decided it would be unsafe to enter and clear the building. The pub had not been derelict but undergoing refurbishment and considerable damage was done to the upstairs room. It followed confrontation with several hundred youths outside the former Thakes cycle shop in East Road 85 12 10b # c.69

An urgent review of police manning levels has been ordered amid warnings that the Cambridgeshire force is being stretched too far. Uniformed officers work on average twelve hours overtime a month with CID putting in slightly more and these payments have pushed the budget into the red. Another 100 officers are needed just to bring numbers into line with other forces nationwide. This does not cover the commitment to Molesworth which alone will cost £2 million this year. 85 12 10c

1985 12 11
Cambridge University is threatened with a £4 million grant cut which would force it to leave vacancies unfilled. Government plans to trim cash for higher education would curtail courses designed to keep pace with high technology and threaten research projects with industry, the Council of the Senate warn. Senior academic staff are involved in a campaign to stop the cuts and will be lobbying for the support of local MPs as well as those who have been at the university 85 12 11 # c.36.9

Duxford airfield new hangar – 85 12 11a
Cherry Hinton community centre on recreation ground scrapped – 85 12 11b
Regent Hotel – formerly Glengarry – refurbished – 85 12 11c # c.27.4

1985 12 12
The old 100-year-old Kinema bingo hall in Mill Road, which is currently on the market for £170,000, may be restored and turned back into a cinema to meet the fast-growing demand for the showing of old-time and specialist films. The City Council, who owns most of the property nearby, think it could become a major tourist attraction helping to tempt visitors away from the city centre 85 12 12 # c.79.9

Haddenham Farmland Museum has been supported by Lada Cars through Ideson's Motors for the last five years. Now they are seeking fresh backing. The Museum started life in 1969 when one of the Delanoy's three sons, Craig, collected a few bits and pieces and charged his friends to see them. Little did the family realise how it would expand from those humble beginnings. Hundreds of people have donated exhibits and thousands of pounds have been collected for charity. 85 12 12a

Nancy II steel barge built for Banham's – history 85 12 12b # c.26.3

St Neots annual Christmas Livestock show will be held at the cattle market in Huntingdon Street for the last time. It was started in 1883 and continued even during the war years when the sale of fat stock for killing was not allowed and pheasants and other meat was sold instead. Up until 1953 it was run by Ekins but then the St Neots Christmas Show Society was formed. The market will continue to be held every Thursday until March 31st but then the site will be redeveloped 85 12 12c

1985 12 13
Sinclair Research HQ Willis Rd bought by county council – 85 12 13

Snowy Farr's name and face are instantly recognisable all over the world. The self-styled 'King of the Roads' in his outrageously colourful clothes and with his menagerie of animals has become a regular feature of Cambridge Market Place over the years. It was 1971 when Snowy, now 66, started collecting money for the blind. Over the years he had built up a collection of cats, mice, rabbits, birds and his faithful dog, Spot, which are all transported in a colourful home-made cart built round a bicycle. The former road sweeper has appeared on television, in newspapers and magazines as far away as Canada, Hong Kong and even Australia. 85 12 13a

1985 12 16
Military convoys allegedly carrying nuclear weapons regularly travel through or close to Cambridge according to 'Polariswatch', a branch of CDN. They say an 11-vehicle convoy travelled along the northern bypass on its way from Scotland to RAF Honington in Norfolk. This is certain to annoy Labour and Liberal city councillors who have fought a long anti-nuclear campaign. They may call together all local peace groups to seek their views on a ban on the transportation of radioactive materials 85 12 16 # c.45.8

1985 12 17
Cambridge's Victoria Cinema has been sold to make way for a new Marks and Spencer store. The prime market square site has housed the city's largest cinema since 1931 and underwent a major refurbishment following a fire two years ago. The sale will leave Cambridge with two other cinemas, the ABC 1 and ABC 2 complex and the Arts Cinema. But there are plans to change the old Kinema bingo hall in Mill Road back into a cinema 85 12 17 # c.76.9

1985 12 18
Mare Fen, 40 acres of wet grazing meadow near Swavesey which has been purchased by the County Council, will be maintained as an important refuge for rare wildfowl. But it could also be used for skating, marking the rebirth of a well-established local tradition. Friends of the Earth are pleased that its wildlife value has been recognised but are disappointed that the adjoining Cow Fen has now been drained to increase agricultural yield 85 12 18

Robert Sitton and Alfred Mothersole commenced business on the Newmarket Road in 1945 repairing and refurbishing motor vehicles. They moved to Abbey Street in 1952 and from there to premises at the corner of Coldham's Lane and Henley Road in 1973. They were the first in Cambridgeshire to install a stoving oven for the refinishing of car paintwork. 85 12 18a # c.26.48

Bil Cox, p1

1985 12 19
A new village for about 4,000 people may be built between Milton and Quy to ease the population explosion pressures which are expected to peak around 2000. The City Council is likely to support the idea because there is no land available for development within Cambridge. South Cambs planners say that unless decisions are taken soon many villages may become strained to their limits by new development. But others have doubts about the need for a new village and no specific location has been selected. 85 12 19

1985 12 20
Cherry Hinton level crossing fight against half-barriers has been lost – 85 12 20
Littleport hermit Bill Cox convicted of hiding dead mother – 85 12 20a

1985 12 21
St Neots received its best-ever Christmas present with the opening of the new bypass. Soon after the cutting of the tape heavy lorries and cars which have made walking in the town centre a misery, were travelling down the new stretch of road. Campaigners who have been trying for 15 years say it will make life easier and far more pleasant for all who live, work or shop in the town centre. David Huckle, one of the men who campaigned for the bypass from the beginning was a guest at the opening and viewed the bypass in a VIP coach before traffic was allowed along it. 85 12 21

A row of Tudor cottages at Pampisford which were literally falling apart and patched up with unsightly corrugated iron have been restored to their former glory. They were in such an appalling state that they had to be jacked up so new foundations could be put in. The oldest cottages in the villages, they have been renovated using reclaimed materials. Inside they are full of character with original salt-drying racks in the inglenook fireplace. 85 12 21a

1985 12 23
Christmas is just another day for some residents of the Church Housing Association in Willow Walk. But despite the distinct lack of enthusiasm Captain Andrew Entecott and his helpers are busy at work. The cook will be dishing up turkey and all the trimmings for 36 men and gifts will be presented in the afternoon. The Cyrenian's home in Short Street is like a big happy family and they have planned a Christmas meal. But many homeless people will be wandering the streets with nowhere to go 85 12 23 # c.32.9

1985 12 27
The Kinema in Mill Road was built in 1882 when it was called the Theatre Royal. It was also known as Sturton Town Hall and Gladstone Liberal Club and staged shows until 1885. It was taken over by the Salvation Army who were ousted in 1910 then renamed the Empire, showing variety and pictures until 1916 before changing its name to the Kinema. It was badly supported and became a bingo hall. Now it may be restored as a cinema with a café, bookshop and entertainment complex. It is owned by the Sturton Town Hall Liberal Company, named after Joseph Sturton, a powerful Liberal who bought land in the area in 1897 and built houses for poor people. 85 12 27 # c.76.9

1985 12 30
Alan Wyatt has turned three rooms of his house at Landbeach into a musical museum devoted to the melodies of the Victorian era 85 12 30

Motorway signs, p1
A45, p4

1985 12 31
Carioca Club demolition – 85 12 31

1986 Cambridge Evening News

I have copies of these stories

January 1986 CEN

1986 01 02
The traditional Gang Show epitomises the spirit of the Scout and Guide movement. Since its inception in Cambridge in 1971 it is a well-established event and almost 70 scouts and guides will be on stage with a back-up team of 40 more. The production will include lots of good old material from Ralph Reader, the founder of gang shows, who saw the Cambridge production just before his death in 1984, as well as plenty of new material including an Irving Berlin tribute using costumes worth £400 - + 01

1986 01 03
Local firms such as Pye Unicam, Barnwell Engineering and Cambridge Instruments have shown that there are rich pickings in exporting to Eastern Bloc companies. Now two new companies have been established to assist exports. Anglia Instruments deals in Hungary, Bulgaria and Russia on behalf of several small firms including Techne at Duxford, while Anglo-Polish Exhibitions based at Histon provides a complete back-up service to firm who want to exhibit at major trade fairs in Poland. 86 01 03a

1986 01 06
Dearer car parking charges in Cambridge will drive motorists to shop in other towns, says a Director of Joshua Taylor. At Peterborough the charge for four hours is 60p compared to £1.50 in Lion Yard. The Grafton Eastern park costs just 50p for three hours which is unfair to city centre traders. But Lion Yard prices are likely to increase to 30p for the first hour following the end of a 'freeze' on charges which has been operating for the past 16 months to try and attract more shoppers 86 01 06

The great Cambridge Rock Group Competition has attracted 42 bands. They include Pressure Drop who specialise in blues and jazz, Grass Asylum and Double Yellow Line who describe their music as pop, The Beeno who simply 'rock' and Tyrade a heavy rock outfit. Wild Party Productions whose musical styles embrace both rock and pop will also perform as well as the Harvest Wood Quintet who are into contemporary rock music. President Regan Is Clever and Sardines in Red Striped Dresses will also take part. 86 01 06a # c.69

1986 01 07
Cyril Ridgeon began his tiny timber business in one room in St Barnabas Road in 1911. Now the company is celebrating 75 years of trading. During the war they stored timber on behalf of the Government sending supplies down to London to repair blitz-damaged houses. The firm opened branches at March and Saffron Walden and is now planning to move its Tenison Road and Cavendish Road operations to a new site on Coldham's Lane 86 01 07 &a 86 01 02 # c.23

Premier Travel history – 86 01 07b & c # c.26.46

1986 01 08
Over 90-per-cent of jobless youngsters were offered work after completing a Cambridge youth training scheme. They held an exhibition of their skills including craftwork, engineering, electronics and hospital care But Government cutbacks in funding from the Manpower Services Commission mean the course could be slashed heavily. Youngsters spend 13 weeks on study and the rest with their employer. They receive £27.30 a week from the MSC – a sum dubbed as 'slave labour' - but employers can make up their pay to a higher figure. 86 01 08

1986 01 13
Chivers-Hartley, the Histon-based jam and jelly making firm employing 700, is being sold but all jobs are safe. A jam-making plant has stood on the site since 1873 when William and John Chivers first started boiling jam in a farmhouse during a fruit glut. They built it into a thriving business which at one point employed 1,200 on the 50-acre site. It has been part of the giant Cadbury Schweppes group for more than 20 year and is being sold as part of a management buy-out of its foods and beverages division. 86 01 13 86 01 14a

Lola Cars moved to Huntingdon in 1971 having started in a lock-up garage in Bromley. It is now the second most successful small racing car maker in the country with plans to build 75 cars this year. The workforce has doubled. People associate motor racing with glamorous surroundings but at Huntingdon they have skilled labour, a good road network and two race circuits nearby. The Lola works team is run by Hollywood star Paul Newman and the cars are driven by ex-Formula 1 world champion Mario Andretti. 86 01 13a

1986 01 14
Peace and quiet is on the way at last for hundreds of people living in the York Terrace and Sturton Street area. For years residents have complained about noise and nuisance caused by huge petrol tankers making frequent visits to the depot, saying their homes have been damaged by the vehicles turning into the narrow streets. Now the Department of the Environment have given the Phoenix Petroleum company three years to move its fuel storage and distribution depot from the middle of the area. 86 01 14

1986 01 15
Traffic chiefs in talks over A604 telephones and lay-bys – 86 01 15

1986 01 16
The closure of J.F. Penning's grocers shop in Saffron Walden after 60 years will mark the end of an era. The shop has become a byword for courtesy, counter service and a charm belonging to a bygone age. It was a cheesemonger's before the First World War, then became a high-class grocery shop offering a delivery service to customers. But there has been a fall in general trading because of people leaving the area and younger residents prefer to go to cash and carry stores. Now the two brothers who run the shop in Market Street have decided to retire. 86 01 16

Willingham Church Heritage Appeal Fund is finally closed. Early in 1981 a church architect discovered that the 14th-century building needed a new roof for the south aisle and major repairs to the stonework. Since then there has hardly been a month when there has not been a concert or sponsored walk, supper evening or slide show to raise funds. Villagers have slimmed for the church, played darts and eaten a five-course Elizabethan meal with their fingers. Now everyone who helped has been invited to a thanksgiving service. But it seems the bell tower is also in need of repair and a new appeal may be started. 86 01 16a

1986 01 17
A 17th-century pub at Great Abington had gone up for sale at £180,000. The Three Tuns in the village High Street has been a pub since 1620, although experts think it might originally have been the manor house on Abington Hall Estate. It is only in the last 20 years that the pub has been a free house. At one point it was owned by the People's Refreshment House Association before being taken over by the Carrington's brewery. Owners Stanley and June Read, who bought the pub five years ago and have restored much of it, are planning to retire to Norfolk 86 01 17

1986 01 20
The Victoria County History is a major work of reference. So far eight volumes on Cambridgeshire have been published and two more are scheduled. But financial cut-backs may delay progress – 86 01 20

1986 01 22
No developments companies have expressed interest in building and running a small row of shops on the junction of Buchan Street and Kings Hedges Road. The restricted site would be expensive to build and not yield high rents. In addition there has been extensive publicity about possible supermarket building schemes in the area. The city council may build the shops itself in the hope of finding tenants. 86 01 22

A lollipop patrol crisis is posing a road safety risk to Cambridge youngsters. Three city schools have been left without crossing patrols after staff have left but the County Council has run into major problems recruiting people to take their place. They have advertised and put notices in shop windows appealing for unemployed housewives or active pensioners able to spare ten hours a week for pay of £2.13 an hour. The principal worry is at Mayfield School as children of junior and infant age need to cross the extremely busy Histon Road. 86 01 22a

1986 01 23
Major structural faults have been discovered in St George's Church, Chesterton – less than 40 years after it was built. The front wall is leaning away from the roof and cracks have been found on the arches inside the building. An architect's inspection has advised that the problem areas are roped off, but services are still continuing as normal. Built in 1938, St George's was the last Cambridge church to go up before the war. It was designed by Henry Lyon, the man responsible for the chapel at Sidney Sussex College. 86 01 23 # c.83

Traffic 25 years ago – 86 01 23a & b # c.26.48

1986 01 25
Cambridge City Council wants to increase central area parking as cheaply as possible and is prepared to do a deal with a developer to sell or lease the large area of waste land next the Lion Yard car park. Possibilities include an eight screen cinema complex to be developed by an American company, offices, houses and flats, a luxury hotel or shops linked to St Andrew's Street by moving walkways. Some of the schemes are very attractive visually but the ones that could give the council the best returns are amongst the ugliest. 86 01 25 # c.49.67

Two new entertainment facilities may be established in Cambridge. A site on the former cattle market has been allocated as a late-night rock music and young people's entertainment venue. It is well away from houses and has ample car parking facilities. The former Kinema cinema on Mill Road is to be surveyed to see if it can be restored to its former Edwardian music hall glory. The Kinema which had been used as a bingo hall, closed down before Christmas 86 01 25a

Sandy Richardson, Stowbridge Farm, Stretham – caterer – 86 01 25b

1986 01 28
Hauxton villagers were told of the impressive safety record of FBC Chemicals which uses toxic gases phosgene and chlorine. But some still feared a major industrial accident after they learned that a small amount of isocyonate – the chemical at the centre of the Bhopal disaster – was stored at the plant. They asked for detailed instructions on what to do if the emergency siren sounded.86 01 28

Tansley Typewriter Company, which has been selling and servicing typewriters for over 60 years, has made a successful transition into the world of computers. Their showroom in Longstanton High Street features the Olivetti MP24 SP personal computer with a 20 megabyte hard drive. The company has a team of four engineers who travel as far as Peterborough and Bedford to carry out installations and also service electronic typewriters and word processors 86 01 28a

1986 01 30
Hard-up Cambridge nurses are having to moonlight in pubs and cafes just to make ends meet. Some even go on 'sick' leave so they can hire themselves out to nursing agencies for extra cash. A staggering 40 per cent of nursing staff working full-time earn less than the official poverty level of £111.60 a week and some qualify for rent rebates. Nurses who are exhausted and burnt-out cannot provide the quality of care they should and fine staff are being forced out of the profession, they claim. 86 01 30

Hundreds of Cambridge students are being forced to live in dirty, cramped rooms without heating. Cambridgeshire College of Arts and Technology has had an accommodation problem since the early 70s as language students and young professionals can pay much higher rents. Anger at housing shortages boiled over in 1973 when the health authority hostel at Owlstone Croft was occupied by squatters. Since then CCAT have had temporary use of the Mill Road hospital site but would like to build a hostel for 1,500 students. 86 01 30a

Prices of terraced houses in the Cambridge area have gone up by 25 per cent in a year and now average £36,346. Flats and maisonettes have risen 20 per cent to £28,885, while semi-detached houses are up 14.2 per cent at £40,700. But detached homes have increased by only 5.2 per cent to £58,927. First-time buyers are borrowing around £28,600 on incomes of about £10,960. Funds are easily available and people still consider that buying a house is probably one of the best investments they can make, says the Halifax Building Society 86 01 30b # c.06

1986 01 31
A little-used chapel at Houghton has undergone a transformation to become a residential retreat enabling groups to get away from it all and to enjoy the local countryside as well as worship. The exterior of the 121-year-old nonconformist chapel is unchanged but inside it now has six bedrooms, kitchen and catering facilities for up to 32 people paying £3.30 a night. The pine pews have been converted into refectory tables 86 01 31

The Gordon Fraser Gallery owes its international fame to very humble beginnings at a tiny shop in Portugal Street. There was little passing trade at the newly modernised bookshop-cum-art gallery opened by Gordon Fraser in 1936. But amongst the merchandise on sale were original Picasso etchings and drawings by Matisse and James Thurber. The breakthrough came during the war when he commissioned local artists to produce cards which were printed in Bedford. It was there that the Gallery grew into a major force on the greetings card scene. 86 01 31a # c.64

February 1986 CEN

1986 02 01
Cherry Hinton railway crossing protest – 86 02 01

1986 02 03
Actors, actresses and directors arrived in Cambridge to mark the 50th anniversary of the Arts Theatre. Eleanor Bron, whose career started with the Cambridge Footlights, arrived first to be followed by Dame Peggy Ashcroft, Timothy West with his actress wife Prunella Scales and Judi Dench. Sir Peter Hall laughed with his old friend Trevor Nunn and was joined by Ian McKellan, the irrepressible Arthur Marshall and the broadcaster Richard Baker. The occasion was a unique recital devised by Dr George Rylands, affectionately known as 'Dadie' 86 02 03b & c # c.76

Prince Edward at Arts appeal launch 86 01 03

Ely Cathedral will make free passes available to residents when admission charges are introduced next month – 86 02 03a

At the newly-opened Mill Road amusement centre disco music is just audible above the muted electronic sounds and a handful of youths are shoving tokens into luridly-coloured machines. The maximum win is £3, half paid in cash and half in tokens which can be exchanged for prizes. One teenager says it gives him something to do instead of just hanging round the streets while other people pop in for five or ten minutes on their way from work or shopping. But most shoppers rarely glance in beyond the window display of china ornaments. 86 02 03d

1986 02 04
Memories of Stirling bomber that crashed near March in 1944
The Stirling bomber was on fire and out of control as it hurtled through the clouds on a direct line for the town of March in August 1944. Royal Australian Air Force pilot Jim Hocking bellowed to his crew to parachute out as the small town came into view. He choose to stay. The plane still had bombs on board and to let it hit the unexpected community would be catastrophic.The brave Queenslander, based at West Wratting airfield, guided his doomed aircraft past March and died as it plummeted harmlessly into the Wash. He was an extremely brave man who saved a terrific amount of people by his actions. He knew what he had to do and knew what was expected of him. The amazing thing about the incident is that March, the place Jim Hocking died to save, was the town the Australian pilot's grandfather had emigrated from in the 1890s– 86 02 04

1986 02 06
British Rail's new Sprinter multiple unit has uprated suspension, tinted windows and new livery. With their improved sound proofing, modern décor, heating systems and facilities for the disabled they are being introduced to replace existing units which are over 25 years old. The new service should encourage more people to use trains and ease pressure on the county's overloaded roads between Peterborough and Cambridge 86 02 06 # c.26.2

1986 02 07
Dozens of Sawston families were evacuated after a 24lb cache of explosives was discovered in a home. Most were put up for the night by other residents but 30 were taken to the Village College where camp beds were brought in and staff dished out tea and coffee. The industrial gelignite, some of it in poor condition, was thought to belong to an explosives expert who established a world record for demolishing 10 chimneys at Whittlesey. It was detonated in an open field by bomb disposal experts 86 02 07

Bar Hill – opinions of residents – 85 02 07a

1986 02 08
Plans have been revealed for a multi-million pound shopping centre on the outskirts of Cambridge. Marks and Spencer and Tesco have proposed a double superstore with park-and-ride facilities on land bounded by the M11 and Hauxton Road, Trumpington. A dual carriageway would connect the A10 to the privately-owned Clay Farm area which has already been identified for potential housing. 86 02 08 # c.49.65

1986 02 10
Record low temperatures plunged Mid Anglia into the ice age, sparking chaos on the roads. At Boxworth experimental farm experts predicted another February low of minus 12.4 degrees C (9.7F). The big freeze left broken-down cars and lorries littering roads. Many trucks would not start because of iced-up fuel lines and Murkett's 24-hour breakdown service said "In a word, its chaos" 86 02 10

1985 02 11
Cambridge Innovation Centre, designed to provide facilities and support services essential to small companies during their initial development, was opened by the Duke of Edinburgh at the Science Park. For three companies, Cambridge Robotics, Torus Systems and Prelude Technology Investments it represents expansion from previous Science Park premises. Altek Automation and Data Analysis and Research have come from outside Cambridge while Synoptics, which is involved in image processing, has been established by two Cambridge University academics. 86 02 11a # c.27.1

1986 02 13
Cambridge people have zealously guarded their rights to grass horses and cattle on the city's commons. But now a 22,000 per cent increase in charges may finally drive the stock off. The cost of grazing animals on Midsummer Common, Coe Fen, Sheeps Green, Laundress Common and Coldham's Common will go up from 22p – which just covered administration – to £50 a season to reflect the cost of fencing and the pinder's time. Animals which should not be on the common are taken to the animal pound near Fort St George and owners soon asked to pay for food and the cost of keeping them 86 02 13

Mary Greene artist – article 86 02 13a # c.63

Cambridge College of Further Education has increased rapidly and now has nearly 1,000 full-time together with 3,000 part-time and evening students. The expansion is due to the rise in unemployment, the need to provide course places quickly and vocational courses being moved from the CCAT. But it has to operate on six sites around the city and struggles with poor-quality accommodation, lack of student facilities and duplications of materials. Options include a takeover of the Manor Community College, a new building on the Brunswick Site or a new college on the city outskirts. But none are likely in the near future 86 02 13b # c.36.7

1986 02 14
Old Addenbrooke's Hospital may become great museum of science and industry 86 02 14

1986 02 17
Farmworkers are pressing for a 60 per cent pay rise to bring them in line with industrial workers. They want a minimum wage of £140 for an ordinary farmworker, up from the present basic rate of £89.70, together with a reduction in the working week from 40 to 25 hours. Their productivity is the best of any industry in Britain with an acceptance of technological change and the introduction of new working methods. The claim would only affect the 22 per cent of farms that actually employ labour and these were the very large farms that could afford the increase, the Union claims. 86 02 17

Clifton Industrial Estate started in 1982 with the City Council leasing the old cattle market site to Dencora Securities Ltd who built the industrial units. Now they are constructing a modern hi-tech research and office complex on the Cherryhinton Road frontage with considerable emphasis on landscaping to provide an attractive working environment. From specialist electronics to every day motor parts, car valeting services to furniture upholstery it has a wide range of industries providing several hundred jobs for a large variety of skills. 86 02 17a & b # c.27.1

1986 02 18
Manea farmer Philip Barnes has spent almost a decade perfecting a cycle for his farm horses to ride. His unique 'Horsical' which relies entirely on good old-fashioned giddy-up power, really works. Jester the cart horse plods along on a moving platform connected to a gearing system which turns the hefty wheels of the vehicle and enables it to go for longer journeys at higher speeds. But no-one in the village seems particularly bothered by it 86 02 18

1986 02 19
A three-ton bridge was lifted high into the sky at Saffron Walden before being lowered on to the town's common. The bridge was built in 1906 to commemorate belatedly the Coronation of King Edward VII who was crowned in 1902. For 80 years it provided an access from East Street but was closed after a structural survey showed it to be unsafe. Repairs will cost up to £15,000 and it will take an 80-ton crane to return it to its original position 86 02 19

A Jack-Russell cross called Cherry is the first hearing dog for the deaf in Cambridge. She can tell her mistress if there is somebody at the door, if the cooker timer is ringing or the alarm goes off … the list is endless. It has taken months of training by the Hearing Dog for the Deaf Organisation and will wear a special orange lead and collar – a sign of a hearing dog. It will probably take many years before such animals become as common place as guide dogs for the blind and provide a vital service for deaf people 86 02 19a & aa # c.21.1

When Charles Kidman decided in 1876 to start up his own building business Britain was in the midst of a recession. Yet within 20 years he had built most of Romsey with its distinctive terraced houses plus a whole series of large contract work which enabled him to retire at the tender age of 40! Today, 110 years later, Kidman & Son is a thriving business with another Charles Kidman at the helm determined to maintain the family tradition of personal service coupled with flexibility. From their workshops in Victoria Road teams of bricklayers, carpenters and labourers are on hand for the craft of building 86 02 19b & c # c.23

1986 02 20
Plans to bulldoze Cambridge's Station Hotel to build offices and a car park have been rejected following a public inquiry. The developers said it was run down and not commercially viable. There was an overwhelming demand for more office space and it would have screened a large flour mill nearby. Residents said it would have dwarfed the station itself and been incompatible. The inspector said the building could not have the appropriate scale and character to fit into the setting of the listed station building. 86 02 20

1986 02 21
Trumpington blacksmith forge memories – 86 02 21

V-Cars of Perne Road have been appointed Cambridge's first dealers for Spanish company Seat's new car range. Prices for Ibiza models fitted with rear seat belts and laminated windscreen as standard equipment range from £3,995 up to £5,569 for the 1.5GLX. "The cars are exceptionally good value for money and I think we will sell a lot of them" said the manager. 86 02 21a

1986 02 26
Nineteen old people have died after a mystery flu bug swept through Ely's Tower Hospital. Six nurses – 10 per cent of the staff - are also off sick and the hospital has been closed to new admissions. Many of the patients are chronically ill and susceptible to diseases which fit people would simply shrug off in a day or so. But an administrator urged relatives not to panic and said that considering all the strains on the staff, they were doing miracles. Now the hospital it being visited every day by an infection officer. 86 02 26

Saffron Walden's Market Square fountain was surrounded by empty cardboard boxes and litter while barbed wire blockades and rabies warning posters covered Town Hall. The elegant balcony at Rumsey's old furniture shop was obscured by ragged tarpaulins and the public library was hidden behind roof-high piles of sandbags. It looked rundown, derelict and a prime example of urban decay. And that was how a television crew wanted it to be. A BBC TV team are filming "Boogie Outlaws", a black comedy set in the future and featuring leading actress Isla Blair. 86 02 26a

Josh Scott was the most successful predator of wild birds on the Welney Washes, killing 25 wigeon at one time with his punt gun. The birds were bagged in a potato sack and put on the train to London markets. If he could not find an injured duck he called at local pensioners' houses and told them where they might find it for their own pot. But in 1967 when Sir Peter Scott set up his bird sanctuary Josh accepted the job of warden and has become a legendary figure, feeding thousands of rare swans and geese in the evening shadows of deepest winter 86 02 26b & c

1986 02 27
Cottenham Hopbind pub renovation - 86 02 27

March 1986 CEN

1986 03 01
Over recreation ground scheme - 86 03 01
Histon cottage fire - 86 03 01 a

1986 03 03

Ely Cathedral introduced admission charges for the first time over the weekend and despite the fuss locally over the £1.50 fee, tourists paid up without a murmur of protest with £313 being raised on Saturday. Two visitors from Wolverhampton were happy to pay: “I don’t object at all. I object far more to paying £1.25 for a pint of bitter down here when it is only 60p where I came from”, one said. The Vice Dean, Canon Dennis Green said that for the first time they had been able to switch on the lights to brighten the gloom inside the Cathedral without worrying about the bill. 86 03 03

Rag week parade - 86 03 03a

The Cambridge Rock Group Competition has seen 41 bands battling it out for the prestigious pop title. The BBC's "Whistle Test" duo, Andy Kershaw and Trevor Dann joined the six regular judges for the final which included Colonel Gomez, Therapy, Strange Brew and Children of Some Tradition. The top two places were contested by Double Yellow Line, playing pure Wham and Duran Duran style pop and President Regan is Clever, a student group in the mould of Cambridge's own Perfect Vision who eventually took the title 86 03 03b

The sound of headmaster Freddie Kingdon's steel tips on the corridor floor of Co le ridge Community College used to strike fear in the heart of naughty lads. For he carried a cane up his shirt sleeves. "The boys decided how many whacks they would have", he recalled. Caning was like the confessional. Boys who were disobedient were caned and the whole thing was over and done with. Mr Kingdon, who was awarded the OBE for his services to education, has an infinite number of stories about Coleridge in the old time. He believed everybody has a hidden talent. Even the bully boys and thugs have a skill- but finding it was another matter. 86 03 03c

1986 03 04
Americans supplement

1986 03 05
Thriplow postmistress murderer sentenced - 86 03 04
Fire Brigade control centre computerised - 86 03 05

1986 03 06
Tesco Milton supermarket plan rejected - 86 03 06
Frost, p18

1986 03 07
Frederick William Hutchinson was born in U68 and studied engineering at Cambridge University. He founded the Cambridge Autocar Co., Ltd., of which he was Manager and Director. He was also concerned with the design of the aeroplane in _ 86 03 07

1986 03 08
Young people in Cambridge have come up with a revolutionary idea for a new late night rock music venue in the middle of the busy roundabout in Elizabeth Way. It is centrally situated and its underground location would cut down disturbance. But it would be expensive and there would be problems of access for emergency vehicles. Councillors think the former Cattle Market on Clifton industrial estate is a better option. If the venture failed the site could be converted back to industrial use with a smaller financial loss. But they have asked officials to make a feasibility study of both sites 86 03 08

1986 03 11
Holiday Inn plans for hotel and extensions Lion Yard car park welcomed – 86 03 11

Tiddlywinks players competed for the Prince Philip Silver Wink, the universities annual championship established by the prince in 1961. Cambridge University developed the now internationally-accepted rules in 1955. Each game lasts 25 minutes and there are five complete rounds to shoot. The most important skill is 'squoping' - the art of covering up winks. A Varsity match was established against Oxford University in 1958 but in this year's competition Cambridge was beaten by Southampton despite having a world record number of players to choose from 86 03 lla

1986 03 12
A family firm of bakers and confectioners, John E Wright and Son, has made a remarkable recovery. In August 1984 fire swept through their four-year-old bakery off Haddenham High Street causing thousands of pounds worth of damage. They had 30 wholesale customers they could just not supply and thought of giving up. But the bakery was ready for operation again after only eight weeks and their most recent shop in Newmarket, which includes a coffee and snack bar, opened in November 86 03 12 & a

1983 03 13
Facilities are so short in the tiny Essex village of Langley that once a week the bar of The Bull doubles up as a surgery. After lunchtime closing every Wednesday landlady Carol Anson clears away the glasses and strings up a curtain to divide the bar in two. Then one side is used by GP Dr John Drewer as a makeshift consulting room while the other is a waiting area. Locals know it is not wise to take especially personal problems for noise carries so easily. But the service is a boon to those who do not have transport to drive to his rooms at Newport. 86 03 13

1986 03 14
Holiday Inn asked for more money for hotel in Downing St - 83 06 14

The Cambridge Plate-glass Mutual Insurance Society which has helped traders for 135 years is to be wound up. Membership has shrunk to less than 30 as many local shopkeepers have given up trading and the large chain stores do not insure at all. It was formed in 1851 when plate glass was replacing small paned windows of the Georgian days. Then the most frequent cause of breakages was by a gas light but lately traffic accidents and vandalism have been the main problems. 86 03 14a # c.27.2

1986 03 17
St Bede's Roman Catholic School which has been under the threat of closure for eight months has been saved after a campaign by parents, staff and pupils which has been backed by prospective MPs. The number of children had been falling but now the plan is to take pupils from varying Christian denominations in a ecumenical school supported financially by Roman Catholic and Anglican churches. 86 03 17

Railway House Association provides accommodation for youngsters in houses on Mill Road bridge – 86 03 17a # c.32.9

1986 03 18
Two city libraries at are again under threat of closure, only years after a successful survival battle. Mill Road library is on the wrong side of the railway bridge while Milton Road library is only half-a-mile from Arbury Court. But Councillor Janet Jones describes the plans as disgraceful and says many children and elderly people will be devastated if Milton Road is closed. However Bar Hill and Milton villages are fast-growing and need some library facilities, a report says. 86 03 18 # c.77.4

1986 03 21
Motorists who shop around in Cambridge will find that a gallon of petrol varies in price by as much as 11p. Filling stations are awaiting instructions from oil companies on whether to slap on the Budgets 7½ p increase or whether to absorb it. The big Sainsbury's garage in Coldham's Lane is planning to hold pump prices at 173.7p for a gallon of four star. But The Granta Filling Station at Linton is being forced to follow BP's order and charge £184.4p 86 03 21

1986 03 22

Girl Guides escaped unhurt as fire swept through the Jubilee Lodge at Abbots Ripton where they were sleeping. The flames were fanned by strong winds and the blaze gutted the building, used by Guides at weekends. The organisers had practiced a fire drill hours earlier and the girls, all from the American base at RAF Alconbury, found refuge in the village post office next door 86 03 22

1986 03 24
Winds gusting up to 70mph brought chaos, killing one man, injuring others and causing thousands of pounds' damage. In Cambridge King's Parade was sealed off after material was dislodged from the chapel roof and an international computer exhibition at the University Centre was called off after windows and skylights were smashed. Duxford Museum closed after gales damaged a replica Spitfire and blew over a security man and a corrugated iron roof was ripped off the old Falcon Hotel ballroom in St Neots 86 03 24 # c.12

1986 03 25
Gale force winds continued to wreak havoc last night. At Wandlebury 75 trees were felled and frightened staff fled a Milton Science Park building as the winds ripped part of the roof off. At Littleport a caravan was smashed to pieces while others were blown over at the CT Caravans factory Newmarket. The wind also destroyed a large greenhouse in Fen Drayton and people living in Bures Court Haverhill had to be rehoused when a large crack appeared in the gable wall 86 03 25

April 1986 CEN

1984 04 01
Cambridge's colleges have always been a prime tourist attraction but this year, for the first time, parties will only be allowed in if they are accompanied by a Blue Badge Guide. There are 150 men and women who have passed exams and will lead about 4,000 tours in the coming season. They include the News managing director, Tony Durham who read history at Magdalene College and has lived in Cambridge for 25 years. "We have to provide a service for visitors and also serve the colleges who are under very great pressure from tourist traffic", he said. 86 04 01 # c.46.45

1984 04 02
Papworth Hospital, Britain's premier heart transplant centre, is to be replaced by the end of the decade. Health chiefs are considering upgrading the ancient buildings which date back 40 years to TB Isolation days, moving the entire hospital to Hinchingbrooke or rebuilding it on a quite separate site. An earlier suggestion that Papworth could be moved to the Addenbrooke's Hospital site has been put on one side because of the present congestion on the Hills Road site. Its major function is as a heart and chest disease centre, not a heart transplant unit and many of the heart physicians refuse to take part in the transportation programme 86 04 02

The threat of closure hanging over St Bede's – the only Catholic secondary school in Cambridge – has been officially lifted. A panel had suggested it should be closed from summer 1987 because of declining numbers of pupils but there were protests and legal doubts about closure. It now has an assured future as an ecumenical school in liaison with the Church of England. An assurance has also been given that there are no plans to close any other schools in the area. 86 04 02a

Drummer Street bus station – officially described as a 'disaster area' - is to have a major face-lift, the first since it was built 60 years ago. An island at the centre of the site with a number of small booking offices will be demolished and the central area refurbished. The aim is to tidy up one of the most prominent sites in the city centre, the one first seen by thousands of tourists. It currently has poor passenger facilities and operating conditions and is in urgent need of improvement. 86 04 02b

International singing star Roger Whittaker includes memories of his private life at Duddenhoe End near Saffron Walden in his autobiography 'So far, so good'. He claims that a few people subjected his family to malicious gossip and vandalism which included the demolishing of a children's tree house. This has surprised villagers who remember the Whittakers as a couple who did not mix a great deal and played no noticeable part in community life. “He seems to have made life here into something it isn’t in order to make the book more interesting”, one said. 86 04 02c & d

1984 04 03
Gordon Lister, a Scotsman, has been appointed as chief executive of Cambridgeshire County Council at a starting salary of £45,000 a year. He will take over from John Barratt who has held the post since the authority was formed during the nation-wide local government reorganisation in the 1970s. The job is difficult as no overall political party has overall control so every decision is fiercely contested and instantly becomes highly controversial 86 04 03 # c.35.1

The Queen Mother visited Newmarket’s National Horseracing Museum. Her helicopter landed at the racecourse and a crowd of 300 had gathered by the time her car pulled up in the High Street. Inside she impressed officials with her knowledge of sporting art displayed in the new gallery that she opened. Her Majesty also viewed an exhibition commemorating the legendary jockey Fred Archer. After lunch at the Jockey Club she smiled and waved at the crowd who braved threatening storm clouds to catch a glimpse of her 86 04 03a

1984 04 04
Young newly-weds looking to buy their first homes do not stand a chance anywhere in the area because of rocketing prices. Building Society chiefs are having to turn away tearful young couples who cannot afford the mortgage on houses for which the average asking price in Cambridge is now £57,000 and more than £61,000 in South Cambridgeshire. During the past two years house prices have rocketed by about 25 per cent. A small one-bedroomed flat now costs an average of £43,430, reaching inner-London levels. 86 04 04

When Dr Neville Silverston arrived as the local GP in Bottisham 27 years ago it was really like Dr Finlay’s Casebook. “There was just a little room in my house, with very few facilities” he said. And over at Fulbourn things were just as Spartan “I had to work from a caravan lit with gas”. Today there is a surgery at Bottisham and a health centre at Fulbourn. Grateful patients presented Dr Silverston with an engraved silver bowl on his retirement though he will continue his Magpas activities 86 04 04a

Ernie James is a real fen tiger and a marvellous storyteller. His remarkable memory is capable of making any fireside chat an enthralling yarn. Now he has set down his “Memoirs of a Fen Tiger”. The book describes his varied life as ferryman, mole catcher, wildfowler, eel catcher and ice skater in the tiny village of Welney where he lives with his wife in a little white-washed cottage overlooking the Ouse washes. He’s in demand by film makers and people who want to know about country crafts 86 04 04b

A store of photographs of fenland villages, unused for about 40 years, is now being catalogue by the Cambridgeshire Collection at the Lion Yard library.

The photographs were taken between the two wars by photographers at the Ely office of Starr and Rignall and have been stored in an outhouse there for the past 30 years by Mr Jack Casselden who took over the firm's old premises at Lynn Road in the 1950s. Many of the old negatives, some on glass and someone celluloid were destroyed. But he was able to save about 200 of them.They are photographs of scenes in and around the small towns of fenland, especially Soham, Ely & Littleport plus some groups of pictures of larger villages. Their value is that subjects are not usual ones, such as churches and monuments, but ordinary street scenes of which there is very little photographic record in most cases 86 04 04c

1984 04 08
Plans for a super cinema complex on the site of the main Post Office sorting office in Mill Road could see six separate cinema units each capable of holding 300 people together with a massive cycle parking space. Thorn-EMI says they need more screens and the Victoria Cinema site is unsuitable for conversion. The Post Office, which is currently building a new sorting office on the Clifton Industrial Estate, already has permission for housing or the site might accommodate Technical College students. 86 04 08 # c.76.9

Ups and downs of Clive Sinclair – 85 04 08a

1984 04 10
Cambridge City Council has abandoned its plans for the former Kinema in Mill Road. When the building closed as a bingo hall there were hopes it might be restored and reopened as an Edwardian music hall and become an out-of-centre tourist attraction. Others felt the site could be used for housing or demolished to allow the widening of Mill Road. Now a private entertainments company hope to reopen it as a specialist cinema. 86 04 10 # c.76.9

1984 04 11
"The Beast of St John's", Mr Bob Fuller, was the college's head porter for 39 years and one of its greatest characters. A former army sergeant-major, he was the last of the old-style head porters in Cambridge. He believed strongly in maintaining discipline and fined students £5 for playing loud music or having parties without permission. But the fierce-looking figure did not daunt female students after they were admitted to the college in 1982, despite Mr Fuller's dislike of the idea. His funeral service will be held at the college chapel 86 04 11 # c.44.5

A controversial plan may clear stalls from Royston Market Place to allow short-term parking. 86 04 11a

1984 04 14
A Cambridge department store has come up with an amazing cash off to help cure the city's traffic chaos. Eaden Lilley has pledged to pay £75,000 towards the cost of building an underground car park beneath Parker's Piece. The shop hopes it will prompt other major businesses to dig into their pockets too, felling shoppers are not prepared to leave their cars outside the city and travel to and fro by buses. Councillors say the offer was very magnanimous of the firm but the money would only fund about seven spaces in the estimated £4 million scheme 86 04 14

1984 04 15
Lakenheath F-111 bombers took park in the air strike against Libya overnight. The 1,600 mph planes carrying 37,000lbs of bombs left just before 2am, their thunderous roar waking residents all over the area. The strike was orchestrated from USAF Mildenhall, European command headquarters of the 'Silk Purse' squadron kept on permanent standby for just such an operation. In peacetime it is mainly a transit base for US personnel, home of the 513th Tactical Airlift Wing and a refuelling tanker centre. It also plays host to the electronic spy planes, U2s and the SR-71 'Blackbirds' 86 04 15

The historic Blue Boar Hotel in Cambridge closes forever on Saturday after 300 years. But the management is making sure they go out with more than a whimper. Food prices will be slashed, drinks sold at a discount and the customer who buy's the bar's last drink will be given a bottle of champagne. Trinity College is to build student rooms, a lecture theatre, wine bar and four shops on the site. The hotel's distinctive blue-and-white frontage with its shutters will be retained as will the graceful canopy that had to be repaired after being damaged by lorries. The famous Westmorland stone blue boar, which hangs in the reception room will be also incorporated into the new design 86 04 15a # c.27.4

Blue Boar hotel feature on closure – 86 04 15b & c # c.27.4

1984 04 18
Julia Booth returns to BBC Radio Cambridgeshire – 86 04 18

1984 04 22

Campaigners protesting against the threatened closure of Mill Road and Milton Road branch libraries are to lobby councillors when they visit the buildings. A report that says libraries are now in the wrong situation to give the best service to the community. But Mill Road local councillor Anne Campbell said "It is an essentially facility for the area. Many of the present users cannot visit the central library in Lion Yard". 86 04 22 # c.27.4

Cherry Hinton has a new health food and delicatessen shop. Peppercorns is stocked with all manner of rare and unusual foods with a range of Mexican, Chinese and Indian specialities. But one of the biggest sellers are the Newmarket sausages made to a traditional recipe at the Pork Shop. They also want to encourage local people to make jams, quiches and tarts that can be sold in the shop 86 04 22a

1984 04 23
Terrorism is set to cost Cambridge more than half a million pounds this summer as American visitors steer clear of Europe in the wake of continued violence. The loss from cancellations at the Garden House Hotel alone is around £250,000 as they have lost half of their business. Fears started with the murder of a tourist aboard the hi-jacked cruiser 'Achille Lauro' and were intensified by the bombing of a TWA aircraft near Athens, the Berlin night-club bomb and the aftermath of the American air attack on Libya 86 04 23 # c.46.45

Blackie Children's Books will be publishing a new title, 'Happy Birthday Topsy and Tim' to mark the 25th anniversary of the stories written by Jean Adamson. She insists on a surprising amount of research before writing each new title. The latest, involving horse riding, resulted in the visit to a riding school near Mildenhall where she took dozens of photographs as an aid to memory. Jean and her late husband Gareth set up home in Wicken nearly 20 years ago and her daughter Gabrielle has helped with a number of new titles. The first series is being reissued with modern illustrations to keep it abreast with the times 86 04 23a

1984 04 24
A plan to turn the old Tivoli Cinema in Chesterton Road into an arts and entertainment centre has been turned down as it would cause noise and traffic problems in the area.. It hoped to have featured films, fashion shows, music and exhibitions and would sometimes have remained open for music and ancing until the early hours. But residents opposed the idea. The Tivoli was for a long time used as a storage warehouse and some months ago was granted permission to be turned into a public house and restaurant 86 04 24

Employment at Cambridge's booming Science Park has gone up 30 per cent in a year and now stands at around 1,940 jobs. And this does not take account of the growing army of temporary and ancillary staff who keep the park cleaned, fed, serviced and patrolled. Four companies have left over the past year, but 17 new ones arrived. The biggest growth has been shown by Cambridge Life Sciences where staffing has risen from 28 to 50, LKB Biochrom, Napp Laboratories and Torus Systems. Further growth will come by GEC's Marconi Underwater Applied Research Laboratory and the London International Group which is building a research laboratory. 86 04 24a # c.27.1

County councillors may visit Germany to study local government – 86 04 24b

Michael Copley and Dag Ingram were undergraduates at Churchill College in the '70s. One had a recorder and the other borrowed £5 to buy an accordion and they started playing on Saturday morning in Lion Yard. One day they received a knock on the door from a policeman. He wanted to book them for a policeman's ball at Huntingdon. The Cambridge Buskers were on their way to stardom. They toured Germany and did a recording with Deutche Grammophon which made them pop stars. Now they have been invited back to Cambridge to play at the University Music Club 86 04 24c # c.69

1984 04 25
Two Cambridge libraries threatened with closure are facing their second crisis in eight years. The axe first loomed over Milton Road and Mill Road branches in 1977 but they were saved together with others in Milton and Stapleford. Now a report says they are old and in the wrong position to provide the best service. But Cambridgeshire Labour councillors have started a campaign to save them and Alliance councillors are organising a petition against closure. 86 04 25 # c.77.4

1984 04 26
St Wendred, a two-year-old bay filly could win £2,500 for the parish church at Exning if she is first past the post in her debut race. The horse has been loaned to the church as part of the celebrations of the parish's 1,350th anniversary as a Christian site. The Rev Cedric Catton, who named the horse after a Saxon saint who lived in the village, has chosen ecclesiastical colours of red and purple quarters with green and white striped sleeves. Exning has strong racing connections with Lester Piggott amongst its residents. 86 04 26

1984 04 28
Station Hotel could be demolished for an office block – 86 04 28
Heidelberg link – 86 04 28a & b # c.35.7

1984 04 30
Britain's first Japanese boarding school opened at Herringswell Manor. The damp British weather and flat countryside has proved a culture shock for the 190 Japanese pupils aged between 10 and 18. They receive a similar education to British children but the school day also includes prayers and the study of Buddhism. A traditional Japanese temple is being constructed of wood with a copper roof which will be used for prayers and martial arts training. English visitors are welcome to watch tea ceremonies, flower arranging and other activities 86 04 30

Dickerson to sell frontage on A10 Landbeach – 86 04 30a

1986 May CEN

1986 05 02
Cambridgeshire is heading for 'disaster' unless more cash is pumped into its over-stretched police force. The county needs at least 120 officers before 1990 as crime is rising and there is a real need to crack down on drug trafficking and to step up the police presence on the streets. A decade of financial restraint has had its effect upon the efficiency: officers are already working beyond their reasonable capacity and to demand more is to demand the impossible, a report claims 86 05 02

The Cambridge-based Mason's News Service has won a unique contract to produce a new Chinese newspaper – the first to be published outside China. They will be responsible for the editing, design and printing of the English-language paper which is published by the Peking-based 'Economic Daily', the country's most influential newspaper. It will contain a digest of the main news stories in China as well as articles written specifically for European readers 86 05 02a # c.04

World Video, an Ely studio, has become a magnet for pop groups like Karman Jive, charging £250 for a three-minute video. They also produce their own video shows like 'Dennis the Fire Engine', a series devoted to children while Dick Spendlove, whose mahogany Nottingham-accent tones are heard announcing train arrivals at Cambridge station and doing the Saturday Show at Radio Cambridgeshire, has provided the commentary on a tape devoted to steam trains. 86 05 02b

1986 05 03
The tanner, the florin, the 10 bob note and the much-missed threepenny bit are all part of history now – and it's hard to feel romantic about the new £2 coins. Only available from the post office, they are the first to be struck to commemorate a sporting event (the Commonwealth Games in Scotland) and will be produced until the end of the year when the Royal Mint will decide whether there is enough demand. Many Cambridge people dislike them: "I'll have to get a bigger purse" said ice cream seller Toni Crook while Leonard and Betty Megginson say it looks 'foreign'. But some feel they are more handy and don't fray or tear like notes 86 05 03

1986 05 06
St Ives Corn Exchange might be on the market. The building, which fronts the Market Square, comprises a large hall, kitchen, a lounge bar and the Cromwell Room. It is used for civic functions, wedding receptions and sales. St Ives Town Council, which spent £100,000 refurbishing it a decade ago, are seeking advice as to its value. London property consultants think it could be turned into a shop and offices. 86 05 06

Prior Crauden's chapel, Ely, refurbishment – 86 05 06
Science Park catering centre – 86 05 06a

1986 05 07
Carioca Club & City Limits pub arsonist convicted – 86 05 07 # c.34.75

1986 05 08
Panic-stricken callers are jamming the switchboard of Addenbrooke's Hospital asking if they can be tested for signs of radioactivity after the Chernobyl nuclear reactor disaster. A monitoring service has been set up for people who have visited Eastern Europe and fear they may have been contaminated. But most of the calls are from Cambridge people who have not been abroad. Scientists assure them there is no cause for alarm and environmental health officials say it is unnecessary to test milk and water supplies in the city 86 05 08 # c.21.1

Territorial Army medic unit formed – 86 05 08a # c.45.8

1986 05 09
Pear Tree pub Bassingbourn jokes etched on windows – 86 05 09

Brinkley post office has been voted the Best Village Shop of the Year in Cambridgeshire. Almost every inch of Jackie Fane's counter, shelf and wall space is taken up with produce ranging from crab thermiodore and trout to seeds, sunglasses and scissors. The Community Council has also judged Les and Janet Reinemann of Haslingfield as Best Village Shopkeepers with Mr B. Patel of the Mace Stores Bassingbourn and Mr A. Garner of The Stores, Great Gidding, close behind. 86 05 09a

1986 05 12
George Clarke is retiring after 26 years as verger of Great St Mary's church. He first came to the church as a choirboy in the 1920s and until war broke out rang the bell for curfew every night and wound the church clock. As verger he has been guide and mentor to five vicars, fixed everything from plumbing to carpentry and led the processions at services with military authority and style. Now his devotion has been rewarded with an Honorary MA from the University 86 05 12

1986 05 13
American servicemen missed the chance of seeing the Beatles perform at a club on Mildenhall air base in the early 1960s. The man responsible for hiring performers thought the group was too expensive – at £30 for the night. Dusty Miller did book other stars for the Galaxy Club including Johnny Cash, Matt Monroe and Engelbert Humperdinck – then known as Jerry Dorsey. He also appeared at Lakenheath base along with Freddie and the Dreamers, Jim Reeves and up-and-coming comedians Bob Monkhouse and Des O'Connor 86 05 13

1986 05 14
An amusement centre in Sidney Street has been approved by a government planning inspector, overturning the City Council's rejection of the scheme. It would attract responsible adult customers because of the type of machines installed, he believes. But councillors fear the decision will open the flood gates and that Cambridge will end up looking like Blackpool front. A similar centre opened in Mill Road last year. 86 05 14

1986 05 15
The City's Labour leader has called a meeting of all councils throughout East Anglia following the disclosure of a radioactive leak from the nuclear reactor at Sizewell and following the Chernobyl catastrophe in Russia. The city council, which has a strong anti-nuclear policy, has campaigned against the Sizewell B plans for six years. It fears that a major accident there could turn Cambridge into 'the Kiev of East Anglia': up to 100,000 people would die immediately and many more suffer lingering deaths 86 05 15

1986 05 16
Francis Pym may stand down as MP – 86 05 16
Margaret Thatcher hopes to remain as PM beyond next General Election, says Dennis in Cambridge – 86 05 16a
William Mortlock Palmer profile – 86 05 16b
John Bendall, cartoonist – profile – 86 05 16c # c.64

1986 05 17
Francis Pym is to retire from parliament after a quarter of a century. His career in politics has seen him reach the pinnacles of ministerial officer as Northern Ireland Secretary, Defence Secretary and Leader of the House of Commons. He took over as Foreign Secretary at the height of the Falklands crisis but was sacked by Mrs Thatcher in June 1983. Since then he has been in the vanguard of the Government's critics and become the figurehead of a new pressure group. Now over 65 he has decided not to stand for election again 86 05 17 # c.33

1986 05 19
Two men were shot as armed raiders attacked a post office van in Cherryhinton Road and stole several thousand pounds. The early morning attack sparked pandemonium amongst shoppers and local traders. Several rushed to help: the owner of a nearby carpet retail business raced out of his shop wielding a five-foot long vacuum cleaner pipe and tried to smash the windscreen of the robbers' car. But he ran for cover when he saw the men were armed. Police set up roadblocks and sealed off the city as the hunt for the raiders began 86 05 19

1986 05 20
Heavy horses paraded through Cambridge to the Cambridge-based British Percheron Horse Society's annual show on Midsummer Common, displaying the strength and docility that have won them the nickname 'gentle giants'. Enthusiasts travelled from as far as Cornwall and Sunderland for the only show dedicated entirely to the breed. The magnificent beasts are being crossed with donkeys to produce 'super mules' with extra size and strength. At first the Percheron mares and stallions were shipped out to Third World countries at great expense, but now the Society is experimenting with artificial insemination. 86 05 20

1986 05 21
Ely Cathedral has accepted a £500,000 windfall from an American charity, The John Paul Getty Junior Charitable Trust. But in return they have dropped controversial plans to build retirement homes on The Paddock. The money will be spent on urgent repairs to the fine collection of medieval buildings but not the Cathedral itself. The magnificent 11th-century building needs at least £4 million to save it for future generations and a 'Great Restoration' appeal has been launched with Prince Philip as its patron 86 05 21

1986 05 22
A new town for up to 18,000 people may be created as a cure for Cambridge's spiralling housing needs. It would include shops, pubs, leisure facilities and 150 acres of supporting industry. Two possible sites are the A10 Waterbeach-Landbeach area and the Caxton, Bourn and Swavesey area between the A45 and A604. One solution would be if the Ministry of Defence could be persuaded to leave either Waterbeach or Oakington bases. But County planners have rejected any new settlement south of Cambridge, fearing housing would be snapped up by M11 and railway commuters 86 05 22

1986 05 23
Fatal accident, car and milk tanker near Stretham roundabout – 86 05 23

1986 05 27
Sadness was mixed with a strange kind of relief when Valerie Pym learned that Mrs Thatcher had dismissed her husband as Foreign Secretary in 1983 at the height of the Falkland's crisis. Now as Francis Pym prepares to stand down as an MP, his wife can remember every step of his journey to the political heights. She had married a milkman – actually a dairy manager - and has helped her husband to victory in nine elections since he entered parliament in 1961 as well as taking part in local activities at their home near Sandy. She hopes things will be a little quieter after he retires. 86 05 27 & a

Thirty novels reflecting life in Cambridge over the past 75 years have been given to the Cambridgeshire Collection. They are the lifetime's work of Jack Overhill. Only three books have been published: 'Romantic Youth', a townsman's view of the university, 'The Miller of Trumpington' and 'The Snob' telling of life in Gothic Street. Two volumes that describe life in King Street in the 1930s came close to becoming a television serial in 1973. Most were written at the end of a busy day, in some cases on a typewriter balanced on his knees in an air-raid shelter. "Every word in them is true. I have remembered all that happened in my life. Now it torments me", says Jack 86 05 27 b & c

1986 05 28
More than 90 members of the Peyton family converged on Cambridgeshire for a family reunion. They came from England, America, Newmarket Zealand, Australia and South Africa to Isleham where in 1450 Thomas Peyton married the lord of the manor's daughter. They had stayed in the village until 1642 when hard times forced many to emigrate to America and Ireland. It was the third time the Peytons have gathered together in Isleham and a new church window was dedicated. 86 05 28

A May Ball is the most glamorous, ritzy event of the year and undergraduates don't mind paying for it. The most expensive double ticket for Peterhouse costs 125 guineas but includes dinner and free champagne all night. Trinity charges diners a more affordable £90. But the Ball everyone wants to go to is at Clare College where £220 has been paid on the black market by a couple desperate to attend. Its serene setting with the riverside gardens makes it the most romantic and Germany's 'Stern' magazine is covering it. 86 05 28a # c.36.98

St John's College May Ball once featured the Rolling Stones and the Beatles on the same night. This year they have booked Imagination and Ruby Turner together with the Coldstream Guards and rock group The Inspirational Choir. There will be free drinks and a buffet all night long although roast swan is no longer served. The 1,700 guests include 20 from the New York banking firm Goldmann Sachs and officers from the Sultanate of Oman will also be flying in. 86 05 28b # c.36.97

Cambridge-based chart-toppers Katrina and the Waves will be the star attraction at Trinity College May Ball while Sandie Shaw will also be returning to the college where she sang before in the swinging Sixties. Jazz and steel bands – even Scottish pipers – will play till dawn. An all-night casino, laser displays and cabaret acts will also ensure there is no time to be bored. But King's College stopped holding May Balls in the sixties: students decided they were too expensive and not the sort of entertainment they wished to be associated with. They now hold June Events instead 86 05 28b # c.36.97

1986 05 29
The Cambridgeshire cheese industry of the 1920s and 1930s was centred on Sutton remembered by Len Routledge - 86 05 29

Cromwell's House, Shelley Row – 86 05 29

Pop bands can't complain about a shortage of recording studios. Heading the list is Spaceward based at Stretham which has been frequented by an impressible array of stars including the Stranglers, who are currently recording their new album there. The 24-track studio uses an extensive range of highly sophisticated equipment and charges £450 a day. On a more modest scale are Kite Studio in Cambridge, Jupiter Recording Studio in Ickleton and Metronome Music in Chatteris which is run by Chris Dennis one of the founder members of Pink Floyd 86 05 29a

June 1986 CEN

1986 06 02
A competition to find the typist with the quickest fingers and the least mistakes on her paper attracted hundreds of entrants. There was one moment of drama when a typewriter suddenly went wrong, but it was quickly put right. Then they were away – not the click, click of the old, manual typewriters but the tap, tap of the modern electric keys as the typists beavered furiously at their test piece. The winner was Gillian Turton of St Ives with an amazing score of 90 words per minute. Runners up were Paula Carter and Ruth Purdue 86 06 02 & a

1986 06 04
The Commemoration Hall, one of Huntingdon's best-known landmarks, is crumbling and needs thousands of pounds spent on it. Even though funding has not yet been agreed immediate work has been started due to concern over masonry falling into the street,. The final repair bill for renewing and rebuilding a parapet and decorated cornice at roof level could be £10,000. The 145-year-old former Literary and Scientific Institute, now owned by the town council, is used as a meeting place. 86 06 04

Wilfreda Leakey was the original secretary of the Girton and Oakington Child Welfare Centre established in 1936. The warm, friendly atmosphere was a focus for village life where mothers could get expert help on child care from the visiting doctors and nurses. During the war it ensured children received supplies of food and vitamins and when toothbrushes were impossible to find they obtained a consignment that they sold for threepence each. A library lending books on child care to mothers and reading material for the youngsters started in the 1940s and continues to this day. Now she has written its history. 86 06 04a

1986 06 05
Milton Rectory may be turned into a temporary home for seriously or incurable ill children and their families. A steering committee is considering a total nursing and physiotherapy staff of 18, backed up with volunteers, with places for nine youngsters accompanied by at least one member of their family. Volunteers have started to clear the overgrown gardens but there are many months of planning and fundraising before the first family finds sanctuary there 86 06 05a

1986 06 06
Camtech's plans for two giant supermarkets at Arbury Camp would fit in with the Unex Group's proposal for a major supermarket and non-food shops on a retail park off Kings Hedges Road. But it would offer competition to other schemes currently under discussion. These are the giant Marks and Spencer / Tesco plan for two superstores, a 300-bedroom hotel and multi-screen cinema at Trumpington, Asda's ideas for a supermarket at the Cambridge Business Park on Milton Road and the proposed Tesco store in the Milton Park housing development 86 06 06

Cambridge's latest high-tech office block on the corner of Newmarket Road and Coldham's Lane is called The Zigzag because of the beams used in its construction. It has been designed by Roger Perrin Architects of Quayside whose associated firm Tartan Buildings are in charge of the development. The 13,000 sq foot building is due for completion next month 86 06 06a

1986 06 09
Police are hunting burglars who removed a leaded light window in St Mary's Church, Buckden then cut open a safe and made off with £15,000-worth of silverware. The haul includes four silver chalices, one of which dates from the 17th century, a christening shell, flagon and necklace chain. Two other raids took place nearby. At Great Barford church thieves got away with silverware and at Sandy Baptist Church a door was kicked in, but nothing was stolen 86 06 09

Gerald Coulson, Thriplow artist has first solo exhibition 86 06 09a & b # c.64

1986 06 11
Flame-haired Fergie, the Royal bride-to-be, dazzled and delighted onlookers when she arrived at Duxford with Prince Andrew. Wearing a stunning black and green outfit with a huge matching bow in her hair, Miss Sarah Ferguson stole the show as the Prince officially opened the new superhangar at the Imperial War Museum. It was the couple's second official engagement 86 06 11

Chesterton Mill, in French's Road was built in 1847 but has stood derelict for the last 30 years. The eight-sided smock mill was only partially successful when driven by wind so the sails were removed in the 1890s and it was subsequently driven by steam, suction gas and diesel. It has now been renovated and starts a new lease of life as the home of Cambridge public relations firm Beveridge Kartupelis. 86 06 11a # c.61

1986 06 12
Prince Edward battles to save Cambridge Youth Theatre – 86 06 12a # c.02 # c.76
Clare College library, p20

1986 06 13
Victoria Bridge is rusting away. The 97-year old structure has taken a battering from heavy vehicles over the years, despite a lorry ban and weight limit. It is in such a bad state of repair that it needs to be entirely rebuilt – a project which will cause chaos for 18 months. Engineers hope to keep traffic moving by repairing half the bridge at a time. All the county's other 2,000 bridges are also being inspected 86 06 13 # c.44.7

1986 06 14
Philips, the television and electronics giant, is seeking permission for the largest inner city housing development for years. They say plans for 49 flats on the former marina and boatyard beside Elizabeth Way Bridge together with 141 flats in the fields off Mariners Way will help solve the housing crisis caused by Cambridge's high-tech boom. There would be extensive waterfront landscaping and a riverside nature reserve to maintain the meadowland character 86 06 14a

North Arbury has been dubbed a 'no-go' area where residents fear to leave their homes at night. But on Saturday evening a mother placidly pushed her pram through the darkened streets, a toddler following at her heels. Women of all ages were walking or cycling with no signs of fear. An old woman, wearing a thick coat to keep out the damp, hobbled down the road past a couple of teenagers in summer whites headed for a Saturday night out while a couple of young lovers had found a courting spot on a quiet stretch of green. The only group missing seemed to be the police, who had publicly denied it was a 'no-go- area. And there was no sign of the vigilant groups residents had talked of setting up 86 06 14b

1986 06 16
Clown Prince Edward had a right royal audience as he trod the Cambridge boards for the last time as an undergraduate. To the amazement and delight of the Arts Theatre audience, his brother Prince Charles, cousin Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones and Prince Andrew's fiancée Sarah Ferguson, made a surprise visit to the comic show. They watched him caper through comic sketches, musical numbers and songs with the rest of the Cambridge University Light Entertainment Society cast then spent 45 minutes backstage before leaving for London 86 06 16

At the Ouse Valley Bait Company near Longstowe the cheerful staff seem hardly to notice the stench of rotting meat and the pungent ammonia produced by the 1,500 gallons of maggots produced each week for sale to angling shops. This requires the laying of huge numbers of eggs in the fly room, maintained at a steady 65 degrees F. Every time the door opens several dozen bluebottles make a flight for freedom. "I've only swallowed two in 16 years", the owner joked calmly, almost making it three as he spoke. 86 06 16a

1986 06 17
Hundreds of Cambridge families are plunging deeper and deeper into debt and despair. They are fighting a desperate daily battle for survival 'on tick' to keep pace with the city's high-cost lifestyle. The strain is pushing many to the brink of illness and even marriage break up, says the Citizen's Advice Bureau. Many find the cost of a mortgage too much to afford. Others living in rented accommodation feel their rent is too high. The quick lure of easy credit is also a problem 86 06 17

Grays of Cambridge, the 130-years-old sports firm, has reached the end of an era with the closure of its Benson Street headquarters. The only remaining presence locally is a small racquet-making factory at Coton on the site of their former sawmill. The last 18 months have seen the workforce dwindle from 150 to just six. The main reasons for decline have been increased competition from Taiwan and a change away from wooden frames towards graphite and metal racquets and. Now they produce them for the small market of real tennis and rackets players 86 06 17a

Mountfitchet Castle in Stansted, a reconstruction of an 11th century Motte and Bailey castle opened for the first time last month. It was built from scratch by Alan Goldsmith literally in his own back garden. The site was overgrown and had become virtually forgotten when he bought it in the 1960s and after a long struggle with planners and detailed archaeological reports work finally started in 1984. Oak was brought from all over the country, reeds and wheat straw for the thatching came from Norfolk and even the wattle and daub for the walls were made using a medieval formula. The only ingredient missing was cow dung – modern plasterers refused to work with it. 86 06 17b

Cambridge' most famous car – a 1968 Austin Princess limousine registration MER 1 - has been used as the official car by every mayor since it came into service and has also given rides to Margaret Thatcher, Princess Di, hundred of brides and a parrot. It is part of Marshall's car hire department but after 18 years of service she has been sent off to Ontario to begin a new life. It will be replaced by a Daimler Sovereign with a built-in radio telephone 86 06 17c

1986 06 18
Midsummer common – feature on families – 86 06 18 & a # c.27.31

A K-registered Ford Escort was found dangling from Clare College bridge. The vehicle came from a scrapyard but it remains a mystery how it got there. One theory is that it was brought down the Cam on punts then hoisted up and lashed into place with ropes and chains. The jolly jape brought laughter from river users but now the college is faced with removing it. They are seeking advice from King's who last year removed a Fiat that was 'parked' in the middle of the river on stilts 86 06 18c # c.36.93 # c.46.5

The University's plans for the old Addenbrooke's Hospital site will see the former outpatients' department being converted to a restaurant. The main hospital block and some single-storey buildings will be demolished and replaced with a commercial car park, the private patients' wing let for commercial use and the nurses' buildings on Tennis Court Road used for student hostels. The southern half of the site will be redeveloped to house the departments of biotechnology, pharmacology and biochemistry 86 06 18b # c.21.4 # c.36.9

1986 06 19
The Ancient Shepherds pub in Fen Ditton, which dates back to the 1540s, has been refurbished with easy chairs, settees and a new carpet to emphasise its restaurant facilities. It offers a set four-course evening menu at £14.50 a head 86 06 19a

When St Philip's School opened in Catharine Street in 1886 it had 127 pupils on the roll. But as railway workers moved into new homes in the area only boys up to seven and girls up to 14 were allowed to attend. A senior boys' school was built in Ross Street in 1894 and a new community primary school opened in Vinery Way in 1983. Now children have been preparing to celebrate its centenary with a reunion, a concert in St Philip's Church and a Punch and Judy show by former pupil Chris Kostecki . 86 06 19b # c.36.5

1986 06 23
British Rail is considering reopening part of the disused Cambridge-Huntingdon railway to provide extra transport for the suggested new village in the Swavesey area. They would use the existing platforms at Swavesey, Longstanton and Oakington but would have to build a new one at Histon. Most of the line closed to passenger traffic some years ago but some is used for occasional freight trains to the Chivers factory and fruit orchard complexes 86 06 23 # c.26.2

1986 06 24
Drummer Street bus station renovation criticised – 86 06 24

1986 05 25
Mill Road could do with more shops, residents say. It is an important shopping centre especially for convenience foods. Key groups such as the elderly, people with young children and those without cars depend on it. But many are dissatisfied with the range of goods available. During the past few years a number have closed down or been put to other uses. One has become a one-armed bandit amusement arcade. 86 06 25

1986 06 26
The old St Ives railway may be dug up and part of the route turned into a new main road to provide direct access for people living in the proposed new village for 3,000 people near Swavesey. British Rail is unenthusiastic about reopening the line without county or private investment. But the County Council has already turned down the suggestion of financial involvement and says it would make more sense for the railway to be dug up and replaced with a main road. 86 06 26a # c.26.2

Plans for a small town at Chittering near Waterbeach may be scrapped and moved into the fens – 86 06 26

The Royal Oak just off the A10 at Stretham ferry is on the market for £200,000. It is a freehouse with a bar, five bedrooms and nine acres of land including a frontage on the Great Ouse with moorings, a holiday caravan park and a shop. Now it may be extended and upgraded by Unicorn Inns of Royston, taking it up-market and offering a wide range of traditional beers. 86 06 26b

1986 06 27
A new minibus shuttle service has been launched using 16-seater converted Transits running from the Railway Station to Chesterton. It stops at normal bus stops but can be hailed like a taxi between the Fen Estate, the Golden Hind and the Yorkshire Grey pub. The accent is on a fast, frequent, comfortable service and smoking in the nine new vehicles is banned. By increasing frequency the service becomes more convenient and more likely to attract customers, Cambus claim. A second minishuttle from Coldham's Lane to Teversham Drift may start later 86 06 27 # c.26.46

Prince Edward bids farewell to Cambridge – interview 86 06 27a & b # c.02

July 1986 CEN

1986 07 01
Aircraftsman David Morley was the first man to set foot on what is now Wyton airfield. He had been sent to an old hospital site: there wasn't a building, brick or hangar foundation to be seen – just fields. When he left for Iraq seven months later RAF Wyton was a growing military zone. The 'invasion' caused a great patriotic stir among villagers: "they referred to us as the 'aerodrome men' and we were invited into vicarages and parties. We were easy to spot as we still wore First World War uniforms, dog collar and all, and were issued with silver-headed canes", he recalls. 86 07 01

Heatwave cuts water supplies to 1,000 homes in Steeple Bumpstead – 86 07 01a

Chris Curry resigns from Acorn starts General Information Systems based at Croxton – 86 07 01c # c.27.5

1986 07 02
Charles Unwin, founder of Unwin Seeds of Histon has died peacefully aged 91. 'Mr Charles' as he was affectionately known, joined the firm in 1913 and made his reputation breeding sweet peas flowers but was also a prolific writer and lecturer. He was presented with many awards including Medals from the National Sweet Pea and Royal Horticultural Societies and life membership of the Scottish National Sweep Pea, Rose and Carnation Society. 86 07 02a

1986 07 03
Gloucester Street off Castle Hill, Cambridge, has seen considerable changes in the last 60 years. Until 1924 it was a little estate of its own, with labourers' terraced cottages, a few semi-detached houses, a mission room and a pub. Today nothing remains of the old residential area. But Ronald Chapman has constructed a cardboard model of it which is on display in the Cambridgeshire Collection. Every house is detailed, the street lights are in the right place as are the three outside taps which supplied some householders with their only water 86 07 03

Betty Shimell has her name above three chemists' shops in Cambridge – 86 07 03a

1986 07 04
Churchill Service Station on the junction of Histon and Huntingdon Road in Cambridge is to open 24 hours a day. Garages cannot make a profit on discount petrol alone so it has diversified into selling milk, sandwiches and a range of household goods from dog food to washing powder. Newnham Service Station has been a village shop for several years stocking frozen food alongside chamois leathers and polish. But they have to obey Sunday trading laws like everybody else 86 07 04 & a

1986 07 07
The MII London-Cambridge motorway should be extended as far as the new Humber Bridge complex. It would open up large areas of the economically-depressed fens thus encouraging high-technology firms. By relieving pressure on Cambridge it would bring down rocketing house prices that are forcing homes beyond the reach of first-time buyers and newly-weds, City councillors say. But the County transportation chief says the scheme is a non-starter 86 07 07

Torch Computers of Gt Shelford has developed a revolutionary Triple X computer using the Unix-based computing system with a revolutionary 'Opentop' facility that allows more than one page to be seen at a time. Around the edges of the screen are a number of symbols called 'icons'. Using a control known as a 'mouse' the user can direct a floating arrow and by clicking the 'mouse' twice the accounts package comes up on the screen. By then double-clicking the calculator icon it appears on top of the accounts. This is known as 'multi-tasking'. It means that for the first time one doesn't need programming knowledge to take advantage of the Unix system's benefits 86 07 07a # c.27.5

1986 07 08
Old Addenbrooke's Hospital redevelopment proposals – 86 07 08
Museum of Technology feature – 86 07 08a # c.03

1986 07 09
W.H. Smith, a familiar sight on Cambridge Market Hill for the past 25 years is to close. Staff will be transferred to their other shops in Lion Yard and at Cambridge railway station. 86 07 09 # c.25

Cambridge Venue Group considered two sites for music, drama, activities and a drop-in coffee shop. One was a novel and eye-catching 'spaceship' design using the Elizabeth Way underpass. But councillors have already vetoed this in favour of a more conventional warehouse scheme on the industrial estate off Cherryhinton Road. However youngsters fear they will be fobbed off with a 'sound-proofed shed' and that it is too far for people to go and see a local band 86 07 09a & b & c

1986 07 10
The Nags Head in Eynesbury which has been attracting drinkers for 500 years is to be converted into flats as Charles Wells's brewery has decided it is no longer commercially viable. George Ingle, 77, who has used the pub all his life, remembers eight different landlords. "I don't feel very pleased at the closing as it is such a nice pub", he said. In 1927 the present building replaced the original inn which stood on what was the village green. The Unicorn pub at King's Ripton is also on the market. It is being sold as a going concern by the Townsend family who have been behind the bar for over 50 years. The freehold offers one main bar and three-bedroomed accommodation above. 86 07 10 & 10a

John Leverington was Ortona bus driver in 1920s – memories – 86 07 10b # c.26.46
Marshalls contract for Lockheed early-warning plane – 86 07 10c

1986 07 11
Marshall flying eye, p6
Eastern General Hospital, p14

1986 07 12
First Eastern General Hospital – Ernest Gill memories – 86 07 12 # c.45.5

1986 07 14
Outraged Trumpington residents unanimously called on city planners to throw out controversial proposals to build two superstores, a hotel and multi-screen cinema together with a bus terminus and park-and-ride car park on a 70-acre site on Hauxton Road. A separate plan has also been submitted for a 300-bedroomed hotel. Developers have offered to construct a by-pass from the M11 to Long Road but this had not allayed their fears 86 07 14

Arbury, p5

1986 07 16
Cambridge planners rejected proposals to demolish the Victoria Cinema at Market Hill and replace it with a Marks and Spencer superstore. It would deprive many people of a first-class city centre entertainments facility, the shopping proposal was contrary to development plans and it would result in added traffic congestion. But they might change their minds if Cannon reopened the Central Cinema in Hobson Street instead of using it as a bingo hall or provided a new multi-screen cinema 86 07 16

John Hind organ tuner retires – 86 07 16a

1986 07 17
The Powell family started to make cheese at Sutton in 1918 when there was more money in Cambridgeshire cheese than milk. But during the Second World War it was only produced sporadically when milk was available that would not keep. Later Baden Powell bought up all the Sutton Dairies and kept going with milk and cheese until the 1960s. The whole enterprise eventually went to Bridge Farm Dairies of Mildenhall. 86 07 17

Strawberry, p22

1986 07 18
The multi-million pound Chivers jam business owes its success in part to a strawberry called Brenda. This was cross-fertilised and developed until the ideal jam strawberry finally emerged, the present day Cambridge Favourite used in Chivers Hartley jams and grown by the hundred tons across Europe. Now Chivers are putting the final touches to a brand new processing factory which will reduce the workforce by five per cent 86 07 18

1986 07 21
Dr Otto Smail, one of Cambridge University's distinguished historians, took his degree at Sidney Sussex College where he remained for the rest of his life. He was an authority on the Crusades and built up a reputation for his friendliness, knowledge and skill as a tutor, taking classes on the history of the fens for the Workers Educational Association. A collection of essays has been published in his honour – a University tradition for eminent scholars – 86 07 21

1986 07 22
Cherryhinton Road has everything the shopper could need: there are three banks, building societies and shops selling a whole range of products from fish to fashion and chips to carpets. In addition there are hair stylists, guest houses and specialists such as Warwick and Sons the art gallery and picture restorers. Now a new 500-home development scheme will boost the population and enhance its prosperity 86 07 22

1986 07 24
Hawks Club wants to convert disused hotel in Portugal Place into meeting place – 86 07 24

The bunting was out and champagne corks popped as Sarah Ferguson and the new Duke of York tied the Royal Knot. Everyone from Brownies to Cambridge office workers were in the mood for a patriotic fling. At Addenbrooke's Hospital there was a festive air as celebrations started in every ward and elsewhere dances and even a mock wedding reception were the order of the day. Flags were strung across Roselea in Impington where one of several street parities went with a regal swing. 86 07 24a & b # c.02

1986 07 25
University staff battle over salaries – 86 07 25

Coveney looks the idyllic English village. Ducks waddle freely across the green, gardens blaze with flowers and there is a clear view to Ely Cathedral across the fen. But when the village school closed its doors for ever last week, it seemed like another nail in another rural coffin. These days there is no shop or pub in the village of just over 300 people and only a once-a-week bus service to Ely Market. There is no doctor or dentist's service and even the rector is shared with two other villages. Now residents have banded together in an attempt to keep their community alive 86 07 25a

1986 07 28
St George's Church, Chesterton is crumbling so badly that it may have to be pulled down – even though it is only 48 years old. Already the front door has been closed because the gable ends are being pushed outwards, tiles need replacing and two flat roofs need resurfacing. Arches inside are cracked and the brickwork needs re-pointing. Rev Peter Tamplin says the congregation would have to raise the money for rebuilding and residents are being asked what they would like to see in a new church 86 07 28 # c.83

Months of uncertainty for the Trumpington-based Plant Breeding Institute have been ended with confirmation that parts are to be sold to the private sector and others amalgamated with a newly-created Plant Science Institute. Staff may be relocated and some research might halt completely. The sugar beet programme has already been wound up and one man now tends the gene bank of varieties

– 7,000 for barley alone – from which much of its celebrated work makes its humble beginnings. 86 07 28a

1986 07 29
An 'exodus' plan has been evolved to save thousands of Cambridge families from the horrors of a nuclear disaster. The aim is to evacuate the entire city if a Chernobyl-style accident happens at the Sizewell reactor complex on the Suffolk coast. Meanwhile health chiefs have been warned they are 'sitting on a time bomb' over the ambulance service crisis. Cuts of up to 20 per cent aim at correcting a budget deficit made worse by a Government blunder. 86 07 29 # c.45.8

1986 07 30
Stansted airport 'could handle 50 million passengers a year' claims exaggerated – 86 07 30

1986 07 31
A storm of protest greeted plans by St Barnabas Church to demolish the Victorian hall in Covent Garden which is used by the independent Drama Centre Trust and council-backed drama workshops. Residents say it is an important community centre and proposals to build a block of five flats would block their views of Fenners cricket ground 86 07 31

August 1986 CEN

1986 08 01
Government curbs on spending have prompted a major housing crisis in South Cambridgeshire. Even though the Council has more than £9m they are only being allowed to spend a small amount to tackle the problem. The elderly, disabled, unemployed and single people already have wait years for an offer of accommodation while the waiting list has been kept low by refusing under-25s and unemployed people wanting to move here for work. But some unsuccessful applicants later have to be housed because they become homeless. 86 08 01

One of Cambridge's better-known private hotels, the Suffolk House in Milton Road, is for sale at £250,000. The main structure was built in about 1930 by a Cambridge doctor and later owned by a professor of botany who stocked the garden with many kinds of trees and shrub. Outbuildings include a summer house and two-bedroomed timber chalet for the owners' occupation. It was converted from a private house in 1970 and is primarily used by business clients connected with Pye group of companies and firms on the Science Park 86 08 01a # c.27.34

1986 08 02
Developers Camtech announced plans for a massive new science-cum-shops development for the giant 55-acre Arbury Camp Farm. It comprises a mixture of high-tech research and development buildings and two retail units either side of a five-acre lake. One would be a food superstore and the other sell D-I-Y and gardening products. There would also be a park-and-ride site with room for 600 cars. But an Inquiry into another scheme for the same area was told that it would have a detrimental impact on local stores and shops. 86 08 02 & 2a

Death knell warning, p5

1986 08 04
Hinxton's 17th-century watermill and adjoining cottage have been saved by Cambridge Preservation Society after they fell into disrepair. Rotten timbers have been replaced and the roof retiled at the mill which was last used in 1955. The original waterwheel was removed at the beginning of the century after an accident in which a child was killed but it is hoped that the turbine wheel which replaced it can be restored. Algernon Croot,who has lived in the cottage since his father took over the mill in 1914, is delighted with the results 86 08 04

1986 08 06

The run-down village of Croxton could be restored under a joint scheme by Chris Curry, founder of Acorn Computers who bought the Hall and village in 1984 and Sindall the builders. Most of the properties were constructed in the late 18th-century as low-cost housing for estate workers. Now fourteen would be renovated and just two which are beyond economic repair demolished. There would also be new homes together with a village hall and green to bring back a sense of community. But a parish meeting has rejected the idea of more houses in the centre 86 08 06 & 07

A video cassette recording of Ely Cathedral has gone on sale. It is a product of local talent – scripted by Andy Mills, filmed and produced by World Video Productions, narrated by Chris Mills and with musical backing by the cathedral choir. 86 08 06a

1986 08 07
Pirate Radio enthusiasts group formed – 86 08 07a
Irwin Peck, High Sheriff – profile – 86 08 07b
Croxton plan, p6

1986 08 08
Fox Wood Place sheltered housing, Soham – 86 08 08

Shudy Camps Park is to be turned into a research clinic by an Indian guru. Sri Mataji Nirmala Devi, whose name means Holy Mother, is claimed to be a saint with miraculous power to cure the sick and dying. She has tens of thousands of followers in India but only 14 disciples in this country. Patients suffering a variety of illnesses will be taught Sahaja Yoga and their condition monitored 86 08 08a

1986 08 11
Patrick Woods' first task when appointed sub-postmaster at Girton 18 years ago was to construct the building itself. For eight weeks 'Postman Pat' had to make do in a little shed, taking everything back to his home in Mildenhall each evening. But business blossomed and the post office and stores in Dodford Lane have become a familiar sight in the village which for a while feared it might lose its post office for ever. Now Mr Woods and his wife are calling it a day. "It's no longer a piggy-bank business. It's very streamlined and we have to spend half the evening doing paperwork", he said 86 08 11a

Littleport Grange nursing home doubt – 86 08 11

1986 08 13
Big Mac fans supporters lost the beef-burgers battle. Despite a petition signed by 30,000 hamburger fans an Inspector has rejected plans for a fast-food bar in Fitzroy Street saying it would cause a public nuisance and severe litter problems. Residents in New Square are delighted. But city planners say that they'd be happy to consider another application from McDonalds for a more suitable site 86 08 13

Sydney Theobald, a former Mayor of Ely, died two weeks after celebrating his golden wedding. A well-known and well-respected figure he started work at Eaden Lilley's in Cambridge before setting up a drapery business in Ely High Street which he ran with his wife from 1958 until their retirement. He'd been President of the Chamber of Trade and Rotary Club and was closely involved with the Ribe Association and St Mary's Lodge old folks home 86 08 13a

Tucked away behind the Arundel House Hotel are wooden buildings put up in 1896 as stabling for horse buses. The names of some of the horses, like Badgy, Wanderer and Pixie can still be seen painted on the walls over the stalls and there are depressions in the floor where the horses stamped each night. Later the building was used for garaging undergraduates' cars and University proctors insisted there were holes in the doors so they could check that the vehicles were there. During the war Marshall's had it for aeroplane work and then they became workshops. 86 08 13b # c.26.46

1986 08 15

Cottenham Salvation Army is celebrating its 100th year. Back in 1886 inn-keepers were paranoid about the influence the anti-alcohol evangelists might have on sales and the churches branded them as 'radical'. The village bobby was so worried about public disturbance that he asked Salvation Army leaders to 'Go back where you came from'. But the Cottenham corps went from strength to strength. Today it has 100 members and is planning a reunion with some guests travelling from the USA 86 08 15 & a

1986 08 16
Saberton's shop at Pymore, one of the oldest village stores in the fens, has closed. Vera Saberton has worked in the shop since she stepped in to help out in the 1940s. The store began trading in 1921 when Mr Hugh Saberton, her brother, opened a bicycle shop. "There was a grocery shop in the village, so my brother thought he would try bikes, but within a couple of years he started selling food as well", she said. Her younger brother, Horace, took it over in 1937 and Miss Saberton started work behind the counter during the war while he was in the forces. Her brother died seven years ago and after that she helped her sister-in-law, Mrs Joan Saberton), run the shop. She has seen dramatic changes in people's shopping habits with competition from supermarkets leading to a decline in the traditional village shop. Now she wonders what to do with dozens of old advertising signs that have stockpiled over the years. 86 08 16

1986 08 18
EastEnders star Anita Dobson, the famous landlady of the TV show's 'Queen Vic' pub proved a powerful pulling attraction at the Coral Social Club in Cambridge where some 400 bingo players gathered to see her in the flesh. Fans cheered and queued for autographs when the actress arrived at the Hobson Street club. She called the shows 'Dirty Den' a 'rat' but said "We have a very good on-screen relationship. I'm going to string him up at Christmas. The real Den is a lovely nice person". The event was a lead-up for the club's refurbishment as a cabaret club in November 86 08 18

1986 08 20
Chivers workers offered shares for a penny – 86 08 20

1986 08 21
Woolworth's in Cambridge is to undergo a massive facelift to bring it up to date. The shop in Sidney Street will close for five weeks while builders work round the clock to gut and rebuild the interior. The new shop will be brighter and more modern with an 80-seater coffee bar, an extended children's toys section and a bigger record department. Out will go bad sellers – men's and women's clothes and food lines, and the range of toiletries and electrical goods will be drastically reduced. 86 08 21

1986 08 22
The Church Housing Trust's new hostel in Victoria Road aims to get away from an institutional set-up with single rooms and bedsits for 75 homeless people. Alcohol will be banned and residents encouraged to improve their lifestyle to enable them to live in the community again. Nearby home owners have been reassured that problems will be few and far between because if residents have been drinking they keep away as they don't want to lose their accommodation. The Trust's existing premises in Willow Walk will be also retained 86 08 22 # c.32.9

1986 08 26
Tom Cousins has notched up 70 years of regular drinking at his local, the Duke of Wellington in Willingham. So family and friends laid on a celebration. 'Uncle Tom' was met by bunting and balloons and a roomful of familiar faces when he arrived for his usual drink, dressed in his customary three-piece suit, tie and hat. There was also a kissogram girl. When Tom started drinking in 1917 there were 25 pubs in the village. He recalls sinking 11 pints a night and still walking home in a straight line. 86 08 26

1986 08 27

British Rail may build new stations near Cambridge and Huntingdon as part of a modernisation scheme. A county transportation spokesman called for stations at Milton and at new villages near Waterbeach and Swavesey which are under consideration in the Structure Plan review. He'd also like to see the St Ives to Cambridge line re-opened and a stop at Milton would help to service the Science Park as well. This was endorsed by the Railway Development Society who also suggested stations at North Arbury and Cherry Hinton. 86 08 27 # c.26.2

1986 08 28
French's Mill was built on a high point in Chesterton in 1847 by William Beart. It was a wooden-walled smock mill but didn't catch enough wind, so it was jacked up and an eight-sided brick base added. But it was still not satisfactory so in 1868 William French converted it to run on steam power. Later the sails were removed and gas engines installed, to be replaced by diesel 14 years later. At its peak small bakers used the it regularly but when the adjoining land was taken as playing fields for St Peter's School it looked as if the mill was doomed. Now it has begun a new life as an office suite and the surrounding buildings house ten other small companies playing their part in the technology boom 86 08 28 # c.22.9

1986 08 29
Lode's church clock was made by Dents of London, who also made Big Ben. Since it was erected in 1856 it has been kept in pristine condition by a handful of men: William Ayres looked after it until 1945 when he handed responsibility to his son Jack. Then eight years ago when he began to feel his age he trained up Peter Swannell to do the job. He has continued a tradition of recording local and national events inside the door of the clock. 86 08 29

September 1986 CEN
1986 09 02
Supermarket, garden centre anparking plan for Histon Road area by Carter Commercial Developments - 86 09 02

1986 09 04
Gray's tobacco and sweet shop, Newmarket Road, to close 86 09 04

1986 09 05
British Telecom digital telephone exchange to be switched on – 86 09 05 # c.27.75

1986 09 08
Addenbrooke's Hospital patient dies after attck with broken bottle – 86 09 08 # c.21.4

1986 09 13
Swavesey villagers oppose plan for new town nearby – 86 09 13

1986 09 16
Cambridge Theatre Company celebrates century of productions – 86 09 16 # c.76

1986 09 18
Soham farmer, Wallace Turner, offers 800 acres to build thousands of houses – 86 09 18

Duxford massive shopping centre proposed - 86 09 18

'Witch' of Oyster House cast a spell - couple lived on ground floor, upper windows broken; sold eggs, had stuffed animals – 86 09 18(2) # c.39

1986 09 19
Papworth Hospital may move to Cambridge – 86 09 19(2) # c.21.4

Woolworth's reopens after £1million refit – 86 09 19 # c.27.2

1986 09 20
Ely Cathedral launch £4 million restoration appeal – 86 09 20

1986 09 22
Cambridge Phenomenon effect on housing, jobs & traffic to be examined at Conference – 86 09 22

1986 09 25
Corn Exchange discover rotten timbers three months before reopening – 86 09 25

1986 09 26
Marshall's lose contract to fit out RAF Nimrod radar planes – 86 09 26

1986 09 27
Plans for 'super college' replacing Hills Road VI Form College and Cambridge College of Further Education dropped – 86 09 27 # c.36.7 # c.36.5

1986 09 30
Peter Matthews corner shop, Carlyle Road to close after 25 years – 86 09 30(3) # c.27.2

Homeless Cambridge families are being put into private hotels and boarding houses because of housing shortage – 86 09 30

October 1986 CEN

1986 10 01
Entire areas of teaching and research at the University may have to be axed because of cuts in Government grants. The Vice-Chancellor spelt out a future of "uncertainty and plain muddle" for Cambridge and the loss of its reputation as a world-beating centre of learning. "The outlook is extremely gloomy and we may have to close down complete areas of work" he said in his annual report. "Realigning our relations with the Government will be difficult … but unless we do I do not think that Cambridge will survive long into the 21st century as a university of world standing" 86 10 01

Sheikh Mohammed Al Maktoum has bought Derisley Wood Stud, Newmarket for well over £4m. He already owns the Dalham Hall and Rutland studs. Sheikh Mohammed is one of four brothers of the fabulously-wealthy royal rulers of the oil-rich state of Dubai. They own around 500 racehorses in training in England and on the opening day of Tattersalls sales spent £3m on another 20 horses. 86 10 01a

1986 10 03
Dedicated GP Rex Salisbury Woods began general practice and surgery in Cambridge in 1919 and retired aged 91 in 1983. He was an old-style family doctor to whom the most important people were his patients. His consulting rooms were a delight to wait in with comfortable armchairs and a cabinet in which he displayed his many sporting trophies. He was British Weight Champion – the old name for putting the shot - and a member of the Olympic teams in 1924 and 1928. 86 10 03 # c.21.1

1986 10 04
The Cambridge branch of the Geographical Association celebrated its 50th anniversary at a gathering in the Cambridgeshire Collection. Founder member Miss Edith Butcher who established the branch in 1936 was joined by eminent historical geographer Prof Clifford Darby and its current chairman, Rex Walford. It is an active and lively group discussing important issues of today like the environment and nuclear energy 86 10 04

1986 10 06
Thousands of people gathered on Saffron Walden Common, cheering and waving flags as they had their photograph taken from a helicopter. The picture will be included in a six-foot long time capsule containing a wealth of other material to be buried in the grounds of the Museum. It will be unearthed in 250 years time, when the town celebrates its 1,000th anniversary 86 10 06

Warren Hill stud being sold – detailed article – 86 10 06a

1986 10 07
The church clock at Wistow near Ramsey worked continuously for 151 years until 1899 when a gear wheel was replaced. It is a very early example of its type and was designed to be driven by clockwork. Nine years ago it was electrified as part of the village's Silver Jubilee celebrations but this put extra strain on the old parts and it stopped completely. The Parish Council could not help pay for £2,200 for repairs but an electronics expert and a mechanical designer from Eynesbury have worked on it free of charge. The electrical power source has gone and the mechanism is now back to clockwork. Volunteers helped to heave the clock, weights and pendulum back into the belfry 86 10 07

Squatters at the old Salvation Army shop in Mill Road doze on sofas and chairs by the log fire or in sleeping bags in the eaves of the roof, and when they need a toilet they wander to the public lavatories just down the road. The squat is a protest to high-light the social depression, unemployment and lack of facilities for the young. Anarchist slogans have been painted boldly over the shop front replacing the old religious messages. 86 10 07a # c.23

1986 10 08
In 1980 you could get a pint of Greene King beer for 36p. Six years later it is 77p – almost twice as much. But the brewery says almost a quarter of the price goes in duty and VAT, then there are rates, labour and malt, all of which have risen. Alcoholic drinks have gone up 78 per cent compared to a 44 per cent rise in the price of food, 15 per cent on clothes and 24 per cent on household goods. But fuel and light have gone up 82 per cent. 86 10 08

The ornamental cock pheasant which was ripped from the top of West Wratting's village sign has been put back – and this time it will take a stick of gelignite to shift it. Vandals tore down the carved wooden bird which sat on top of a painting of a local landmark, the windmill, within hours of it being unveiled earlier in the summer. After an outcry it was left at the base of the plinth a couple of days later. Now it has been secured with steel bolts. 86 10 08a

1986 10 09
Stan Kelly was one of the last people to live in the Oyster House, Garlic Row where his parties were a mixture of the talented and the well-heeled. He was a Liverpool working-class boy who came to the university in the early '50s with his wide and children. In those days he was involved in folk music, mixing Liverpool seamen's songs with those of the American Depression and some of his own. One was 'Hard times in the Old Oyster House, Hard times, poor boy'. Later his skiffle music became successful on both sides of the Atlantic. Despite this he managed to secure a double first in maths and obtained a job with a world-famous computer firm. 86 10 09 # c.69

1986 10 10
Magdalene, the one college in the Oxbridge system where a chap could count on being in the exclusive company of other chaps, is set to go co-educational. The governing body has voted to overturn 444 years of historical precedent and amend the statutes. The news was greeted with glum resignation by some of the present undergraduates. That other bastion of entrenched traditionalism, Peterhouse, finally said yes to women students last year, a trend that started in 1972 when Churchill, Clare and King's went mixed. 86 10 10

T
1986 10 13
Histon is to get a space-age science park providing around 2,000 jobs. Vision Park, to be built on the site of the old Chiversjam factory, will be a community of steel-framed buildings clad entirely in coloured glass. The first will have a curved glass atrium with palm trees, pools with a fountain, glass lifts and a marble floor. But the parish council see it as a 'retrograde' step which will damage the character ofthe village. 86 10 13

Trinity and Churchill Colleges are behind a secret bid to build a new town for 8,000 people at Scotland Farm, Dry Drayton. Several other consortia are also set to submit development plans for the site. County planners say two more towns, total I ing 6,000 new houses, will be needed. One ofthese should be near Swavesey and another in the Waterbeach area. This would begin with 3,000 houses, eventually rising to a town of 16,000 people 86 10 l3a

1986 10 16
Bowes and Bowes, Cambridge's oldest bookshop, marked the end of an era and the beginning of a new. The building on the corner of Trinity Street started as a bookshop under William Scarlett in 158l. It was acquired by Daniel and Alexander Macmillan who in 1845 laid the foundations for one of the largest publishing firms in the world. It became a literary centre where figures like Thackeray and Charles Kingsley were frequent visitors. Now it has been completely redesigned and reopened under its new name of Sherratt and Hughes. 86 10 16

Neve Electronics began in 1961 when Rupert Neve, an audio engineering consultant, produced a two-output mixing console with valve circuitry. It was installed at a London recording studio and its success launched him on a career which brought world fame to the company which now employs 160 people at its Melbourn plant. He was guest of honour at an anniversary reception held in Brighton to coincide with the International Broadcasting Convention. 86 10 16a

1986 10 17
One of Ely's oldest buildings is to take on a new lease of life as a showcase for the region's antique dealers. Conversion work on the derelict maltings building next to the English College at Waterside is nearly complete. It will provide a base for 50 antique dealers, giving them a permanent showcase while carrying on their business elsewhere. The man behind the scheme, Graham Peters, hopes it will become an additional tourist attraction 86 10 17

1986 10 20
Alex Wood Hall, newly-built headquarters of Cambridge Labour Party, was officially opened by Brenda Dean, the first woman general secretary of a union. 86 10 20 # c.33

1986 10 21
RAF Alconbury is fast becoming the biggest American military complex in Britain. A £200 million development scheme is under way and the number of military personnel will be increased to more than 5,000 in the next two years. It has a mixture of aircraft: Phantoms and high-flying TR1s provide tactical reconnaissance and the F5s provide combat training and represent Soviet aircraft in mock dogfights with NATO aircraft 86 10 21b

1986 10 23
Work to widen pavements in Market Street and Sidney Street and reduce traffic using the city centre are attracting a storm of protest. 86 10 23

1986 10 24
Cambridge councillors have changed their minds about the future of council-owned allotment land at Histon Road. They had wanted Green Belt protection on the 33-acre site which would prevent any form of development from taking place there. However 11 acres are derelict and could be reserved for possible housing schemes and recreational use. But any hypermarket development there would mean the death of the shopping centre at Arbury Court and should be blocked. 86 10 24

1986 10 25
Ely Cathedral is to play a vital part in bringing the latest technology to East Anglia. Cellnet, Britain's leading mobile telecommunications network, is to use the 215ft West Tower as a base station to extend cellular radio coverage. The cathedral's skyline will be unaltered: aerials will be located in the turrets with the base station in the belfry. The firm will provide a 'substantial' sum as rental and sponsor the flower festival next summer 86 10 25

1986 10 27
Peppercorns heath food and delicatessen, which has expanded remarkably quickly from small beginnings in Cherry Hinton, has moved into larger premises in Mill Road. The shop has shelves of natural foods, freshly-roasted coffees, 50 types of cheese and the exotic delights of houmuous and taramasalata together with quiches, pizzas and even vegetarian scotch eggs. 86 10 27

1986 10 28
Buckden church is celebrating the return of silverware worth £15,000 that was taken in a burglary in June. The christening shell and four chalices, one of which dates back to the 17th century, had been given to the church by people living in the village and its loss had been described as a shattering blow. Now the Rev John Francis is elated at the good news. Police have also recovered almost all the silverware taken from the church in Great Barford that was stolen on the same day. The items were discovered in a disused shed in Surrey 86 10 28

The Council is undertaking its biggest renovation to wipe out some of Cambridge's worst living conditions. After 15 years the damp-prone bathroom 'pods' stuck on to brick kitchens will be removed from Darwin Drive, Akeman Street, Stretten Avenue and other streets. The modernisation programme will transform pokey 50-year-old homes into spacious, modern accommodation. There will be a new bedroom and bathroom, fully-fitted kitchen, central heating and new windows. Residents who move out for the 20 weeks of renovation can claim a disturbance allowance of several hundred pounds. 86 10 28a # c.23

1986 10 29
Hearty hymn-singing has been banned in the crumbling church of All Saints at Pidley in case vibrations bring the house down. The Rector, Arthur Ludlow, said the ceiling boards in the roof are loose and tiles are falling off the church tower. He is also worried about stonework over the main door. Now the congregation face a massive task of raising money for repairs of the 120-year-old church which stands on a hill and is a landmark for miles around 86 10 29

1986 10 30
Cambridge United got their reward for beating Ipswich with a draw against First Division giants, Tottenham Hotspur in the Littlewoods Cup. The Spurs team includes England internationals Glenn Hoddle and Chris Waddle, Belgian superstar Nico Claesen and Argentinean World Cup star Osvaldo Ardiles. The dream fixture will pack the Abbey Stadium with more than 10,000 fans. Ticket prices will be raised to £8 for seats and £5 for the terraces. 86 10 30 & 30a # c.38 : football

The Caxton Gibbet pub has been sold and now faces several months of refurbishment before reopening in the New Year. Over recent years the pub, which dates back to the 1930s, has had a succession of tenants while being owned by Paines Brewery. Now it will be opened as a free house and restaurant with an English-style image, hoping to attract motorists using the busy A45. 86 10 30b

November 1986 CEN

1986 11 01

A traveller dismantled parts of a motorway bridge at Gt Chesterford and pedalled away with the bits strapped to his bicycle. 86 11 01

Waterbeach residents have given a resounding thumbs-down to plans for a new town near their village. The chairman of the Parish Council, Bill Saberton, said they had already taken more than their share of growth over the last six years, with an extra 1,500 people, and a further 250 houses were planned. Any more would destroy its life completely. The new town would cause traffic problems, opening a railway line would attract commuters and the land is low-lying and unsuitable for revelopment 86 11 01a

1986 11 03
Ashwell barn where Bunyan preached for sale 86 11 03

1986 11 04
Ambitious plans have been unveiled for 'Crow Green', a new town of up to 11,000 people near the junction of the A14 and A14 at Caxton Gibbet. The developers hope the busy A45 would be upgraded to dual carriageway all the way between Cambridge and the A1. This follows other plans for a new town of 2,200 homes near Dry Drayton. These are some of 11 major bids for development just submitted to planners. 86 11 04

1986 11 05
Cambridge Toy Shop, which has been trading for almost 20 years, is planning to close at Christmas. They blame rent increases 86 11 05a # c.27.2

Old Addenbrooke's Hospital has been made a grade II listed building which means it cannot be pulled down without listed building consent from the city council. A copy of the notice under the Town and Country Planning Act has been sent to the University who want to demolish it, turn the site into a car park and later build extra space for bio-sciences. Their surveys have shown that £3½ million would have to be spent in just making good the structure and £650,000 needed just to keep the façade even if the main wards behind were demolished. Now dons are to vote on the issue. 86 11 05 vote to go ahead – 86 11 08 # c.21.4

1986 11 06
Crematorium history – 86 11 06 # c.21.2

1986 11 07
Plans for a massive housing development at Clay Farm have been attacked by the Council for the Protection of Rural England. The Labour-controlled city council believes the 70-acre site is ideal for 900 homes for council tenants and hi-tech executives. But in September the County Planning Committee put the site into the Green Belt to protect it from developers. Now the issue will be decided by the Department of the Environment. 86 11 07a

New housing advice centre opens in old police station – 86 11 07
Fred Archer, jockey 100th anniversary of his death – 86 11 07b & c

1986 11 10
A major new car park could be built under the site of Old Addenbrooke's Hospital after Dons voted in favour of demolishing the buildings which they bought a year ago. – 86 11 10
Swavesey villagers have begun the opposition to a proposed new town on its doorstep – 86 11 11

1986 11 12
Armed robbers brandishing a sawn-off shotgun burst into Fen Ditton post office just before closing time and terrified the postmaster into handing over £2,000 in cash. They fled in a white Ford Cortina they'd stolen hours earlier. The car was found abandoned down a farm track at Horningsea and the men are thought to have crossed Baitsbite Lock into Fen Road, Milton, where they had a getaway car waiting. Detectives say the raid is identical to one at Haslingfield in February. The Post Office has designated Cambridgeshire and Bedfordshire as a 'high-risk' area because of the huge number of robberies 86 11 12

1986 11 13
Sawston is one of the busiest retained fire stations in Cambridgeshire. It answers more than 10 calls a week since it is close to three major roads and they are called out to provide cover for Cambridge. It has a full complement of 14 firemen under sub-officer Gilbert Whiffin and while some areas struggle to find recruits, they have a waiting list. The men have recently taken up weight training and also have the energy to raise many thousands of pounds for charity, donating £800 towards the village health centre. 86 11 13

1986 11 14
From his manor house at The Berristead, Wilburton Sir David Hughes runs one of Cambridgeshire's most unusual businesses. It specialises in the production of brass and bronze figures, principally for use as car mascots. Most are exported to the United States. Now a former fruit store near the village church has been reconditioned for use as a foundry and workshop to help increase production. 86 11 14

1986 11 17
At Logica's smart Cambridge offices a strange clipped voice rises above the human chatter. By the end of the decade it may well become commonplace. For the firm is devising a computer which can talk to train travellers on the telephone. They are also working on a computer which will help Shell devise formulae for lubricating oils. The company, which has 2,400 staff working in 3 countries, opened its Cambridge offices two years ago but has difficulty recruiting staff because of a national shortage of trained workers. 86 11 17 # c.27.1

1986 11 18
Cambridge Co-op's new Beehive Centre is the first step in a major redevelopment scheme which is going to give the city a shopping complex for the 21st century. They have obtained additional frontage on to Coldham's Lane including the former Eastern Gas Social Club and will construct a roundabout to ease traffic congestion. The shop has been given a bright new image with additional departments and specialist services including the Kauffman Hair Salon, G & H Kitchens and BMB Windows. 86 11 18 # c.27.2

1986 11 22
Two masked robbers burst into Ellington post office and stole £1,300 in cash after threatening the sub-postmistress with a shotgun. The thieves, one of whom wore a stocking over his head, fled in a bronze-coloured Ford Cortina that had been stolen from St Ives and was later abandoned at Grafham Water. Police say it is a copy of other recent robberies at Fen Ditton and Haslingfield 86 11 22

Although the Fen Ditton National School was considered important enough for children to be ferried across the river from Chesterton, it was never a particularly attractive place. Now the run-down building, previously used as a warehouse, has been converted to include a family home. It has an open staircase and a landing featuring an iron balustrade from a chapel in the Fens. It has been decorated cheaply and simply, using the increasingly-popular 'rag-rolling' technique. 86 11 22a

1986 11 24
Cambridge Philharmonic Society centenary – history – 86 11 24# c.69

1986 11 25
Ely Diocese's old-fashioned 'Contact' newsletter has rolled off the press for the last time. Instead a new 52-page glossy magazine will be distributed, changing the way church news is reported. The monthly letter from the Bishop will be retained but there will also be pages on fashion, motoring, farming and gardening. The first issue contains good luck messages from the Archbishop of Canterbury and several local MPs. The editor promises that it is not going to be a tame in-house newspaper. 86 11 25

Corn Ecxchange, p5

1986 11 26
Thousands of shoppers are heading into massive debt as they spend, spend, spend for Christmas. The Citizens' Adv ice Bureau said that last year everybody got everything on shop credit cards; now everyone they see has three, four or sometimes five credit cards and many of these are taken out to get presents. Robert Sayle say the season had started late because of the mild weather but already profits had rocketed by 14 per cent. Eaden Lilley, Joshua Taylor and Boots report tremendous sales. But many managers say poor parking facilities were driving Cambridge shoppers elsewhere. 86 11 26

Bourn Airfield could be developed into a town for 8,000 people. Around 3,000 houses would be constructed including low-cost rented accommodation together with a business park, shops, health facilities and a primary school. The Second World War airfield closed in 1948 and while there are few of the original buildings the runways and taxiways remain. Part of the site is occupied by Bond Helicopters and Pre-Star, a subsidiary of Camford Engineering. This is the latest in a series of speculative proposals for a new settlement in the Cambridge area 86 11 26a

County Councillors have given permission for private developers to build sheltered housing for the elderly on public land. The scheme will provide new homes at Westward Ho! Ramsey, 25 bungalows at Home Close, Fulbourn and accommodation for another 23 in March. Some councillors disagree with doing deals with private firms who might exploit the elderly for profit. But it means a lot more places than the council could possibly afford. 86 11 26b

Girton Golf Club celebrated its 50th anniversary. It has come a long way since the days when a special rule had to be introduced to cope with the sheep grazing on the greens. It was founded in 1936 by Scottish professional Allan Gow as a privately run organisation. Membership was three guineas for gentlemen and a round of the nine-hole course cost one shilling and sixpence. The course flooded several times a year and members squelched across water-logged fairways for most of the winter. In summer they had to negotiate huge cracks when the ground dried out. 86 11 26c # c.38 : golf

The Corn Exchange, Cambridge's new entertainment and conference complex, has opened after years of political wrangling. The four wall shell used for pop concerts, roller skating and badminton has been developed into an auditorium with stage and versatile seating together with a tiered balcony and mezzanine terrace that can be used for a variety of purposes. At the back are changing rooms, dressing rooms and workshops while the King Room upstairs will be available for private functions 86 11 26d & e

1986 11 28
Ian Masters has a face and voice that is instantly recognised in East Anglia. He has had a highly successful career in radio and television as anchorman with BBC 'Look East', doing stints on 'Nationwide' and other shows including 'Come Dancing' with Terry Wogan. In 1982 he became boss of Radio Cambridgeshire where he started an early-morning 'Countywide' programme with dual presentation from Cambridge and Peterborough. Listening figures have shot up. Now having carved a new image for local radio in the county he is off to pastures new 86 11 28a & b

Castle Street traffic plan – 86 11 28
Milton Hospice plan progress – 86 11 28c

1986 11 29
Robbery at Little Paxton post office – 86 11 29

December 1986 CEN

1986 12 01
The Bishop of Ely has announced steps to stop panic about Aids sweeping the diocese – after fears that churchgoers could boycott Christmas services. He has written to clergy over ways of combating alarm over the virus being transmitted in the communion cup. In a secret circular 'Aids and the Chalice' he stresses that the risk is minimal but suggests taking the bread but leaving the wine or taking both at once by dipping a wafer in the wine. Clergy are supposed to wipe the chalice with a cloth after each communicant receives it and to wash it in hot water afterwards. 86 12 01

Demolition has started on two former student hostels in Drosier Road which are being knocked down by the university to make way for the possible expansion of the local examinations syndicate. Opponents say the houses were ideal for students or flats for young people and could have been repaired. But the University say this was too expensive. The site would be used as an extension of nearby gardens until a decision on its use had been made. Some town houses might be built there. 86 12 01a

Clergy at Melbourn are planning an extension to the parish church on a concrete 'raft' so graves will not be disturbed. A meeting room, vestry, kitchen and lavatories will be built over the old graveyard. There are no headstones and the last burial was more than 100 years ago. It is becoming quite a common thing: similar scheme at Cherry Hinton, Milton and Ely have all been successful. If graves are disturbed the church would give special permission for reburial 86 12 01b

Controversial MP Enoch Powell sparked off an angry confrontation when he arrived for a meeting of the University Conservative Association. The 'Rivers of Blood' politician, whose views on race have prompted strong opposition, spoke inside a locked room as students jeered outside the Old Combination Room at Trinity College. Demonstrators clambered up scaffolding in a bid to disrupt the meeting and shouted slogans. A window was smashed. Mr Powell had been smuggled into his old college through a back entrance and a police escort was on hand to help him leave. 86 12 01c # c.33

Corn Exchange opened for first time – 86 12 01d # c.69
Mlbourn church, p5

1986 12 02
Robert Rhodes James has been Cambridge's Conservative MP for 10 years. He remembers the date of the election well: "It was the start of one of the coldest winters on record and there I was at two o'clock in the morning, freezing cold, in a snow storm standing on the balcony of the Guildhall waiting for the mayor to make the announcement". But his cold initiation has been more than compensated for by the warmth of the reception he has since received from electors. 86 12 02 # c.33

1986 12 03
Plans for a new village five miles from Cambridge city centre were first announced in March 1963. Pessimists said it couldn't be done. The mere idea of planting a whole new community out among fields was enough to give most sociologists the jitters but the 'News' put its voice firmly behind the plan from the start. Then in March 1967 Mr & Mrs Robert Burry and their daughter, Elizabeth, became the first family to move into the new 'Bar Hill'. They love it, but others have felt like 'pioneers in the outback' 86 12 03 & a

Behind the bleak-looking walls of Bar Hill a community with a real sense of caring has sprung up. From the start residents have worked to make the village a success. There was a time when few people wanted to live there and many only went because property prices were cheaper. But in recent years prices have caught up and houses sell readily. The school is open until 10pm each night for a range of activities including bowls, yoga and table tennis. It will never be a picturesque village but is much more than a building estate in the middle of a field. 86 12 03b

1986 12 04
Harston recreation ground opens – 86 12 04

1986 12 05
Shoplifting has rocketed by a quarter with 862 arrests in the first six months. They can be men or women, well-dressed or shabby, of any age range. Now Cambridge shops have banded together with a pyramid telephone system alerting others when a suspicious person is at large. An increasing problem are the professionals and the M11 has brought in more. Some can be violent. One young woman store detective in Marks and Spencer has twice been assaulted by male shoplifters. One got away, one didn't. 86 12 05

1986 12 08
Developers have revealed plans to convert Cambridge's most controversial city centre landmark, St Andrew the Great Church, into shops. The proposals end 15 years of doubt over the future of the 150-year-old building which was made redundant in 1984. It also means that alternative scheme to turn it into a tourist and heritage centre has failed. The peal of eight bells will be maintained and the Cook Memorial preserved. 86 12 08

Controversial plans to build a high-tech office block on the site of the old Eastern Counties Bus Station in Hills Road have been given Government approval, despite fierce council opposition. The Stetchworth-based property development company Unex Group can construct a three-storey office block. But alternative proposals for a four-storey block and sheltered housing, scorned by the council as 'a geriatric ghetto', have been dismissed. 86 12 08a # c.49.4

1986 12 11
Horningsea parish church is coming out of the 'dark ages'. After 700 years of being lit by candles and oil lamps it is to be hooked up to mains electricity and water supplies. At present water for the font and flowers is brought in by the bucket load. For church goers – who sometimes have trouble reading their hymn books – the biggest bonus will be heating. The church gets freezing in winter months and parishioners have learned to wrap up well on Sunday mornings. 86 12 11

David Reed Homes have gained a reputation for exclusive developments. Five-bedroom residences at their flagship house building scheme at Friends Walk Saffron Walden have sold for £160,000. They have constructed developments at Sawston, Park Lane Histon, Waterbeach and Grange Road Cambridge 86 12 11a

1986 12 12
Milton Road Infants is one of eight Cambridgeshire schools linked through a modem to an electronic mail system, the 'Times Network System'. Using word processors the children begin a story which is then finished by children at the Beeches School in Peterborough where 70 per cent of the pupils are Pakistani. They are also hoping to link up with Newcastle and America or a kibbutz in Israel. If teachers use the links imaginatively the pioneering new project will prove its worth. 86 12 12 & a # # c.36.5

1986 12 13
Cromwell House, one of Ely's most historic buildings, may be put on the market by the Diocesan Board of Finance. The house is used as the vicarage for St Mary's Church but it no longer meets present-day needs and the Board want to build a new vicarage in the garden. Oliver Cromwell lived in the property between 1636 and 1647 when he was Collector of the Ely Tithes. His two children were born there and baptised in St Mary's church 86 12 13

In most pubs the air is thick with cigarette fumes but now sections of the Free Press and Cambridge Blue have been turned into non-smoking zones at lunchtimes. Some drinkers approve as it makes the atmosphere much nicer. One Cambridge music lecturer said: "I don't approve of smoking. I think it should be banned. It's much more serious than taking drugs." Breweries are also waking up to the idea that clean air is important with improved air conditioning and smoking bans in food areas. It's not very common at present but may become so in the medium term. 86 12 13a # c.27.4

1986 12 15
Prince Charles made a secret journey to Cambridge to visit his old tutor Glynn Daniel, Emeritus Professor of Archaeology and Anthropology, just nine days before his death. Outside the University, Prof Daniel had carved an outstanding career as broadcaster and writer, appearing in the show 'Animal, Vegetable or Mineral' and the BBC2 history series 'Chronicle' and being voted 'Television Personality of the Year' in 1955. He was also a Director of Anglia Television and the Arts Theatre 86 12 15 & a

Memories of being 16 – 86 12 15b & c

1986 12 16
Hills Road Sixth Form College Ball, which was started by principal Colin Greenhalgh three years ago, was a sell-out. Students donned black ties and fancy gowns and danced until the early hours to the Billy White Band and Tiger Disco. Almost 100 of them had ballroom dancing lessons during school lunchtimes in preparation for the event. The hall was decorated with Christmas holly, balloons and silver paper borrowed from Unigate Dairy with a superb buffet provided by the school meals service 86 12 16

1986 12 17
Surgeons John Wallwork and Sir Roy Calne have carried out the world's first combined heart, lung and liver transplant at Papworth Hospital. The patient, a 37-year-miner's wife from Yorkshire, is recovering in intensive care. Papworth is one of the few hospitals where such a massive series of operations could take place. A total of 192 heart operations have been carried out since transplants began in 1979 together with 18 combined heart-lung transplants. 86 12 17

1986 12 18
Folk Museum celebrate 50th anniversary – Tom Doig – 86 12 18 # c.03

1986 12 19
The new 2.5 km Stuntney bypass, part of the A142 Fen Link Road project, was opened ahead of schedule. It has been constructed using the latest road-building techniques to ensure it does not sink into the soft peat. This was a recurring problem with the former stretch of causeway which was all ups and downs, like a Jollity Farm. Now special bitumen binders have been used to give more flexibility with nylon reinforcement to add strength. 86 12 19

1986 12 20
Christmas poultry sale at Cattle Market – 86 12 20

1986 12 22
Facilities in the King's Hedges area are not as bad as claimed: the accommodation is good and most people are quite happy watching television. But there is plenty of room for improvement, say residents. There is a library but more nightclubs would be welcomed by young people together with public lavatories and a chemist's shop and there is only one bus service. 86 12 22

Valuable silver ornaments stolen from Shudy Camps church have mysteriously turned up at Eltisley church. Thieves who broke into the 13th-century St Mary's church in September raided the safe and made off with a Victorian chalice and paten, both in solid silver, along with a silver and mother-of-pearl baptismal shell, together worth £1,000. They were left in Eltisley church porch with a note saying 'Please return to Shudy Camps. Bought in Error'. It is a lovely Christmas present for the village 86 12 22

1986 12 24
Father Christmas will have his work cut out to satisfy the child of 1986. Gone are the days when a simple doll or toy gun would do. When asked, Lynsey Bullivant wanted a toy pound puppy because they look so sad, Claire Boydell of St Ives hoped for a trip to watch ice-skaters Torvill and Dean in action and Richard Burton of Willingham wanted a cup win for Cambridge United. Caroline Robinson of Cambridge wrote to Santa: "I am trying to be good. I know you were in my chimney pot because you kicked some soot down" 86 12 24a

The Talking Newspaper has been compiled for the past 12 years by a team of committed people to give visually-handicapped people information to enable them to participate in the normal day-to-day chat that we all indulge in. Without it the blind can feel isolated. The three team editors incorporate many of their own interests in the arts and animal life in an hour-long tape containing a mixture of news culled from local sources, features and information such as death notices and forthcoming events. The newspaper has its own recording studio at Chesterton Hospital and is distributed through the free mailing service offered by the Post Office 86 12 24 # c.04

Christmas tv schedule – 86 12 24b

1986 12 27
Sales fever hit Cambridge as shoppers converged on city stores. Hundreds of bargain hunters took more than 10 minutes to throng into Eaden Lilley's in Market Street when the doors opened on the first day of the sales while at Joshua Taylor's nearby clothes and furniture were snapped up. In the Grafton Centre Debenhams was overwhelmed with people rushing to get in while Laskys hi-fi dealers are expecting a bumper day up and the Queensway furniture store in Coldham's Lane say sales have been booming. 86 12 27

1986 12 29
The Duke of Edinburgh visited Ely Cathedral to see for himself what needs to be done on the crumbling 11th-century building. Prince Philip, who is patron of the £4 million appeal fund, donned a boiler suit and clambered to the roof for a view of the nave which is dangerously decayed. The Dean, Bill Patterson, said the visit would boost the funds and that Her Majesty the Queen had given a personal donation 86 12 29

The big Sunday soccer crowd for Cambridge United's home match against Southend could mean more Sunday matches at the Abbey stadium next season. Manager Chris Turner described the attendance of 4,735 as 'fantastic'. "It was a great crowd. It looks as if the experiment paid off". The gate compared with a Saturday attendance of 3,498 for a local derby against Peterborough, the highest of the season so far. 86 12 29a

1986 12 30
Rupert Brooke pub, Grantchester – 86 12 30

1987 Cambridge Evening News

I have copies of these stories

January 1987 CEN

1987 01 02
After 46 years work at a Harston nursery Mr Len Warren – and a faithful cat called Tom – are both retiring. The inseparable pair will be leaving after a friendship which has bloomed over 15 years. Every day Tom, born at the nurseries, follows Len around the greenhouses and even meets him for work in the morning. Len started at Harvey and Sons Nurseries in the High Street when he was 14 and has grown everything from spring bulbs to radishes. Now he will enjoy the good life in his own large garden 87 01 02

1987 01 03
Bomb, p1

1987 01 05
Shopping, p1
Housing, p8
Blossom, p11 & 12th p15

1987 01 06
Bernard Brooks, 'dwarf' – 87 01 06
Popular names, p7

1987 01 08
Youngsters were given a 40-minute version of the history of the world by the chairman of the Cambridge Holiday Lectures, Dr Ronald Grey. It was one of eight lectures for schoolchildren during the Christmas holidays and featured items from Cambridge University's ten museums, from the dinosaur to the Ancient Greeks and Christianity. Another presentation was given by Dr Mary Archer who spoke on the future of solar energy 87 01 08

Traders are blaming Cambridge's parking problems for turning the market into a 'morgue' and 'cutting trade by up to 50 per cent'. They say shoppers are going elsewhere and the centre is dying simply because there is nowhere to park. There are too few car parks, too high parking fees, a loss of meter spaces and cuts in bus services. A Consultant's report commissioned by leading retailers and hotel bosses has also said that poor parking facilities are costing shops lost trade and a pressure group has called for a 1,000-space underground car park 87 01 08a # c.27.3

1987 01 09
People living near Conington have complained about the dumping of asbestos cement on the County Council landfill site. The material, which comes from Watford, will be brought by about 50 lorries a day for the next six months. But officials say there is no need to worry: it will be transported by covered vehicles and kept wet at all times. The waste will be buried below the water table and topped with material excavated to make room for the cement. The council had won the contract against competition from private firms and will make money on the project 87 01 09

1987 01 10
What could be the oldest phone box in the county has gone on sale in Cambridge. The wooden box with leaded windows has been at the Cambridge & County Bowling Club for more than 50 years. But time has taken its toll and the phone has been moved inside the pavilion. The kiosk, which dates back to the 1930s, is on sale for £50 to anyone who could use a strange-looking shed or has a penchant for the past. (It was bought by a Gt Shelford newsagent who planned to restore it as a garden hut for his children.) 87 01 10 & 13b # c.27.75

Prayers might save a redundant Cambridge church. City planners are considering a proposal from a London-based development company to create six shops covering two storeys inside St Andrew the Great. Developers claim their proposals will not materially affect the external appearance. But Councillor Andrew Duff says the west end would have obtrusive shopping units stuck on and the northern elevation would be graced by a dustbin corridor. The Redundant Churches Board has already turned down several suggestions including one to turn it into a heritage centre and tourist office. 87 01 10a

One of Cambridge's top hotels, the Garden House, is planning a £3 million expansion. Luxury apartments and 16 hotel rooms are proposed as well as a sophisticated leisure complex including swimming pool, sauna, gymnasium and health-food snack bar. Penthouse suites will be built along the River Cam front. The 117-room hotel has to compete with the Post House at Impington and the Moat House at Bar Hill while a new hotel is planned for Downing Street 87 01 10b # c.27.45

1987 01 12

Sir David Robinson, who had a flair for making money, shied away from publicity. He became Mid-Anglia's best-known philanthropist but lived in seclusion at his home in Newmarket. Sir David was the third son of Herbert Robinson's nine children and joined his father after leaving school. In 1930 he broke away from the family business and expanded into radio, electrical and cycle retailing. Business really took off in 1954 when he set up Robinson Rentals tv business; by 1966 it was employing 1,500 people. He retired to concentrate on horse racing. He later gave away millions. 87 01 12a & b

It was pitch dark at 3am one Sunday morning as a Newmarket lorry driver was making his way north of Littleport towards Welney. He was talking to his wife on CD radio when suddenly a bright green light appeared in the sky. It was heading down to earth at tremendous speed, then changed direction and zipped across the road before disappearing. His experiences follow that of two Burwell women who saw huge orange lights above the fields near Swaffham Prior. These are the first unidentified flying objects reported locally for six years. 87 01 12 # c.26.1

1987 01 13
As the big freeze tightened its grip on the region rail commuters were badly hit, schools closed and motorists slid to work as temperatures plunged too low for salt to work on roads. At Histon up to 1,000 homes had their electricity cut off due to underground frost-damaged cables. Cambridge's leading amateur weatherman, Percy Ashman, predicted that the coldest weather for over 50 years is on its way later this week 87 01 13a

The AA were inundated by calls to motorists stranded in the snow and hundreds more were caught without anti-freeze as overnight temperatures plunged to -11C. The River Cam was iced up for the fist time in five years and skaters were out in force on the flooded fen at Earith in perfect conditions of ice, sun and no wind. Many were practicing for the Fen Ice Skating Championships but for others it was pure pleasure. 87 01 13 # c.12 # c.46.5

1987 01 14
The skating French brothers from Peterborough are once again kings of the Fens. They dominated some of the fastest racing ever seen at Bury Fen, Earith. John French, a British Olympian at Lake Placid, beat Alan Fisher in one of the best finals of recent years to win the Fen Championship. His older brother Paul, who had driven through treacherous conditions from Cardiff, beat Willingham teenager Stephen Parker and Sutton-based David Smith for the Melton Morley Trophy. 87 01 14 & 16 # c.38 : ice skating

1987 01 15
Petrol supplies low in Arctic weather – 87 01 15

1987 01 16
Skating, p47

1987 01 17
The Swan public house in Linton High Street last served drinks in 1984. During the boom years 1977-1981 it had a darts team, pool team, Country and Western music and Masonic dinners. Don Westlake, the last landlord, still has some of the copperplate written records of the old days when it was a coaching inn. But he never came across the ghost which villagers say passed through together with a ghostly cold draught from time to time. Now it has been converted into two cottages and looks from the outside more as an old coaching inn should. 87 01 17

1987 01 19
History was made in Cambridge as the first electric trains arrived and departed at the station, although passengers travelling on the new-style trains seemed unaware of their historic first-day journey. The electrification has cost £10 million with a further £20 million being spent on resigning and improvements, and the main line from Cambridge to London was completed four months ahead of schedule. The operations manager said electrification was not yet fully implemented and electric engines would not be introduced until May 87 01 19 # c.26.2

1987 01 21
A new official booklet aimed at promoting tourism in Cambridge features a picture on the cover of a traffic warden booking a coach driver for parking outside King's College. It also shows groups of tourists standing under umbrellas in the rain. The drawings by a council artist appear in the Travel Trade Manual issued by the city's tourism department as part of a campaign to encourage visitors throughout the year. Councillors are amazed that they are telling millions of tourists to come to Cambridge and get booked for parking. 87 01 21 # c.46.45

Two supermarket giants could be involved in a race to build a new store in Newmarket. Tesco has applied for planning permission on Fordham Road less than 400 yards from a site where the Co-op wants a similar development. Tesco says it would replace their existing premises in Hammond Close and would be half the size of their Bar Hill superstore. The companies have submitted planning applications but there is unlikely to be sufficient shopping demand to justify them both. Three years ago the council rejected a plan for a supermarket, garden centre and DIY store in Fordham Road and also refused a Co-op supermarket on the Studlands Park Industrial Estate 87 01 21a

1987 01 22
A 16th-century listed building has been demolished without permission, councillors claim. The timber framed former Spastics Society shop is part of a shops and flats redevelopment site in Huntingdon High Street. But the architects say the place was in a terrible condition and simply collapsed when builders were removing tiles from the roof. The whole thing was rotten. It has not all fallen down, but the front wall has gone. 87 01 22

1987 01 24
The Blue Circle Cement Works in Coldham's Lane is to shut in June with the loss of 22 jobs. The news comes less than three years after a decision to reduce the 70-acre site from a quarry to simply a grinding and distribution depot. Workers have been worried about their future ever since the 1983 decision to wind down the operation with the loss of 91 jobs. The manager said it hadn't come as a total surprise and people had resigned themselves to it. It means that a prime development site could soon be on the market. 87 01 24 # c.27

1987 01 26
Cambridge councillors have abandoned plans to buy the old Kinema cinema and bingo hall in Mill Road because repairing the century-old building would cost too much. It had been hoped to restore it to its former glory as a Victorian entertainments palace but a structural survey has revealed more than 40 major faults. Some of the walls bulge, the building needs a complete new roof and all the woodwork would have to be renewed. Now it might be demolished to widen the road. 87 01 26 # c.76.9

1987 01 27
The landlord and his family were left homeless after fire gutted their pub at Cheveley. The blaze broke out in the bar and ripped through the rest of the Star and Garter, causing part of the roof to collapse. It is thought that the fire could have been caused by a smouldering cigarette. Their daughter was in the village school opposite when she saw smoke and flames pouring from the 19th-century hostelry which is owned by the Ipswich-based Tolly Cobbold brewery 87 01 27

Tressilian Nicholas of Trinity is the longest-serving Fellow of any Oxbridge College after completing more than 73 years tenure. Memories of great happiness and great achievement surround him as he sits in the tranquillity of his rooms in the Great Court. He distinguished himself during the Great War, finishing as a Major. From the depths of the trenches he poked a camera over the parapet to take panoramic photographs of the surrounding territory. Even now the geologist who first came as an undergraduate in 1907 and taught the generations that succeeded him, has lost none of his enthusiasm. 87 01 27a

1987 01 28
Neolithic burial ground found near Ely – 87 01 28

February 1987 CEN

1987 02 02
Ian Richard succeeds Tony Durham as CEN MD – 87 02 02 # c.04

Police are investigating the cause of a blaze which broke out early in the morning, causing severe damage to Haverhill youth centre. Burton Cottage in Camps Road, a listed, centuries-old 100-room building, has been a youth centre for 23 years and employs 16 full or part-time staff. It is a severe blow to the 200 youngsters who use it every week. Arrangements have been made to hold the youth club at St Mary's church tonight. 87 02 02a

1987 02 05
When Margaret Hyde succeeds Ian Masters as head of BBC Radio Cambridgeshire she will be the only serving female station manager. Currently chief assistant to the head of broadcasting in the North West, she has worked for local radio in Merseyside and Radio Lancashire and will miss the 'anarchy' of Liverpool. She sees little reason for changing what is already a winning formula but is looking forward to bringing a 'fresh ear' to the station. 87 02 05 # c.27.8

1987 02 06
Cambridge United has turned the corner financially under the leadership of manager Chris Turner. Last season's Fourth Division failure left the club with a massive debt of £122,000. But the six months to last November showed a profit of around £40,000, putting them on their way to the best financial figures since their Second Division heyday seven years ago. After having to apply for re-election to the League they reached the Fourth Round of the Littlewoods Cup, earning a money-spinning match against Tottenham Hotspur and their gates are up by an average of 1,000 per game. As well as the club lottery the Lotto and Lifeline has also made a big contribution 87 02 06 # c.38 : football

1987 02 10
At Comberton Village College classes now start at 8.30am and the lunch-break has been cut to 40 minutes. But when the school day comes to an end at 2.50pm many children opt to stay behind, having enrolled on one of the 16 different activities such as badminton, drama electronics or Frisbee coaching. None of the pupils actually like jumping out of bed earlier in the morning but prefer the new scheme as it gives them time to pursue new hobbies. Some mothers are concerned about their children getting tired but like not having to ferry them to after-school activities elsewhere 87 02 10 & a

1987 02 11
The army has been called in to carry out a rescue operation for villagers in Hempstead. Rust had jammed the hands of the church clock at half past six, even though the 25-year-old mechanism was in perfect working order and still ticking away. Men from the First Queens Dragoon Guards, based at Carver Barracks, Wimbish who normally specialise in sabotage, abseiled down the church tower to remove and later replace the clock hands. Now villagers can synchronise their watches for the first time in years 87 02 11

1987 02 12
A.J. Sennitt of Stretham gets top price for cattle – 87 02 12

Talent spotters auditioned acts for a spot on Tom O'Connor's BBC Road Show at the Corn Exchange. Plucky Albert O'Dell, 80, is seeking for fame late in life. Cheered on by his wife he sped through imitations of animal and bird calls. Crooner David Bensley of Cambridge, a Frank Sinatra fan, put on an excellent show despite his tape machine playing the backing music too slowly. John Barry of Littleport who owns two TV shops might be on screen if his country music wins over the judges while Cambridge comedy jazz trio Froggits could be a strong contender: they are about to release an LP 87 02 12a

1987 02 13
If you are old enough to remember enthusiastic musicians who took to the stage with washboards, banjos and not much money, you will recall a star of yesteryear. Lonnie Donegan will appear at the Corn Exchange alongside Cambridge singer-songwriter Steve Somers who is a member of the famous skiffler's new eight-man band. The 'Father of Skiffle' has teamed up with jazz veteran Monty Sunshine to form Donegan's Dancing Sunshine Band and will make one of his first comeback concerts just two years after his last appearance at Newmarket Cabaret Club 87 02 13a

Tributes to Conservative County Council leader Mrs Emily Blatch have been flowing in following the news that she is to become a baroness. Social Security Minister, Mr John Major, said "She was an outstanding leader and will make a very substantial contribution to the work of Parliament" while Sir Anthony Grant MP thinks it's very good news. Mrs Blatch is the fifth woman in Cambridgeshire to be made a baroness. Among her colleagues in the Lords will be Baroness Nicol of Newnham 87 02 13

1987 02 16
Intercell, the distinctive smoked glass building on the corner of Newmarket Road and Coldham's Lane, is to become home to a firm specialising in printed circuits. Work on the building, initially called the Zigzag, started in October 1985. Designed by Cambridge firm Roger Perrin Architects for a high-tech company wanting a high profile it features air-conditioning, anti-static carpet and a lift together with parking for 47 cars. 87 02 16

The 'News' has entered the computer age. Now reporters' typewriters have been replaced by computer screens and their stories are transmitted electronically to the sub-editors who check for mistakes, write headlines and determine what type-size it should be printed. This is done on screen before being sent electronically to be photo-set. When each page is finished it is made into a metal plate using lasers and is ready for printing. If all goes smoothly a story can take just half an hour to go through the entire system 87 02 16a & b # c.04

1987 02 18
Joshua Taylor is a household name in Cambridge. The department store which has stood in the centre of the city for 150 years remains in the hands of the original family. Today it is run by Annabel, daughter of the fifth Joshua Taylor who remains chairman. She has a staff of 160 and finds the challenge of giving each department its unique character is a marvellous way of expressing her personality 87 02 18 & a

1987 02 23
Two Newmarket families had a miracle escape when a blazing American jet crashed just a few feet from their home. The F-111 plane plummeted into the garden of a house at Clarehaven Stables in Bury Road. Wreckage was scattered over the garden and holes were made in the house roof. But miraculously no one inside was hurt. The plane's two crew members were blasted clear by their ejector seats and were treated by a team from the Magpas 'flying doctor' service. 87 02 23

The F-111 jet crash at Newmarket is the latest in a string of accidents. Two months ago two RAF Tornadoes plummeted into the countryside, one close to Peterborough and the other just missed a Norfolk school. In 1985 a Canberra exploded into flames when it smashed into fields near Alconbury. In 1981 an F-111 crashed while approaching Lakenheath and another rocked houses at Harlton when it hit the ground with practice bombs aboard. In December 1977 a fighter came down a few hundred yards from a Newmarket school sparking a major scare as police feared one of the plane's bombs could have gone off 87 02 23a # c.26.1

Prince Edward turned the royal handshake into the 'Windsor Knot' and hurled heavyweight champion wrestler, Neil Sands, clean over his shoulders. Then the prince – dubbed the "Sandringham Slammer" did it again. The canvas of the wrestling ring in the Corn Exchange shook as the ex-marine prince went through his routine for the stunning finale to the Cambridge Youth Theatre's production of "Trafford Tanzi" 87 02 23b # c.02

1987 02 24
Henry Button, now aged 73, is a one-man fact-finding mission. He's had more than 30 letters published in The Times, enticing readers to help solve a puzzle. But facts about the university hold a special place in his enquiring mind. He is now trying to discover who in history has been the youngest professor. Roger Cotes was '25 and a bit' when appointed Plumian professor of astronomy in the 17th century. But records also show Edward (not Eddie) Waring to have been 25 when he took the Lucasian professorship of mathematics in the following century. 87 02 24

Cambridge station is receiving a major facelift. As the service changes from diesel-hauled locomotives to more environmentally-acceptable Electric Multiple Units, the last vestiges of the steam trains – which disappeared in the early 60s – have been scrubbed away. The smoky grime of those decades has gone as the whole building received a sandblasted clean-up. The bright brickwork now reveals sets of the heraldic crests of the colleges that were part of the original building in 1845. These have also been restored and crests of those colleges formed since then are being added. 87 02 24a # c.26.2

1987 02 25
John Brackenbury former naval officer and warden of Impington Village College teacher has been an unlikely politician. But for seven years has thrown himself into the cut and thrust of council work. He was Alliance chairman of the Education Committee during a turbulent time when teachers took strike action. He's represented Histon and Impington since 1981 but has now resigned his seat and is retiring to rural Kent. 87 02 25 & a

1987 02 26
Veteran rocker Lonnie Donegan danced the night away at Cambridge Corn Exchange – but didn't manage to sell out the hall. Only 500 fans turned up. The problem was that the Hollies were on the following night. Then huge traffic jams built up with a 150-yard queue. The Manchester 60s super group stepped on to the revamped stage and into the hearts of a once-swinging generation of pop fans playing 'Just One Look', 'Carrie Ann' 'Bus Stop' and a host of other hits 87 02 26 # c.69

1987 02 27
Cambridge United are aiming to build a major office complex at the Abbey Stadium in a bid to win their battle for soccer survival. The idea is to provide office space over the car park adjoining Newmarket Road which would produce £30,000 a year. Other options are to seek help from the city council or consider part-time football. Chairman David Ruston told shareholders that he might quit unless the club's cash position improves. 87 02 27 # c.38 : football

Trumpington newsagent Bert Truelove is celebrating half a century in the trade – and he is only 57. He started selling papers in his father's Stapleford shop in 1937 when he was so small that he had to stand on a box to see the customers. After the war the family came to Trumpington and battled through years of austerity when a shortage of papers meant demand for copies of the News often succeeded supplies. It is a different picture now with a boom in sales. New technology ensures he gets the papers on time. He has not forgotten the paper boys and girls who have helped him over the years: they have been invited to a disco in the village hall. 87 02 27a # c.04

March 1987 CEN

1987 03 02
A scheme which would offer free bus rides on the rates to the unemployed could be launched by the city council. The Labour Group says it could help job seekers in their search for jobs. Unemployed people would be asked to pay £1 a week for their concessionary passes, but this might be refunded by the DHSS. It could either allow half-price travel during certain periods or unlimited travel which would cost about £10,000 a year 87 03 02

1987 03 05
With twelve-bore shotgun in hand and springer spaniel by his side Harold Pearman is a familiar figure at Anglesey Abbey estate where he has worked as a gamekeeper for 40 years. He has lived a countryman's life, man and boy and wouldn't swap it for anything. The red-cheeked 84-year-old enjoys robust health and can still be found feeding the game birds first thing in the morning, splitting logs, setting a few traps and busying himself generally keeping 'vermin' at bay 87 03 05

Tourists, p1

1987 03 06
Commuters are suffering from a culture shock say British Rail chiefs who have set out to defend their newly-electrified service between Cambridge and London. Since trial runs began in January, complaints have poured in. The electric trains have disappointed many passengers who are used to a spacious inter-city style service. They say the new carriages are cramped with little luggage space, small seats and no tables. Yet BR is faced with a surge in passengers – especially during the rush hour – and can only cope in this way, even if it means making the quality of the ride slightly less comfortable - 87 03 06

Free Common Market butter has been distributed to poor people in Haverhill. Two thousand buckets – or half a ton – was distributed by the Salvation Army in co-operation with local churches and charities. Lieut. Bryony Stimpson said: "We have got about 20 of the 50 boxes left and if that looks to be going I will have to go and collect some more". People on supplementary benefit, family income supplement or supplementary pensions are eligible for the EEC butter. Charities will be delivering to people who are housebound. 87 03 06a

1987 03 07
An Alliance county councillor's plans to close Milton Road public library and sell off the site for redevelopment has staggered his party colleagues. He claims the closure together with another in Lt Downham and two in Peterborough would be in accordance with plans to 'rationalise' the number of libraries. But other councillors say they will start a campaign to keep them open. Robert Rhodes James, MP, has also vowed to fight 'tooth and nail' to save Milton Road library from closure 87 03 07, 12a

1987 03 09
Three men from the Newmarket area went on a drinking spree and missed the 'Herald of Free Enterprise' ferry, but two lorry drivers employed by a Littleport haulage firm are among the passengers still missing after the disaster. At Zeebrugge the number of people feared entombed in the sunken ferry is now put at 81, with 53 other bodies recovered. Recovery could take three weeks if the weather is favourable 87 03 09, 87 03 10, 11

Rag week, p7
Agricultural workers' rally, p7

1987 03 10
Zeebrigger fears, p1

1987 03 11

Zeebrugger victims, p1

1987 03 12
Colin Moule succeeds Gordon Richards as editor Weekly News series – 87 03 12 # c.04
Library closure, p23

1987 03 13
A new purpose-built car park providing 67 long-stay spaces has opened in Castle Hill, with another 57 places coming in a few months time. City councillors say the park, near the junction with Victoria Road, will offer convenient access to shops and businesses in the north of Cambridge. It will have a park-and-display system charging 50p for any period on weekdays, doubling to £1 on April 1st. But there will be free parking in evenings and Sundays 87 03 13a # c.26.48

Milton Road library is not to be closed – 87 03 13 # c.77.4

Cambridge's traditional transport, the bicycle, will be deliberately used to slow down city centre traffic. The medieval central streets will be made even narrower which will make it even more difficult to overtake bikes. Traffic restrictions will also be introduced, including the banning of taxis. The streets have been reshaped and cleaned up with York stone used in areas considered 'visually sensitive'. But workmen in Trinity Street have been delayed by having to remove hundreds of wooden blocks dating back to the days of horse-drawn vehicles 87 03 13b # c.24.485

1987 03 14
Barrett's China and Glass shop in St Mary's Street is to close after 200 years in Cambridge with the business transferred to Newmarket. The owner says that the appalling parking problems are one factor for the move. In January a city centre gift shop and a doctor's surgery both moved out for the same reason. The Parsley Pot shop in Lion Yard has also closed. The Managing Director of Eaden Lilley has warned the parking crisis in traffic-choked Cambridge could only get worse. 87 03 14 # c.27.2

1987 03 16
Stretham Rectory could be converted into a fully-equipped residential youth centre for the Diocese of Ely. It is a marvellous building with no structural problems, although it needs repair. Plans have been drawn up to provide 14 bedrooms and mini-dormitories while the adjoining stable block could accommodate the rector or a full-time youth worker. The scheme is part of a plan to attract youngsters to the church. 87 03 16

Rita and Ron Maxwell have been running the Comfort Café at Abington for 16 years and have noticed little change in a trucker's taste. The favourite meal is the breakfast special of bacon, egg, fried bread, sausage, beans or tomatoes, two slices of white bread and butter with a mug of tea. All for the outstanding price of £1.70p. Dinner is real steak pie or pork chops with peas. But they know not to serve the men food from the microwave: they are not into new-fangled gadgets and would just sling it back. The giant stainless steel teapot holds eight pints of tea and is changed every couple of hours. 87 03 16a

1987 03 17
Pawnbroker, p14

1987 03 19
European Scouts, distinguished on parade by a traditional uniform of wide-brimmed hats and shorts, are making their mark in the Cambridge area. Locally they were born amid controversy three years ago when a Girton group, then belonging to the mainstream Scout Association, switched to the Federation of European Scouting. Together with groups in Waterbeach and Chesterton, bringing numbers to 140, the now account for 10% of European Scouts in England. They stick closer to the original Baden Powell principles – concentration on skills that can't be classroom learned. 87 03 19 # c.37.9

A £150,000 restoration project at the 700-year-old Balsham Church is nearly finished. Work has concentrated on the ancient tower which was unsafe as buttresses were crumbling. In one of the last jobs before the scaffolding is dismantled workmen Tony Stacey and Alan Larhan laid a commemorative stone. Still to be done are window repairs and the installation of bells. The Rector said that English Heritage had been very generous in giving a grant, but the church still had to raise around £15,000. 87 03 19a

Cricketers at Audley End have been stumped by an order to remove their pavilion – less than a year after putting it up. The club, who play on the front lawn of Audley End mansion, have been told by English Heritage that the pavilion does not fit with its historic surroundings. The building, comprising three temporary units, had been painted to English Heritage's specification. It is tucked away under trees adjacent to the old stable block and cannot be seen from the House. The club says the cost of a permanent pavilion was beyond its means. But it could put a façade around the present structure. 87 03 19b

1987 03 20
The name of Histon will sound sweet to Margaret Thatcher today. For there the Alliance national bandwagon, which has gained so much momentum, has been thrown into reverse. Last night saw a massive Conservative victory in the County Council by-election for the Histon division when Neville Pritchard won by 426 votes. Coming two days after the Budget it precedes the May council elections which will be a vital factor in the Government's decision whether to call a General Election. The Alliance say the result will make no difference. 87 03 20

1987 03 23
A new style electric train took just 47 minutes to travel from London to Cambridge breaking the previous speed record of 55 minutes set by a steam loco in the late 1950s. The train brought a group of VIPs to the city for a ceremony to mark the opening of a £650,000 revamp to the railway station. There are new offices and lavatories together with a telephone inquiry bureau while outside the forecourt paving has been extended and trees planted. It is part of a bid to improve train services, which includes electrification of the line to Royston 87 03 23 # c.26.2

A local building firm marked 30 years of existence in style with a special celebration. C.G. Whitmore & Son started in a garage at the bottom of its founder's garden. It is still firmly ensconced behind 159 Cherryhinton Road, the terrace house that was home as well as business headquarters for company founder Cyril George Whitmore who died in 1980. In the early days they undertook mainly decorating jobs and domestic repairs. Now they will undertake any building project from house extension to house building. 87 03 23a # c.23

1987 03 24
Store giant Sainsbury's has announced plans for a superstore on the Arbury Camp site, creating more than 300 jobs. The supermarket could occupy a six-acre site closest to the interchange between the Northern Bypass and Histon Road. It would have a petrol station, coffee shop and parking for 500 cars. There would also be a park-and-ride site.This would be part of a mixed development of retail and research areas with a large ornamental lake. An Inspector has recommended that the site be taken out of the belt because it made a minimal contribution to the special character of Cambridge. But planners have so far disagreed 87 03 24 # c.49.4

The Railway House Association stands as a chilling monument to the suffering, heartache and degradation inflicted on youngsters in the Cambridge area. Many of those who have sought sanctuary have been subjected to physical violence, neglect, mental abuse and sexual crimes. In the last year the Mill Road hostel, which consists of three houses divided into 12 flats, has taken in 26 young people who might otherwise have been sleeping rough. But another 60 have had to be turned away. 87 03 24a & b # c.32.9

1983 03 26
Chirpy market trader Bill Gray has gone to extreme lengths to keep his customers happy. He even skinned a rabbit for one person who stopped to buy some fruit and veg. His beaming smile and friendly small-talk has been a big boost for business. And the smile does not fade when the rain lashes down. Bill, of Gt Shelford, has been a familiar face during the past 31 years. But now he is calling it a day and will hand the business over to his son and daughter-in-law. But his regulars – who include the wife of the former Master of Trinity - will be pleased to know that he will still help out sometimes. 87 03 26 # c.27.2

1987 02 27
John Kisby, the man responsible for road maintenance in Cambridgeshire eastern area, has retired after a 38-year career. 87 03 27

Cambridge's oldest firm of solicitors, Francis & co which was founded in 1789, is to merge with Norwich-based Mills and Reeve to become one of the largest practices outside London. The move follows the merger of leading local accountants Chater & Myhill with Peat Marwick, the UK's leading accountancy practice. And it takes place during a period of extraordinary upheaval in estate agency which has seen the acquisition or merger of many firms including Ekins, Mullucks, Hunters, Gray Cook, Regent Estates and Watsons. Almost all of them have been absorbed by insurance groups or building societies. 87 03 27a # c.06

The world-famous Cambridge University Hawks Club, founded in the early 19th century, is to open in the city's up-market Portugal Place. It will turn the former Blue Boar Hotel's staff hostel into a club for the university's top sportsmen similar to the better gentleman's clubs in St James, London. Residents have expressed worries about noise and one councillor thought it wrong to spend such money when Cambridge urgently needs student accommodation. But supporters say it is a 'very valuable little house' that would be exceedingly well looked after. 87 03 27b # c.37.9

1987 03 28
Killer gales left a trail of havoc throughout Britain. At Waresley a freak gust of wind blew the top off the church tower. An eyewitness said "The top of the spire was lifted off and then there was a big cloud of dust and pieces floating about". The timber-framed structure landed between a tree and the church lych-gate scattering debris across the road and into the garden of the village pub. Miraculously no-one was hurt 87 03 28

Gale-lashed Cambridgeshire is counting the cost of 70 mph winds that caused damage and destruction. A roof was torn off a pig farm building in Molesworth, two children were injured at Godmanchester when they were hit by a falling tree and a wall collapsed on three cars at St Eligius Street in Cambridge. Some 20 cars and lorries were bowled over by the wind and four buses overturned. Two lorries collided after being blown together on the A45 near Eltisley, a furniture van was blown off the A10 on the Norfolk border and passengers in a Mini had a narrow escape when it was struck by a falling tree in Fordham Road, Newmarket 87 03 28a

Residents in the picture postcard village of Houghton have rejected plans to install sodium street lights. They voted in favour of more-expensive Victorian-style lamps. Sodium lighting would be awful and quite out of character with a village which has buildings dating back to the 15th century, they say. But the parish council may still go ahead with the modern lights scheme recommended by county council experts. 87 03 28b

1987 03 30
The Education Secretary, Kenneth Baker, has approved the controversial decision to close the Roger Ascham School for the physically handicapped in Cambridge, despite a long-running battle by parents and governors to save it. Pupils will be transferred to special units at the Grove Primary School and Impington Village College as part of the county council policy of integrating handicapped youngsters with able-bodied children. The senior education officer said he was pleased, though upset that the news had been leaked before parents could be told officially. 87 03 30

Chadwyck-Healey, the Cambridge publishing firm, have begun to completely alter the world's view of the 19th century. Paper made since 1845 contains a great deal of acid and is crumbling away. Over the next 30 years one quarter of a million books and pamphlets published between 1801 and 1900 will be transferred to microfiche, ensuring they are preserved for future study. Each microfiche, a sheet of transparent plastic measuring about 4 x 6 inches, holds about 35,000 words. Libraries will be able to buy books, some of them very rare at about £3.60 each. There is already much interest in the project with subscribers in Britain, America, West Germany and Japan. The project is due to be completed before 2019. 87 03 30a

April 1987 CEN

1987 04 01
Princess Anne has become the first member of the Royal Family to visit the Great Chesterford factory of Swaine Adeney Brigg and Sons. The firm has made umbrellas, gloves, walking sticks and other leather goods for most of her relatives and ancestors since the reign of George III. The Princess and her husband, Captain Mark Phillips chatted to Joan Cowley who supervises 16 women producing 900 umbrellas a week. She also saw a despatch box belonging to Prince Charles that was being refurbished as it had got a bit tatty. 87 04 01

1987 04 02
Cambridge Diet devised by Alan Howard – feature – 87 04 02

Fifty year ago, as the Spanish Civil War raged about her, a Basque mother who had already lost her husband in the bitter fighting, put five children on a ship leaving for England. Today her two sons still live in Cambridge. Tony and Joe Gallego were amongst 29 children housed at Pampisford Vicarage, which was turned into a hostel. Later they moved to Salisbury Villas. Their sisters were scattered, going to join families in different parts of the country. It was to be ten years before their mother saw any of them again. 87 04 02a # c.45.6

1987 04 03
Lazy Otter opens at Stretham Ferry – 87 04 03 & a

1987 04 04
Burwell manor house and maltings is home to Mike Gernat's recruitment agency – 87 04 04

1987 04 06
Veteran rocker Jerry Lee Lewis gave a high voltage performance at the Corn Exchange. The audience ranged from the Mayor, John Woodhouse, to the secretary of Cambridge Elvis Presley Fan Club. Quiffs and DAs sprouted from male heads while the girls sported pony tails, satin or chiffon ribbons and bright lipstick. Teds wore their distinctive plumage of drape jackets and drainpipe trousers. All united in a huge roar as a short figure strolled on to the stage and the opening bars of 'Roll Over Beethoven' powered round the hall. 87 04 06 # c.69

1987 04 07
The Government has approved the £130 million A1-M1 link-road through Cambridgeshire. The dual carriageway will bring much-needed relief from heavy traffic to a string of villages and give Cambridge direct high-speed access to the industrial Midlands and the North. The route will broadly follow the line of the A604 removing the 'curse of the juggernaut' and greatly improve links with the national road network. Construction could begin early next year 87 04 07

1987 04 08

Ken Quick is retiring as Sergeant-at-Mace after 25 years during which time he has advised new Mayors of Cambridge and acted as their chauffeur. He was also Town Crier, donning top hat and red coat twice a year at the Midsummer and Reach fairs. When the Queen visited in 1984 he had to push the then mayor, Coun Betty Suckling, in a wheelchair as she had broken a leg. Until 1974 he worked on Christmas Day when civic visits were paid to the sick in hospital. His dedication was recognised with the award of the British Empire Medal. Now he hopes to write up his diary – but promises that no skeletons will be brought out of the cupboard 87 04 08 87 04 11 # c.35.7

1987 04 09
Frank King, bellringer at Gt St Mary's – feature – 87 04 09 # c.69.6

1987 04 10
Bottisham was the county's third Village College when it opened in May 1937. In those days people came in the evening to cook, mend their farm machinery and listen to religious music rather than sit at home with only a gas lamp and nothing to do. Now they come for swimming, yoga and bingo. The jubilee will be celebrated with an exhibition, book and the planting of 2,000 trees. The current pupils are planning a big social event of their own 87 04 10

1987 04 14
Frederick Moore is retiring from the company he started over 50 years ago. After some initial work at Oakington he moved to the present Histon Road site in 1937 where most of the work involved re-boring car engines. Extensions were built in the early '50s and late '60s when the workforce climbed to 36-strong. Now one of Cambridge's oldest engineering firms, it carries out general motor engineering and machine tool-grinding. The business has been bought by Griffin Machine Tools of Keighley, Yorkshire who may build a new workshop on the site 87 04 14

1987 04 15
Reginald 'Wick' Alsop, OBE, President of the Cambridgeshire 99 Rowing Club, has died aged 92. So-named after the village of Wicken where he grew up, he dedicated his life to rowing. He joined the 99 club in 1921 and was club secretary, then President. He was a familiar character around Cambridge well-known for the fresh carnation he always wore in his button hole. Wick was associated with many institutions and charities and was awarded his OBE for services to the community 87 04 15

1987 04 16
Huge crowds turned out to welcome the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh as they arrived in Ely for the special Maundy Service at the Cathedral. It was only the third time a reigning monarch has been to the city in 700 years and everyone was determined to make the visit an occasion to remember. The Royal couple were greeted at the station by officials and drove to the Gallery in a glass topped Rolls-Royce. Their route along Back Hill was lined with cheering, flag-waving crowds. At the West Door the Queen was greeted by the Bishop of Ely, the Rt Rev Peter Walker. Inside the Cathedral capacity congregation of 2,600 representatives from church and civic life in the diocese waited to witness the distribution of the Royal Maundy which the Queen handed out to 122 pensioners - one man and one woman for each year of her age. It was a memorable day for pupils from St Mary's school in Ely who were chosen as the Children of the Royal Almonry. After the service the Royal couple went over to the crowd who had waited patiently in the spring sunshine 87 04 16 # c.02

The Methodist chapel in the tiny village of Ousden has been saved from closure following repairs. The chapel, built 115 years ago, has just nine members in the congregation but they have managed to raise the cash by an appeal which brought donations from as far away as America, New Zealand and Japan. The floor needed replacing because of wet rot but due to the response other jobs have been done as well. 87 04 16a

1987 04 18
A centuries-old tradition was revived on Good Friday when crowds swarmed to skip on Parker's Piece. Tourists looked on in bewilderment as children, mums, dads and grannies took their turn. Even the Mayor, Coun John Woodhouse, had a go with the skipping rope, although he had not skipped since playground days. His wife revealed that as children they both used skipping ropes to tie up people's doors. The event was arranged by Radio Cambridgeshire with News columnist Christopher South roping in onlookers to have a go. – 87 04 18 # c.39

1987 04 21
A Bourn couple who have supplied fellow villages with newspapers for 25 years were honoured at a retirement presentation. Ron and Doris Jones, who delivered the papers themselves in Bourn, Caxton and Longstowe, were presented with a radio, rose bowl and tin of biscuits. Doris made friends with dogs on her round by tempting them with pocketfuls of biscuits, so villages thought it was time to turn the tables. 87 04 21

1987 04 23
Major moves to curb cyclist and pedestrian accidents in traffic-choked Cambridge are now under way. New pavements have been laid and roads have been narrowed with the aim of using bikes as 'traffic regulators'. This has made it very unpleasant for cyclists who have to choose either to ride in the middle of the road and be harassed by impatient drivers or at the side and have pedestrians stepping out in front of them and cars squeezing dangerously by. Motorists drive menacingly close so that the cyclist in panic pedals even faster like a frightened hen. 87 04 23 # c.26.485

1987 04 24
Cambridge's cult band, Harvey and the Wallbangers, are making one last date in the city before bowing out of the business. The good-time/rock harmony/doo-wop swingers are splitting up. The Wallbanger's cocktail of music and comedy made them one of the best-loved bands of their kinds. But founder and supreme Harvey Brough says they are getting tired of constant touring; they want to write and record. Guitarist Johnny Griffiths is becoming a maths teacher but the rest are sitting back and waiting for whatever comes next 87 04 24

1987 04 25
City councillors have stepped in to stave off the shock closure of the Cambridge Folk Museum which is celebrating its 50th anniversary. They decided to give an immediate grant to help it over its financial crisis for the next six months after its curator, Tom Doig, told how it received little income and there were no private financial resources. Councillors are also rethinking proposals to treble the Museum's rent to £12,000 a year. 87 04 25

1987 04 28
One of Britain's oldest booksellers, Deighton Bell in Trinity Street, which dates back to 1700 and specialises in antiquarian and rare volumes, has been sold to nearby Heffers. It takes them back to second-hand books, a department it gave up in 1974 because of lack of space. Then they had sold their stock to Deighton Bell and had maintained a good relationship ever since. The shop will remain on the corner of Trinity Street and Green Street and continue to be run by John Beech his staff 87 04 28

1987 04 30
Test-tube baby land is enjoying a new boom. As more desperate childless couples flock to the world-famous Bourn Hall infertility clinic so the demand for accommodation has become tremendous. More than 40 local villagers and at least 100 residents within a five-mile radius have gone into the bed-and-breakfast business. Farm buildings, outhouses and spare bedrooms are being converted into cost motel-like rooms, charging a top whack of £20 a night for a double. Many people come from abroad and stay for up to two months. 87 04 30

May 1987 CEN

1987 05 01

The £3.5 redevelopment at Newmarket's Rowley Mile racecourse was officially opened by Lord Fairhaven, the Jockey Club Senior Steward, on the opening day of the Guineas meeting. It is the first phase of a programme which will transform the whole racecourse over the next 12-15 years. At a separate ceremony a statue of the world-famous stallion, Mill Reef, was presented to the National Horseracing Museum. The bronze, sculptured by renowned artist John Skeaping was unveiled by Paul Mellon, the horse's owner. 87 05 01

1987 05 05
Comberton may expand under controversial new plans. Developers Alfred McAlpine Homes want to build 215 houses and an employment centre on a 40-acre site to meet the growing demand for housing. It would safeguard the Village College and speed the connection of gas. The village is not earmarked for development in the county structure plans and there is no support for the scheme by residents. But with the recent rejection of plans for Clay Farm Trumpington there is pressure for extra housing in nearby settlements 87 05 05

A £10million plan for building a huge 'tertiary college' at Howes Close off Huntingdon Road has been secretly dropped by the County Council. The proposals for a three-storey building to accommodate at least 2,000 students caused a wave of protest when it was first announced as it would have worsened the already bad traffic conditions. But plans for an alternative site for a new college, which would mean the end of the present sixth-form college system, will continue 87 05 05a # c.36.7

A Swaffham Bulbeck architect has won a prestigious award for the restoration of Landbeach's 12th-century church. The King of Prussia's Gold Medal, awarded by the Historic Churches Preservation Trust, will be presented at Lambeth Palace. Cecil Bourne, who has been supervising work on the church for the past eight years, says the church was quite a dangerous structure and badly in need of repair. Fund raisers have collected £150,000 for work to the tower, spire, nave and chancel but more remains to be done. 87 05 05a

1987 05 06
The 143 year-old Madingley School hit the national newspaper headlines in 1978 when it was considered too small and scheduled for closure. But the 200 villagers drew up a plan of action and determined to save it. It has now grown from 10 to 36 pupils. Costs are kept down by teachers taking home less money – the new head earns £10,000 a year compared the normal £15,500 – and parents take it in turn to clean. They raise money through market stalls selling cakes and calendars made by the children. 87 05 06

1987 05 07
Three years ago Harston Mill was a stinking derelict building that had been abandoned by its animal feed-producing owners with an assortment of odd sheds which had been used for storage. Now it has been transformed into the home for one of the new electronic generation of companies, Cambridge Interactive Systems. The old building has been restored with a modern office block clad in mirrored glass and an artificial pool where the real river once ran. Now computer chips perform their electronic miracles in air-conditioned silence in the same place where cogs once slowly turned as they ground the corn. 87 05 07

Six Mile Bottom Hall for sale – 87 05 07a

1987 05 08
The Little Rose in Trumpington Street, a 17th-century listed building, may be converted into a restaurant by its owners, Peterhouse. The Campaign for Real Ale say it is extremely popular and one of the few Bass Charrington pubs in the area. The brewery is disappointed. It is one of the oldest licensed premises in Cambridge and they thought there was a strong case for retaining it, extending the eating facilities in line with demand 87 05 08 c.27.4

Ely Cathedral boasts the greatest scissor roof in the world but many of the rotting medieval beams need replacing. So they have launched a 'Raise the Roof' project enabling schoolchildren to buy new beams and sign them for posterity before they are placed in the roof. Restorers have also been given the chance to clear up the marvellous painted ceiling which is already looking bright and new again 87 05 08a

Stretham parish council claim ECDC backing for Westmere was secret – 87 05 08b

Bottisham Village College jubilee celebrations include an exhibition portraying the college through the last five decades. It hasn't forgotten its origins as a "countryman's college". In the 1930s when the original school was built, Bottisham was a poor farming district. It was a time when education was depressed and children were collected from neighbouring villages to attend what was only the second village college to be opened. Then it had 211 pupils, today there are 960. 87 05 08c

1987 05 12
Villagers in Milton are having to come to terms with the news that a Tesco superstore has been given the go-ahead by Whitehall. For some it will mean £200,000 worth of recreation facilities which the shopping giant has promised – plus cheap and easy shopping. But others fear it will damage the village and even devalue some homes nearby. The new store and filling station could spell disaster for local shopkeepers, whose businesses face being wiped out. Worst hit will be Maid Marion VG Stores and the Benet Garage. 87 05 12

The ink jet printer can be traced back to 1971 when Graeme Minto was leader in a project at Cambridge Consultants. In 1978 he formed Domino whose first product, the Unijet was used in numbering lottery ticket books and in the food packaging industry. In 1982 they moved from Milton to large new premises at Bar Hill, joined forces with American Technologies Inc and gained the Queen's Award for Technological achievement in 1985. 87 05 12a # c.27.1

1987 05 13
A statue of Minerva, the Roman goddess of Wisdom, which stood on the top of Huntingdon's Commemoration Hall for more than a century, has now been restored after being missing for 27 years. Three broken bits of the original statue were found in the Hall basement and taken to the county records office until a £3,000 glass fibre replica was made recently. Town clerk Ted Bocking, council architect John Rudman and parks superintendent John Childs joined forces to lift the new bronze-coated figure back into place 40 feet above the High Street 87 05 13

1987 05 14
The last post has sounded for the most painted pillar box in Cambridge. Post office chiefs have removed the box from Trinity Lane, angry at the psychedelic treatment a phantom artist has been giving it with increasing frequency. Last month the prank painter left it in pink, white and maroon stripes. Some yellow ducks followed soon after. Markham Towler, a member of the Letterbox Study Group, says the pillar box was of a rare type and was one of the city's oldest, being installed before 1887. 87 05 14 # c.27.7

1987 05 16
The windmill at Lt Wilbraham is believed to date from 1820. Back in the 1930s it was a sorry state but was saved from dereliction before it became too dilapidated. It was not until 1965 that it was first used as a dwelling after a careful conversion by local architect Cecil Bourne. The interior has cedar panelling taken from Quy Hall but retains enough atmosphere to recall the days when the rumbling of the sails and the grinding of the mill wheel were a part of village life. The sails were removed five years ago after many years exposure to the weather and it would be quite an expense to replace them. Now it is on the market for £100,000. 87 05 16

1987 05 18

The dissolution of parliament marks the end of an era for Francis Pym who retires from the House of Commons after a distinguished 26-year career that reached the pinnacles of ministerial office. He was Government Chief Whip, Northern Ireland Secretary, Defence Secretary, Leader of the House of Commons and Foreign Secretary. Even in his final years outside the Cabinet following his dramatic sacking by Mrs Thatcher he became a leading exponent of traditional Conservative values as the founder of Centre Foreward. He says it has been 'immensely enjoyable' 87 05 18 # c.33

1987 05 19
Thousands more Cambridge motorists may be charged for parking outside their homes during working hours. No fees have been agreed but present schemes cost up to £60 a year. In addition hundreds more parking meters would allow one or two hour parking for shoppers with additional traffic wardens employed to enforce the restrictions. But Conservatives on the traffic management team are strongly opposed to a park and ride scheme which might come into operation in three years if the Government gives permission for the city council to buy the land needed. 87 05 19

1987 05 20
Estate agents, Cheffins Grain and Chalk are to merge with agricultural specialists Comins to form a new company. They will open a residential sales office in Soham and Cheffins will expand its Cambridge Machinery Sale. The merger occurs at a time of continuing turmoil within the estate agency business as national institutions take advantage of new rules to move on to the property scene. At least nine local agents have been involved in takeovers by banks, building societies or insurance companies. 87 05 20 # c.06

1987 05 21
A Government blunder over the ambulancemen's pay award last year landed Cambridgeshire ambulance service in trouble. They'd said the award would be funded by a rationalisation of budgets throughout the country and so would be funded at no extra cost. But this did not happen, resulting in a £1m bill. There was a 90 per cent cutback in the volunteer hospital car service where management alleged some drivers were making a fortune. The resulting row led to many drivers resigning. Now an investigate reveals it is more cost-effective than running ambulances 87 05 21

Stretham to hold referendum on Westmere 87 05 21a

Ben Hayward opened a small bicycle and electrical business in Cambridge in 1912. Today it is still going strong as a bicycle specialist at its premises in Trumpington Street maintaining a tradition of good service and friendliness. They can build a bicycle especially for you, assembling the whole machine to create something unique and if necessary a frame can be made by a company in Leeds. Customers also get a free first service done by the firm's own workshop in Laundress Lane 87 05 21b

1987 05 22
Cambridge's newest venue, Browns – a 200-seat restaurant and bar – has opened in what was formerly the out-patient's department at Old Addenbrooke's Hospital. The entrance is a revolving door which ushers visitors into a scene where potted palms and antique mirrors form a background to the clink of cocktails and tinkling of a baby grand piano. The menu features fisherman's pie with cheddar cheese crust (£4.55), exciting salads and spaghetti dishes and leg of lamb chargrilled with rosemary served with Oxford sauce at £6.65 87 05 22

1987 05 26
Spaceward Recording Studios at Stretham which has attracted such stars as Toyah, Iron Maiden and Gary Numan has been burgled. Specialist recording equipment was stolen by a gang who used hammers and chisels to break down a lead-lined door while one of the engineers slept in another part of the converted old school building. The studio was set up over six years ago by two Cambridge graduates and has built up a reputation as one of the best in the area. Neil from the Young Ones, Julian Cope, Dave Steward and The Stranglers have recorded there 87 05 26

Ely's Catholic church has been consecrated – more than 80 years after it was built. Over 200 people packed the little church in Egremont Street for the ceremony performed by the Catholic Bishop of East Anglia. Dedicated to St Etheldreda, it was completed in 1903 and given a solemn blessing. But in those days it had to be endowed before consecration. Now it was time to put matters right 87 05 26a

1987 05 28
Cambridge author Tom Sharpe's gloriously irreverent comic novel 'Porterhouse Blue' is about to become a new four-part TV series and the University should be bracing itself. Nothing is sacred: a dignified procession through the streets dissolves into farce and gas-filled condoms fill a college courtyard like some shimmering, quivering wheatfield. Every college is convinced it is based on them. Little was actually filmed in Cambridge: Ely provided a more attractive alternatives. David Jason stars in the role of Scullion, the college porter who will put up with anything from the students as long as he considers them 'gentlemen' 87 05 28

June 1987 CEN

1987 06 01
A young man became a human torch in an horrific accident at Cambridge station. He had been at a party in Hooper Street when he climbed over the fence separating the garden from the railway, crossed the tracks and climbed to the top of a carriage. Seconds later terrified party guests heard a huge explosion as he was struck by a massive electric shock from the overhead cables. Two others were badly burned when they went to help. All are lucky to have survived 87 06 01

1987 06 02
North East Cambridgeshire is a new parliamentary constituency created in 1983. Its isolated towns and villages are dotted amongst some of the best agricultural land in the world. The candidates in the forthcoming General Election are veteran campaigner Clement Freud who won the seat for the Liberals nearly 14 years ago, Labour's Ron Harris, a social worker from Wisbech, and 'newcomer' Malcolm Moss, the Conservative candidate, who is a member of the County, Fenland and Wisbech Town Councils 87 06 02

1987 06 03
Conservative John Major has made a big name for himself since he was elected to Parliament in 1979. He has risen rapidly through a series of posts and is now the Government's Minister for Social Security. His opponents in the forthcoming election are Tony Nicholson who hopes to gain control of Huntingdon for the Alliance and former guillotine operator David Brown, a full-time trade union official for SOGAT '82. He opposes Cruise missiles at Molesworth. 87 06 03a

Center Parcs, a Dutch company, have plans to build a holiday village at Warren Woods, Elveden. There would be 800 villas together with an indoor waterworks centre, a supermarket, sports hall and a number of restaurants. They claim it would attract 200,000 visitors a year and provide 2-300 jobs. Most of the site is forest but about 40 acres is currently a pig farm. 87 06 03

1987 06 04
Aim Technology being shut down – 87 06 04 # c.27.1

1987 06 06
Cambridge graduate Michael Foale has been named by Nasa as its first English-born space shuttle astronaut. Mr Foale, whose parents live in Cambridge, graduated from Queens' College and completed a PhD in Astrophysics at Lucy Cavendish College six years ago. He first learned to fly at Marshall's airfield while a student. "He is absolutely over the moon", said his father retired Air Commodore Colin Foale who lives in Cambridge. 87 06 06 # c.26.1

1987 06 08

Angry villagers at Stretham have called on the local government Ombudsman to investigate East Cambridgeshire District Council's actions over the siting of the planned new town for the county. The Council has put in a bid to build the new settlement in its district, to the annoyance of villagers who only learned at Christmas that it could end up in their parish. A recent parish poll of the 1,000 residents had an 80% response with 75% giving the proposals a firm 'No' 87 06 08

Strawberry fair – 87 06 08a # c.27.3

Bottisham commemorate 361st fighter group – 87 06 08b # c.45.7

An era in Cambridge business will end when Pye Telecom changes its name to Philips Telecom. Pye has been part of Philips since 1966. The former name has been on the retreat elsewhere. Pye TVT has been sold to the American company Varian and Pye Unicam uses the name Philips Analytical. The last reminder of the old firm, which began when W.G. Pye set up an instrument company in 1896 is the Pye TV and radio business which has now moved to Croydon. 87 06 08c # c.27.1 : Pye

1987 06 09
A small Cambridge research and development company has beaten international giants to win a prestigious engineering award. W.A. Technology, based in French's Road has clinched the Finniston Award for designing and building the world's first commercial instrument for viewing the atomic structure on the surface of materials. The scanning tunnelling microscope emerged from research by two Nobel prizewinners in conjunction with scientists at Cambridge University. The company was founded in 1982 by Barry Ambrose and Dr Colin Wilson who met when they worked at the Cavendish Laboratory 87 06 09 # c.27.1

1987 06 10
A water pumping station at Fulbourn is to be closed and replaced by two others costing £1 million. The old pumping station, which opened in 1888, will be sold raising money to offset the cost. It was too close to a built-up area, posing danger of pollution, and did not produce enough water. The new stations are at a field at the edge of the village and Weston Colville. 87 06 10 # c.24.2

1987 06 11
Mini nuclear reactors could be installed at major American bases such as Mildenhall, Lakenheath and Alconbury, to provide emergency power. The American Department of Defense is starting a feasibility study into the cost of installing a series of small, pressurised-water nuclear power stations at all its bases throughout the world. At present they have diesel generators to generate electricity in the event of a failure of supplies from the National Grid. But the Pentagon says these are not capable of sustained operation if national electricity supplies were lost in a nuclear war 87 06 11

1987 06 12
Shirley Williams' dream of using Cambridge as a springboard back to Westminster crashed in ruins. In a night of disaster for key Alliance figures, she failed to make more than a minor dent in Robert Rhodes James' Conservative majority of more than 5,000 votes. But a crowd of left-wing hecklers chanting 'Thatcher Out, Thatcher Out' narrowly missed him with some well-aimed missiles as he acknowledged victory on the balcony of the Guildhall. And Liberal MP Clement Freud was ousted from his NE Cambs stronghold; after 14 years he was beaten by Wisbech businessman Malcolm Moss. 87 06 12 # c.33

Addenbrooke's Hospital vision for the turn of the century – 87 06 12a # c.21.4

British Telecom is to scrap scores of traditional telephone boxes in villages and replace them by modern boxes of stainless steel and smoke glass which are easier for handicapped people to use and will combat vandalism. In South Cambs they have started an urgent review of all the boxes. Assistant historic buildings officer, Beth Davis, has been travelling 80 miles a day photographing them in their surroundings. But pleas to keep even 20 of the old red phone boxes are likely to be rejected by BT, they say "People are wanting to preserve a lot of them but many have been there for 50 years and we have to provide a service" 87 06 12b

The Cambridge Brass Rubbing Centre is one of the region's most unusual tourist attractions. Thousands of visitors from all over the world come to take rubbing from some 150 facsimiles of brasses, many from local churches. It was started as a part-time sideline by Jenny McLachlan 12 years ago and has recently moved from the Wesley Church to a new home in St Giles' Church on Castle Hill. Now it has become too busy for her and has been put up for sale 87 06 12c

Donald Mackay reviews firm's history – 87 06 12d # c.27

In 1955 140 Cambridge army reservists in the 629 Light Ack-Ack Royal Artillery (TA) Regiment volunteered to jump out of an aeroplane. They became the 629 Parachute Light Regiment (TA), one of the best squads in the country. Amongst their ranks was Col Peter Storey-Pugh who'd escaped from Colditz and Col John Beckett who'd been captured by the Japanese in Singapore. But 18 months later the MOD reviewed its strategy and the men returned to infantry duties. There were no deaths during the regiment's brief history and only a few injuries. Now the Cambridge Parachute Regimental Association is seeking more members. 87 06 12e # c.45.8

Clive Sinclair opens new factory at Waterbeach for engineering company Win-Born Products. – 87 06 12f

1987 06 22
Sinclair, p10

1987 06 23
The controversial 'anthrax' site off Milton Road is to be sealed off under a giant new office block complex. Cambridge University plan to build a biotechnology research park covering 10 acres where the bodies of infected animal carcases were buried during the war. Extensive testing has proved that the site is safe and no trace of the killer disease was found. Now it will be covered with concrete to provide a car park 87 06 23

Cambridge's Lady Adrian School for children with learning difficulties has been given a prestigious Schools Curriculum Award in recognition of their important role in the community. Their children are achieving higher academic results, taking top prizes in national competitions and have much greater confidence in themselves. They take part in lessons at mainstream schools and help out at crèches, old people's homes and other special schools. One pupil has won a top prize in a poetry competition. 87 06 23a

1987 06 25
Galewood Mansion, Hinton Way, Gt Shelford designed by William Flockhart 1908 – 87 06 25

1987 06 26
The Victoria Cinema site on Market Hill is to become a Marks and Spencer store following an Inspector's decision. M & S is planning to put up a completely new building behind the existing façade and the store will also stretch into the shoe shop next door. Refusing permission would not have saved the cinema as the owners wanted to sell the property. But planners fear traffic chaos unless the firm is responsible about deliveries: they can as of right bring huge great articulated trucks down Bridge Street and Trinity Street in the middle of the working day if they so wish. 87 06 26

The Marchioness of Cambridge is now the oldest member of the Royal Family. Born Miss Dorothy Hastings she married George Alfred Hugh and shortly afterwards was a guest at the marriage of her lifelong friend the Duchess of York, now Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother. She has since attended every royal wedding though she initially declined that of the Prince and Princess of Wales, saying she would rather watch it on television in Abington village hall with her friends in the Over 60's Club. In her quiet home at Abington she lives in a simple style surrounded by mementoes of a long and busy life. 87 06 26a

1987 06 29
Bar Hill – the first new village in England since the last war – celebrated its 21st birthday in style with a pig roast barbecue and festival concert. There were tears of joy when the first resident, Mrs Stella Butcher, met up with old friends after she opened the fete. The village has grown from open farmland to a community of more than 4,000 people and many thriving businesses. Now they are launching an appeal to extend the church building to house a growing congregation drawn from six Christian denominations under one roof. 87 06 29

1987 06 30
Tyrells Marina began in the 1950s as a company hiring out punts on the river. Gradually business has increased and for 25 years it has operated from premises in Bermuda Road where they sell a range of boats including inflatables, skiboats, sailboats and canoes. 87 06 30 # c.26.3

July 1987 CEN

1987 07 01
A new village could be built on farm land behind the Caxton Gibbet. Called Swansley Wood, it would have 3,000 homes with a business park, village centre and landscaped country park. There would be community facilities such as pubs, shops and churches together with indoor and outdoor facilities. But the plan faces stiff competition as there are similar proposals for four other villages in the area while the County Council favours a scheme on the A10 at Stretham. 87 07 01

1987 07 02
Cambridge's top high-tech workers are earning average salaries of £20,000 a year – about £400 a week – for those with professional or managerial skills. Administrative and clerical staff can earn between £6 and £10,000 but some workers in the food and catering industry get less than £80 a week. Researchers say there are high wages in some manufacturing, construction and public service jobs but lowest in retailing and leisure with some kitchen staff being paid below £3 an hour 87 07 02

Newmarket Carriage Company transforms heaps of decaying timber into beautifully-restored horse–drawn wagons. At present they are working on a horse-drawn Bristol farm wagon which has spent the last 50 years decomposing in a field in Lincolnshire. After a year's hard graft it will emerge from the workshop in better condition that it was when originally built a century ago. Customers include travellers, farmers and companies that use horse-drawn vehicles for advertising. The only job they do not tackle are major restorations of wheels which is left to a specialist company. 87 07 02a

Ely and neighbouring villages have seen an astronomical rise in planning applications. In the 1960s there were few areas of growth between Cambridge and Newmarket and developers never got north of Histon or Cottenham. Now prices are increasing by 15% a year and a good plot for housing has increased six-fold to £30,000. Unemployment is low while improved train services have improved accessibility for people travelling to Newmarket and Stansted. 87 07 02b

Comins estate agency, a name synonymous with the Ely property where it has been established since 1850, has amalgamated with the Cambridge firm of Cheffins, Grain and Chalk 87 02 02c # c.06

1987 07 03
Domino Printing Sciences acquires US firm – 87 07 03 # c.27.1

Sculpture students from CCAT have put the finishing touches to an adventure playground at Coton Primary School. Two groups, led by lecturer Christine Fox, designed the playground on the Greek legend of the Minotaur and the maze. The giant timber structure, which is 20 ft high and 50 ft long, is shaped like a bull. It was a real community effort with parents helping with much of the building work. 87 07 03a

Scientists at the Plant Breeding Institute at Trumpington are preparing to welcome Princess Anne who will present them with another Queen's Award for Industry, this one for breeding high winter wheats. Their work in producing crops resistant to the ravages of disease and selecting varieties that flourish in harsh conditions is vital to poor countries. But, after 75 years, the Institute is being sold off by the Government with many of the scientists having to move to Norwich 87 07 03b # c.17

1987 07 04
Keith Bovair, head Lady Adrian School skips for charity – 87 07 04

Trumpington residents want to ban vehicles from turning right from the High Street into Church Lane. They are convinced this will ease traffic flows during the rush hour which cause massive hold-ups. Many motorists are using Church Lane as a short cut to reach Barton Road instead of going into the city. Now the County Transportation department has finally agreed to consider their suggestions 87 07 04

1987 07 09
'Porterhouse Blue', the current television programme based in a Cambridge College, does not impress ex-Army Regimental Sergeant Major and now Robinson head porter, Fred Boyne. He has a team of seven porters who look after reception, direct visitors and are responsible for the security of the college and its properties. They are a goldmine of information on who is doing what, where, why and how. Fred says Robinson is the happiest, friendliest college in Cambridge. Students do get up to pranks but there's never anything really seriously bad 87 07 09

1987 07 10
The Princess of Wales captivated everyone with her beauty and charm during her visit to Ely where the former Royal Air Force Hospital was renamed in her honour. The Commanding Officer, Group Captain John Baird showed her to the male surgical ward where she met three men recovering from cataract operations. After lunch and a walkabout the Princess opened a three-day flower festival at Ely Cathedral and attended a private Evensong in the Lady Chapel 87 07 10

1987 07 15
The historic Eagle Inn, one of the oldest pubs in Cambridge which became a meeting place for the American forces during the Second World War is to close for two years. Corpus Christi College, the owners, are refurbishing adjacent buildings and hope to concentrate student accommodation in the area. They say the site would be too dangerous and dirty to allow it to stay open. Greene King, the brewers, are appalled by the news but the pub, with its famous gallery, will certainly not be closed permanently. 87 07 15 # c.27.4

Cruise missile launchers and their control vehicles were unveiled at Molesworth airfield. On display behind the eight-and-a-half miles of razor wire were 16 vehicles and two of the men who will 'push the buttons' if there is another war. The missiles are due to arrive next year and will be housed in four bunkers which will be grassed over as part of a landscaping programme that has won a design award. When complete it will be Britain's most secure base. While the base opened its doors to the Press it remained closed for the handful of peace campaigners who maintain a lonely vigil in tents and caravans outside. 87 07 15a # c.45.8

1987 07 16
The first of a series of new University buildings planned for the Old Addenbrooke's Hospital site in Trumpington Street has finally won approval. The saga started 30 years ago when the University decided to purchase the site from the East Anglian Regional Health Authority. But development plans have left various factions feuding and bitter. The University initially wanted to demolish the old hospital – despite the city council having made it a listed building. Now Coun Andrew Duff has suggested housing a new Arts Theatre and the University Centre of Management Studies in the main ward block 87 07 16

1987 07 17
Broadcaster John Timpson officially opened a project designed to help the disabled enjoy the National Trust's Wicken Fen nature reserve. A community work team had spent the past year building a wooden boardwalk so that wheelchair-bound people and children in pushchairs can have access to the fen, which is waterlogged for most of the year. The route, which is supported on piles driven deep into the peat, takes them past different habitats including woodland, sedge and hay fields. 87 07 17

1987 07 21
A steam engine fell from a low-loader on the Royston by-pass after the anchoring chains broke, causing thousands of pounds worth of damage. The engine's roof was ripped off as it somersaulted on to the verge. Both the rear and front axles, the flywheel and the crankshaft of the Burrell steam engine, built in 1907, were smashed. Firemen were called to clear the coal which was still hot following a show of steam engines at Thetford. 87 07 21

The Territorial Army has been given a major boost with the building of new headquarters units for the signals and medical units in Cherryhinton Road. It includes facilities for vehicle maintenance, lecture theatres and a full indoor firing range. Both units have a NATO role, being trained for operational activities with the British Army on the Rhine, and are still recruiting. There is also new accommodation for other sections on the TA site in Coldham's Lane where the previous premises are being demolished. 87 07 21a # c.45.8

1987 07 22
When the Evelyn Hospital was officially opened in 1921 there were 12 beds. Today on its pleasant site off Trumpington Road, it has a total of 56 and last year admitted 3,012 patients. There have been many improvements recently including the Robinson Wing, built in 1983 with money donated by Sir David Robinson, a modern nurses' home and a new operating theatre which opened in 1981. Each patient room has a telephone, colour television and all will soon have attractive en-suite bathrooms. 87 07 22 & a # c.21.4

1987 07 23
The Queen Mother became just another Cambridge tourist for a few moments – and won cheers from a waiting crowd. She paused on the famous Mathematical Bridge to wave to a convoy of four punts chained together as they passed gracefully along the Cam. She was visiting Queens' College to mark the restoration of the President's Lodge, the only half-timbered college building in Cambridge. Lunch – at a college which is now health-conscious in its cuisine – was melon and king prawns, then chicken and truffles. 87 07 23 # c.02

1987 07 24
999 – the most famous telephone number in Britain – is 50 years old this month. The number of people making use of the emergency system has doubled in the last decade. June was a busy month for operators in Cambridge who dealt with more than 1,974 SOS calls. Miss Mimi Edwards at the exchange in Long Road says operators are trained to ignore other calls when the red light flashes and a buzzer sounds to indicate an emergency. New digital switchboards will mean they are passed on even quicker 87 07 24

1987 07 29
Black Bear Press was formerly known as Heffers Printers which was set by William Heffer in the 1920s. Now a new management are investing in the future. Black Bear does not produce the 'mainstream' books. Much of its work is producing journals including 'The Analyst' which has been printed by the firm for the Royal Society of Chemistry since 1922, and catalogues for Stanley Gibbons and other companies. They provide a data retrieval system when authors submit their disks and the data is transcribed into whatever printed format required. 87 07 29 # c.25

Cambridge Light Blue Trading Company was opened on Mill Road in 1933, its name an indication of the all-pervasive influence of the University. Then it dealt mainly in small loans to citizens. Now known as Cambridge Credit one of its main activities is secured loans of from £1,000 to £100,000 which are guaranteed by the borrower's property. But they would rather turn down an application than see the loan become an insupportable commitment. It has also entered the very competitive vehicle leasing business 87 07 29a & b # c.32.8

1987 07 30
Francis Pym, the former S.E. Cambs MP for 25 years has been made a life peer in the Dissolution Honours List. His forthright views got him sacked from his position of Foreign Secretary and he went on to found the Conservative Centre Forward movement, a controversial attempt to modify Thatcherite policies. And colourful Clement Freud who was ousted as Liberal MP for North East Cambs at the last election has been knighted 87 07 30

The tumble-down windmill at Wicken is being restored to its former glory thanks to a group of dedicated enthusiasts. They have sunk thousands of pounds into a six-year project to bring it back to working condition. First they must rebuild the three wooden floors which have been eaten away by woodworm and dry rot. The mill was worked by sails until the late 1930's when they were considered dangerous but much of the original machinery is still in place. A new aluminium cap was put on in 1971 by Chris Wilson, the owner of Over mill who is assisting with the project 87 07 30a

1987 07 31
With three local radio stations operating in the area and four community radio groups waiting in the wings, the battle of the airways is set to begin. BBC Radio Cambridgeshire has been operating for more than five years while Peterborough-based Hereward Radio has set up a studio in Cambridge and Chiltern Radio has a wide following in the west of the county. Now a Cambridge Community Radio Group wants to set up studios while Bottisham-based Granta Radio hopes to obtain a franchise from the Independent Broadcasting Authority. 87 07 31

August 1987 CEN

1987 08 04
The wartime mustard gas dump at Lord's Bridge is to be investigated for contamination after dangerous levels were found at one of the other six old sites. Two underground tanks containing lethal mustard gas were sunk in 1944. They were emptied in the 1950s and the contents either burned or dumped at sea. The tanks are still slightly contaminated with gas but this will eventually disappear. It is now part of the University's Mullard Radioscope Observatory and is often visited by nature lovers interested in wild orchids. 87 08 04

1987 08 05
Newmarket tycoon Sir David Robinson gave away millions during his reclusive life. But details of his will show the self-made multi-millionaire intended his legendary philanthropic reputation to survive him and last year he formed the Robinson Charitable Trust. After leaving Cambridge and County School he joined his father in the family cycle shop and in 1954 set up the Robinson Rentals television business. He founded Robinson College with a gift of £18 million and also gave a £3 million contribution towards the Rosie Maternity Hospital which was named after his mother. 87 08 05

A group of enterprising skateboard fans have set up their own club and raised £800 (£1,840 today) to buy ramps to skate on. They have been loaned £400 by Townsends toy and cycle shop and have saved the rest. Now they are looking for new members to join the club which will be based on Heath Farm, Shelford Bottom. Charles Bradford, whose parents run the farm, said "There is nowhere in Cambridge for us to skate. We have even had to go to London to find somewhere". Membership will be £10 per year. 87 08 05a # c.38 : roller

1987 08 06
A young couple's 15th century dream cottage in High Street Little Wilbraham was gutted by fire despite the efforts of 35 firemen who were at the scene in minutes. Flames had already taken hold on the thatched roof and they were hampered by low water pressure. A call was made to Anglian Water in a bid to get it increased and water was also taken from a neighbour's swimming pool. The house had just been restored; it was immaculate with new windows and carpets. The couple were on holiday in the Lake District but are returning to the burnt-out shell 87 08 06

1987 08 10
A Cambridge computer technician living in St Philip's Road is planning to have his head cut off when he dies. He has made arrangements to have it frozen and stored in a vacuum flask in America where it will be kept for more than 100 years. He believes that one day medical science will have advanced enough to unfreeze his head, regrow his body and bring it back to life. But a University lecturer in pathology is doubtful: "It stands as much chance as reviving a handful of dust. It is a very silly way of spending one's money", he says. 87 08 10

Shudy Camps Park House, a 300-year-old mansion, has become a place of worship attracting followers of an Indian guru revered as a saint with miraculous healing powers. Several hundred disciples descended on the village from all over Europe for a party with hymn singing and preaching into the early hours. There were five marquees, catering wagons and portable toilets. Buses, coaches and cars choked the lane and on the gate was a poster declaring it as 'The New Jerusalem'. Now villagers have organised a petition claiming the mansion has been converted from a private dwelling to a place of entertainment without planning permission. 87 08 10a

The search for somewhere to live is becoming increasingly desperate. Yet more than 400 council homes in the region are standing empty. In Cambridge – where the council housing list tops 4,000 – one house in Fen Road has been empty for a tear, another in Long Reach Road for nine months and a property in Oak Tree Avenue for 20. At Girton four police houses have been empty for almost two years. Officials say some need repair, campaigners claim it is down to inefficiency. 87 08 10b & c

1987 08 13
Robbers brandishing a sawn-off shotgun and a pistol burst in to the village post office and stores at Bury, near Ramsey, and fled with over £5,000. 87 08 13

A news reporter visited Cambridge's three main swimming pools. First stop was the Abbey outdoor pool where each morning attendants try to remove the frogs which hop into the water from a nearby ditch overnight. The changing room is a bench behind a hut and the water felt like freshly-melted ice. Jesus Green may only have 20-30 swimmers a day but they are real regulars, including Arthur Mansfield, 77, who swims a quarter of a mile most days as he has since 1922. Then I followed the smell of the chlorine to Parkside Pool which was the hottest but far from enjoyable 87 08 13a & b # c.38 : swimming

1987 08 14
An application has been made to build 200 houses on land at Queens' College Farm, Fulbourn. The scheme would incorporate a meeting room for the Royal British Legion, playing fields and sports facilities including tennis and bowls. There would be plenty of properties for first-time buyers together with a sheltered housing scheme for the elderly. Developers have produced a glossy brochure showing a new relief road to relieve congestion. It is a unique opportunity for the village to have a slip road, they say. 87 08 14

The Guildhall organ is very rarely used for concerts It is a fine instrument by William Hill one of Britain's major 19th-century builders and the city's only organ in a public venue. It was last overhauled in 1925 and has been allowed to fall into a state of disrepair. Much of the internal workings are based on leather and when the atmosphere is damp a great deal more of the organ works than when it is bone dry. 87 08 14a # c.69.6

The 'Beautiful Cambridge' competition is aimed to find the most imaginative gardens. Maureen Brown has done wonders with her back garden in Greville Road and Leslie North of Beche Road can be proud of his landscaping talents. But it was Mary Gosal's garden in Girton Road which delighted the judges. Three years ago it was just a rubbish tip; weeds were waist high and the ground uneven. Now it is a secluded, fragrant, multi-coloured botanical delight with foxgloves, azaleas and alpines. 87 08 014b & c

1987 08 18
Ely Cathedral has been hit by a dramatic slump in visitors: numbers have plummeted by 40 per cent since £1.50 admission charges were brought in. But it has been a poor year for sightseers generally, due to a terrorist scare frightening off American visitors. King's College Chapel was the fifth most popular free historic attraction in England with 750,000 visitors, the same as last year. The biggest success of all was Audley End mansion, Saffron Walden, which had over 73.000 visitors compared with less than 42,000 in 1985 87 08 18

1987 08 19
Ambitious plans for a £3million facelift for the Lion Yard shopping centre have been unveiled by Barclays Bank. The precinct – officially opened by Princess Anne in 1975 – will be brought bang up-to-date with new lighting, new paving and a new shop unit neat St Andrew's the Great. The biggest change will be a covered first-floor level incorporating the Heidelberg Gardens with four food kiosks and a seating area for 200. It will be a much better place and people will be able to get something to eat and drink there, developers claim. 87 08 19

1987 08 20
Sir – I have been privileged to play the Guildhall organ for the last 19 years and have noticed a gradual deterioration. This is no reflection on the tuners, who have done a marvellous job. The heating and humidity of the large room plus general wear and tear has seriously affected the action. It is little used because the courts are often in session and it costs £100 to hire the hall for recitals. Sir David Willocks and Dr Arthur Wills have given recitals on it but since the last borough organist, Alan Tranah, left the area no-one has bothered to reappoint a successor. – Claude Ingrey, Babraham. 87 08 20

1987 08 21
Eagle ceiling, p17

1987 08 24
Ely blind bowlers – 87 08 24

1987 08 26
Lady Butler publishes reminiscences of RAB – 87 08 26 & a

1987 08 27
The James Paine brewery which was established in St Neots Market Square in 1831 is to close and will become just a distribution depot. The last beer has been brewed at the premises and will be bottled in Ipswich. It will be marketed as the James Paine Final Brew in the autumn. The brewery has been bought by Tolly Cobbold who wanted its six pubs. However the name will not die as they will still produce the beer, trying to emulate the original as closely as possible. With modern technology they can even match the local water which gave the beers their distinctive taste. 87 08 27

1987 08 28

Summer sizzled into Mid Anglia in the last week of April – hot on the heels of some of the worst gales the country had ever seen. But as winter spirits lifted the temperature took a downward plummet and left us all shivering again. May slid by with some cold, wet and miserable weather and June was no better until the end of the month when the sun wiped away the gloom with a glorious burst of summer that rocked the temperatures into the mid 80s. But it didn't last long and the wet weather was back in July and dripped into August for another gloomy month. But amateur weatherman Percy Ashman says the first two weeks of September should be good – that's when he's going on holiday 87 08 28

1987 08 29
Another developer has put in plans for a new village off the A45. Hillson and Twigden want to build 1,500 homes on 200 acres of farmland east of Highfields, near Caldecote. They say it would link up with rapidly-expanding Hardwick and provide additional schooling and shopping. It did not use top agricultural land and was close to the underused A45 dual carriageway which would be even less used when the A1/M1 link is built. There are already five other plans for a new village between Bourn and Caxton as an alternative to the preferred county council site off the A10 near Ely. 87 08 29

Motorists can expect continued delays in Coldham's Lane following the installation of a new roundabout at the Beehive Store. An improved access is being made for the shopping complex following major redevelopment being carried out there. It should be completed by Christmas 1988 with a new supermarket, a much larger home interiors department, new garden centre and a 200-seat restaurant. The giant Texas DIY store is also moving to the site. There will be parking for more than 1,000 cars 87 08 29

Royston is being plagued by cats. There are so many moggies in the triangle between Sun Hill, Coronation Avenue and Briary Lane that residents have called on the town council for help. Mr Bernard Butler said it's got beyond a joke. The cats, which he reckoned number up to 50, messed his garden and lawn every morning. Mr Robert Taylor of Sun Hill often finds several in his garden shed and has bought a dog especially to keep them of his house. Over the years wild cats have moved into the area; a few residents have been feeding them which has resulted in a population explosion 87 08 29

September 1987 CEN

1987 09 02
August not as wet as same month last year – 87 09 02

Wolfson College are negotiating to buy the large Victorian home of polar explorer Sir Vivian Fuchs which is set in two-and-a-half acres on Barton Road. Sir Vivian, a former director of the British Antarctic Survey plan to move to another house in the same road. The big house takes a lot to keep tidy so they are going somewhere smaller, he says. 87 09 02

1987 09 03
Temporary traffic lights at the junction of Elizabeth Way roundabout with Newmarket Road and East Road have been switched on in an experiment to ease rush-hour congestion. 87 09 03

Bailey & Tebbutt history – 87 09 03a
Postal delivery problems investigated – 87 09 03b

1987 09 04
Plans by house-builder Bovis to build 33 homes for elderly people together with 55 large detached and 54 town houses on the Clay Farm site at Trumpington have attracted opposition from people anxious to keep a wedge of green land between Cambridge and the Shelfords. The site has been at the centre of controversy for some time with county planners saying it should be in the Green Belt. But the city wants to build hundreds of homes to solve a housing shortage 87 09 04

Skateboarding is back! The old Skate Park at Cheddars Lane was awful, the transitions were bad and you could feel every bump. But Billy's Ramp Skate Club at Shelford Bottom is completely different allowing newer, better tricks practised by dedicated skateboarders determined to be 'rad' and not 'lame'. The right gear is a must. Outrageously decorated T-shirts, below-the-knee Bermuda shorts, baseball-style boots and the essential protective helmet, wrist-guards, knee and elbow pads are all hallmarks of a hip skateboarder.87 09 04a

1987 09 07
People in Cottenham are furious at plans to more than double the number of gypsy caravans in the village. There are at present eight sites at Smithy Fen but now another 12 places have been granted permission by SCDC despite a petition signed by almost half the residents. There is only a single-track road, the school is already overcrowded and the village policeman already has enough disturbances to cope with. But the council say permission was granted as the site is well-served by a concrete road. The land had been left polluted by an oil operating company and it would be very difficult to return it to agricultural use 87 09 07

1987 09 08
Anglia Television's famous silver knight is to be replaced by a thoroughly modern logo, as part of a new corporate image. It has been their symbol since Anglia went on the air in October 1959. The silver model, which represents the Black Prince, was commissioned as a trophy in 1850 by the King of the Netherlands for the Dutch Falcon Club. It was the prize in an international contest which was unexpectedly won by an Englishman who brought it back to Britain. It was put up for sale by his family a century later and eventually bought by Anglia 87 09 08

Two Cambridge scientists say evidence is mounting to show chemicals are to blame for a hole in the Earth's protective ozone layer. Joe Farman, a scientist at the British Antarctic Survey and Dr John Pyke of Cambridge University are urging drastic cutbacks while more research is carried out. If the hole starts to spread it could upset the whole balance of life on earth. Climates could change, crops could be threatened and more ultra-violet rays from the sun would increase skin cancer, they warn 87 09 08a

1987 09 10
A train smashed through level-crossing barriers at Shippea Hill after a policeman ordered the gates to be opened to let his car through. No one was hurt in the accident but both sets of crossing gates were demolished. BR said the barriers were closed and warning lights flashing for a train travelling from Norwich to Cambridge when a policeman drove up and asked the signalman to open the gates. He refused but then the plain-clothed officer produced a warrant card and ordered him to do so. The police car sped across the rails but the train could not stop in time. 87 09 10

1987 09 11
For over 60 years the Roger Ascham School served the needs of children. In the early days there were 120 pupils some with physical ailments. Others, kept rigidly separate, were backward and retarded. In recent years it was a vigorous, innovative school mainly for the physically multi-handicapped. The largest group were cerebral palsied children followed by spina bifida and a small number of those with muscular dystrophy and the emotionally fragile. It built a reputation for catering for the bright and more slow-learning pupil so they could succeed beyond expectations in spite of their physical disabilities. 87 09 11 # c.36.5

In 1931 Dr Norman de Bruyne, then aged 26, set up the Cambridge Aircraft Construction Company which produced the Snark, a rakish four-seat light, strong monoplane monoplane. The first flight was uneventful, apart from the engine stopping while it was flying over Cambridge, but it landed safely. It was held together with casein glue which had been used on all wooden aircraft. Then he set up a new company, Aero Research at Duxford where he developed Aerolite, formaldehyde glue which was used during WW2 for the construction of motor boats and transport gliders. In 1947 the firm became part of CIBA 87 09 11a # c.26.2

1987 09 14
The replacement of old lampposts in the centre of Cambridge has aroused opposition. The old 'Candle' laps were designed in the early 1950s by Sir Albert Richardson, President of the Fine Art Commission. Coun Andrew Duff says they are of considerable interest and are appropriate in the historic centre. Now the County Council is replacing them with modern steel columns which are cheaper to run, give out more light and make the roads safer for motorists and pedestrians. 87 09 14 # c.24.8

Developers are eying-up property in Newmarket Road. They have approached Greene King about acquiring the Seven Stars, Corner House, Five Bells, Rose and Crown and Bird in Hand public houses Already Eastern Gas has sold off more than three acres of the former gas works and the disused Chapman and Arber scrap yard has also attracted interest. Gray's the tobacconist has sold up, Jack Reynold's sweet shop closes next month and Grosvenor will soon start work on the old Carioca nightclub site which will house offices and small businesses 87 09 14b # c.44.6

1987 09 15
A Polytechnic of East Anglia may be formed by merging the Cambridgeshire College of Arts and Technology with the Essex Institute of Higher Education. It would teach the equivalent of more than 4,000 full-time higher education students with one main campus in Cambridge and another in Chelmsford. Robert Rhodes James MP has made it one of his parliamentary campaigns. Cambridge is very strong on languages while Essex is good for business studies. So the idea of a merger is very attractive and should get Government approval 87 09 15

Wandlebury woods and Bill Clark – 87 09 15a

1987 09 16
Granta Morris, which meets at St Luke's Barn in French's Road, sprang into life five years ago. It has 16 members including a vet, a technician and some without jobs. The Squire, Leigh Watson who knows 190 dances calls out instructions as the accordion strikes up tunes such as 'Headington' which is based on bean-setting. Granta perform at fetes, pubs and college May balls. Sometimes they encounter hecklers. Three skinheads started taunting them once so Leigh invited them to have a go. The trio soon admitted Morris deserves respect. But yobs threw stink-bombs under the feet in North Wales - 87 09 16

1987 09 17
Residents in Huntingdon's Victoria Square have complained about vandalism and unruly children who overturn seats on the green to form a tennis net. 87 09 17

Graffiti in Chesterton – 87 09 17

1987 09 18
The US and Soviet Union have reached tentative agreement on a treaty eliminating shorter-range nuclear weapons such as Cruise missiles which were to have been based at the Tactical Missile Wing at Molesworth 87 09 18

The Cambridge - St Ives railway line could be reopened to passengers and linked with Stansted as part of a major new project. The service, shut for nearly 20 years, would be launched with a show-piece electric service along the 14-mile line which is at present only used by freight trains. There would be three new stations at the Science Park, Coldham's Lane and Long Road. Other stations would be built or reopened, under plans announced by the County council, including Chittering, Fulbourn and Cherry Hinton. 87 09 18a

Royston Hospital faces closure as Herts Health Authority needs to cut costs. Most GP in-patient beds are based there or at Letchworth and it provide patients with respite care, convalescence and minor treatment. Royston has cared mainly for the elderly since the closure of its maternity unit two years ago. The Friends of Royston Hospital, which has raised over £50,000 says it provides a valuable and much-needed service 87 09 18b

Cambridge's Strangeways Laboratory celebrated its 75th birthday with a £500,000 donation from Ciba Geigy Pharmaceuticals. This will enable the internationally known biomedical research laboratory to undertake a new phase of work into arthritis. Originally known as the Cambridge Research Hospital it was set up in 1905 by Dr T.S.P. Strangeways and pioneered the use of tissue-culture methods in biological research which are now an alternative to animal experiments. Today there are 100 staff representing a wide range of expertise 87 09 18c

1987 09 19
News that cruise missiles might not be deployed at Molesworth has been greeted cautiously by local residents. The landlady at the Cross Keys pub said that base expansion had been a bonus for the local economy. She often had up to 15 construction workers staying at her pub and the work has brought a lot of prosperity to the area. One of the six-strong vigil of peace campaigners was dubious but MP John Major said their protests had nothing to do with the likely arms deal between the superpowers. 87 09 19

1987 09 21
The scene of carnage on the railway line at Swavesey was too much for one fireman who came to help release the dying and injured from the mangled carriages. He was physically sick at the sight of bodies littered around the burned out shell of the passenger train, but like a true professional he recovered quickly and carried on. Fortunately it was not for real, but part of a major exercise involving all the emergency services. But no-one had told those involved until they actually arrived. They thought they were heading for a major disaster. 87 09 21 # c.26.2

1987 09 22
More than 100 of 749 United States servicemen killed in a mock invasion before D-Day are buried at the American Cemetery and not in an unmarked mass grave in Devon. This is contrary to a report in The Independent newspaper where a women said she witnessed the disposal of hundreds of GIs in a large pit. The Superintendent of the cemetery at Madingley has a file marked 'Operation Tiger' containing lists of 107 men who died in the operation and whose names are recorded on headstones. A further 293 are listed on the Wall of the Missing. 87 09 22

Millions of television viewers saw Newmarket stable girl Alison Dean weep tears of joy as she led 'Herbie the Derbie winner' – better known to the world as Reference Point - to the winner's enclosure. She has been with six-times champion trainer Henry Cecil for almost 10 years and says girls look after horses differently. Trainer Michael Stout only employs girls to look after fillies because they have more patience. But they don't look after colts: they are stronger and need firmer handling. And "Sometimes they can be 'colty' "(racing-speak for becoming sexually excited), one girl explained. 87 09 22a

1987 09 23
Bill Cox, Littleport recluse 87 09 23

A major new tourist attraction at Ely involving the creation of a working scale model of the fenland drainage system could draw thousands of visitors and create badly-needed jobs, two men believe. They have sunk several thousand pounds into a feasibility study and earmarked a potential site for the six-acre development. It would feature a model village and miniature cathedrals as well as working locks and sluices such as the Denver complex. This would allow visitors to understand the water control mechanisms with an elevated viewing area 200 feet long. Now they are looking for financial backing 87 09 23a

1987 09 24
Every time it rains the congregation of Wentworth church has to get out the buckets. Now with winter fast approaching parishioners fear the bad weather will wreak havoc with St Peter's Church, parts of which date back to the 12th Century. Rev Richard Mathews, the Priest in charge, says repairs will cost about £20,000 but villagers are rallying round organising a fete with 'Rhino rides' – a trip in an open-top, four-wheel drive vehicle over rough ground - welly throwing, stalls and sideshows. 87 09 24

1987 09 25
Plans have been unveiled for a new town near Chittering, to be called Waterfenton. It would have 3,000 houses, a major shopping centre, schools, leisure park, swimming pool, ice-skating rink, hotel and its own railway station. There will also be a church, clinic and all the usual services including pubs, banks and garages, developers say. House prices will start at around £35,000, (about £80,500 now) making it attractive to people who can not afford homes in Cambridge The project would provide at least 2,000 jobs and take about 20 years to complete. This is the 13th settlement plan to be suggested in the last six months 87 09 25

1987 09 28
The Fenland Witch is a new Saturday bus service set up to help villagers in the Somersham area. It will enable people from Pidley, Broughton, the Raveleys and Upwood to travel to Huntingdon or Ramsey giving time for shopping and linking to connections to Cambridge or Peterborough. The vehicle has been hired from Dew and Sons by a former bus driver more as a community service than a commercial venture. 87 09 28

1987 09 29
A Government bid to clamp down on universities handing out jobs to dons for the rest of their careers has been rejected by the Vice Chancellor, Lord Adrian. He says Cambridge's hi-tech boom is a direct result of such a system and supports the policy of offering posts to academics until the retiring age of 67. "It is terribly difficult to know who is or is not a 'sleeping don'", he says. But dons who do not teach a lot could help run the university or put back vital knowledge into the community and business. 87 09 29 # c.37.9

A new-look Co-op has come to Cambridge with the refurbishment of the old premises in Burleigh Street producing the latest of the Society's Homemaker stores. Although it now occupies only the ground floor it has a more modern look and concentrates on electrical goods bringing it more in tune with the Grafton Centre. None of the staff have been made redundant though some have moved to the Beehive site. 87 09 29a # c.27.2

Cambridge Co-op Homemaker store – 87 09 29b & c # c.27.2

1987 09 30
Hauxton was sealed off by police after an explosion at the Schering Agrochemicals plant. More than 400 staff were evacuated when a can of fungicide exploded in the packing plant causing a fire with billowing smoke. Thirty firemen worked alongside the firm's own staff together with a special chemical instrument unit to contain the blaze and an emergency control room was set up in the firm's security block. Police set up road blocks preventing all traffic from entering the village. 87 09 30 87 10 01a

Princess Margaret at Fitzwilliam Museum – 87 09 31 # c.02 # c.03

October 1987 CEN

1987 10 01

If there was a disaster then a team of 600 community advisers would play their part in civil protection schemes. They are trained to deal with a crisis and help people pull together. They know about local radio hams, residents with expert knowledge and facilities such as wells, buildings which could be adapted into central feeding areas, make-shift accommodation or hospitals. The advisers, who include doctors, vicars, parish councillors and housewives backed up by 900 volunteers, are part of a civil protection initiative by the County Council. Now a series of 13 evening classes have been set up to train more 87 10 01b # c.45.8

Low salaries are driving thousands of nurses out of the National Health Service. A 28-year-old staff nurse at Addenbrooke's Hospital earns just over £8,000 a year (worth about £18,400 today) for her highly skilled, highly rewarding and highly frustrating job in neuro-surgical ward, A3. Major brain surgery has become a routine operation. Twenty beds are housed in a room off one long corridor with four others in 'The Annexe' intensive care unit. 87 10 01c # c.21.4 # c.21.3

1987 10 02
The City Council are negotiating to buy a £300,000 16-bedroom hotel in Chesterton Road with a large dining room, lounge, extensive kitchens and parking for 15 cars. All carpets, furniture, bedding and crockery are included in the price. It will be used to provide bed-and-breakfast for homeless families waiting for permanent accommodation and will work out cheaper in the long run. Property values are increasing rapidly and it could be sold at a profit if the number of homeless families falls substantially. But one outraged neighbour described it as an upmarket dosshouse not appropriate for the area. 87 10 02 # c.32.9

There is a distinct shortage of spooky hauntings in Cambridge at the moment and the Cambridge University Society for Psychical Research is keen to carry out detailed experiments into the eerie and unexplained. A few years ago a young girl got lost while out with her parents on the Gogs where archaeologists were excavating Roman artefacts. When found, she told them she had been speaking to a Roman soldier. An expert interviewed her and admitted she gave an exact description of a soldier from those times, yet the girl knew nothing about that period in history. What was the girl seeing and in which language was she communicating? The Society hope the family will contact them 87 10 02a # c.39

1987 10 05
Village ponds could soon be extinct. They are disappearing at the frightening rate of one every ten days in Hertfordshire, according to a survey. And of those remaining more than 80 per cent are in poor biological condition. For years ponds provided a water supply and were a valuable habitat for animals and rare plants. However the introduction of piped water supplies, the decline of horses as working animals, land drainage and the intensification of farming have led to many being filled in. One that is facing extinction is Reed where the clay floor has cracked and the pond is drying up. 87 10 05

1987 10 06
An amazing plan to relocate Marshall's Airport to Waterbeach airfield and use the hundreds of acres vacant for a massive housing estate will be put to county councillors. It would solve the city's shortage of land for housing and end aircraft noise problems for residents. The move would create more jobs and relieve traffic. There would then be no need to spend millions of pounds on a proposed new overspill village in the fens. But the airport authorities do not agree. 87 10 06 # c.26.1

Camra, the real ale organisation, is launching a bid to save the doomed Rayments brewery at Furneux Pelham near Stansted. They say it is profitable when compared to other small real ale breweries and could be improved under better management. Camra hope to persuade Guinness and British Assurance to call a special meeting of shareholders to stop the closure and loss of ten jobs. But the owners, Greene King, say the decision has been made and the site will be kept open as a depot 87 10 06a

Residents of Newton are worried that their local stream has gone missing. The brook, on the banks of which the village grew and prospered, now heads underground about half a mile east and reappears to the west near Newton Hall. It used to be deep enough to paddle in but now the bed has broken up allowing water to find a subterranean route. The fear is that if the brook silts up it could be lost forever. The landlord of the local pub says many people have been concerned for many years. 87 10 06

1987 10 07
A vast new shopping complex, described as the largest and most exciting of its kind for many years, has been approved by planners. The joint Co-op and Texas Homecare development on the Beehive site of Coldham's Lane will enable Cambridge to compete with other major shopping cities like Peterborough and Bedford. It will comprise a large supermarket and extensive do-it-yourself store with parking for 1,100 cars. The existing Home Interiors building and garden centre are already being enlarged. Texas will leave its building at the nearby Coral Park trading centre when the new one is ready 87 10 07 # c.27.2

1987 10 08
Tansley Typewriter Company celebrates 65 years - 87 10 08 # c.27

1987 10 09
Railway line to St Ives & Soham station may be reopened – 87 10 09

1987 10 12
John Major's rise to fame – 87 10 12
Community nurses' role – 87 10 12a

1987 10 14
Sedgeway Business Park at Witchford is full. The light engineering units were converted from farm buildings where pigs used to be bred and many of the companies are producing their own goods on site. The first was Gardner Prototype Manufacturing which has seen business go from strength to strength. They were joined by Knight Interiors, Camboard which makes electronic design circuits and Tertonia Products who employ seven local people producing wiring harnesses for the automotive market. 87 10 14

Jack Reynolds, rock maker and confectioner, is to retire after 40 years in the rock business. His father, James, was known as 'The Rock King' whose stall at the fairs on Midsummer Common was a familiar sight. Jack opened a shop on Newmarket Road about 1947 and has lived in the area all his life. The road has changed a lot; when he came there were houses in Occupation Road and several businesses have disappeared. He no longer makes his own rock but his son and grandson are carrying on the family name. 87 10 14a # c.27

1987 10 15
Cambridge's first airborne pleasure trip service has just taken off. Techair, a charter company, offers flights from Marshall's Airport in a five-seater Piper Aztec. They charge £14 for a 15-minute trip over the city. The weather for the inaugural flight was dull, raining and windy, buffeting the plane as the pilot pointed out landmarks. The flights are nice for foreign tourists but are mainly aimed at local people who have no experience of flying a small plane. 87 10 15a # c.26.1

1987 10 16
New Town gets ever-closer to our Villages.
Sir
The new settlement proposed by Cambridgeshire County Council in the Structure Plan is creeping dangerously close to the villages of Wilburton & Stretham. In the latest submissions to the Secretary of State or County Council say that the settlement should be sited about the five-metre contour. Do they realise what this means? Have any of them ever travelled this far north of Cambridge? Anyone who knows the area will realise that this is the ridge, which connects Wilburton and Stretham. How can they claim that this is this "country town" which will occupy about 600 acres can remain physically separate from our villages and not interfere with the quality of our lives. We are fighting but the opposition is strong and determined. East Cambridgeshire District Council is determined to sacrifice us for the sake of improving the road links to Ely and the Fenland. The County Council is determined to stand by a decision which seems to have been reached without any detailed knowledge of the topography of this area. The villagers in Wilburton were never consulted about this proposed new settlement. And even now, the County Council seems deaf to our objections and the strength of local feeling. We have not been provided with any details about the proposed new settlement. No glossy brochures for us, not even an outline on a map. We are not one amongst many sites for the new settlement. We are unfortunately, the chosen one. Chosen without consultation. – A Member of the Wilburton Settlement sub-committee

'Stretburton' will be Wonderful!
Sir
The planners have now decided that although they can walk on water they cannot build on it. So they have moved the site of the new town again. They find it can now be squeezed into the area immediately between Stretham and Wilburton and still leave space for a token field or two. There are of course no plans yet. After all, the inquiry is not until next week. But the situation is now clear. Stretburton will be a wonderful place: cheap houses near Cambridge with a lake and water sports facilities. There will be access to four primary schools and two village college, an industrial park and hypermarket. Nor will it be necessary now to dual the road to Ely since nobody will need to go there. We should all be grateful to the councillors from Ely, Littleport and Haddenham who have so selflessly sacrificed their own communities and facilities in allowing their planning officer to make Stretburton, the capital of the Isle. - M.J. Petty, Stretham. – 87 10 16b

Overnight gales and torrential rain devastated the region with winds of more than 100 mph. The atrocious weather disrupted rail and bus services, trees were uprooted, one falling on the roof of a bungalow in Duchess Drive, Newmarket while Wandlebury Woods was devastated with more than 200 trees blown down. Saffron Walden High School had to close after windows were smashed. Power supplies were disrupted causing chaos at pumping stations and Byron's Pool has been placed on red alert as the threat of serious flooding increased. 87 10 16 & a # c.12

1987 10 17
A giant ski and leisure park may be built in a redundant chalk pit at Lime Kiln Road, Cherry Hinton. It would include an Alpine village-style ski lodge with a club and restaurant, a 230-metre ski slope, a lake for canoeing and sub-aqua pursuits, a toboggan run and climbing on a cliff face. Full consultation has taken place with the Nature Conservation Council to protect two rare plants and ensure the natural environment is preserved. 87 10 17

1987 10 20
Cambridge residents should be given the chance to air their views about old-fashioned lampposts that are being replaced as an economy measure, says Coun Rosensteil. The 'Richardson Candles' along Magdalene Street were designed nearly 40 years ago by Sir Albert Richardson, President of the Royal Fine Arts Commission to fit in with the street. But the County Council claims they are expensive to run and that spare parts are no longer available. However the modern steel columns have angered environmentalists who say they are unsuitable for such a sensitive area. 87 10 20

Cambridge Housing Society celebrates diamond jubilee – 87 10 20a

1987 10 21
Classical music concerts could be curtailed at Cambridge Corn Exchange in a bid to cut losses. But 'popular' acts such as comedians Phil Cool & Victoria Wood and big-time rock groups like Motorhead and David Essex have proved a massive success. In just nine months the Corn Exchange has been established as an important venue with plenty of sell-outs and successes. This has led to agents asking if their acts can play there. David Essex, Courtney Pine, The Shadows and the Drifters are amongst those whose managements have approached them. 87 10 21

1987 10 22
Staff at the County Council's emergency centre in the grounds of Shire Hall learned a few lessons last week during the hurricane. The bunker has a television but no radio to receive local or national reports. However during the gales the television stations were off the air, so a radio is now to be brought in. The Home Office refused to pay for a fridge, freezer or microwave but these will now be purchased. A generator can provide power for 30 days and water is stored for the same period. The list of those who would use it is secret but would include top council officials, civic leaders and representatives of police, fire and ambulance. 87 10 22

1987 10 27
A multi-million-pound shopping, hotel, cinema and parking project planned for south Trumpington by Marks and Spencer and Tesco has been scrapped. The vast hypermarket-type development attracted more complaints than any other single planning application ever made in Cambridge. It would have been on green belt land, where building was banned and the city had shown no support. Residents say this is a wonderful day and there will be great rejoicing in the Trumpington area. 87 10 27

Joshua Taylor, the 127-year-old Cambridge department store is up for sale. The Taylor family say they can no longer carry on in the face of fierce competition from national shop chains. The sale is expected to excite nationwide interest. Three factors have brought about the decision: the need to refit the two shops, a rent review due in 1990 and pending changes in the rating system. The retail market is fast changing and premises must be constantly upgraded. Ironically the present year has been the best they have ever had 87 10 27

An overhead cable car system between St Ives and Cambridge has been suggested by the Willingham-based Alternative Transport Society as an alternative option to a rail link. There would be a lack of noise and fumes and cables would be high enough over level crossings, eliminating congestion. It would have simple platforms for alighting with cars slowed automatically by computer control and the total all-weather system would ensure safe and reliable transport. But opponents describe it as a non-starter and just pie in the sky. 87 10 27b # c.26.2

1987 10 28
Consortium Development, the largest housing construction group in the country, announced plans for a new town in the fens. The proposals were unveiled minutes before the Government inquiry into the Structure Plan entered its final phases of dealing with proposed new townships. The combined finances of the consortium, which includes Barratt, Wimpey and Laing, ensures it has the strength to go ahead with the development of homes for nearly 8,000 people between Wilburton and Stretham. But three-quarters of local villagers are completely opposed and will do all they can to stop it. 87 10 28

Joshua Taylor history – 87 10 28a & b # c.27.2

1987 10 29
Kneesworth House was dubbed 'another Broadmoor' by frightened local people before it opened as a home for disturbed for mentally-ill patients, the first private mental hospital of its type. Many of the rooms in the Edwardian mansion are closed with locked peripheral doors. There are no seriously violent or dangerous patients and each day they are escorted from the closed area to take part in various activities, therapy sessions, educational classes or to the swimming pool and gym. Now the owners, American Medical International hope to expand with an adolescent and young people's unit 87 10 29

November 1987 CEN

1987 11 02
John Major may be Conservative Party chairman – 87 11 02

Churchill Service Station, on the corner of Huntingdon and Victoria Roads, has been sold to oil giant Texaco and will be renamed Star Cambridge. They plan to turn the garage workshop area into a supermarket, expanding the grocery section which has been serving the local community for several years. Its founder, Tom Sharpley, moved to Cambridge from Benfleet in 1976, initially selling Chevron fuel. He has mixed feelings: "I have met some horrible creatures in the business but also some first-class people while I've been here". 87 11 02a # c.26.48

1987 11 03
Mini skirts are back in fashion – even the Duchess of York has been seen stepping out in a skirt which exposed the royal knee. Snob in Market Street has pleated minis, knitted minis, straight minis – the style does not matter. For evenings they have frothy, flared minis which are teamed with stiff net petticoats and clingy 'hunza' dresses. Mini-wearer Nim Bruce of Mill Street says: "It doesn't matter if you've got good legs or not – they are frivolous and fun" 87 11 03

Peppercorns delicatessen and health food business began two years ago with an idea and a sandwich delivery round. Edmund and Christopher Bliss opened a shop in Cherry Hinton but it wasn't large enough, so when the chance came to take on a shop in Mill Road they were eager to do so. Now they have opened another in Grantchester Road. As well as coffee and bread they sell cheese such as Cornish Yarg and English Cheddar which at £1.10p per lb is a popular buy with students. 87 11 03a.

Your new Debenhams is here at the Grafton Centre! Step into a new shopping experience and discover the delights of Debenhams. Floor upon floor of fashion and home furnishing to please both eye and pocket. And to celebrate our opening we've some really special offers including a range of fondues, Meyer Tensi Cookware, Oneida 44-piece stainless steel canteen (£149), Royal Doulton 'Delphi bone china 18-piece tea set (£75). Late night shopping Wednesdays till 8pm. (Advertisement) 87 11 03b # c.27.2

1987 11 04
The family-run small works roofing and plumbing company of TR Freeman began trading from a terraced house in Histon Road in 1887. Their early customers were Cambridge colleges who demanded an exacting standard of work on superb buildings and companies in the Freeman Group still work for them, fulfilling the need for traditional skills using traditional materials. The firm has expanded into an internationally operating combine with a workforce of more than 300. Now celebrating its centenary, it is shortly to move into new corporate headquarters on the outskirts of Cambridge 87 11 04 # c.23

1987 11 05
The average teenager smokes, drinks and spends up to £10 a week on records, clothes and going to discos, a new survey of schoolchildren reveals. They seek romance early, with about a third having a steady boy or girl friend by the age of 11. The majority spend one to three hours a night watching television while most 16-year-olds drink alcohol at least once a week and two-thirds have taken up smoking. Pocket money ranges from between £1-£3 for 11-13 year-olds with older teenagers getting up to £10 87 11 05

Ferry Path houses once threatened with demolition – review – 87 11 05a # c.44.6

Vision Park, the controversial office and high-tech development in Histon, has gained a major first tenant which suggests that the developers were right in thinking Histon was an acceptable business location. Construction of a second phase on the former Chivers site across Station Road started in August. Barclays Bank is taking half of the first completed building to replace their head office above the bank in Bene't Street. The move follows Lloyds Bank's decision to take a large headquarters block at Castle Park, Shire Hall and Midland's move of its management team to Parkers House in Regent Street. 87 11 05b

Trumpington Mothers' Union history – 87 11 05c

1987 11 10
Shadows at Corn Exchange – 87 11 10 # c.69

Abbey United match in 1913 – predates United history – 87 11 10a # c.38 : football

1987 11 11
Sydney Cockerell, the Grantchester bookbinder who helped preserved some of the world's most important works has died, aged 81. An expert at restoring and repairing ancient manuscripts and early books, he revived the art of marbling paper. He bound works by Wordsworth, Milton and Tennyson and he designed and tooled binding for the House of Commons Book of Remembrance and many historic volumes. He was awarded the OBE and received an honorary degree from Cambridge University. 87 11 11 # c.25

Cambridge's gallows are up for sale – but it is unlikely they will be coming 'home'. Their owner, a Nottingham policeman, is asking £10,000 for them. This is well out of reach of the city's museums, said John Goldsmith, County Museums Officer, whose office at Shire Hall stands on the site of the former gaol. The gallows stood in Cambridge from around 1860 to 1930 and were used five times to execute murderers. The first hanging took place in 1864, the last in 1913 87 11 11a # c.34.9

1987 11 12
Tempsford School has been transformed into a small stained glass factory – 87 11 12

Bacons tobacconist materials to be sold by auction – 87 11 12a

A second chapel may be built at Cambridge Crematorium because of long waiting lists for funerals. Last year there were well over 3,000 cremations – 87 11 12b

The Windmill School at Fulbourn provides first-class facilities for children with severe learning difficulties. Originally it was known as the Ida Darwin School and catered for profoundly handicapped children resident in the hospital. The only access is through the Hospital grounds where children see adult patients who have been institutionalised for many years. Now they are appealing for their own entrance 87 11 12c

1987 11 13
Cavendish Laboratory awarded grants for research projects which could make the silicon chip obsolete and modify the radio telescope – 87 11 13

Death radar pioneer John Ratcliffe – 87 11 13

1987 11 16
An old broken-down 1930s Fordson tractor has been painted red, blue and green and given a new lease of life as a toy for primary schoolchildren at Girton Glebe school. – 87 11 16

Garden House Hotel's expansion plans include a glass-walled swimming and leisure centre with pool, squash court, saunas and solaria. There would be an extension housing 16 bedrooms, each of which would have a balcony, together with six two-bedroom apartments with kitchens, designed for longer-stay residents such as senior managers or academics. These will run along the east bank of the River Cam and be screened by trees. In addition there will be bed-sitters for staff and a two-storey car park. This would complete the hotel's business plan. But there have been criticism from preservationists. 87 11 16a # c.27.45

1987 11 17
One of Cambridge's most picturesque pubs, the Fort St George, has been completely renovated and revitalised. But it has not lost its charm now the old photographs and oars have been rehung and the old hearth is lit by a roaring fire on cold evenings. Until the 1830s it was surrounded by water with the river on one side and a toll house on the other. Now it is encircled by bicycle trails and there is parking for motorists just across the footbridge. 87 11 17 # c.27.4

1987 11 18
Caxton Gibbet Inn has been born again. A year ago the only sound was dripping water in the empty building. Now it is alive with the sound of clinking glasses and dishes being prepared by a chef who has worked at the Dorchester. The new owners have spent a fortune renovating it and plan to expand with a 20 room motel on the present car park. They have also adopted the adjacent gibbet and given it three coats of varnish to protect it 87 11 18

1987 11 19
King's Cross tube station fire, local casualties – 87 11 19 & a

Burlington Press, Foxton, install new machine 87 11 19b & c

1987 11 20
Townsend Toys and Cycles in Burleigh Street is a family firm set up nearly 100 years ago in Norfolk Street. This Christmas top sellers include a range of small animal characters, 'Sylvanian Families' featuring McBurrows moles, Slydale foxes and Treefellow owls while the Manta Force spacecraft comes complete with vehicles and spacemen inside. Since the BMX craze slackened off some devotees have switched their attention to skateboards; beginners can select a plastic board for £12 while a professional can spend £200. 87 11 20 & a

1987 11 21
Orwell windmill converted into house – 87 11 21

1987 11 23
Researchers at the University Engineering Department believe that developments in superconductors could result in roads on which vehicles would levitate without wheels and tiny pieces of household equipment. – 87 11 23 # c.36.9

1987 11 24
First phase of Redevelopment of the Beehive Shopping Centre on Coldham's Lane complete – 87 11 24 # c.27.2

1987 11 25
Dona Haycraft new book of photographs – 87 11 25 & a

1987 11 26
A new pumping station at Upware, commissioned by Swaffham Internal Drainage Board, replaces an old diesel system dating back to 1929. Consulting engineer, Keith Stacey, says it was constructed in seven months by their own direct labour and they are pleased with the result. The new station has the capacity to pump 178 tons of water per minute into the River Cam from 12,000 acres of adjacent fenland. 87 11 26 # c.29

1987 11 27
Anson Packaging's new £1.5 million extension to its production space was opened by the Mayor of Ely, Coun. Margaret Gordon-Potts. The firm, which started in 1971 at St Ives with 12 staff , moved to the site of the former Haddenham railway station in 1977. It now operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week and employs 300 people. They are a leading producer of thermoformed plastic packaging for the food trade and an approved supplier to Marks & Spencer 87 11 27

1987 11 30
Melbourn-based PA Technology is behind the launch of a pioneering public phone service. ZonePhones are second-generation cordless telephones designed for use in the home, office or street. Owners of the new equipment, which will retail for about £250, can use base stations at distances of more than 200 yards. Its operation is entirely digital with speech transmitted over British Telecom's system like an ordinary call. In time mobile telephones and mobile data terminals will become as common as the ordinary telephone is today, they predict 87 11 30 # c.27.75

December 1987 CEN

1987 12 01
Cambus has bought the entire coach operation of arch rivals Premier Travel. Premier, founded in 1936 has dominated the Cambridge travel scene in recent years and is expecting record profits. It has a fleet of 75 coaches based in Kings Hedges Road and all 129 employees in the coach division will become employees of Cambus. Earlier this year the two companies started a joint venture involving a travel centre at Drummer Street bus station. 87 12 01 # c.26.46

1987 12 02
A 60-year-old landmark in Saffron Walden has been taken apart at the seams and is now just a pile of old scrap metal. The massive 30ft high steel gas container, which has dominated the Thaxted Road corner since 1927, was sliced into sections and each panel swung over to vacant land on the British Gas site. Now that the walls of the container, last used about a year ago, have been removed, only the steel floor remains to be taken up before the area is ready for development 87 12 02

1987 12 03
A major multi-million-pound expansion scheme for the Garden House Hotel has been thrown out by planners who fear it would encroach on 'sacrosanct' land. Opponents had complained the proposals would destroy the open character of Sheeps Green and Coe Fen. Others were worried about traffic congestion. The planning officer said the original Garden House had grown into a hotel served from narrow streets. "It would be quite clearly wrong to extend further with urban scale development into a tongue of land between two critical open pieces of land", he said. 87 12 03 # c.27.45

Cambridge has never offered a better selection of eating establishments according to three food guides. Midsummer House, opened last year, features in all of them but Twenty-Two on Chesterton Road provides probably the best food in Cambridge. The Free Press serves some of the best pub food in East Anglia while the Shao Tao is smarter than the average provincial Chinese restaurant. Outside Cambridge there is praise for the Old Fire Engine House at Ely, Fenland Lodge at Stuntney and the St Ives Motel. 87 12 03a

1987 12 08
Businessmen behind a proposed £1m ski and leisure complex at Cherry Hinton have pledged to work with conservationists to preserve wildlife on the site at Lime Kiln Hill. If built it would feature the longest dry ski slope in England, a toboggan run, ski-hire facilities, a play area, pet's corner and a lake. But the end nearest to houses in Queen Edith's Way would remain a nature reserve. However some residents fear the development would be the 'thin end of the wedge' 87 12 08

1987 12 09
The announcement that a flight of Cruise missiles based at RAF Molesworth will be the first to go under the superpowers' INF agreement prompted celebrations amongst peace campers. Protestors danced around a blazing model of a cruise missile outside the base. But the campers, who celebrate their sixth anniversary at Molesworth on Saturday, vow they will continue until all equipment has been removed from the base. The landlord of the Red Lion pub at Clopton said he welcomed the agreement. 87 12 09

1987 12 10
Cambridge University is to establish an important new Chair in neurology from a £1.2 million fund set up to forge closer links with the East Anglian Regional Health Authority. Neurology embraces all aspects of the nervous system and the new professor's task will have links with research into a whole range of diseases from multiple sclerosis to Aids 87 12 10 # c.36.9

Unsafe classrooms at schools throughout Cambridgeshire will be demolished and replaced. The run-down Horsa classrooms – Hutted Operation for Raising the School Leaving Age – were built to house the booming school rolls of the 1940s but are now in poor condition. Not all will be replaced and some playgroups which have been using them will lose their premises. "No-one likes a school to lose a useful facility, but the safety of pupils in out buildings must come first" said the Geoffrey Morris, chief education officer 87 12 10a

1987 12 11
Anthony Day was born into a farming faming in the fenland village of Wicken only yards away from his present cottage 65 years ago. As a youth he tried farming and after completing war service was accepted into the Cambridge School of Art, then studying at Reading University. He took various jobs to help him survive as an artist, shifting scenery at the Arts Theatre and taking evening classes but would go out on his motor cycle on painting expeditions into the fens. They provided him with an endless source of new material and now his pictures are fetching prices in the region of £300. They can be seen on the walls of many houses in the area 87 12 11

1987 12 14
The Government is being asked to stop a controversial housing development planned for the Clay Farm site at Trumpington. Local MPs want the land to be designated as Green Belt as they fear the development of 100-plus houses would automatically open the door for almost 1,000 others. There is great public hostility to such housing on the open farmland. Housing giant Bovis Homes want to build 57 large houses, 33 small ones and 23 old people's flats on a 12-acre site off Long Road 87 12 14 # c.49.4
1987 12 14
When it comes to housing, Cambridge is a victim of its own economic success. A traditional flow of brains drawn to the university has been bolstered by a growing influx of well-paid works attracted by a booming high-tech sector. Pressure has been immense resulting in rocketing property prices. More and more native Cambridge people are being squeezed out of the property market: 35 per cent of locals can not afford to buy, with an average home costing £70,000. Private housebuilders say they are hampered by the Green Belt while Councils are struggling against a Government keen on ending their roles in housing provision. There are 4,000 people on the city council waiting list, many of whom will never get a home 87 12 14b # c.23

Paradise Street, a young Cambridge band, have released an album of songs most written by members of the group, all pupils of Netherhall School. The band – originally known as Captain Kirk and the Klingon Army Choir - formed when Mark Curtis, Ben Coombes, John Evans and brothers Mark and Paul Pocock were asked to do something for the school disco. Their music is loud and raunchy, influenced by Kiss and Motley Crue, though the lyrics are more on the lines of Marillion or Genesis. They have sent a copy of their tape to rock magazine 'Kerrang' but are not planning to approach record companies nor enter the pop world full-time just yet. A-levels have more priority 87 12 14d # c.69

Champagne flowed at RAF Molesworth as hundreds of peace protestors celebrated the signing of the historic INF treaty. Campaigners festooned barbed wire fences with balloons and banners to mark the deal which will eventually eliminate the medium-range nuclear weapons deployed at bases used by the Americans. Elsewhere children from Histon and Impington took part in a peace celebration quiz;

the youngest winner, Alex Mervart (8) received a £1 voucher from the Rev Tony Barker of Histon Baptist Church 87 12 14c

1987 12 15
The Isle of Ely Full Bore Gun Club, which meets at Mepal, says that proposed new firearm legislation in the wake of the Hungerford massacre would not deter a madman like Michael Ryan who used an AK47 Kalashnikov rifle to kill 16 people. The proposals affect firearms including self-loading and pump-action rifles and shotguns as well as burst-fire guns. At the Isle club more than one in five members could be forced to hand over around £13,000 worth of guns used for years without incident. They have protested to John Major MP 87 12 15

1987 12 16
Addenbrooke's Hospital £1million cleaning contract has been a disaster, health chiefs admit. It led to the longest-running dispute in the hospital's history with health workers picketing the gates for 17 months in protest against cuts in cleaning time. One operation had to be cancelled when blood and bone fragments were found on a theatre floor. Cleaning is still not satisfactory in many areas and contractors have had problems recruiting staff on low wages. 87 12 16

1987 12 18
Cherry Hinton level crossing is being restored by volunteers at the Museum of Technology in Cheddars Lane, Cambridge. The aim is to resite the crossing somewhere in the area on private land. Former mayor John Woodhouse, who has campaigned against British Rail replacing the gates with automatic barriers will be asked to perform the opening ceremony 87 12 18

1987 12 21
The Maharajah, a stylish new Indian restaurant, has opened in a former Castle Street pub but now has an interior decorated with original hand painted silk pictures creating an up-market image. It specialises in authentic Indian cooking with a particular emphasis on Kahari food served on sizzling plates. Pasanda and Tandoori Shaleeka dishes are recommended for those seeking a milder flavour while Jalfreesi, made using fresh green chillis, is popular with established Indian food lovers. A special feature is a Sunday lunchtime buffet when diners can sample various dishes. 87 12 21 # c.27.47

1987 12 22
More than 500 Christmas turkeys, chicken and geese went under the hammer at Cambridge's turkey auction. Prices for turkeys from 62-83p per lb while chickens fetched 62-72p lb The biggest seller was a king-sized 35lb stag turkey. Meanwhile Mrs Thatcher's turkey, specially selected from Valley Farm, Meldreth, was personally delivered to Downing Street in a limousine by farm owner Tony Burlton who started rearing turkeys at the farm 21 years ago. It was prepared for the oven by the farm's butcher, Brian Collins and taken to a London florist to receive the final presentation treatment 87 12 22

1987 12 23
The Cambridge Talking Newspaper for the Blind, one of the first in the country, faces closure. Martin Gienke, one of the founders and is its wizard technician, is leaving after 13 years. They are also short of an editor and four or five writers who can commit about 10 hours every three weeks. The service is always short of cash and the cost of replacing tape equipment is a constant drain on resources. But the paper is eagerly awaited by 250 blind people and is their lifeline with news of the region 87 12 23b

The Chairman of East Cambridgeshire District Council has hit back at opponents of its bid to establish a new town in the Wilburton area. A major row has blown up after Wilburton Parish Council said it had lost all confidence in their integrity. The villagers fear a town half the size of Ely would swamp the existing community. But the District Council welcomes the development. It is one of about 20 sites and if the Inspector rejects it, one of the others would be chosen, he says 87 12 23

Cambridge planners back Cherry Hinton chalk pit ski-centre plans – 87 12 23a

1987 12 24
Frantic food shoppers put supermarket under siege, crowding stores to bursting point and some people with full trolleys abandoned their goods after waiting for more than an hour to get through the checkouts at Sainsbury's in Coldham's Lane. Outside a tail-back of cars stretched for hundreds of yards as more tried to park. At Bar Hill Tesco's shoppers queued half an hour before opening time and Marks and Spencer shelves were stripped bare after fears that food supplies would run down over the Christmas shut-down. 87 12 24

The cost of restoring St Andrew the Great church is now so high that only bug business interests can help, planners say 87 12 24a

1987 12 28
Christmas celebrations – 87 12 28

Cambs Society for Blind given a tandem – 87 12 28a

Language schools charge high prices for bed & breakfast accommodation but pay landladies far less – 87 12 28b

1987 12 29
Bargain hunters were out in their thousands as sale fever hit Cambridge. Shoppers queued right into Sidney Street as they waited for the doors to open at Eaden Lilley while Joshua Taylor said they had never seen a sale go as well. Woolworths' record department was the most popular with people spending their Christmas money and vouchers. At MFI furniture store all lines were selling well and there were long tailbacks in Coldham's Lane as people waited to get on to the Coral Park Trading Estate 87 12 29

Procyon Research began at Cavendish when research students produced an interface for the BBC Computer; compiles programmes for industry – 87 12 29a # c.27.5

1987 12 30
Dennis of Grunty Fen a roaring success on Radio Cambridgeshire - 87 12 30 & a 1987 12 31

Bourn Hall test-tube baby centre has 1,000th baby on Boxing Day – 87 12 28c; pioneers Steptoe & Edwards get CBEs, 87 12 31

1988 Cambridge Evening News

I have copies of these articles

January 1988 CEN

1988 01 02
City Bargains in Mill Road is shutting up shop, closing a chapter in Cambridge history. It is one of the last traditional general stores where even the prices are rung up in pounds, shillings and pence and converted by mental arithmetic to decimal. They sold most things, from a packet of pins to a pram and were renowned for supplying anything buyers wanted Former market stall holder Dennis Capon and his wife, who have run it for 27 years, have happy memories of their customers: "They'd come here for a laugh and a chat and got to know us". 88 01 02a

Premier Travel, one of Cambridge's biggest coach firms, has been bought out by its management after an earlier deal with Cambus fell through. Its founder, Arthur Lainson is delighted the company will be retaining its identity. Premier Travel, founded in 1936, has dominated the local travel scene with a fleet of 75 coaches based in Kings Hedges Road. The travel part of the business, which includes 14 travel agencies across East Anglia, is to be sold off separately. 88 01 02 # c.26.46

1988 02 05
Crippling mortgage repayments are spiralling householders deeper and deeper into debt. Research shows that 'Dumpies- – Desperately Underfinanced Mortgage Paupers – find the upkeep of their newly-purchased homes and the cost of their mortgages often exceeds their income. Familybase says that in Cambridge the average income of people who went for debt counselling was £89.63 and essential expenditure came to £82. This left £7.63 a week to pay off the average £5,519 debt. 88 01 05

Pye Unicam, direct descendant of the original W.G. Pye instrument company founded in 1896 has now changed its name to Philips Scientific. It was formed from the merger of W.F. Pye and Unicam in 1947 and was the last of the Cambridge companies to keep the name Pye in its title. It has now been recognised as a group with four divisions including the once separate Philips Communications and Security in Cromwell Road. It specialises in making analytical instruments for laboratory use, much of which is sold to Eastern Europe and the Far East 88 01 05 history of company – 88 01 05a, 88 01 06 & a # c.27.1

The Crossroads Care Attendance Scheme began in 1974 with TV's 'Crossroads' serial after 'Meg Richardson' raised money for a nurse to help cope with a paraplegic character. ATV turned fiction into fact and a real attendance scheme was formed. A Cambridge group now helps 30 local families using paid employees, rather than volunteers, to provide a professional level of service. It has received funding from Cambridge Rotaract – the Junior Rotary Club – whose members sold mince pies to shoppers and sang carols. 88 01 05b

1988 01 07
A plan to transform the church of St Andrew the Great into a shopping arcade has been thrown out by the city council. A similar scheme was rejected after 500 letters of objection were received. A pressure group hopes to protect the church from commercial use and retain it for Christian worship. But the cost of renovating the building has rocketed and the Bishop of Ely fears the long delays mean it can never be restored. Closed more than three years ago, the 145-year-old building contains a memorial to Captain Cook the explorer and a peal of eight bells 88 01 07

A taxi guard of honour lined Cherry Hinton High Street in tribute to John Phillips, the big-hearted former cabbie who helped raise millions of pounds for health care. Twenty-seven cars were on parade as the funeral cortege made its way to St Andrew's Church which was packed with mourners including past and present Mayors and MPs. Mr Phillips was a former director of United Taxis and ran his own firm. He was chairman of an appeal for Addenbrooke's Hospital scanner unit opened by

Prince Charles in 1981 and a magnetic response scanner opened by the Duchess of Kent last year. 88 01 07a

Oakington and Longstanton villagers are fighting the Army's proposals to build a mock battlefield near their homes. Two lakes would be dug out to create a series of mounds for general infantry training and another for practice helicopter landings. As the Army is not subject to normal planning rules it could use bulldozers noisier than four combine harvesters, which would be unbearable, residents complain. But SCDC say the airfield has been there 47 years and troops must be trained somewhere 88 01 07b

A new railway station designed to ease Cambridge's worsening transport problems could be sited near the A10 at Milton, says British Rail. No costs for the 'Cambridge Parkway' halt have yet been worked out but BR would almost certainly look for cash from the community to build the new station and car park. Last year the City and County Councils provided £125,000 help pay for new crossing gates at Cherry Hinton 88 01 07c # c.26.2

Newmarket 1914-19 – new book – 88 01 07d

1988 01 13
Cambridge cyclists may become the first in the country to face on-the-spot fines for 'the stupid and irresponsible riding which is now reaching epidemic proportions' Councillors are asking the Government to start a pilot scheme which would allow police to impose instant fines in the same way they do on errant motorists. They want it introduced before the annual influx of foreign language students, often criticised for their bad cycling. Police say they would welcome the suggestion. The Government is already giving nearly £1 million for the building of the longest experimental cross-city cycleway in the country. 88 01 13

Plough Monday celebrations were held at Balsham, Fenstanton and Elsworth where the Cromwell Molly dancers from Great Gransden led a procession of villagers to both pubs, The Poacher and the George and Dragon. They also stopped at a beamed cottage, formerly the Plough pub where, after rolling back the carpet, the dancers sang and jigged to traditional tunes wearing hobnailed boots and decorated clothes. One of the men dressed as a milkmaid – but kept his boots on. At Fenstanton the dancers followed the historical ritual of blacking their faces and donning country costumes before a torch-lit procession from the church to the Chequers, George Inn and the Tudor Hotel. 88 01 13a

1988 01 14
Victoria cinema, p5
Children and old, p28

1988 01 15
Lights went up for the last time at the Victoria Cinema as the final performance of its last show came to an end. As the audience left after seeing 'Spaceballs' or 'Predator', manager Richard Wright reflected on the cinema's long history. Memories of MGM musicals, Saturday morning minors and all-night horror shows came flooding back. Mick Wells, who has been the chief projectionist for 24 years recalled the halcyon days when 'South Pacific' ran for two solid years and 'The Sound of Music' for three. Now the building on Cambridge Market Hill will make way for a new Marks and Spencer store. 88 01 15 # c.76.9

Cambridge police have moved into the high-tech age; now suspects at Parkside will have their interviews recorded on tape instead of laboriously taken down in writing. Five new interview rooms have been fitted with a special recording machine and a sensitive microphone fitted to the wall. Tapes will be kept for six years and a new civilian post of a tape librarian has been created. A suspect in a simple shoplifting case can now be in and out of the interview rooms within a quarter of an hour instead of the hour it used to take. 88 01 15a # c.34.7

1988 01 19
A revolutionary new compost being cooked up on a Cambridgeshire farm could reduce stubble burning and provide a cheaper way of disposing of sewage in future. Anglian Water has perfected a technique mixing sewage sludge and waste straw to produce old-fashioned, organically rich "farmyard manure" on a farm at Woodhurst which produces compost for mushroom production. They see it as an exciting departure in sludge disposal. 88 01 19

1988 01 20
A desperate shortage of hotel accommodation and a dismal nightlife is putting off people visiting Cambridge, a report says. The closure of the Victoria Cinema is part of a long-term decline in entertainment in the city centre and with the exception of the Corn Exchange, little has been done to encourage more. But plans for the Cambridge Heritage Centre at St Giles' church and a leisure pool at Parkside are going ahead. 88 01 20

More than 2,000 houses in Cambridge are used as bed-sits, care homes or for bed and breakfast, according to council figures. Many can be sub-standard with poor conditions, inadequate fire escapes and too many cars and bicycles parked outside which can lead to severe traffic problems. The growth in bed-sits have been prompted by booming businesses fed by mobile young people, thriving tourism, low-paid workers in an expensive city and a big student population. A fall in council house building has made things worse and the new Housing Bill looks likely to create more money for landlords. 88 01 20

Futons, the Japanese form of bedding, is gaining in popularity. Now a new shop, Futopia, has opened in Mill Road 88 01 20a

1988 01 21
One of Cambridgeshire's busiest roads is to be ripped up and rebuilt, meaning a traffic jam nightmare. A two-mile stretch of the concrete-surfaced A604 Huntingdon bypass between Godmanchester and the Spittals link – opened just 13 years ago – is breaking up and could take at least eight months to fix. Numerous repairs have been made on the concrete surface – built as an alternative to bitumen during the 70s oil crisis – but the road has continued to crack. The Department of Transport says that traffic flows have been much heavier than forecast which has reduced the estimated life of the road from 40 years to 22. 88 01 21

Brilliant Cambridge mathematician and physicist, Professor Stephen Hawking, has been awarded a major cash prize by the Israeli Wolf Foundation. Prof Hawking, 46, who is confined to a wheelchair by a muscle-wasting disease, is a world authority on the scientific phenomenon of black holes. He has been Professor of Mathematics since 1979 and has collected a host of honours for his pioneering research 88 01 21a

1988 01 22
Road, rail and air services were all thrown into chaos as heavy snow brought mayhem 88 01 22 # c.12.1

The Cambridge Rock Group Competition saw 1,000 fans jammed into the Corn Exchange to support the seven bands battling out for places in the semi-final. The gentle jazz-rock group, Curious, featured the magnificent vocals of Hilary Bailey and her 10-string Chapman stick bass which gave them a clean sound, Bogus Renegades were impressive for their years but Turn to Blue's squeaky clean pop was not fashionable in this competition. In the end it was the dynamic Nutmeg and Indiscretion who took the honours. 88 01 22a # c.69

1988 01 23
Booming Mid Anglia has just had its most buoyant year ever – 88 01 23

The Government is to give top priority to the A1-M1 link road through Cambridgeshire, starting at the Brampton roundabout and following the existing A604 past Bythorne to join the M1 at Cathorpe. 88 01 23a

1988 01 25
Duchess of York expecting a baby – 88 01 25
King's College lost millions of pounds when the stock market crashed last autumn, its bursar has admitted. 88 01 25a

1988 01 26
Joshua Taylor, one of Cambridge's most prestigious department stores has been sold. The new owner, London property developers Arlington Security plans to retain the name and upmarket image. Each of the 160 staff have their jobs guaranteed and will get an average loyalty bonus of £1,500. Included in the deal are the main Sidney Street shop, the Bridge Street houseware shop and the Taylor family's academic robe-making business. The deal ends three months of doubt over the 128-year-old store's future following the Taylor family's decision to sell up in the face of fierce competition from national chains 88 01 26 # c.27.2

Joice Taylor of Girton comes from an academic family. She has organised the Cambridge Lectures for young people which have run each Christmas at the University Engineering Department from 1963. Under the chairman, Dr Ronald Gray, the lectures by experts in their field cover topics such as spiders, snakes and scorpions, how the weather is forecast, a talk by Mary Archer about solar energy [and even some by a young Mike Petty]. 88 01 26a # c.37.9

1988 01 27
Cambridge's £1.2 million dry ski slope plan has been approved. The slope, together with a ski lodge, club facilities and space for 200 cars, will be built in the disused chalk pit at Lime Kiln Road. Councillors were split: some said it would be a very useful asset for a city where there are few facilities for young people. But others were fearful of traffic problems and the effect on wildlife 88 01 27

The chimney of the Blue Circle cement works on Coldham's Lane is the last remnant of more than 75 years of cement production in Cambridge. It stands alone on the 70-acre site which ceased production in 1984. It opened in 1908 as the Norman cement works and was frequently modernised with a new kiln installed in 1948. It finally closed in June after being a grinding and distribution plant for its last three years. Mystery still surrounds the future of the site which is still partly used as a waste dumping ground in a former quarry 88 01 27a # c.27

Victoria Cinema staff recall history – 88 01 27b # c.76.9

1988 01 28
Cambridge will have a dry ski slope together with a ski lodge, club house, restaurant and parking for 200 cars at Lime Kiln Road. The development, set in 20 acres, will be the biggest dry ski slope of its kind in England with a toboggan run and practice cliff face. The site was once a Roman burial ground and an Iron Age Fort and opponents claim wildlife and plants would be put at risk. But planning permission was granted by one vote. 88 01 28

Henry Button is a civil servant who won the BBC's Brain of Britain. Quiz in 1962. On retirement he became a registered tour guide and still takes about 60 parties each year. Henry has an obsession for facts which started when the Guinness Book of Records was pushed in 1955. Now he is an honorary consultant to the world-famous book. Writing to newspapers is another of his hobbies and he has had more than 30 letters published in The Times, many helping readers to solve a problem. Now he has compiled a Cambridge quiz as part of the News' centenary celebrations. 88 01 28a

1988 01 29

Plans to build 200 houses on 15 acres of land at Home Farm, Longstanton, have been turned down twice by SCDC. But they could now go ahead provided developers are willing to pay for a by-pass 88 01 29

Easter fair on Midsummer Common cancelled to help grass recover – 88 01 29a

1988 01 30
Cambridge suffered its worst night of flooding in 10 years as Anglian Water put the city on red alert. Emergency services were put on standby as residents in the Riverside area barricaded their homes with sandbags as water rose dangerously high. At Byron's Pool the water level was three-feet above Norman and several roads were completely closed to traffic. Firemen through the area were called out to householders suffering from flooding and motorists were trapped in their cars by rising water 88 01 30 # c.12.5

February 1988 CEN

1988 02 01
The Mayor paid tribute to the city's chief planning officer, David Urwin, describing his death as a tragic blow to the whole of Cambridge. A graduate of Selwyn College, he spent most of his career with the city council, beginning as a junior planner and working his way through the ranks. 88 02 01 # c.49.4

One of Cambridge's best-known landmarks was removed from the skyline as the chimney at the 70-acre Blue Circle cement works in Coldham's Lane went out in style. The surrounding roads were full of cars before a sudden and extremely loud bang rang out. In a few seconds the old chimney took a clean dive to the ground and was reduced to a pile of rubble. The Norman cement works had opened in 1908 and frequently modernised, finally closing last June. For the last three years it was used as a grinding and distribution plant 88 02 01a # c.27

1988 02 02
George Reynolds was a loveable tramp who lived by a cabbage patch at the bottom of a garden in Coton for 30 years. 'Old George', thought to have run away from home as a teenager, was a well-known character. He built himself a shack made from old timber, plastic, corrugated iron sheets and other assorted rubbish where he did his cooking over an open fire, slept on newspapers and occasionally had a wash in an old tin bath outside his hut. He was likeable and completely harmless and will be missed by everybody 88 02 02

1988 02 03
Cambridge's nurses took to the city's streets for a day of action – and praised the public for backing their battle to save the NHS. More than 100 nurses marched from Shire Hall to Addenbrooke's Hospital where at a mass rally they spoke about their low pay and poor working conditions. Wages range from £5,400 for a newly-trained nurse (worth about £11,934 today) up to £12,000(£26,500) for a sister. But a bed-sitter cost £100 a week - what many nurses take home in net pay. Some can claim supplementary benefit, even though they are in full-time employment, and many have to 'moonlight' in shops and bars. 88 02 03, 88 02 08

College boatmen restore and repair rowing eights and fours which are easily damaged during practice or racing. Thy fix shoes, slides and stretchers needing attention. The number of boats has doubled since women's rowing came into its own. Alf Twin is 72 and for 53 years worked at the Cambridge University Boat Club. For seven years he served his apprenticeship under the senior boatman 'Cooey' Phillips, watching his master by day and attending classes at night. It was much more of a gentleman's sport in those days. Now the crews train harder and the boats are changing from wooden to plastic. 88 02 03a & b

1988 02 04

Education Secretary Kenneth Baker has given permission to turn St Bede's Roman Catholic School into a new inter-church school, one of only five in the country. It marks the final triumphant move in a turbulent chapter which almost ended with the secondary school being closed down after a drop in the number of pupils. It was reprieved following a determined battle by parents and teachers and headmistress Sister Dolores looks forward to an exciting future as a Christian secondary school for up to 600 Anglican and Roman Catholic children drawn from places as far apart as Littleport and St Neots 88 02 04.

Builders William Sindall have handed over the first new home in a new joint low-cost Cambridge housing scheme of 30 properties at Banff Close. The council provided the land for development and, in co-operation with Sindall, has made the houses available at prices well below market levels for people who would otherwise be on the council's waiting list. 88 02 04a

The Dog and Pheasant in High Street Chesterton is a true community pub with darts, crib, football and fishing teams. Originally it had three separate bars but these were combined into one in a modernisation plan completed in 1986. New kitchens have been installed with customers from nearby offices telephoning their lunch-time menu choices. The friendly 'family' pub has regulars aged from 18 to 80 who get on well together and a garden with play equipment for children. 88 02 04b

1988 02 05
A new 300-space multi-storey car park planned for Saxon Street – 88 02 05

1988 02 06
The Government has confirmed its refusal to lift the financial blockade in the way of Cambridge's controversial park-and-ride scheme. County conservatives, supported by MPs want to replace the scheme with something smaller linked to more off-street city centre parks. Now councils will have to sell land or property to raise enough money to start the scheme to ring the city with car parks linked to the centre by a frequent bus service. 88 02 06

1988 02 08
Nurses too poor to live in Cambridge – 88 02 08

The new Littlehey Prison in the grounds of the old Gaynes Hall borstal, may seem like a luxury hotel. Rooms have private lavatory and washing facilities, many with country views and the kitchens are finished to the highest standard. It has a magnificent gym, football and rugby pitches, a cricket field and all-weather sports area. There is a library where readers can order books, (though certain subjects such as drugs and firearms are banned), and three workshops. There is even a church. But it also has a 17ft floodlit fence. It will be home for 484 Category C prisoners serving from 18 months to life. 88 02 08a

Emergency plans have been drawn up for Hauxton residents in case of an accident involving two potentially deadly gases, chlorine and phosgene, at the Schering Agrochemicals plant. Should a siren sound people living within 1,500 metres are advised to go indoors, close widows and stay in a room facing away from the works. There have been two explosions over the past four years: 400 staff were evacuated after a can of fungicide exploded and in 1983 a building was destroyed following a blast in which six people were injured. But the company says it had never had any incidents which could cause a hazard to residents. 82 02 08b

1988 02 10
Cambridge United's Lotto, the soccer prize draw it runs with three other East Anglian club, is folding. The failure of the lottery after less than two years will mean of loss of revenue of around £2,000 for the club. United entered the scheme with Ipswich Town, Norwich City and Peterborough United in an attempt to salvage something from the disastrous national draw competition 'Top Score'. The Lotto worked well in the first year but interested dropped when the draw stopped being made live on television. When Peterborough pulled out it was no longer viable 88 02 10

1988 02 11
Hamilton Kerr institute – feature 88 02 11 & a

1988 02 12
University has withdrawn its application to demolish the historic main ward block of the disused Old Addenbrooke's Hospital. A £7 million research institute to be set up on another part of the site 88 02 12

Work begins on Quayside redevelopment – 88 02 12a

1988 02 15
Ken Humphries, one of Milton's best-known personalities, has died. His involvement in local government began in 1966 when he became clerk of the parish council before becoming a member in 1976. He represented the village on SCDC for 16 years, fighting for a village bypass and a footbridge over the A10. He was an enthusiastic local historian, assembling masses of material on Milton and was researching material for a village sign which would be a fitting memorial to his work. 88 02 15

1988 02 16
Boy Scout groups tracing history – feature - 88 02 16

1988 02 17
Three new railway stations at Cherry Hinton, Fulbourn and the Chittering area have been suggested in a County council report. But stations at Harston, Offord and Soham have been rejected on grounds of cost. British Rail plans to build a new 'parkway' station to the north of Cambridge to meet growing commuter passenger growth. But calls to re-open the Cambridge to St Ives freight line to passengers are firmly ruled out. It would cost £4.84 million, greatly outweighing potential income, consultants say 88 02 17

Prince Charles meets sponsors of Cambridge Enterprise Agency – 88 02 17a # c.02

1988 02 18
Cambridge Detective Agency operates from a home in Madras Road. In high-tech Cambridge industrial espionage is a danger every research company faces and domestic violence cases can turn very nasty. The most frightening job was to serve an eviction order on a group of campers in Thetford Forest. They were Hell's Angels with a habit of firing crossbow bolts through pub windows. But much of the work is tracing people, insurance investigations and divorce enquiries. The detective's wardrobe contains not only a pin-stripe suit but a host of disguises essential for surveillance such as false beards, moustaches and sideburns. When the agency started four years ago there were four private 'tecs in the city, now it is the only one. 88 02 18 & a # c.34.7

1988 02 19
King John's treasure may have been found after a 30-year search. Two Cambridge professors have unearthed particles of silver, gold and copper deep down in the fen between King's Lynn and Wisbech. They think is it part of the 13th century treasure which was lost in the Wash when the King's baggage train was caught by the tide in 1216. Now they want to use the latest scientific methods to date their finds. If this matches then a serious commercial excavation can be started. The treasure is reported to include more than 100 silver goblets, staffs of office studded with diamonds and a gold wand that was a present from the Pope. 88 02 19

David Urwin, the city's former planning head who died recently, is to be commemorated by annual environmental awards to promote good building, conservation and improvement schemes which make an outstanding contribution to the Cambridge townscape. One will cover major projects, the other small schemes such as shop fronts and will be assessed by panel of judges of national reputation. As the city's Chief Planning Officer, David did more than anyone in the past 20 years to shape the city's future 88 02 19a

1988 02 20
Cambridge is set for a battle of the booksellers after news that the Waring and Gillow furniture store in Sidney Street will be refurbished as Dillons Bookstore. 88 02 20 # c.25

1988 02 22
The Territorial Army staged a massive exercise as 300 soldiers firing blank ammunition brought war to the Cambridge area. Enemy forces were advancing from Haverhill, blowing up bridges on the A45 and imaginary infantrymen were sent to engage them. Countless 'casualties' were ferried by helicopter to the main dressing station at Oakington Barracks where they were treated by volunteers and doctors from Mid Anglia health services. One specialist unit was kept busy appeasing local residents' complaints about disturbances. 88 02 22 # c.45.8

1988 02 23
Royston's battle of the buses has begun as Premier Travel's new red, white and blue mini-buses picked up their first passengers on the town-link route. They offered free rides for pensioners although the normal rate will be 20p for a single journey. But there were only a handful of passengers taking advantage of them. Cambus will also offer free rides when it launches a rival service on Saturday though the regular fare will be 5p more. 88 02 23

The number of people seeking marriage guidance assistance has increased nearly 50 per cent in the last seven years, with 513 new cases in 1987. Today the 50-year-old National Marriage Guidance Council updates its image with a new name – Relate - and it is clear there is an ever-growing demand for its services. The next quarter century looks to be difficult with an increasing number of people from broken homes embarking on their own unions. Relate's job is to help people work their way through when they get stuck; their councillors have listened too long and too carefully to people's problems to suggest glib answers 88 02 23a

1988 02 24
Parkside Community College has been fighting officialdom since it opened 75 years ago. In 1913 the school faced the might of the British class system when many saw no reason why working class children should be educated 'above their station'. At the opening even the Mayor expressed doubts and a writer to the CDN urged that children of the working classes should be taught just the three Rs since roadsweepers, farm labourers and domestic servants would always be needed. Those who wished it could learn a trade later. Now it is celebrating its achievements. 80 02 24a

1988 02 25
An Australian economist predicts that by the year 2000 there would be large terraced houses in Cambridge costing £500,000. House prices can be expected to rise by at least eight per cent a year. The price of a terraced house north or east of the city centre has risen from £4,000 in 1970 to £35,000 in 1981 and is now (1988) £90,000 A flood of rich Londoners and foreigners will keep the heat on the housing market. There will be hope for first-time buyers and pressure on the private sector could push rents up drastically forcing workers to live further from the city 88 02 25

1988 02 26
Cambridge University Department of Geography was founded 100 years ago and trained surveyors for the colonial service. The first Professor, Frank Debenham was a member of Shackleton's artic expeditions, Prof Alfred Steers studied the British coastline while Prof Sir Clifford Darby analysed data in the Domesday survey. Today it concerns itself with satellite information, computerised data for mapping, the study of the environment and a host of other modern problems. 88 02 26

1988 02 29
Terrified householders, some in their night clothes, were evacuated when fire ripped through a St Ives firm, causing a major gas alert. Ambulance men ferried East Street residents to the police station after the F. Wilson printing company burst into flames. At the height of the blaze part of the timber building collapsed into the street, scattering burning debris. The main building was razed to the ground but today production was continuing with other printers offering help. 88 02 29

March 1988 CEN

1988 03 01
Adrian Wright, Cambridge Register office – 88 03 01

Sarah Sturgess is the backbone of the Swaffham Bulbeck fire station. Fifty years ago she and her husband took it upon themselves to convert the barn at the back of their Sun pub into what is now a modern fire station. When the fire bell rang she would cycle round the village to round up the part-time firemen and in cold weather she would remove the spark plugs from the fire engine and put them in her Aga oven to make sure they would work when needed. Still, whatever time of day or night the men are called out she ensures there is a cup of tea and sandwiches waiting for them when they get back. Last year the service realised she was not going to retire so, on her 90th birthday, they threw a surprise party and presented her with a silver statuette of a fireman 88 03 01a

1988 03 02
The Rosie Maternity Hospital is experiencing a bumper baby boom - among its own midwives. No fewer than 14 of them are either pregnant or have just given birth. The first sign of the 'epidemic' came in the run-up to Christmas when a quick check among the 76 staff revealed 14 were pregnant. And there could be more – at the moment there are two more 'may-bes'. One midwife said, "It's remarkable. We have never known so many all pregnant at one time". All the babies will be born at the Rosie, one of the top hospitals in the country. But it does now need a crèche! 88 03 02

Mr 'Jimmy' Wild was a law student at Sidney Sussex College 75 years ago but in 1914 volunteered to go to the front. He returned to practice law in Cambridge in 1934 renting an office opposite Emmanuel College. Three years later he employed a young assistant, Roy Hewitson and the business flourished, moving to Sidney Street where they were joined by Peter Shaw. It is now one of the largest legal firms in East Anglia and has just relocated to Shakespeare House on Newmarket Road with a team of 23 partners and over 100 staff. 88 03 02a

1988 03 03
Jack Warren served on the city council for 30 years and was twice mayor of Cambridge. He was a staunch Labour Party member all his working life – much spent with the University's archaeology department. During the 1950s he was prominent in the squatters' housing rights movement, moving into disused army huts on Donkey Common in a bid to force the authorities to build more houses. Later he was involved in secret talks with multi-millionaire David Robinson aimed at building a new civic hall, but the scheme never got off the ground. Jack was the council's 'elder statesman' until retiring nearly 10 years ago. 88 03 03

In National Housing Week, affluent Cambridge has no grounds to feel complacent. No one knows exactly how much rented accommodation there is but with more than 2,000 bed-sits there are problems of leaking roofs, damp rooms and overcrowding. In one small terraced house in a run-down area there were four people paying £30 a week each. The furniture was minimal and there was a gaping hole in one interior door. The tenants complained that the gas supply had been cut off; a second-hand electric cooker had been supplied by the landlady, but the door did not close. 88 03 03a & b

1988 03 04
A novel new executive taxi service may be launched in Cambridge.' Destination Direct' will transport executives from the company car park to open ground nearest their destination – by helicopter. It will feature Bell Jet Ranger four-seaters and the three-seater Hughes 500's travelling at about 100 road miles per hour. The cost of a journey from Cambridge to Heathrow would be about £470 return. The man behind the scheme believes there are a lot of people who would make use of the advantages 88 03 04

1988 03 05
Sunlight Textiles, a Girton factory employing 37 people, has been forced to close as they can't get staff. It runs a linen laundry rental service and has been in the village since the turn of the century. They could do with double the number of semi-skilled machine operators who earn £90 for a 39 hour week and had bussed workers in from other areas. It was part of the Cambridge problem of a service sector paying low wages with high housing costs The firm had more than 20 other factories and staff problems were more severe here than anywhere else.. 88 03 05

1988 03 07
University Rag Day stunts – 88 03 07

1988 03 08
Multi-million pound plans to refurbish the Lion Yard shopping centre would include gates to shut off the precinct at night. There would be a food court with restaurant on the upper floor of the present WH Smith which would be relocated in Heidelberg Gardens. 88 03 08

1988 03 09
Shop banned sale of cigarettes in 1960s – 88 03 09

1988 03 10
Parkside Pool may be transformed into one of most modern water sports and leisure centres – 88 03 10

Francis Sword, Fitzwilliam Museum education officer – 88 03 10a & b & c

1988 03 14
Restaurants in Cambridge city centre have suffered a dramatic loss of trade since the controversial closure of the Victoria Cinema and its redevelopment for a new Marks and Spencer store. The Berni Steak House in Rose Crescent is down 150 meals a week while Flambards wine bar in Rose Crescent has also lost custom. The owner of the Italian Kitchen says there is nothing for anyone to come in for in the evening. The whole place is just deserted. 88 03 14

1988 03 15
The National Trust's Wicken Fen reserve wanted a new pool for wildfowl but the peat kept turning to mud when dug. So soldiers from 39 Engineer Regiment at Waterbeach set off three controlled explosions as a training exercise. When they had finished a TV crew asked them to do just one more, for the cameras. They obliged, so the Trust ended up with a hole much deeper than expected. The pool, about 20 metres square, will be home for moorhen, coot, fen dragonflies and freshwater plants. A hide adapted for wheelchairs will overlook it. 88 03 15

The 15th-century Blue Lion at Hardwick has always been a popular country venue for a quiet drink near Cambridge. Now has a restaurant 88 03 15a

Three Japanese women are visiting Cambridge to interview families who took in evacuee children during the Second World War. They are part of a women's study group based in Tokyo to study evacuee children and families in Britain, West Germany and Japan. The group appealed for people to share their experiences as an evacuee or as a family who look in children during that time. They also hope to study copies of the News from the war years at the Cambridgeshire Collection. They hope to publish a book eventually. 88 03 15b

A double-decker was completely destroyed in a blaze at Mepal. The fire started from beneath the bus after the driver pulled his vehicle to the side of the road with worries about an engine problem. Only one passenger was on board at the time. Nobody was injured but a nearby house in School Lane sustained heat damage to two windows. Firemen from Sutton and Ely attended. 88 03 15

1988 03 17
Marshalls granted permission for Jumbo jet repair & maintenance hangar – 88 03 17 # c.27.1 : Marshalls

Parkside swimming pool plans for water sports complex – 88 03 17a # c.38 : swimming

Royston hospital has been saved from closure after North Herts health authority decided to turn 18 beds over from GP to geriatric care without jeopardising out-patient services. 88 03 17b

Jack Warren no mere figurehead – 88 03 17c

Huntingdon Auxiliary Fire Service disbanded 1968 – memories 88 03 17d

1988 03 18
The cock-eyed cockerel on top of Haslingfield church has become a symbol of eccentric dottiness and an endearing landmark, says its vicar. It has been wobbling precariously for more than 20 years but they cannot afford to put it right. The church was built in the middle of the 14th century and the weather cock has rusted in its support. Now an architect's report will reveal whether it has become a priority 88 03 18

Landbeach's historic tithe barn has remained virtually unchanged since Elizabethan. Until last year the barn belonged to the Diocese of Ely but now it has been bought on behalf of the village. A few structural changes will be made, with electric lights to illuminate the impressive timber-framed interior so that it can be used for concerts or plays in warm weather. It may house a permanent exhibition of rural objects. But it won't be suitable for discos or barn dances. 88 03 18a

A three-ton monster bell, the biggest in Canterbury Cathedral, has been bought to a small Lode firm for welding repairs. It is the largest job ever undertaken by Soundweld, of Quy Road, in its 20-year history. 'The Great Dunstan' which tolls the hours at the cathedral is one of the largest bells in the country, almost 60ft in diameter and more than five-feet tall. It arrived by transporter and was lifted by crane to a specially-prepared plinth. Repairs will take several weeks 88 03 21 # c.69.6

1988 03 22
Householders at King's Ripton are counting the cost of a massive gas explosion which shot jets of flame at their homes. The blaze began when a propane gas tank used for house heating began to leak when it was being refuelled from a tanker. Gas was ignited, setting fire to the house and destroying nearby garages. The fire caused a second tank to explode and rocket across a garden. Two other cylinders overheated and 'vented off' with gas jets burning upwards. Pipes connecting the gas tanker to the storage containers had to be cut to prevent the flames reaching the tanker. Twenty-five people had to be evacuated but nobody was seriously injured. 88 03 22

Ely Cathedral restoration – German visitors tour roof – 88 03 22a

1988 03 23
Mr Patrick Steptoe was part of a team led by Dr Robert Edwards at Cambridge University who in 1970 successfully removed an egg from an ovary and fertilised it in a test tube with sperm. Then in July 1978 came the birth of the first test-tube baby, Louise Brown. A year later work was under way to convert Bourn Hall into the world's first text-tube baby clinic. Now more than 1,000 children are alive thanks to his research. He was awarded a CBE and won prestigious prizes but his best memorial will be to ensure that research continues, said MP Robert Rhodes James. His funeral will take place at Bourn church. 88 03 23

1988 03 25
Camtax revolutionised the Cambridge taxi service with the introduction of a 24-hour telephone link to their headquarters in 1938 and in 1947 they were granted the country's number one licence to operate radio-controlled cars, following experimental work with Pye. At first there were only 15 vehicles, all painted Cambridge blue with smartly-uniformed drivers. Now it has a fleet of 65 cars transporting 3,000 people every day. 88 03 25a # c.26.47

Bar Hill celebrates 25th anniversary – 88 03 25

1988 03 28
Traitor Kim Philby has named an economics Cambridge don as the man who introduced him to communism in the 1930s. Maurice Dobb, a Fellow of Trinity, gave him an introduction to a perfectly-legal communist group in Paris who passed him on to an illegal underground movement in Vienna. But he denies there was any such thing as a 'Cambridge ring of spies', saying he did not know until after the war that fellow students Donald Maclean and Anthony Blunt were also Soviet spies adding that Guy Burgess was not recruited at Cambridge. 88 03 28

Residents whose gardens back on to the medieval lake known as Bolton's Pit, off Barton Road, Cambridge opposed plans for a new development. The lake is a haven for wildlife and a designated place of natural history interest. Mallards, moorhens, kingfishers and rare mandarin ducks would be disturbed, they claim. The area is protected by a covenant saying nothing should be done to damage the rural aspect. But developers say intruders have been taking the duck and by putting a property on the site it would help protect the wildfowl. 88 03 28a

1988 03 30
Patrick Steptoe funeral 88 03 30 & a

April 1986 CEN

1988 04 05
Wilburton villagers have launched a campaign to stop a new town being built on their doorsteps. The Parish Council has been involved in a major row with ECDC over their handling of the issue but are fighting against enormous odds. "We are a small community threatened with destruction. Our village life, our environment, is about to be swallowed up in a large development", they claim. Now they have won support from MP, Malcolm Moss, who has sent a letter condemning the proposal to the Environment Minister. 88 04 05

Followers of an Indian guru have angered villagers by holding a 500-strong gathering at Shudy Camps Park House. The Elizabeth mansion was bought as a private residence by Mrs Sri Vastava, wife of the Secretary-General of the UN International Maritime Organisation, who is said by her tens of thousand followers to have miraculous healing powers. It is used as a research clinic for treating illnesses with Sahaja Yoga. But no planning laws have been broken and she holds such large gatherings only once or twice a year 88 04 05a

Bottisham's impressive swimming, which opened in 1986 after years of intense fund-raising efforts, now has a new extension. It is a fine, heated pool available the to public and village college which runs at a profit by exploring every possible avenue of instruction, entertainment and education including groups learning windsurfing, canoeing, snorkelling and water polo. The Brownies, youth clubs and the Asthma Society are other regular users. It is a fine example of what a community activity can achieve when the enthusiasm and scope are there 88 04 06

1988 04 07
Bassingbourn airfield history – 88 04 07 & a

1988 04 08

Central Library lending department to close for reorganisation and computerised book issuing programme due in two years time – 88 04 08

1988 04 11
Queen Mother opens art exhibition at Fitzwilliam Museum celebrating National Art-Collections fund – 88 04 11 # c.02

Beneath a shroud of scaffolding and sheeting Ely's magnificent cathedral is being restored in one of the biggest ecclesiastical renovation projects undertaken in this country. For the past 15 months a dedicated teams of craftsmen and experts have been working more than 100 feet above the tourists' gaze to clean a century of grime off the huge panel paintings on the nave ceiling which were caked with grime and soot from the ancient coal heating system. But the £4 million project to repair the havoc caused by the weather and the passage of time on the mighty Norman building will not be the last 88 04 11a & b

1988 04 12
The Ferry Boat Inn at Holywell was evacuated after a spark from one of the pub chimneys set light to the thatched roof. The flames were spotted by local handyman Peter Hardy and 20 firemen extinguished the blaze within 30 minutes. It was the third fire in 20 years at the pub, which dates from 968. The last, exactly five years ago, blew off a chimney pot. 88 04 12

Huntingdon's Oxmoor estate has been branded the most deprived housing area in Cambridgeshire. A report by the Children's Society claims it has high levels of deprivation, crime, delinquency, unemployment, isolation and loneliness. But the Society says it should not have been named in their magazine since labelling communities as deprived can make people resistant to receiving their help. The estate was build between 1958 and 1975 for London overspill housing and accounts for one-third of the town's population. 88 04 12a

1988 04 14
Sir - Cambridge museums are facing severe financial problems. The Folk Museum illustrates the social and domestic life of people over the past three centuries. The curator, Tom Doig, is doing sterling work with school parties and a series of exhibitions, attracting an increasing number of visitors to the museum. But he is hampered in his work by finance levels. There is an even worse situation with the Museum of Technology where enthusiasm has ensured the preservation and restoration of the pumping station. Adequate resources must be made available so that both can properly keep alive the heritage of the people of Cambridge – R.J. Flood 88 04 14

For half a century Roger Asbury has coaxed women's hair into place while listening to their confidences and problems. There has been an Asbury cutting hair in Cambridge since his father, Wilfred, took over a business called Alma Mater in Trinity Street in 1919. Perms were very different when Roger started in hairdressing at 17. In his Cherryhinton Road salon he keeps the old perming equipment from the days when women would site with their hair in curlers strung up to an electrical machine. In those days they expected perms to last six months. 88 04 14a

Pensioner Fred Holman from Trumpington, who trains his birds by bus, has won one of the first big homing races of the season. His pigeon was the first of more than 1,000 in a race from Salisbury, winning first prize for the Cambridge South Road Flying Club. It was the latest success in a booming career stretching back to his days as a 13-year-old schoolboy in London. Twice a week he catches a coach to Royston or Baldock to set his birds free for training flights back to his home in Byron Square where he has a loft of 20 racing pigeons 88 04 14b

1988 04 15
Two 17th-century listed cottages in Pampisford High Street have collapsed during restoration, sparking a major row. Structural engineers said roof timbers needed repair, the thatch should be lightened and the front wall shored up to prevent further movement. But he builders say SCDC stopped them working on site and the delays caused the problem. The roof timber collapsed, destroying the rear wall and later the front wall fell on the street. They will rebuild the cottages as they have done with others nearby. 88 04 15

1988 04 18
The historic Eagle Hotel in Bene't Street has closed for a year or two while building work is carried out nearby. It has been favourite of tourists, dons and actors from the Arts Theatre. The people who discovered DNA were regulars and the traitor, Kim Philby, also drank there. Former RAF Chief Technician, James Chainey, who has made a study of the wartime writings on the ceiling, was among the final drinkers. But late arrivals found many of the pumps had already run dry and some of the fittings taken down 88 04 18

Regulars at the Free Press in Prospect Row are toasting success after it was named one of Britain's 100 classic pubs in the new CAMRA guide. The little pub, packed with settles, panelled walls and memorabilia was first licensed in 1834 when a home brewer named Sarah Horne turned her cottages into a commercial establishment. It takes its name from a local temperance paper named the Free Press which railed unsuccessfully against the evils of alcohol. The bar carries a notice warning of the 'degradation of drunkenness' but is a jolly, uninhibited place, the haunt of students, cricket and rowing enthusiasts. 88 04 18a # c.27.4

1988 04 20
Witchcraft history feature – 88 04 20

1988 04 21
House-starved Cambridge is to get two massive new housing developments. More than 170 properties will be built on Milton Road near the Science Park, part of a 38-acre scrubland site owned by Cambridge University, where Trend Housing plans to construct 102 houses costing from £55 - £120,000. The King Street Housing Society has also bought two acres where H. Rose (Builders) of Stretham will start 69 properties on Monday. Some will be sold to first-time buyers on a shared ownership basis. 88 04 21

Scruffy wartime buildings at the Harley Works on Paxton Hill, St Neots, could be demolished to make way for a new industrial park providing 100 jobs. They were used for making runway lights for airfields and are still covered in their original black paint. The old canteen and billets used by American and Polish servicemen still stand largely unchanged. Now they may be redeveloped to cater for small light industrial companies. Titan Motorsport, which has connections with Formula One greats such as James Hunt and Emmerson Fittipaldi, will take one of the units. 88 04 21a

When Margaret Badcock set up the new Cambridge tourist desk at the back of the library in 1971 there were three people who ran private guiding services. Now there are 150 official blue badge guides who have passed difficult examinations and are fluent in a second language. Then the University Arms was asking less than £6 for a double room with breakfast – it is now £57 - while the Sorrento Hotel in Cherryhinton Road charges about £40 and the Belle Vue Guest House in Chesterton Road between £19 and £22, the average for a double room in a private house. 88 04 21b # c.46.45

Major refurbishment work has been completed at Cambridge's long-established department store. Joshua Taylor opened his first shop in Ely in 1810 which continued until 1923. His son started in Sidney Street Cambridge in 1860, spreading to Bridge Street in 1955. It became a household name to shoppers, symbolising a traditional way of life. This will continue say the new owners Arlington Securities who plan 'an exciting future' for the shop. They have retained the elegant sweeping central staircase and now with expansion and financial backing, the future looks rosy. 88 04 21c & d

1988 04 22

Cambridge to Royston goes electric. Gala day on Bank Holiday Monday with personal appearance by TV personality Gary Wilmot, live music, exhibit of railway rolling stock and special shuttle service of electric trains free to everyone on the day between Cambridge and Royston. 88 04 22

Royston auction market started in July 1931 and used to attract buyers from London. But wholesalers have killed off the trade. It still sells poultry, vegetables, eggs, fruit and game, although the shelves have a fraction of the amount they used to when 750 birds would be caged ready for sale. But there is still a thriving furniture auction selling old 78 records, sewing machines and picnic hampers. Now the Fish Hill market is closing for good and porter Tom Housden will ring his hand-bell to call people to buy for the last time. 88 04 22a

1988 04 23
Work on the Buckden Marina and Leisure Club will take about a year to complete. It will feature moorings for 235 boats, 26 waterside lodges and a country club together with retailing, boat repair and servicing facilities, tennis courts, an adventure playground and a nature trail. They are even planning to offer punt trips complete with champagne, caviar and strawberries. But plans for a controversial 52-acre water-skiing lake have yet to be approved due to concern about a colony of common terns nesting on an island. 88 04 23

The Cambridge Guildhall organ, which experts fear could fall apart if used extensively, may be restored to its former Victorian glory. The 106-year-old instrument was last overhauled in 1926. It is one of the few surviving municipal organs in the country and might play a greater part in the city's musical life with a series of recitals, Councillor Andrew Duff feels. "It would bring glamour back into the Guildhall and introduce the spirit needed to exploit more fully the use of the rooms" 88 04 23a

1988 04 25
Cambridge Northerners' Association organises events for those born north of the Mersey or who love the area. Blackburn-born Roger Fairclough, head of the map department of the University Library says its fortunes have fluctuated since its formation in the early 1930s. 88 04 25

1988 004 26
A Neolithic Stone Age wooden building discovered at Haddenham is the earliest of its kind in Europe. The walls, floors and roof have survived the wet conditions of the fens, enabling archaeologists to learn about prehistoric technology and burial rituals. They want to see it reconstructed in oak and earth to look exactly as it was 6,000 years ago to become a new tourist attraction 88 04 26

Leys School former head Alan Barker dies – 88 04 26a

1988 04 27
A major row is brewing over the future location of Papworth Hospital and its world-famous heart transplant programme. Health Chiefs are debating whether it should be closed completely or relocated to Cambridge or Huntingdon. The benefits of Addenbrooke's sophisticated support services have been overtaken by worries that an upsurge in university research-based medicine could adversely affect routine patient care. Whatever happens it will stay put for at least 10 years. 88 04 27

Few Huntingdon people mourned when the last Phantom flew out of RAF Alconbury last week with their ear-splitting noise as they took off and the distinctive whine as they came to land. Their place has been taken by A-10 Thunderbolts which are basically a flying cannon with a gun that can tear tanks apart. They are about the size of a wartime B-25 bomber and are very manoeuvrable making it a complete contrast to the TR-1 spyplane and F-5 Tiger fighters which are based there 88 04 27a

1988 04 28
Andaman Resources of Lt Thetford to exploit a gold strike in Ireland – 88 04 28

Rattee & Kett history – feature – 88 04 28a

1988 04 29
Barton Mills church damaged by vandals – 88 04 29

Alan Bennett came to Cambridge in 1953 as part of his National Service to learn Russian with a view to getting into the Intelligence Service. He was based at Douglas House in Trumpington Road and stayed in digs at Foxton and Newnham Terrace. He remembers many hours doing his work in the city library opposite the Corn Exchange. It left him with an abiding affection for Cambridge though now, he says, it has lost a lot of its simple charm and the traffic problems seem as bad as anywhere. 88 04 29a

1988 04 30
The former Kinema music hall may be turned into a multi-million pound block of student accommodation. Sawston-based William Sindall has applied to build an 80-room scheme for CCAT but will wait until the college gains Polytechnic status in April 1989 before handing over the lease, avoiding Government restrictions. It comes as food news for the college which has seen its hopes of turning the former Owlstone Croft nurses' home into 200 flats dashed by a change in rules over lease-back schemes. Now residents will be consulted. 88 04 30

May 1988 CEN

1988 05 03
Ely's new high-tech Trigon Motors complex on Angel Drove is equipped with all the latest motor industry aids – from computerised diagnostic machines for engine tuning and laser-guided jigs for repairs in the workshop to a hot food counter. The forecourt has 13 self-service pumps dispensing leaded or unleaded petrol and a 'talking' pump which gives a recorded message to warn motorists that they are about to fill their tanks with diesel. 88 05 03

The Presto supermarket in the Grafton Centre, which has been there since the centre opened in 1983, is no longer economic and will close. The owners, Argyll Foods, say a major food store did not fit well into a development which had become much more fashion oriented and was becoming unprofitable to operate. Next day came news of a large extension to Debenhams, a major new store, 14 new shops and a multi-screen cinema complex. 88 05 03a & 4 # c.49.66

1988 05 04
Open top bus, p13

1988 05 05
Cambridge young soccer players have won half the cup after a 2-2 draw with rivals West London in a cup final thriller watched by more than 5,000 people at the Abbey Stadium. 88 05 05

Royston could become a town with no kids if nothing is done to provide cheaper homes for young families. With very little accommodation priced under £60,000 people could not afford to have children since the mortgage on their flats was too high. One couple bought a modest terrace house in Queens Road for £42,000 last year but now cannot meet the £280 monthly payments. It has been sold to a Cheshunt couple living half-an-hour away who say it would cost double there. Now officials are to discuss a shared-ownership scheme with houses built on council land and councillors nominating who lives in them. 88 05 05a

Lion Yard redevelopment history – 88 05 05b # c.49.67

1988 05 06
Labour regain Cambridge city council – 88 05 06

Granta Radio is one consortium wanting to run a new commercial radio station. It includes the Unex Group and Newmarket entertainer Pete Sayers who know the area. CN.FM is backed by Cambridge Newspapers, Hereward Radio, Trinity and Jesus colleges. They would provide a high standard of service and provide an acceptable return to investors. Cambridge Radio would have high-quality talks with an evening slot for students while the Cambridge & Newmarket Broadcasting Company would be popular and entertaining yet informed on, concerned with and involved with the area. 88 05 06b # c.27.8

Library-users could be charged under new Government proposals – 88 05 06c

1988 05 07
Old House at Little Abington was home to Marchioness of Cambridge until her death – 88 05 07 & a

1988 05 10
Cambridge's controversial open-top bus service got off to an inauspicious start. Steady drizzle ensured the buses were largely empty for the first half of the day – 88 05 10 # c.44.65

1988 05 12
From the moment the Grafton Centre opened in October 1983, everybody connected with it knew that it was too small at 300,000 sq feet. It was locked in by its location with the only real scope for expansion on the East Road side. This needed a deal with Coulsons, the long-established Cambridge builder. Retailers had reservations about the initial plans for a major new store built around Presto supermarket. It had been intended to provide the kind of balanced development considered important in the 1970s, but had never proved successful 88 05 12 & a # c.49.66

1988 05 13
The new Girl Guides' Jarman Centre off Duchess Drive, Newmarket was started with a legacy from Miss Marjory Jarman, a lifelong supporter of the movement who died in 1981. As well as four dormitories there is a meeting room, kitchen, showers and wash rooms alongside a drying room for wet clothes – essential for outdoor activities. There is also a sitting room for adults intended for members of the Trefoil Guild. By the time it is officially opened in October, hundreds of youngsters will have stayed there and already plans are in hand for a second campsite 88 05 13a

St Luke's Barn youth centre – 88 05 13b

1988 05 14
Two new railway level crossings are being installed on the line between Ely & March over the weekend. The crossings, at Beald Drove, North Fen, Second Drove and Black Bank will have automatic barriers. They are triggered by oncoming trains and mean the end of manned gates or barriers operated by signalmen. 88 05 14

1988 05 16
Steeple Morden American air base final reunion – 88 05 16

Plans to close Wicken primary school have been rejected by county councillors after recently-elected Albert Lawrence persuaded them to let it stay open. It has only two classrooms and a falling number of pupils, which stands at 53. The hall is in a bad state of repair and will have to be closed in July. But unless more houses are built, the school cannot be sustained. Pupils would then transfer to Soham Church of England school though hopes of rebuilding there have been delayed by Government red tape. 88 05 16a

George Nice opened a garage overlooking the Green at Waterbeach in 1933 to sell bicycles, motorbikes and, later, second-hand cars. When his son Doug Nice took over in 1947 customers could pick up a good quality second-hand Rover 10 for £750 or a small used car for as little as £75. They have been selling Mitsubishi cars for 11 years and have survived a 'rationalisation' of dealers in the face of import restrictions on Japanese vehicles. 88 05 16b

1988 05 17
Netherhall & Bar Hill schools use computers for local history projects 88 05 17 & a

1988 05 18
Papworth Hospital will cost £27 million to rebuild – 88 05 18

Parts from the recently-closed water pumping station at Fulbourn may be sent to Ethiopia to pump water – 88 05 18a

1988 05 19
The Merton Arms pub in Northampton Street, which belongs to St John's College, will closed at the end of September. It is one of the few pubs in the city centre which provide bed and breakfast. Now it may be converted into student accommodation 88 05 19 # c.27.4

The Ely Local Plan sets out radical proposals for redevelopment. Land between Cambridge & Witchford Road has been allocated for a light industrial estate or high-tech business park providing 1,500 jobs with new housing spreading between Downham and Lynn Roads. Two London-based development companies are vying for the change to build a new shopping centre on the cattle market site. Both would redevelop the Post Office and one would knock down the nearby Tesco store. Broad Street car park would be enlarged with a new one in Brays Lane and much of the city centre would be pedestrianised. 88 05 19a

James Paine Brewery is moving from the centre of St Neots after more than 150 years to a new industrial estate at Barford Road. The brewery buildings in Market Square will be redeveloped, although the frontage will be retained. It will bring to an end the problems with brewery drays and enable them to expand. Although it has kept the name, the company is owned by Tolly Cobbold and the James Paine beer is brewed – to exactly the same recipe – at Ipswich 88 05 19b

1988 05 20
Winston House, Brooklands Ave a residential home for people with psychiatric and psychological problems – 88 05 20 # c.21.5

Magdalene is the only college in Cambridge to host candle-lit dinners in the grand hall every night of the week. But other traditional values are changing. The decision to admit women dons and undergraduates has prompted refurbishment of the college's Spartan amenities, bringing in floral curtains and pastel pink wallpaper to the rooms of even the hardiest rugby players. Today much of the opposition to the decision has subsided, although the 'Black October' dining society still celebrates the masculine virtues of single-sex colleges. Whether the college's character can survive this quantum leap into the present remains to be seen 88 05 20b # c.36.98

The trend towards admitting female undergraduates began in 1972 when Churchill, Clare and King's Colleges went mixed. Two of the first girls were from Cambridge schools. By June 1982 when Pembroke 'fell' there were only two colleges left as all-male preserves, then Peterhouse reluctantly bowed to pressure. But when Magdalene's governing body overturned 444 years of historical precedent by voting to let in women an indignant porter flew a black flag at half mast and undergraduates sported black armbands. Three of the original four women's colleges are still single sex, though Girton admitted men in 1977. 88 05 20c # c.36.98

1988 05 21
Arrington Round House – a former toll house – feature 88 05 21

1988 05 23

Dobblers Inn in Sturton Street used to be called the City Arms but was renamed after a rag-and-bone man who lived nearby. It has a varied collection of old pictures and a fascinating assortment of bric-a-brac quite in keeping with his interest in junk and knick-knacks. It is a traditional pub but has an entertainment time on Friday evenings with everything from a magician to a piano player. It sells Steam Beer, a very strong brew from Newcastle, and wines by the glass 88 05 23 # c.27.4

1988 05 25
Westmere opposed by Malcolm Moss – 88 05 25
Wesley Church closed for redevelopment work – 88 05 25a

1988 05 26
Eaden Lilley history feature – 88 05 26 # c.21.2

1988 05 28
Margaret Thatcher, Prime Minister, tours Science Park – 88 05 28 # c.33
Mike Petty and Cambridge News centenary book – 88 05 28a 88 06 01a # c.04

1988 05 31
News centenary book, p14

June 1988 CEN

1988 06 01
Thriplow post office raided – 88 06 01

1988 06 02
Loker and Co. Cambridge newsagents since 1861, is to close as a result of sweeping changes in newspaper and magazine wholesaling. Moved from corner of East Road and School House Lane in 1977 – 88 06 02 # c.04

1988 06 04
Guide Friday open top buses have been used by thousands of visitors since they started four weeks ago. Fears that they would increase traffic congestion have been unfounded and now the company plan to increase their frequency. They travel down narrow city centre streets where other double-deckers are banned. But some students complain that instead of admiring the city's fine heritage, tourists peer into their rooms and that the commentaries disrupt their studies. Colleges may now have to put up curtains in the windows. – 88 06 04, 88 06 06 # c.46.45

1988 06 06
David Urwin awards – 88 06 06b

1988 06 07
The Little Rose in Trumpington Street, until recently one of Cambridge's oldest pubs, has reopened as a restaurant. The building dates back to the 14th century and boasts rare examples of domestic Tudor architecture. Now the interior has been refurbished and many of the old timbers are exposed for the first time. A cocktail bar has been installed and a spacious new conservatory added. 88 06 07a # c.27.4

Princess Diana visited Papworth and Newmarket hospitals 88 06 07b, 88 06 08 # c.02

1988 06 08
The new Support Command headquarters at RAF Brampton was opened by the Duke of Gloucester. Finished in RAF blue, the modern brick and glass office block is the administrative nerve centre for the Air Force. The command is responsible for 212 units with a staff of about 48,000, flying training schools, maintenance units, hospitals and US bases. It replaces a building destroyed by fire. Extensive investigations into the cause of the blaze failed to discover the cause, but it was believed to be accidental. 88 06 08a

The Hardwicke Arms at Arrington has opened as an upmarket restaurant and hotel. The ancient rambling building, dating back to the 13th century has oak panelling, huge fireplaces, romantic bedrooms and centuries of history. It also has a ghost which haunts part of the dining room. "You can close all the doors at night, and in the morning they're all open again", the landlady says. 88 06 08b

1988 06 09
The building firm of F.W.Cocksedge and Sons was launched in Tuddenham half a century ago. The original ledgers show that in 1939 labourers were paid one shilling an hour (5p) while skilled men got one shilling and eightpence. In 1940 jobs included building an eel trap for the Marquis of Bath and the erection of air raid shelters. They made their own breeze blocks, mixed horse hair mortar and also supplied coffins, sometimes even having to collect a body. In 1949 the firm moved to Mildenhall and have won a number of awards for their work, specialising in refurbishing listed buildings. 88 06 09a

Mike Petty Cambridge News book lecture – 88 06 09b

Health Food Stores of Rose Crescent was ahead of its time when it started under the name of Sandwiches and Health Food in Green Street in 1931. The brainchild of an Australian, Clarence Dowell and his wife, who worked in the kitchen making sandwiches, it introduced many Cambridge people to the delights of nut rissoles and vegetarian food. Now it is to close and Peppercorns delicatessen will open in the premises 88 06 09c # c.27.47

1988 06 10
The final phase of Huntingdon northern bypass opened five months ahead of schedule. The stretch from Hartford to St Ives is part of the £5 million scheme which saw the Spittals roundabout section completed in 1980, allowing industrial growth west of the railway in Huntingdon. The contractors also had to build a railway bridge across the east coast main line. An estimated 14,000 vehicles will use the bypass each year. 88 06 10

1988 06 11
Policemen injured during fights when youths ejected from St Ives Corn Exchange – 88 06 11
Barway church now a home – feature – 88 06 11a

1988 06 13
The first residents have moved into Ditchburn Place, the former Mill Road Maternity Hospital which is being turned into an assortment of 100 flats and houses for young single people and elderly couples. A small number of units have been built for people who have moved out of psychiatric institutions. When complete next year it will incorporate a laundry, restaurant, coffee bar and day centre for the frail and elderly. It is a very attractive scheme, offering a higher standard than the private sector could have afforded and is unlikely to be repeated in current financial circumstances. 88 06 13a # c.37.9

CN-FM has been chosen by the IBA as the new 24-hour radio station for the area around Cambridge. Backed by Hereward Radio and the Cambridge News it will be the most modern radio station in the country, with all the latest broadcasting equipment. It will aim programmes at the 15-45 age group and hope for a listenership of around 120,000 when it starts next spring. It will co-exist with BBC Radio Cambridgeshire. The other contenders, Granta, CNBC and Cambridge Radio wish them good luck 88 06 13 # c.27.8

1988 06 16
Over new primary school to be built by house building company if they can use old site for housing 88 06 16

Tenants living in six council houses at Main Street, Prickwillow are finding their homes literally disappearing into the fens. They were constructed in the 1930s and the whole block including single storey extensions built in 1970 has tilted leaving the rear some 10 inches below the level of the front. The homes are not unsafe but the sloping floors are a significant inconvenience. Now those wanting to move will be given priority treatment and the vacant houses will only be let on a temporary basis to homeless families. 88 06 16a

Villagers of tiny Orwell need a 'miracle' to raise £26,000 for the restoration of their parish church. Rev Julian Thompson was flabbergasted when an estimate for the work came through for £66.000 – double the amount expected. If the money is not raised the church of St Andrew is in danger of being declared redundant. Similar problems affect Arrington where £18,000 is needed to repair St Nicholas' and Croydon where All Saints church requires £10,000 spending on it. 88 06 16b

Barkway villagers are to remember those who died in the Far East during the Second World War with a stained glass window in St Mary Magdalene Church. It was commissioned by the Burma Star Association who laid up their old standard in the church a year ago and has a Burma Star emblem surrounded by the insignia of the forces who took part in the campaign. 88 06 16c

1988 06 17
Coulson and Sons have reconstructed an historic bridge in the grounds of a Godmanchester mansion using impressions left in concrete during old restoration work. The 'Chinese Chippendale' bridge at Island Hall collapsed in the 1970s, more than 200 years after it was built. One of the original timbers was found perfectly preserved in the river mud and this was also used in designing the new one which is made of English oak. It connects the garden of Island Hall to an island in the Ouse. The house has been in the Vane Percy family since 1904 but was taken over by the RAF in 1943 and later used by the council. It came back into the family in 1983 88 06 17

1988 06 20
London yuppies have been blamed for the closure of ill-fated Thriplow Post Office. The attached village stores has already closed and the post office – raided by masked men earlier this month – is set to shut in August. "The village does not support it enough", the postmistress said. "Yuppies from London have moved in and use the village as a weekend home. I'm upset for the villagers, but if they'd supported it they wouldn't have lost it" The building may not be converted to a house 88 06 20

1988 06 21
Fire service chemical incident unit – feature – 88 06 21 & a

1988 06 22
Elderly people are languishing in hospitals miles from their homes because support services have collapsed. The senior specialist in geriatric medicine blamed a lack of hospital beds for long-term continuing care; elderly people spent weeks in hospital needlessly because there was no one to support them at home. He criticised plans to reduce the number of beds for elderly patients at Royston Hospital in a bid to save cash. 88 06 22

Owlstone Croft nurses' home has been sold to Queens' College for student accommodation. The Health service has been trying to sell it off since 1970. It was once thought to be an ideal location for private residential development, an old people's home, a rehabilitation unit or a convalescent home. Then CCAT wanted it for a student hostel. It hit the headlines in 1975 when the Cambridge Rapist was caught after attacking a student there. 88 06 22a

Scores of art lovers turned up to see an exhibition by one of Cambridge's best-known eccentrics – but the star of the show was missing. Harold Fordham – who is sometimes known as the 'bag man' – was due to put in an appearance at the Gallery on the Cam. But he didn't arrive. Harold, who is often seen wandering around Cambridge in his clothes made from blankets with his possession on his back, usually paints on scraps of paper. But it didn't put off buyers. All but three of the 25 paintings on show were sold by the end of the day 88 06 22b

1988 06 23
A mere thirty miles separate two Victorian homes but the price difference is a huge £100,000. A three-bedroom town house in Hardwick Street, Newnham with a wood store but no garage, will still cost you around £195.000. But at Hilgay, £90,000 would buy a detached home with four bedrooms, two lavatories, three reception rooms, a garage and outbuildings, and a third of an acre of gardens backing on to the church and open fields. 88 06 23

The very latest, sophisticated machinery is being installed in the Post Office's new sorting office in Clifton Road. Mill Road became a Mechanised Letter Office in 1972 but its technology is now in need of replacement. Conditions for the 650 staff are cramped and noisy. Now high-speed sorting machines will hold 16,000 items an hour and Mill Road will be refurbished to act as delivery centre for mail coming into Cambridge. 88 06 23a # c.27.7

George Hales, retiring head bulldog of Trinity, once ticked off Prince Charles for riding his bike in the college. For the last eight years he has been responsible for 20 staff and almost 500 college rooms with 60 business conferences each year. He has been the butt of practical jokes. When England won the world cup students released 30 white rabbits through Queen's Gate on to the Great Court. It took until 2am to capture them all. He is renowned for his gargantuan memory and is passing on important details to his successor 88 06 23b

1988 05 24
Sainsbury's hopes to buy Cambridge United's famous Abbey Stadium for a DIY superstore and give the club a new ground, perhaps at the former Blue Circle cement works site off Coldham's Lane. The Abbey site covers four acres and United have already put forward plans to develop the car park for offices. Trafford Park Estates have won permission to build four office blocks on the front of the Cambridge City ground, three of which are already half-let. 88 06 24 # c.38 : football

Harold Fordham, Cambridge's wandering bag man' now possesses £1,000 following the sale of his paintings – 88 06 24a

1988 06 25
Arlington Development plan shopping shake-up involving Joshua Taylor, Eaden Lilley and the Arts Cinema, realigning Market Passage – 88 06 25

Harston former school houses Hammond Grand electric organ – 88 06 25a

1988 06 27
Newmarket Co-op Living store fire investigated as arson – 88 06 27
Fortune tellers at Midsummer Fair – feature – 88 06 27a # c.39

1988 06 29
Barrington Royal Oak landlady dresses in black – 88 06 29

1988 06 30
Boots subscription libraries opened Cambridge 1895 – feature – 88 06 30 # c.77.4

1988 July CEN

1988 07 01
Consulting engineers Peter Dann and Partners celebrated its silver jubilee with a ball at St John's College. It has been involved with extensions at many colleges and University buildings, including the Fitzwilliam Museum, and is now working on prestigious flats at Beauford Place, Quayside, where they are building over the electricity sub-station to provide ground floor shops and a courtyard with offices above. They are also involved in the Docklands redevelopment in London 88 07 01 & a

1988 07 05
Cambridge's council–run lottery, which has made £340,000 for good causes since 1976, has fallen victim to fierce competition from other lotteries. Profits have dropped to just a few hundred pounds a month and it is costing twice as much as that to run. It was used to provide ready cash for environmental improvements but other causes such as hospitals and football clubs have more appeal and the time has come to close 88 07 05

Shopkeeper of the Year, Jerry Brown, took over the village store at Hinton Way, Gt Shelford, ten years ago and his outstanding service has been rewarded with continued custom. He provides a service supermarkets cannot give, selling everything from fresh bread to stationery, wine and even tins of snails. He belongs to Londis, opening every day – even Christmas Day if the newspapers publish. His customers say "It's a very sociable shop, he enjoys a joke and stimulating conversation" 88 07 05a & b Also Stapleford, Impington, Teversham

Jim and Linda Burton of Barrington have won the Shop of the Year award for outstanding community efforts. Their shop is an essential centre of village life. You can buy groceries, pick up prescriptions, have clothes dry-cleaned and shoes repaired. The health-conscious can buy carob bars and there is a delicatessen counter. Shops at Thriplow, Shepreth and Duxford are closing because of stiff competition from supermarkets so they have weekly offers and a free delivery service. . 88 07 05c

1988 07 07
TI Hinxton Hall research centre to close – 88 07 07

1988 07 11
Wealthy Trinity College is planning a multi-million pound trust fund to rescue the cash-starved university from crisis. While the 31 colleges have financial independence the poorly-financed university, which has to provide administration and the bulk of teaching, relies on Government grants. A special arrangement means funds are redistributed from rich to poor colleges. But none of the cash goes to the university. The Isaac Newton Trust would fund education and research and be an example to other colleges 88 07 11 # c.36.9

Farmers in the fens – among the most fertile land in the country – face increasing difficulties as their main asset, the soil, wastes away. Less than one-sixth of the original 572 square miles will be left by 2050, a survey suggests. When the peat becomes thin it exposes a subsoil which can be extremely acidic. Some farmers near Prickwillow are already moving out of high-value vegetable crops like celery and carrots, replacing them with cereals. Ninety percent of peat consists of water. The more it is drained, the more peat shrinks and decomposes 88 07 11a

Castle Park, Cambridge's showpiece research and development village was opened by the Duke of Edinburgh. Developed by Sheraton and financed by Royal Life, it was designed to provide 'thinking space' for scientists and academics involved in high-technology developments. The initiative came from the County Council who were faced with the need to provide more office accommodation for its staff and developed land adjoining Shire Hall. The first phase, Castle House, Babbage House and Sheraton House was completed last year 88 07 11b, c. d # c.27.1

1988 07 12
Longsands School St Neots closed by asbestos alert – 88 07 12

St Luke's, one of Cambridge's most prominent Victorian churches in Victoria Road, is to be converted into a community centre for the whole of the parish of the Ascension, formed in 1982 by the union with St Giles and St Peter. The adjacent United Reformed Church will be demolished and the land sold for housing. There are no plans to amalgamate the two congregations who will share the new-look church. 88 07 12a # c.83

Coton Primary School took a village rubbish tip, a selection of saplings, and a dozen toads. They threw in a plastic sheet, assorted flowers and bags of enthusiasm, mixed well and got a wildlife sanctuary that has won a nature conservation award. Trees of every variety from goat willow to rose and hawthorn were planted after consultation with experts, including Dr Malcolm Stuart, whose botanical garden is adjacent to the school. A £200 grant was used to buy stepping stones and the children held a school disco to raise money for a gate so the pond area can be closed off for safety 88 07 12b

1988 07 13
Religious faith is showing signs of growth in Cambridge. The Eden Baptist Church has doubled its congregation to 600 over 10 years which now will be split into three, meeting in different parts of the city. The Roman Catholics also report steady growth with 2,000 at mass on one Sunday. Methodist churches in Cottenham and Histon see 100 attend services on Sunday mornings and the Cambridge Christian Fellowship report numbers increasing from 20 four years ago to 300. Islam too has been making advances in Cambridge – 150 attend Friday prayers at the Mosque in Mawson Road with 700 at the Eide Prayers 88 07 13 # c.83

Guildhall organ restoration plans dropped – 88 07 13a # c.69.4

The Women's Royal Voluntary Service delivered a staggering 413,226 meals in Cambridgeshire last year and their Books on Wheels made 289 visits to the housebound. A further 1,856 people were helped with clothing, 160 children were given a week's summer holiday and 15 people received the service of a chiropodist. There is much more: they man mobile canteens, set up rest centres and provide blankets and clothing for victims of emergency. Organiser Muriel Humphrey says "It's a rich and rewarding job and you meet such lovely people" 88 07 13b

1988 07 14
Turkish President greeted by demonstrators as he visits Cambridge – 88 07 14

1988 07 15
New three-bed, semi-detached homes on the Fallowfields estate at Milton have shot up in price by more than £8,000 in just two weeks, going from £77,500 to £86,000. They were among a batch of 28 houses released for sale at the same time and were snapped up within 24 hours. Property prices in Cambridge itself have soared by nearly nine per cent in two months but senior health and university workers are snubbing prestigious posts in the city because of the high house prices. 88 07 15

1988 07 16
Melbourn bypass opened – 88 07 16

1988 07 18
St John's College chapel tower gargoyles restored – 88 07 18

1988 07 19
Central Library asbestos scare, ceiling – 88 07 19 # c.77.4

Book Production Consultants produce Mike Petty News Centenary book – 88 07 19a

Stapleford flower show centenary – 88 07 19b

Gordon Cave, scrap dealer, dies – 88 07 19c

1988 07 21

The future of Cambridge market could be in doubt due to parking problems, stallholders say. Until 1969 drivers could park their cars in the middle of the market area – an attendant collected the fees – while stallholders occupied all the outside area. Then the council came up with a proposal that the area be divided into two – half stalls, half cars. But this provoked indignation and all parking was banned with new metal-framed plastic-covered stalls instead of wood and canvas set out over whole area. – 88 07 21 # c.27.3

1988 07 21
Mothers protest at removal of ground-level crossing at Meldreth station – now must use footbridge – 88 07 21b

1988 07 22
Histon new community hall on site of garden equipment store – 88 07 22

Weston Colville Fox and Hounds pub transformed – 88 07 22a

1988 07 23
Littleyhey prison at Perry has been officially opened, five months after the first inmates moved in. The £26-million gaol has been criticised by local people who think it is too luxurious: it has cells rather than dormitories with desk cupboard, sink and lavatory as well as a bed. Prison officers are not happy with manning levels for the 450 prisoners but the present 132 officers would increase when a new 100-place unit opens 88 07 23

A.A. Roper's traditional tailor's shop in Trinity Street is closing after nearly 80 years and three generations of trading. Stanley Roper, son of the founder Arthur, is retiring as is 77-year-old cloth-cutter Fred Bland who is irreplaceable – his is a dying craft outside London. David Roper is sad to close the shop but says "It is not like before the war, when we used to make suits for five guineas – today the same suit would cost £300" 88 07 23a # c.27.2

1988 07 25
Bourn Hall test-tube baby clinic bought by Swiss company – 88 07 25

A little bakery tucked away behind a transport café deep in the fens at Chatteris is making a cake for the Queen Mother's 88th birthday. It is the latest in a long line of celebration cakes produced by Walter and Raymond Potter for the Royal household, including a massive five-tier one for the marriage of Charles and Diana in 1981. Now they are hoping for a visit from the Queen Mother and Princess Diana – "It would be a marvellous boost for us and the town of Chatteris", they say 88 07 25a

1988 07 29
A large new township complete with a major shopping centre and a new village development off the A10, both within easy reach of Cambridge, are proposed by the Government. And Whitehall says that planning restrictions should be removed from the vast Arbury Camps Farm site bordering the Northern Bypass which should be used for hi-tech industrial purposes. But it appears as if plans for a giant housing estate at Clay Farm, Trumpington have been rejected in order to protect the Green Belt. 88 07 29

1988 07 30
Wilburton church bells rang out to celebrate a victory over property developers who want to turn the tiny fenland village into a vast new township, The Environment Secretary has rejected the proposal in the County Structure Plan saying it would be too far away from Cambridge to share in the city's hi-tech bonanza and too close to Ely for that city's comfort. Villagers have argued that plans for thousands of new homes in one of the most productive agricultural areas of the country was not on. 88 07 30

August 1988 CEN

1988 08 02
Waterbeach, p1

1988 08 03
A giant new housing estate may be built on allotments on the corner of King's Hedges and Histon Roads. About 30 acres could be used for housing with the remainder turned over to recreational use. In the past proposals to build have resulted in shoals of complaints from allotment holders but much of the land is disused and the allotments could be consolidated on a much smaller plot elsewhere. However the City council have no intention of making the site available for a new regional college for 16-19 years old as is being considered by the County council. 88 08 03

Plans to build two new cell blocks at Highpoint Prison near Haverhill to house 200 category 'C' low security convicts have brought a storm of protest from nearby villages. They would be 16 metres high and be screened by a row of trees. Stradishall parish council say the old RAF buildings should have been demolished a long time ago.But Cowlinge are concerned that it is a security risk and would increase traffic. Meanwhile work has started on a new wing for 100 prisoners at Littlehey gaol, near St Neots. It opened earlier this year but almost immediately was found to have inadequate room for inmates 88 08 03a

1988 08 04
Cambridgeshire goes on booming – 88 08 04

1988 08 06
Military bases ban civilians in wake of IRA attacks – 88 08 06

1988 08 08
Thousands of CCAT students are facing a housing crisis. Many could be sleeping on floors because there is nowhere for them to go. Frightened landlords are hanging on to spare rooms and bedsits rather than face inquisitive tax officials as the Inland Revenue clamps down. And the property boom has caused the number of houses available to rent to plummet – landlords just do not want to let out £100,000 houses to students. 88 08 08

1988 08 09
Croxton dispute – Chris Curry does not want rector using track over his land to St James' church – 88 08 09

Twenty years ago the majority of Ely people were employed either on the land, in agricultural engineering or at the sugar beet factory in Queen Adelaide which closed in 1981. A report in 1985 suggested they should try to attract industry and hundreds of thousands of pounds were spent to buy 12 acres in Angel Drove to create a high-quality science park environment. Now additional plots are being developed on a second phase where Cambridge Electronic Industries has plans to base its subsidiary, Labgear Cablevision. 88 08 09a

1988 08 10
At the Royal Oak in Swaffham Bulbeck you might find the local gamekeeper in deep conversation with the midnight poacher or an academic submitting to the wisdom of the wind-blown fenman. There is a piano of indeterminate age subjected to frequent abuse – whatever music is played it all sounds the same. Landlord of this haven of sanity is Bob Scutton who is totally blind. But he can tell the thud of a dart that has missed and when he asks onlookers to move because he "can't see the board", they do. "I don't have customers anymore I have friends", he says. 88 08 10

1988 08 11

Ted Appleyard, 86, has just returned from a six-week cruise along the inland waterways in a custom-built narrow boat. Ted comes from a family of fenland bargemen turned boat-builders. He was born a few feet from the Ouse in a house which has been the family home for generations with his beloved boat, Shellfen II moored a few feet from the front door. It is the second vessel to bear that name: the first was a tanker he used to take diesel oil to isolated fenland drainage stations. 88 08 11

1988 08 12
Reach parish church organ is being restored by Walkers Organs of Brandon who installed it 80 years ago and have looked after it ever since. The organ is inspected twice a year but this is its first major restoration since 1948. Money for the overhaul was raised over three years with most coming from a marathon 10-hour hymn singing by bass baritone Gareth Hayward. During the work a piano has been brought in to accompany the congregation 88 08 12

One-bedroomed flats in New Street renovated to house homeless households waiting for permanent homes – 88 08 12a

Cambridge Family History Centre, newly opened at the Church of Latter Day Saints, Cherryhinton Road, has access to millions of names and a registry of researchers worldwide who are willing to share information. There are also millions of microfilm and microfiche. 88 08 12b & c # c.43 # c.56

1988 08 13
Cambridge & County Folk Museum is facing a cash crisis. Curator Tom Doig says the situation is so desperate he may have to close the 500-year-old museum in Castle Street before Christmas. The County Council has refused any funding and the City has cut its grant, meaning he can no longer afford to pay staff.. The Mayor said is it outrageous that they can't find the money to keep it going The museum is of great importance as an educational resource and it would be a tragedy if it were to close 88 08 13, 88 08 17, 88 08 17a # c.03

1988 08 16
Lode mill being restored – 88 08 16

Tressilian Nicholas, the longest-serving Fellow of any Oxbridge College, marked his 100th birthday with four days of celebrations including a thanksgiving service, a grand dinner, tree-planting and garden party. Known to his friends as "Tress", his memory and gift for story-telling are excellent. He came up to Trinity in 1907, took a first-class degree in geology in 1910 and was elected to a Fellowship two years later. During the First World War he did camera-mapping work from the trenches, winning the Military Cross. He returned to Cambridge in 1919, served 27 years as bursar and has lived in the college since 1968. He dines at High Table almost every evening 88 08 16a 88 08 18

1988 08 18
Inquiry into plans for shops in Gt St Andrew's church – 88 08 18a

1988 08 19
A major staff crisis is threatening to cripple Cambridge's service industries. Firms are desperate to recruit but cannot get the people they need. The problem is deepest in the lower-pay sector where sky-high property prices and soaring cost of living are deterring potential workers from applying for jobs. The Health Authority has acute problems getting domestic, catering and nursing auxiliaries as well as clerical staff. The city has achieved 'full employment' with only three per cent jobless. 88 08 19 # c.32.1

1988 08 22
Nethergate Brewery on Clare High Street was set up n 1986 by the former head of microbiology at CCAT, an oil businessman and the village hotelier. Two months later it was named 'Champion Bitter' at the Cambridge Beer Festival. Now it has won national acclaim. The recipe is simple – purity and quality of ale using yeast from Yorkshire and specially softened water 88 08 22 & a

Folk Museum future brighter after talks – 88 08 22b

1988 08 23
New laws to allow pubs to open from 11am to 11pm on weekdays and until 3pm on Sundays have had little impact in Cambridge. At the Baron of Beef in Bridge Street they still close mid-afternoon: with tourist coaches gone and people at work there is little going on until 5.30. But the revamped Spade and Beckett in Thompson's Lane & the Fort St George are opening all day while the Clarendon Arms are serving up afternoon cuppas & cakes. 88 08 23

Citizens Advice Bureau feature – 88 08 23a

1988 08 26
Girls were prettier and better dressed, 60 years ago, say former 'flappers' at an old people's home in Coronation Street. They never relied as heavily on make-up and let fresh air get to their skin. Laura Bidwell, 85, was a tender 17 in 1920 and never wore more than a touch of face powder and a smudge of lipstick which she bought from a small Boots store on the corner of Petty Cury. Beatrice Webb remembers wearing a lacy flapper dresses at a party. "You always had the proper rig-out then, with hat, handbag and shoes to match", says Alice Hodder, 91, 88 08 26

1988 08 30
Windmill, p14

September 1988 CEN

1988 09 01
A tornado tore through Haverhill as violent storms hit the region. Residents in Carlton Close saw the twisting wind tear up roof tiles, dustbins and fences while on Western Avenue a freak gust tore down two mature trees. At the Conservative Club members saw the tornado strike their car park: rain poured down and branches from trees were whirled around in mid air, but no cars were damaged. 88 09 01

Percy Ashman is a former ex-tailor, who studies moon rings and uses trusty, ageing instruments to predict the weather. He is used by large building companies, police and mothers checking on the weather for their daughter's wedding day. At his flat he has two rain gauges, two thermometers, a barometer and a mysterious storm bottle containing crystals which have never been identified but react to weather changes. A weathervane on the local church is his guide to wind direction. 88 09 01a

1988 09 02
Newmarket Cabaret Club started life as a concert hall then became a cinema and finally a cabaret club in 198. Now it is reopening after a refurbishment which has completely updated its image. It has new sound and lighting systems incorporating the latest technology, redecorated auditorium and modernised kitchens. TV personality Gary Wilmot, Freddie & the Dreamers, comedians Hale & Pace and Eastenders' star Mike Reid are booked to appear. 88 09 02

Radio Cambridgeshire have made major changes. Out goes popular presenter John 'J.R.' Richards, replaced by Jane Solomons, and local lad Graham Day. In comes Jonathan Staples to the 'New Day' slot replacing Mark Saggers who moves to mid-morning. 'News' columnist Christopher South gets three new programmes with a weekly visit to Grunty Fen to meet Dennis, one of the county's major philosophers. Returning favourites are Richard Spendlove and Julian Dunne while Mandy Morton continues her request programme, Trevor Dann has news of rock music and Jo Pinnock presents 'Nature File' 88 09 02b

1988 09 05
Nettles, one of Cambridge's most popular snack bars in St Edward's Passage, may close. 88 09 05

1988 09 06
Fallowfields was a showpiece estate when it opened in 1938, designed in a circular shape to foster a community spirit. It was the second development undertaken by the Hundred Houses Society, following Eastfield, to solve the housing problems for young married couples not catered for by Council housing. Most of the tenants were setting up home for the first time but many soon went off to war leaving their young brides behind. Today 40 of the 133 houses are still occupied by the original tenants 88 09 06

1988 09 07
Mill Road sewer collapse, hole disrupts traffic – 88 09 07

1988 09 08
Cruise missiles destined for the nuclear scrapheap are being returned to America as part of the superpowers INF Treaty. They are the first of 18 missiles from Molesworth to leave. British Defence Secretary George Younger acknowledged the great deal of inconvenience suffered by local people. Residents are relived to see them go – and even happier that peace protestors who have campaigned at the base are going too. 88 09 08 88 09 09 # c.45.8

Bulldozers have moved on to the site of the former St Phillip's School in Ross Street to clear the way for redevelopment. The site, now a pile of rubble, is to become a sheltered housing estate for the elderly with 29 flats, laundry and sitting area. The school staff and pupils moved to new buildings in Vinery Road two years ago. The Pat-a-Cake day nursery, Romsey After-School Playgroup and many voluntary organisations which have used the site since then have moved to the old main hall, which has been saved. 88 09 08a

1988 09 09
A 'park-and-float' scheme is being considered to beat traffic chaos in Cambridge. Commuters would park beside the river at Fen Ditton, Horningsea, Waterbeach or Clayhithe and take a river bus into the city, having breakfast en route and reading the morning newspapers. Meanwhile the Cam Conservators may appoint its own trouble-shooter patrolling from Byron's Pool to Bottisham Lock in a specially-adapted electric craft. He would crack down on unregistered punts and also clear rubbish and broken branches in a new drive against pollution. 88 09 09a

Fourteen parishes have formed a New Settlements Action Group to protest against the Environment Secretary's proposal for a new town of more than 3,000 houses beside the A45 88 09 09b

1988 09 10
Computers are the key weapon in the 'News' battle against deadlines. Previously crucial minutes were lost while journalists' stories were re-set into type by other staff. Now writing and typesetting can be done by one person. The process begins at 7.30 am each day. The newsdesk – run by the news editor, the assistant news editor, the chief reporter and an editorial assistant – decide on the best stories and brief the 15 reporters based in Newmarket Road and another eight in district officers. Stories flood in from every source imaginable and more than 100 press releases and letters are received each day 88 09 10 & a # c.04

1988 09 14
Rose and Crown, Pound Hill, renamed Town and Gown – 88 09 14

Mills & Reeve Francis solicitors take over old Cambus depot site, Hills Road 88 09 14 c

1988 09 20

The Bishop of Huntingdon, Rt Rev Gordon Rose, conducted the last service at St Luke's Church, Victoria Road, before builders move in to start £800,000 alterations. Afterwards he led the congregation, which included the mayor, to the United Reformed Church next door which will be their home until work is completed. Then both congregations will move back to St Luke's and the United Reformed Church will be demolished to make way for more housing. 88 09 20

Consortium Developments, which represents ten of the country's leading house builders, has unveiled plans for 1,500 homes housing 4,000 people on land between Stretham and Wilburton. The option of building such houses in existing villages would totally alter their character, they say. There would be a new school, church, meeting hall and community facilities – but no major shopping centre, with fifty acres set aside for high-tech firms. Proposals for a new town of 3,000 homes met ferocious local opposition and were rejected by the Environment Secretary. 88 09 20a

1988 09 21
Frail elderly people are waiting hours for ambulances: some have been waiting at 8pm for transport home from afternoon appointments. The service was crippled by cash shortages and hopelessly inadequate for the demands placed on it, a senior Cambridge doctor claimed. It had got to improve, either managerially or by pumping more resources into it. A Director admitted the service has been cut back after running over budget and was not as good as it should be. 88 09 21

Balsham bells will soon ring out for the first time in more than 30 years. The five ancient bells which date back to 1540 were dismantled from the tower by soldiers last November and sent to a London foundry to be restored. A sixth bell has been cast to complete the set and dedicated to the memory of John Houghton and Thomas Sutton who were associated with the Charterhouse Foundation of London which is patron of the living. And among the congregation for the inauguration ceremony will be 102-year-old former sexton William Jolley. 88 09 21a

1988 09 22
David Urwin award progress – 88 09 22

1988 09 23
Lolworth doesn't have a pub, a shop or a parish council, yet people enjoy a thriving social life. And when the church tower needed repairs they raised the equivalent of more than £20 for every many and woman in the village. They don't let the council cuttheir grass – they prefer to do it themselves. Now they have won the "News" trophy for the Best Kept Village award in South Cambridgeshire. 88 09 23

The Merton Arms in Northampton Street is closing because the owners, St John's College, has not released the lease held by Greene King. 88 09 23a # c.27.4

1988 09 26
Mill Road residents want more corner shops and fewer take-aways; history – 88 09 26 & a

1988 09 27
Cambridge & County Folk Museum, threatened with imminent closure because of lack of funds, has been given a reprieve after the City council made an extra grant. It now receives more than the Fitzwilliam Museum and Arts Theatre. South Cambs has also funded activities in nearby villages. The museum, which has nearly 30,000 visitors a year, has seen its rent almost trebled and has lost staff and financial support with the winding up of the Manpower Service Commission's community programme. 88 09 27 # c.03

1988 09 28
Morley & Duke, an electrical company founded in Cambridge in 1926, has become part of the Jakubowski group of companies. It had an excellent reputation for its domestic electrical services and has built up a vast catalogue of clients. 88 09 28 # c.27

1988 09 29
Jade Jagger, teenage daughter of Rolling Stones superstar Mick, is secretly studying English, History of Art and Politics behind the Victorian façade of the Cambridge Centre for Sixth Form Studies. Her Nicaraguan-born mother, actress Bianca Jagger, has visited her home in a hostel in Tenison Road. It is not known whether Mick and his long-time lover, international model Jerry Hall, are planning a trip. 88 09 29

1988 09 30
The James Paine Brewery site in the centre of St Neots is on the market for around £2.5 million. Outline permission has been granted for flats, offices and shops in a scheme which preserves the brewery's frontage in Market Square, with its elegant Georgian façade. Towards the rear there is permission for 41flats overlooking Hen Brook. The brewery tower will be retained 88 09 30

The announcement that CCAT could become one of the largest polytechnics in the country came as a surprise to many. Last year it merged with the Essex Institute of Higher Education and now the City of London Polytechnic might be added. CCAT has paved the way to higher education status by transferring 1,500 non-advanced students to the new Cambridge Regional College, previously the Cambridge College of Further Education. 88 09 30a

October 1988 CEN

1988 10 01
Comedian Freddie Starr helped rescue seven people after two cars crashed on the A11 at Hinxton. The stocky star tried single-handedly to right an overturned car and cracked jokes to keep spirits high. He then worked alongside ambulance men, a fire crew and four Magpas doctors for more than an hour. He was there throughout the whole of the incident and when the last ambulance left, he got into his car and drove off. 88 10 01

Top politician challenges County Council to step in with cash for Folk Museum – 88 10 01a
Dillon's bookstore, the largest in Britain, opens on site of old Dorothy – 88 10 01b # c.25

1988 10 05
Limekiln Close to be declared a nature reserve – 88 10 05

A disused chapel in Kneesworth Street, Royston has been converted into an architect's office by the Burns Thompson Partnership. The timber-framed church was constructed in 1790 and eighty years later, the Victorians added a brick cladding. The traditional chapel had a balcony and attractive stained glass windows but many of the beams were rotten. Gravestones were removed from the front to make a car park but many are displayed in a small patio area at the back. 88 10 05a & b

1988 10 06
Sir Clive Sinclair is moving out of Cambridge, though his business interests will bring him back to the city regularly. One of his companies, Anamartic is based at Milton Hall and another, Cambridge Computers has flats in Bridge Street, where he can stay. His home, The Stone House on Madingley Road, which dates back to 1896, has a white marble hall floor with a central oak staircases leading to eight bedrooms and three bathrooms, and a drawing room more than 30 feet long, is now for sale. 88 10 06

1988 10 07
Cambridge company Sands Technology has landed a deal to help a Russian state-owned Scientific and Engineering Research Centre build a robot factory in the Ural Mountains. Production is expected to begin in six months and David Sands has already been out to set it up. His company, which was founded in 1985 in Cheddars Lane, has two main robots in production: Prometheus, a form of mechanical human arms and Artemis, a robot fixed to a track. Both have industrial assembly applications 88 10 07

1988 10 10
The road between Longstanton and Oakington, across the airfield, may be opened for general use – 88 10 10

1988 10 12
Thirty-six women undergraduates arrived at Magdalene College amid a blaze of publicity breaking 444 years of history as a male-only college, the last in Cambridge. They had been warned about the dreaded Black October dining society whose members donned funereal armbands when it was announced that the college was to 'fall', and expected a lukewarm welcome. Surprisingly the reverse is true. One said "I think some of the men were frightened that the girls were going to be extremely militant or feminist. But they seem quite pleased and say it is a lot more social" 88 10 12 # c.36.98 # c.44.5

1988 10 23
Henry Morris statue plan turned down – 88 10 13

St George's church celebrates its 50th birthday. The population of the parish almost doubled with the building of the North Arbury Estate bringing people in from different areas. To foster a community spirit parishioners launched a parish newsletter 'Chesterton Challenge' which is still going strong. It was one of the first free newspapers in the country. They also launched a 'Fish' scheme providing emergency help for anyone who needs it. The first couple to be married in the church, Frank Shaw and Dorothy Whitworth, are returning for the occasion. 88 10 13a

1988 10 14
Eden Baptist church has divided into three congregations – 88 10 14

Wandlebury woods recover from gale which blew down 1,000 trees – 88 10 14a

1988 10 17
The Perse School for Girls has opened a new science and crafts building at a cost of almost £1 million. The four-storey block, to be used by over 600 girls, was opened by eminent scientist Dame Rosemary Murray, the first woman vice-chancellor of Cambridge University. It has facilities for the teaching of electronics, computing, design technology and photography and includes the Maddocks physics laboratory, named after a former pupil who made a major donation to the fund. 88 10 17 # c.36.5

1988 10 18
University technicians protest – 88 10 18

Cambridge may have a city-wide high-speed monorail system linking with all nearby villages allowing shoppers to leave their cars at home and travel high above the traffic jams. It could be expensive to set up but would have low running costs and be reliable. Eight years ago dons at Girton College came up with a plan for a monorail to link it with the university quarter but nothing ever came of it. The County Council has already commissioned experts to consider a light railway system linked to the proposed park-and-ride system 88 10 18a # c.49.62

Great Chesterford new premises for traditional bakers – 88 10 18b & c

Hallens have converted their Shell garage at Mitcham's Corner to become self-service with the latest electronic pumps. There has been a petrol station on the site for many years. Previously it was operated by Oliver Rix and sold Texaco fuel. Hallens has sold petrol since the 1930s and until now has maintained the traditional attended service. This will continue at its garage in Union Lane for customers who value the personal service. 88 10 18e # c.26.8

1988 10 19
Jane Webb is a name well-known in Newmarket for large, elegantly-stocked dress shops. She started as a child, helping her parents on a menswear stall and, aged 13, ran a tiny dress shop in Sun Street with her mother. Ten years ago she moved into the derelict gas showrooms and stocked upmarket clothes. Now she also has a large shop in Sussex Street Cambridge and employs a staff of 40. This autumn she has flown to fashion fairs around Europe and makes weekly buying trips to London 88 10 19

The Nyton in Barton Road, Ely, has opened as a restaurant under Robert Setchell. 88 10 19a

Madingley School celebrates 10 years – 88 10 19b

CN.FM 103 radio will launch next year – feature - 88 10 19c

1988 10 20
Three Cambridge computer pioneers hope to revolutionise communications with a fibre-optic cable-TV service carrying eight or nine TV channels, some collected by satellite dishes. Eventually there would be 50 channels, an independent phone service, teleconferencing, a security alarm system, home shopping and remote banking. Cambridge Cable might link with Cambridge University's Project Granta to provide a data transmission service network from Girton to Addenbrooke's Hospital 88 10 20 # c.27.8

The new Tesco superstore at Newmarket, twice the size of that in Hammond Close, provides more than 200 full and part-time jobs. In Cambridge the giant new Co-op Beehive development is double the size of the old one, creating 180 new jobs. It has a crèche, a larger area devoted to fresh fish and a checkout scanner service. An enlarged petrol station will open soon offering the cheapest petrol in town. Meanwhile in Milton a new Stop Shop convenience store will provide the community with day-to-day needs and a video library. 88 10 20a 88 10 24, 88 10 25 & a

1988 10 26
New hotel, transport and warehousing complex planned beside A604 at Godmanchester – 88 10 26

1988 10 27
Cottenham Action Group is battling to block a 250-home development behind the High Street from Crowlands to Broad Lane. It would increase the size of the village by up to 1,000 people adding to the village school which already has 430 pupils, and cause traffic congestion The developers' plans include a health centre and doctor's surgery; they would also replace the existing sewage treatment works. 88 10 27

1988 10 28
Greenwich Observatory foundation stone laid – 88 10 28 # c.36.9

Cambridge AppleCentre was officially opened by Schnorbitz the dog and his well-known owner, comedian Bernie Winters in the presence of Directors from Apple Computers UK. It provides hardware and software on site at Clifton Court with a resident training consultant offering courses on the Apple Macintosh as well as a service department. The Apple is especially suitable for the busy executive with its friendly graphic interface and is suitable for updating company literature or starting a newsletter. They can be rented for special occasions such as exhibitions with a rental/conversion scheme for those who wish to evaluate it before buying. 88 10 28a # c.27.5

1988 10 29

Sebastian Coe made history by smashing Lord Burghley's record for the Great Court Run at Trinity College. He pitted himself against Steve Cram in a 'Chariots of Fire'-style race to dash around the court within the time the 400-year-old clock struck noon. Coe, dressed in the outfit worn by Ben Cross who portrayed runner Harold Abrahams in the film, said he could not hear the chimes for the cheering of the 1,500 spectators. The event was seen by millions of TV views around the world and raised money for Great Ormond Street Hospital 88 10 29 # c.39

Sir Clive Sinclair's Stone House, on Madingley Road was built in 1896. If he had chosen a fortress to protect him from prying eyes he could hardly have found a more solid building. The walls are more than a foot thick in solid stone and even the front door is a formidable structure of metal and class. It has a Middle Eastern annexe with a fabulous hand-painted ceiling and a collection of calculators and computers in a large glass cabinet. It is on the market for £750,000 88 10 29a

1988 10 31
The White Witch of Chrishall cheerfully calls herself the local nitwit. A visit to her 500-year-old 'Faerie Cottage' is like stepping into a magical fairyland. Colourful paintings of lords and ladies, shepherds and fairies, along with pictures of pixies and gnomes, adorn the white outer walls of her higgledy-piggledy thatched cottage and make up her 'special family'. "They look after men, bring me luck and keep the witches away", Mrs Cranwell says. She is sharing her magical stories and her wisdom with listeners to Radio Cambridgeshire 88 10 31

Lakenheath airfield ghost – 88 10 31a

November 1988 CEN

1988 11 01
The Bishop of Ely blessed the Girl Guides' new £250,000 outdoor centre at Newmarket. It commemorates a lifelong Guide supporter, Miss Marjorie Jarman whose bequest started the project. The rest of the cash has been collected by fund-raising efforts by Guides and Brownies with local council grants. It is open to any branch of the Guide and Scout movement and also being offered to schools. As well as the building there is a camp site on the six-acre woodland site off Duchess Drive, Newmarket 88 11 01a

The last cruise missile has left the Molesworth American air base. News that the weapons had gone came as a Soviet military team arrived to make a snap inspection; they found only empty hangars. Removing of the 18 missiles, under the INF treaty, has been completed two months ahead of schedule. The last left Molesworth en route for destruction in America on Thursday. It has taken the US less than two months to remove the missiles which were deployed under a year ago 88 11 01b

1988 11 02
A new university sports complex off Madingley Road will cater for every level from general recreation to high-performance athletes. The first phase will include a 10-lane Olympic-standard synthetic athletics track with field events facilities and a pavilion. Later there will be a 34-metre swimming pool with a deep-water full-size international water polo court. A sports hall, rowing, training tank, combat salle, dance studio, squash and fives court and table tennis facilities will follow 88 11 02

Villagers at Wallington, near Royston, were left high and dry when their only pub was suddenly closed and boarded up. Residents were so outraged that they sent a petition to brewers Greene King calling for the Plough to be reopened. There has not been a village stores for many years and now they have only the village hall. But they admit they did not support the pub when it was open. The Biggleswade brewery said it was not viable and would be disposed of in the most profitable way 88 11 02a

1988 11 03

The revolutionary new DNA profiling technique has just gone into operation at the regional forensic science laboratory at Huntingdon. The new unit will carry out work for 10 police forces including murder, rape and violent assault. The system could eventually provide information such as the colour of the attacker's eyes and stature, scientists claim. Older techniques such as blood testing which can produce quicker, if less precise results, will continue to be used. 88 11 03

1988 11 04
Thirteen of the world's largest military aircraft shelters are being built at RAF Alconbury to house the TR-1 spy plane with its huge 104 feet wingspan. They use enough steel to stretch from London to Southampton and are large enough to hold 50 buses. They are part of a £70 million development of the base which includes taxiways and operational buildings. The development, linked with the arrival of cruise missiles at nearby RAF Molesworth, was to have turned Alconbury into the biggest USAF base in Britain. But now Molesworth has been run down as a result of the INF arms reduction treatment 88 11 04

Royston's original cinema in Priory Lane was gutted in 1933 and reopened in Melbourn Street just five months later. However until recently it stood almost derelict through years of neglect and audiences were at an all-time low. Then Des and Margaret Shepherd and their partner Bob Lee took over. They gave it a fresh coat of paint, replaced the uncomfortable seats and installed modern equipment. In the last five years audiences have trebled. But the future is not secure: the lease runs out in two years and developers are hungry to get their hands on the prime building site. 88 11 04a

The dustmen leave the depot at 6.10 am and begin collecting bins, cracking jokes and shouting good-natured abuse at each other. Each man is almost trotting between houses, often lifting bins on to a shoulder with one hand while grabbing bulging plastic sacks with the other. David, a veteran of 15 years with the council, drives the dustcart a few yards at a time; too far and they would carry the bins further than necessary, too little and they waste precious minutes waiting for him. They have incentives to get the work done quickly – they knock off as soon as they are finished 88 11 04b & c

1988 11 09
Villagers in Sewards End have failed to save their pub. Nearly 90 people signed a petition protesting against the closure of the Green Dragon but brewers Ind Coope were given outline consent to redevelop the site for five new houses. Uttlesford's Development Control Sub-committee could not take the petition in to account as it was not a reason for refusing permission. They also gave brewers Greene King permission to convert the Bricklayer's Arm at Ashdon into two houses. 88 11 09

Book Production Consultants feature – 88 11 09a

1988 11 10
Residents of a controversial block of flats in Cambridge have denied their home if a terrible place to live. Tenants in Kingsway Flats, off Carlton Way, are working with the council to spruce up the block's image. It is a good place to live, the flats are excellent and when proposed improvements are finished people will clamour to live there, they say. There is a kekab stall on the corner and a lot of young people on motor cycles hang around but on the whole it is quiet. 88 11 10

Plans for a massive new housing scheme at Southoe near St Neots have been shelved. But the firm who wanted to build 700 homes over 100 acres still hopes some development might go ahead. 88 11 10a

Kneesworth House psychiatric hospital was dubbed 'another Broadmoor' and condemned as a risk to local people before it even opened. When the first group of mentally ill patients moved into the hall in Bassingbourn village after a bitter protest three years ago, it was to a reception of open hostility. But now after an expansion programme, the community is coming round. Many of the 110 staff come from the surrounding area and now a visitors group is to be set up to socialise with the patients 88 11 10b

1988 11 12
Lady Cambridge's former home, Old House, Lt Abington back on market – 88 11 12

1988 11 15
The prestigious Garden House Hotel has been taken over by Queens Moat Houses, the first national chain to gain a foothold in the city. Its main competitor, the four-star University Arms is owned by the Bradford Family while the Ridgeon family own the Gonville and Arundel House belongs to Major John Norfolk. The Garden House was first opened in 1922 but has had an unsettled time with five different owners in the last 20 years. In 1970 it was damaged during the 'Garden House Riot' and two years later gutted by a fire. It reopened in 1973 and has since been extended. Now it will be redecorated 88 11 15 # c.27.45

1988 11 16
Laurence Fletcher was given the challenge of opening a new Christian book shop in Cambridge in 1951; now Mowbrays which was founded in Oxford almost 140 years ago has a world-wide reputation. At his retirement party the Bishop of Ely read a letter from the Archbishop of Canterbury paying tribute to Mr Fletcher's enthusiasm and knowledge of books: "I can't imagine King's Parade without him", he wrote . 88 11 16 # c.25

1988 11 21
Buckden Towers is steeped in history; Katharine of Aragon was imprisoned there and some famous visitors include Henry VIII and his fifth wife Catherine Howard as well as Cardinal Wolsey, James I and Samuel Pepys. It is now occupied by the Claretians, a Catholic church missionary group. When they arrived in 1956 the buildings were in poor repair and the great tower, which dates back to the 14th century, just a shell. Now they are launching a restoration appeal. 88 11 21

1988 11 23
Dozens of people were evacuated from homes and offices when a cloud of highly toxic gas escaped from a chemical factory in St Neots after two chemicals reacted as they were being mixed together to make drain cleaning products. The fumes can burn skin, damage eyes and corrode metals. Staff were evacuated, the nearby police station cleared and an emergency post was established at the town's swimming pool. Two people were taken to hospital and a number of police officers treated after inhaling fumes. 88 11 23

Prince Charles picked up a handful of sewage-based compost and took a deep sniff as he toured Hensby Compost at Woodhurst. And he came close to getting a better view than he wanted when he slipped on the icy sludge and was caught by the company boss. The process gets rid of sewage sludge, cutting stubble-burning and protecting peat-based fens. He was presented with a Camellia grown in Nat-Gro in a pot commissioned from the Prickwillow pottery. 88 11 23a

Angry residents want councillors to clamp down on the followers of an Indian guru who pour into the village for special gatherings. Shudy Camps Park House, a 330-year-old mansion, was bought by the wife of the Secretary General of the U.N, International Maritime Organisation who some regard as a saint with miraculous powers to cure the sick and dying, Her followers use it as a clinic for treating illnesses with sahaja yoga. Locals claim music, chanting and incantations have been played over loudspeakers until early in the morning. 88 11 23b

Cambridge's large Polish community celebrated 40 years in the city at the Polonia Club in Chesterton Road. They have built up an impressive network of activities ranging from a drama society and folk song ensemble called Klosy to a school founded in 1952 to teach Polish language and culture. When Josef Mazur came in 1947 the only employment open to Poles was labouring, work in the mines or domestic positions. The older members of the community are suspicious that youngsters will not uphold the traditions, but they want them to survive. 88 11 23c

1988 11 25
Social services have stepped in to protect two children seriously disturbed after being caught up in satanic practices amid revelations that witchcraft is widespread. Coven and devil worship groups are probably active in Cambridge and black magic activity is known in the Huntingdon area claims a clergyman, one of five trained to combat the black arts. The vicar of Buntingford has dealt with youngsters "frightened out of their wits' by dabbling with the occult 88 11 25.

More than 8,300 of the region's farmers have applied to the new Set-aside scheme which pays them to stop farming and help reduce the EEC cereal surplus. Mechanisation has already cut 2,500 farm jobs this year. Crops will not be grown on Radwinter Hall Farm for the first time in living memory. Farmer Westwood is not overjoyed at stopping farming his traditional crops of wheat, barley and beans but after three years of washout harvests his overdraft was so high the bank would have foreclosed on him. Now he will just watch the grass grow on his 350 acres. 88 11 25a

1988 11 26
Cambridge has nearly double the national average number of children in care, a shock report has revealed. One in every 100 children is either in foster care or in special homes, hostels or lodging. This is three times as high as surrounding districts and twice as high as Huntingdon. But a shake-up of policy will see cash moved away to preventative care 88 11 26

1988 11 28
Fire fighters battled for two hours to stop a blaze which seriously damaged Cambridge University's Union Society buildings. The famous debating chamber was saved but the main reception room was gutted and the bar and library badly smoke damaged. It is not believed to have been a malicious attack but probably caused by a smouldering cigarette. A major fire in 1975 damaged part of the debating chamber and two floors above 88 11 28

1988 11 29
Chaos hit rush hour-traffic when a major spillage of dangerous chemicals blocked the A45 in both directions after a lorry overturned. Quick work by firemen prevented the hazardous chemicals forming poisonous clouds and getting into the water supply 88 11 29

1988 11 30
Trumpington teenager Guiliano Maiorana joins Manchester United 86 11 30

December 1988 CEN

1988 12 01
St Mary's school Headmistress Sister Christina is quick to dispel thoughts of the former convent as a cocooned world for over-privileged young ladies: all 575 have the opportunity of using the computers from the age of 11. "It is not just needlework and good manners, we have never gone in for embroidery. I am very keen the girls should go into a man's world as people, not as feminists", she says. The school has a strong background in science and engineering and many go on to polytechnics to study electrical, mechanical and chemical engineering 88 12 01

Fulbourn water pumping station was built by the Cambridge University & Town Waterworks Company in 1888. The pump was taken out of service last year. Now it may be turned into a house and four flats. Sale by auction 88 12 01b # c.24.2

1988 12 06
Michael Marshall reflects on work as High Sheriff 88 12 06

1988 12 07
BBC new regional TV centre could be based in Cambridge 88 12 07

Next Technology developing device to make moving pictures and photographs as easily accessible on computers as words and graphics 88 12 07a

Milton Lamb and Flag pub, 17th century, now modernised 88 12 07b

1988 12 08
Eaton Socon sub-postmaster retires 88 12 08

1988 12 09
City of London Polytechnic pulls out of plans to merge with CCAT as Anglia Polytechnic 88 12 09 # c.36.7

Bathers gave way to baptismal candidates at Girton College when the Rev Michael Quicke of St Andrew's Street Baptist Church baptised four students in the swimming pool. It is thought to be the first time such a service has been held there. "It was rather odd, with everyone around the pool and so much water. But I was encouraged by the spirit of it", he said. Originally five students had been due to be baptised but one was unwell. Each was keen for the service to be held in their College so that friends did not have to trek to the church. 88 12 09a

1988 12 12
Shoppers gave Cambridge a miss on Saturday amid fears of Christmas chaos. The usual long queues in to traffic choked car parks were absent as motorists virtually breezed into the centre. 88 12 12

Office rents have soared 35 per cent this year – 88 12 12a

South Cambs District Plan envisages village growth – details – 88 12 12b

Hutchings and Harding tannery, one of the world's largest producers of chamois leather, has opened Skivers Tannery Shop at its historic premises in Sawston High Street specialising in leather jackets, sheepskin and goatskin rugs. The family-owned business, founded some 350 years ago, is housed in buildings erected in the early 1800s where it employs 70 people, exporting 80 per cent of its products worldwide. Its leather jackets cost £80 and men's sheepskin jackets £180. 88 12 12c

1988 12 13
Thousands of hens will be slaughtered in Cambridgeshire as the salmonella scare means fewer people are buying eggs and farmers cannot afford to keep them. The scare-mongering by certain ministers has affected the livelihood of producers; one says he will have to kill 9,000 hens because of the high cost of feeding them while at Flexon Poultry Farm, Wilburton 3,000 birds are being slaughtered: they would lie to dispose of more but the processing factories are all choc-a-bloc. It is a disaster for the industry. 88 12 13

198812 14
The last of several thousand trees on Jockey Club land at Newmarket which were damaged in last year's gales, has been felled. The trees were about 150 years old and had reputedly been planted by French prisoners from the Napoleonic wars. Much of the high-grade timber was sold to furniture companies while several hundred tons of lower grade wood went to North Wales pulp mills. Now the area has been cleared reading for planting with young saplings 88 12 14

The Midland Bank on Saffron Walden Market Square, has been given a complete face-lift. Work on the 18th-century timber-framed building was not easy: a former family home, the premises were listed both internally and externally. When they started taking down walls they encountered all sorts of problems. In the four years since it opened the bank has increased its number of accounts from 70 to several thousand. Saffron Walden is a traditional market town and it is important for a local bank manager to maintain a personal link with customers, they believe 88 12 14a

1988 12 15
Controversial plans to turn the redundant St Andrew the Great Church into a shopping centre have been rejected. The Environment Secretary says the new centre would be an unsuitable place to house the memorial to Captain Cook, the explorer, whose wife and two sons are buried in the church grounds. The expanse of glazed area coupled with the commercial appearance of what would be behind would cause conflict to the character and setting of the building. 88 12 15 # c.83

The former Tivoli cinema building which opened on Chesterton Road in 1925 has been converted into 'The Exchange' with two large cocktail bars and a 120-seater restaurant. Later will come a basement gym, a punt landing stage and a roof garden restaurant with panoramic views over Jesus Green. Entertainment facilities include a huge electronic roll-down screen, the latest audio equipment and closed circuit television relaying film of the dance hall, But great care has been taken to preserve the distinctive atmosphere with plaster ceiling mouldings and a combination of rich dark and red wood 88 12 15a # c.27.4

1988 12 16
Seven newspapers in Cambridgeshire belonging to the Sharman family are to be sold, but the jobs of all 220 staff are safe. The titles, which include the Hunts Post, Ely Standard and Cambridgeshire Times will be bought by Thomson Regional Newspapers subject to referral to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission. Other titles included in the deal are the Peterborough, Wisbech and Kings Lynn Standards and the Rutland and South Lincs Classified. The news comes just a week after the funeral of the former managing director, Charles Sharman. 88 12 16 # c.04

Cambridge city council cannot afford to take over the redundant church of St Andrew the Great to turn it into a heritage centre and tourist office which would be mainly used by tourists. A number of organisations have already been given planning permission to use it for a variety of functions, but they have not taken up the option. It would cost up to £1 million to convert the building so the church's future is back in the melting pot after the Government's refusal to allow a property company to turn it into shops 88 12 16a

1988 12 19
Scientist of Nobel-prize-winning standard are to offer their services to industry as part of a new initiative to foster better links between the university and businesses in Cambridge. They will operate through consultancy companies which will provide a new source of university funds. Disciplines will include veterinary science, mathematics and surface analysis under an initiative from the Wolfson Industrial Unit 88 12 19

1988 12 21
Eagle redevelopment plans – 88 12 21

Whittlesford peppermint Mint Marketing Company marketing expands 88 12 21a

'Honest' Paul Tippett was one of the first traders to set up shop at Addenbrooke's Hospital 15 years ago. Now he has taken over a new purpose-built supermarket on the main concourse. The shop has been designed to accommodate wheelchairs or patients coming in with their drip stands. It does them good to get out of the wards and back into the real world for a little while. Although Concourse Mini Market sells alcohol and medicines staff check with the patient's ward sister before supplying them. 88 12 21b & c # c.21.4

1988 12 23
Ely mobile library driver Fred Kirby retires – 88 12 23

1988 12 28
Production trials have started at the £4 million Haverhill Meat Products factory which has been designed to cater for an expected growth market in the 1990s. It will process and pack cooked ham and cooked shoulder. The factory is the largest pork abattoir in Europe and is owned by J. Sainsbury and Canada Packers of Ontario. The site, first developed in 1958, now employs 1,700 people. 88 12 28

Brooklands Avenue Government canteen to be repaired and refurbished – 88 12 28a

St Andrew's Street Baptist Church has opened a new three-storey Stone Yard Centre which nestles between the church and the Canon cinema, with a restaurant open to the public as its focal point. The cost has been high for the 300 regular churchgoers to find but plans are advanced for other projects including a luncheon club for the elderly and a marriage counselling service. 88 12 28b # c.83

Foxton based Millers Coaches is taking over several major routes in Cambridge following revised legislation relating to bus services. The biggest impact on travellers has been the introduction of the popular 'Noddy Bus' with its low floors and wide doors making it popular with pensioners and young mums with children and pushchairs. Soon they will take delivery of a fleet of Leyland Lynx buses which each carry 51 passengers. 88 12 28c # c.26.46

1988 12 29
A plague of rats is sweeping the region with the number of reported sighting in Cambridge nearly doubling since September. 88 12 29

Bait's Bite lock gates to be replaced by electric wedge – 88 12 29a

Cambridge Evening News centenary year reviewed – 88 12 29b # c.04

1989 Cambridge Evening News

I have copies of these stories

January 1989 CEN

1989 01 03
The current scourge of rats which is reaching epidemic proportions in Cambridgeshire spells good business for Town and County Pest Services, based in Carlton. They first produced their secret poison recipe in plastic sachet form in 1964 and are working full-time to meet a growing demand for their Townex product from all over the country. Each sachet is printed with the antidote in case a pet accidentally eats some 89 01 03

Pitt Club, p13

1989 01 04
Badger, p9
Royston Corn Exchange, p9

1989 01 05
The new shopping mall in the main concourse at Addenbrooke's Hospital is the first money-making venture to be undertaken by a joint NHS-private sector partnership. Under the deal the British Airport Services paid for the redevelopment in return for a five-year contract to manage the businesses on the site. The NHS is guaranteed income from a profit-sharing agreement with the 20 private commercial concerns which have taken space; they include a hairdresser's, florist, grocery store and cafeteria. It will be unveiled by the Health Secretary, Kenneth Clarke 89 01 05 # c.21.4

1989 01 10
The University Arms Hotel has been sold to the De Vere chain which owns 30 luxury hotels across the country. They plan to refurbish the 115-bed four-star hotel. Built as a coach house in 1830, the University Arms was acquired by Marcus Bradford in 1891. The 160 staff will be retained. De Vere hoped to build a hotel in Cambridge several years ago and bought a site in Mount Pleasant, but the scheme fell through. 89 01 10 # c.27.45

Villagers in Balsham celebrated Plough Monday, a tradition dating back 200 years when villages pulled the plough around the village collecting money from 'well-to-do' families. If anyone refused to give, they would draw a furrow across their lawn. At Fenstanton the Old Hunts Molly Dancers led a procession with over 200 villagers, maintaining a tradition revived about 10 years ago. 89 01 10a

Plans for a £50 million transport services and warehousing development at Godmanchester – which could have created 300 jobs – has been rejected by Huntingdonshire District Council. It included a hotel, pub/restaurant and filling station but was felt to be too overwhelming and overpowering. It would be an inland port which would have heavy traffic use, particularly after the Channel Tunnel opened. And a 40-bed country club planned for Buckden Marina would turn that village into a 'Benidorm by the Ouse'. It would include swimming pool, gym and snooker room together with a coffee shop and crèche. 89 01 10b

A major row has broken out in the book trade following the decision of Pentos, which owns Dillons Bookstore in Cambridge, to sell books at a discount. Other bookshops, including Heffers, say this is in defiance of the Net Book Agreement and could put many small booksellers out of business. They would not be following suit. Dillons, which opened in the city last year is just one of Pentos group's chain of shops, which include Athena, and has five per cent of the book trade. 89 01 10c

1989 01 11

Post Office chiefs have turned to the work-starved city of Sheffield in a bid to cure a staff crisis in Cambridge. Almost 300 answered a small advertisement for postmen and van drivers which has yielded more than 50 new recruits. But a further 30 snubbed a move because of soaring accommodation costs. Another advertisement in the News for rooms and bedsits for the new postmen produced a flood of responses and all have now been found a home 89 01 11

Violent crime in Cambridge is not new. In the Sixties gangs of Mods and Rockers roamed the city centre, frequently clashing with each other and the police. There were also violent student political protests. In February 1970 hundreds of students attacked the Garden House hotel in protest against the regime in Greece and the Cambridge Rapist brought terror to the lives of women between October 1974 and June 1975. But the city is still a remarkably safe place, say councillors. 89 01 11a

Early one dark Sunday morning a passenger aircraft with nearly 300 people on board has crashed in flames on Parker's Piece. Three nearby house have been destroyed by wreckage falling from the sky and there are fears of more explosions. It is a horrifying scenario which seems chillingly real after the Lockerbie disaster. But Cambridge emergency services are trained to deal with it with a 'major incident' plan covering crashed aircraft or trains, chemical incidents and explosions. 89 01 11b

1989 01 12
Teachers facing the biggest classroom revolution of their careers are under more stress than ever before, trying to find ways to cope with a new National Curriculum with all its implications of pupil assessment and testing. But staff at the Cambridge Educational Development Centre in Ascham Road are helping their blackboard colleagues with courses and workshops bringing teachers up to date with the latest techniques in a warm comfortable environment where they can forget the rigours and stresses of school 89 01 12

In the centre of Huntingdon stands a building dating back to the 12th century where Oliver Cromwell and the diarist Samuel Pepys went to school. For the last 25 years it has been home to the Cromwell Museum, packed with artefacts relating to the Lord Protector. It has recently undergone a renovation to enhance the displays of artefacts such his hat, a gunpowder flask with his initials and his medicine cabinet. It is the only public collection of material on Oliver Cromwell in the country and attracts visitors from around the world. 89 01 12a

The University Arms Hotel has been owned by the Bradford family for almost a century and its sale marks the end of an era. Opened in 1834, the original hotel was a three-storey building with just 15 bedrooms. It was bought by Marcus Bradford in 1891 and rebuilt, with a further extension in 1925, then substantially modernised in the 1960s and 70s. It was the first hotel in Cambridge to install electric lighting, and the first heating system was installed in 1900 when there was also 'telephonic communication with all parts of the United Kingdom'. Today it has 115 bedrooms, a restaurant for up to 250 people, several bars and conference rooms. 89 01 12b # c.27.45

1989 01 16
Guiliano Maiorana has made his first team debut for Manchester United at Old Trafford, having made the dream move from Histon at the end of November. Under the terms of the contract agreed between the two clubs Histon will collect £50,000 once he has made 20 competitive appearances for the first team. It follows an immediate £30,000 paid when United manager Alex Ferguson plucked the Cambridge-born player, son of Italian parents, from obscurity after seeing him in a trial 89 01 16

1989 01 17
Sir - Cambridge Preservation Society is very concerned about the proposal of the Cam Conservators to replace the historic gates at Baits Bite with the ugly 16ft guillotine lock. This will spoil a scene of great charm on a recreation route of prime importance. It is being done so they can save the costs of the lock keeper's job by automating the lock. Anglian Water has agreed to contribute to the cost so long as the system will allow for improved flood control. But there are other engineering solutions. – Secretary, Preservation Society 89 01 17

Ancient wall painting at Kingston parish church which are under threat from damp may be saved. Conservationists will paste silk over a 15th-century painting of a devil, then remove it from its plaster home. The wall itself will then be made good and the painting replaced. It is a very complex and expensive business. One single design can cost more than £10,000 to restore and preserve for future generations 89 01 17a

1989 01 19
The second phase of the Grafton Centre shopping complex, which is almost half as big again, has been delayed by nine months. It will include new shopping malls, a food area and the conversion of the old Presto store into 15 business units. It means the seven screen cinema and 257 extra parking spaces will also be set back. The news has been greeted with dismay by Councillors. Developers Grosvenor has blamed the delay on design changes, although finance has not yet been organised. 89 01 19

William Hunt opened a shop on Mill Road in 1918 as a centre for jewellery repairs. He then sold watches and clocks together with a few sports trophies. As these became popular he decided to concentrate on this side of the business, together with some engraving. .Mr Hunt died about 22 years ago and the shop was continued by his daughter, Joyce. She came on a temporary basis in 1937 and has stayed ever since. Now she is retiring and there is no one in the family to carry it on. 89 01 19a

Land on Histon Road fenced off to prevent travellers – 89 01 19b

1989 01 20
The leader of the Greek Orthodox Church in Britain celebrated the feast of St Athanosios at the Cambridge parish he founded in 1968 when he was studying in Cambridge. The congregation now regularly numbers about 40. Otherwise known as St Clement's, the church is shared with the Anglican community – 89 01 20 # c.83

Seasoned commuters on the Cambridge line will go to almost any lengths to avoid catching the 'cattle-truck' electric 321 multiple-unit trains to London. Even being crammed on to the older locomotive-hauled trains is preferable. "There are just two carriages where you can smoke on the 8am train from Cambridge; every day I have to stand, nothing ever happens when you complain", said one regular traveller. Many will either work late or go for a drink at the end of the day to catch the 6.35pm locomotive-hauled train. Life will be only marginally better when the new electric units come into full operation, seating will still be cramped, there will be no tables for people to work, no buffer, no phones and not enough first class seats, some claim. 89 01 20a # c.26.2

1989 01 21
The University's world-renowned Veterinary School may be axed following a report by a Government Working Party. Although the University has until March to respond, there is little prospect of changing their mind. The last intake of students will be in October and the school, which has 300 students, would close when they finish their six-year degree course. No decision has been made on the future use of the Madingley Road site or the Vet's Hospital, which is a leading centre for cancer treatment in animals 89 01 21 # c.36.9

Arrington Assembly Rooms, one of the oldest village halls in the county, may have to close because of weakened floors and the ancient building needs an expensive damp-proof course. Now villagers have to raise almost £1,000. The hall, a former malting house, was first faced with closure five years ago. Then £6,000 was raised and re-roofing and other essential repairs were carried out. Ironically the success of that campaign is the source of the current problem because it is so well used 89 01 21a

1989 01 23
Fraud investigators from the Departments of Employment and Social Security have been targeting fenland farms, vegetable packers, gangmasters and employers to weed out unemployment benefit claimants who are working on the land but failing to declare they are doing so. Hundreds have been signed off the jobless register, saving the taxpayer thousands of pounds a week. They are also investigating allegations that some of the gangmasters are collusive 89 01 23

Church wall paintings feature – 89 01 23a

1989 01 24
Addenbrooke's Hospital intensive care unit designed to cope with major disaster opens – 89 01 24 # c.21.4

Hinxton watermill restored by Preservation Society – 89 01 24a

1989 01 25
Therfield Tuthill Manor restored – 89 01 25

Farming industry progresses mechanically, problem of wages – 89 01 25a

1989 01 27
Huntingdon Petersfield day centre under threat – 89 01 27

Tom Doig has done a very good job as curator of the Cambridge and County Folk Museum for the past five years despite little encouragement and many difficulties. The little museum is a most marvellous means of encouraging a sense of community and plays a central role in teaching young people about their area. Yet it is desperately poorly financed, scandalously cramped and largely failing to exploit its potential. I hope whoever inherits Tom's unenviable task at the museum will also show his enthusiasm and refusal to be cast down by difficulties. Never before has the public been more interested and enthralled by local history. And never has the need for a dramatic re-appraisal of this very valuable museum been more needed – Christopher South 89 01 27a # c.03

Jennings Transport of Sawston moved to new haulage depot – 89 01 27b

1989 01 28
Vet School closure protest march – 89 01 28

1989 01 30
Molesworth Cruise Missile base was deactivated in an historic ceremony, the first to be disbanded under the Superpowers' Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty. The 18 nuclear-tipped missiles were all removed last year. Now the storage buildings, which resemble large garages with 70-ton steel and concrete doors may be used as accommodation or storage centres. The Royal Marines band played the ceremony out with the 'Monty Python' theme. – 89 01 30 & 31 # c.45.8

1989 01 31
Bolnhurst Old Plough pub ravaged by fire – 89 01 31a

February 1989 CEN

1989 02 01
Satellite TV aerials cause concern – 89 02 01

1989 02 02
Stansted airport could overtake Gatwick – report – 89 02 02

Coulson's building firm is combining old skills and new technology by bringing in a laser saw which cuts stone 10 times faster than the old one. – 89 02 02a

1989 02 03
Claims by a Cambridge Professor that a Cambridgeshire accent could be a handicap to children seeking a career have prompted controversy. Sybil Marshall of Ely defends her own accent: "I was born of fenland stock at the bottom of a fenland drove in a remote fen well below sea level. I have never been at any pains to eradicate my fenland vowels. I have never found my fenland voice, nor my accent, much of a hindrance to my professional advancement, and shall die still using the accent of my proud, sturdy, humorous and intelligent fen forebears". She also point out that each fenland region has an accent and dialogue of its own. "Within the fenland there are almost as many accents and dialects as there are distinctly separate fens." Leslie Nicholas of Littleport agrees: "I have travelled this country inside out, upside down and back to font and people have said how they like my accent. We are not carrot crunchers". - 89 02 03

A wartime 12-ton German V2 rocket is standing on a 'launch pad' at Teversham. Together with a modern US Polaris nuclear missile will go to the Imperial War Museum but problems arose over how best to display it 89 02 03a

1989 02 07
South Cambs DC, which has earned a reputation as a low-spending authority, is to provide all its services completely free of charge this year. Careful accounting and savings has boosted its reserves to move than £6 million. They had been worried that the Government might try and claw back some of the funds if it started to spend. But now the Government has fixed grants to councils. It is the last year money can be paid back to ratepayers before the community charge is introduced 89 02 07

1989 02 08
House prices to soar following electrification of railway line – 89 02 08

1989 02 10
Cambridgeshire County Council could be abolished in a massive town hall shake up. Liberal Democrats want to replace it with three small authorities, one be an amalgamation between Cambridge and South Cambs councils. The Government has decided to eventually scrap county-wide structure plans and replace them with local area plans. But they are angry at suggestions that city residents should be issued with identity cards giving concessionary fees to council-run leisure facilities. 89 02 10

CN-FM 103, Britain's newest commercial station, aims to provide local news, information and music to listeners in a 20 mile radius of Cambridge. It broadcasts from their main studios at Histon using the latest high tech broadcasting equipment with all its music on compact disc or digital audio tape. It has headhunted some of broadcasting's top presenters such as Dixie Peach, David Hamilton, Nicky Horne and Nino Firetto. They have also signed up 'Bungalow' Bill Wiggins to host a Sunday lunchtime show. 89 02 10a & b

1989 02 15
Property developers are bidding to buy Parkside fire station so they can build houses, a hotel or offices on the site. In return they will fund new fire stations at Arbury and Trumpington. At present fire tenders are often delayed by traffic and this would boost response time. The plum site overlooks Parker's Piece and is worth many millions of pounds. Now county councillors will reconsider the idea which was previously floated a year ago. 89 02 15

Developers have defended controversial plans to built two new villages. One, named Denny would be near Waterbeach would be called Denny. This would include 1,500 homes ranging from five-bedroom detached properties to starter homes with a village hall, community college, surgery and 27-acre sports field. The other, Highfields, would be five miles west of Cambridge and boast a business park, swimming pool and nine-hole golf course as well as 3,000 houses. Part of the A45 would be turned into a dual carriageway 89 02 15a

The main changes in Cambridgeshire's landscape since the 1930s has been the loss of hedgerows, drainage of wetland, cultivation of pastures and felling of trees. Livestock farming has been overtaken by cereal production as farmers answered the call to feed the nation. But new EEC quotas, 'green' politics and public demands for access have forced a rethink. Now the county council is planning a shake-up of its 45,000 acres of farmland with holdings run on a more commercial basis. Walkers and horse riders could get new routes and country parks are planned. 89 02 15b

Most Cambridgeshire land is devoted to agriculture, producing cereals, sugar beet and potatoes. Now the County Council has produced a Rural Strategy in response to the European drive to scrap food and highlight conservation matters. It promotes public enjoyment of the countryside, conservation and organic farming, encouraging farmers to seek income from rural businesses, tourism and country museums. But this is a "Walt Disney" ideal of a countryside with no smells or noises and organic farming is folly, a Thriplow farmer warns 89 02 15c

1989 02 16
Workmen are digging up part of the £3 million Huntingdon bypass which opened just month's ago. A section of the road between the Manor Farm roundabout and the King's Ripton junction has started to 'ripple'. It was constructed using a new technique of mixing lime and water with the clay subsoil to generate a chemical reaction which hardens the ground. Now they will return to a more orthodox method, digging out the clay and replacing it with a granular base. 89 02 16

Zebra crossings and Belisha beacons, pedestrian crossings – feature – 89 02 16a

SCDC the only council with a Conservation committee and first statutory nature reserve was East Hatley church – 89 02 16b

1989 02 17
Holiday Inns starts building hotel in Downing Street – 89 02 17

1989 02 18
Madingley windmill restored as house, for sale – 89 02 18

1989 02 21
Kings Hedges Infants and Junior Schools in Cameron Road may need to be knocked down and completely rebuilt. The schools, which celebrate their 21st birthday this year, have fallen into a state of 'disgraceful neglect', Governors claim. The roofs leak, the windows are loose, there is no paint on the outside. It will be cheaper to demolish them rather than undertake repairs. 89 02 21 # c.36.5

1989 02 22
Huge sums of money are being paid to house Cambridge's homeless in bed-and-breakfast style rooms. Rooms cost between £55 and £80 a week to rent and some are sub-standard. Two young mothers share a freezing house with a glue sniffer who often cuts himself because he liked the sight of blood. Now the Housing Act could push rents higher while new legislation may block the building of council houses. But a landlady says many tenants left without paying or do damage and they need to cover their costs 89 02 22

The Cambridge bedmaker might be an endangered species. Many potential bedders are being wooed by supermarket and 'Yuppie' couples prepared to pay above-average rates for a suitable cleaner. There are almost permanent advertisements but they attract fewer applicants. The standard rate is £2.75 an hour, around 50p less than that offered privately. Bedmakers usually work a 20-hour week but with the current shortages many take on more hours. But there are bonuses during the conference season and regular chats with the fellows make the job different each day 89 02 22a & b

1989 02 23
Pakistan ambassador honours Chaudri Rahnat Ali – 89 02 23

1989 02 24
Geoff Cresswell has been Cambridge City Surveyor for nearly 25 years, managing roads, traffic, refuse collection, markets and developments such as the Lion Yard and Grafton Centre. In the 1960s everybody was talking about building roads. The 70's were the era of multi-storey car parks, the 80's saw central area traffic management. Now its industrial and council redevelopment. But he has doubts about park-and-ride. Underground car parks are possible, but would be massively expensive to build, he says. 89 02 24

1989 02 28
Camfax is a new Cambridge company specialising in the supply of facsimile machines. The Harris/3M machine transmits a standard page of text in as little as ten seconds. As it uses the telephone line, the faster it transmits, the lower the communication costs. It has a no paper memory, retaining communications until more paper is loaded. The most popular model sells for £1,200 and can be connected to a car phone to be used in conjunction with cellular radio 89 02 28

Myttons restaurant and brasserie takes up most of the ground floor of the Pitt Club in Jesus Lane. Behind the classical façade of the building originally built as a Roman bath house last century, a complete transformation has taken place. The elegant dining room provided a traditional atmosphere for substantial dining with a fully licensed bar for liquid refreshment. The brasserie offers economic lunches and dinners with most dishes under £5 89 02 28a

Texas flouting Sunday trading laws - 89 02 28, p1

March 1989 CEN

1989 03 01
Motorists are reeling from the news that car parking charges in Cambridge are set to go up by 900 per cent. Councillors have voted to increase fees at Queen Anne Car Park from £1 to £10. They hope squeezing out long-stay commuters will benefit short-term shoppers. They have told commuters to find a residential street to park in instead but residents in De Freville and the York Street area say they are choc-a-bloc with cars already 89 03 01

One-Two Eight home for mentally handicapped, Suez Road – 89 03 01a

1989 03 03
Plans have been released for a 'showpiece' village on the site of the former wartime air base at Bourn. The proposal is for a community of 3,000 homes of which 2,400 would be built by 2001. Up to 30 per cent would be for social needs – first-time buyers, the elderly and the handicapped. There would also be a 50-acre business park, superstore and nine-hole golf course together with two schools, a swimming pool, library and a police station 89 03 03

Jack Overhill was known by many people as an author and broadcaster – giving 55 talks for the BBC and publishing three books. But most people will remember him as a keen swimmer. The founder of the Granta Swimming Club, he took a daily dip in the Cam for more than 60 years. After leaving school at 14 he followed his father's trade of shoemaker and in the 1920s set up one of the country's first football pools coupons. "His diaries and the dramatised novels he wrote represent a most important history of backstreet Cambridge in the 1920s and 30s", said Cambridgeshire Collection Librarian, Mike Petty 89 03 03b

Jane Bone new director of Folk Museum faces challenge – 89 03 03c # c.03

1989 03 04

Fire ripped through the University Zoology Department causing extensive damage and destroying important scientific work. Previous records in a laboratory used by Cancer Research Campaign workers were destroyed, wiping out years of research. The department had been on alert because of fears that it would be a target for animal rights protestors. Some experiments were saved because refrigerators continued to function, despite the intense heat 89 03 04 # c.36.9 # c.44.75

1989 03 09
Market Square may be redeveloped in new scheme – 89 03 09

Cambridge Tyre Company, which celebrates its 60th anniversary, has a number of early tyres in stock. They include an American Swineheart tyre for a Model T Ford and a beaded edge Michelin from the same period. Ernest Brown founded the company in 1929 based in a small shop in Jesus Lane when many tyres were of solid construction. By 1935 they'd moved to Burleigh Street when tyres were fitted at the side of the road and in 1964 took over premises owned by Winston Smith the butcher in Histon Road. 89 03 09a

Railway cuts of Beeching era – feature 89 03 09b & c, 89 03 10a

1989 03 10
Councillors and employees to keep free parking spaces in Cambridge while prices rise – 89 03 10

1989 03 11
A1 could be turned into six-lane highway – 89 03 11

1989 03 13
Bishop Peter Walker to retire – 89 03 13

The Howard Mallett youth club opened in March 1968 and five weeks of birthday celebrations have included two revival nights featuring 50s/60s & 70s music and a party for children. There are plans to extend the centre which has a sports hall, two training gyms, three split-level multi-activity areas, meeting rooms and canteen. But Doris Mansfield who has fed thousands of youngsters since the club started life as a 17-plus drop-in centre is retiring. 89 03 13a

1989 03 14
The picturesque 15th-century Cootes farmhouse at Old Hall Road on the outskirts of Steeple Bumpstead was gutted by fire. The remote building had just been renovated and the owners are devastated by the loss of the home they bought to restore a year ago. At Trinity College students were evacuated when fire broke out in a kitchen. No one was hurt at either blaze. 89 03 14

1989 03 15
The new £5.5 million mechanised letter office in Clifton Road was built to cope with the area's rapidly increasing volumes of mail. Letters are handled by some of the latest sorting technology including machines which operate at a rate of 25,000 an hour and has scope for expansion so it can continue to grow with the city. It was formally opened by TV personality Anne Gregg, presenter of "Holiday '89". Later she waved off a special train to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the travelling post office. 89 03 15

Douglas House, Cambridge's 'slum' psychiatric unit for disturbed teenagers with its crumbling décor, cell-like rooms and graffiti-covered walls is to be closed down. A new unit will be built on the corner of the Robinson Way entrance to Addenbrooke's Hospital with proper facilities specifically designed for their needs. 89 02 15a # c.21.5

Rowland Parker, a retired schoolmaster, started writing after he moved to an attractive 15th-century cottage at Foxton and began digging into its background. His interest turned into an obsession and led to his first book, "The Cottage on the Green" in 1974. A year later he produced 'The Common

Stream' about the village itself which became a best seller in Britain and America. Three more books followed making him one of Cambridgeshire's best-known and respected authors 89 03 15b

Ely tourism report – 89 03 15c

1989 03 16
Police marksmen stormed a Linton bank where gunmen were believed to be holed up after a raid went wrong. More than 20 officers armed with Remington pump-action shotguns moved in after a three-hour siege at Barclay's Bank in the High Street. They used a hammer as a battering ram to break down the bank door before a police dog was sent in followed by four armed officers. A hostage was escorted out 89 03 16a-b

Cambridge Brickworks on Newmarket Road – memories of Hilda Swann – 89 03 16c # c.23

1989 03 17
Plans to convert a 150-year-old redundant church in Barley into a luxury four-bedroomed house have provoked controversy. Parish councillors and villagers with relatives buried in the churchyard are bitterly opposed. Planners fear it would overlook neighbouring properties and that continued use of the churchyard would inconvenience any future owners of the home. 89 03 17

The Royal Oak pub at Swaffham Prior, under threat of closure after 200 years, has won a last-minute reprieve from the brewery. Two hundred of the locals submitted a petition urging it be kept open. Known as "Blind Bobs" after landlord, Bob Scutton, it is one of the area's most famous watering holes. But Bob is retiring and Greene King wanted to transfer the licence to the Black Horse. However this has been sold to a private buyer. Now it will remain for another six months at least. 89 03 17a. closure delayed – 89 03 20

Barley church conversion plans rejected – 89 03 17
Parkside fire station redevelopment plans may have to be scrapped – 89 03 17b

1989 03 20
Lode primary school campaign for reopening – 89 03 20a

Ditton Fields sculptures in playground – 89 03 20b

1989 03 21
Libraries of the Future conference envisages co-operation between county and university libraries – 89 03 21a # c.77.4

The Government has approved the County structure plan saying yes to plans for a village of 1,500 homes on the A10 north of Cambridge but no to a new village west or east of the city on the A45. A public inquiry will be held to decide which side it should be built. Around 800 homes have been shifted into Fenland and draft plans to build a further 63,000 homes have been rubber-stamped. However villagers at Stretham and Wilburton will continue to fight proposals for 'Westmere' 89 03 21, 22a

1989 03 22
Traffic chaos in Cambridgeshire is growing so severe that in five year's time drivers may have to set off at 7 am to be in work by nine. A massive upsurge in traffic has already extended the rush hour. Congestion is choking Cambridge city centre and deepening the parking nightmare, a report says. Action must be taken with new roads around the outskirts and controversial park-and-ride schemes or it will grind to a halt over the next ten years. 89 03 22 # c.49.62

1989 03 23

One of the most remarkable housing developments ever seen is under way at Croxton. At present there is no life in either the buildings or its community. Now an extraordinary picturesque village street is being extended to form an enclosed community of 20 homes. The plans have been developed by Christopher Curry, founder of Acorn Computers, who lives in Croxton Park, a classical mansion. Timber-framed houses will be completely renovated with a new parish hall and village green. 89 03 23

1989 03 25
A major developer is slicing £10,000 off the cost of new homes in Milton in a bid to ease the stagnant market. Bovis has brought the price of its smallest three-bedroom detached home at The Sonnets down to £104.500 and similar reductions are reflected throughout the range. The four-bedroomed detached 'Newnham' is now £136.950, 'The Tewkesbury' has been slashed from £122,950 to £113,950 and the three-bed detached Aura-style home comes down to £117,950. Town houses are selling for £113,950 instead of £122,950. It is hoped buyers in a chain will now reduce the prices of their properties to get sales moving again. 89 03 25.

1989 03 29
Environmentalists claim Anglian Water has allowed the discharge of toxic waste into the Cam at Hauxton. Friends of the Earth say Schering Agrochemicals pumped 'groundwater polluted by an old toxic waste tip buried under the factory into the river. But the firm says a three metre layer of blue clay round the factory prevents contamination of the surrounding land and various processes to make the water safe were followed. 89 03 29

1989 03 30
First-time buyers priced out of housing market – 89 03 30

Papworth Hospital decade of transplants celebrated – 89 03 30a

1989 03 31
Air Ambulances need funding – 89 03 31

April 1989 CEN

1989 04 01
An old village fire engine which used to protect the villagers of Earith in the middle of the 18th century has been stored in a shed at the Norris Museum, St Ives, since 1936 because it will not fit inside. Now a conservation expert is to examine the Newsham pump to see if it is worth renovating. Curator Bob Burn-Murdoch says it appears to be in good condition, though some of the wood is rotten. A team of villagers would have dragged the pump to the fire then six or eight men would have operated the handles. 89 04 01

The clock at West Wickham church has been removed for an overhaul. It has an unusual lozenge-shaped clock face and is at least 200 years old. It was installed in September 1954 after being brought from St Peter's church, Duxford, where it had been since 1791. Now the clock, originally made by John Warner of Fleet Street, will be overhauled by Peter Watt of Balsham and provided with electrical winding. 89 04 04

1989 04 04
Crèches for children of working mothers – feature – 89 04 04a

1989 04 05
Sir Harry Secombe took time off from filming ITV's popular religious programme 'Highway' at Ely to open a cathedral shop in the High Street. The new venture by the Dean and Chapter is based in the medieval building originally used as the cathedral choir school and sells a range of local products.

Two other shop units have been taken by clothing retailers. Above is a new home for the city's museum, previously housed in cramped accommodation at the rear 89 04 05

1989 04 06
Eagle Inn yard may be closed to public – 89 04 06

1989 04 07
University Veterinary School wins reprieve – 89 04 07 # c.36.9

South Cambs being plundered by developers claims Robin Page – 89 04 07a

A dry ski-slope could open in Lime Kiln Road by Christmas if plans are approved. It would offer nursery, intermediary and advanced slopes, an Austrian-style ski-lodge, a toboggan run, conservation area and parking for 200 cars. A team of experienced staff and ski patrols would be on hand at all times and membership fees would range from £65 to £185 a year. The scheme would be marvellous for Cambridge and there is a lot of enthusiasm, the promoters claim. 89 04 07b

Bishop Peter Walker to retire – feature – 89 04 07c

1989 04 11
Cambridge could be a seaside town by 2050, a report by an environmental group claims. Global warming would cause the sea to rise by at least five metres over the next 60 years and Parliament might have to move to Birmingham because vast areas of central London will disappear beneath water. Cambridge Scientists are also working on a study which shows most of the county under water with Ely on an island once again. Currently a fifth of the Anglian Water Authority's area is below the high tide level 89 04 11 # c.12

Plans for the new village of Waterfenton, between Cambridge and Ely, include a new railway station. There would eventually be 3,000 homes, many with lawns running to the edge of a chain of lakes, with a mix of shops, offices and supermarket together with a 100-bedroomed hotel and a golf course. The site is less than five metres above sea level but would be protected by an earth mound around Chittering with a 'tump' – a mound topped with an obelisk or old windmill. 89 04 11a

1989 04 12
Acorn, the computer company which helped found the Cambridge Phenomenon, has bounded back into profitability after a worrying loss in 1987. They started getting into difficulties with the collapse of the home computer market in late 1984 and, apart from a recovery in 1986, have shown a loss ever since. But now the company, which employs around 230 people, is on course for expansion in its new role as a high-volume low-cost manufacturer of computers and work stations. 89 04 12 # c.27.5

Sea-rise could bring flooding and make Ely an island – 89 04 12a

Park-and-ride scheme could be scrapped by Conservatives – 89 04 12b

1989 04 14
Lady Alice Bragg, Cambridge's first woman mayor from 1945-46, read history at Newnham College between 1918 and 1921. In the year she finished she married Sir Laurence Bragg who was already a renowned scientist, having won the Nobel Prize for physics six years previously, aged 25. She served as an independent councillor, magistrate and chairman of the National Marriage Guidance Council in recognition of which she was made a CBE 89 04 14

1989 04 15
Co-op milk-bottling plant is to close after 40 years – 89 04 15

1989 04 17

Thousands of people lined roads to watch a St Neots landmark disappear in a pile of rubble. Onlookers had cameras trained on the five doomed chimneys of Little Barford Power Station. Sirens sounded before two deafening explosions sent the twin cooling towers crumbling to the ground. Then the two brick chimneys met the same fate. The final concrete chimney fell majestically like a giant redwood tree before landing with a thunderous crash. The crowds cheered their approval. 89 04 17

Nightmare vision of city – overrun with cycle parking spaces – 84 04 17a

1989 04 18
An A-10 tankbuster jet taking part in close ground attack manoeuvres ploughed into a field near Ramsey Forty Foot and exploded in a ball of flame. It came down close to several farms, tearing across a road and narrowly missing two vans as it disintegrated. US troops scoured the wreckage for potentially dangerous training ammunition. It is the third accident locally in four months: one crashed into a field at Earith and another crashed off the end of the Alconbury runway 89 04 18 # c.26.1

1989 04 18
The Zebra a good, solid, 1930s pub in Newmarket Road has been given a facelift. But rather than being 'tarted up' the 30s atmosphere has been retained and even improved with a stylish dark red and cream colour scheme. Originally it consisted of three small rooms but now it boasts one large bar and customers can move freely through the different areas. The landlords aim to turn it back into a traditional town pub where people can have a drink and meet their friends. 89 04 18a

1989 04 19
Why business is in charge at Ely Cathedral – 89 04 19

1989 04 21
Yattendon Investment Trust, owners of the CEN & CWN buy Hertfordshire newspaper group – 89 04 21 # c.04

Radio Cambridgeshire broadcaster Richard Spendlove has made one of the biggest decisions of his life – to quit his full-time job with British Rail and concentrate on broadcasting. The station announcer at Cambridge hopes to build on his popularity with listeners to his weekly 'Reflections' programme and has recently added 'Evergreen', on Saturday evenings. He got his first broadcasting opportunity on the Graham Day Saturday Show when the station went on the air seven years ago. As holder of an Equity card he has been an extra in some television programmes and provided voice-overs for commercials 89 04 21a

1989 04 24
British Rail is planning a second Cambridge railway station, provisionally known as Cambridge Parkway, close to Milton and the A45 northern bypass. It is unlikely to be ready in time for the start of electrification services to King's Lynn in October 1991, but could follow shortly afterwards. However the site needs much better access and provision of parking space. It would serve the high-tech Science Park and provide a way for commuters to join trains without having to struggle through the city. 89 04 24 # c.26.2

John Goldsmith, County Museums Officer, thinks the role played by museums in Cambridge is sadly under-estimated. 89 04 24a

1989 04 27
Cambridge Newspapers order new web-offset full-colour press to be located at a new printing complex at Milton – 89 04 27 # c.04

1989 04 29
Litlington has been rocked by shock news that its abattoir will close with the loss of 70 jobs. It is the biggest slaughterhouse in the area and many workers live locally, some have not had any other job since leaving school. Owner Cliff Playle, whose grandfather had a butcher's shop in Bassingbourn, blames fierce competition from imported European meat and now they face big costs to bring it up to EEC standards. The company is also a wholesaler and prepares meat for big High Street names such as Tesco and Sainsbury 89 04 29

Woollard proposes new village, Bottisham – 89 04 29a

May 1989 CEN

1989 05 01
Cambridge is the fourth most popular tourist destination in the country, just beaten by Oxford. The four million visitors generate a massive income but the burden is a heavy load for the city to carry. They cause noise nuisance, pedestrian congestion, wear and tear on structures, buildings, turf and amenities such as public toilets. They are being encouraged to extend their stay but if they do this will compound the housing crisis. Already the majority of workers in the tourism industry – shop assistants and waitresses – are low paid and have difficulty finding accommodation in expensive Cambridge. 89 05 01 # c.46.45

Tourists contributed £165 million to Cambridge's economy last year, supporting between 8 and 10,000 people in the service industry. Each spends about £47. But just £157,000 was spent on welcoming them – less than 5p a head. The council cash went on running the tourism office in Wheeler Street which has 12 full-time staff and another dozen workers in the summer. The colleges are a major attraction but university life would be seriously disrupted if they were allowed to roam uncontrolled. Most colleges close during exams but are anxious not to close their gates unnecessarily. 89 05 01a, 02 # c.46.45

1989 05 03
Wartime 'Dig for Victory' recalled – 89 05 03

Land Army girls – 89 05 03a

1989 05 04
Cambridge Preservation Society has won the prestigious Europa Nostra Diploma of Merit for its restoration of Hinxton watermill and adjoining cottage. It is one of three in the village recorded in the Domesday Book though the oldest part of the present building dates from the 1600s. The project to save the mill, last used in 1955, began in 1983. Now it is in working condition and flour will be ground for visitors. The society won the award previously for its restoration of Bourn windmill 89 05 04

A high-tech computer system set to revolutionise Cambridgeshire's 15 main libraries has gone on line. Chief librarian Brendan Dwyer checked out the first book on the 'Cambook' system at Arbury Court. It will provide instant information about books on loan and a faster reservation system. "Pioneering the latest technology will help us to continue to offer a faster efficient service throughout the 1990s", he said 89 05 04a # c.77.4

1989 05 05
Anglia Young Books launched at Cambridgeshire Collection – 89 05 05

A lifetime's work educating pupils at Morley Memorial primary school was rewarded when the former headmistress laid a foundation stone for a new £500,000 building project. Miss Dorothy Hurst, who retired as head two years ago after 35 years teaching at the school, laid the stone in the walls of a new school hall for the 420 pupils in Blinco Grove. The project also includes a community room, two new classrooms and major improvements to the school. Work should be completed in time for its 90th anniversary in January next year 89 05 05a

Kneesworth House psychiatric hospital at Bassingbourn plans to build an extension to increase the number of patients from 89 to 148. Staff numbers will rise from 115 to 178. AMI Health Care says the existing premises, the first private facility of its kind in Britain, could not cope with demand. Bassingbourn residents bitterly opposed plans for the hospital to open in their village nearly four years ago but many have accepted it, with some taking an active supporting role. It provides a nationwide service for severe psychiatric patients 89 05 05b

1989 05 08
The opening of new research laboratories at Addenbrooke's Hospital will boost Cambridge's standing as a leading centre of molecular biology. It is a joint venture between the University Clinical School and one of America's lading drug giants, SmithKline Beckman and will include the MRC Molecular Genetics Unit. The laboratories will probe the origins of a wide range of disorders including heart disease, Aids and auto-immune problems affecting the body's ability to combat infections. 89 05 08 & 10

1989 05 11
Labgear Cablevision, the television communications equipment company. It makes good profits but its business in the area of satellite dishes, aerials and cable TV distribution systems does not fit into CEI's new strategic plans. It employs 125 people on the Cambridgeshire Business Park at Ely with 100 more at its main base at Abbey Walk, a site being considered for redevelopment for housing. It is one of three that Cambridge Electronic Industries plan to sell, leaving Cathodeon Crystals at Nuffield Road, Newmarket Microsystems, PED & Varelco at Newmarket in the local area. Cambridge Interconnection Technology, which used to be on the Cambridge Science Park has moved to Scotland 89 05 11

Cambridge Heritage Forum is seeking to establish a heritage centre that is not simply a tourist office but a place from which to promote local historical sites, based at St Andrew the Great – 89 05 11a # c.46.45

Plans to close the Eagle Yard have been shelved – 89 05 11b

Castle Soap company – reflections – 89 05 11c

The sale of 1,000 acres of farming land in Stretham and Waterbeach mark the break-up of part of the estate built up by the outstanding agriculturalist, Sir Frederick Hiam. One of the country's biggest growers of vegetables, he was appointed Director of Vegetable Supplies during the First World War and was knighted in 1924. The Stretham land which he bought in 1926 was part of an estate of about 13,000 acres and is now being sold by the family firm following the death of his only child. 89 05 11c

1989 05 12
The Union Society debating chamber may start being used as a church on Sundays since services at the 300-seat Round Church next door have become so crowded. Some worshippers have to sit on the floor and many who cannot see round the Norman pillars have to follow the service on television. Under the plan services would be held in the chamber and relayed by TV back to the church. It would be the first time the 130-year-old Union building would be used as a church on a regular basis. 89 05 12 # c.83

Evacuees experiences recorded by Susan Isaacs – feature – 89 05 12a

1989 05 13
Pampisford Chequers Inn renovated – 89 05 13

1989 05 15
Milton Children's Hospice open days before launch by Princess Diana – 89 05 15

1989 05 17
A light railway may be built, with private cash, linking the centre of Cambridge with the main line station on the outskirts. It could form a part of an extensive park-and-ride network based on a light railway system around the northern and eastern industrial sections of the city. County Councillors have also asked experts to consider building a gigantic car park under the Butts Green end of Midsummer Common. A new road system to relieve the heavily congested areas of Milton Road and Elizabeth Way are also being examined to sort out the growing traffic chaos quickly 89 05 17 # c.26.2

Tom Ryan has just been summoned to 10 Downing Street from his workshop in the old school building at Wilburton. An outstanding craftsman, he has been asked to quote a price for gilding a set of valuable Hepplewhite chairs in the Blue Room. Not long ago Tom completed another commission in the Prime Minister's home. Occasionally older villagers pop into Tom's workshop to remember having lessons in the former schoolroom where he practices his craft which includes lacquer and japanning work. 89 05 17a

1989 05 18
Cambridge Theatre Productions will now open all its performances in its home town and hope to get all Cambridge entertainments bookable at a central ticket office. The new visiting director, Robin Midgley, is keen to make it truly local instead of being just a touring company which happens to have offices in the city. He would also like to see a closer relationship with the Arts Theatre and do a children's show making use of young people from Cambridge. 89 05 18 # c.76

1989 05 19
The A10 will be dualled from Cambridge to Ely as part of an unprecedented Government roads programme. The A1 is to be made a continuous three-lane motorway from London to Huntingdon, the M11 is to have three continuous lanes from London to Cambridge and the A604 is to be dualled with three lanes on each side from Cambridge to Huntingdon. The A11 will be made a dual carriageway from Newmarket and to Norwich and the Northern bypass will have three lanes from Girton interchange to Milton Road. It will all save lives and make industry more competitive. 89 05 19

High interest rates squeezing first-time buyers out of market – 89 05 19a

Winston House in Brooklands Avenue, established in 1959, is a psychiatric rehabilitation centre owned by the SOS charity. There are 20 residents staying on average a year with care and advice on hand all day. All are encouraged to lead a full life and to do something constructive outside the house. But privacy is a problem in the 13-bedroomed house and an appeal has been launched to provide more single rooms and larger kitchens. 89 05 19b # c.21.5

1989 05 23
Andaman Resources of Lt Thetford prospect for gold – 89 05 23

1989 05 25
Premier Brands – Chivers – which makes Hartley's jam is taken over – 89 05 25

Chivers advertise for fruit pickets – 89 05 25a

Cambridge suffers shortage of skilled staff – 89 05 25a

Next Technology have launched Voyager, a super-computer which stores some 270 compact discs carrying micro-pictures of pages of books. It works like a jukebox and can 'play' more than one disc at a time. It is similar to the Domesday Project which allowed schoolchildren to retrieve information from a massive disk. If whole libraries were put on it then researchers could look-up and cross-reference items in seconds. Machines cost from £13-£21,000 and worldwide interest has been shown. 89 05 25b # c.27.5

Beatrice Stevens was born in the village of Stretham in 1907 and has chronicled events in the small community in her charming book 'Stretham: a Feast of Memories". She was the daughter of a local farmer and insurance agent, who attended, then taught in the village school before much later becoming its manager and chairman of governors. She writes about the four butchers, the doctor who came from Haddenham six days a week, the opposition to a village nurse and the highlight of the year – the village feast which is still celebrated today. This Feast Sunday she sat beside the village cross signing copies of her new book. 89 05 25c

1989 05 26
In 1873 William and John Chivers persuaded their father to turn the fruit from the family farm into jam, instead of sending it to market. They produced their first strawberry jam with the help of two cooks from Pembroke College. It proved such a success that they built a factory with the latest equipment, expanding to made custard powder, lemon curd and Christmas puddings and was the first to undertake large-scale canning of fruit. When, following mergers, the company was floated on the Stock Exchange, workers were offered shares, now their price has soared following news of a new take-over. 89 05 26

Houghton Meadows visited by Valerie Singleton – 89 05 26a

Tyre Service Company founded in 1929 – history – 89 05 26b, c, d

1989 05 31
Duxford villagers fear a massive development of shops and hotels by Tesco and Grosvenor Developments will ruin the area. A 146-acre site would include a shops complex, pavilion, two hotels and parking for 5,000 cars surrounded by landscaping open to the public. It will be dominated by a lagoon with fountains and a floating restaurant and will have a look similar to India's Taj Mahal. The parish council chairman is 'absolutely appalled', it is a small compact village and the plans would spoil it. But developers say large out-of-town shopping facilities are the answer to Cambridge's worsening traffic problems. 89 05 31

Ely, for many years the backwater of Cambridgeshire, is shaking off its retiring image. Electrification of its main line to London will soon start and the Government has announced plans for the dualling of the A10 to Cambridge. Ely has space for expansion along Angel Drove where a Business Park houses a number of scientific firms. Cambridge Electronic Industries have reserved one of the large sites for a new development. 89 05 31a

June 1989 CEN

1989 06 06
Seventeen former sailors from the wartime destroyer 'Walpole', which was adopted by the City of Ely in 1942, attended a service to see the ensign of their old ship 'laid up' at the Cathedral. After a reunion dance the ex-sailors attended a wreath-laying ceremony at the war memorial before a civic reception prior to the highlight of the gathering. Afterwards they marched through the city for the salute which was taken on the Market Place by the ship's former Navigating Officer, Lieut. Charles Tooley. The weekend culminated with tea at the High Flyer pub. 89 06 06

1989 06 07
Angry residents are banding together to block plans to sell the former Roger Ascham School and part of the nearby Chesterton playing fields for a potential housing development. Founded as a school for children with physical disabilities, it closed in 1987 and is now used as a teachers' resource centre. Residents are worried about the increase in traffic and noise which would result. The amenity value and its potential for the community have been ignored, they claim 89 06 07

Cambridge's homelessness problem is getting worse, experts say. Officials from the city environmental health department were so worried they went out on the street at night to look for people sleeping rough. But they only found two middle-aged tramps and feel they may have looked in the wrong places. There are more than 5,000 people on the housing register and last year the council housed 241 homeless people. Up to 50 families are being forced to live in hostel accommodation because they cannot find anywhere to rent or afford to buy a place of their own. 89 06 07a # c.32.9

Mildenhall speedway could close because of falling attendances. The season started promisingly after they'd recruited experienced riders like Dane Preben Eriksen but numbers slumped with the results. Last week they crashed to their third successive defeat in front of a crowd of 600 – but need 900 spectators to cover costs. Now one of the Fen Tiger's leading riders, Malcolm Holloway, has quit the struggling National League outfit 89 06 07b

GST set up in Cambridge in 1979 as part of Cambridge Phenomenon – 89 06 07cc

1989 06 08
Denny Abbey threatened by plans for new town – 89 06 08

1989 06 09
Cambridgeshire's new traffic chief has vowed to end Cambridge's traffic and parking chaos within four years. A 'grand traffic management plan' will be drafted by officials and meetings arranged with business bosses. He wants a better road system to serve the industrial quarters, a new light railway system linked to a park-and-ride scheme and a possible car park under Midsummer Common. 89 06 09

Jesus Lock refurbishment plans – 89 06 09a

1989 06 10
The £15 million park-and-ride scheme planned for Cambridge is now officially buried. County Conservatives had promised during the election campaign that the plan would be dropped if they took control and have told officials to stop work on the joint scheme with the city council. And a plan for an interchange where Madingley Road meets the M11 has been delayed. Work was due to start in 1990 but now the M11 is to be widened into a three lane carriageway between Cambridge and Stansted Airport. The council is now looking for alternative road schemes to spend the money on. 89 06 10

Horseheath residents have buried a time capsule at the site of their new village sign. Rebecca Harrison, 13, lowered the stainless steel box into the village green before it vanished from sight for the next hundred years. It contains a set of modern coins, a copy of the 'News', a list of children and accounts by the youngsters of a typical day in their lives. Villagers have left written instructions for it to be unearthed in 2089 89 06 10

1989 06 12
The Rambling Rose Tea Gardens at Brook Lane, Coton – formerly the Lynden Brook Tea Rooms – was for many years a popular meeting place for members of Cambridge society and a well-known landmark. Once owned by the family of Mr Charles Orr Stanley, founder of the Pye Group, the tea rooms fell into disrepair some years ago and the foundations became unsafe. It has now been demolished to make way for a five bedroomed house 89 06 12

1989 06 14
Cinderellas Rockerfellas –formerly Ronelles - Cambridge's top night spot, reopens with a new look. Top disc jockey Bruno Brookes will make an appearance along with Hot Flesh and their fire dance spectacular, Marc Oberon the illusionist and robots Adam and Eve. The evening begins with a jazz band playing outside the club in the Heidelberg Gardens in Lion Yard. The club now sports a more upmarket image and incorporates Waldo T. Pepper's restaurant 89 06 14 # c.69

1989 -6 15
Sawston twins with Selsingen, Germany – 89 06 15

Cambridge Cable wins licence for 30 television channels – 89 06 15a

Haverhill's bad image stifles business – 89 06 15b

1989 06 16
Ede and Ravenscroft is a firm where you can still find tailors leaning over tables, hand-cutting and hand-stitching gowns and suits. They are the only bespoke tailors who make garments on the premises in Cambridge. There is even a sports coat they made in the 1950s which a client brought back to be repaired. This is the reason top professionals, the wealthy and the peerage are willing to pay upwards of £500 for one suit. Quite simply, they last and you still get your own name tag carefully stitched into a pocket. There has been a tailors shop on the site for more than 200 years. Part of the original opaque glass door of James Neal's – the shop they took over 10 years ago – is still displayed 89 06 16 & a # c.27.2

1989 06 17
Taxis converted to take wheelchairs to start – 89 06 17

1989 06 20
The heat wave has boosted demand for water to unprecedented levels, reducing supplies at the tap to a trickle in the Cambridge area. They have never had to restrict water in their 136-year history and have enough to cope with a 90-day drought, but with no end to the hot spell in sight, Cambridge Water is urging people to use water sparingly especially. Householders in Saffron Walden and Royston face a hosepipe ban. 89 06 20

A meteoric rise has seen Huntingdon MP John Major surge through the Government ranks to his present position in the Treasury as Chancellor Nigel Lawson's right-hand man. Now celebrating his 10th anniversary as an MP and in a climate where Mrs Thatcher is reflecting on her party's Euro defeat, Mr Major has been tipped to eventually sweep all the way to Number 10. But he is no public school Conservative, born to greatness. Mr Major has had to endure poverty, unemployment and other people's snobbery in a rags-to-riches rise to the top 89 06 20a

John Major 'golden boy' of Conservatives – 89 06 20b

1989 06 21
Chilford Hall conference centre and vinery – 89 06 21

1989 06 22
Warren Towers, a late-Victorian mansion overlooking Newmarket Heath, has been sold for more than £1 million to a Middle-Eastern buyer who wants to retain it in residential use. The Tudor-style building with its long sweeping drive has been ravaged by hippies and is in need of restoration. It was once home to Maud, Countess Fitzwilliam who occupied the house in some style and held parties for local children. But when she left it fell into disrepair. It has a grand staircase lit by enormous ceiling lights, eight main and six secondary bedrooms, a former squash court, Turkish baths, ruined orangery and nine bathrooms 89 06 22

New roads, a new school and an entire sewage system are among £5 million work of improvements being offered to the village of Kennett by a property company which wants to build 370 homes. If granted the scheme would include 'important social and environmental benefits' including a sewerage system for all new and existing homes, a four-class school building, bypass, street lighting and village green. There would be a mixture of large and small homes, many for rent and for the elderly. The existing school would become a community centre, library and meeting room 89 06 22a

1989 06 23
A new bridge over Hobson's Conduit is part of a scheme to beat traffic jams at the junction of Lensfield and Trumpington Roads. Vehicles would turn along a short stretch of Brookside then cross the stream towards Trumpington. The rest of the junction would be controlled by a complex system of traffic lights based on the successful new computer system on Huntingdon Road. Some of the cost would be met by whichever company develops the ground-level car park in Saxon Street, county engineers say. But it was rejected as 'devastating and environmentally disastrous' by city officials. 89 06 23 & b

In 1903 flower grower William Unwin started selling sweet pea seeds by mail order from an outhouse on his Histon farm. Now it has bought the packet seeds side of Fisons and is Britain's biggest seed supplier and each year thousands of gardeners visit their trial beds. Until his death in 1986 Charles Unwin, ('Mr Charles') was probably the world's leading authority on sweet peas. He had been breeding flowers since he was 12 and in 1979was elected emeritus president of the National Sweet Pea Society, only the second person to hold the post. 89 06 23a

1989 06 24
Radical plans for Cambridge's Station Road area could help the chronic housing crisis. Nearly 400 houses, 35 bedsits and 52 flats could be constructed together with 897 new car parking spaces and leisure facilities. The measures would alleviate chronic traffic problems caused by commercial development and some existing businesses such as Spillers, Charringtons and Ridgeons might be asked to move out to more suitable sites. They are generally unattractive, out of scale and out of character with the area, councillors say 89 06 24 # c.49.4

1989 06 26
Cambridge Snooker Club is to close after five years because of redevelopment. Memberships will be transferred to Frames in Coldham's Lane, a popular social & sports mecca. Each has 800 members and 20 tables 89 06 26 # c.38 : snooker

1989 06 27
Bodgers the outfitters founded its reputation on old-fashioned courtesy and service, specialising in the sale of traditional clothes for traditional gentlemen. For 138 years generations of both town and gown have visited its respectable Sidney Street premises. But the shop, founded n 1851 is to close because of soaring interest rates, four years after it was bought by rival company Shepherd and Woodward of Oxford. The site is one of the only central freeholds not in college hands and is a prime site for speculators. 89 06 27 # c.27.2

1989 06 28
Two internationally-known developers plan a giant new sports complex sprawling over 40 acres between King's Hedges and the northern bypass. It would have a wide range of indoor and outdoor facilities including an indoor pool and an athletics track for public use. It is on land soon to be removed from the green belt, close to the site of the new Regional College. The scheme comes after planners snubbed a £20 million scheme by Cambridge University to build a sports complex in the west of the city. 89 06 28 # c.38 : athletics

1989 06 29
Cambridge and Huntingdon could do particularly well out of the booming economy. But labour, training and housing shortages must all be solved. Two public inquiries will be held into the new A10 and A45 settlements, but even when the long process is completed it will be several years before the thousands of new homes come on to the market. However the closure of the Co-op milk bottling plant and Girton laundry mean people with no qualifications are being made unemployed. They may have to move leaving a county of yuppies with few to service their needs 89 06 29

1989 06 30
Former London Road Hospital in Saffron Walden catches fire – 89 06 30a
Townsends, p5

July 1986 CEN

1989 07 01
Foxton Village Stores and Great Paxton Post Office reach semi-finals of Independent Grocer of the Year Award – 89 07 01

1989 07 06
Townsend's take over Ison's cycles which was started by W.J. Ison in 1893 and made the New Chesterton cycle. Albert Townsend started in 1890s making Cambridge Light Blue Cycles in Norfolk Street, moving to Burleigh Street in early 1960s 89 06 30 Townsend's history – profile – 89 07 06 # c.26.485

Residents of Rathmore Terrace celebrated the 100th anniversary of their homes with a street party. The biggest changes have been the way people have altered the homes with modern kitchens and bathrooms. It has always been a very friendly area said the 86-year-old widow of Alderman Hickson who was twice Mayor of Cambridge. Newest resident Peter Smith, a computer programmer agrees: everybody came to say hello when his family moved in 89 07 06a

1989 07 07
A handicapped 10-year-old girl was the first visitor welcomed to the Cambridge Children's Hospice – 89 07 07

A beerhouse in Horseheath, the only one of its kind in the area, is to be demolished. The red brick bungalow on Horseheath Green was built in the 1860s for navvies working on the Haverhill to London railway line. Known as 'The Shant', it is now dilapidated and subsiding. The Parish Council say it is a charming small-scale Victorian building worth preserving. However a conservation officer describes it as pleasant and unobtrusive but of only limited interest. 89 07 07a

Cambridge University Committee for Aerial Photography started when Prof John St Joseph began taking photographs in 1945 after his wartime experience showed him the value of aerial observation. In the first ten days he took 788 photographs. Until 1958 he used an RAF training aircraft but in 1962 the Department purchased its own plane. They have surveyed the whole of Cambridgeshire in colour. 89 07 07b # c.65.5 # c.36.9

1989 07 08
Masked council workers have been sent to fumigate a Cambridge house and clear out the debris left by squatters. Graffiti had been daubed on the walls, rotting food and mouldy bread litters the floors and rubbish was strewn everywhere. There was a risk of rats and fleas taking over the empty council house in Mill Road. Neighbours are relieved the squatters have moved out: they had been playing music and drums in the garden all night, and throwing bottles out of the window. 89 07 08

1989 07 10
Angry residents of Riverside in Cambridge claim the council is not doing enough to save them from the nightmare of flooding. One says: "We should be provided with adequate sand bags and plastic sheeting. We live at the bottom of a slope and because the drains are inadequate there is instant flooding every time there is heavy rain. We were wading though it and the water was knee-deep in places. The Fire Brigade received over 20 calls following the weekend's heavy rain including Bottisham Village College and St Andrew's Community School 89 07 10

Cambridge Library is to close for two weeks as part of a computerisation programme to streamline efficiency. It will replace the system installed in 1976. But the Cambridgeshire Collection will be open as normal 89 07 10a # c.77.4

Wrights bakery of Haddenham, which in its heyday employed more than 50 people, has closed down because it cannot get skilled staff. The firm supplied bread and cakes to shops and supermarkets for 40 years. The 4,000 sq ft factory, virtually rebuilt after a disastrous fire in 1984, is being put on the market. They had hoped to sell the one-acre site for redevelopment and move to a smaller bakery at Witchford. But planners rejected the proposal 89 07 10b

1989 07 12
Pymore – or Pymoor as locals prefer – is a community of some 400 souls deep in the fens. The village has only recently become attractive to commuters, even now there are only a few of them and they use their cars to get to work because there's no station. There used to be a railway siding and a signal box on the Ely to March line, but it closed a decade ago. The village school shut eight years ago, though young families have moved in, attracted by cheaper prices. There is a social club where villagers can meet, but no pub – though local builder Alan Crook would love to build one if there were demand. In the meantime he is putting up a £135,000 four-bedroom chalet-style home in the centre of the village. 89 07 12

1989 07 13
The Dorothy was the social centre of Cambridge for many years, a place where town met gown and people enjoyed the regular afternoon dances. During the 50s its Blue Room became a major attraction for the young with rows of motor bikes and scooters lined up outside. Its oyster and fish restaurant opened in 1965 with an air-conditioning unit wafting away fishy odours and meals were cooked at the tables, under customer's noses Now the property's owner, Dillons Bookshop has leased part of the Sidney Street building to Festival Catering and the building has been reborn with a teashop, pub, restaurant and function room. 89 07 13 # c.27.47

1989 07 14
Arbury School, Carlton Way, head teacher Barry Jones retires – 89 07 14

Planners support 'Westmere' scheme – 89 07 14a

Careers Research and Advisory Centre is 25 years old – 89 07 14b

1989 07 18
Cambridge Festival concerts switched to St John's College due fears NALGO strike – 89 07 18

Frank Bell, wbo founded the prestigious Bell School of Languages started his interest in teaching languages when he was a prisoner of war during WWII. After the war he worked at the University Board of Extra Mural Studies before founding his own language school in 1955. Later he set up the Bell Educational Trust with schools in Norwich, Bath and London. He was awarded an OBE in 1975 89 07 18a # c.36.52

Elizabeth Way underpass could become arts and crafts community centre – 89 07 18b

1989 97 20
Frank and Mary Bendall were hairdressers in Cherryhinton Road for 50 years – 89 07 20

1989 07 24
Mill Road residents protest about Confidential Bookshop sex shop – 89 07 24

1989 07 25
John Major appointed Foreign Secretary in Thatcher government – 89 07 25

1989 07 26
More than half of the County Council workers are paid below the European minimum guidelines. It is a high-cost area in which to live and people cannot afford to come to work in the caring services for such a small amount of money, says Coun Janet Jones. An 18-year-old police recruit earns £9,000 a year plus £35 a week housing allowance compared with a social worker with five years experience who gets £8,500. And the county's staff of 24,000 could be run down in a bid to save money 89 07 26

Darwin College celebrates 25th anniversary – 89 07 26a # c.44.5

1989 07 27
Battle for housing between the wars – feature – 89 07 27 # c.23

1989 07 28
Fifteen people were taken to hospital and a dozen evacuated from their homes after a major chemical alert in Cambridge. Forty firemen battled to prevent an explosion after highly toxic chemicals overheated at the Cleanaway plant. One was rushed to hospital when a safety wall collapsed crushing him against drums on the site in Cowley Road and three police offices were hurt as they helped families to escape the toxic fumes. Emergency services stopped all trains and the nearby Cambus depot was also affected. 89 07 28 # c.34.75

1989 07 31
The newly-formed Magog Trust hopes to turn a 164-acre site opposite Wandlebury into a sanctuary for nature and recreation, producing one of the country's best wildlife habitats. The shallow chalk soil has some of the few remnants of grassland unaffected by sprays and fertilisers supporting a fascinating and colourful array of flowers and butterflies. The land is owned by a local family who have accepted an offer for the site. Now the Trust is appealing for funds. 89 07 31

August 1989 CEN

1989 08 01
Diana, Princess of Wales, made a dream come true when she opened the doors of the Cambridge Children's Hospice at Milton. The caring princess, wearing a stunning red two-piece suit was welcomed by Canon Fred Kilner and matron Sue Potter who came up with the whole idea. She touched the hearts of hospice staff when she met four critically-ill children and brought tears of joy and smiles to the faces of the sick children and their parents. 89 08 01

It was in 1773 that one Matthew Clarke first served ale at the Royal Oak in Commercial End, Swaffham Bulbeck. And more than 200 years later it fell to blind landlord Bob Scrutton to close the door for the last time. Known as "Blind Bob's", it was an old-fashioned alehouse free from chips or juke boxes. The piper played a lament as Bob and his wife said goodbye to the customers who had become friends over 26 years. Everybody will miss the old place 89 08 01a

1989 08 02
Horseheath's new village sign was presented by Sir Arthur Marshall and dedicated by the Bishop of Ely in memory of his wife, Lady Rosemary Marshall. Children from Castle Camps school have written stories about 20th century life which have been buried in a time capsule underneath the sign which depicts the 1834 Derby winner, bred and trained at Horseheath Lodge.. Four windows in the 14th century church have also been rebuilt in memory of Lady Marshall, farmer Jack Webb and Thomas Sutton. 89 08 02

Milton Children's Hospice – 89 08 02a, b, c

1989 08 03

VCH vol.9 published, exhibition in Cambridgeshire Collection – 89 08 03

1989 08 04
A Girton farmer is working night shifts in a supermarket to make ends meet during the poor harvest. He stacks shelves from 8pm until 4pm, before starting in the fields at 8 am. He has been farming all his life but the income has plummeted as rents for the Farm have soared. Now after paying the bills he has barely a penny left. He blames the Government corn levies and high rentals for the downfall of farming as much as poor harvests. Farmers simply cannot survive for three years in a row on the sort of yields they've been getting. 89 08 04

1989 08 05
The Government has rejected plans for a massive office block at Mitcham's Corner. But there is still a steady trade in office space. Those in old buildings without car park parking space are difficult to shift. But bright new ones are easier to find. In Rose Crescent an 18-year lease is going for £65,000 and an eight-room office in Hobson Street is £15,000 a year. Kett House is under offer and an office above the Midland Bank has just been let while in Newmarket is a brand new Stourbridge Common Business Centre 89 08 05

The old blacksmith's forge at Swaffham Prior was last used 10 years ago. The irons still lie on the fire whilst other tools and original equipment are scattered nearby. Now it may be converted into a studio or apartment. It is for sale with a two-bedroom cottage dating to 1735 which has an inglenook fireplace. It has been rebuilt with unique touches: an old door covered in children's graffiti dated 1778 is now used as a meter cupboard. 89 08 05a, b

1989 08 09
Anne Stamford was 14 when the Great War shattered the peace of her native Cambridge. Her father helped build a hospital in Burrell's Walk; "being a master carpenter, it was the first time he'd had regular work. He was paid a wage and he had his first bike then; every man who was available had to build it", she recalls. Men were billeted – my mother had two but ended up feeding six. The ration man used to take the meat and veg round every day to the houses where the soldiers were. Food became short but when she worked for a family of brewers in Madingley Road she found there were different rules for the rich. Sugar was scarce but they had some that was supposed to go in for the beer. 89 08 09 # c.45.5

The Gardenia in Rose Crescent is a Mediterranean restaurant, run for the last 20 years by the Loizou family who have never lost their strong Cypriot identity. Mum Paraskevi prepares all Greek meat dishes such as shevtallia meatballs while Dad, Andreas, mans the tills. They were the first to introduce the kebab into Cambridge. But now they have decided to close and the restaurant is up for sale. 89 08 09a # c.27.47

1989 08 10
Plans to convert St Andrew the Great church into a shopping arcade have been rejected. 89 08 10 # c.83

1989 08 11
Papworth Everard village is set to change. Planners aim to introduce new industries and build 750 new homes which would treble the population to nearly 4,000 with a business park, new shops, new school and a lake. The Papworth Trust wanted to keep the character of the quiet village, which has become a focus for the medical world since heart transplants began at the Hospital. 89 08 11

St Andrew the Great church at the entrance to Lion Yard went into rapid decline as the congregation dwindled and was declared redundant in 1983. The diocese put in planning applications for community use then leased it to Grosvenor Square Properties, a London-based development company. Since then proposals have been met with a storm of protest. Many want church, which houses a memorial to Captain Cook, to an education and heritage centre 89 08 11a

1989 08 12
Shelford Rugby Club pavilion damaged by fire – 89 08 12

1989 08 14
Paddy Crossman, one of Cambridge's best-known solicitors for 34 years, joined Johnson Garrard and Co in 1955, then set up on his own. A former alderman and leader of the city council, he is now retiring 89 08 14

1989 08 16
Discos are being stopped at the Guildhall because too many young people are turning up for dances. The hall only has capacity for 180 but last month over 200 had to be turned away from a summer disco to help raise money for the Junction. Organisers are disappointed and worry that it might encourage more illegal parties. 89 08 16

1989 08 17
Booming high-tech Cambridge is set to become a world centre for business studies. The university is planning a new Institute of Management Studies based at the old Addenbrooke's Hospital site in Trumpington Street to rival Stanford in the USA as a major international business centre. There will be a new Professorship and three new courses, filling a gap in management education for high-fliers. First students will be admitted in 1991 89 08 17

1989 08 18
The Rock pub has changed a lot since it opened in 1923. Now its biggest transformation brings an almost nightclub type of appeal. In the public bar a pool table has been removed but there is an area for dart playing. A discmonitor (compact disc jukebox) has been installed with a new stage, enhancing its reputation for live music three nights a week. This usually rhythm and blues though Thursdays are free for local bands and other types of music. 89 08 18

1989 08 21
Willingham windmill, which has been operated for much of its life by the Cattell family, was taken out of service in 1962. Now the top has been hoisted high into the air by crane and put back on as part of an extensive restoration programme. Timbers have been replaced or repaired and the frame covered with glass reinforced plastic to provide strength and durability. A lightning conductor has also been fitted as the mill has been struck twice during its 171-year history. 89 08 21

1989 008 22
Business is booming in some local pubs. The Volunteer in Trumpington has seen a 20 per cent increase in turnover since all-day opening was introduced a year ago. They get a lot of business people in for long lunches and often folk call in on their way from work. Tourists also take advantage of the afternoon opening. The White Hart at St Ives also reports many businessmen drinking in the afternoon. The Spade and Becket, Thompson's Lane says they may follow suit as people are queuing outside the doors from five o'clock. 89 08 22

1989 08 23
Central Library to close for two weeks as part of computerisation programme; plans to rebuild the entrance posponed as would result in unsatisfactory entrance to a major public building 89 08 23

At one stage Ramsey was facing a 'stores war' with the Gateway improvement scheme & the Co-op planning to build a Rainbow superstore at the edge of the town. But the Rainbow scheme was rejected and Gateway's plans did not get off the ground. The Co-op also closed its Ramsey shop and people are fed up with the existing facilities. Now the town centre could be redeveloped in a £30 million shopping scheme with a Budgens supermarket, nine shops and a bistro 89 08 23a

The Fish and Duck pub at Pope's Corner on the junction of the Great Ouse and Cam reopened at Easter. The pub used to be the ideal place for boats to moor for an overnight stop and the new Nelson Marina will preserver the tranquillity and help develop the pub and restaurant which serves sausage and onion pies and other tempting dishes. One of the function rooms will soon accommodate up to 150 people making it an increasingly busy place 89 08 23b

1989 08 24
Jesus Lock was designed by William Chadwell Mylne who advised the Cam Conservators in 1829 that the river to Clayhithe should be deepened and the number of locks reduced from four to two. The University feared that moving the lock from its old site at the Fort St George would not prevent flooding, so the famous engineer Thomas Telford was called in for advice. There has been concern that it might be replaced but now John Taylor of Coldham's Lane has helped obtain a preservation order to ensure its survival 89 08 24 # c.46.5

1989 08 25
Fires at Clayhithe farm and Thaxted primary school – 89 08 25

1989 08 29
Derick Andrews one of first evacuations to Swaffham Bulbeck – memories – 89 08 29

1989 08 31
Margaret Thatcher visits area – 89 08 31

The 1830 Beer Act encouraged people to set up beer houses to combat the problem of gin drinking. By 1840 Oakington had eight pubs and another, the New Inn, opened when the railway came. The flourishing fruit trade brought a lot of business but the closure of the line in 1970 saw a big drop in sales and in it was suddenly closed by the brewery. This leaves just the White Horse which was first shown in records of 1765 89 08 31a

September 1989 CEN

1989 09 01
Steve Somers has a passion for country and western music. He won the 'New Faces' and was due to appear at the Palladium; but he was on holiday and could not be found. He joined the Settlers and toured the world, then played with the Peter Sayers Travelling Show at Newmarket. Nick Barraclough gave him a ten-minute slot on Radio Cambridgeshire which has developed into his two-hour programme 89 09 01

1989 09 02
Council might buy St Andrew the Great to turn into an information office and heritage centre – 89 09 02

1989 09 04
Controversial new plans to ease Cambridge traffic chaos would see starting and finishing times of all schools, main centres of employment and university lectures staggered. Vehicles would be banned from main roads during the rush hour, turning them over exclusively to bikes and buses. City planners say better traffic management is better than building huge and expensive new roads and rail systems. The plans are bound to provoke furious protests 89 09 04 # c.49.62

1989 09 05
Landbeach marina may be turned into a high-tech research park with a 100-bedroom hotel overlooking lakes. Originally old sand and gravel workings, it has been used as a base for camping, caravanning and leisure. Almost 100 caravan owners have been offered a compensation package. Access would be via a new roundabout on the A10 and existing portable buildings would all be demolished. The plans include two new islands on the former water ski lake to encourage its development as a wildlife conservation area. 89 09 05

1989 09 06
The Cottages Day Hospital for the mentally ill at Ely was opened by the Mayor, Coun Percy Powles. Two dilapidated cottages in the grounds of the Tower Hospital have been converted to form the unit with a team of nurses, therapists and psychologists who will tailor care to each person. It will provide support for elderly people living in the community who might otherwise have to be in hospital and is a fine example of the work being carried out by the NHS 89 09 06

Burwell day centre on site of Parsonage School opened – 89 09 06a

1989 09 07
Cambridge Central Library is closed while details of every book in stock are fed into an ambitious new computer programme. When complete staff will be able to pinpoint exactly who has borrowed which book and when it is due back. That was the information that was recorded on handwritten ledgers when it opened in 1855. Open access, allowing readers to select their own books by browsing the shelves was introduced in 1922. Now on an ordinary weekday 2,500 people call at the library in Lion Yard 89 09 07 # c.77.4

Madingley saw mill which has been run by Cambridge University for half a century has closed. It was involved in general forestry work such as tree surgery, cutting timber and selling logs to the colleges and general public. The equipment is auctioned in the wood yard. Head forester, Peter Oakes, responsible for 400 acres of university estates for the past five years, has set up his own business in the village and hopes to do contract work for the university 89 09 07a

Cherry Hinton primary school opens in Hayster Drive 89 09 07b

1989 09 08
Cambridge Biosynthetic Blood Products Unit opens at Addenbrooke's Hospital 89 09 08

Cambridge scientists are part of an international team involved in a 10-year project to map the human genome. The double helical structure of the DNA was discovered by Crick & Watson. Its genetic language was identified by Dr Sydney Brenner, now heading the University Molecular Genetics Unit and Dr Fred Sanger invented ways to read the message. Dr Aaron Klug is working out how the DNA is packaged. They will have to invent technology as yet unknown, create a new scientific language and build super computers. The end produce will be used by medical geneticists in Cambridge and elsewhere 89 09 08a

Ely Museum opened in 1975 but closed in 1987 so the Dean and Chapter could undertake a major restoration programme on the medieval buildings in High Street. Now it has reopened with a new gallery named after Vernon Cross whose tea rooms were a popular feature of Forehill. Another is in memory of Reg Holmes who did much to record the history of the city. Its exhibits include the bicycles on which James Moore won the world's first cycle race in Paris in 1868 and the Cambridgeshire Regiment's drums lost during the fall of Singapore. 89 09 08b

1989 09 11
Bar Hill youngsters have a new play area – 89 09 11

1989 09 13
The Scott Polar Institute plans a new museum with ice caves, live penguins and sea lions. It will become one of the major tourist attractions with an estimated million visitors a year. The University has agreed to set aside land on the High Cross development and British Petroleum has offered to pay for the futuristic architectural design work. It is hoped to open the giant museum in 1993 89 09 13

1989 09 14
Rail commuters banned from taking bikes on peak-hour trains – 89 09 14

1989 09 15
Tom Sharpe, Prof David Williams list favourite Cambridge haunts – 89 09 15

1989 09 18
Workers near Upware have spent a week dredging up an historic floodgate which may have been lying in the Cam for more than a century. Tons of wood which went into make a later 18th-century staunch came to light when the National Rivers Authority decided to clean the bottom of the river after complaints from the Viscountess Bury pleasure cruiser of obstructions to navigation. More than 10 four-metre stakes the size of tree trunks were hauled from the water as well as 20 pieces of planks. 89 09 18

1989 09 19
Harold Ridgeon was one of Cambridge's most famous self-made men. From humble beginnings, he graduated from Cambridge University and began his own business in 1927 with a couple of men and an agreement to build a pair of houses in Perne Road. His success was such that in 1936 he was able to purchase William Sindall, an old-established Cambridge builder. During the war they took on responsibility for airfields and defence work and today the company has a turnover of £60 million a year. His other business interests included Abington Farms, W.J. Atkins meat producers, the Gonville Hotel and the Cambridge Building Society. He was also chairman of Cambridge City Football Club for many years. 89 09 19 # c.23

An investigation has been called after residents at Bourn saw drums marked with a skull and crossbones being stored in a shed near their home. The land owners confirmed that they have been storing low-level radioactive waste on the site. It was licensed by the Government and is one of 20 such premises in South Cambs. Environmental Health officers say there are a number of activities to do with university, hospital and scientific industries where such material is used. Some is put out with normal refuse and some is taken to Harwell for controlled disposal 89 09 19b

Part of the front entrance to Cambridge Central library is to be turned into a shop and sold off as part of the council's policy of disposing of surplus assets. The staircase will be redesigned with electric sliding entrance doors. The county council, which owns the prime site, has given itself planning permission for the new shops against the wishes of the city council who think it will destroy a large space which serves useful community purposes. 89 09 19c # c.77.4

Footpath across Lakenheath USAF airfield may be closed – 89 09 19d

1989 09 20
Farmland Museum shortlisted for conservation award – 89 09 20

Mill Road sorting office may be used for low-cost housing – 89 09 20a

South Cambs District Council does not provide any bottle banks but Cottenham Community Association has gone it alone and is providing three outside the village college. East Cambs has schemes in four villages while Cambridge has 22 bottle banks, seven waste-paper skips and a metal-recycling bank. The County is investigating whether methane gas from the Milton landfill site could be sold to generate electricity for commercial use. 89 09 20b

1989 09 21
Cambridge Arts Theatre is to launch an appeal to replace its 650 aging and tatty seats, worn carpets and poor ventilation system. Despite artistic success it has financial problems. Even when a show is a roaring success and playing to packed houses, the theatre makes a £3,000 loss. The problem is worse when operas are performed as a full orchestra reduces seating capacity from 650 to 580. Small profits from catering services, costume-hire and renting out the building for conferences only makes a dent in the overall loss. 89 09 21 # c.76

Milton planning report from 1941 – 89 09 21a

1989 09 22
Homelessness in Cambridge is reaching crisis point; hundreds of young and poor people will be forced to spend a grim winter camping down on other people's floors and in squats and sheds. The Cyrenians, which provide some hostel accommodation for the homeless, have turned away 69 of the 100 people who appealed for help in the past month. The student homelessness at Anglia Higher Education College and Cambridge University adds to the problem. The City Council has 76 families on its homeless list, most seeking two-bedroomed accommodation. 89 09 22

King's College clock restored after 70 years – 89 09 22a

Kite area controversy – review of plans – 89 09 22b

1989 09 23
Parsonage House, Helions Bumpstead feature – 89 09 23

1989 09 25
A mass boycott by drivers has forced a climbdown over charges at Queen Anne Terrace car park. Motorists have stayed away since fees were increased, leaving two-thirds of the spaces empty during peak periods. Now, just months after making it one of the most expensive car parks in Cambridge, it could become one of the cheapest. The present 40p one-hour parking will be extended to one-and-a-half hours for 50p, allowing shoppers extra time to walk into the city centre. But the maximum charge of £10 for more than five hours will remain 89 09 25 # c.49.62

1989 09 26
Military bases on terror alert following IRA bombing, Oakington tested – 89 09 26

1989 09 27
Proposed sites for new towns west of Cambridge nominated – 89 09 27
Lode Three Horseshoes pub for sale, last in village – 89 09 27a

1989 09 28
LSE evacuated to Cambridge during war – feature – 89 09 28 # c.45.7

1989 09 29
Dorothy restaurant that reopened 12 weeks ago goes into receivership after refit debts – 89 09 29 # c.27.47

October 1989 CEN

1989 10 01
The controversial Cambridge park and ride scheme has started with a whimper. At peak commuter time there were 17 cars at the 400-space Cowley Road and even fewer at the 150-space car park on Clifton Road. Users were enthusiastic: Sophy Moxley of Willingham, a sales assistant, said "It will save me money because it only costs 50p which is cheaper than parking in the city centre though Steve Field from Stretham says it is inconvenient as you don't have access to our car during the day. Councillor Andrew Duff said the area around Castle Hill, where residents-only zones have been introduced, was 'almost pastoral' though Canterbury and Benson Street were packed with cars. 89 10 01 # c.49.62

1989 10 03

Drivers who flout Cambridge parking laws could soon find their cars clamped or towed away – with bills of up to £120 to get them back. Residents have complained about their entrances being blocked by illegally-parked cars with narrow streets so chock-a-block it was impossible for emergency vehicles to get through. The police can't recruit enough traffic wardens to enforce parking bans. Now vehicles may be towed away by garages using breakdown trucks who will keep the towing charges. This costs the council nothing and the streets are kept clear. Now lawyers are investigating the idea 89 10 03

A light railway system running in a tunnel under Midsummer Common is the latest official suggestion to help solve traffic problems in the centre of Cambridge. It would be an alternative to a line running down a widened section of Newmarket Road. The underground railway would link with a number of other lines from surrounding villages as far out as Fenstanton and terminate at a station in Malcolm Street. The County Council will invest £60,000 to see if a car park under Midsummer Common is feasible and another £150,000 in a feasibility study for a 60-mph light rail system. 89 10 03a # c.49.62

1989 10 04
West Wickham church turned to Cambridge Climbing and Caving Club when it needed the help restoring its historic clock. Steve Kirk abseiled down the tower to replace the hands on the timepiece. The clock originally belonged to St Peter's church in Duxford where it was installed in 1791. It was bought for the village in 1954 by Miss Dulce Taylor of Manor Farm. Now it will have electric wiring thanks to a bequest from her sister. 89 10 04

Cambridge University' controversial History Faculty building has major heating and water leakage problems and now money is needed for the fourth phase. In 1984 consultants reported that the difference in the costs of repairing and replacing the award-winning structure would be negligible and the University spent nearly £700,000 on renovation. But now another £500,000 is needed to put it right 89 10 04a

Jim Paice, MP, has launched a bid to reopen the Cambridge to St Ives branch railway and extend it to link with the East Coast main line at Huntingdon. He says it could reduce traffic on the heavily-congested A604. Enthusiasts packed British Rail 'specials' up and down the 14-mile line which is normally used by just one freight train a day carrying mineral workings from Fen Drayton; it is also used occasionally by Chivers jam company. 89 10 04b # c.26.2

1989 10 06
Long-serving library employee John Franklin was showered with gifts from friends and colleagues when he left after 45 years with Cambridgeshire Libraries. John Franklin, of Linton, was presented with two sets of bowling woods, a radio cassette player and a camera at a farewell party at the Central Library in Lion Yard, Cambridge. His wife was given a basket of flowers. Mr Franklin, who held the post of administrative officer, joined the Libraries full-time in 1945 after working for it part-time before that. Now he is leaving to take up a new post as a company secretary – 89 10 06 # c.77.4

1989 10 09
Cowley Road park and ride site taken over by auction – 89 10 09

1989 10 10
Lucy Cavendish's Oldham Hall opened – 89 10 10 # c.44.5

1989 10 11
Sooner or later villagers will have to come to terms with the fact that thousands of newcomers will be living on their doorstep. County Planners have decided that two new villages are needed to cope with the booming population. The locations are to be decided but one will be somewhere along the A45 and the other on the A10 north of Cambridge. Rival developers vying for the prestigious multi-million pound contracts have revealed proposals and stored up a hornet's nest of protest 89 10 11

1989 10 12
Harlton church Fryer memorial to be restored – 89 10 12

1989 10 13
David Kindersley profile – 89 10 13

As a schoolboy, Cambridge ghost hunter Tony Cornell set out to prove that science could explain ghosts and other psychic phenomena. But over half a century later he has changed into a believer. "I have come across a lot of fraud, and a lot of wishful thinking, but when you strip that away, there is still a hard core of things which cannot be explained", he says. Tony has yet to see a ghost but has experienced other things which would make most people's hair stand on end which he will document in a forthcoming book 89 10 13a # c.39

1989 10 17
Anglia Students have to sit on bare floors to listen to lectures and offices have been turned into makeshift lecture theatres because of space shortages, the Students' Union claims. Anglia Higher Education College, which is seeking to become a polytechnic, needs to increase its intake from 3,000 to 4,000 but lecturers have nowhere to teach. There is a severe shortage of accommodation with some students paying high rents or sleeping on friends' floors. 89 10 17

1989 10 19
The Atlas Stone Company was established in 1902 alongside the Portland cement works in Coldham's Lane (the present Sainsbury's site). It moved to Meldreth where during the Second World War they worked round the clock producing asbestos-reinforced concrete sheeting to repair bomb-damaged cities. Then in 1984 with concern over the use of asbestos they switched to other fibres. Today the works are the UK headquarters of Eternit TAC which has a workforce of over 400 89 10 19 # c.27

1989 10 21
Grafton Centre traders are protesting against parking charges which can cost shoppers five times as much as those in rival towns and is keeping customers away. 89 10 21

The Farmland Museum at Haddenham, one of the region's biggest collections of bygones, has celebrated its 20th anniversary but it will close unless new sponsorship is found. Four years ago it was rescued by the United Molasses Company. Curator Mike Delanoy says £5,000 is needed. "The amount involved is only peanuts, but if I had £1 for every person who told me it was peanuts I'd have had my £5,000" 89 10 21a

1989 10 23
Secret plans to downgrade Newmarket Hospital have sparked fury amongst doctors and patients. They had been expecting the hospital to be enlarged but now most of its acute work may be moved to Bury or Addenbrooke's Hospitals. The Health Authority says they had difficulties recruiting doctors and it was too small to give learners the full range of experience. The hospital would continue as a community hospital for the elderly and mentally ill together with an out-patients department. 89 10 23

1989 10 24
More than £200,000 has been paid in compensation to 16 Cambridge residents who bought their 'Unity' concrete homes from the city council and later found the buildings had major structural defects. The houses in the Queen Edith's and Coleridge areas were quickly built of pre-fabricated concrete in the 1950s to help beat the housing crisis. But major structural defects had gone undetected. Then some tenants found they were not eligible for compensation because of a legal slip-up by the city council. 89 10 24

1989 10 25

Five old people's homes may be sold to private companies to raise cash to peg back the county council's poll tax demands. People living in the homes would either be sent to other council homes, put into hospital or allowed to remain provided the Government pays for part of their upkeep. Officials claim the homes are not worth investment because of their high refurbishment and replacement costs. But with an expected glut of such homes coming on to the market prices are likely to be depressed. Other money-saving measures include scrapping cheap bus passes for pensioners and making the elderly pay for home helps. 89 10 25

Local management of schools – experiences at Parkside – 89 10 25a

Cambridge is considered by many to be the computer capital of East Anglia. Now Evesham Micros has opened a new computer store in Glisson Road offering a wide range of micro-computer hardware, software and advice. They have computers from Amstrad, Olivetti, Epson and Atari with the latest IBM system arriving soon. Epson and Star printers together with modems from Mirrorcom, Amstrad and Pace are also stocked. Hard disks are put in operating condition so everything is ready by the time it gets to customers 89 10 25b & c # c.27.5

1989 10 27
Work has begun to turn the CEN into the most advanced newspaper in East Anglia. By 1991 the News will be printed on a full-colour German press, the first in Britain, at a state-of-the-art press complex at Milton. It will include a paper store, press hall, four storey administration and engineering support block and a despatch area. A separate building will allow the company to service its own vehicles. Editorial, advertising, circulation and administration teams will remain at the head office in Newmarket Road. 89 10 27 # c.04

1989 10 30
Cambridge Regional College is to be relocated on a new, purpose-built campus at King's Hedges. It will be built in four phases starting with business studies, a library and sports hall which should be completed by 1993. It will also have a shopping mall. The old mineral railway line which runs to St Ives could be extended to transport students from the city centre. But there will be ample car parking available for teachers and students. The present city-centre sites will be sold off for redevelopment 89 10 30

November 1989 CEN

1989 11 02
A railway station proposed for the planned new town of Waterfenton, near Chittering, would be a 'tremendous plus', while a dual carriageway will link it with the main A10, developers claim. It will comprise 1,500 homes (capable of expansion to 3,000) with a mix of rented and owner-occupied properties and will reply on Cambridge for central services. This is one of three rival schemes being considered at an enquiry along with another near Denney Abbey and 'Westmere' between Stretham and Wilburton. 89 11 02

A high proportion of the 5,500 patients on the books of a small practice in Hills Road are elderly but they may be squeezed out by government plans to pay doctors by the number of patients they attract. Young, healthy bodies will be more profitable than older, unhealthy ones which are much more time-consuming, one GP says. Surgeries with older patients would also lose one-off payments covering immunisation, contraception or cervical smears. "It has got very political and it's a shame", she says 89 11 02a

1989 11 03
Townsend cycle experts since the 1890s – feature – 89 11 03 & a # c.26.485

Cambmac Instruments in management buy-out – 89 11 03e

Farmland Museum plans last charity event before closure – 89 11 03b

Royston plans for 450 houses, business park and recreation centre rejected – 89 11 03f

Newton villagers have won their battle against proposals to set up a hospital in the grounds of historic Newton Hall. Developers planned a two-storey hospital and nursing home in the building previously owned by Plant Breeding International. But it would have increased traffic by 460 per cent and the additional lavatories needed would have swamped their sewage system, opponents said. 89 11 03c

1989 11 06
A poll-tax protestor hurled a petrol bomb through the window of city council offices in Peas Hill and daubed 'No Poll Tax' in red paint on the wall and doors 89 11 06

1989 11 07
Rumbelows, the television, video and hi-fi dealers are closing their branch in Petty Cury. The move, which follows the closure of Laskys in the Grafton Centre, signals the extent of distress in High Street retailing. The run up to Christmas ought to be traders' best period of the year. But with interest rates high and many potential shoppers reeling under the effects of increased mortgage payments, business is down. And Petty Cury is amongst the most expensive pitches in Cambridge. 89 11 07

1989 11 09
Blundering officials cost the Government almost £40 million when they sold off Cambridge's Plant Breeding Institute to Unilever, a report reveals. – 89 11 09

Some 100 army drivers and medics and 12 ambulances standing by ready to step into the ambulance dispute if required – 89 11 09a

The White Hart pub in Fulbourn has completed an extensive refurbishment programme which has more than doubled its size. It was originally an old coaching inn with stables and these have now been joined to the main building giving it a new lounge bar with plush red-toned seating, high beams and original brick walls. The original public bar will now be used more as a games room with darts and bar billiards. A new dining room offers dishes such as chicken goujons – strips of chicken coated in golden breadcrumbs 89 11 09b

Coun David Wolfe is to launch a campaign to stop the closure of Mill Road library as part of a County Council economy drive. Cambridge was one of the first towns in the country to have a local free library service. Mill Road library has served the community for 92 years and is a valuable resource. With the opening of city council housing schemes at Ditchburn Place and Thoday Street increasing the numbers of elderly people and young families moving into the area it is a particularly convenient service, he says – 89 11 09c

1989 11 14
Huge earth embankments will be needed to protect any new town planned near Ely from flooding. All three developments are in the flood plain and would need 18-foot high bunds around them. But it was not clear who would build or maintain the embankments, the National Rivers Authority told an inquiry into 'Westmere', 'Denny' and 'Waterfenton' 89 11 14

1989 11 15
Westmere, Waterfenton and Denny criticised by river engineers – would need bunds – 89 11 15

A Home Office exercise will test the County Council's emergency and civil protection plans. Brian Smith, Peter Willdridge and Dick Turpin will join a team of 30 people manning the Emergency Control Centre in an underground bunker at Shire Hall. It will be a 'desk top' exercise to test communications and information-gathering skills needed during disasters such as fenland flooding or chemical explosions. 89 11 15a

1989 11 16
Robert Sayle plans to switch from the heart of traffic-choked Cambridge to a proposed new shops complex at Duxford. Their present site is too cramped and the lack of space is blocking their expansion plans. The news sent a shock wave through Cambridge with fears it could create a commercial vacuum in the main shopping area. Conservatives blame the Labour administration's failure to provide more city centre car parking. 89 11 16

Tressilian Nicholas, came up to Trinity College in 1907, was elected to a fellowship and during the Great War carried out dangerous camera-mapping work in the trenches. He served as bursar for 27 years and became Senior Fellow rubbing shoulders with some of the most famous and infamous members, including Prince Charles and Anthony Blunt the spy. He was the only don to have the college flag flown for him three times – on his election to Fellowship, on his 100th birthday and now on his death. 89 11 16a

Two convicts had already escaped before Highpoint Prison was officially opened in 1977, prompting anxiety amongst villagers. Murderers and rapists serving life sentences began arriving in 1988, causing an outcry since 19 escapes had taken place in the preceding six months. Now another six men have run off. The Governor says that fencing and lighting improvements were taking place and the prisoners had taken the opportunity to get out before security was improved 89 11 16b

Henry Fawcett blind postmaster general – feature – 89 11 16c

1989 11 17
Robert Sayle set to quit city – history feature – 89 11 17

1989 11 20
More than 8,000 protestors took to the streets of Newmarket in a bid to save their hospital. Its downgrading into a community hospital would create unacceptable problems for Addenbrooke's and West Suffolk Hospitals, they say. And the biggest public demonstration to be held in the town may pay off, because a last-minute plan could solve the problem, West Suffolk MP Sir Eldon Griffiths told parents, children and hospital staff who crammed into Tattersall's sales ground. 89 11 20

An elderly woman recluse in Toseland had to be coaxed from the house she had not left for more than half a century. She had lived by candlelight in the old farmhouse without mains water and electricity. She had no inside toilet and only an outside standpipe for water. But the roof collapsed while she was downstairs and part of an upper ceiling also caved in forcing firemen to dismantle a gable end fronting the road. The 84-year-old was taken to an old folks' home where she was fascinated by the bedside lights and spent the day making tea 89 11 20a

1989 11 21
Co-op chiefs have been forced to sell off the freehold of their Burleigh Street store to fend off a cash crisis. The Victorian building has been sold to a London Investment Company and they will lease back the premises. The Co-op began trading in Burleigh Street in 1908 but has been hit by soaring interest rates on loans taken out to cover major projects such as the massive Beehive Centre. It has already put branches up for sale in Mill Road, Milton Road, Waterbeach, Duxford & Cherry Hinton. 89 11 21 # c.27.2

Cambridge's Park and Ride scheme is failing to attract its major target – the city's commuters. Yesterday morning there were only 15 cars parked at Cowley Road while queues of vehicles drove bumper-to-bumper down Milton Road. But it is drawing off-peak shoppers and tourists. The County say it is too soon to draw conclusions. A similar scheme in Oxford had taken a long time to become established. 89 11 21a

Farmland Museum closure – feature – 89 11 21b

1989 11 23
A giant 600-home council estate could be built on allotment land off Histon and Kings Hedges Road in a bid to ease the desperate housing crisis in Cambridge. The allotments are under-used and could be relocated. The land and a huge acreage bordering the A45 Northern Bypass is in the 'Green Belt' which is protected from development. But the Government has indicated it wants this removed so it could be used for hi-tech purposes. Some councillors are unhappy with the number of homes being suggested and would prefer fewer to be built 89 11 23

Salvation Army history – feature – 89 11 23a # c.83

1989 11 24
Rare medieval wall paintings found on walls of cottages in Silver Street, Ely – 89 11 24

Police train in riot control – feature – 89 11 24a

ADC installs new behind-the-scenes technology for opening curtains – 89 11 24b # c.76

1989 11 27
Dorothy Restaurant reopened in July after an absence of 17 years. But within weeks it closed. Now sold again – 89 11 27

1989 11 28
The National Extension College in Brooklands Avenue has more students than Cambridge University and offers courses from accounting to zoo-keeping. It was set up in the back room of a condemned cottage in 1963 to open the door to higher education through correspondence courses. It was the brainwave of Michael Young, Cambridge University's first lecturer in sociology and founder of the Consumers' Association. A forerunner of the Open University, it has 15,000 students and its expertise has been used by the BBC and Channel Four in preparing their own adult education programmes. 89 11 28 # c.36.7

The new South East Cycleway from Market Square to Cherry Hinton follows quiet back roads, avoiding the nightmarish Mill Road which can reduce cyclists to a nervous wreck. It includes a new £2million bridge across the railway near Cambridge station. This is a striking structure with a triangular tower from which cables support a cycle and walkway fully protected from the elements by a transparent polycarbonate tube. It is thought to be the longest bridge of its type in Western Europe. 89 11 28a, 29 # c.26.485

1989 11 30
Maps and plans which have lain forgotten for 20 years may save ratepayers £500,000. They show a drainage system which was laid, but probably never used, in the Gunhild Way, Wulfstan Way and Godwin Way areas in the 1950s. Council engineers did not know of the existence of the network of pipes until elderly people told them. Now they may use it to combat a constant flooding problem in hundreds of gardens. For years the residents have complained their back gardens are frequently under many inches of water. 89 11 30

December 1989 CEN

1989 12 01
John Major, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, has added his voice to campaigns to save the school meals service in Cambridgeshire. Although the county council needs to save money, he thought this cutback could be a serious mistake. Even if the school meal service was scrapped the council would still have, by law, to provide food for youngsters from hard-up families. It would be difficult for such children not to be identified and for some pupils this could be damaging. 89 12 01

Anglia TV officially opened its new base in Jesus Lane – 89 12 01a

Councillors approved Cambridgeshire's first ever 'legal' warehouse party in an empty warehouse on a Waterbeach industrial estate, scene of two previous illicit parties. They imposed a ban on alcohol and drugs and the limited numbers to no more than 300. The owner of an adjacent factory used contractors to build an earth wall around his site and other companies blocked entrances. But few attended and the party finished three hours early. Rumours of a heavy police presence kept youngsters away 89 12 01b & 02

1989 12 02
Andrew Blackwood, who has been on call at the Arts Theatre for more than 30 years, has handed over the reigns to a new secretary and general manager. His predecessor, Norman Higgins became first secretary in 1939 89 12 02a

1989 12 04
The biggest Christmas tree in Britain, an 86 ft Norwegian spruce, was erected on Queens' Green. It will be lit by more than 5,000 electric candles. But the tree was so damaged that a tree surgeon had to be called in and some branches lopped off. These will be pushed back in again to make the tree look resplendent. But as the tree was being prepared for its electric lights it was discovered that acid rain had burnt the top six feet; this had to be lopped off and another strapped to its top 89 12 04, 06a, 07a

1989 12 07
Bassingbourn Village College was built the wrong way round in1954. The original main entrance was blocked up for more office space and a valuable statue is now out of view because it is still at the original entrance. The changing rooms are the furthest walk possible to the playing fields than any other pointing the school, Governor Allan Miller says. But there is the possibility that the college is in the right place, and the village needs moving. 89 12 07a

1989 12 09
Cambridge Science Park boomed in the early 1980s but now has trouble recruiting and keeping skilled staff. There are fewer school leavers and, coupled with the problems of high living costs and expensive housing, this has led to a fall in the potential working population. There should also be a slip-road direct to the A45 or a private bus service from the city centre to ease traffic congestion. A crèche for working mothers, banking facilities and a shop are also needed. 89 12 09

Cambridgeshire County Council is facing recruitment problems and is calling on pensioners to stay on after reaching 65. The current retirement policy was made when the economic situation was very different from that of today. This is now an area of very low unemployment and it seems sensible to allow people with many years of valuable experience to carry on. They will also consider recruiting retired applicants on a temporary basis for vacancies which would otherwise be hard to fill. 89 12 09a

1989 12 12
School meals service saved – 89 12 12

Farmland Museum saved by ECDC grant – 89 12 12a

Sir Arthur Marshall to retire – profile. His father set up a de luxe car hire service in Brunswick Terrace in 1909, opening garages in King Street and Jesus Lane. In 1912 carried petrol to Beta II airship which landed in grounds Jesus College. Bought first aircraft at Fowlmere in 1919. Got pilot's licence 1929 & bought a Gipsy Moth. Opened landing field behind house in Newmarket Road – 89 12 12b, c

Mill Road and the Broadway are a convenient place for Christmas shopping with many cycle shops supplying everything from BMXs to tandems. There is an extensive choice of clothes stores offering everything from ski and leisure wear to glittering ball gowns, from distinctive menswear to the popular new 'rave' clothing. There are futon sofabeds, Magimix blenders, video cassettes for under £10 or the most sophisticated hi-fi audio systems The many discount stores and secondhand shops have inexpensive gifts 89 12 12d

1989 12 14
W & G Taylor of Trinity Street, one of Cambridge's oldest family menswear shops, is closing after 809 years of business. The firm started when George and Walter Taylor (no relation) who both worked at Ryder and Amies, decided to set up in business together but now a threefold increase in the lease is simply beyond their means. The shop describes itself as a gentleman's outfitters and specialises in hats. Bowlers for Cambridge colleges have been a regular line of business. 89 12 14 # c.27.2

Newmarket Heath wartime raid by 999 Squadron commemorated – 89 12 14a, b

1989 12 15
The closure of W & G. Taylor is the latest in a line of small stores squeezed from the city centre by rocketing rents. Two other men's outfitters, Ropers and Bodgers closed this summer. Another famous shop which closed six years ago in the face of mounting rent and rates was Bacons in Market Street. The Parsley Pot in Lion Yard, Cambridge Fine Jewels of Emmanuel Street and upmarket furnishers, Johns left their Bridge Street premises for Histon Road last year blaming the traffic chaos can high parking charges 89 12 15

1989 12 18
Francis Pemberton plants tree to mark his retirement from Bidwells – 89 12 18

1989 12 19
Mill Public House refurbished and renamed the Tap and Spile – 89 12 19

1989 12 20
Cambridge property prices are set to boom in the next decade sending the cost of an average house to a staggering £260,000 in the year 2000 89 12 20

Ditchburn Place, the former Mill Road Workhouse celebrates transformation into home for the elderly and meeting place for the community – 89 12 20a

1989 12 21
Cambridge's new £200,000 car space scheme with signs around the city linked to the county council's traffic computer which monitors the five main car parks, hit teething troubles leaving shoppers driving round trying to find a parking space. 89 12 21

1989 12 22
No new Cambridge housing schemes will start next year, even though there are 4,000 people waiting for a home and the council has £39 million in the bank ready to spend. New Government clampdowns on local council spending mean nothing new can be started. And council house maintenance and improvement schemes will also be cut back under rules that come in with the new poll tax. There are 100 homeless families for whom the council provides temporary accommodation. Nearly 30 are in private bed and breakfast accommodation for which the Government pays most 89 12 22

Mill Road library reprieved from closure – 89 12 22a

Campaigning villagers fighting a plan to put a new township on their doorstep got their first opportunity to oppose it formally – exactly three years after the plan was unveiled. Consortium

Developments proposed a 1,500-home community, Westmere, between them. But parish councils say the site is totally unsuitable: there would be no separation, it would be visible for miles and have to be protected by high flood bunds which would become dominant and incongruous in the landscape. They criticised East Cambs District Council's lack of consultation before the draft structure plan was published. 89 12 22b

1989 12 27
Local government is in for a massive upheaval in the 21st century – feature – 89 12 27

1989 12 28
Newmarket enters the next decade facing three major issues which could affect its future. The prospect of an overspill township on its doorstep, the threat to the town's hospital and Cambridgeshire's bid to take the Suffolk town into its own county boundary. The past decade has seen their horse population increase at a faster rate than humans. New stables are being built with much of the investment coming from super-rich Middle Eastern racehorse investors 89 12 28

Two events put Huntingdon on the world map during the 1980s. The first came when a derelict wartime bomber station at Molesworth was selected as a nuclear base. The second was when MP John Major was plucked from relative obscurity to be given two top Cabinet jobs in the space of three months. But most important has been the town's solid growth from a sleepy backwater into one of the fastest-growing areas in the country with the population expected to soar to 36,000 by the year 2001. 89 12 28a

Ely has gone from gloom to boom over the past 10 years. The closure of the Sugar Beet Factory at Queen Adelaide with the loss of jobs was the biggest blow. The weekly livestock market closed as did Littleport Village College and a number of schools. But now the city, for so long a sleepy backwater in the fens, is about to witness one of the most dramatic periods of change in its entire history. There will be multi-million pound shopping centre, housing estates and industrial areas together with a new community of 1,500 houses between Ely and Cambridge. 89 12 28b

The next ten years could prove the making or breaking of Saffron Walden as a small but thriving market town. With the expansion of Stansted airport and the prospect of a gigantic out-of-town shopping complex at Duxford it could suffer an identity crisis. With hundreds o people due to flood the district looking for homes the whole concept of the area could change dramatically. At the start of the 1980s George Street had an ancient swimming pool, a derelict pig market, a large Choppens hardware store and a small Gateway supermarket. Now most of the relics of the old days have disappeared. But residents have saved the imposing Rectory in Museum Street, fought traffic proposals and campaigned to prevent a car park plan for Swan Meadow. 89 12 28c

1989 12 30
Willingham Youth Project building destroyed by fire – 89 12 30

1990 Cambridge Evening News

I have copies of these articles

January 1990 CEN

1990 01 02
Campaigners walked through the Lakenheath USAF base as a protest against plans to close a public footpath. It runs for a mile between the main entrance on the A1065 and the B1112 near Lakenheath village. One gate has been locked since the American raid on Libya was launched by F-111 jets in 1986. Before that it was used as a short cut by base workers to get to their jobs. Legal moves to close it have been started by Forest Heath District Council following a request from the Ministry of Defence– 90 01 02

1990 01 03
A bridge between Meldreth and Orwell which spans the River Cam at Malton Lane collapsed on Christmas Day morning after part of a buttress was washed away during storms. County engineers say it will cost about £50,000 to replace and they may construct a temporary bridge during reconstruction. The choice is whether to repair the bridge or rebuild it. The road may be closed for two months – 90 01 03

Michel's Brasserie closes, plan to reopen as a café bar. It opened six years ago by Michael Sardones – 90 01 03a

Plans for a village at Nine Mile Hill have been dropped to the delight of fifteen parishes which united to fight the scheme. The other scheme, Hare Park is near Six Mile Bottom – 90 01 03b

1990 01 04
St Andrew the Great could be a gallery – 90 01 04

Gwen Raverat – feature – 90 01 04a

1990 01 05
Old People's Homes sell-off plans axed – 90 01 05

Westmere and rival sites inspected – 90 01 05a

1990 01 06
First-time buyers really do stand a chance of being able to own their own homes without being too far away from Cambridge. Houses at the Eaglepark development in Bar Hill 'Wold' homes start at £94,995 while one-bedroom flats, ideal for first-time buyers cost £44,995 and single-bedroomed terraced houses cost £46,995. Bar Hill has blossomed into an established community with a residents association and rural community and sports amenities. 90 01 06

1990 01 08
When Littleton House school moved to its present site it used a "pets corner" as an out-of-school activity for boarders. This comprised a pony together with a donkey, a few pheasants, ducks and gees and a collection of rabbits. Then a few runt pigs were fattened and an in-pig Welsh gilt was purchased. Local farmers lend boars to enable the herd to produce litters for the commercial market. A flock of sheep is also kept and the boys learn about rearing, shearing, dipping and marketing of lambs – 90 01 08

Cambridge Electronic Industries was initially comprised of companies that did not fit into the Philips group. Today nearly half have been sold or have merged. Casualties include Pye RF Systems which sold equipment for the rapid drying of printed work, Cathodeon Crystals which merged with Newmarket Microsystems and Labgear Cablevision which has been sold to a Finnish company. But they have acquired seven American companies and exports represent half of CEI's total business – 90 01 08a

1990 01 09
Plough Monday celebrations, Balsham, Fenstanton & Elsworth – 90 01 09a

1990 01 10
United Reformed Church, Victoria Road is holding its first major service after undergoing an £830,000 redevelopment. The ceremony to welcome the Rev Norman Setchell as its new minister will take place in St Luke's Church which has been converted to create a joint home for the URC and Anglican congregations as well as a community centre. The two churches, which stood side by side for a century, will still hold separate morning services with joint worship taking place in the evenings – 90 01 10 # c.83

1990 01 11
A unique disaster course at Bottisham Village College, including talks on first aid and the effect of radiation, will train volunteers in what steps to take if World War III broke out. It means they will be able to aid emergency services like the fire or police. Should a disaster occur telephone and information systems would become swamped and emergency planners will train volunteers in the collection of information of people caught up in a disaster. But none would be called in until the normal emergency services reach a stage where they cannot cope. – 90 01 11a

Cambridge City Council has unexpectedly found it has £2.25 million to spend before the end of March. It will use £750,000 on buying 12 homes through a housing association but has to decide what to do with the rest. This may include grants to the Arts Theatre or the Samaritans for their new premises. Another alternative is not to spend the money at all and help to keep down the poll tax. In the past it bought Covent Garden Hall for a drama centre when it found itself in a similar position – 90 01 11b

Duxford Museum expansion plans includes American Air Museum, Simulation Building and Land Welfare Hall– 90 01 11

1990 01 12
The former cruise missile base at Molesworth is to become the base for the Joint Analysis Centre and the 497th Reconnaissance Technical Group. It will also be an emergency headquarters for the US Third Air Force in the event of war. Some 750 US military personnel will be based there full time. Some of the former cruise buildings will be modified for their new role but be subject to Soviet inspection under the terms of the INF treaty until 2001. The Third Air Force will keep its permanent peacetime headquarters at RAF Mildenhall. – 90 01 12

Cambridge Holiday Lectures for children, based on the Royal Institution Lectures, have been organised by Joice Taylor for 17 years and have proved most popular. They feature speakers on eight different subjects, each of whom waives any fees. Pupils come because intelligent young people are eager to widen their horizons and learn about things outside their present-day curriculum. This is infinitely more satisfying that roaming around aimlessly in the holidays. It is fully approved by the Local Education Authority funded solely from schools, PTAs and individual parents - 90 01 12a

Fitzwilliam Museum snubs call for charges – 90 01 12b

1990 01 16
Ambulance dispute looms – 90 01 16

Cambridge's planning chief fears for the future if some of the high-tech and other commercial development, which is clamouring to start up in the city, cannot be diverted to other parts of the county. Officials are preparing an action plan based on a report by University land experts. Ely, Haverhill, Chatteris and March are suffering from a depressed economy and would benefit from the establishment of firms sent from Cambridge 90 01 16a

1990 01 17
SCDC have announced a surprise surplus of £1.5 million on their housing budget which they will spend buying land for around 30 sheltered homes. There are around 1,000 elderly people on their waiting lists and not enough accommodation to house them. The money has been saved because of falling land costs, failure to proceed with land acquisition and slippages in council improvement and building schemes. But money for housing projects is likely to fall by a third within three years 90 01 17

Barnwell Pit and lake, off Newmarket Road may be bought by the city council and turned into an amenity area. Environmental improvements would include removing large amounts of rubbish, enhancing the wildlife habitats and fishing facilities, tree planting and landscaping. The pit stands between the Cambridge to Ely railway line and the back of an industrial estate. Planners have refused applications for a restaurant and boating facilities saying there would be traffic problems and that wildlife would be seriously harmed 90 01 17a

1990 01 18
Ely Co-op store in Market Street is set to close, the latest victim of a multi-million pound property battle. The building will be sold to Raglan Property Trust, one of two firms seeking to build a large new supermarket which would make the food store unviable. But Burton Property Trust also hopes to redevelop the centre in conjunction with ECDC 90 01 18

Eglanyne Jebb founded Save the Children – feature – 90 01 18a
Cambridge's giant Christmas tree taken down after raising less money than hope for – 90 01 18b

1990 01 19
Science park feature – 90 01 19a b
Last American Blackbird spyplane to fly home from Mildenhall – 90 01 19d

1990 01 22
Therfield school extension – 90 01 22
Camfax one of leading facsimile machine specialists – 90 01 22a

1990 01 24
Arlington Securities, which already owns Joshua Taylor and Arts Cinema buys Beach Villas on corner Sidney St & Market Passage – 90 01 24

Heffer's opened a brand-new one-stop business centre at Cambridge Business Park, Milton Road, bringing their commercial stationery, office equipment and office furniture departments under one roof 90 01 24a

Vital improvement work is needed to the fen drain system because of the Greenhouse Effect. Unless work is undertaken scientists fear a repetition of the disastrous 1947 floods. They want to strengthen and heighten the outer barrier banks along the Bedford Rivers from Earith to Denver. The level of the land has steadily dropped in relation to the sea, the peat fen has fallen by about five metres since the banks were built and the Greenhouse Effect is predicted to produce an annual rise in sea level of five mm. If the South Level bank burst it could cause damage totalling £23 million to homes, high-grade agricultural land, roads and railways. A burst on the Middle Level would be more serious because of the number of homes nearby. The landscape will see small changes as the banks are heightened but in the vastness of the fens these could hardly be said to be significant 90 01 24b # c.29

The Ronald Rolph Court consists of 23 workshop units has helped several new companies make a positive start over the last seven years. Firms represent all aspects of industry in Cambridge from established concerns specialising in traditional trades to high-tech firms developing electronics and computers. They include J.S. Wilson, whose bookbinding business was established in 1830 and Ditton Binders which supplies company ring binders and menu covers 90 01 24c

1990 01 25
Storm-force gales wreaked havoc as gusts of up to 80 mph swept across the region, injuring people, bringing down trees and damaging buildings. It blew the flat roofs off three houses in Pakenham Close, Cambridge, damaged a new glass building at St Ivo School and forced traders to abandon Ely's weekly market as torrential rain tore sheeting from stalls, drenching stock. At Alconbury Weston part of a tree crashed down across the entrance to Oakleigh old people's home trapping 13 residents inside 90 01 25 26a

The County Councillors are worried about the quick turnover of staff and difficulties in replacing them. There are vacancies in all departments and a severe shortage of lawyers, surveyors and teachers. The council pays lower salaries than other county authorities, which also offer cars with jobs. Now they may increase wage scales, improve subsidised mortgage arrangements and removal expenses. Staff do not always leave for extra money; they also look for job satisfaction or better career opportunities. 90 01 25a

Cambridge's Easter fair has been banned for the third year running. The Showmen's Guild has been told they cannot set up their rides on Midsummer Common because the grass needs time to recover from the winter. But the fair has been held for 50 years or so and damage was minimal. Its loss causes hardship to showmen and deprives citizens of the opportunity to enjoy the sights and sounds. Last year what should have been the city's first May Day fair was cancelled because the common was waterlogged. 90 01 25b # c.27.31

Today's squatters are usually the young and single who do not qualify to go on council housing waiting lists. But after the war couples with children occupied empty houses in Jesus Lane and Parkside that had been requisitioned by the army. Then one family moved into Nissen huts in the grounds of a house in Hills Road and another into a four-storey property in Portugal Place. From then on more huts or houses were occupied daily. Then pre-fabricated steel houses were erected in Lichfield Road and Trumpington. They were meant to be temporary but some were lived in until the 1970s - 90 01 25c

1990 01 26
Two people died when fire ripped through the post office in Somersham High Street 90 01 26

The City council are persuading private house owners not to leave their property vacant. Some had been left properties by an elderly relative, others bought houses for an investment in the property boom, then found they could not sell them. Police houses in Girton stood empty for three years and Ministry of Defence houses in Radegund Road that were empty for years have not been sold off by the army. Flats above the old Co-op in Mill Road are also being used to provide low cost housing for council tenants 90 01 26b

Plans to develop the site of the old Cattle Market into a light industrial estate met an angry response. But now it has been transformed into the Clifton Road Industrial estate with 56 units providing jobs for several hundred people. There is ample car parking and good office accommodation. The estate is fronted by the attractive Clifton Court office complex. Situated alongside the railway station, close to the city centre with park and ride facilities on its doorstep it has good access to major roads. With its landscaping it provides an industrially useful estate and a pleasant working environment for employees 90 01 26c # c.27.1

1990 01 29

Maids Causeway Dukes Court office complex 90 01 29, a

1990 01 31
County plans £300 poll tax 90 01 31
Corn Exchange cultural centre – feature – 90 01 31a & b

February 1990 CEN

1990 02 01
Motor cyclist killed in crash on A10 at Stretham 90 02 01
Veterinary School saved from closure – 90 02 01
Thornton & sons, fishing tackle and gun shop in Burleigh Street established in 1966; now to close – 90 02 01a

1990 02 02
Wandlebury Ring could revert back to natural chalkland due to climatic change – 90 02 02a
WRVS Meals on Wheels – feature – 90 02 02b, c

1990 02 05
Heavy rain brought chaos, roads flooded 90 02 05a

Disc jockey John Peel will open The Junction, a unique venue for Cambridge's young people. Local bands The Bible, Jack the Bear and No Dakota will perform together with a theatrical trapeze act 'Skinning the Cat'. This will be followed by an exciting 12 days of rock, jazz, ethnic music, alternative comedy and acid house raves. For years teenagers have complained there was nothing to do; they occupied a number of derelict buildings and held all-night parties. 90 02 05b & c, d # c.69

Fenstanton has a very very good school, a good football pitch, a good milk service. It is a nice village, says Andrew. I like it because it is quite big, you get big gardens – Gemma. If you go down the road you come to a field with two horses and one car and one bull and seven mares – Briony. There is something in the village that really fascinates me – that is the clock tower. There is a post office and a garage. There is a newsagent that sells magazines and all kinds of things – Teresa (Children's impressions of their village) 90 02 05e

I like Hilton because I know everybody. I like going through the ford and the water goes all over the car. We have feast week and do all sorts of things like bingo and my dad is a beasty boy and we have a raffle. Sometimes I feed the ducks. Hilton is a nice village but it does have its disadvantages. The Potton road always has traffic going across it and it is dangerous to cross especially if you want to go to the shop. There is a village hall where the toddlers go to the playgroup. Hilton school closed in 1955 and since then children have gone by bus to school in Fenstanton (children's impressions of their village) 90 02 05f

1990 02 06
US A10 Thunderbolt from Alconbury crashes in Wales – 90 02 06

1990 02 07
Barrington community leaders unveiled ambitious new plans for a low-cost housing development at Challis Green, which have been drawn up by the parish council and National Agricultural Centre's Rural Trust. Houses would be sold for £40,000, half the normal price, because they were built on land donated to the trust or sold at agricultural value. The parish council would decide how they are assigned. 90 02 07a

1990 02 08
Cyclists, buses, taxis and some disabled drivers could be banned from the centre of Cambridge to make the area safer for shoppers – 90 02 08a

1990 02 10
Secret talks are under way for Cambridge United to move to a site on farmland at Teversham. The news comes only a day after it was revealed the club lost £98,000 last year and Chris Turner was sacked as general manager. If the club moves from the ground it has occupied since the 1920s it would allow the sale of the Abbey Stadium site for housing or commercial development. This would realise enough cash for the new venture 90 02 10a Fans views – 90 02 15c # c.38 : football

1990 02 11
Cambridge health chiefs are to cut services and axe beds as Addenbrooke's Hospital heads for another slide into the read. The Health Authority, already £3 million in debt from previous years, was overspent on its current budget. And it has no hope of balancing the books. The measures would see the closure of some wards at weekends and cutting down on stationery 90 02 11

1990 02 12
Cambridge's first soup kitchen has been set up at the homeless drop-in centre, the Bus Project. Winter Comfort will be running the service which provides soup, hot drinks and sandwiches until March. About 12 people per night have been taking advantage of the service. 90 02 12

Cambridge's first independent local radio station, CN.FM 103, is celebrating its first birthday. 90 02 12b

1990 02 14
County poll tax set at £299 per head – 90 02 14aa

Valentine messages – 90 02 14d

Mark Entwistle, the Ely bowler, won both singles and pairs area finals in the national championship in the space of two days to win through the finals at Melton Mowbray 90 02 14e

1990 02 15
The Junction, Cambridge's long-awaited new venue centre got off to a flying start. DJ John Peel cut his way through yards of studio tape wrapped all the way round the hexagonal building in Clifton Road. Riots four years ago highlighted the lack of facilities for younger people. The Junction – with its 400 seater auditorium, exhibition space, café-car and rehearsal rooms – was the city council's response. It is Britain's first purpose-built music and arts centre for young people. 90 02 14b, c. Laser-light show – 90 02 15e # c.69

East Anglia's hospital service is to be linked by sophisticated computer systems able to keep track of patients wherever they go. While Addenbrooke's Hospital is developing is own patient information system the Ipswich Hospital has unveiled their answer to lost medical records and mix-ups over appointments. It should mean an end to form filling, chasing paperwork and hours on the phone. Computer links between wards and departments will instantly transmit patients' records, requests for tests or treatments, find empty beds and lay on ambulance transport 90 02 15a

University Department of Biochemistry will research secret of life – feature – 90 02 15b

Thaxted 'Red vicar', Conrad Noel has Blue Plaque – 90 02 15d

1990 02 16
Cambridge poll tax fixed – 90 02 16a

Kneesworth House Hospital, the first private psychiatric unit of its kind in the country, is up for sale. Set in 47 acres, the 148-bed hospital, a former children's home, opened five years ago. It was launched amid rows and controversy stimulated by the fears of local villagers and the politics of private care. But the rumoured influx of criminally insane patients did not materialise. Instead it built up a good reputation and was in the middle of a £5M expansion programme when its US owners decided to sell up all its UK assets. 90 02 16b

David Morgan's Commonwealth Games triumph overshadowed by a drugs scandal – 90 01 16c, d

1990 02 19
FA Cup semi-final draw if Cambridge United beat Bristol City in replay – 90 02 19abc

1990 02 20
Cambridge Unite FA cup tickets changing hand for 10-times face value – 90 02 20; working flat-out for match – 90 02 20c

Get-rich quick property speculators are hovering like vultures over Shire Hall hoping to pick up land and property which the County Council is selling off at bargain basement prices to keep down the poll tax. With the depressed state of the property market they are throwing away valuable county council assets the Labour opposition claims. Conservatives admit their hoped-for sale would fall at least £2M short of their target but say that builders hit by the property slump are prepared to carry out cut-price work, compensating for the lower prices raised in land sales 90 02 20b

1990 02 21
Rock fever hit Cambridge city centre when hundreds of heavy metal fans packed into HMV's Market Street store to meet their idols, the Quireboys. The chart-topping band were signing copies of their debut album 'A Bit of What you Fancy'. Hayley Breet from Haverhill queued to see lead singer Spike, "He's the best – the others don't really get a look in", she said. Later The Quireboys played to 1,500 fans at a sell-out gig in the Corn Exchange 90 02 21a

Sir – I was horrified so see the County Council is proposing to make a devastating cut in the funds allocated to the County Record Office. As this is the Cinderella of the council departments it would seem grossly unfair to deal it such a blow. Other counties have a more enlightened appreciation of the importance of the precious inheritance to be found in local documents. It should be remembered that it is in the records office that the papers recording the decisions of the council will be housed for future generations to give their verdict on – P. White 90 02 21b n # c.43

1990 02 22
Top Farm at Toseland remained unchanged for decades as the owners carried on farming as they always had. But when the roof of the farmhouse, a listed building, collapsed, the sole survivor had to move to an old peoples' home. Now the agricultural implements are to be sold. The most modern piece of equipment is a 1947 Fordson Major tractor. Three wooden carts, a winnowing machine, eight-row horse-drawn Smyth seed drill and hand flails are also to be auctioned 90 02 22a

Poll Tax protests echo controversy of rating revaluations of 1963 – feature – 90 02 22b

1990 02 23
Texas Homecare has been fined for breach of Sunday trading laws in Cambridge. The City Council lawyer said the European court had ruled that a ban on Sunday trading was not against EEC law. Texas said they had to be open on Sundays to keep up with the competition – because other shops stayed open. It was only being prosecuted as a regulatory measure and not because of public opposition to its opening on Sunday. Opening was popular and some people even came at 11am to do their shopping. – 90 02 23a

H.C. Moss, the building company, was started by Cliff Moss in 1962 with two employees; now it has 150 based at Cottenham, to which it moved in 1977. Much of their workload is construction projects of which the majority is housing estates. It also specialises in the renovation and conversion of period buildings into flats and apartments. One such project is the Riverside Mill at Godmanchester. Now they are working on a Maltings renovation at King's Lynn with an indoor waterfall and 19 luxury flats opposite Tattersalls in Newmarket. – 90 02 23b, c # c.23

University plans to spend £10M on a new law faculty and library complex – 90 02 23d

1990 02 26
Gale-force winds brought power cuts and road chaos. Three people were injured when a United Counties double-decker bus was blown off the road into a ditch near Baldock. And passengers had a lucky escape when another bus was hit by gusts and ended up in a ditch near the A14 at Arrington. On the A1 a lorry and trailer were blown over on the south-bound carriageway, causing long tailbacks. Police warned motorists to keep off the road. 90 02 26

Trinity Hall Industrial Estate in Nuffield Road was developed in 1982 housing firms such as Cathodeon, Camlab, Serck Services, Allgoods and Andrew McCulloch. Now it includes Dan Morley Engineering, Platonoff and Harris and TeleTape Video which produces commercial videos. The estate is located on land formerly owned by Cambridge businessman, Mr Lloyd Stokes, who also owned the site on which the adjacent Cambridge Business Park is still being developed. 90 02 26a # c.27.1

1990 02 27
A community centre and swimming pool will be built for villagers in Duxford & Whittlesford if plans for a new multi-million pound shopping centre are approved near the M11 90 02 27a

1990 02 26
Cambridge United beat Bristol City to win FA cup quarter-final place – 90 02 28,

March 1990 CEN

1990 03 01
Super high speed bus lanes are to be built alongside roads in a bid to ease Cambridge's traffic chaos. Experts hope this will give a boost to the flagging park-and-ride scheme. Buses would be equipped with a special electronic 'eye' to change traffic lights in their favour. The first would run from Cowley Road to the city centre and later most main roads would incorporate them. At present buses are held up in traffic jams and passengers take just as long as they would have done in their cars. On some peak time journeys buses have only five passengers but large numbers of shoppers have been using them– 90 03 01

1990 03 02
Robert Rhodes James MP for Cambridge, who was elected in 1976 when David Lane resigned his seat, is to stand down. He has campaigned to prevent British Rail installing controversial half barriers at Cherry Hinton railway crossing, fought the closure of St Bede's and Park Street primary schools and helped win a giant TriStar conversion deal for Marshall's. He also persuaded the Government to match the £2 million donated by David Robinson for the building of the Rosie Maternity Hospital. But he has been a fierce critic of the student loans plan. – 90 03 02, a Physicist Prof Stephen Hawking, a victim of the wasting motor neurone disease, has been given a new computerised speech synthesiser to help him communicate. The American-developed Digital DECTalk device allows him to use a screen to select words and phrases which are then translated into speech. 90 03 02b

1990 03 05
Desperate families in Mid Anglia are plunging deeply into debt. Citizens Advice Bureau staff have been flooded with pleas for help but are having to turn some people away. They are begging local councils to give money to allow computers to be bought to lift the load. Until now many clients have been jobless people, single parents or council tenants. But an increasing number are married, working people with mortgages. Many have no cash to buy essential items such as food and clothing. – 90 03 05

Gt St Andrews plan for conversion into centre for art lovers and historians backed – 90 03 05a

1990 03 06
Cambridgeshire Police's budget has been slashed by the Government which has approved less than a third of the money needed. Schemes to buy communications equipment and computers will have to be deferred and police cars leased to save money. A kitchen extension at police headquarters will also be cancelled. The Home Office says the system of allocating money has changed and if Cambridgeshire is aggrieved they will look into it – 90 03 06

Cambridge Polo Club wants to use 35 acres of farmland at Dullingham for a new ground. There are lots of people who have to travel long distances to play, some Newmarket racing trainers were considering forming a team and the Varsity match would be played there. It was hoped Prince Charles would take part in an 'Old Blues' match – 90 03 06a

1990 03 07
Addenbrooke's Hospital machines vital for life-support, problems of maintaining – 90 03 07

Eagle Inn, Bene't Street to re-open – 90 03 07a

1990 03 08
William Heberden: physician in the age of reason – describes conditions in Cambridge (book review) – 90 03 08 age of reason

Ely Cathedral is to start major work on the Lantern Tower after gales sucked out panes of glass, buckled panels and snapped fittings on the lead-covered wooden infrastructure. It could be likened to the effect of wind on a greenhouse. The glass was not smashed – it was sucked out with terrific force. The damage could have been much worse had not workmen who realised what was happening managed to make temporary repairs to the tower by boarding it up during the height of the storm. Without that action it could have been a complete disaster – 90 03 08a

Wesley church re-opens after refurbishment – 90 03 08b

Kirtling Tower, a Tudor 'castle' is being sold by Lord Fairhaven for over £350,000. It stands in 2.5 acres of land and has a large expanse of lawn, a walled kitchen garden and many trees. It needs a lot spending on it and will cost a lot to maintain but it is extremely delightful and romantic with potential to become a prestigious county house. It was first mention in 1260 when three men fell into the moat carrying a wine cask after a bridge broke. The Manor was acquired by Sir Edward North in 1533 who built the mansion in which Elizabeth I stayed. This was pulled down in 1801, leaving the present gate house tower. – 90 03 08c

1990 03 09
Ely Co-op to stay open after collapse of property deal – 90 03 09

Cambridge United manager John Beck has made a phenomenal start in management as his two bottles of 'Manager of the Month' champagne proves. But it has taken him 18 months to mould a team capable of the best Cup run in United's 76-year history. Colin Bailie has been a revelation after moving from fullback to midfield, Michael Cheetham has made a enormous difference on the right flank and Andy Fensom has slotted in well at right back, he says. – 90 03 09a

Madingley M11 interchange improvements – 90 03 09b & c

1990 03 10n

A massive police operation swung into action for Cambridge United big FA Cup clash against Crystal Palace. More than 200 officers were drafted in boosted by a crack team of 12 Metropolitan mounted policemen. The operation was nicknamed 'Rourke's Drift' after the famous Zulu siege. Roads were blocked with barriers and officers who police Crystal Palace matches met trains arriving from London watching out for troublemakers. About 1,000 fans were expected to arrive without tickets causing a crush at the turnstiles. – 90 03 10

1990 03 12
A major new railway station could be built behind Cambridge Business Park. It would become the main station for Cambridge with the original one becoming just a stop-over point– 90 03 12 # c.26.2

Coleridge Community College has chartered librarian – 90 03 12a

W.P. (Freddie) Kingdon, who was headmaster at Coleridge Boys School from 1947 to 1966 still attends school regularly – only now as a pupil at art classes. He joined as a teacher of PE in 1936 before becoming head in 1947. During the war he was put in charge of the 'Ringleaders' – the naughtiest boys. This was made easier as corporal punishment was still in use and he always allowed the boy to decide how many times they were caned. Later he organised courses for pupils who had to stay an extra year when leaving age was raised from 15 to 16 in 1966. He ran courses on drugs, drink and addiction and organised the Duke of Edinburgh Award Scheme – 90 03 12b # c.36.5

1990 03 13
University Audio founder Gruffydd Reece started University Cameras in St Mary's Passage after leaving the RAF in 1945. The business expanded and he opened Fencolour Laboratories in Newmarket Road, one of the first to offer colour developing and printing for amateurs. He was later joined by his brother Hugh and cousin Bryan Hyam who started University Audio in Peas Hill – 90 03 13 # c.65.5

Royal Highland Fusiliers at Oakington – feature – 90 03 13a & b

1990 03 14
Unex group has produced details of its big new development, Intercity House, on the former Pordage distribution site at the corner of Brooklands Avenue and Hills Road. It will offer air-conditioned offices with crèche, restaurant and gymnasium together with 301 car parking spaces. The windows will be high-performance anodised aluminium and the scheme will reflect the style and quality of the Victorian Royal Albert Almshouses across the road – 90 03 14 # c.61.2

1990 03 15
A baby has been born to a surrogate mother after treatment at Bourn Hall Clinic and another is expected soon. The news coincides with B.M.A. official backing for the first time to this method of test-tube fertilisation. Bourn's medical director welcomes the ruling as it confirms what they believed, that people without wombs should be helped to give birth by a sister or close friend. He stressed they would not countenance any kind of commercialisation. 90 03 15

Hundreds of Cambridge residents are not being registered for the poll tax as officials wrestle with the 'nightmare' problem of tracking them down. Anti Poll Tax Campaigners say large numbers of young people on low incomes cannot afford to pay and that resident Fellows in colleges have been overlooked. Most of those who remain unregistered have taken a decision to forfeit their vote to protect themselves from the poverty which the tax of £428 would cause – 90 03 15a

Stockwell Street, Cambridge, is a road of terraced houses built for working families in the Romsey Town area just a century ago. Families have seen dramatic changes in the pattern of the rates – and now the poll tax – charged by the local authority over those years. In 1929 the rate was under £61 in present money. In 1989 it was £286. Today the poll tax figure of £428 would bring a bill of £856 for two people. But transitional relief will bring a reduction of £71 90 03 15b

1990 03 16
Cambridge's pioneering £2.6 million cycleway scheme is helping to cut the death toll on the city's roads with over 2,000 people a day using the route. Supporters say the South East Cycle Route from Cherry Hinton to the city centre is also being used by pedestrians. The giant £1.7 cycle bridge was opened by the Minister for Roads in November and is fitted with security cameras. Some people dismissed it as a hare-brained idea at first but it is worth the time and effort, says Tony Carter, after whom the bridge has been named. – 90 03 16

1990 03 17
Brewing giant Guinness is giving £1.5 million to Cambridge University to establish a Guinness Chair of Management Studies. It is part of a major new drive by the university to join the ranks of top international business schools in training young managers to become captains of the nation's industry. 90 03 17 # c.36.9

1990 03 20
King's Hedges Neighbourhood Centre, Buchan Street topped-out 90 03 20a

County Council plans to sell off 24,000 acres of council-owned farmland criticised – 90 03 20b

1990 03 22
Tributes have been paid to maverick banker, scientist and government confidant, Lord Victor Rothschild. The millionaire Labour peer, who lived in Herschel Road joined M15 in 1940 and was awarded the George Medal for defusing German bombs at a time when he was Winston Churchill's official taster. He was described as 'one of the world's greatst experts in counter espionage' but was later alleged to be the 'fifth man' in a group of agents recruited by Russia in 1930s Cambridge 90 03 22b

Plans for private gypsy site in Whitecross Road, Wilburton prompt fears 90 03 22c

Ronald Searle cartoon of cycling problems, 1938 – 90 03 22d # c.26.485

Red Lodge set for major expansion under new plans – 90 03 22e

1990 03 23
Development plans that could have brought 1,000 new jobs to Cambridge have been thrown out by council planners worried about increased traffic congestion. Opposing the scheme for more offices on the Cambridge Business Park one councillor said 'Cambridge does not need 1,000 jobs'. Crown Estates wanted to build 15 new units on the Cowley Road site but the scheme was rejected since they felt it would bring firms from outside which would further worsen the housing problem. 90 03 22a # c.49.65

City Services department set up top compete with private companies for council contracts such as refuse collection, street sweeping and council house repairs – 90 03 23a

1990 03 24
Cambridge University boat crews are backing the campaign to stop a road and bridge being built between Ditton Meadows and Coldham's Common as part of a traffic management plan to tackle Cambridge' chronic road congestion problems. Socam – Save Our Commons and Meadows – say the environment would be ruined and there is no justification for it. 93 03 24a # c.32.3

Hundreds of people swamped the first passenger train between Swavesey and Cambridge for 20 years and at least 200 were left standing. The special service, chartered by the Railway Development Society was overwhelmed. There were 500 waiting at Swavesey, 100 at Longstanton, 200 at Oakington and another 100 at Histon. The train arrived at Cambridge station more than 20 minutes late. 90 03 24b 90 03 26a # c.26.2

1990 03 28
Cambridge's most luxurious flat is one of three penthouses in a new block called The Oast House at Pinehurst South off Grange Road. It has three bedrooms with a spiral staircase leading to a striking room like a Kentish oasthouse with a 25-foot ceiling and glass doors on to a roof garden. It will have all the luxury fittings expected including a video surveillance system. The Cambridge-based developer Nigel Grimshaw says "Nothing approaching it has ever been offered in Cambridge". The developers have produced a 52-page book listing its attributes 90 03 28a, b # c.06 # c.23

1990 03 29
Plans for new town at Great common Farm and Bourn airfield – 90 03 29a

1990 03 30
Speaking at the Koenigswinter conference at St Catherine's College, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher spelled out her vision for the future of Europe. Britain and Germany did not yet see eye-to-eye on the future of Europe and was not ready to withdraw all its troops. Nato should continue to have nuclear weapons based there. German Chancellor, Dr Helmut Kohl said he would press for faster progress towards political union in the Community. 90 03 30a

Boys from Impington Village College have created their school's first all-male jazz dance team which won first place in the East Anglian Youth Dance and Mime Showcase at the Junction. Their teacher, Mrs Steph Franklin, has long produced high-flying, high-stepping dance teams and in the 80's girl dancers won top awards 90 03 30b

One of Prince Edward's favourite theatre groups, Cambridge Youth Theatre, faces closure after the county council axed its funds. The company hit the headlines when the prince made an unannounced appearance in their production of 'Trafford Tanzi' at the Corn Exchange. He appeared as 'The Sandringham Slammer' in the play about a female wrestler 90 03 30c

1990 03 31
Body found in Cam near Five Miles from Anywhere at Upware – 90 03 31a

1990 April CEN

1990 04 02
The small industrial units at Scotland Road, Dry Drayton were originally built in 1907 as part of a 'model' farm which housed a herd of 150 milking cows. But when the Peck family transferred to completely arable faming they converted the buildings into light industrial 'starter' units 90 04 02

Victor bomber restored at Duxford Museum – 90 04 02a

Pinehurst South, Oast House & Redwood Lodge feature – 90 04 02b

1990 04 04
A new wing at Littlehey Prison is being opened early to accommodate prisoners displaced by the Strangeways riots. They will find conditions greatly different. Absent are the tensions of overcrowding and poor facilities which led to the explosion of violence at Manchester. Private lavatories, wash-basin, desk-cupboards and beds grace the cells, many of which have fine views across the countryside. Every prisoner has work to do, an educational department provides many courses and there is ample scope for games and sport– 90 04 04, 05c

1990 04 05
Libraries budget cut hits novels – 90 04 05a

Hundreds of low-paid Cambridge nurses are hunting for second jobs to pay their poll tax, a union chief claims. Some 500 nurses in training who on salaries ranging from £5,695 to £6,630 are paying between £48 and £82 a month for bed-sitter flats at Addenbrooke's Hospital. Now they face an additional bill of £428 for poll tax 90 04 05b

1990 04 07
Philips to axe 120 jobs – 90 04 07a

'Snowy' Easton retires from Co-op, started in 1939; ran own butchery business Longstanton – 90 05 07b

1990 04 09
Fireball terror as resin burns at industrial estate Balsham Road, Fulbourn – 90 04 09a
Tadpole Technology formed in 1984, now Cambridge Phenomenon success, moves into new headquarters on Science Park – 90 04 09b # c.27.1

1990 04 10
Cambridge house prices plunged by five per cent in three months – 90 04 10a
Desmond January retires after 50 years in estate agency; houses that sold for £750 in 1938 now make £120,000 – profile – 90 04 10b # c.06

1990 04 12
Addenbrooke's Hospital major blast which shattered main incinerator may have been caused deliberately; a 42 inch oxygen cylinder was buried in hospital waste – 90 04 12a # c.21.4

1990 04 13
Cherry Hinton Robin Hood & Little John pub has new restaurant – 90 04 13a

1990 04 14
Heroin has returned to streets after a three-year absence. Drug Dependency Unit has cut back on methadone – 90 04 14a
Giant multi-screen cinema may be built in heart of Cambridge as plans for cinema as part of the Grafton Centre – 90 04 16a # c.76.9

1990 04 17
Hobson's Publishing, Bateman Street, which has announced losses may be taken over by Daily Mail and General Investments group – 90 04 17a # c.25

1990 04 18
'Hereward Way' walk between Ely & Peterborough – new guide – 90 04 18a

1990 04 19
St Andrew the Great set to become tourist centre with art gallery and exhibition area – 90 04 19a

1990 04 20
Cambridgeshire County Council officials given huge salary rises, 600 now earn more than £20,000 pa – 90 04 20a
Listers to produce special replica of 1950s sports racer car; Lister Jaguar and Archie Scott Brown broke records in 1957 – 90 04 20b

1990 04 23
Andy's Records closed stall on Market after more than 20 years; Andy Gray now owns 14 shops from Grimsby to Colchester, started selling second-hand records in 1969 – 90 04 23a , 24a # c.69
Eynesbury school – history – 90 04 23b

1990 04 24
Neve Electronics of Melbourn makes recording consoles – 90 04 24b

1990 04 25
Cambridge Co-op in precarious financial state and the Beehive shops complex would have to be sold unless merge with Co-operative Retail Services – 90 04 25a # c.27.2

1990 04 26
Addenbrooke's Hospital catering service to be taken over by private management; day surgery to be expanded to avoid ward closures – 90 04 26a

1990 04 27
Jesus College lawns used by Muslims marking end of Ramadan; more than 500 worshippers from around the world – 90 04 27a # c.83

1990 04 28
Business park bringing 3,000 jobs launched at Eden Park by St Ives interchange on A604 – 90 04 28a
Little Downham The Hythe, former Old Red Cow Inn for sale – 90 04 28b
Southacre Park, Chaucer Road, site of mansion in 1880 which housed royal princes Albert & Henry while undergraduates now developed into luxury houses - 90 04 28c # c.06

1990 May CEN

1990 05 01
Fulbourn Hospital is to be sold and part of its 130-acre grounds turned into a business park under new plans - 90 05 01

1990 05 02
Rabbit, the new cordless phone system based in Cambridge is to be launched in September. Based at Westbrook Centre. To install numerous base stations – 90 05 02 # c.27.75

Andrew Blackwood retires as manager of Arts Theatre, Stephen Walton his successor; interview – 90 05 02a, b # c.76

1990 05 03
Willingham to rebuild youth club destroyed by fire – 90 05 03

1990 05 04
Harold Ridgeon leaves £12 m. Left school at 14 to become railway clerk, got to St Catharine's College, joined Cyril Ridgeon builders merchants then set up on his own. – 90 05 04 # c.23

1990 05 05
Protestors burn poll tax bills on Parker's Piece after march through Cambridge – 90 05 05a # c.33.2

1990 05 08
Exchange Fitness Club, former Tivoli cinema for sale – 90 05 08a # c.76.9

1990 05 09
Armed robbery at TSB bank, Mill Road – 90 05 09 # c.32.8
Bacon cigarette packet discovered under floorboards – 90 05 09a

1990 05 10
Cambridge Antiquarian Society celebrate 150th anniversary – 90 05 10a

1990 05 11
Railway – last 125 InterCity diesel at Huntingdon; replaced by electric trains – 90 05 11a

1990 05 12
Philips Scientific, York Street makes redundancies in manufacturing division, making analytical instruments. Sister company Philips Radio Communications axed 120 jobs St Andrew's Road – 90 05 12a # c.27.1 : Pye
Pinehurst South development sells well – 90 05 12b

1990 05 14
Prince Edward receives MA degree – 90 05 14a # c.02

1990 05 15
Mildenhall community centre opened – 90 04 15b

1990 05 16
Traffic plan approved, includes car park under Midsummer Common, new bridge over Cam and road across Ditton Meadows; light railway system, pedestrianisation, tow-away, roads and cycleways – 90 05 16a # c.49.62

1990 05 17
Spinney School Cherry Hinton official opening – 90 05 17a # c.36.5
John Brown family made custom-built bicycles, awards Town and County Cycling Club cup – feature – 90 05 17b # c.26.485

1990 05 19
Bottisham Grange private care development with integrated care, medical facilities etc – 90 05 19a
Needingworth Priory Farm includes nuclear shelter – 90 05 19b

1990 05 21
Kim Philby film alleges Charles Broad, Prof of Moral Philosophy at Trinity was the 'Fifth Man' in Cambridge spy ring – 90 05 21a # c.45.8

1990 05 22
West's of Cambridge founded 65 years ago; started Gloucester Street in 1925, moved Newmarket Road when took Renault dealership 1959 – 90 05 22a # c.26.48

1990 05 24
International standard University sports complex planned for west Cambridge – 90 05 24a # c.38 : athletics
Cambridge Gallows fail to sell at auction – 90 05 24 # c.34.9
University Counselling Service set up in 1968 following student suicides – feature – 90 05 24c # c.36.92
Dunkirk memories of Dennis Broomfield – 90 05 24d

1990 05 25
Cambridge Water Company state of emergency following mains burst – 90 05 25a # c.24.2
Buchan House residential home and day centre to be kept closed until county find company to run it under new privatisation policies – 90 05 25b # c.32.9

1990 05 28
Cambridge United promoted to Third Division following Wembley win – 90 05 28a, c # c.38 : football
Peat can be dug from Holmewood Estate near Holme – 90 05 28b

1990 05 29
George Lister engineering company celebrates centenary, built motor racing cars; set up in Abbey Road 1890 – feature – 90 05 29a # c.27.1

1990 05 30
Rising sea levels bring flood threats – feature – 90 05 30a, b # c.29

1990 05 31
J.H. Street draper shop, Littleport, account books discovered – 90 05 31a Mariners Way development, opposite Riverside – flood fears – 90 05 31b

1990 June CEN

1990 06 01
Fifty families were forced to flee their homes after a gas pipe blew up in Alpha Terrace, Trumpington, sending gas streaming into the street. Emergency teams were called and the street sealed off. Residents were taken to the Fawcett School – 90 06 01 # c.24.4

Cambridge Central Library to close for two weeks in July for alterations and repairs including controversial refurbishment of the entrance foyer, which is to be divided into a separate retail unit. The City objected saying it would deprive the community of an important space. A wall will be built to separate the new foyer from the proposed shop and electric doors introduced. 90 06 01 # c.77.4

1990 06 04
New waste disposal site to be built in Grunty Fen – 90 06 04a

1990 06 05
Primrose Croft residents to be moved to Buchan House during renovations – 90 06 05
Cambridge United celebrate winning place in Third Division, open-top bus in Market Hill – 90 06 05, b # c.38 : football
St Andrew the Great conversion plans shelved by Unex – may become tourist and heritage centre – 90 06 05a # c.83

1990 06 06
Addenbrooke's Hospital transplant thigh bone of teenage girl into 73-year-old woman; first in country – 90 06 06 # c.21.4
Cambridgeshire Constabulary silver jubilee – feature – 90 06 06a, b # c.34.7
Manor Farm Estate, Croydon for sale – 90 06 06c

1990 06 07
Post office van ambushed at Chippenham – 90 06 07

1990 06 08
Anti poll-tax protestors disrupt Guildhall meeting – 90 06 08
Dullingham and Shepreth Schools closing to be replaced by one new one – 90 06 08a

1990 06 09
Private Cromwell Centre, Huntingdon rocked by blast – 90 06 09

1990 06 12
Serious road accident figures rising in Cambridgeshire – 90 06 12

1990 06 13
Eastern Counties Leather of Sawston – feature – 90 06 13a, b

1990 06 14
St Luke's school, French's Road opened in 1874, closed in 1969 when new school constructed – feature – 90 06 14a # c.36.5

1990 06 15
Sir David Hughes of Burystead Wilburton has heraldic work accepted Westminster Abbey – 90 06 15a

1990 06 18
Polo club at Dullingham opens – 90 06 18a

1990 06 19
Plan for road and bridge across Ditton Meadows opposed – 90 06 19a

1990 06 21
Plans for shopping centre at Gt Abington – 90 06 21a

1990 06 22
Armed robbery at TSB Bank, Jesus Lane – 90 06 22 # c.32.8

1990 06 23
Cambridge to Swavesey railway line – support for reinstatement; special train – 90 06 23a

1990 06 25
Josh Scott, fenland wildfowler, dies – 90 06 25a

1990 06 27
Dorothy restaurant and bar closed ending bid to revive and modern it. Was put up for sale last autumn, one month after reopening, but failed. Cambridge Jazz Club will need new venue – 90 06 27a # c.27.47
Romsey Mill community centre Romsey Town opened 1980 to promote relations between youth and the community; opens alcohol-free bar for young people – 90 06 27b # c.37.9

1990 06 29
Cambridge has more than 1,200 empty houses and flats while people desperate for homes – 90 06 29a # c.23

1990 06 30
Sir Clive Sinclair's Cambridge Computer firm is moving to Scotland; meteoric rise and fall; started Sinclair Radionics in 1962, moving to Cambridge in 1967; produced digital watch and calculator, tv and computers. Won Queen's Award in 1975 and knighted 1983. But C5 flopped, marriage broke up and sold his house on Madingley Road in 1989 – 90 06 30a

1990 July CEN

1990 07 02
Eland Way development of 84 council properties in Cherry Hinton constructed on a 'design and build' contract by Sindalls in conjunction with city council – 90 07 02a

1990 07 03
A1 trunk road to be made into motorway from London to Tyneside – 90 07 03
Swaffham Prior windmill gets new aluminium cap – 90 07 03a

1990 07 04
Thomas House office buildings in George IV Street completed – 90 07 04

Addenbrooke's Hospital staff evacuated after chemical spillage – 90 07 04a # c.21.4
Paine's brewery depot, Eynesbury offered for sale – 90 07 04b

1990 07 05
St Ivel withdraw from its Hassy vegetable growing and packing business specialising in onions, salads etc at Soham – 90 07 05a
Cambridge & County School opened 1900 specialising in agriculture – history – 90 07 05b # c.36.5
Duke of Edinburgh opens Ditchburn Place – 90 07 05c, 06, 09b # c.02 # c.32.9

1990 07 07
Grafton Centre second phase, including cinema, is in doubt as major investor Sun Life Insurance puts its 84 per cent holding on market as it does not believe the extension is viable – 90 07 07 # c.27.2

1990 07 09
Engineering project to protect fens starts; banks along Ouse washes from Earith to Denver will be heightened and strengthened; peat land has fallen five metres since barrier banks were built; a South Level bank burst could cause £23 million damage, Middle Level burst up to £34m. – 90 07 09a # c.29

1990 07 10
Jesus College to subsidise hard-up students – 90 07 10

1990 07 11
House prices in East Anglia could double in five years – report – 90 07 11
Hobson's Publishing win damages over takeover of two other firms – 90 07 11

1990 07 12
Cambridge Festival set up by volunteers in 1961, Mary-Rose Clark recalls hard times – 90 07 12a # c.69

1990 07 13
MRSA infection stops Addenbrooke's Hospital liver transplants – 90 07 13

1990 07 14
'Italian' Cambridge Festival carnival parade – 90 07 14

1990 07 17
Cambridge City Treasurer suspended in expenses probe – 90 07 17 # c.35.7

1990 07 18
Burglar shot in bungled break-in at greengrocers – 90 07 18
Quayside shops and office development formally opened by Duke of Edinburgh – 90 07 18a # c.44.6 # c.02

1990 07 20
Lord Rutherford, exhibition on his atom splitting experiments in the Cavendish Society – 90 07 20a

1990 07 21
Cambridgeshire County Council must make budget cuts to avoid poll tax capping – 90 07 21

1990 07 25
Computer history in Cambridge; memories of Prof Maurice Wilkes who ran the first-ever programme 1949 – feature – 90 07 25a, b # c.27.5

1990 07 26
Burwell Maltings business complex fire – 90 07 26

Trinity College plan a bailey bridge across Cam while work on Wren Library – 90 07 26a # c.44.75
Wicken memories of Anthony Day – 90 07 26b
Mike Petty awarded T.C. Farries 'Librarian of the Year' award – 90 07 26c # c.77.4

1990 07 27
Victoria Bridge refurbishment plan – 90 07 27a

1990 07 28
Littleport primary school closure was a mistake, say councillors – 90 07 28h

1990 August CEN

1990 08 01
University Institute of Management Studies receives £8 gift from Paul Judge, former boss of Premier Brands (Chivers) of Histon 90 08 01a # c.36.9
Chernobyl youngsters visit Guildhall 90 08 01a

1990 08 02
Queen Elizabeth, Queen Mother – visits to Cambridge recalled – 90 08 02a # c.02

1990 08 07
CND remembrance of nuclear bombs – floating lanterns - 90 08 07a
Extravagant spending at American base, Mildenhall – 90 08 07b
Ely RAF Hospital 50th anniversary march-past – 90 08 07c

1990 08 10
Lion Yard car park underground extension opened – 90 08 10a; brings relief 90 08 17a # c.26.48
Heat killing trees at Wandlebury – 90 08 10b
University Museum of Anthropology reopens after four years – 90 08 10c # c.03

1990 08 11
Drought reveals outlines of former buildings on King's Parade – 90 08 11a

1990 08 13
Land between Stretham and Wicken flooded by Shropshire's to drown eelworms – 90 08 13a

1990 08 14
Medical Research Council withdraws funding for Medical Cryobiology Unit at Trumpington – 90 08 14a

1990 08 15
Market traders put forward plan to pedestrianise the square with a quarter left free for stalls – 90 08 15a # c.27.3
William Waide, county planner after WWII responsible for Bar Hill, dies 90 08 15b
Soham Downfields windmill produces flour – feature – 90 08 15c

1990 08 18
Victoria Bridge restoration to start – 90 08 18a

1990 08 20
Frank Holland experiences as pow Germany – 90 08 20a

1990 08 21
Post officer sorters in walk-out – 90 08 21
Libraries highlighted as part review – 90 08 21a

Cambridge planning schemes should be high-quality – 90 08 21b, c

1990 08 22
Bar Hill expanding – feature charting activities – 90 08 22a

1990 08 24
Trinity College erect Bailey bridge across river during underground extension to college library – 90 08 24a # c.44.7
Swaffham Prior named best kept village – 90 08 24b

1990 08 28
Alma Brewery, Russell Court, damaged by fire – 90 08 28a # c.27.4
Harcostar factory, Huntingdon, fire – 90 08 28b
Sutton St Andrew's church tower in parlous state – 90 08 28c

1990 08 29
Hundred Houses Society opens Liley Close, Chesterton – 90 08 29a

1990 08 30
William Rhodes Moorehouse VC to be auctioned, feature – 90 08 30a

1990 08 31
Mitre pub fined for hygiene – 90 08 31
Michael Bowyer memories WWII bombing raids – 90 08 31a, b

1990 September CEN

1990 09 06
Comberton sports pavilion set on fire – 90 09 06a
Airglow light aircraft built at Sawston – 90 09 06b

1990 09 07
Light railway system to beat traffic chaos would cost £100m – 90 09 07 # c.49.62

1990 09 11
Cambridge football clubs could have new home at Chesterton sidings – plan – 90 09 11 # c.38 : football

1990 09 13
Grantchester post office raided – 90 09 13a
University chemical labs were used for poisoned gas research during war; Scientists Anti-War Group – 90 09 13b # c.45.6 # c.45.7

1990 09 14
Victoria Bridge girders revealed during rebuilding – 90 09 14a # c.44.7
Therapeutic Antibody Centre, Addenbrooke's Hospital opens – 90 09 14b # c.36.9

1990 09 15
Spitfires lead planes over Cambridge en route Battle of Britain anniversary fly-past – 90 09 15
Nina Hubbard, who ran ballet school in Cambridge dies – 90 09 15a # c.69.2

1990 09 18
Leisure facilities plan including ice-skating, roller skating and ten-pin bowling at Histon Road may be shelved – 90 09 18 # c.38

1990 09 19
Hinxton business park plans announced – 90 09 19a
Salisbury Arms and Dobblers Inn may be sold – 90 09 19b

1990 09 20
Beehive Centre to be revamped – 90 09 20a

1990 09 21
TSB to close branches in Burleigh St & Jesus Lane – 90 09 21a # c.32.8

1990 09 22
City Council staff reorganisation plans proposed – 90 09 22a

1990 09 26
Market Hill revamp plans include new fountain – 90 09 26a # c.27.3

1990 09 27
'charge-card' for motorists caught up in jams – plan – 90 09 27
City planning chief John Popper resigns; third official to leave within three months – 90 09 27a,b # c.35.7 # c.49.4

1990 09 28
Shropshire farms, Barway, problems with poplars and eel worm – 90 09 28a
Wood Green start wind turbine 90 09 28b
Waits outfitters celebrates centenary, opened Cutter and Tailor at 70 Hills Road 1890, moved 49 Hills Road 1936 with other branches – 90 09 28c # c.27.2

1990 October CEN

1990 10 01
Newmarket Hospital plans for redevelopment rejected – 90 10 01a

1990 10 02
Locomotive renamed 'Cambridge Traffic and Rolling Stock Depot' – 90 10 02a

1990 10 04
Geoffrey Datson retires as Chief Executive, city council – memories – 90 10 04a # c.35.7
Cambridge forgotten communities – homeless – feature – 90 10 04b & c

1990 10 05
Lucy Cavendish College silver jubilee – college heads – 90 10 05a

1990 10 08
Cromwell News, Cromwell Road, set alight – 90 10 08a
Cambridge Robes made ceremonial robes for monarchs, bishops at Portugal Place since 1947; to close – 90 10 08b # c.27.2
Wicken Fen opens no.5 Lode Lane – 90 10 08c

1990 10 09
City planner, John Popper, resignation creates row 90 10 09a
Newmarket Road, one of the ugliest should be left an eyesore – 90 10 09b

1990 10 10
Proposed car park under Butt Green for 1,000 cars – opposition – 90 10 10a

1990 10 11
Garden House Hotel taken over from Queens Moat House group by Paul Breen, plans leisure complex 90 10 11a # c.27.4
Bedmakers – recollections of Edith Free, started Trinity 1945 – 90 10 11b # c.36.9

1990 10 12
Trinity new master, Michael Atiyah installed – 90 10 12a
Ely Bishop's Palace to become Sue Ryder Home – 90 10 12b

1990 10 13
Cardinal Hulme attends mass celebrate centenary Catholic church – 90 10 13a # c.83
Ely heads for mixed economy but lack of progress on major shopping redevelopment – 90 10 13b

1990 10 15
John Cairncross named as fifth man in Cambridge spy ring – 90 10 15a # c.45.8
West Wickham barn destroyed by fire – 90 10 15b

1990 10 16
Colin Lunn tobacconist on King's Parade, opened 1899 to close – 90 10 16a # c.27.2

1990 10 17
More buses, a cycling scheme and shop-to-home delivery service suggested as ways solving Cambridge traffic; light railway is not answer says Prof Plowden – 90 10 17a
Heritage Shooting Ground with 11 indoor ranges, opens at March – 90 10 17b

1990 10 18
Papworth Hospital plans to opt out of NHS management control – 90 10 18a

1990 10 19
Pay-as-you-drive congestion scheme proposed – 90 10 19a
George Seaman-Turner to donate library to UL – 90 10 19b
Addenbrooke's Hospital general manager resigns – 90 10 19c
Cambridge Escort Agency – profile – 90 10 19d # WOMEN

1990 10 20
Homerton College may move as buildings in poor state – 90 10 20

1990 10 22
Leica Cambridge, the former Cambridge Instrument Company to make 70 redundant at Clifton Rd factory – 90 10 22a

1990 12 23
New checks ordered on anthrax site, Milton Rd – 90 10 23, a

1990 10 24
Prof Dame Elizabeth Hill fled Russia in 1917 – profile – 90 10 24a
Estate agents flourishing, Spicer McColl & Daniels Estate Agents open – 90 10 24b

1990 10 25
Andre Marsh Goldsmith company, Chesterton Road raided – 90 10 25a
Francis & co solicitor history by Christopher Jackson – 90 10 25b

1990 10 26
American Military cemetery funeral for US pilot – first for 40 years - 90 10 26

Sutton school time capsule of 1860 opened – disappointment – 90 10 26a
Addenbrooke's Hospital day surgery unit to expand – 90 10 26b

1990 10 29
County 'abuses planning system' but approving own commercial developments – 90 10 29a
Premier travel expanding – 90 10 29b

1990 10 31
Madingley hall ghost in new book – 90 10 31a
Vintage clothes shop open in Water Street – 90 10 31b

1990 November CEN

1990 11 01
Gt Wilbraham village school – profile – 90 11 01a

1990 11 02
Two teenagers dressed as witches launched vicious attack on Stretham man at his house Wilburton Rd – 90 11 02a

1990 11 15
Guildhall may be converted into shops – plan – 90 11 15a
Red House Farm, Girton, sold with implements –end of era – 90 11 15b

1990 11 16
Libraries face review – 90 11 16a

1990 11 20
City planner, John Popper, leaving because of difference of approach with councillors – 90 11 20b

1990 11 21
Everards, company producing special wheelchairs for handicapped children, finishes – 90 11 21a
Hope Nursing Home new facilities; 54 residents 90 11 21b # c.32.9

1990 11 23
'Over the Bridge' community magazine for Romsey to close after 100th issue = 90 11 23a # c.04

1990 11 24
planned demolition of Arts Cinema and part of Joshua Taylor department store for new cinema, 19 shops, restaurant and refurbishment of shops & offices – 90 11 24a

1990 11 25
Fitzwilliam Museum given £15 million art collection by Daniel McDonald; follows £11m gift to Archaeology Dept – 90 11 26a # c.36.9 # c.03

1990 11 28
Acorn Computers backed by Apple Corporation to form Advanced Risc Machines – 90 11 28b # c.27.5 # c.27.1

1990 11 30
Philips to axe 300 jobs including Philips Radio Communications Systems, St Andrews Road – 90 11 30 # c.27.1
Sid Barret, musician, played in 1930s with Percy Cowell and Reg Cottage orchestras; founder member of Riverside Jazz Band; dies – 90 11 30b # c.26.2
Cambridge Consultants Ltd celebrates 30 – profile – 90 11 30c

1990 December CEN

1990 12 12
Oliver Cromwell House, Ely, opens as tourist centre – 90 12 12a

1990 12 13
D-Day planning at Union Society – feature & Roosevelt – 90 12 13a

1990 12 15
Uplands, Hinton Way, Gt Shelford – fire – 90 12 15a

1990 12 17
Dr Elliss Cosslett, pioneer on electron microscopy, Cavendish, dies – 90 12 17a

1990 12 18
Emmanus community to be formed – 90 12 18a

1990 12 20
Oxford v Cambridge air race established 1921 – feature – 90 12 20a # c.26.1

1990 12 21
Image Research, develops screening devices for baggage - 90 12 21a
Chesterton Community College hall renamed Rex Freeman Hall – 90 12 21b

1991 onwards

These I leave to you to continue.

The Cambridgeshire Collection, part of Cambridge Central Library since 1855, has taken cuttings since the 1960s.

It still continues to do so at the date of this compilation, August 2016.

This is despite successive cuts to its staff and budget by Cambridgeshire County Council.

Do not blame councillors.
They were simply following orders and were not told what they were doing.

Mike Petty
Stretham
18 January 2018

Cambridgeshire Scrapbook

1991 08 22
Lt Thetford feast – photos. 91 08 22ES

1992 05 21
Lt Thetford turn against worms: church riddled with woodworm. 92 05 21ES

1993 06 03
Devin Dunseath, the man who has a bike for everybody, Lt Thetford. 93 06 03

1993 10 29
Couple's 'miraculous' escape: lorry demolishes Quarterway House, Stretham -. 93 10 29

1994 07 14
Lt Thetford will double in size after permission for 92 new houses off Watsons Lane. 94 07 14

1994 10 20
Villagers win lengthy battle: Westmere settlement for 1,500 homes at Stretham rejected 94 10 20 ES

1995 03 23
Changes in rural life – memories by Marjorie Jones in light of newcomers' opposition to new development at Lt Thetford. 95 03 23

1997 02 24
Lt Thetford village hall gets a new look – photo includes Miriam Badcock. 97 02 24

1998 10 07
Building site yields important finds for local archaeologists: Persimmon development, Lt Thetford. 98 10 07

1999 03 16
Lt Thetford school boosted by new extension. 99 03 16

2000 onwards

These are odd articles on various topics. I have scans

2002 01 19
Life turns topsy-turvy for Jean: Jean Adamson's books being relaunched. 2002 01 19 'You'

2010 07 30
Lt Thetford Baptist Church coffee mornings and plans. 2010 07 30

2011 12 10
Ely courthouse left to crumble as key reports are delayed 2011 112 10 CM

2012 02 10
Copying price rise will hit students and researchers: microfilm photocopying charges at Cambridge Central Library soar from 10p to 50p a copy 2012 02 10 CN # c.77.4

2013 06 28
Inferno sparked by burning rubbish; the smoke was so thick … we're all in shock: massive fire at Masters Logistical Services, Ely Road, Stretham. Photos by Mike Petty. 2013 06 28 CN

2013 07 11
Ken Wallis gets his medal after 71 years for action in Wellington bombers 2013 07 11 EDP

2013 09 16
Fragile Brock drawings to go under the hammer at Cheffins 2013 09 16 CN

2013 12 05
Country's 'oldest cycle shop' to close after 173 years: John Howes. 2013 12 05 CN # c.26.485

2013 12 25
Two photographs of prisoners of war held in Ely during World War Two had been sent to him from Germany by the son of one of the detainees. With faint descriptions on the back, the pictures have given a new and fascinating insight into how the 1,000 or so prisoners stationed in the city at any one time spent their Christmas in the Fens. "Most of Ely's long and fascinating history is well documented, but not so the story of the two prisoner of war camps," says Mr Crosby, project manager of the Rich Soil Rich Heritage community history group. "We believe the photos are of German forces stationed at the Barton Fields camp where Ely Golf Club is today. Both were taken in 1947 - two years after the war ended. Many prisoners stayed for a few years after the war because there were so many around the country, they simply couldn't be repatriated quickly enough." One picture shows a group of prisoners at their camp next to a humble-looking Christmas tree, with the other capturing them at a Christmas concert supposedly recorded by the BBC. They were just people away from home trying to have some sort of Christmas. During the war, Ely had two PoW camps - one holding German forces at Barton Fields and another holding Italian troops at West Fen Militia, now covered by Priory Court.Those who could not be trusted stayed at the camps, but many spent the war working on the surrounding fields. Mr Crosby says the local agricultural industry relied heavily on these prisoners during this period and some even lived in their own cottages on the farms. Evidence has also emerged that the PoWs helped with emergency operations in the city and helped stem the waters during the 1947 flood. But in their free time, Mr Crosby says the prisoners were encouraged to take up activities to "keep them sane" and they were allowed to celebrate Christmas. 2013 12 25 BBC News.

2014 03 24
Magnificent man in his flying machine: very first aerial photos of Cambridge taken by Major Joseph Clifford Griffiths, September 1922. 2014 03 24 CN

2014 03 25
News man's window on a vanishing world: tribute to John Carter, CDN photographer 2014 03 25 CN # c.65.5 # c.04

2014 04 19
Tributes to man who caught city on camera: Tony Jedrej, News photographer 2014 03 25 CN # c.04 # c.65.5

2014 04 28
Victoria Cross for heroic First World War pilot: William Rhodes Moorehouse activities 2014 04 28 # c.45.5

2014 05 02
A few years ago in the row of houses where my mother lived in Stretham, (about 30 houses), two lived to be over 100, my mother 104 and another lady 102. There were also seven females who lived to be over 90. At present there are six or seven who are over 90 in Stretham. Two others, in care homes, celebrated 100th birthdays – letter 2014 05 02

2014 07 02
Story of forgotten hospital brought to light in film: First Eastern General Hospital commemorated in film by Cambridge Community Heritage. 2014 07 02 # c.45.5 # c.65.6

2014 10 16
Fresh chapter looms in story of Central Library: part of third floor may be leased for private use, including meeting rooms. 2014 10 20 # c.77.4

2014 11 13
Times flies … and the county archives has the pictures to prove it … more than 14,000 images … 15 people responsible for maintaining the archives at Shire Hall, Cambridge Library and Huntingdon 2014 11 13 CN

2015 03 28
Moving is a costly affair … no mention of transfer of Cambridgeshire Collection from its new exensively refurbished purpose-built home to a former bowling alley in Ely. Must Chris Jakes see all his recent work of reorganisation and the £500,000 refurbishment thrown away. Orign of scheme lies in the poor storage of Shire Hall county records – letter from David Jones. 2015 03 28 CN

2015 03 24
History man Chris scoops top award … Chris Jakes awarded Dorothy McCulla Memorial Prize for Local Studies … has worked in local studies team for 40 years … helped thousands of researchers … built, catalogued and indexed the collection into one of the best local studies collections in the country 2015 03 24 CN`

2015 04 02
Keep our city collection here … an essential part of the library; it is not mouldy old documents – those are at Shire Hall – but housed in modern archival-quality storage installed a decade ago as part of a £500,000 scheme. The move coincides with plans to privatise third floor – Sara Payne letter 2015 04 02

2015 04 16
Central Library protest forces council rethink … decision to replace part of the Library's third floor with an enterprise centre has been put on hold … anger about lack of consultation of Kora proposals … petition of 3,500 signatures 2015 04 16 CN&C

2015 04 21
Libraries are not for profit; concern over proposals for third floor Central Library; letter from D. Carter. 2015 04 21 # c.77.4

2015 04 21
Archives must not be moved … ill-considered plans to move Cambridgeshire Collection to Ely … used for book on Fowlmere: letter from Leslie Price. 2015 04 21 # c.77.4 # c.43

2015 04 23
'Benefits' to archive move … relocating to Ely will provide benefits … need new premises following National Archives inspection. If approved part of the Cambridgeshire Collection would also be moved 2015 04 23 CN

2015 07 25
Library review to be done in-house: probe into failed plans for an enterprise centre at Central Library … 37 private meetings with Kora 2015 07 25

2015 09 02
Central Library to get some new friends 2015 09 02

2015 09 23
Central Library plans 'correct': investigation into Cambridge Central Library enterprise centre on third floor which scrapped after Phil Rodgers discovered Kora boss disqualified as director negotiations … more caution about confidentiality agreements but no breach of processes 2015 09 23 CN

2015 10 08
Archives move is going ahead … to Ely despite spiralling costs from £69,000 to more than £4 million. There is now no space to house the Cambridgeshire Collection which is staying in library. Mike Petty thanks for support in a desparate battle to keep it there 2015 10 08 CN

2015 10 22
Ode to pub joy at the Red Lion, Stretham: welcome new chef. 2015 10 22 EN

2015 11 12
Head to head over Grunty Fen: Christopher South talks to Fenland History on Friday; photo South & Mike Petty 2015 11 12 ES

2015 11 18
The spy who never finished his mission: Willem Ter Braak committed suicide Christ's Piece31 March 1941, buried Shelford. 2015 11 18 & a # c.45.7

2015 12 10
Tea and clemency at the real Grunty Fen … Christopher South meets real residents of the area he explored on Radio Cambridgeshire with 'Dennis', 2015 12 10 CN

2015 12 11
Archives move is given green light … to Strikes Bowling Alley, Ely; to cost £4.2million; had planned to move the Cambridgeshire Collection to the new location, but idea dropped earlier in the year. 2015 12 11

2016 01 19
The luxury home where Henry help open house: Rance's Folly 2016 01 19

2016 01 19

Hearbreak as 3,000 years of tradition quietly slips away: Peter Carter, last eel-catcher, retires 2016 01 19 EDP

2016 01 27
How Cambridge housed the children fleeing Hitler: exhibition on Kindertransport at Churchill College. 2016 01 27

2016 03 15
Fears for future of history collection over staff cuts. Until a few years ago was run by at least five full-time people but now planning to change to just one part-time librarian and three part-time assistants. Mike Petty says 'it is one of the best collections of historic materual in the world … it will be many months before small team have the opportunity to appreciate the full extent of the resources to which they hold the key – and much longer before they can advise researchers on its use'. Last year plans were approved to relocate Cambridgeshire Archives to Ely. They were also planning to move the Cambridgeshire Collection there. However following uproar the plans were dropped. A spokesman said the Collectiopn will retain a part-time librarian supported by three part-time assistants dedicated to the development of the collection and ensuring public access and interpretation continues. 2016 03 15 CN

2016 03 16
Shame this story didn't end so well: Susan Gregory column … went to brain-storming session but hours reduced, charge for reservations. 2016 03 16

2016 07 12
Sad time for archives access … deplore lack of support for Cambridgeshire Collection …. Produced chronicles. Letter from P.J. White 2016 07 12

2016 11 26
When angry protesters took over city's streets: feature article on CND movement 2016 11 26 CN# c.45.8

2017 04 05
University runs out of space to house 8 million library books. Building a £17million storage facility at Lancaster Way Business Park, Witchford. 2017 04 05 CN

2017 05 15
Is Cold War site hot property: RSG4 bunker, Brooklands Avnue might make home. 2017 05 15 CN # c.45.8

2017 06 26
Bespoke developer celebrates milestone. Laragh Homes established in 2007 … forged exceptionally strong relationships with number of investment partners … It has alos been at the forefront of development based on a combination of public and private funding such as Manor Farm, Stretham, which includes landlowner Peterhouse and the Stretham and Wilburton Community Land Trust, which will own the properties and manage them ging forward. Managing Director said "I am particularly proud of our work as part of the consortium bringing the Manor Farm project to fruition … it is our largest development, at 75 properties. Charles Roberts, Chairman of Stretham and Wulburton CLT and leader of East Cambridgeshire District Council said: "It's an absolute pleasure to celebrate with Laragh. In terms of the Manor Farm development, what we have got is exactly as agreed at the start … the appetite to do something different to the norm and the commitment from the whole Laragh team has been really impressive" 2017 06 26 CN

2017 09 15
Rewarding unsung community heroes: Cambridge News Community Awards 2017; includes Mike Petty for Lifetime Achievement 2017 09 15 CN

2017 10 30
Inside city's secret nuclear bunker … now used for archives. CN 2017 10 30 # c.45.8 # c.43

2017 10 31
In the spirit of Hallowe'en: Cambridge Ghost Hunters investigate haunted places; includes Stretham Old Engine 2017 10 31 CN

2017 11 01 C.I.
The knight in a shining sedan who went to the rescue of the Queen, by Mike Petty: account of visit of Queen Mary to Cambridge on Jan 29th 1934. CI 2017 11 01&a

2108 03 05 Cambridgeshire Times
A charge for using Cambridgeshire library computers – introduced partly as a result of a survey that found 87 per cent support – is being dropped after it produced only a tenth of the predicted income.
The charge was introduced last May after 102 out of 117 people who responded to a survey throughout the previous September and October felt that the council "should start charging for services".
However a report to the highways and infrastructure committee next week will show predicted income by March 31, 2019 of just £9,041 "significantly short of the predicted income of £108,000".
The council has been making a £1 per hour charge after an initial 30 minutes that is free to all users.
Job seekers, those on benefits and children up to 18 have continued to have free access at all times.
The report says that although the reduction in income is close to what was predicted, the low income reflects the high numbers of users who are exempt from charges.
Councillors will hear of a more recent survey of 494 users in which of the 255 who offered comments, 231 of these were negative.
And the survey also found support for upgrading the 330 computers available in libraries – complaints of taking 10 minutes to log in were commonplace.
The recommendation to withdraw the computer charge comes in response to this review, as well as feedback collected in a customer survey.
If this proposal is agreed, computers will be free for all to use all the time from April 1 and the library service will look at how to manage demand for computers so they are available for those who most need them.
Committee chairman Mathew Shuter said: "The decision to introduce a charge for computer access was not taken lightly but we have to look at all avenues to ensure fair access to our limited resources as well as to generate more income.
"This was a difficult decision to make and exactly why we asked officers to review this change by asking for a more detailed analysis of the data."

He said: "It is encouraging to see people continue to use computers in libraries for a shorter time, leaving the machines for those who most need it, which was one of the main reasons for the charge in the first place.
"However, we are listening to residents and customers with the feedback we've received which leads us to suggest withdrawing the charge altogether and seek other ways to prioritise access and generate income.
"We will continue to ensure our libraries are at the heart of our communities and will now look at other approaches to secure their long term financial sustainability."
The report will hear that all 330 library computers should have been replaced last year – it will now happen this year

2018 07 11
Mike's labour of love looks back at city's recent past; 'Cambridge 1888-1988: a chronicle of an English University city'. 2018 07 11

2018 09 27

Descendants of head-hunting tribe and their poignant journey: Luskai people from Mizoram, India, visit Stretham to dedicate headstone to Frederick William Savidge, missionary 2018 09 27 ES

2018 11 03
Snapshots of Sussex Street show camera firm once called it home: credits Mike Petty's 'excellent chronicles' 2018 11 03

2018 11 14
Construction of the new home at Ely for Cambridgeshire Archives is now well underway. The build is scheduled to last 52 weeks and currently Coulsons are a quarter of the way into that period with everything still on schedule. Work began with clearing out the entire interior of the former bowling alley building, which was then followed by a start on the concrete and reinforced steel floor of the archive storage rooms. This floor alone has consumed over eighty tons of steel and two thousand tons of concrete; Coulsons say anecdotally that they cannot recall pouring as much concrete into the interior of a building ever before. Coulsons have now progressed to installing the columns for the roof of the archive storage rooms. Once the whole store area has been completed this will be left to dry out while Coulsons move onto constructing the other parts of the building. In a couple of weeks' time we will be closing both our searchrooms at Cambridge and Huntingdon so that the staff can fully focus on the massive cleaning, packaging and barcoding work that we have to carry out before we can safely move records. We have recruited four part-time packaging assistants to help us with this work and we expect that there may well be some volunteer opportunities in due course too. The searchroom at Huntingdon will reopen after six months, in June 2019. We do not have a date yet for when our new searchroom at Ely will open but I will let you all know as soon as one is confirmed. Many of you will know how long and painful a process it has been to identify and acquire a suitable new site for Cambridgeshire Archives. The records themselves have been languishing in the basement of Shire Hall for far too long. From next year, however, the records will for the first time be stored in modern environmentally-controlled archives accommodation, and it is a demonstration of the high value that the County Council places on archives that it has committed itself to such major capital expenditure during this period of great austerity within local government budgets. When we have fully reopened our service, sometime in the late summer or autumn of 2019, we will arrange a visit for CAG members. In the meantime if anyone would like to know more then please feel free to drop me a line. Cambridgeshire Archives Group website. 2018 11 14

2018 12 27
A visual exploration of Cambridge past and present: photos in Historic England archive – historicengland.org.uk – 2018 12 27 CI # c.65.5

2019 01 02
Packing away history for a brighter future: more than 850 tonnes of historical documents at the Cambridgeshire Archives are being packaged ready for the big move to new premises in Ely. Photo: Alan Akeroyd. 2019 01 02 CI

2019 03 27
No grave plaque for Dutch Nazi spy; William Ter Brakk buried in Gt Shelford cemetery. 2019 03 27 CI

2019 08 14 CI
Saving the work of the English Burns: James Withers' poetic archive collected by Ren Bowen, with Mike Petty. 2019 08 14

2019 09 28
How verse about farm fire was the spark for self-taught country poet: James Withers. 2019 09 14 & a

2019 10 28

Masters Logistical purchased its existing premises and an additional adjacent 3.5 acres of land to increase its operations with support of £2.5million funding package from Lloyds Bank Commercial Banking. The business, based in Stretham, transports goods to and from businesses across 17 European countries, has bought the site it previously rented for 15 years. They now plan to build a new warehouse and hire an additional three members of staff and expects to increase its annual turnover by 10 per cent to £6 million in the next year – 2019 10 28

2019 11 26

£5.3m archive centre to open … more than seven miles of shelving … many more documents can be made available online … will protect the heritage of Cambridgeshire. Search room will be used as a venue for registration cemermonies when not in use for archives. Cambridgeshire Collection local studies materials, including maps, books and articles will remain at Cambridge Central Library. The Ely site was affordable and adaptable with on-site parking and good access to public transport. 2019 11 26 CI

Add to added entries

2014 10 16
Fresh chapter looms in story of Central Library: part of third floor may be leased for private use, including meeting rooms. 2014 10 20 # c.77.4

2015 11 18
The spy who never finished his mission: Willem Ter Braak committed suicide Christ's Piece31 March 1941, buried Shelford. 2015 11 18 # c.45.7

2014 07 02
Story of forgotten hospital brought to light in film: First Eastern General Hospital commemorated in film by Cambridge Community Heritage. 2014 07 02 # c.45.5 # c.65.6

2015 04 21
Libraries are not for profit; concern over proposals for third floor Central Library; letter from D. Carter. 2015 04 21 # c.77.4

2015 04 21
Archives must not be moved … ill-considered plans to move Cambridgeshire Collection to Ely … used for book on Fowlmere: letter from Leslie Price. 2015 04 21 # c.77.4 # c.43

2015 09 02
Central Library to get some new friends 2015 09 02

2020 02 07
Milestone for mega library: University Library Ely storage facility houses its one-millionth book. 202 02 07

2020 02 07 ES
The Cambridgeshire Village Colleges Heritage Project, run by Viva Arts in Soham, will combine history and research with travelling exhibitions. Stories will be collected from former students and local residents who have had a connection with the colleges in the county across the decades. Students at Witchford Village College (WVC) are also supporting the project by speaking with students who attended in the 1950s.
A small group of Year 9 and 10 students were trained in the use of recording equipment, editing and transcribing software to carry out interviews. The former RAF base at Witchford is now the site for WVC, which opened in 1951 utilising the RAF Nissen huts.

Jo Gordon, marketing manager at WVC, said: "We are very proud of their heritage and it has been a great experience for our students to be involved in this community project. "They have most enjoyed carrying out the interviews and especially finding out first-hand how different the college was then to now."
The village college is an institution specific to Cambridgeshire but the model has inspired educators worldwide. It was established by education visionary Henry Morris, Cambridgeshire's chief education officer for three decades from 1922. The aim was to provide education for 11 to 16-year-olds by day and educational and leisure facilities to adults at other times - therefore serving the whole community.
"For many decades, tens of thousands of local people have benefitted from this county's unique village college system," said Rachael Polsom, heritage project manager.
"This is the first project to celebrate the county-wide heritage of the village colleges and we look forward to collecting people's first-hand village college stories."
As well as receiving funding from the National Lottery Heritage Fund, Viva have the full support of the Henry Morris Memorial Trust who have contributed £5000 toward the project costs and access to their archive.

2020 02 06
A children's language book written by comedian Sandi Toksvig has become the one millionth entry to take its place in Cambridge University Library's Ely storage facility, just 18 months since it opened.
Toksvig's Guide to France' now joins a wide variety of material ranging from the Harry Potter novels to the Puffin Book of Nursery Rhymes at the £17 million library storage facility (LSF).
The LSF, which opened in May 2018 on the Lancaster Way Business Park, was built to house low-usage material and currently receives between 7,000-10,000 items for storage each week.
Robin James, head of collections logistics and services at Cambridge University Library, said: "It has been a fantastic project to be involved in and is very different from anything the Library has done before.
"To have transferred over a million items in such a short period of time has been a great team achievement and I'm delighted to continue managing the LSF and collection logistics in this new environment." Since 1710, Cambridge University Library has been one of six 'legal deposit' libraries entitled to claim a copy of every book published in the UK and Ireland.

But despite the introduction of an electronic legal deposit in 2013, the library has been close to bursting point. Depending on the scale of ingest, the LSF, which can hold up to 4.5m books, could be 50 per cent full in around 30 months' time.
Dr Jessica Gardner, Cambridge University librarian, said: "For more than 600 years, Cambridge University Library has been a cathedral of knowledge, collecting and preserving one of the world's most important and priceless collections of books, maps and manuscripts. To make sure we can continue to preserve what is so precious - and meet our ambitions to be a truly global, 21st century collection - we have to make the most effective use of space possible."
The Ely store is currently receiving on average 58 requests a week for LSF items from readers, and requests are monitored to deem whether an item should be labelled as 'low-usage' or returned to general circulation. 2020 02 06

2020 02 08
Offical opening of new Cambridgeshire Archives at former Strikes bowling alley building in Ely
The new home opened to the public at the end of last year following a refurbishment of the former Strikes bowling alley building. Since then more than 170 visitors have been to the new centre, which is three times the number that used to visit Shire Hall in Cambridge over the same amount of time.
Dr Elizabeth Hallam Smith, the first female librarian of the House of Lords Library and a published historian unveiled a plaque alongside Cambridgeshire County Councillors on Thursday February 6.
Work to move 855 tons of historical documents including Oliver Cromwell's baptism record and the original 17th century maps proposing the draining of the Fens began in December 2018.
The move came after an inspection by the National Archives which deemed the previous accommodation in the basement of Shire Hall as "no longer fit for purpose". Councillor Steve Criswell, Cambridgeshire County Council's chair of the communities and partnership committee, said: "The opening of this new centre is a moment of pride for us. It's an exciting new facility that demonstrates both the high regard the council has for the heritage of the county and the value we place on delivering a quality public service to our communities."

Councillor Mac McGuire, Cambridgeshire County Council's chairman, said: "The team have worked extremely hard on this project, spending many hours meticulously cleaning and packing up the county's precious archives ready to move as well as managing an extensive build programme and I'm extremely proud of what they have achieved."
The transcripts for the rest of the county will be at the Cambridgeshire Collection in Cambridge Central Library. [not so – they are at the Huntingdon archives in Huntingdon library]
For more information about the archives centre visit www.cambridgeshire.gov.uk/residents/libraries-leisure-culture/archives/visit-our-archives. 2020 02 07ES

2020 02 27 Fenland Citizen
Emergency public meetings are being held next few weeks to discuss the future of two Fenland churches under threat of closure. The historic All Saints' Church in Elm, which dates back to medieval times, is in desperate need of volunteers to help secure its future as current churchwarden Cynthia Brown prepares to retire after 22 years in the post.
Cynthia, 74, gave the parochial church council (PCC) notice of her decision to step down last year but, despite the 12 months' warning, no-one has come forward to fill her shoes.
St Mark's in Friday Bridge is facing other problems associated with the building itself that could see it closed and so the Diocese of Ely has called two meetings to discuss the options available for the future of the buildings.
Geoffrey Hunter, the diocesan's head of church buildings, said: "This is not an unusual situation and similar public meetings are being held in churches around Cambridgeshire."
Normally parish churches have two churchwardens, elected from the community at the annual meeting of the PCC, but Cynthia has been the lone warden at Elm for eight years and also acts as verger at weddings and funerals. She said: "Every time a job becomes available I end up taking it on as there is nobody else. I not only do the duties of the church warden and the verger but I also look after health and safety, and child protection and vulnerable adult duties, too. When I tell people I'm retiring the first thing they ask is how much I get paid – but the roles are all voluntary. I get £15 for a wedding and £15 for a funeral, but apart from that I'm unpaid – so it is not going to make anybody rich. But it is a very worthwhile job and I love doing it for the community. But it is very demanding, it is like a full-time job and I have decided it is time for me to take a step back. What we need are a number of younger people willing to step forward and take on the duties – the more volunteers the more the work can be shared. It will be too upsetting if no-one comes forward and it disintegrates. I don't want that to happen and I panic when I think about it."
Geoffrey said the meetings are both open to all residents of both parishes as well as those further afield who have a connection of interest in either All Saints' or St Mark's, which has problems with its heating system. During the meetings, he will present the options available for the future of the buildings and will explain that the PCCs, under the guidance of the Diocese of Ely, are considering a range of options for the future management, particularly of All Saints'. Geoffrey suggested one option for St Mark's, whose problems relate to the building and its heating, might be to make it a summer only church. Both the PCC and the Diocese want to hear the views of members of the wider community before deciding upon any final decision on the future of the church buildings.
t is hoped that the community, as with previous generations, will continue to value the churches by supporting their contribution to Elm and Friday Bridge, both for now and for future generations Geoffrey said: "The churches are community and heritage assets at the heart of the village, however in their current form the management of the buildings is not sustainable. The income raised from services and events is not sufficient to maintain and run the buildings. There are not enough people involved in the care and management of the churches to undertake the day-to-day tasks necessary to keep them open. If that situation doesn't change there are very limited options other than closure.
The Venerable Hugh McCurdy, Archdeacon of Huntingdon and Wisbech, added: "I am looking forward to engaging with people from across the community as we think together about the future of the parish churches. “There are a number of options in front of us and they all depend on the support of the people who live in the villages. For example, one outcome may be a desire to continue to have services every Sunday. Another option may be to have Sunday services on special occasions. It is clear that we cannot continue to go on as we are without further support and commitment by local people. The public meeting is an opportunity to explore those ideas and others. Do join us.”

The Elm meeting is on Tuesday, March 10, at 7pm in All Saints’ Church.
The Friday Bridge meeting is on Thursday, April 2, at 7pm in the Tower Hall.

Please make what use of this you may. Kindly remember where it came from – www.mikepetty.org.uk